The body of a man, thought to be that of Domenic Tortorelli, 35 years old, 34 Bismarck place, who fell into the river at the foot of La Salle avenue during December, was taken from the river today by the police.

See Rooms to Rent Advertisements on Page 4

POLICE DEFIED BY EMMA GOLDMAN IN UPHOLDING "REDS"

Anarchist Priestess Declares She Will Speak Sunday Despite Opposition of Police

AVERBUCH'S DEED IS LAUDED

Says Czolgosz Followed Dictates of Conscience When He Assassinated President McKinley

Emma Goldman, leader of the anarchists in America, today defied God and man in an interview with a Chicago Journal reporter.

With the police arresting every suspected anarchist in the city, Miss Goldman dared them to interfere with her, and said she would explain what anarchy meant in an address at the Masonic Temple Sunday night.

Only through anarchy, Miss Goldman declared, could society ever hope to be civilized, and this meant the elimination of religion, the overthrow of conventionalities and the freedom from governmental restraint.

In the tones of a physician describing an operation, the anarchist leader declared that Czolgosz had felt himself justified in assassinating President McKinley, and he felt he was doing it for the good of the people.

The anarchist, Averbuch, who attempted to assassinate Chief of Police Shippy, was disavowed as a "Red."

Stopping with a Friend

Miss Goldman was seated in a little room on the third floor of 976 North Winchester avenue, with her friend, Mrs. William Dutch, whose husband is said to be also an anarchist. The Queen of the Reds was dressed in a blue suit, and she was unbuttoning from the grip.

"I shall speak Sunday night in spite of the orders of Chief Shippy," said Miss Goldman in a calm, dispassionate voice. "If I could have secured a hall earlier I would speak on 'Anarchy' before then.

"The police seem to have lost their heads, as usual. This man Averbuch was not an anarchist. No one of my friends seems to have known him, and from the meager data one finds that he was a member of no anarchistic society. How he was misled is a mystery that remains to be explained.

"Averbuch was only a few months in this country. His case is entirely unlike that of Czolgosz. Czolgosz was an American. He knew the constitution and declaration of independence and he knew they were myths.

Called Society Unjust

"He rebelled in his simple way against what he considered the injustice of society after being knocked about in the factories and workshops. He said he killed McKinley for the good of the people.

"No. We don't consider Czolgosz an anarchist saint. We have no saints. We believe that in the case of tyranny a man has the right of self-defense and that man has the right of collective rebellion, if I mistake not, that is one of the cherished American doctrines.

"Anarchists believe in the murder of tyrants! No. There is not a book, pamphlet or magazine on anarchy that I know of that preaches murder. We are open students, and where an individual kills a public official we try to find out the cause that prompted him."

Regulation of an Anarchist

When asked what a man had to do to become an anarchist Miss Goldman replied:

"He must rid himself of superstitions first, both the superstitions of religion and the superstition of property. Anarchy has no God. The idea of fixing the responsibility of human horrors on a conscious deity is revolting. The second step for the student in anarchy is to throw aside all the conventionalities of modern life. Possibly the most hypocritical of these is marriage. We believe that the man and woman are the best judges of their right to love together. Caste must be broken down and the laws practically overthrown by hypocrisy.

Is a Communist Anarchist

"Personally I am a communistic anarchist. I believe it would save labor, time and energy if wealth were produced and distributed by communal effort. Men's souls, aside from being relieved in this way, they would demand the utmost freedom.

"With the elimination of poverty, crime and ignorance would also disappear. We do not believe in restraining laws, because the perfection of government in a civilization so high in its standard that restraining laws are not necessary. It means that the best government is the one that needs the least necessity for laws."

Chief of Police Shippy did not go to the city hall today, as his injury was given him considerable trouble. Harry Shippy was reported as progressing favorably, but it was not deemed advisable to predict the outcome of his wound.

"How do you expect to accomplish this?" she was asked.

"Not by the political power of votes," she answered. "That is the mistaken theory. We believe the question to be a numerical one. The workers must be organized along industrial lines. Their weapon must be the general strike. With a population of all industry, clerical and otherwise, from the Atlantic to the Pacific a great incident in conditions would be the result of the struggle.

"Ultimately the institution of private ownership of land, the only collective property the property laws in general would be repealed. While society would [illegible] be allowed freedom to satisfy their [illegible] alone if they so desired. It would [illegible] overthrow of capitalism [illegible] what anarchists are working for."

No Condemnation for Assassins

Miss Goldman refused to [illegible] assassins of the king of Portugal, [illegible] and the one who [illegible] to kill Chief Shippy.

"I have nothing to say [illegible]," she said. "Anarchists [illegible] being who views the [illegible] it for what he considers it. They do not have [illegible] any one. Anarchy [illegible] them."

In talking of the [illegible] assassinations Miss [illegible] clearly committed a [illegible] made in cases [illegible] trying to [illegible] declared that [illegible] were prompted [illegible] with the [illegible]

M'REYNOLDS LOSES WIFE

Imprisoned Broker's Spouse Obtains Divorce on Plea That Her Husband Is Convict

Mrs. Hartbell Cook McReynolds was granted a divorce from her husband, George S. McReynolds, today less than twenty-four hours after she had filed application for relief from the bonds of matrimony.

Mrs. McReynolds was the only witness heard and the proceedings required only a few minutes. Judge Gibbons granted the decree.

The husband, in the solitude of a prison cell at Joliet, was spared the humiliation of appearing to defend himself against the woman for love of whom he "traveled beyond his depth" in an expensive social campaign that landed him in a complicated, pronounced guilty of raising money through fraudulent manipulation of warehouse receipts to keep up the pace.

Inquiry into McReynolds' affairs after the crash came disclosed that it had cost him as high as $25,000 a year to maintain his home.

The divorce is said to be the prelude to a new marital venture on the part of the "violet farmer," whose experiments in raising the fragrant blossoms proved so costly.

It is said that Mrs. McReynolds will shortly become Mrs. Hayward.

Wife Tells of Separation

Mrs. McReynolds, accompanied by her attorney, Angus Ray Shannon, entered Judge Gibbons' courtroom, and Colin C. H. Fyfe appeared a little later to represent her husband.

After determining when the bill was filed and whether any answer was made the judge directed that Mrs. McReynolds take the witness stand. Her testimony was given almost in a whisper and the stenographer had difficulty in hearing her.

"When did you separate?" asked Attorney Shannon.

"Dec. 16, 1906, when Mr. McReynolds was convicted by a jury in the Criminal court for fraudulent use of warehouse receipts."

"Do you know where your husband is now?"

"In Joliet penitentiary."

"Have you seen the judgment in the case of The People vs. George S. McReynolds entered in the Criminal court?"

"I have."

Escapes Cross-Examination

"Then I will introduce this judgment into evidence," said the lawyer to the court.

"It may be attached to the evidence," said Judge Gibbons.

Attorney Shannon dismissed Mrs. McReynolds and took the witness stand. After identifying himself he said that he had made an examination of the records of the clerk of the Criminal court and he learned that the judgment entered against McReynolds is still in force and effect.

Judge Gibbons directed that the testimony be written and the decree presented for his signature. A penitentiary sentence being a statutory ground for divorce, Attorney Fyfe could not question Mrs. McReynolds.

Loyal During Trial

Prior to going to the [illegible] at 900 Rush street Mr. McReynolds was head of the firm of McReynolds & Co., 240 La Salle street. The firm [illegible] three grain [illegible]. The liabilities of the concern were placed at $600,000, and the assets at $250,000 when the crash came.

Mrs. McReynolds was apparently devoted to her husband until he was convicted by the jury in the Criminal court.

When he was placed on trial it was declared that his wife's sympathies was responsible, in a measure, for his difficulty. He was said to have given her large amounts of money to pursue her hobby of cultivating violets at her home in Kenilworth and at her farm at Glencoe.

Murder Case Goes to Jury

The case of Bartholomew Hilts, accused of murdering Clarence E. Patterson Oct. 1, 1907, will go to a jury in Judge Kersten's court this afternoon. Patterson, who was 19 years old and lived at 2007 West Chicago avenue, was shot by Hilts at the latter's poolroom, 1173 West Chicago avenue, after a quarrel.

514

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

881109000

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Interview] Police Defied by Emma Goldman in Upholding "Reds" / Emma Goldman.— pp. 1-2 ; 43 cm. In Chicago Daily Journal. —(March 6, 1908).

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from The Chicago Historical Society.

...ERROR

School Children Who Perished in Cottrell Fire and Panic Are Buried One by One

...LATER FOR UNIDENTIFIED

Mother Faints in Recognizing Child at Morgue; 167 Dead, Twenty-Three Bodies Unknown

[Associated Press Telegram]

CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 6.—This was a day of funerals in the suburb of Collinwood, scene of the public school fire and panic that caused the death of many children.

In fully 100 cases the funerals will be individual, each family burying its own dead. The first of these funerals was held early. They will continue throughout the day. In some instances funeral services were grouped with five to ten bodies in the church.

Unidentified to Be Buried Monday

The unidentified will be buried Monday according to present arrangements. The expense of these funerals, together with the funerals of children whose parents are not in a financial condition to meet the burden, will be borne by public subscriptions, which are growing larger every hour. Already thousands of dollars have been raised. In addition to this a bill has been introduced in the state legislature appropriating $25,000 for the relief of the needy fire sufferers. This bill, it is expected, will become a law at once.

Altogether 167 bodies have been recovered. The list of missing now tallies with the number of unidentified, which indicates that all of the bodies have been found and that the total death list will stand at 167. There are twenty-three bodies unidentified.

Mistook Identifying Daughter

The body of Miss Katherine Weidler, one of the two teachers who lost their lives, was positively identified by a dentist. It had been burned so that it could hardly be distinguished from the bodies of small girls. The identification was established by her gold-filled teeth as descriptions furnished by a Pittsburg dentist.

The body of Rosetta Machalich, a former pupil in the school, was identified by her sister. When Mrs. Machalich was positive of the identification she fell fainting on the charred body of her little daughter.

2,000 Pupils March to Safety Singing "America"

[Associated Press Telegram]

NEW YORK, March 6.—While a fire raged on the fourth floor of the fire story public school building in 109th street, between Amsterdam and Broadway, today, 2,000 pupils marched from the building singing "America" under the leadership of their teachers.

The children were engaged in their morning exercises when cries from the floor above, followed by smoke issuing in along as they marched out of the building. There was no sign of panic at any time and a few minutes after the first alarm was sounded all the children were assembled in the school yard waiting for the word of dismissal which would permit them to go home.

Fortunately, all the smaller children were in rooms on the lower floors of the building, and many of them did not know of the fire when they were called upon to march out by the regular fire drill. The fire was quickly extinguished after causing damage to the extent of about $300 in the room in which it started.

Fireman's Coolness Averts Panic

[Associated Press Telegram]

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 6.—A fire panic was narrowly averted at the city poor house early today by the coolness and determination of a lone city fireman regularly stationed there. The 1,200 inmates were asleep when Fireman William Curran discovered the laundry in the basement to be on fire. Night Watchman Leonard started to turn in a fire alarm, but was stopped by Fireman Curran.

"The engines will start a panic and somebody will get killed," he declared. "I'll fight this fire myself."

He fought the fire with a hose and twice was driven out by the dense smoke but finally, after half an hour's hard work the blaze was extinguished.

German Premier Sends Sympathy

[Associated Press Telegram]

BERLIN, March 6.—Chancellor Von Buelow has sent the following cable message to Baron Speck von Sternberg, the German ambassador at Washington:

"Express to the mayor of Cleveland my heartfelt sympathy in connection with the awful catastrophe."

He also has sent a request to the German consul for Ohio to learn whether citizens of any German subjects were among the victims.

Ohio Pays $100 for Each Child

[Associated Press Telegram]

COLUMBUS, Ohio, March 6.—All business was set aside by the Ohio legislature today until the matter of the relief of the unfortunates in the Collinwood school holocaust was attended to. A relief fund of $50,000 was voted. A committee of three Cleveland citizens is to be appointed at once to distribute the money, which will be appropriated in the proportion of $100 for each child burned to death.

CLUBWOMEN DISCUSS WORK

Part of New Industrialism Subject at Hull House Conference

The Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs opened today in Bowen hall, Hull House, a series of meetings to discuss industrialism. Jane Addams, Miss Alice Hamilton and Mrs. Charles Henrotin spoke on "Women workers and social costs of the new industrialism." Meetings were scheduled to be held in the afternoons and evenings.

HAVE YOU TRIED

Hunyadi János

It is well known to be

The Best Mineral Laxative Water for CONSTIPATION

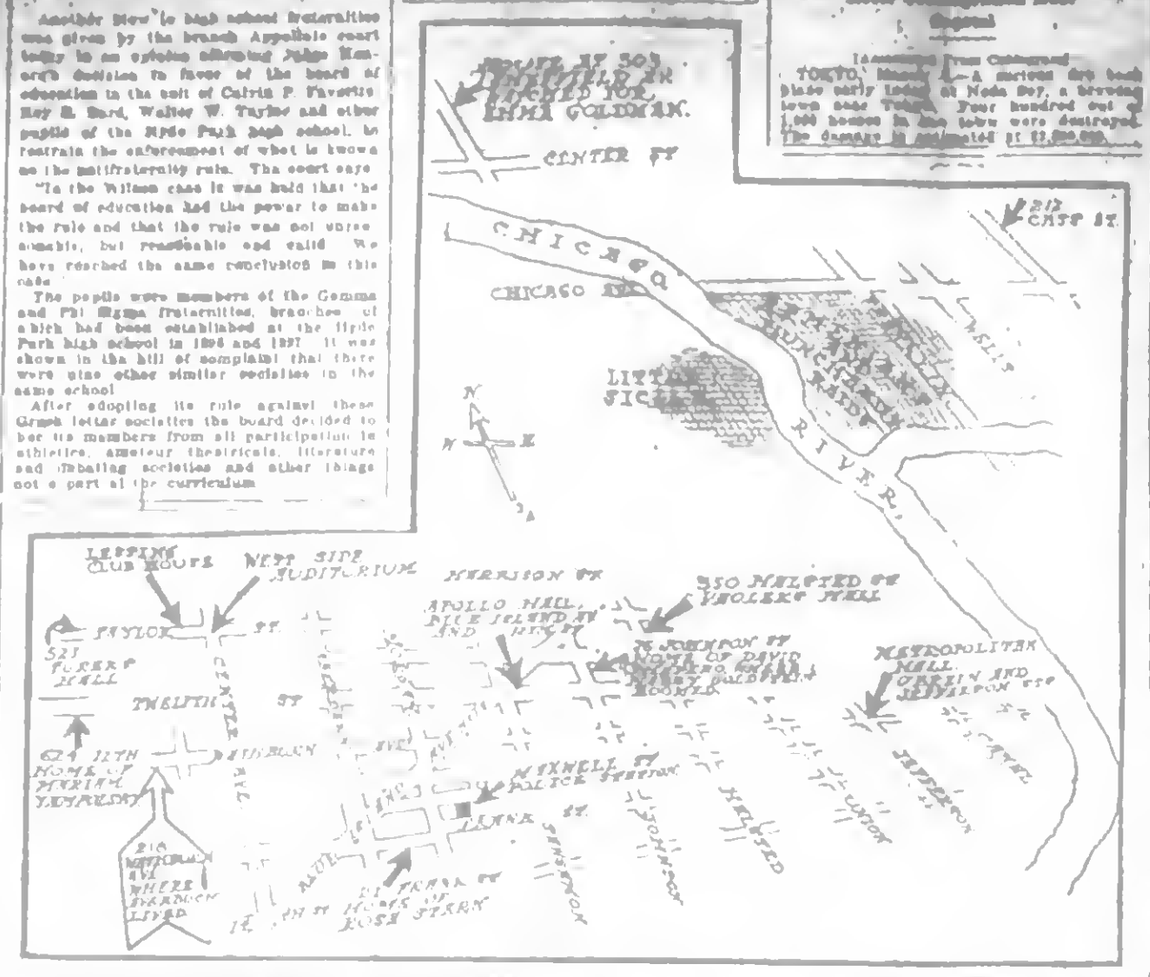
...Board of Education in Rule Against Secret Societies



Another blow to high school fraternities was given by the branch Appellate court today in an opinion affirming Judge Kimbark's decision in favor of the board of education in the suit of Calvin P. Fiveash, Ray H. Bard, Walter W. Taylor and other pupils of the Hyde Park high school, to restrain the enforcement of what is known as the anti-fraternity rule. The court says:

"In the Wilson case it was held that the board of education had the power to make the rule and that the rule was not unreasonable, but reasonable and valid. We have reached the same conclusion in this case."

The pupils were members of the Gamma and Phi Sigma fraternities, branches of which had been established at the Hyde Park high school in 1906 and 1907. It was shown in the bill of complaint that there were nine other similar societies in the same school.

After adopting its rule against these Greek letter societies the board decided to bar its members from all participation in athletics, amateur theatricals, literature and debating societies and other things not a part of the curriculum.

...POLICEMEN

Only One of Nine Buildings Left Unburned After Earthquake Shock Reported

[Associated Press Telegram]

TOKYO, March 6.—A serious sea tidal wave early today at Noda Bay, a bathing town near Tokyo. Four hundred out of 1,000 houses in that town were destroyed. The damage is estimated at $2,000,000.

SCOUTS WAR

Chinese Minister in Chicago on Way to Washington, Says Japs Trouble Is Not Serious

[CONTINUED FROM FIRST PAGE]

make any special attempt at Washington in regard to the Chinese immigration question and then launched forth on a description of the Celestial Kingdom, subjects new in this country, after learning of the great number of emigrants from other nations which are distributed through the various south and west side foreign quarters.

"Do you know that there are not more than 3,000 Chinese in Chicago?" he demanded. "But the emigrants from other countries people Chicago in far greater numbers.

"Why is that true?" he suddenly burst forth when told that the Italians, French, Germans and Irish number thousands, and in measure form the great part of Chicago's population.

"It is true because there is an immigration restriction against the Chinese, as you know. But at that if there was no bar against the Chinese they would not flock to this country. The great majority are satisfied with their own kingdom," continued the minister.

Finds Moral in San Francisco

"In San Francisco, before the great earthquake, there was a supposed popular feeling against the Chinese. That feeling was enlarged upon and exaggerated as that other Americans believed that San Franciscans were against the Chinese people their city.

"Then came the earthquake, or 'fire,' as they call it out there. The Chinese quarter was practically wiped out of existence. Then the Chinese were forced to go to Oakland while the city was rebuilding. Now the people of San Francisco want them to return. The residents are beginning to realize that their absence means a great loss of money."

Then, with a broad smile and a wave out of the window, Mr. Wu shrewdly remarked: "The way to get at the American people is through their pocketbooks."

Chinese Aliens Decreasing

"But I have no intention of interfering, as I have no particular instructions from my government, but I have studied the immigration question for many years. Some time ago there were 300,000 Chinese in this country. Now I understand there are not more than 70,000."

At this point Minister Wu began to ask a few questions on his own account.

"You live in Chicago. Do you know what province the Chinese in our city come from?"

The questioner admitted that he could not answer.

"Well, they come from Canton. Outside of a few well-to-do Chinese, who maintain large merchandise stores or members of my suite, you will not find one Chinaman in this country who does not come from Canton. I will explain the reason. Thirty years ago when they began building the transcontinental railroad, the contractors wanted help and they went to the Canton province. Those were the men that came to this country and they speak a dialect of their own."

Driven to English Speech

"Today if a resident of Pekin or Shanghai wanted to come to this country, he would be friendless. In the first place he would be unable to talk with the Chinese here. Today, even in China, when men from different provinces meet, they talk in English because only in that tongue can they understand one another."

Minister Wu then began speaking on the opportunities of American goods in Chinese soil.

"Each year the amount of goods shipped from America to China increases," he declared.

"It has been stated that the importations are dropping off, but I feel safe in saying that is untrue. Nearly every product which has been sent to China in the past is still being imported and the necessities are increasing."

Asked if he was going to make an appeal to the United States in regard to the Chinese-Manchurian trouble, he replied that no special instructions had been given him and he did not believe the subject would come up while he was at Washington.

China Forming Big Army

Minister Wu also confirmed the reports that China was amassing a great army, but declined to give any exact figures on the size of the aggregation but announced that in time the Chinese government would have one of the greatest armies in the world. From that point he talked of Madam Wu and his son. Both are in Shanghai.

Mme. Wu will follow to Washington in about two months. My son has been studying at Oxford and he will accompany her to Washington, where I am established there. She enjoys the Washington society and is anxious to return. While we lived there, during my former stay, we made many friends, and I am overanxious to return and renew the acquaintances. I met some friends when the train stopped at Omaha last night. Though it was late there was quite a number. Dear," said the minister as he patted with pride in a greatly worn of flowers in the corner of the compartment.

"They gave them to me," he added with another smile.

Silent on Japanese Crisis

Minister Wu asked many questions about strained conditions between United States and Japan. Though he sought many replies, he refused to give any opinion on the matter.

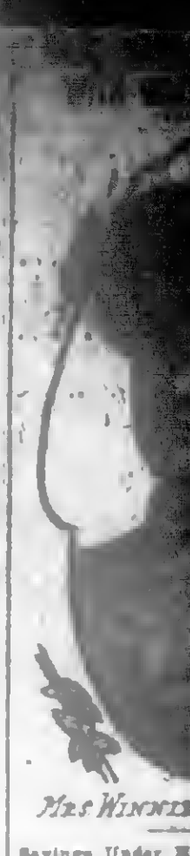
The party left San Francisco Tuesday morning. Among the members of the suite with Minister Wu who will remain in Washington are

First Secretary Ou Shou-Tchun.
Second Secretary Yen W. W.
Third Secretary Koai Chih.
First Interpreter Kuan Ying Ling.
Second Interpreter Wang Y. Chung.
First Attache Yuan Ko-Shuan.
Second Attache Ling Shih-Tuan.
Student Interpreter Ho Wing-Tao.
Commercial Attache Liang.

"The "Overland" car occupied by the party with Minister Wu was crowded with luggage. Some of the baggage, it was believed, was brought from Shanghai, but a great part was bought in San Francisco. All was plastered with hotel labels, while the peculiar cases brought from China were stamped with the steamship plasters. Great assortments of peculiar canes, umbrellas, new leather hat cases added to the outfit.

NEWS BRIEFS BY TELEGRAPH

LINCOLN, Neb.—Attorneys for R. Meade Shumway, sentenced to death March 17 for the murder of Mrs. Marita of Beatrice, secured a stay of execution pending the hearing.



WASHINGTON—Arguments were continued today before the house committee on the judiciary against the Littlefield bill providing that liquors shipped in interstate transit shall be subject to police powers of a state.

JANESVILLE, Wis.—The L. L. Olds Seed company's plant at Clinton was destroyed by fire last night. Loss, $50,000. It was the largest concern of its kind in the west.

Rich Indiana Banker Dead

[Associated Press Telegram]

HUNTINGTON, Ind., March 6.—Isaac T. Taylor, aged 66 years, president of the Citizens' State bank and the wealthiest man in this county, died today.

MRS WINNIE

Savings Under Hi... Spouse and A... Paul D...

Suffering from locomotor ataxia in more without ... grievous, far Sheva ye... Mayor Fred Busse, ... first ward politics, sa... own commission man ... today appealed to the ... wife Winnie, 24 years ... Adams, who, he claims ...

He accuses them of ... under his pillow whi...

Rendered penniless ... he was taken to the h... West North avenue, w... for while detectives a... liams and Mrs. Drag...

Husband Is

Mrs. Dragorious is ... in north-side young ... husband conducted a ... Clark street, but had ... and intended to go o... search of health.

Before going into ... was on the stage and ... Brady's "Siberia," ... Tales," and other co...

Williams lived at t... quently been betrie... husband.

"I thought the wo... got along so fine," ... sobbing, while his a... comfort him.

Had Diamo...

"We had been mar... it was for her that I ... planned to take a tr... were her present ... chased a diamond ... to give her as her b... 25th of this month, ... her 25th birthday.

"I befriended Wil... this in the way he r... They took everythi... playing cards and if ... good old manner ... nothing else for me ... am absolutely helpl...

Williams is alleg... wife and child to lo... ing Mulvihill. He ... Rector's and the ...

JOHNSON IN ...

Minnesota Democ... Question of I... Pres...

ST. PAUL, Minn., ... ing of the democra... million here today ... that there may be t... ing is over. It was ... that the bryan... crowd outnumbered ... W. Simons two to o... count when the vot... said that the Johnso... of votes.

After the roll ... appointed to examin... short recess was ta...

It was said that t... were willing to ins... alizing Gov. Johnson ... that the resolutions ... leaving the preside... of the resolutions ... of Johnson do not t...

"Everyone is bett... shoulders," said a ... for so interesting ...

N. Y. MILLION...

Goelet, Peabody a... to See Armou... Centra...

Three New York ... fel, Charles A. ... Auchincloss, who a... his successful fight ... from the directorat... railroad, arrived in ... to the Auditorium A...

Their coming rela... Oaden Armour on ... The directors' meet... two will take place ... York March 18.

It is said that M... aspect of a large ... shares which were ... Messrs. Harriman ...

LOCAL NE...

The police have ... into the death of A... old, 19 Milton aven... on the sidewalk in ... 19 Milton avenue ... fractured. He reac... Thursday night and ... the window in the ...

George Buhl, 17 ... street, was found d... room. It is though...

The theory that ... street who used ... venue, was murder... Johnson's pay envi... rubbers, and bet w... by Lieut. Welsh as ...

President Wilco... city will address ... Chicago on "The ... west."

Two fires, the M... ures of series ... of the Auditorium ... Ceres, heads which ... Chas. Read Watter...

See Rooms ... tisement

WOMAN STEALS GEMS WORTH $20,000; PAWNS THEM TO EDUCATE SON

Prisoner, Confessing She Is "Raffles" Who Stole Friends' Jewelry Blames Requirements of Society

[Associated Press Telegram]

NEW YORK, March 6.—Charged with the theft of jewels valued at $20,000 from Mrs. Evelyn Bell, one of her wealthy friends, Mrs. Jeanette Neumann, who lives at the Stratford house, was locked up at police headquarters today.

The police say Mrs. Neumann has made a full confession and told them she was actuated by her desire to keep pace with some of her friends. Most and to maintain her own social position.

Mrs. Bell lives in Central Park west and also has a home at Bridgeport.

According to the police informa...n Mrs. Neumann was introduced to Mrs. Bell by a mutual friend and after that was a frequent caller at the Bell home. After several of her visits Mrs. Bell missed articles of jewelry among them a ruby ring valued at $10,000, a diamond ring and a diamond horseshoe.

Two detectives who had been working on the case met Mrs. Neumann [illegible] home and [illegible] to her room. [illegible] her under constant fire of questions all night, without gaining a single admission. Then the detectives say she called a lawyer and after a consultation sent a letter in the room and took from it a note, which [illegible] she [illegible] represented the articles which had disappeared from Mrs. Bell's home.

Arraigned in police court, Mrs. Neumann gave her name as Jane Jacobson, 35, was released on $5,000 bail.

THROWS WATER; FINED $200

Mollie Mott, Famous in Police Annals, Wins Prosecution Against Man Who Attacked Her

Mollie Mott, famous in the police annals of the south side, appeared in Judge Crowe's court today to prosecute Mathew Mezonte, who was accused of throwing a kettle full of boiling water in her face and to answer a charge of disorderly conduct.

Mezonte was fined $200 and [illegible] and by order of Judge Crowe was rearrested on a charge of [illegible] him with assault and was held to the grand jury.

The woman's face and head were almost completely covered by bandages, which had been cut to allow her eyes and breathing. Her lips were so swollen that it appeared that she could hardly tell the court the story of a struggle with Mezonte, and how he had hurled the kettle of water at her.

Her sister, Mrs. Celia Mott, corroborated the woman's story. Mrs. Burton declared that she had been turned on the bank by the water when the kettle was thrown. McDonald declared Mrs. Burton had thrown the water at him, and had accidentally struck her sister, but his testimony was not regarded by the court.

The charge originated over a gold band ring which [illegible] Leonard gaining and which he demanded having taken. The trouble occurred in the kitchen of the house at 3631 Fifth avenue.

Judge Crowe continued the woman's case until April 4 to allow her to go to the county hospital. She was released on her own bond.

ILLNESS HALTS HOTEL SUIT

Argument on Venue Change in Case Involving Liquor Sale at Auditorium Goes Over

Illness of Attorney Ralph R. Bradley prevented Judge Smith from hearing arguments today on the motion for a change of venue in the gun warranty proceedings begun to revoke the charter of the Congress Hotel company for alleged sales of liquor on Sunday. Judge Smith continued the arguments until Saturday.

In the motion for a change of venue the following judges are declared to be prejudiced against the hotel company: Hoo M. Smith, Merlin O. Ball, Axel Chytraus, Albert C. Barnes, George A. Dupuy, Arthur H. Chetlain, and William H. Mitchell.

$13,000 GONE; BLAME CASHIER

Bank Directors Who Make Up Shortages in Funds Say Employe Admits Theft of $6,000

[Associated Press Telegram]

WINONA, Minn., March 6.—John Roth, twenty years cashier of the Bank of Arcadia, at Arcadia, Wis., is charged with a $13,000 shortage which the directors have just made good through an assessment.

Roth at first denied the shortage, saying if there is any apparent discrepancy it is due to errors in bookkeeping, but it is said he has now admitted that as much as $6,000. Since the matter was brought to light he has remained at home, claiming to be ill.

MISS GOLDMAN IN DEFIANCE

"Red" Priestess Declares She Will Speak Sunday Despite Opposition of the Police

[CONTINUED FROM FIRST PAGE]

crimes, she said, proceed from unhealthy environment and heredity.

Eliminate poverty and you eliminate crime, was her conclusion. The power of a dollar wrathful of the lords and rulers alone [illegible] this.

House in State of Siege

All morning the house where Miss Goldman was living was in a state of siege. She refused to [illegible] for hours. But at last [illegible] after the landlord had promised [illegible].

William Lamb, Miss Goldman's host, [illegible] to remain [illegible] no searching. He [illegible] of the [illegible] and police said.

[illegible] Miss Goldman's home [illegible] matches [illegible] Miss Goldman says she will speak on the right to [illegible] Sunday.

Alexander Berkman, who was arrested in company with Emma Goldman after [illegible] M. Kinsley's assassination [illegible] in New York, is to [illegible] Miss Goldman [illegible] paper, Mother Earth.

No Arrest if She Keeps Still

Miss Goldman is said to be arrested at least [illegible] unless she insists on speaking. [illegible] Warren Lyons. This was the [illegible] made by Assistant Chief Schuettler after [illegible] had reported to him that [illegible] of anarchy was at the house [illegible] on [illegible] Wilmot avenue.

He said that a few days ago [illegible] of the chief's assassination Chief Shippy [illegible] and secretly to learn whether [illegible] had been [illegible] against the chief by other [illegible] whether it was the wish [illegible] that [illegible].

I will [illegible] the business of Miss Goldman after [illegible] to speak or distribute literature. I will place [illegible] under arrest.

When informed that the newspapers [illegible] interviews with the police Schuettler said he had not [illegible] and was too busy to read them.

Attention Called to Society

The district society an alleged [illegible] organization on the fourteenth floor of the Masonic temple, was called in the attention of the assistant chief by Farmer & Willoughby, managers of the building. Mr. Willoughby called up the assistant chief and said he was informed that the society was radical.

Shippy [illegible] him it was an anarchistic society and Mr. Willoughby requested the police to assist him in forcing the society to vacate.

George Bell, a member of the Harmony Workers' union called and asked permission for the celebration at Metropolitan hall tomorrow night. He promised that Emma Goldman would not be allowed to speak and the permit was issued. Miss Goldman however insists [illegible] to speak and detectives will be detailed [illegible] the hall with instructions to arrest her and then drive the [illegible] from the building if any anarchistic demonstration occurs.

Sister and Sweetheart Mourn

Two women, broken-hearted because Lazarus Averbuch the would-be assassin of Chief Shippy was buried in potter's field in Joliet, tried to console each other today.

One was Rosie Stearn, said to have been the sweetheart of the dead anarchist, and the other Olga Averbuch, his sister.

The Stearn girl who with Olga was released from custody by Assistant Chief Schuettler, went to the dismal quarters of the Averbuchs and found the assassin's sister weeping on the bed that had not been made up since the police raided the house. Everything was in disorder.

[illegible] Olga, as she wiped [illegible] tears from [illegible] eyes, "I am alone—alone. I and my brother."

EATS MATCHES TO KILL SELF

Young Man in a Cell Than Ties Suspenders Around His Neck in Attempt at Hanging

Charles Gershuson, 17 years old, 71 Churchill street, attempted to commit suicide in a cell at the Maxwell street station today by eating matches and then tying his suspenders around his neck.

The boy was found by Joseph Cahac, an operator, and John Morton, lockkeeper. He was taken to the county hospital, but he refused to talk.

ALL BRITAIN IS ROUSED BY THE KAISER'S LETTER

Independence of England Assailed by Germany in Secret Plan for Navy, It Is Urged

[Associated Press Telegram]

LONDON, March 6.—The letter from the German emperor is purely a personal communication. There is no reference therein to the British naval estimates."

This is the reply Lord Tweedmouth, first lord of the admiralty, makes to the request of the Times for the production of a letter Emperor William sent to Lord Tweedmouth, together with the admiralty lord's reply. Lord Tweedmouth intimated that further information would be given out in the house of lords March 9.

Lord Tweedmouth's statement that the communication from Emperor William was personal has done nothing to allay British suspicions that Emperor William is guilty of designs on the independence of the country. There are insistent demands that the matter be fully aired in parliament.

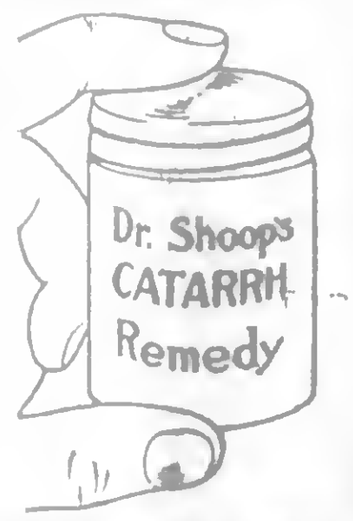
It has been suggested that a possible explanation of the incident is that the British government attempted to secure mutual limitation in the matter of warship-building by direct negotiation with Emperor William. In other words, to achieve by indirect diplomacy what The Hague peace conference failed to bring about.

According to one version, Emperor William's letter gave exhaustive details of the comparative strength of the navies of Great Britain and Germany, and, basing his opinion on this comparison, the emperor said he thought the German fleet could not be considered more than one-fifth as strong as that of Great Britain. This being so, he thought Great Britain had no need to fear any rivalry in naval supremacy from Germany and that consequently there was no need of any increase in the ship-building programme of Great Britain.

In official circles it is pointed out that it would be contrary to all etiquette to publish Emperor William's letter without the consent of the writer. It is believed furthermore that King Edward will have to be consulted before publication is possible.

The matter was taken up by the cabinet this afternoon but no official announcement was made afterward.

Stock Exchange Seat for $52,000



[Associated Press Telegram]

NEW YORK, March 6.—A seat on the stock exchange has been sold for $52,000, which is $1,000 above the price at the last recorded sale.

TEST IT FREE FIRST.

Send No Money. Simply Say "I'll Try It".

Note penny remember! If you have Catarrh I seek only the opportunity of having you at my own risk—at my expense almost. Simply tell me where to send it—that is all.

Then I will do this: I will mail you at once a Trial Box of my Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Remedy. Test it thoroughly. Convince yourself that you will hardly do. And here is where we will both profit: I risk the expense of my remedy by sending it first—you accept neither bonuses nor obligations. The Trial Box is the opening wedge—the best leader to gain for both ease and makes sick people ask how I make sick, yet they are sometimes fearfully disgusted. Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Remedy is a snow-white, creamlike, Antiseptic healing balm. Oil of Eucalyptus, Thymol, Menthol, Oil Cinnamon, etc., are its Important Features. Cleanses—Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Remedy—gives immediate and lasting relief to Catarrh of the nose and throat.

If catarrh, however, has extended down to the stomach, or bowels, then you want to use it internally, as well as by [illegible]. Dr. Shoop's Catarrh, and the Wild Cherry Bitters, should be in [illegible]. Important too, [illegible] loss of strength or [illegible], a pallow complexion, you need [illegible] recommended, simply because of the name and [illegible] needs no other remedy than Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Remedy.

If you desire you may [illegible] Dr. Shoop, Box 77, Racine, Wis.

Which book shall I send you?

No. 1 On Dyspepsia | No. 4 The Woman
No. 2 On The Heart | No. 5 The Kidneys
No. 3 On the Kidneys | No. 6 On Rheumatism

515

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

900213000

The Emma Goldman Papers

[In Defense of Anarchy] / Emma Goldman.— 1908 March 6, draft.— 4 p. ; 28 × 21 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the International Institute of Social History.
Institutional Location: Emma Goldman Archive.

Emma Goldman, high priestess of anarchists of the United States, at a secret meeting of anarchists held at the home of William Baltich, 970 North Winchester avenue, last night, drafted a letter in defense of anarchy and of Lazarus Averbuch, the assassin who was slain by Chief Shippy. Fifty thousand copies of the letter, which was approved by the anarchists present at the meeting, will be issued this morning. In giving out the letter last night, Miss Goldman said she proposed to reach the people of Chicago through the mails if the police would not allow her to speak in public.

Text of Anarchist Letter.

The letter is as follows:

"To the public of Chicago;

"Monday morning a shooting episode took place at the house of Chief of Police Shippy, an episode both brutal and tragic. A few hours later the papers of the city came out in large, sensational headlines stating that the boy who had been shot and killed by Chief Shippy was an anarchist, that he had come with the intention to kill the chief of Police, that the boy had been chosen by lot to commit this act in an anarchistic conspiracy in this city.

This was said even before Lazarus Averbuch had been identified. As a consequence the Anarchists of this city as well as anarchists at large were hounded, maligned, and misrepresented in the grossest manner. Their clubrooms were closed, their libraries confiscated in true Russian autocratic manner. Not a paper was willing to

900213000

The Emma Goldman Papers

[In Defense of Anarchy] / Emma Goldman.— 1908 March 6, draft.— 4 p. ; 28 × 21 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the International Institute of Social History.
Institutional Location: Emma Goldman Archive.

Police Scored for Actions

"The victims of Monday's tragedy being dead, no one is in a position to say what his intention might have been in calling upon the chief, nor has he left a written statement as to his belief in disbelief in organized government. The police have certainly tried their utmost to do that and to connect him with anarchy. That they have failed shamefully no one but the most foolish will deny. However, that is not of importance at present. What is of importance are the facts connected with the mystery at the chief's house.

"First, according to Chief Shippy's own statement, he grabbed Lazarus Averbuch by the wrist as soon as he handed him the 'famous letter', while the chief's wife searched the boy's pockets — which means she found a revolver and a knife and, no doubt, she had the good sense to take these weapons from him. How, then, could Averbuch shoot the chief?

"Second, according to Chief Shippy's second statement, the boy succeeded in tearing away from him, which in itself is absurd, with the chief as an expert official at handling all sorts of desperadoes holding with an iron grip the wrists of a half starved Jewish boy. But taking it for granted that the boy did tear away from that human handcuff, which in itself disqualifies Chief Shippy from further holding of office for protecting law and order, we, the anarchists of Chicago, ask what did Averbuch shoot the chief's son with after Mrs. Shippy had ransacked his pockets?

Make Chief to Produce Bullet.

900213000

The Emma Goldman Papers

[In Defense of Anarchy] / Emma Goldman.— 1908 March 6, draft.— 4 p. ; 28 × 21 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the International Institute of Social History.
Institutional Location: Emma Goldman Archive.

public and to himself, since the general rumor about town will have it that this bullet belonged to a 38 caliber revolver, while Averbuch's weapon was supposed to have been a 32.

"4. Why did Chief Shipley shoot Averbuch seven times after he had struck the boy down with the first shot, and when he could have put him on the floor with one knock-out blow?

"We ask these questions out of common humanity to the dead boy in the Potter's field and in justice to the anarchists of this country, who, notwithstanding all misrepresentations, stand for an ideal of human regeneration, which, according to the Century Dictionary, denotes 'a state of society based upon the union of order of man by man' - in short, individual self reliance and human brotherhood.

"We further wish to know whether the police department of this city have taken it upon themselves to interpret the constitutional rights of the American people, to whom free speech and a free assembly still seem the most bulwark of this country.

"The anarchists of this city, federated into one body and affiliated with the anarchist federation of New York and of Massachusetts, also with the international body organized at the anarchist congress at Amsterdam August 1907, have carried on an educational work through lectures and literature.

I do not know the sentiments of the intelligent public of this city as to the sacred rights of free speech. I know, however, that the police persecution

900213000

The Emma Goldman Papers

[In Defense of Anarchy] / Emma Goldman.— 1908 March 6, draft.— 4 p. ; 28 × 21 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the International Institute of Social History.
Institutional Location: Emma Goldman Archive.

1455

I therefore wish to inform those who are still eager to maintain their freedom that neither the anarchist federation of Chicago nor I will be silenced; that we shall be heard even at the expense of personal liberty.

881108016

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Interview] Goldman to Rap Society / Emma Goldman. – p. 2 ; 43 cm. In Chicago Daily Journal. –(March 7, 1908).

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from The Chicago Historical Society.

...M. JASES RICHES BOOM

...epublican State Committee Lauds Roosevelt and Favors the Governor as His Successor

[Associated Press Telegram]

NEW YORK, March 7.—Gov Charles E. Hughes today received the indorsement of the New York republican state committee as a candidate for the presidential nomination. The resolutions adopted by unanimous vote of the committee commended President Roosevelt for his rugged determination to oppose wrongdoing and his demand for justice to all, closing him with the greatest and most heroic figures in American history, Washington, Lincoln, Grant and M Kinley.

The early indications had been that the meeting would not take up the Hughes candidacy, it being the view of some of the leaders that a committee declaration was unwarranted and might be inopportune.

These plans were upset before the committee assembled by the announcement of William R Douglas, member of the committee for the Fifteenth New York district, that he would move the adoption of resolutions indorsing Gov Hughes for the presidency.

Give Thanks to Roosevelt

The resolutions are as follows:

"New York holds the proud position of having given to the nation one of her citizens sons who now occupies the executive chair. We leader Him, as his term of office draws toward its close our hearty thanks.

"The citizens of the Empire state rejoice in the prospect that our delegates to the national republican convention will pledge, and urge the selection of one of our many worthy sons for the great office to the gift of our people.

"The state committee believes that the wisdom of our choice will unite and command itself to all classes of our citizens and to the country generally. We earnestly advocate the selection by the governor of our state, Hon. Charles E. Hughes, for the presidency.

"He is a man of the Lincoln type, able upright, intrepid, honest, fearless and devoted to the people's best interests.

Convention Date Set

"Resolved, That we commend the selection of delegates in the various congressional districts and of delegates at large who will act in complete harmony with the purpose of this resolution, to the end that the delegation to the national convention from this state may present a united front in behalf of our candidate.

The committee voted to issue a call for the republican state convention to be held in Carnegie hall, this city, Saturday, April 11. Justice M Linn Brown of this city was designated to be temporary chairman of the state convention.

WARD BOOMERS WILL CONFER

Republicans of the Sixth to Meet and Decide How They Want Delegates to Vote

A mass meeting of presidential boomers of all shades of opinion is to be held next week by the Sixth ward republicans to decide how the delegates will vote. The ward leaders held one meeting at which an attempt to indorse Speaker Cannon was defeated. John R Thompson will probably be a delegate to the state convention suggested the name and appointed a committee to arrange a meeting of Frank A Brown of the Union League club, a Hughes man, R W Coe, a Knox boomer, Henry L Meloy, a Cannon Coodes, Cannon enthusiast, and John E McMurray, president of the Taft club.

Mr Thompson denies that he is opposed Speaker Cannon, and says he will abide by the ward decision. Supporters of ex Gov Yates in his fight against Gov Deneen of the gubernatorial nomination are preparing to open up headquarters and boom Yates in Cook county against the governor.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the county democratic organization the increase in taxes was all but condemnable taxation and economy in public affairs demanded. Isaac W. Ellis and William A Brush are candidates for committeeman on the republican aldermanic ticket on the First ward.

BENDS COFFIN WITH THREAT OF DEATH TO ALABAMA MAN

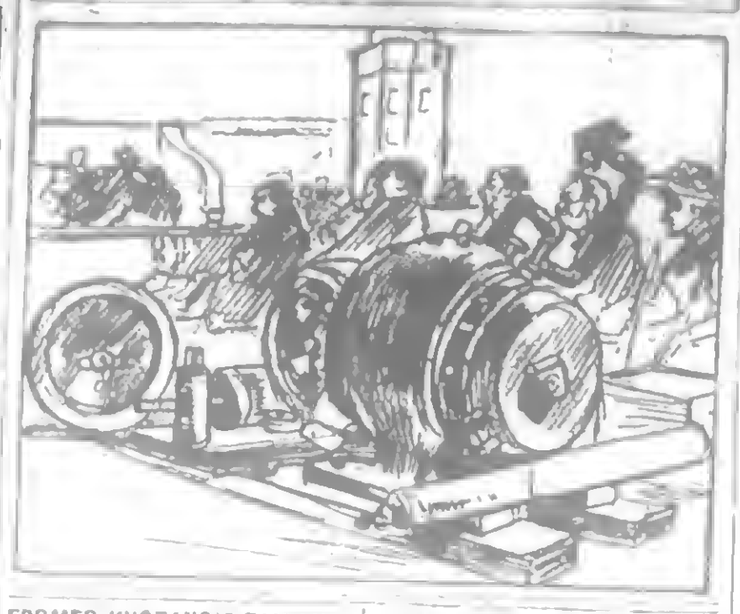
Black Hand Credited with Menacing Life of a Southern Coroner

[Associated Press Telegram]

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 7. When Coroner Parris at this county arrived at his office at the courthouse he discovered a large coffin there with the following note attached as if To Coroner Parris You Next."

The bailiffs and constables of the courthouse say that two men who had the appearance of being expressmen brought the coffin to the courthouse in the night.

A picture of a head on the coffin, made in black ink, suggests the Black Hand society was the sender.



KNICKERBOCKER BANK TO OPEN

State and Court Consent to Resumption of Business in New York

[Associated Press Telegram]

NEW YORK, March 7.—The Knickerbocker Trust company, which suspended business at the beginning of the financial trouble last October, will resume business on Monday March 16. Permission for the resumption of business was granted by Justice Clark in the Supreme court at Piney George, R. I., today, on recommendation of Superintendent Williams of the state banking department.

BIDWELL'S GOLD MOTOR ON EXHIBITION IN COURTROOM

FORMER HUSBAND'S FAMILY IN PLOT, SAYS MRS. DUKE, RAPPING $700 CHECK SUIT

Divorced Wife of Tobacco Millionaire Denies Charges in Tojien's Plea to Recover Money

Miss Alice Webb Duke, former wife of Mr. Duke millionaire tobacco manufacturer of New York, today [illegible] the suit brought against her in the Municipal court of Chicago by W. A. Tojien to recover $700 on checks he says he gave to have influenced for her as part of a conspiracy against her conducted by the Duke family.

Mrs Duke who has resumed her name of Miss Webb is at the Grand Pacific hotel with an entire floor for the [illegible] hospitality. Here it was she is holding [illegible] in connection with her attempt [illegible] ing her efforts.

Mr Tojien came to the United States [illegible] agreeing over $600 in Jewelry and signed to the A. W. Tojien Tobacco company of which Mrs Duke was said to be the head. The checks were drawn on the Corn Exchange bank of New York but were returned. It is said Tojien left Paris Mrs Duke a share of the city in which Tojien signed the checks with her. After [illegible] with the laws demanding the signature of both a secretary and a treasurer on checks made out to a company he secured [illegible] the rules governing the [illegible] and the two signatures are in the way of endorsement. She alleges that the checks were [illegible] funds, and insists that Mr. Tojien did not lose anything in the transaction.

As long as I have a breath left in me I will fight," said Mrs Duke.

When I was in Chicago before I met Mr. Duke I never had any troubles I assure you. I am a business woman accustomed to business methods and my affairs were never questioned. All the while I have ever had [illegible] ment and in the [illegible] I have ever had [illegible] the issues.

Their friends here and in Europe as well as most [illegible] in Chicago. They [illegible] put on a [illegible] me. But even [illegible] tention away from myself by [illegible] facts and do me [illegible] a square deal.

The former Mrs. [illegible] the daughter of Mrs. [illegible] Fleta M. Webb, Duke Block [illegible] for [illegible] and for the [illegible]

HOLD WOMAN IN BRUCE CASE

London Police Make First Series of Arrests Based on Trial

[illegible]

Mrs. [illegible] arrested today and a number of [illegible] with [illegible] Mrs. Hamilton with [illegible]

CLERGYMEN FAVOR FUN PARK

Amusement Grounds Proposed for the West Side District Is Indorsed by Ministers

[illegible] park amusement resort was [illegible] meeting of [illegible] clergymen in the Bismark hotel. It was decided that there was no [illegible] along the [illegible] lored by the trustees of the Baptist and Lutheran cemeteries.

According to the ministers the [illegible] residents object to Coney Island because children are buried to shallow graves and they believe it to be dangerous to [illegible] health.

It was also said that there were no saloons and vicinity around Mount Olive cemeteries than the proposed park would be. The report of the meeting was signed by Rev. A. Morel, Rev. John E. Traiger and Rev. Carl F. Grove.

Coroner Investigates Girl's Death

The coroner began an investigation today into the cause of the death of Nellie Bluff, 25 years old, New Berlin, Ill., at the Wesley hospital last night, supposedly from the effects of an operation. Johanna White, 72 years old, a midwife, 3854 Forest avenue, is under arrest.

SCHOOL HORROR CLAIMS ANOTHER LIFE, BOY DYING; VICTIMS NOW TOTAL 174

One Body Identified as Teacher's Proves to Be Man's—68 More Funerals Are Held

[Associated Press Telegram]

[illegible] March 7. The [illegible] almost another child [illegible] years dying [illegible] from injuries suffered in [illegible] of the [illegible] ary window of the [illegible] school.

[illegible] a [illegible] of pupils who [illegible] the [illegible] Monday. [illegible] Miss Mary Kraft [illegible] Miss [illegible] Lagen [illegible] and [illegible] that [illegible] [illegible] here.

[illegible] are [illegible] when out of [illegible] [illegible] of these are still [illegible]

[illegible] Miss Kate [illegible] Miss Walter [illegible] Miss Lillian Edwards [illegible] Miss Walter who [illegible] later.

Miss Walter [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible] Little [illegible] [illegible] When they saw the flames [illegible] began to scream, she jumped into the street [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

890531007

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Interview] Emma Goldman Clashes with Police on Meeting / Emma Goldman. – pp. 1, 3 ; 43 cm. In The Inter Ocean [Chicago]. – (March 8, 1908).

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the United States Library of Congress.

in Chicago.

The Inter Ocean

ME XXXVI. NO. 330. CHICAGO, SUNDAY MORNING, MARCH 8, 1908.—SEVEN PA

AXES, IS OCRAT CRY CITY FIGHT

Frame Platform rmanic Campaign Is Based Upon the That Republicans een Extravagant icipal Affairs.

NAL LIBERTY 'HER SLOGAN

tion of Council Is If Party Is Victori- Election—United So- Vote Expected to Be Principles Set Forth L. Cruice Announces y for Henly's Place.

will be made the "paramount Democrats of Chicago in the anic battle. This was deter- y at a meeting of the execu- of the county central com- will have charge of the fight ve city wards.

was drawn on the tax propo- be signed by the Democratic ents in the council. The or- then open a whirlwind cam- g to the leaders, and will ide at the Republicans at the

to make the tax question the of the campaign. It was ex- terday's conference, was for "putting the Republicans on and swinging into line the holder.

ek Busse's Budget.

's administration, with re- ances, especially the budget in which heads of depart- eased salaries while the po ft in the old class, is to be now until election day.

ic leaders plan to charge the tion with extravagance in t of municipal affairs and to ers that because of this al- nce their taxes have been tic leaders also believe they heir camp this trip thousands with the United Societies. the campaign that defeated by an overwhelming vote, as ace it, above that the cry of did more to overwhelm the than all other issues put to- mocrats made the charter a swung into line with the , hammering the proposed y on the tax feature. They gree of reciprocity, and are they can increase their lead fter April 7. They now have o.

Disorganize Council.

reig can retain their present council, and possibly increase e, they plan to give the Mu- league the cold shoulder with "nonpartisan" plan of or- ment. With a clear majority organize the new council on lines, and to put Mayor comfortable position of being atever legislation he does get crats, incidentally. If the Democrats think they can hands so that many of his es" will be blocked.

written by the executive com- h the Democratic candidates ll sign is appended; ordinary taxpayers of the have within the last year and personal property taxes generously and entirely out of amount levied against some corporations in the city, have been allowed to remain previous years, and in some

GOVERNOR HUGHES INDORSED FOR PRESIDENT BY STATE COMMITTEE

"THE ROUND-UP."

EMMA GOLDMAN CLASHES WITH POLICE ON MEETING

Queen of "Reds" Flings Down Challenge to Officials, Declaring That She Will Address Gathering Today Despite Opposition.

Today it is Emma Goldman, queen of the anarchists, against the police.

The high priestess of anarchy says she will speak at a hall in the Masonic temple today. The police say she will not. What will come out of the clash of wills time alone will tell.

Last night the leader of the reds gave detectives a merry chase around the city, following her statement that she had been engaged to address half a hundred wealthy Chicagoans at a mansion on the Lake Shore drive. Miss Goldman made the statement that she would speak in a residence on the drive, without reservation, in the afternoon. But she accompanied it with the assertion that no one would follow her, as she would "give Consequently, a body of six or more men haunted the vicinity of the Winchester ave- pue house last night in the effort to shadow the leader of the reds. When a score or more persons emerged from the house and boarded a street car they were permitted to depart in peace.

A few minutes later, when a short, nervous woman emerged from the house and boarded a car the detectives were fast on the scent.

"Shh! Emma sure!" said the leader of the sleuths.

The trail was a devious one. It led from the West Side to the North Side, then to the loop, and thence south on Wabash avenue to the Coliseum Annex, where the annual ball of the Garment Workers was in progress. As soon as the diminutive woman entered the hall she whipped out a black silk domino, and plunged into the excise of

(Continued on Page 3, Column 5.)

FLOOD KILLS ONE; JOLIET IN PERIL; GAGE PARK CUT OFF

Death Follows Water That Maroons Many Chicagoans in Suburbs and Threatens Supporter Calls Him 'Peacemaker' Who Is to Heal Hurts Which Roosevelt Has Made.

CHIEF HAILED AS CHOICE OF FATE

Special Dispatch to The Inter Ocean.

NEW YORK, March 7.—New York's Republican state committee today indorsed Governor Charles E. Hughes as presidential candidate. There was not a single dissenting voice and the resolutions favoring the chief executive, presented by former Congressman William H. Douglass, who represents the Governor's home district on the committee, were passed without discussion.

The [illegible] the time and Carnegie hall, New York, as the place for holding the state convention, which will elect delegates-at-large to the national convention at Chicago, nominate presidential electors, and elect a new state committee. Justice M. Linn Bruce of New York was decided upon as temporary chairman of the convention.

Text of Resolutions.

The resolutions indorsing the candidacy of Governor Hughes as adopted were as follows:

"New York holds the proud position of

(Continued on Page 2, Column 2.)

INDEX TO THE NEWS

BOY'S TORTU CHAINS LAI BY FORME

Retired Disciplinari Contradicts Himse Brutal Treatment o lin, Who Died in P

DAMAGING ADMISS MAY PROVE MUR

Big Teacher Tells I vestigating Comm Knocked Youth Do Bar in Self-Defens

BY A STAFF CORR
Special Dispatch to Th
PONTIAC, Ill., March Renoe, retired disciplinar reformatory, was brough witness stand before the l gation committee today by examination on the death lin, who died from injuri prison on New Year's day.

Fighting desperately to anything that might rev ment, Captain Renoe co in serious particulars. T enteen years of prison aut ibly perturbed. Great dr on his forehead. At the testimony, Chairman Hill tain's evidence given be managers of the reforma been broken down.

May Wear Out Mo

Members of the committ the searchlight they have mysterious tragedy of the prove true in the end th the boy whispered into his his fatal injuries were due of brutal guards.

In its diluted form, Ca scription of the ordeal th lin was put after his atten one of the most cold blood heard before a tribunal of Captain Renoe's trials will be put through another Monday in the hope of ge sions.

When he has left the st son and David Whitfield, reformatory, will be calle pied an adjoining cell in house to that of Hamlin that he heard Hamlin b and that the guards beat Whitfield will declare th dered. He will say he hea

"Don't beat me any m
Unchain me and take me d

Witness Contradic

In the early part of his t Renoe said Hamlin had be lary cell on Dec. 24, but ha by the wrists to an iron b until that night. He said day the boy was not in ir examination by Represen Meany, the captain admit the cellhouse and found Ha bars at 5 o'clock in the aft
He admitted he found hi at 7 o'clock Christmas mo order him taken down.
found Hamlin again in ch ing of Dec. 26. It was on t the boy was injured.

Guard Frank Rogers has t lin died from injuries self cidal jump from the bars cement floor. Captain R

(Continued on Page

CANNON PRESI

Speaker Give Republica Praise

521

890531007

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Interview] Emma Goldman Clashes with Police on Meeting / Emma Goldman. – pp. 1, 3 ; 43 cm. In The Inter Ocean [Chicago]. – (March 8, 1908).

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the United States Library of Congress.

aughter Colleen.

house at 406 Fifty-Seventh stree ne of the two fraternities that figure ighly spiced raport made to Presi hneider by his investigators. summer the police interrupted a tion" at the fraternity house and n uncled woman, a resident of the hom they took to the police station.
unt of the prominence of the parents of the "frat men" present, the matter pressed, as far as possible.
raport which President Schneider the members of the school managemmittee in executive session this er "events" in the fraternity world hicago schools are mentioned.
time?" nonchalantly remarked the an; "I don't know much about it, but ys must have their fling, you know."

Authorities Ridiculed.

alls of the rooms in the building are ed with signs intended to ridicule ool authorities.
with Cooley" is emblazoned on a the parlor, while "To h—l with Ship-ets the visitor in the hallway. Others, mproper to tone, are placed through-building.
in that fraternity impropriety to be the accepted thing, another frassar by declared that it had lived up ry requirement of Superintendent do not allow gambling or drinking in se at 5432 Monroe avenue," said a of the Gamma Sigma "frat."

are not allowed in the house except ain days, and then only with chape-
I don't think our fraternity prommhhichness, or anything else that complained of."
ed on by disclosures, President er announced yesterday that he had un his fight against fraternities.
must be wiped out of the Chicago and until they are I shall not stop eavors. They are the greatest evil to contend with."

EME JUDGE'S LIFE IN PERIL

Hand Letter Warns New York et His Slayer Has Been Chosen.

YORK, March 7.—Judge Norman the Supreme court, Brooklyn, today a Black Hand letter warning him an has been selected to kill him with-days because he has been too severe ng with some of the countrymen of er.
was also made in the same letter tonio Vachris, the Brooklyn detece has had charge of many Italian
[illegible]

Dike notified the police, but de-hat he was in no fear of being ased.

perative Farmers Celebrate.

N CITY, Iowa, March 7.—The Rockrners' Co-operative society cele-its nineteenth birthday today. It is est society of the 300 in Iowa and the ipals, besides those of Minnesota and Dakotas.

But already the sober sense of the great majority is reasserting itself.

"It is a far cry from Russia to America, from Kishineff to Chicago. But what happened there, whence the youth Averbuch came, must be taken into account to explain what happened here. In truth, nothing has been disclosed which in any way accounts for what he did or was except the fact that he came from Kishineff. Dark and dreadful upon the background of this fateful deed of terror looms that fated Russian city."

There follows a thrilling description of the horrors of Kishineff, then an indorsement of the work of American universities, university extension organizations, and similar institutions which "guard the newcomers against the petty graft and personal abuse to which they are exposed and interpret the justice and the world wide humanity of real America." In concluding the article asks:

"Is it too much to ask of Chicago to heed the appeal for a return to reason from the clamorous frenzy which has blinded some to the facts? Is it too much to expect of Chicago our American fair play toward our worthy and loyal Jewish and Italian fellow citizens, upon whom unjust suspicion has been so indiscriminately cast, because of the deeds at Denver and Chicago, for which two individuals of their race were solely responsible? Against false accusation and wanton abuse is it too much to hope for the benefit of the doubt, if not for just judgment toward those little groups of citizens who at no small cost have tried to do their civic duty among their immigrant fellow citizens by living among them in the social settlements to interpret them to America and America to them?"

Post Comments on Shooting.

Commenting on the situation with refer-ance to the death of Averbuch and his attack on Chief of Police Shippy, Louis F.
Post says, in the Chicago Daily Socialist:

"If peradventure it should appear that an officer of the peace had taken the life of a demented creature under circumstances in which he might, with evident safety, have made an arrest, then let the law take its course impartially against him."

Excusing Averbuch's act on the ground that he was influenced by sufferings at Kishineff, Post continues:

"The direction of his homicidal impulse might be fairly attributed to excitement aroused by recent police interference with the peaceable assemblage of the unemployed about whose misfortunes he appears to have been deeply concerned, and this morbid feeling may well have been further excited by the announced intention of the police to suppress an advertised lecture in which he is reported to have been interested.

"Such assertions of police authority, of the lawlessness of which this alien youth was presumably ignorant, might not unlikely have identified in his distorted imagination the police system of Chicago with that of Russia, and given him his impulse to assassinate the chief. At any rate, the boy's homicidal impulse, assuming it to have existed, may be traced with greater reason along this line of causation than to any 'anarchistic' speeches he may have heard, or 'anarchistic' literature he may have read.

Public Withholds Judgment.

"But the same public opinion will withhold definite judgment altogether upon the character, significance, and explanation of the tragedy until the facts are ascertained. Proceedings to that end should be immediately begun and rigorously pursued. And there should be no respect for persons.

"If the social settlements—Hull house with its Jane Addams, to whom the very thought of violence is an offense, or the Commons, with its Graham Taylor, whose life has been an inspiration, or any of the other of these oases of mercy in a desert of human misery—if these humane institutions have indeed fostered murder, as the police and some ecclesiastics and newspapers insinuate, let the law take its course against them. If there are groups of assassins to whom criminal responsibility for an assassin's crime is traced, let the law take its course against these groups.

Asks Unlimited Freedom of Speech.

Argument in favor of unlimited freedom of speech reads in part:

"There is a species of assassination which by Americans standards is infinitely worse than the taking of human life. This is the assassination of civil liberty.

"It is worse than the taking of human life because it involves the taking of human life and more. To shackle speech and press is to invite destruction. It always has been so; it always will be so.

"Yet officials charged by our laws with protecting free speech and free press are proposing to disperse peaceable meetings and to suppress newspapers for defending unpopular opinions or opinions that have been branded with unpopular epithets."

A man giving evidence of lunacy wandered into the Harrison Street police station yesterday and delivered a letter addressed to Chief of Police Shippy demanding an investigation of the Averbuch killing. The man said his name was Jacob Falk, and that he came to Chicago from Switzerland five years ago.

Two Killed in Church Panic.

GUADALAJUARA, Mexico, March 7.—The act of a half-witted man in looking the rear door of a church at Ocotlan while services were in progress resulted in a panic and the trampeling to death of two men and six children.

Clear the voice. Allay the irritation caused by coughing. Use when required.

EMMA GOLDMAN IN NEW BITTER CLASH

Anarchist Leader Will Force the Issue Between Herself and the Police Today, and Will Speak at All Hazards.

(Continued From First Page.)

masked dancers. The sleuths sought and sought until unmasking time. And then the figure could not be found.

Teaches Free Love Cult.

Emma Goldman, leading exponent of anarchy in America, is in Chicago to encourage the establishment of a free love colony and to urge among women, with reference to marriage, adoption of the only practice recognized in anarchist propaganda.

"This Shippy case is a very small matter. My visit to Chicago was arranged long before the killing of the Averbuch boy," said Miss Goldman.

As she did the day before, Miss Goldman spent yesterday indoors. She is at the home of William Dalrich, 970 North Winchester avenue. During the morning and afternoon she received a long string of visitors.

"The new thing in anarchistic educational work is connected with woman," she continued. "Elevation of women to a plane of equality is not a whit less important to us than the dissolution of government. Spasms of the police all over this land have served to give greater prominence to our anti-government beliefs. But we really are just now vitally interested in the emancipation of woman.

"Work to this end has been pushed, particularly since the international conference of anarchists in Amsterdam. Then it was determined that work for the freedom of woman should go hand in hand with efforts toward the abolition of government.

"We believe in free love. Such a relation as that of husband and wife should only be constituted when a man and a woman love each other. When they cease to love that relationship should end. Women anarchists all over the country practice that theory now. I am here in Chicago for the purpose of encouraging the practice."

Anarchists of Chicago, who have been seeking to secure a hall in which Emma Goldman may speak, reported complete failure last night.

Miss Goldman said: "It is impossible to secure a hall. We have approached the managers of dozens of halls and theaters in Chicago. Men who have the halls told us that the police had threatened to revoke their liquor licenses if they rented their places to us. The managers of the down town theaters, to whom we offered any sum they saw fit to ask, told us that since the Iroquois fire the police had exercised such arbitrary supervision that they did not dare do anything contrary to the desires of the department.

"During the day four or five vacant lots were found where a tent could be erected, but water stood on all of them, so I refused to have any of them rented. I don't want typhoid and pneumonia to follow my lecture.

Will Speak This Afternoon.

"No meetings will be held tomorrow, except in the rooms of the Social Science club on the fourteenth floor of the Masonic Temple building. The place will accommodate 300, I think. The club has been meeting there regularly for four years. I shall leave the house at 7 o'clock and will go in a cab to the Masonic temple. If the police stop me I'll come back home. If they don't I'll talk at the meeting. I will speak about local conditions, of course.

"Tonight, late, I am going to a conference of leading anarchists of Chicago. I cannot say where. The family is prominent and wealthy. Fifty more like them in Chicago are anarchists, but by reason of their business and social relationships cannot afford just now to let their position be known. You can say that the house is on the North Side, on the Lake Shore drive. Invitations to fifty or fifty-five have been sent out."

"What further has been done, Miss Goldman, with reference to investigating the shooting at the home of Chief of Police Shippy?"

Hitting Averbuch Death.

"We secured information today that young Averbuch had been trying to get on the fire department, and that the letter he had in his hand when he went to Shippy's home was from some political friend recommending him to the chief. Of course we have no proof of that yet. Anarchists of Chicago are now at work collecting a fund which will aggregate several thousand dollars with which to push this investigation.

"Wealthy Jews of the city, who wish to wipe from their race the stain attaching when a murderer rises among them, have contributed generously to this fund. The matter will be taken up next week, and the best attorney Chicago affords will be engaged to do the work.

"I am determined to speak in Chicago. We have decided to rent a store building. If necessary to secure one we will rent it for a year. I shall be in Chicago only until the 15th of this month. On the 20th I speak in Milwaukee. I go from there directly to Minneapolis, New Ulm, and Winnipeg, then to Omaha, Denver, and the coast."

Speaking of her life Miss Goldman said she was born in St. Petersburg and that she was educated there and at Konigsberg, Prussia.

"As a child I resented any authority. My father was severe. He used to beat me whenever he caught me talking to the servants. We had three. I used to try and see that they had good things to eat, and whenever father caught me saving a dainty morsel for them he would whip me.

"I suppose I have always been an anarchist, but the Haymarket riots in Chicago, and the action of the brutal police on that occasion, determined me to become an avowed anarchist, and to devote my life to the cause. Though the police killed a few members of the Chicago society then, they have not killed anarchy in America.

"While I was a young girl my parents decided that I should have a limited education. I rebelled. I did not understand why a girl should not know just as much as a boy. So I got hold of all the forbidden books I could and I devoured them all. My sister helped to get them to me by one source and another.

Becomes Woman's Champion.

"I used to read what the leading philosophers wrote about women. That's what led me to champion the cause of women and devote my life to their emancipation. I shall strive until I die to break the shackles that make them the chattels of men. My whole life shall be a plea for their freedom.

"I remember when I was a little child robbing a bank. I was 8 years old. In the village where I lived a beautiful young peasant girl had been deceived in love. The people of the village were talking about her and she was crushed under the shame. I resented the fingers that were pointed at her. I knew she was suffering and I sorrowed with her. So I took the money from another little girl's bank and told the deceived girl to use it getting out of the country.

"Years afterward, when I read Hawthorne's 'The Scarlet Letter,' it reminded me of that peasant girl."

McCHESNEY BROS. DENTISTS

Best Silver Fillings	50c
Platinum Fillings	$1.00
Gold and Platinum Alloy Fillings	$1.25
Gold Fillings	$2.00
Enameled Crowns	$4.00
Gold Crowns, 22k. extra heavy	$4.50
Bridgework, per tooth best gold	$4.00
Regular Plate, our regular $10 plate	$4.00

Plates $3, $4, $5

One Plate Guaranteed in Fit.

A binding guaranty given with all work for 10 yrs.

PAINLESS EXTRACTION FREE.

Ask Your Neighbor! When tired of pain, inexperience and fancy prices come home! 20 years in the limelight! All languages spoken. Tel. 2047 Central.

Corner Clark and Randolph Streets.

LEKKO
THE ORIGINAL
SCOURING POWDER
BEWARE OF IMITATIONS

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR PERFECTLY REMOVED.
I have a safe and positively SURE way to take hairs off face, neck, arms etc., FOREVER. I HAVE THE TRUE SECRET. Write for information. I send it sealed. FREE. Address HELEN DOUGLAS, 20 E. 22 St. New York

"77"
Seventy-seven for Colds and GRIP

For Grip, Colds, Influenza, Catarrh, Pains and Soreness in Head, Chest, and Back take "Seventy-seven."

For Coughs, Sore Throat, General Prostration, and Fever take "Seventy-seven."

For the prevention of Grip, Colds, and Pneumonia take Humphreys' "Seventy-seven." At drug stores, 25 Cents.

Humphreys' Homeo Medicine Co., Cor. William and John Streets, New York.

522

881108014

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Reds' Leader Flays Police / Emma Goldman.— pp. 1, 3 ; 43 cm. In Chicago Daily Journal. —(March 17, 1908).

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from The Chicago Historical Society.

THE WEATHER
Probably thunderstorms Tuesday night and Wednesday; snow flurries; temperature will rise Wednesday

FOUNDED APRIL 21 1844 —— OLDEST DAILY NEWSPAPER IN THE STATE OF ILLINOIS —— OFFICE

SIXTY-FOURTH YEAR—NO. 332 TUESDAY, MARCH 17, 1908

W. J. BRYAN CHEERED BY IRISH HOST

One Calls Nebraskan "D'Bryan" as He Arrives to Address To-night's Big St. Patrick's Day Banquet

LEADER KEEPS BUSY ALL DAY

Advises Democrats to Quit Their Quarreling; Addresses Students, Pit Traders and City Club Members

Advises Illinois Peace

Advises Against Fight

Asks About Primary

Discusses Johnson Boom

Mrs. Potter Palmer Will See Her Son Marry Miss Kohlsaat

Miss Pauline Kohlsaat

REDS' LEADER FLAYS POLICE

Emma Goldman Explains Anarchy in Written Address Shippy Refuses to Let Her Deliver Test of Forbidden Speech

THREE KILLED IN EXPLOSION

Workmen Blown to Pieces by Terrific Blast at United States Powder Company Mills

Men Pinned Under Ruins

No Office in Chicago

Three Killed in Planing Mill

Robbers Smash Show Window

PANIC TRACED TO OIL PLOT

Recent Financial Upheaval Deliberately Caused by Standard and Morgan, Says La Follette in the Senate

OPPOSES ALDRICH BANK BILL

Measure Would Only Strengthen Remorseless Grip of 'System' on Country's Business, Insists Wisconsin Man

Pictures Stage Betting

Financial Combines Grow

SALOON GET SE

Municipal Judge H
Change of Venu
Closing Case of Defe

CHARGE OF PREJ

Supposed Activiti
Wife in Trying Judgment Give tor in Dec

Jurist Not C

Politicians Keep Says Soft Dr

Saloon Ballot I Is Argued

MAY SAVE CHESTER

Condemned Man's Mother Hughes Now Focis, Fears Results

If you have not registered, do so before 9 o'clock tonight or you cannot vote at the city ele

523

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

881108014

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Reds' Leader Flays Police / Emma Goldman.— pp. 1, 3 ; 43 cm. In Chicago Daily Journal. —(March 17, 1908).

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from The Chicago Historical Society.

IRISH CROWDS CHEER BRYAN

One Calls Nebraskan "O'Bryan" as He Arrives to Address Tonight's Big St. Patrick's Day Banquet

LEADER KEEPS BUSY ALL DAY

Advises Democrats to Quit Their Quarreling; Addresses Students, Pit Traders and City Club Members

[CONTINUED FROM FIRST PAGE]

were his words as Bryan stepped from the Pullman steps.

With the words, the 150 aged democratic leaders closed about Mr. Bryan. Then while the crowd cheered and green badges flashed, Mr. Bryan was escorted through the train shed to the canal street entrance at the depot. The automobile was upholstered in bright red.

It was the best we could do," explained Representative McDermott, when he noticed the glare of the red glazed linings. "We tried to get one upholstered in green, but failed," he explained.

By the time Mr. Bryan had ten feet he sidewalk a large crowd had gathered and he was cheered repeatedly.

The biggest celebration in honor of St. Patrick, Ireland's patron saint, that has ever been seen in Chicago was held today. Green was the predominating color and a symbol of Ireland was worn by thousands of sons and daughters of the Emerald Isle.

Although thousands feasted the patron saint in meetings all over the city, but the day, larger events are scheduled for this evening.

P. Shelly O'Brien [illegible] speaker at the fifth annual picnic and concert of Irish [illegible] Hibernians [illegible] West Van Buren [illegible].

Other Events of the Evening

Among other [illegible]

The Governor [illegible] Irish [illegible] Or Bestra [illegible] Irish [illegible] Irish Ireland [illegible]

[illegible] Northwest [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

880707001

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Interview] Emma Goldman Blames Police / Emma Goldman. – 43 cm. In The Chicago Tribune. – (March 29, 1908).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

peaking.

ple) away nnti the socialis business at the e first sentence man shu' them ved with more e, and not cng howed up He e, but refrained

t known as a as a socialist the south side pector Schmitt-stopping this but a police-on, whereupon which he said itution, and he read the first be the right of

NRULY
for the time and no public there having A score of po to the crowd right there ar e got the idea nd in them to le away They y became more ith increasing ceremonious y overstepped the

ANGUE
rving place brought him s crowd
d him off the way e crowd along square began ular and the by thousands e the temper

le to deliver Academy of his horse at pelma carried before he le scattering

to himself a good deal and read a lot about socialism and anarchy.

"He went to work in Manhattan every morning," she said. "Where he worked I never knew, because he didn't tell me.

"I knew that he did not get along with his uncle because his uncle did not approve of his ideas.

"For a long time he talked about socialism. Then he said socialism was not strong enough to overcome the evils of the day and he became a strong anarchist.

"For some time he has been reading anarchistic literature, and whenever he was spoken to about it he said it was nobody's business what he did.

"Recently we have noticed that his mind was not as strong as it formerly was.

MIND BECAME WEAKER.

"We believed that his mind had become unbalanced. But he never spoke of bombs or of doing anything violent.

"I am sure that he never had anything to do with the making of bombs in his room."

Mrs. Alexander said that Silverstein started for Manhattan as usual this morning. He said he was going to work, but she said she did not believe him, as it was the Jewish Sabbath and she knew he did work on that day.

KNEW OF TROUBLE BREWING.

Goldstein, the employer of Silverstein, said he had worked there on and off for the last two years. He said that during the last week Silverstein read many articles in the Jewish newspapers concerning the Union square meeting and that Friday night, just before he left the shop, Silverstein said:

"I guess I won't go to Union square tomorrow. There'll be a lot of people killed and I don't want to be one of them."

Goldstein said that while Silverstein was a sort of firebrand, and expressed himself as believing in anarchistic principles, he was sure he belonged to no anarchistic club and was not in any general plot.

PLOT EVIDENCE REVEALED.

The police searched the rooms of Silverstein in Brooklyn and found letters which the detectives said indicated that Beckman and Silverstein had been in anarchistic conspiracies.

The police said that what they found was so important they could not make it public and sent all the letters and papers they found to police headquarters in Manhattan.

Deputy Police Commissioner Woods who took charge of a score or more detectives was at the morgue until late tonight. He received reports from the detectives and said:

"We have received a good deal of information but it is of such a nature that it cannot be made public tonight."

BERKMAN LETTERS FOUND.

Capt. Faure of the Bridewell detective bureau was asked if the letters were signed "Berkman" or "Berkman." He said:

"The letters are signed Alexander Berkman. Some of them are written in Yiddish and they reveal anarchistic plots of such a nature that it would not be wise to tell at this time what they are. The letters have been sent to the Manhattan headquarters."

Alexander Berkman, who shot Henry C. Frick and married Emma Goldman, was at his home, 210 East Thirteenth street, tonight. When told about the letters he said that he had never written to anyone in Brooklyn that he did not know Silverstein or Goldstein that Silverstein was a socialist and he was an anarchist and that he was not in the habit of putting anything he had to say in writing.

CARD GIVES CLEW.

The identity of Hillebrand was established at night. A card on which was written "H. Beckman, 63 Prospect place, Brooklyn," was found in the dead man's pocket.

The other effects were a watch case No. 80701, a pair of eyeglasses, several packages of needles, and a number of advertisements for tailors cut from the newspapers. The eyeglasses were marked "Jane, 317 Fourth avenue."

There is an eyeglass maker named Yane at that address. He looked at the glasses and said at once that he had made them for a man named Beckman.

His description of Beckman tallied closely with that of the dead man. Yane said that all that he knew about Beckman was that he was a tailor.

IDENTITY IS ESTABLISHED.

The police, however, soon learned that the H. Beckmen of Prospect place was alive. They picked him up and took him to the morgue in Manhattan on the theory that he might be able to identify the men who had been killed by the bomb.

Beckman is a tailor, a cutter and has been working for Northrup & Curry, cloakmakers at 43 East Tenth street.

When Beckman got to the morgue and saw the dead man he said he was certain that the man was Ignatz Hillebrand of 255 Third avenue.

He said that Hillebrand worked for him for some time in his tailor shop in Eldridge street, but left him some time ago because business was slack.

HILLEBRAND A HUNTERITE.

Hillebrand's wife was talking with neighbors at the Third avenue house about midnight when she was asked to go to the morgue and identify the body.

She said that her husband, a tailor, had [illegible] since a week before Thanks-

MEETING LEADER BLAMES POLICE.

Robert Hunter, Rich Sociologist, Says Oppression Led to Outrage.

HIS "PLEAS" ARE FUTILE.

Officers Refuse to Listen to Appeal That Speeches Be Permitted.

New York, March 28.—[Special.]—Robert Hunter declared he was inexpressibly shocked by the turn that the demonstration of the unemployed had taken. He said it came about in spite of the fact that he and the others who brought about the demonstration had counseled mildness on the part of every one participating in the parade. He said the conduct of the police in Union square showed that they were the real anarchists.

"The bomb throwing was only a result of the intense mental state produced in the people by the amazing attitude of the police toward them," he added.

Hunter said that when he got to Union square he went to Inspector Schmittberger and told him that he had agreed to speak there and hoped he would be allowed to do so. He said he told the inspector that the meeting was only an appeal for employment by thousands of persons out of work and that whatever was said would be temperate.

Accuses Police of Cruelty.

Inspector Schmittberger said he had received orders to allow no speechmaking, as no permit had been obtained for it, whereupon Mr. Hunter says he replied:

"I guess we will have to make an effort to speak anyhow. The police have no authority to deny us the right to speak in the street so long as we are speaking in behalf of those who are hungry for want of work."

Then the police started to drive every one out of the park and into the side streets. The mounted officers rode over men, women, and children. I have seen many meetings broken up by the police in Russia and in other European countries, but never saw such extraordinary rungriness as was used this afternoon.

His "Plea" with Officer Vain.

"As the police continued driving their horses among the persons on the sidewalks, apparently trying their best to trample them under foot, even if they were walking along and obeying the police as well as they could, I thought it time to protest. At that time I was half way down the block in Seventeenth street. With me were Leonard D. Ingram, W. Irvine of the Boston Advertiser, several magazine writers and others.

"I jumped on to a [illegible] and appealed against such treatment. We were preparing peacefully to ask the mayor to provide work for the unemployed.

"I got no further for several policemen assaulted me, struck me on the face and pushed me off the stump. They did not use me particularly rough. After I had been pulled off the stump I went into a near-by cafe with several friends. We had several drinks and I then walked across the park. That must have been less than five minutes before the bomb was thrown."

Injured Office. Is Attacked

Mr. Hunter said that the mounted policeman who appeared to be doing the most roughness was No. 6537.

Policeman Charles S. Hafsky of the traffic squad is No. 6537. Shortly after the bomb was thrown Policeman Hafsky arrested Max Hoff of 208 Van Brunt street, Brooklyn, who had declined to move on when ordered to do so. Hoff was locked up in the Mercer street station charged with disorderly conduct.

Deputy Commissioner Woods advised Hafsky to change the complaint so as to charge Hoff with being a suspicious person. Hafsky was riding through West Twentieth street to do so when his horse slipped on the wet pavement and fell on him. His ankle was cut and his knee strained.

Dr. Foucar of New York hospital was called to attend Hafsky and advised him to report sick. Hafsky did so and went home.

HUNTER A HULL HOUSE MAN.

Robert Hunter, the young radical, head of the Eldridge university settlement in New York, who was involved in yesterday's demonstration in Union square, New York, formerly lived in Chicago, where he became a socialist and first identified himself with the socialist party. His career in Chicago began in 1900, when he became identified with the Chicago bureau of charities, of which he was a district superintendent and later an official in the main office of the bureau.

He left Chicago in 1904, going to New York to take up the work at the head of the Eldridge university settlement. During his stay in Chicago he lived at the Hull house, and in his spare hours was an active propagandist of socialism. He made a large number of speeches for the socialist party throughout the city, and was sent as a delegate to a number of party conventions.

One meeting where he was particularly prominent was held in memory of Wilhelm Liebknecht, the German socialist leader in the reichstag, who died in Berlin in 1900. At this meeting Hunter was chairman, and it was he who was most active in arranging the memorial in Chicago.

Writes Book on Poverty.

In 1902 Hunter wrote a book on tenement house conditions in the slums of Chicago. The book attracted considerable attention from settlement workers and sociologists all over the country. It was really a preliminary study and forerunner of his more pretentious work, "Poverty," which he published in 1904. This book was dedicated to Jane Addams, head of Hull house, and in the preface Hunter said that he had learned the sociological point of view from her brother and their friendship soon became love and they were married. Mrs. Hunter's brother married Rose Pastor, who, before her marriage was a poor worker among the Russian Jews on the east side of New York.

Following their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Hunter took up their residence in the settlement house and continued their socialistic preachings. In the campaign in which Hearst ran for mayor of New York Hunter supported Hearst. For this "treachery" he was expelled from the socialist party. Later he repented of his "folly" and begged to be reinstated. The New York socialist leaders forgave him and a couple of years ago he reentered the ranks of the socialists.

The reentry was made in a spectacular manner. He made a public announcement of his "conversion" to socialism and the fact was heralded all over the country. As a matter of fact, he was only a "reconverted backslider."

SEE REASON FOR PRECAUTIONS.

Police Say New York Outbreak Might Have Happened Here but for Firm Stand.

The Chicago police department last night looked upon the New York anarchistic outbreak as, in a sense, a justification of the precautions taken here.

It was pointed out that the attempted parade of the unemployed here in early February easily could have had a violent outcome had it been allowed to proceed unchecked. Emphasis also was placed upon the value of the police discovery of the incendiary language being uttered at the meetings of local anarchists and of the consequent steps taken to keep the "reds" in check.

The belief was expressed generally that all American cities now would be led to untie in police regulations preventing the reckless scattering of the praise of assassination and of threats against public men and officers from the rostrums of anarchy.

Justifies Severity, Says Schuettler.

"I am unwilling to say 'I told you so' to the critics who denounced us for our action at that time," said Assistant Chief Schuettler, who, with the departure of Chief Shippy to the country with his convalescent son, assumed the duties of general superintendent, "but this one event alone is enough to justify us for putting a stop to public demonstrations of this sort.

"The entire agitation of the sensational leaders of the movement was checked when we stopped their first public show, and I believe we have been free from such affairs as this in New York because we squelched them right at the start.

"There might not have been any bombs in the crowd that tried to parade here, but if that had been successful there would have been bigger ones afterward, and the excitement of the fanatics would have reached a pitch where they would not have stopped at anything."

The assistant chief said that he is confident that conditions are improving daily in Chicago. He has no fear of a second outbreak of the unemployed.

"The supply of work is increasing right along, he declared, and men are getting better satisfied throughout the city. We have warned the leaders who are looking for advertising to leave them alone and we have no thought of trouble in the immediate future. Of course if a second demonstration is started we will do just as we did before. We did not take that attitude without long consideration and good advice, and the after events have shown that we were right."

Robins Attacks Police.

Just a week ago Raymond Robins, a leading Chicago settlement worker and socialist, while in Minneapolis, gave out a long interview in which he violently attacked the police and the municipal administration here. He said things are boiling under the surface in Chicago, and he declared the anarchy stories were all fiction.

"There is less anarchy than for years," confidently asserted Mr. Robins.

"The real anarchist groups are all broken up. There isn't even a old group of philosophical passive anarchists. It puzzles me when three weeks before the killing of Averbuch, Chief Shippy began giving out interviews on anarchists. It looked like another attempt at a 'shakedown' such as the police had at the time of the Haymarket riot when they got to the rich men of the city for thousands for police protection."

"Averbuch Victim of Plot."

That Mr. Robins demonstrated to his own satisfaction that young Averbuch in appearing in the home of Chief Shippy was an innocent unarmed kid, and that he was killed in cold blood by the chief and that the whole "plot" was one in which the chief himself was chief conspirator. The social settlement leader also issued wise prophecies as to what startling facts would develop at the inquest on Tuesday.

The inquest was held. Averbuch was demonstrated by complete proof to be a would-be assassin and the chief was justified in the killing of the young assailant. Not a particle of evidence was introduced to clear the name and purpose of the armed youth who was killed, although Mr. Robins and other settlement workers had hired lawyers who represented them at the inquest. Since then Mr. Robins has not been heard from on the subject.

RECALLS THE HAYMARKET BOMB

That Exploded in Midst of Police Ranks May 4, 1886, Killing or Wounding a Score.

The Haymarket riot in Chicago, which is recalled by yesterday's bomb throwing in New York, occurred on the evening of May 4, 1886. It followed meetings of dissatisfied workingmen, who for several evenings previous had been addressed by orators of the "red" doctrine. These speakers had denounced the police as the natural enemies of the people.

At the meeting of May 4 a cart was drawn to the center of Haymarket square, which is formed by the widening of West Randolph street near Desplaines. The same speakers who had appeared to other parts of the city harranged the crowds about the square, using the cart as a platform. The late Carter H. Harrison Sr., then mayor of Chicago, was present for a time. When he left the speeches became more [illegible].

Then the bomb was thrown [illegible]

EMMA GOLDMAN BLAMES POLICE.

Queen of Reds Says the Union Square Tragedy Is Blue-coat Plot.

TO INJURE ANARCHISTS.

Doesn't Know Silverstein and Never Wrote Letters to Him, She Declares.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 28.—[Special.]—Emma Goldman, after her lecture here tonight, discussed the bomb tragedy in Union square, New York.

"Union square, New York City, where the bomb was exploded this afternoon and two men were killed," she said, "is the identical spot where I have lectured for the last fourteen years and was arrested and made to serve one year in the government prison on Blackwell's Island."

"I did not know Selig Silverstein," replied Miss Goldman to a question concerning the man who now lies in the Bellevue hospital in New York and is accused by the police of having thrown the bomb.

"I did not know the dead man Ignatz Beasky. I have never heard of either of them. The report that letters from me to Silverstein were found in his room is absolutely false as—well, I think I know my correspondents.

Police to Blame, She Says.

"You want to know who I think was at the bottom of the whole riot? The police.

"They do it to show their authority. Such affairs as occurred this afternoon in New York have been traced in many instances to the police, who grasp the opportunity to lay all blame on anarchists.

"Who knows that Silverstein threw the bomb? Did any newspaper man see him do it? Why do you come to me for enlightenment? Am I supposed to know every anarchist any more than President Roosevelt is supposed to know every republican?

"As soon as there is a riot, a bomb explosion, an assassination, or an uprising the police immediately try to attach the affair to me. And that is why I say that they even go so far as to instigate these plots themselves for the purpose of incriminating us and heaping praise on themselves. I don't believe a workingman threw the bomb, as it would not have been to his advantage. The conclusion in my mind is that the police are in some way behind the whole matter.

Boosts Chicago Police.

"Some years ago in Chicago a quantity of dynamite was 'discovered' by the police in one of the downtown tunnels under the city. I have absolute proof that the explosive was placed there by the police who later 'discovered' it and lauded themselves to the skies in the newspapers for their ingenuity in preventing a catastrophe. There are police methods which are known only to anarchists.

"The injured men who are now held in New York may have heard me in my many lectures in that city and at that place.

"I have only communicated recently with two people in New York City. They are Alexander Berkman and the business office of my magazine, Mother Earth. I am writing to Mr. Berkman tonight for particulars concerning the affair and will be better informed on the subject Sunday morning."

TWO LEADERS OF ANARCHISTS PLACE BLAME ON SOCIALISTS.

Berkman and Havel, Editors of Goldman Paper, Say Reds Had Nothing to Do with Meeting.

New York, March 28.—[Special.]—Alexander Berkman and Hypolite Havel, editors of the anarchist paper, Mother Earth, which is published by Emma Goldman, tonight disclaimed any knowledge of today's bomb outrage or of the meeting which had been planned in spite of the police.

"The meeting was planned by socialists," said Berkman. "We are anarchists. We do not know anything about Silverstein; he probably was one of the great army of the unemployed who had become crazed with hunger and the brutality of the police.

"I don't see why a permit should have been refused for the meeting anyway. If the meeting had not been prohibited there would have been no such demonstration.

"O, no, we are not socialists, they believe in changing the form of government, while we do not pin any faith in a central government at all, but believe each community should govern itself."

SOCIALISTS DISAVOW PART IN PLOT TO MURDER POLICE.

Morris Hillquit, Legal Adviser of Bureau, Says Bomb Thrower Was Not Member of His Party.

New York, March 28.—[Special.]—Morris Hillquit, who is a member of the executive committee of the socialist party and the unemployed conference, but who was not present at the afternoon's meeting, made the following statement about the bomb throwing:

"The man who threw the bomb had no connection with the proposed demonstration and we know nothing of him and never heard of him before.

"We are against such methods at this time, and our plans were for a peaceful meeting. The socialists do not believe in violence and the man may have been an anarchist or a malcontent of some other party.

"His plan, I believe, was to kill the police. It was intended, in my opinion, to bring discredit on the [illegible]

525

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

840514032

The Emma Goldman Papers

En Route / Emma Goldman.— pp. 71-72 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 3, no. 2 (April 1908).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

suppress Anarchists and Anarchism—because of those efforts—the people will yet learn the truth.

* * *

Though well aware that the Union Square bomb—whoever its thrower—was no result of any conspiracy, the police insisted on my arrest. As usual, they were the first to break their sacred law: my protest notwithstanding, I was photographed and Bertillioned, in contempt of a recent decision of the Supreme Court of the State, declaring such police methods illegal before the conviction of an arrested person. Having absolutely no evidence against me, the police resorted to the ever-ready charge of "inciting to riot." Naturally, when my hearing took place, the case collapsed like an empty flour sack; however, the authorities grasped the opportunity to air their wisdom. The detectives triumphantly announced that they had made the "important discovery" that I am an Anarchist, and the presiding magistrate assured me that Tolstoi could not possibly be an Anarchist, since "all Anarchism is criminal Anarchism." The learned Cadi suggested that I "change the name of the party." "As long as you persist in calling yourself an Anarchist, and evidently take pride in it, it is the duty of the police to keep you under surveillance." I assured the honorable man that the name suited me perfectly; if it did not sound pleasant in the long ears of authority, so much the worse for the latter.

The brutal stupidity of the police is equalled only by the lack of decency on the part of some Socialists and other kid-glove heroes. These, our step-brothers, try to curry favor with popular prejudice by classifying—against their better knowledge—Anarchists with the police. The Socialists, once themselves the victims of calumny and persecution, have now in their turn become calumniators and persecutors. They have learned and are practicing capitalistic tactics while yet an insignificant socio-political factor. What, then, would be the effect of the "materialistic conception of history" upon the Socialists, if they should ever grasp the reins of government and achieve real power? Will there be found sufficient jailers in the world to supply the needs of triumphant Socialism?

But neither plutocratic nor Socialistic misrepresentation and persecution will halt the march of humanity towards light, liberty, and Anarchy.

EN ROUTE

Dear Readers of MOTHER EARTH:

I had hoped to be able to give you in this issue an account of the truly "American chivalry and hospitality" extended me by the Chicago Police Department. I know you would enjoy it almost as well as I did. But such an important account can not be properly treated en route, in a shaking train. It requires more time and leisure than I have now. I shall, therefore, ask you to content yourself meanwhile with the information that I am seriously considering to send a vote of thanks to the Chicago protectors of law and disorder for their tremendous interest in the spread of our ideas and in my welfare. Appreciating the fact that I had lectured every night, holding tremendously large meetings in St. Louis and other cities, until I reached Chicago, the police immediately issued strict orders that no halls should be rented us, that I might not be tempted to speak, in order that my throat may rest up. Also mindful of the fact that the truth speaks loudest when an attempt to silence it is made, the Department had a special squad at large to suppress free speech and assembly at all costs. Of course, all that was done from paternal motives and especially to supply the reporters with material to write about. They meant no harm, I am sure, not even when one of them tenderly lifted me off the platform. Who said the age of chivalry is gone? No, indeed, not so long as the Chicago police and captains are in existence. The police evidently thought that it is time Emma Goldman be heard by a large number of people, instead of a mere hallful. That is why they gave me an opportunity to have my undelivered lecture printed in a Chicago daily, having a circulation of more than 50,000; also another article in a morning paper of large circulation. Don't you think they deserve thanks? As to the amount of good their action has done in other cities, that could not be fully estimated. Thousands came to the meetings in Minneapolis; thousands were turned away, as our halls were not large enough to hold such unexpected multitudes. The same will no doubt be true in all the other cities along the line of my route. Just think of how much other speakers would pay to get such splendid

526

840514032

The Emma Goldman Papers

En Route / Emma Goldman.— pp. 71-72 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 3, no. 2 (April 1908).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

advertising, and all without any efforts on my part, at that.

True, one who is not used to such "kind handling and such flattering attention," as I have received, might have felt somewhat annoyed; but as I have enjoyed similar honors on several previous occasions, I can probably stand it the better. At any rate, I assure you, dear friends, I am hale and hearty and more than ever determined to go on. Of course, I am a little tired, but that is not the fault of the authorities. Not at all. Lack of privacy, constant visitors, lectures every night, a large correspondence, two bodyguards closely on my heels,

"Who watch him when he tries to weep,
And when he tries to pray;
Who watch him lest himself should rob
The prison of its prey,"— would make anybody tired.

Friends, the American sky looks black and sinister; the sun has hidden in shame, unwilling to witness the growing brutality and despotism on the part of those who have taken it upon themselves to outrage every sense of liberty and justice. One can not afford to be tired these days, when brave souls are needed for the battle. Yes, brave souls and clear heads, who will help to free the earth from the chains of ignorance, brutality, and cowardice.

En route to Winnipeg. EMMA GOLDMAN.

* * *

THE FIGHT FOR FREE SPEECH

(Correspondence.)

"EMMA GOLDMAN cannot speak," that's what Chief of Police Shippy said. "All right," said Assistant Chief of Police Schuttler, "I will carry out your orders." And he did. A two weeks' heroic effort to secure a hall for Emma Goldman to speak in was unsuccessful. Many subterfuges were resorted to, but the police "always beat us to it." The Police Department publicly stated that they had no objection to Emma Goldman or any other Anarchists speaking in Chicago as long as they obeyed the law, but it was evident that they exercised the utmost vigilance in preventing her from speaking in Chicago.

The hall that was secured in the Masonic Temple for her first speech was the place where Anarchist meetings had been held for the last three years, without the least objection on the part of the landlord; but twenty-four hours before Miss Goldman was to speak, the chairman was notified by the proprietor that the police had been to his office and had given him strict orders not to let Emma Goldman speak, so he immediately cancelled the lease. The police notified some six hundred hall keepers in Chicago not to rent their halls for any meeting where Emma Goldman was to lecture. Mr. ———, a saloon keeper, who had a hall on the Northside, told the police that he would rent his hall to anybody he chose; four hours later he was promptly arrested for selling liqnor to minors.

Another hall keeper who threatened to defy the police and rent his hall to Emma Goldman, a few hours later was notified by the Building Department that he would have to put in a new fire escape, an alteration which would entail the cost of several thousand dollars.

I rented a store on Dearborn Street and made a public announcement that Emma Goldman was to speak there; at 12 o'clock the Building and the Health and Fire Departments had investigated the place, notifying me that everything was all right, but at 4 o'clock in the afternoon the police brought me word that no meeting could be held there because the store had been condemned by the Building Department as unsafe. I made inquiries and found that the place was condemned because the floor was unsafe and the door did not open outwardly. We offered to put in a new floor and to change the door, but the Building Department absolutely refused to consider our proposition.

At a meeting of the Literary Society at Workman's Hall Miss Goldman was on the program to speak; although the meeting was not publicly announced, the police got word of it through the treachery of a newspaper man, and immediately filled the hall with about a hundred officers. When the chairman announced that after a clarinet solo Emma Goldman would speak, the police buckled up their belts, examined their guns, drew their clubs, and stood ready to charge. Miss Goldman came to the platform and said: "Ladies and gentle-

527

890123011

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Summaries and Excerpts from Lectures] / Emma Goldman.– 25 cm. In Walter E. Carr, "[Report to] U.S. Commissioner of Immigration". –(April 9, 1908).
Obtained from the Immigration and Naturalization Service via FOIA.

OFFICE OF ..... Inspector in Charge,

PORT OF ..... Winnipeg, Manitoba.

April 9th, 1908.

Hon. John H. Clark,

U. S. Commissioner of Immigration,

Montreal, Canada.

Sir:—

I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of your communication No. 7644, date of April 2nd, 1908, together with all papers in connection with the case of Emma Goldman.

I have the honor to report that almost constant watch was kept by this office on the movements of this woman from the time of her arrival in Winnipeg, to the time of her departure therefrom. She arrived in Winnipeg from Minneapolis at 7:30 A. M. March 31st, traveling via "Soo Line" and C. P. R. She was welcomed at the C. P. R. Station in this city by a number of friends and immediately proceeded to the residence of Mr. S. Prosow, No. 452 Manitoba Avenue, which proved to be her stopping place while in Winnipeg. Close watch was kept on this house and it was learned that Miss. Goldman spent the major portion of each day in receiving callers, of which she had many, and in reading and writing letters. She seldom left the house during the daytime, and then only to return after a very short walk.

RECORDS DIVISION
ENTERED
APR 16 1909
BUREAU OF IMMIGRATION AND NATURALIZATION

Although it was repeated by Miss Goldman and her associated, both from the public platform and through the columns of the newspapers, that it was her intention to remain in Winnipeg

299
1-38

890123011

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Summaries and Excerpts from Lectures] / Emma Goldman.– 25 cm. In Walter E. Carr, "[Report to] U.S. Commissioner of Immigration". –(April 9, 1908).
Obtained from the Immigration and Naturalization Service via FOIA.

until the evening of Wednesday, April 8th, and although she was scheduled to deliver lectures up to that time, and announced that it was then her intention to proceed west to Calgary, Alberta, and from there to Vancouver and Victoria, B. C., information was received that her real intention was to proceed south to Minneapolis on Monday the 6th, returning by the route used in coming, and therefore she was kept under constant surveillance allmday Monday, the 6th. During the morning of that day she remained at the residence of Mr. Prosow as usual, but about 3:30 P. M., she left the house on Manitoba Avenue and with her baggage proceeded to a house, No. 670 Burrows Avenue, which I am informed is occupied by a Mrs. Cramer. She remained at this place the remainder of the afternoon. As it was not known to a certainty which route she intended travelling, the writer returned to the U. S. Immigration Office and gave instructions to the officers on duty at the two railway stations in this city to inform him by telephone immediately upon her appearance at either station, the writer awaiting such telephone message at the Immigration Office. She appeared at the C. P. R. Station about 5:25 P. M. and boarded the "Soo Line" train south. She was recognized by Inspector Robbins and instructions with regard to telephoning were immediately carried out with the result that the writer accompanied her to the International Border. She was pointed out to Inspector Smith and was held at the Village of Noyes, Minnesota, for examination as to her right to enter the United States. Her request [illegible]

529

890123011

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Summaries and Excerpts from Lectures] / Emma Goldman.– 25 cm. In Walter E. Carr, "[Report to] U.S. Commissioner of Immigration". –(April 9, 1908).
Obtained from the Immigration and Naturalization Service via FOIA.

the train was effected by Inspector Smith without noise or disturbance of any kind, and Miss. Goldman was conducted to the office of the United States Customs Officials at that place to await the arrival of Inspector Robbins from Winnipeg, who had been instructed to follow on a later train in order that a Board of three experienced officers might be available. A meeting of a Board of Special Inquiry was called at 10:30 P. M., Inspector Robbins, Inspector Smith and myself serving as Board members. A verbatim report was made of the proceedings of such Board, the notes being taken by myself, a copy of which is hereto attached and made a part of this report.

Every effort was made to keep the matter out of the public press, but unfortunately the express messengor on the train from which she was removed gained information as to the holding of Miss. Goldman for examination and reported same in Minneapolis, whereupon the papers at that place wired to Winnipeg for accounts of the affair. A newspaper reporter was sent to Emerson where Emma Goldman was obliged to remain until the arrival of the "Soo Line Train" south on the night of the 7th instant, which train she took to St. Paul, and this reporter gained an interview with Emma Goldman, she however refusing to give other than the minor details of her examination. No information whatsoever has been given out by this office or by anyone connected with the Immigration Service.

240

530

890123011

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Summaries and Excerpts from Lectures] / Emma Goldman.— 25 cm. In Walter E. Carr, "[Report to] U.S. Commissioner of Immigration". —(April 9, 1908).
Obtained from the Immigration and Naturalization Service via FOIA.

During her stay in Winnipeg Emma Goldman gave five lectures all of which were delivered to good sized audiences, and, there being no demonstration of any kind at any of the meetings, the Canadian authorities did not in any way interfere.

On March 31st Miss Goldman dealt with the subject, "Anarchism, and what it really stands for." The speaker confined hereself to an explanation of the principles and teachings of anarchism and compared the conditions existing to-day with the prospective conditions ~~as~~ advocated by anarchists. She stated that social conditions could not be altered with kid gloves and pink teas, a revolution must come, and it would depend entirely upon the attitude of the world whether that revolution should be bloody or otherwise.

On the evening of April 1st, Miss Goldman was tendered a reception by a number of personal friends and did not appear in public.

On the evening of April 2nd, the subject chosen was,"Trade Unionism's Relation to Anarchy." Miss. Goldman stated that in so far as trade unionism was a movement against the capitalistic regime, its cause was identical with that of anarchy. That no good union man could belong to either the army or the navy for the reason that both the army and navy were maintained not for the purpose of fighting outside enemies, but for the sole purpose of enslaving and keeping the laboring classes down, and the killing off of strikers. The soldier does the killing and the officer gets the credit and the soldier will soon begin to wonder why and then he will join the working man and

531

890123011

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Summaries and Excerpts from Lectures] / Emma Goldman.– 25 cm. In Walter E. Carr, "[Report to] U.S. Commissioner of Immigration". –(April 9, 1908).
Obtained from the Immigration and Naturalization Service via FOIA.

there will be a revolution, at which time the conservative element must either join the revolutionists or be swept away.

"Why Direct Action is the Logical Method of Anarchy", was the subject for April 3rd. It was stated that direct action was the only effective means in any cause, and that all liberty lovers and lovers of principle should use direct means only in their endeavor to obtain their ends, that they should take decided action and strike a direct blow for their principles, and in that way, and in that way only could they hope to improve conditions. The present social system was bitterly denounced as well as all religious institutions.

On the evening of April 4th, a public reception was given in one of the smaller rooms of Trades Hall and refreshments served, but other than a short speech of thanks for her welcome in the City of Winnipeg, Miss. Goldman made no remarks.

Sunday afternoon, April 5th, Miss. Goldman delivered a lecture on,"The Emancipation of Woman". She stated that the woman of to-day was born, raised and educated for but one thing, "marriage". She could not hope to occupy a position of equal liberty, mentally, morally or socially with what is ordinarily called the stronger sex for the reason that she had been so long trampled upon, downtrodden and held in a condition of abject slavery that she was not prepared to take her proper place in the world. The present system of marriage was denounced in part as follows:--"Why is it wrong for you to do that which you desire at this moment, when but a few hours, or minutes later it is right, simply because you have gone through with a religious

890123011

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Summaries and Excerpts from Lectures] / Emma Goldman.– 25 cm. In Walter E. Carr, "[Report to] U.S. Commissioner of Immigration". –(April 9, 1908).
Obtained from the Immigration and Naturalization Service via FOIA.

form. Does that make it any more right? Why should a man and woman be compelled to go through a ridiculous ceremony mumbled by a priest or preacher, before they can live together? If they love, and love purely, that is sufficient. All things are right if they seem right to your understanding. The offspring of these pure unions will be the generation to guide future life. Why should one not be privileged to do and act as he pleases when he meets the person he loves." She stated that under the present system the woman is valued only according to the number of children she can bring into the world, "Our most lordly and deppotic President, the Honorable Theodore Roosevelt believes that unless a woman is the mother of at least twelve children, she has made a failure in this life, and is a detriment rather than a help to the cause of humanity." In answer to the question as to where literature dealing with the question of anarchism could be obtained, she stated that in view of the Lord's Day Alliance Act she was unable to sell any on Sunday, but that it could be procured at Trades Hall the following day, that, "While I firmly believe in defying and do defy the Government upon every oecasion, even though my hide is broken, I do not desire to have your hides broken as well."

304

In the evening ,(April 5th), Miss. Goldman took up the subject, "The Revolutionary Spirit in Modern Drama". Her remarks were substantially as follows:—

> "The ruling classes in our present social system are always alert to find ways and means to destroy individual liberty, mental and physical, but they have not as yet awakened to the fact that it is utterly impossible to finally succeed in their

890123011

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Summaries and Excerpts from Lectures] / Emma Goldman.– 25 cm. In Walter E. Carr, "[Report to] U.S. Commissioner of Immigration". –(April 9, 1908).
Obtained from the Immigration and Naturalization Service via FOIA.

efforts. The harder the oppression, the more powerfully the spirit of freedom will manifest itself. The Governments and capitalistic elements labor under the misapprehension that the revolting spirit is confined to the poorer classes, the toilers who, under the present system, suffer the most as a result of exploitation. They have not as yet learned that art, literature, drama and science of to-day are impregnated with the revolutionary spirit.They have not as yet been able to see that the revolutionary spirit is coming to the surface everywhere, that it is not limited to one particular class, and that, on the contrary it shows itself in all walks of life. Men interested in the social conditions do not take the trouble of familiarizing themselves with literature, or dramatic works. They believe it to be sufficient to acquaint themselves superficially with the literature of that particular party of which they may be adherents. They do not realize that in order to acquire a true knowledge it is necessary to familiarize themselves with matters which are not in harmony with their own ideas. They also overlook the important fact that through study of existing conditions is impossible without a knowledge of modern literature and drama. Pre-eminent in dramaturgy are Leo Tolstoi, Henry Ibsen and Gerhardt Hauptmann.

Tolstoi's teachings have spread over all parts of the world, and his conception of human society has aroused the spirit of freedom in millions of hearts. He has no doubt proven himself the strongest enemy to Christianity. His "Powers of Darknees" represents a class of ignorant human beings who in the name of religion commit the most atrocious crimes. "Powers of Darkness" cannot fail to arrouse the revolutionary spirit. It is representative of the idea of passive resistence. Every religion is a power of darkness, and the only object thereof is to strengthen the dominating power, the government and the capitalistic classes, and to subjugate the toilers. In no country is the drama so closely connected with the people as in the very darkest of all countries, Russia. The power of darkness there shows itself in its worst aspect, but free thought is rising, revolution is spreading, and Russia will be free.

Gorki has regarded it as a sacred duty to show that the scum, the outcasts of society, are not such because of their own free will, nor because they are natural criminals. In his "Night Asylum", he convinces the most sceptic that there is some good in the lowest of the low, and that the outcasts of society are such through society alone.

Czirikow, in his drama "The Jews", shows us the Jews in their awakening. Because the Jews have never fought, it has been assumed that they never would rebel against existing conditions. Liberty cannot be attained without struggle, and the

305

244

890123011

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Summaries and Excerpts from Lectures] / Emma Goldman.– 25 cm. In Walter E. Carr, "[Report to] U.S. Commissioner of Immigration". –(April 9, 1908).
Obtained from the Immigration and Naturalization Service via FOIA.

Jews have beoome conscious of this truth. Their revolutionary spirit is growing powerful. Why should the Jews not have a right to take up arms against the Czar and his officialdom of drunkards? Why should they not unite for the overthrow of all despotism, and why should they not unite for the struggle which will end in freeing all men? There is fine material among them and many are willing to die for their ideals rather than degrade themselves by shrinking from the consequences of their convictions." (The greater part of her audience at this speech were Jews).

"More revolutionary work has been done by Henry Ibsen that any other dramatist. As a rule dramatists dwell only on one evil, while Ibsen is universal. His "Brandt" is a revolutionary agitation against greed and superstition. He shows that under the cloak of religion man may commit any crime, and when the measure of his misdeeds is overflowing, he may buy his way into heaven from a goldgreedy priesthood. He shows us that all religion is at the best farcical. His "Doll's House" is a manifesto to all woman, urging them to free themselves, and through their own efforts attain equality with man, morally, intellectually economically and politically. It forces upon them the conviction that by the laws of nature they should hot be inferior to man and that their present inferiority is the result of a long endured and outrageous enslavement. Ibsen is therefore rightly regarded of the originator of the revolutionary movement for the emancipation of woman. Revolution does not always carry in its course bombs, shrapnels and dynamite. The simple fact that a man is opposed to existing conditions makes a revolutionist of him. How this opposition may manifest itself is of no importance as long as it serves in ever so small a measure to bring about the final downfall of a system, institution, a class or government which is considered undesirable or pernicious.

Gerhardt Hauptmann, in his drama "The Weavers", gives us the greatest revolutionary thought with reference to the economical struggle. He shows hunger and poverty, wealth and gluttony, in their worst contrast. Hunger and oppression can be endured but to a certain limit. When this is reached, the sufferer can no longer be held in restraint with the assurance that it is natural to be hungry. He will become mighty in his wrath and in the fight for his very existence will shrink from nothing. In "The Sunken Bells", Hauptman teaches us that in our struggle for light and freedom we must not fear to take risks that may eventually prove fatal. The pillars of modern society are rotten to the core, and the whole structure must collapse sooner or later, and therefore we should not hesitate to take risks, whatever out part in the struggle may be.

Bernard Shaw might well be considered an economical

535

890123011

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Summaries and Excerpts from Lectures] / Emma Goldman.— 25 cm. In Walter E. Carr, "[Report to] U.S. Commissioner of Immigration". —(April 9, 1908).
Obtained from the Immigration and Naturalization Service via FOIA.

revolutionist worthy to be mentioned in connection with such names as Tolstoi, Ibsen and Hauptmann.

We in America, in the States, have not yet found time for ~~him~~ dramatic creation worth speaking of. We have been too busy making dollars through the tears and blood drops of unfortunate slaves in the mines, factories and sweat shops, but the revolutionary spirit exists nevertheless. It asserts itself in all countries of the world. Siberia, Schlosselberg, the electric chair and the penitentiary cannot dam the revolutionary spirit. It will grow stronger, and for every one falling in the struggle, two will fill the breach in the ranks, until finally the whole masses willarise, and arise to liberty."

As a whole, the speeches of Emma Goldman while in Winnipeg were very mild in character, she apparently making no effort to excite enthusiasm in her audiences, and in fact on several occasions requesting that the audience keep as quiet as possible. She seemed anxious to avoid demonstrations and generally speaking her meetings were very quiet affairs.

No particular comment is made in this report with regard to the Board proceedings in this case, as ~~him~~ it is thought that the copy of the minutes of such Board meeting hereto attached will be sufficient.

All papers are herewith returned for the files of the Montreal office. There was no expense incident to this detail.

307

Respectfully,

Walter Carr,
Inspector in Charge.

IMM. AND NATURALIZATION SERVICE RECORDS DIVISION
ENTERED
APR 16 1909
BUREAU OF

840514033

The Emma Goldman Papers

En Route / Emma Goldman. – pp. 132-134 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 3, no. 3 (May 1908).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

of expression will go on is quite certain, no matter how disconcerting it may be in high quarters. Having survived the rack and thumbscrew, it will outlive even Presidential messages.

* * *

EN ROUTE

"Angel City," Calif., April 30th, 1908.

IT is quite "angelic" here, indeed, and as angels never do anything but sit at God's throne playing the harp, my friends will have to forbear with me if I, too, am influenced by the local atmosphere.

With Mother Earth so rich, so beautiful and abundant in southern California, one is inclined to forget, at least for a while, the bareness and dreariness of life at large, with its eternal strife and unnecessary struggle.

Even my angel guardians, the police, seem to be imbued with the spirit of restfulness and peace that emanates from nature in this city. At any rate, they have so far let me go my own way, a treat which only he can fully appreciate who has felt their presence as long and persistently as I have.

I stated in my last review that the Chicago "finest" deserve a vote of thanks for the tremendous advertising which their stupidity has given Anarchism and that "most disreputable of all Anarchists, Emma Goldman."

Since I have come to California and have been "entertained" by the San Francisco police, I have decided that our thanks will have to be voted to the authorities of that city instead of to Chicago. As an exhibition of monumental stupidity and absurdity the San Francisco police are deserving of the first prize. True, in Chicago free speech was prohibited, but such action is perfectly consistent with the functions of authority, a fact which many of our lukewarm radicals have yet to learn. All their talk of free speech and their great indignation against the suppression thereof are to my mind nothing but sentimentality. If they truly believed in free speech they could not at the same time stand for the continuance of government. Free speech means either the unlimited right of expression, or nothing at all. The moment any man or set of men can limit speech, it is no longer free. The Russian Tsar stands for free speech, which means his right to say what he pleases. So do also the American Tsars: they have their rights of free speech. But the moment you or I claim the same right, law and authority become indignant at such Anarchist impudence. Let all reformers and radicals realize, once for all, that to love liberty means to become lawless, since freedom and law can never harmonize.

There was at least some consistency in the actions of the Chicago authorities, even though they helped our propaganda tremendously. The meetings in Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Winnepeg, Salt Lake City, etc., would never have been attended by such vast crowds had it not been for that consistency. The San Francisco authorities, however, can claim neither consistency nor ordinary common sense.

No potentate was ever received with greater deference or hospitality. The Chief himself was there, with his staff, in a large automobile, ready to see me safely to the palace of the Police Department; but as I preferred a hotel, the Chief submitted to the caprice of the sovereign and escorted me to the hotel, placing four detectives at my disposal, who had strict instructions to be close, very close at my side during my stay at San Francisco.

When I changed quarters and went to stop with friends, the Chief placed an additional force at my disposal, two mounted officers, to watch the cottage and neighborhood. However, all this care and devotion could not satisfy the zeal of a true subject like Chief Biggey. His heart craved greater manifestations of loyalty; therefore he spent forty-eight hours preparing a parade in honor of the distinguished visitor, probably hoping that the sovereign would review her "faithfuls." One hundred and fifty officers on horseback, in automobiles, on foot, "police to the right of her, police to the left of her, in back of her, and in front of her"; a light brigade heavy in body and mind, but "ready to charge, ready to risk their lives for duty's sake." They protected every meeting, always watchful lest some harm should befall her majesty. What if these devotees exposed themselves to scorn and ridicule, what if they had to listen, listen for the first time, to a voice so

537

840514033

The Emma Goldman Papers

En Route / Emma Goldman. – pp. 132-134 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 3, no. 3 (May 1908).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

strange, foreign, and jarring to their delicate ears, and hear the truth, the truth, that hateful thing, that will not be silenced or awed, even by the presence of such a force. They stood their ground, these one hundred and fifty, firmly, unflinchingly, unto the very end.

Deeds of love, of kindness,—great, heroic deeds may go down into oblivion in the history of this country, but the deeds of Chief Biggey and his one hundred and fifty men,—never! In years to come a young and free generation will read the story of how Chief Biggey and his hundred and fifty brave souls helped to spread the ideas which paved the way for a free society.

Life's struggles either kill or strengthen the power of human endurance. I hope I will not appear boastful if I say that the difficulties and obstacles and annoyances of the last ten weeks have not diminished my endurance. I am still on deck. The storm is now raging more fiercely than ever and the waves are competing with each other in their mad rush, but our colors are flying as proud and unyielding as ever.

Friends, we have all reason to rejoice that ignorance, brutality, and viciousness have conspired against the spirit of liberty. They have left nothing undone to break her proud neck. They have hounded us, annoyed us, driven us almost to desperation. In their kindness of heart they have even decided that this is not a safe place for us to live; therefore they are going to deport some of us or keep those out who will venture to these hospitable shores. Yet all their attempts have failed, failed miserably. The voice of truth rings more sonorous, more voluminous than ever; it sounds like an approaching thunder, strong, commanding, threatening. Do you see the convulsive efforts of ignorance and brutality? In vain, in vain! The truth, the truth has conquered!

EMMA GOLDMAN

IN 'FRISCO

(Correspondence.)

AS we passed from the arid regions of Utah and Nevada to the green and verdure of the Sacramento Valley, the contrast was no greater than the cold frigidity of the City of the Saints presented to the mellow warmth and single-hearted enthusiasm of the people of 'Frisco. Comrade Emma Goldman was met by 'Frisco's "finest" and was kept under diligent surveillance during her stay in the city. Order was maintained—there was peace—though not the "peace of Warsaw," for ominous murmurs ran through every grade of her large audiences whenever local matters were touched upon. The meetings were tremendously successful, and a very large amount of Anarchist propaganda was accomplished.

The enthusiasm and effectiveness of the work reached their climax on Sunday, April 26th, at the lecture on "Patriotism." Comrade Emma Goldman was at her best, and had her audiences with her to a man—so fervid, so unified, so unmistakable was this "folk" solidarity (and so superior to the State Socialists' mechanical "class consciousness" nonsense), that for the moment I could not help pity the Chief of Police, and sympathize with him in his reported "fear" of Emma Goldman. The following statement was given out, and I insert it in this report as giving a clearer concept of the local situation than any amount of mere description:

"Miss Emma Goldman has been in the City of San Francisco for over a week, and I note with some concern that the cathedrals are as imposing as ever, that the seismograph has given no indication of another earthquake, that the foundation of Walton's Pavilion is still solid, and that the Police Department is still doing business at the same old stand, though in a slightly subdued style. What was the reason that a culpable and subsidized press took it upon itself to take up the trail of Anarchism with such insidious ferocity, such blatant impudence, such unheard-of mendacity? What was the reason that a reformed Police Department took it upon itself to place two hundred or more of its men at the disposal of Miss Goldman, to watch her every move, annoy her, injure her, and who did not hesitate to break

538

890327017

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Summary of Lecture] Wants "No Government" Society / Emma Goldman.— p. 1 ; 28 cm. In Common Sense [Los Angeles]. —(May 2, 1908).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

THERE IS NO ESSENTIAL DIFFERENCE BETWEEN THEORY OF ANARCHY & PRACTICE OF CAPITALISM

You Have Nothing to Lose But Your Chains. Yours to Gain.

COMMON SENSE

A WEEKLY NEWSPAPER FOR WORKING MEN

Official Organ of Local Los Angeles Co. Socialist Party of California

Second Year, No. 180 LOS ANGELES, CAL., SATURDAY, MAY 2, 1908 50 Cts. a Year, in Advance

Wants "No Government" Society

Emma Goldman, Noted Woman Anarchist, Seeks to Invert Order of Social Development---Utopia of Individualism.

[illegible] who at [illegible] An [illegible] Sparks [illegible] at Metropolitan [illegible] hand [illegible] ting ex- [illegible] doomed [illegible] to his [illegible] encour- [illegible] attend far- [illegible] ome reading of [illegible] would discover [illegible] ght for in vain in [illegible] n hour or more [illegible] ainst a very ap- [illegible] e of the Eng- [illegible] ishman not only [illegible] understood. [illegible] easy mas- [illegible] ypothesis who is [illegible] ory of the devel- [illegible] ideas, out of the [illegible]. Miss Goldman's [illegible] satisfactory. For [illegible] ved that anarch- [illegible] ism is no vi- [illegible] dream" still [illegible] applied the [illegible] plan in [illegible] in all [illegible]

So it was an easy matter for the speaker by well worn grandstand plays to win the sympathy and applause of her listeners.

Miss Goldman arraigned the present social system, stating that it stands for the oppression and enslavement of mankind. Anarchism, she said, stood for the destruction of this system.

She stated that history was nothing else than a record of the struggle between the individual and the social instincts in man. In their natural forms, she declared, these instincts are not antagonistic.

She cited instances of the high development of the two instincts in the persons of Russell Sage, the miser, and Louise Michel, the altruist. Said Miss Goldman, "Anarchism insists that any society requiring such abnegation and sacrifice on the one hand and promoting such monstrous greed and inhumanity on the other is utterly wrong."

"Anarchism," said the speaker, "is the link which brings into harmony these two elements of individual and social well being."

Majority rule the speaker classed with those factors which had stood in the way of the harmony and proper blending of the two elements of social life.

The nearest the speaker came to solid ground in her trip through the clouds of idealistic vagary was when she explained that the "centralized" system of government was the result of centralization in the methods of production. She, however, steered quickly away from such an earthly doctrine as that of economic determinism by stating merely that this centralization of production and government does not benefit society but that it has destroyed the most important factors that make for social well being.

She waxed eloquent over the fact that all initiative and spontaneity had been crowded out of men and women and that they had become mere hands, with brain as dull as the material with which they work.

But neither here nor elsewhere throughout her discourse did the speaker attempt either to explain the industrial processes which have produced this condition among the workers, or suggest that there was any cause behind social phenomena other than these elemental instincts. Free will, indeed, though not referred to as such, was the utopian fallacy upon which her disjointed propositions were built.

Miss Goldman built out of her abstract ideas of "equality," "justice," a beautiful system of "loosely federated communities of voluntary cooperation for purposes of production."

The main bugaboo of the anarchist is compulsion of any kind. No analogy is drawn between the necessary compulsion in a society made of imperfect human beings and that imposed upon all animal life by Nature herself.

The speaker affected a fine scorn for "governmentalists," referring to all who advocate system and a supposed superior "authority" by which man is to be driven to his task.

Kaspar Bauer will debate with Miss Goldman tonight at Howell Hall, 814 So. Main street, on the question of Socialism vs. Anarchism, which it would well pay those who are still in the logs of utopianism to attend.

W. S. BRADFORD.

No Middle Ground

[illegible] Bar- [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

890413002

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Goldman–Bauer Debate / Emma Goldman.– pp. 1, 3 ; 43 cm. In Common Sense [Los Angeles]. –(May 16, 1908).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

COMMON SENSE

A WEEKLY MISSIONARY FOR WORKING MEN

Los Angeles Co. Socialist Party of California

LOS ANGELES, CAL., SATURDAY, MAY 16, 1908

50 Cts. a Year, in Advance

Parliament Of The Toilers In Session

Fundamental Principles of Socialism Wrestling With Immediate Demand Issues For Supremacy---An Attempt At Interpretation---No Direct Reports Yet From Delegates---News Items Culled From Press

Perhaps no previous convention has been of such vital importance for the shaping of the political destiny of labor in this country, and for the continued existence of the Socialist Party as a factor.

The giant baby, that had been sitting in the corner, dreaming its dreams and sucking its fingers in wondering expectation, is just trying to get on its feet, and to walk, still with unsteady steps, but with an ever clearer purpose and determined decision to its mind, the purpose and decision to walk, the only way it can walk, and to walk upright.

Only a short while back the monster kid was on its back, or slowly crawling along, a helpless bit of humanity, still disorganized in all its members, and the ailments or even healthy manifestations of the limbs attempted to subordinate the entire as yet unfinished organism to the particular local needs. And so we saw the brain of Wisconsin, the solar plexus of Washington, the farmer heel of Nebraska, the water on the brain of Minnesota, the sore-head of South Dakota, the unity measles of New Jersey, the running sore of Utah, and countless other local ailments at one time or other attempt to occupy the exclusive attention of all other departments of the busy body and of the entire world. In its own mind a little child is the center of the universe, and acts accordingly.

To judge from the reports in the newspapers the baby is just now at a climax of its existence from a combination of teething fever, whooping cough, scarlet fever, diphtheria and publicity sun blisters, but there are hopes that the kid will pull through all right—it has a marvellous vitality.

We draw this parallel in dead earnest, though it may seem funny and farfetched. We speak from the experience for instance with this paper. We receive manuscripts telling us in earnest conviction that unless the Socialist party accepts and advocates the gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ, it can not win. They are sincere modern apostles, rallying around the "Christian Socialist" of Chicago, Ill. Others tell us in essays that the small farmer is the Alpha and Omega of hope for the Socialist Party, and that if we do not appeal to him first and all, our party is doomed to extinction. Others again want us to drift along patiently wherever the great body of the American Federation of Labor moves almost class instinctively in the line of least resistance, and if we do not drift but want to swim skillfully and with an intelligent purpose, towards a definite final aim, we are called wild-eyed utopians and dreamers. Still others again, brainy fellows on high stilts, almost funny in their pompuousity in challenging the universe, tell us that they are the only righteously anointed Saviors of labor, and that the Socialist Party is doomed to perdition in foul stagnation, corruption and reaction, if the principles of the Industrial Workers of the World are not incorporated flesh, and skin, and all. And then there are those who see the only salvation of the Socialist Party in patching over an effect instead of cutting the root, who advocate prohibition of the liquor traffic instead of abolition of the profit system that creates unnatural cravings in underfed bodies and starved souls.

Just so it seems to be at the national convention of the Socialist Party in Chicago. The delegation of each state is either in toto pledged to one or more "indispensable" issues. And often we see even the spectacle of delegations cut in twain or into more rivaling "indispensable and only" issue advocates. Take California for instance, Japanese exclusion, and anti-A. F. of L. and I. W. W., prohibition and anti, pure and simple woman suffrage and anti, class struggle and anti, Christian and anti. In short, in the delegation of our state all these secondary tendencies are struggling for supremacy over the fundamental issues in common at bottom: overthrow of the capitalist system, abolition of wage slavery, this to be done in a class conscious, level-headed civilized method in political and economic struggles, by organization and education, by an intelligently used ballot that strikes at the root of the evil.

And this multiformity of expression is deceiving to the casual observer and partial reasoner. He will take it as a sign of weakness, of inevitable decay. But he forgets the history of this country of unprecedented individualism, and he overlooks the fact, that the party comparatively in a recent date [illegible] contained hardly any humanity,—except in spots of concentrated production, or for passing immediate demands, or for passing immediate evils of the [illegible] a social revolution, by the [illegible] of the proletariat, that he was part of a social unit. He does not realize that these social instincts are transmuted in partial, or rarely complete class-consciousness, only to that degree to which their individuality is encroached upon by corporations, by those who directly or indirectly step between them and the avenues of their living.

This process of encroachment all along the line, going on in grim silence at a gigantic rate, casting the grey shadows of panic, unemployment, group disintegration into hitherto hardworking but rather unaffected strata of society, is like a nightmare upon everybody, all scramble for an opening. Yet all see first of all their own particular ailment as individuals or as certain groups of individuals, with group interest in common and no consciousness of common interest as yet with all others.

Here it is where the mission of the Socialist Party sets in, where the party must be a true reader of the conditions all over this country, and of the signs of the time, of the trend of the social evolution to lead towards an ultimate social revolution.

Look at little Europe with its manifoldness of Socialist Party expression in the many countries, with its variety of attempts at practical application of socialist principles to present conditions. And yet in spite of all this seeming chaos, apparent contradiction, and seething dissension, we see all along the line united fronts against the powers that be at decisive hours. All these little factions and local differentiations mean nothing more than that the proletariat has to fulfill the mission left unaccomplished by the bourgeoisie before it can fulfill its own mission as a class. But in their present day work of clearing away rubbish and clearing out stumps they keep in their minds ever present the principles of the structure for which they are clearing the ground, and they are guided by party lines, by class lines, though not all may be fully conscious of the fact.

Now if little Europe, of the size of a couple of large counties of a few states, shows such diversity of expression of the awakening social consciousness, and socialism yet thrives and promises to become victorious, have we any reason to be pessimistic in the country of illimited possibilities because we see so many variations of opinions in the delegation for instance of California in which several European countries could be lodged comfortably. Would it not be folly to take one of these side issues and cut it to a national party straight jacket? And is it not scientific not to impose theories but to read the symptoms of the diseased social organism, and then to apply the laws of the life of that organism to remedy the evil?

Will the Socialist Party rise to the true interpretation of all phenomena, and taking in account all details and local differentiations, become the Luther Burbank of politics and economics to deal intelligently, to interfere benevolently with the needs of the sweatshop and factory slaves of the Eastern cities, with the men, women and little children in coal and copper mines, in textile factories, and mills, with the hand of the industrial centers who has no home of his own and with the artisan who vegetates as a cockroach real estate speculator ever anxiously dodging the Damocles sword of mortgages, the blanket stiff of the bonanza farms in Dakota and the small farmer in the grip of a transportation trust, all and every one of these faced by the same conditions that has to be met?

Will the Socialist Party prove not so much the gambling partisan or best man politician, than the needed great educator and creator of a social consciousness and social conscience against which the powers of oppression and darkness will be powerless. Will our chosen men and women be able to grow beyond their hobby and to unite on essentials instead of wasting all their energies on non-essentials second or third in rank and importance? The next few weeks will answer our questions.

In the meantime we quote from the capitalist press:

CHICAGO, May 10—(By Associated Press).—With a whirlwind of oratory, the Socialist Party delegates opened their national convention here today. The first session, which lasted from noon until near evening, developed indications of a clash between urban Socialists and Socialists of the agricultural classes, and already the line of cleavage appears to be sharply drawn.

The issue, according to the tenor of several speeches and addresses by men and women delegates, is whether the Socialist Party shall make a special appeal to the farmers of the country to openly join the ranks of Socialism.

When the convention concluded its day's work the question was still under discussion.

As to the temper of the delegates concerning the presidential nomination, Eugene V. Debs and William D. Haywood, former secretary of the Western Federation of Miners, seemingly are the logical aspirants. The contest between them promises to be close.

The net results of the session were:

A refusal to permit the women delegates to control a majority of the committee on the rights of women, with regard to the Socialist movement, a refusal to name a committee to discuss immigration, and a fight lasting through several ballots on the question of proposed overtures to the farmers and reference of same to a committee of five. The debate and the repeated voting on the last proposition was the significant development of the day.

Representatives of the city membership of the party appeared to be practically unanimous in demanding an appeal to the farmer vote.

New York, Chicago, Milwaukee and other cities voted as a unit in the affirmative. On the other hand, Texas, Oklahoma, and in fact nearly all the distinctly agricultural states, voted against it.

Following the truce on the question, the two-thirds rule of control came up and a spirited debate followed.

Chairman-Secretary Mostserman of the rules committee reported a clause providing that a two-thirds vote should be necessary for the nomination of candidates for the presidency and vice-presidency. The debate was scarcely under way when adjournment was taken, and the proposition will be the first order tomorrow.

The credentials committee reported contests over the seating of Delegates McDevitt of California and Goebel of New Jersey.

A provisional committee from the state of Washington also contested the seating of delegates from that state.

In each case the delegates were seated pending further investigation of their credentials.

The rules adopted by the convention provided for the selection of a chairman and secretary each day. Morris Hillquit of New York was named as temporary chairman for today's session, Frank J. Wheat was made temporary secretary. Before the convention proper the delegates assembled at the Garrick theater, where they were welcomed to Chicago by Chicago Socialists. The theater was crowded and many were turned away.

Music was furnished by the United German Societies, the United Scandinavian societies and the Jewish Singing societies. The meeting opened with the singing of the "Marseillaise," in which delegates and visitors joined. C. T. Fraenckel delivered the address of welcome on behalf of the city and he was followed by Morris Hillquit of New York, international secretary of the Socialist movement.

The announcement was made at this meeting that Eugene V. Debs had been detained by sickness in his family.

CHICAGO, May 11.—A lively skirmish occurred today in the Socialist convention over a proposal to make a special appeal to the trades unionists in behalf of Socialist Party principles. While the verbal contest was at its height the Wisconsin delegation threatened to bolt the convention unless it stood by the policy of appealing to the men in the trades unions.

Eventually a committee of seven to consider the situation was ordered appointed.

Indications during the day pointed to a new possibility in the case for the presidential nomination in the person of A. M. Simons of Illinois. Ben Hanford of New York, vice-presidential candidate in 1904, was also discussed informally by the delegates as eligible for the honor.

CHICAGO, May 12.—Delegates to the Socialist—national convention, in session here, made little progress today in the direction of an agreement on policies or candidates. The greater part of the brief session held this afternoon was devoted to arguments by representatives of contesting delegations from western states.

In and out of convention the contest between Eugene V. Debs and William D. Haywood for the presidential nomination was the subject of much discussion, and tonight, with one day intervening before the balloting will probably begin, it was predicted neither would be chosen to lead the Socialist ticket.

A rumor which gained currency during the day that Haywood had withdrawn from the race was vigorously

(Continued on Page 3)

Goldman-Bauer Debate

On Anarchism Versus Socialism—"Artful Dodger" Caught By the Wing and Skillfully Carved By the Wife of Our Managing Editor

That socialism and anarchy as theories of social life are as far apart as the two poles, was the onn point upon which both principals were agreed, in the debate Saturday night, May 2d, at Howell hall on the question of Anarchy vs. Socialism, between Emma Goldman and Kaspar Bauer.

Adherents of these two doctrines chiefly made up the audience, and from the applause which greeted the remarks of the two speakers it was apparent that sentiment was pretty evenly divided.

Though more skillful and vastly more experienced in debate, Miss Goldman was unable to defend her purely idealistic position from the onslaughts of her opponent's scientific argument.

Miss Goldman opened the debate, and from that time to the close Comrade Bauer put her on the defensive and kept the fight wholly within her territory.

The chairman of the evening, Mr. Spading, an anarchists, had referred to the two principals as two different kinds of socialists, or of belonging to two different schools of socialism. Miss Goldman, as the first speaker, set him right on this by stating that socialism and anarchy are as far apart as the poles.

Those acquainted in advance with the temperaments of the two contestants had no reason to expect a tame performance, and in this they were far from disappointed.

Miss Goldman's first point was that humanity is suffering from two evils: first, capitalism, and organized government, which protects capitalism in its robbery of the rights of the individual.

In their desire to abolish capitalism, said the speaker, anarchy and socialism stand on common ground, but that the latter stands for and advocates government and centralization, while anarchy stands for "liberty" and "voluntarism."

Miss Goldman made use of a common trick of the debater who cannot face the issue squarely by attempting to construct straw men for the purpose of knocking them down.

The first bugaboo was the state, and she went to such eminent authority as Marx and Engels themselves in substantiate her in her contention that the socialists believe in the state. If, however, she had been minded to give the audience the benefit of her fuller knowledge on the subject she would have read farther to convince them it was not the class state such as that of capitalism that socialists advocate, and as the manifesto makes plain, and that the manifesto also points out that the "state" according to the present conception, would disappear.

She quoted from Karl Kautsky in his reference to the impracticability of an absolutely equal wage for all work. She also stated that monopoly was only possible because of the force of organized government behind it.

In his first reply Comrade Bauer explained that not ALL of humanity is suffering from capitalism, but the WORKING class. He ridiculed the phrase "anarchist communist," showing how the individualism of the anarchist and the social instinct of communism were incompatible.

Referring to the quotation from the Manifesto, he said that when the movement was young it carried a long string of immediate demands, like the tail of a kite, but that in the process of evolution we had found that we could shorten the tail of the kite and it would fly just as well, even better. He said the state, as the socialist literature referred to it, was not understood by the anarchists—that the class state of the present time was one of oppression but that working man's state would be an entirely different thing.

The liberty of the working man depends upon his ownership of the means of production. He must study these means of production and treat the machine according to its nature in order to get the greatest possible liberty for the individual.

As to an equal wage the socialist stands for an equal opportunity, which

(Continued on Page 3.)

Disciple Revises Warning Voice of Master

TWO LETTERS OF CRITICISM

London, May 12, 1904

The Social Democratic Federation here shares with your German American Socialists the distinction of being the only parties to accomplish the bringing down of the Marxian theory of development to a rigid orthodoxy. According to them, the working man is not to attain to this complete development through an evolution set in operation by his class feeling, but he has to swallow it down immediately as an article of faith and without development. Therefore both remain only sects and come, as Hegel says, from nothing, through nothing, to nothing.

FREDERICK ENGELS.
to F. A. Sorge.

FRIEDENAU, Feb 6, 1908.

Dear Comrades: Gladly I would send you an article to assist in the celebration of the "New York Volkszeitung." But I have not sufficient time. I beg you therefore to be satisfied with a few lines of heartfelt congratulation.

The last celebration of the "New York Volkszeitung" fell just after a glorious electoral victory. And now you celebrate on the eve of an election campaign which promises still more important results. But to me it seems that still more important than probable election victories promises to be the fact that to all appearances at last, at last the ice seems to be broken that weighted down the trades unions of America. That which was started by the Moyer-Haywood trial will apparently be led farther on by the present horrible crisis, which so drastically exposes the fallacy of all revisionist expectations that the trusts were in the field for the special purpose and end to dam the crisis and to regulate the production. For just in the land of the trusts the panic seems to be most terrible. They are not a means to prevent crises, but merely a means by raising of the prices of all products and by keeping down the wages to rob the proletariat of all the fruits which prosperity might have brought to them.

If there is anything to beat into the American workingman dialectics and socialistic viewing of economic facts, it is surely this crisis.

Only one danger I see today for socialism and for the labor movement of America, the danger that by a short-sighted policy of the day they might be opposed into an antagonism to the entire international proletariat, and replace the class struggle by a race struggle. Certainly the immigration of Asiatics threatens American labor with great disadvantages, but it would result in ultimate disaster, should they try to counteract such disadvantages by declaring war upon the Asiatic proletariat instead of supporting all attempts of the proletarians in Japan, China, India to better their miserable condition and to organize.

The unorganized wage worker of eastern Asia remains a dangerous competitor of the American proletariat even if he stays at home, but in his place floods the world market with his products created at cheapest cost.

Only the organization of these cheapest masses of labor can break off the threatening point of their competition. Nothing is more erroneous and more in contradiction to the available facts, than the assertion that Asiatic labor can not be organized. They already are able to show organizations, and it is just from America that those have received their greatest inducement and encouragement in a most promising way.

From the Socialists of America the Socialists of Japan have received their lessons. The aim must be to tie ever stronger bonds between the two. I realize that with the momentary attitude of mind of American labor this is no easy task, and no pleasant task either. It is hardest to withstand and suffer the antagonism of one's own class. Many a man who has calmly and firmly faced unflinchingly persecution and ridicule of opponents, is incapable to resist the public opinion of his own class.

But the "New York Volkszeitung" (with many other American party papers), has proved during the thirty years of its existence, that it always places the fundamental principles of Socialism higher than the successes of the moment; that it appreciates more the lasting interests of the entire proletariat, than the momentary and localized interests of a particular stratum of labor. Your paper is used to struggle against near-sightedness [illegible] international proletariat can leave to your attendance this so difficult and important question. And if there is victory another branch will be added to the laurels won by a brave struggle of thirty years.

May it be given to you to hold many other celebrations of this kind to the spite of the enemies, and to the welfare of the proletariat and with this of humanity.

Pressing your hand, I remain, yours,
KARL KAUTSKY.

In the "New Yorker Volkszeitung" on the occasion of the 30th anniversary of this daily paper of the German-American Socialists.

540

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

89041 4012

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Goldman-Bauer Debate / Emma Goldman. – pp. 1, 3 ; 43 cm. In Common Sense [Los Angeles]. – (May 16, 1908).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

TITION?

signatures ion to the ordinance r to call a such ordia vote or ons city

T PAPER.

a Daily So-and best rica. You it it during months ha Chicago

e, both for the daily.
tles now.

do? I have ds of HING the buyer at reason-
ND Angeles, Cal.
tre.

's Cloak & Suit House

ks and Suits made and sold CHEAPER STORE IN THE CITY
STREET. Near Maple Ave.

For $2.00 | $2.00
will send You ago Daily Socialist and MON SENSE
ONE YEAR
more do you want? | $2.00

OMAS PAINE | Eighteenth Century
as one of the foremost evolutionists of 1776
MON SENSE"
most important Revolutionary
But that historic pamphlet s clear a message today as in
If you doubt it, send for the t "Common Sense" by W. A. associate editor of this paper.
PRICE 10 CENTS.
MON SENSE PUB. CO., | Twentieth Century
649 SOUTH MAIN STREET
Los Angeles, Cal.

You a Socialist?

hy not patronize home indusneed PRINTING of some from n Sense Publishing Co.
you right and give the right prices nything you wish printed.
r Shoulder to the Wheel and Help Push!
ns much toward the "party progress."
Business Promptly Attended to.
Forget the Place and Number,

ORGANIZER RECEIVES DUES.

The organizer is on hand at street meetings, at the reading room during the day and at propaganda meetings. He will issue dues stamps to all comrades applying for them.

The city organizer also has application cards on hand and those who call themselves socialists should carry their convictions to their logical conclusions and make application for membership in the organization which exists for the purpose of advancing the cause they espouse.

GIVE US YOUR PRINTING.

Let every comrade in business bear in mind that Common Sense has a thoroughly up-to-date job plant, equipped with a linotype machine, and that we want your next job of printing, large or small.

The Vanguard

The Best Socialist Monthly.

Do you want the latest thought on socialism for yourself? Do you want the best propaganda for your non-socialist neighbor? Send 50 cents to 344 Sixth street, Milwaukee, Wis., and get the Vanguard for one whole year.

FACTS AND FIGURES

Collected and Condensed by the Man of Leisure For the Man In A Hurry.

L. T. FISHER.

In reading of our public men who have been prominant in the affairs of the nation, it is a notable fact that most of them have ever been ready to aid in their relief of distress, either as public officials or as private citizens. Yet scarcely any of them seem to have discovered that most of the distress has been and still is the result of conditions that in justice ought to be radically changed.

* * *

At the last presidential election nearly a half million socialist votes were cast, yet some forty thousand socialists did the campaign work. Surely, if the friends of socialism will give the matter proper thought, they will get into the ranks and help push things ahead. Our enemy, the exploiters, are thoroughly organized and we must meet them in their own way. We must "fight the devil with fire."

* * *

Distress, as the result of bad economic conditions, is growing more pregnant and widespread, as time passes. Still the same old scramble and grind goes on—more virulent, if anything. The strong persist in pushing the weak into the background. The task seems to grow easier for the shrewd and the greedy to get the best of things; and they compel those who get but little to serve them. There is no possible way for a change for the better except in the absolute overthrow of the present economic system and the adoption of the methods outlined in the program of socialism.

* * *

A fool's rebellion is yet to be inaugurated. It is the fellow with sluggish brain that willingly bends his back to the enforced burden. The taskmaster has generally wielded the bludgeon and the whip; it is the "hired men" who have wielded the pen and the sword—the former have been more or less partially well paid. The latter have ignorantly jeopardized their lives for a pittance. But all that is on the eve of a radical change. The wage slave is getting wiser, and the "good time coming" is already in sight.

* * *

A pitiful remnant of human beings had a reunion a short time since in New York city. They were what was left of the noted Zouaves— or the "red-legged devils," as they were called. This was one of the first regiments to respond to President Lincoln's call for troops. First and last there were 2,400 of them. They are nearly all gone. Those that are left are growing old, grizzled and deaf. Though this regiment numbered 2,400, its roll-call never was more than 600 at a time. General Sherman made no mistake when he said "War is hell."

* * *

The only way to keep men satisfied with their position of servitude is to keep them ignorant. In the ante-bellum days, "dowo sooth," one of the chief tasks of the masters was to peremptorily exclude the schoolmaster—whoever he or she might be. As soon as the negro became intelligent he began to think and investigate. Then he became discontent with his position as chattel slave, and ran away. And they were assisted by many good people who formed the links of the "underground railroad." The infamous "Dred Scott Decision" will forever give those times a prominent place in history. The world is steadily growing wiser. Hence the numerous strikes for better conditions—for liberty. Universal intelligence would quickly bring about universal freedom.

* * *

The socialist cause, as it is presented and advocated today, is the most splendid thing that calls for the admiration and endorsement of the human race. It proposes to abolish want, ignorance, incentive to crime, and everything that tends to suffering or degredation. It calls for an equal share of service from every competent person. It provides for an equal distribution of the products of labor to those who do the service—nothing to the loafer. It guarantees the absolute right to all that will enable each one to make the best of himself. The Socialist Party is the only political organization that ever existed—or ever will exist—that makes such a provision for man.

* * *

The preachers are falling into line. Rev. Dr. Chas. A. Eton, Rockefeller's pastor for many years, was asked this question by four millionaires: "How can we stop this wave of anarchy that is sweeping over the country?" A prompt, sharp answer came at once: "Cease being anarchists yourselves." The preacher then went on to expound philosophic anarchy as presented by Proudhon, in which people were to live ideal lives, without government. Then he referred to the popular idea of anarchy, which is only "cruel, meaningless assassination." This clerical thinker, who has the courage of his convictions, then went on to say that war should not only be waged against these would-be assassins, but especially against "men of whatever degree, who practice that their personal interests constitute the sum total of their duties toward society." Anarchy is individualism. The world is turning to the collective idea—"the greatest good to the greatest number." That is the socialist idea—the co-operative arrangement for the good of all.

* * *

"I find," said Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, "that the great thing in this world is not so much where we stand, as in what direction we are moving." Just now the world movement is the paramount thing to be considered. The superficial aspect is deceiving. Adverse winds sometimes change the course of the stream on the surface, but the normal flow moves steadily along. So in human affairs. They often seem to be going to the bad. But that is only the temporary aspect. A brief historic retrospect makes it quite apparent that the world has grown better. The reactionists are a shallow-minded lot. The student knows better. Today there is a tendency to look more deeply into the economic interests of society. And it is encouraging to know that while the student number is increasing, the investigation is becoming more and more profound and sincere. This is why socialism is growing steadily in favor with honest, thinking people. There is nothing to fear. The intelligent socialist is necessarily an optimist.

* * *

It was Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, if my memory is not at fault, who once said that the punster belongs at the tail-end of the procession of wits. The speech of Rev. Robt. J. Burdette at the recent admiral banquet given in this city is strong confirmation of this view. The reverend gentleman was the chief intellectual jester without the cap and bells. The big fighters, the "leading citizens," and some that were not so leading—but all exploiters of different degree—appeared to enjoy the outgivings of this clerical punster. It was a sort of impromptu mutual admiration society, met for self-glorification. There was a puchback grandeur about the affair that pleased participants. It helped them to forget while they were enjoying their squanderings, an army of starvelings were wandering over this land of plenty.

PARLIAMENT OF THE TOILERS IN SESSION IN CHICAGO.

(Continued from page one.)

denied tonight by Haywood supporters.

Debs was still absent because of illness in his family, but it is thought likely he will appear and take a personal part in the fight before long.

Beside these two men, A. M. Simons of Illinois, Benjamin Hanford of New York and Rev. Carl D. Thompson of Milwaukee are mentioned for the presidential nomination. Rev. Thompson's name, when mentioned in the convention was greeted with enthusiastic cheers.

The committee on platform put in a busy session tonight. The ideas of its members are said to be widely divergent and it is thought a hot fight is brewing over the platform declarations. The matter may come before the convention tomorrow, but it is hardly thought likely that it will be reached before Thursday.

The troubles of the Socialists in the State of Washington monopolized the morning session of the convention. There is a split in the Socialist Party in that state, and two delegations were sent to the convention. The eight delegates of the faction, headed by Dr. Herman F. Titus of Seattle, were seated yesterday, and the convention heaved 219 sighs of relief in the belief that it had settled the Washington dispute. But the defeated faction refused to stay beaten and today the trouble bobbed its head up again through a request that the convention investigate the merits of both sides of the quarrel and pass finally upon the dispute.

CHICAGO, May 15.—Eugene V. Debs of Indiana this morning was nominated for president on the first ballot by the Socialist Party national convention.

CHICAGO, May 15.—Benjamin Hanford of New York was nominated by the socialists for vice president.

Do You Wish To Be Bored?

Then lets have both arctic and Alaska

BAUER-GOLDMAN DEBATE.

(Continued from page one.)

is far more important.

As to government causing monopoly the exact reverse is true. It is the present economic system, resulting in monopoly, which creates the present form of government.

The anarchists deny the necessity for organization, which means discipline. The anarchists make a hue and cry against the invasion of individual "rights." If the anarchists refuse to attack the capitalist, how is he going to pry him loose? Will he come and say 'Please abdicate in my favor, Mr Capitalist?"

How could a small group of "voluntary associates" operate the modern machinery of production and thereby produce a living?

We believe it is better to count noses than to break heads. When we find by counting our ballots that we have a majority we will simply take over the means of production and free ourselves. If, of course, the capitalist then refuse to abdicate, it will be up to the majority, the working class whose duty it is to organize also industrially, to employ whatever other means that may be necessary to accomplish their will.

Miss Goldman returned to the charge full of fire. She said that not only the working class but also the capitalist class is suffering today, to which Comrade Bauer later retorted, "Ask the capitalist how much he is suffering. Let him tell about his own misery."

Instead of showing how the anarchists propose to oust the capitalist, Miss Goldman confined herself to explaining that the capitalists were the first lawgivers and that all they, the revolutionists, would be doing would be to defend themselves against invasion. She quoted Liebknecht in saying that socialists propose to indemnify the capitalists, whenever such a course would be for the good of the people. To which Bauer retorted that, for that matter, it will not be found to be for the good of the people to indemnify many capitalists when the working class is in power.

Not many new points were brought out in the last speeches. Miss Goldman dwelt mostly on the terrible oppression it would be for the individual to be obliged to work in the time and place dictated by the majority. She seemed to think that it was practicable for each person to dictate for himself when and how he should earn his living. To which Bauer showed how in his own former trade, if the killers and skinners and cleaners, etc., had all come in and worked just when they felt like it, chaos would result. She said so long as we were only changing one despotism for another where was the good in making the change at all. We were exchanging the whip of the Republicans or Democratic boss for that of Mr. Bauer, for instance. Bauer answered easily by reminding her how harshly the Republicans crack the whip over themselves, the Democrats likewise, and suggesting that the same principle would certainly hold good when the people, the workers, themselves held the whip.

Bauer showed that there would be more than a slight difference between the conditions of the workers under capitalism and under a system which would compel from all a few hours of work under pleasant conditions in order to give as much time as possible to each individual to spend exactly as he pleased, much more liberty than he could possibly have under any other method of getting his livelihood.

For instance, he said the wild Indian would be cited by the idealists or anarchists as an example of noble freedom, while as a matter of fact he was the absolute slave to his necessity for just as long a time as it took him to catch his buffalo, after which he was free only so long as his buffalo meat held out. He said that Miss Goldman absolutely denied the materialistic conception of history, and that he had her written statement of ten years ago to hear him out in that, to which Miss Goldman retorted that the statement was absolutely false, as she never denied the "material aspect of life." That was a fair example of the manner in which she eluded points, rather than met them.

It is to be hoped that the many socialists who have been flirting with anarchy, believing it to be a condition to which we will grow when we get good enough, heard this debate in which Miss Goldman showed herself either unconscious of modern economic development or else chose to ignore it and evade it at every turn until her listeners felt inclined to designate her as "the artful dodger."

E. E. B.

SAVE A DOLLAR AT BLANEY'S

Tan Low Shoes
For Ladies

Comrades Lecturing

Santa Barbara, Cal., May 7, 1908.

Jack Wood addressed a good meeting here last night. His listeners were deeply interested while he outlined the socialist program in his characteristic way. The night before he talked to 33 comrades at headquarters, urging upon them the need of cooperative work in the winning of members to the local. He sold considerable literature also.

Santa Maria Cal., May 9, 1908.

Comrade Jack Wood of London, England, has been with us speaking two evening on the street and one in the home of the secretary, on account of heavy wind.

ANNA H SMITH, Secretary.

Arroyo Grande, Cal., May 11, 1908.

Editor Common Sense.

Dear Comrades: We have had the pleasure of entertaining Comrade Jack Wood of your city for two days. He gave us a splendid lecture on Saturday evening and another on Sunday. Good audiences and much interest shown. We all feel greatly encouraged and filled with new enthusiasm for the cause. He goes from here to Cambria to strengthen the weak members and gain new recruits.

Yours for the cause.

(Mrs.) LUCY G. HULETT, Sec.

Orange, Cal., May 7, 1908.

Editor Common Sense.

Comrades:

A free painless dentistry show,
A moving picture show,
A Methodist revival and A Fraternal Brotherhood banquet.

The above quartette was what Comrade W. V. Holloway was up against when he spoke here in Unity Hall last evening. However we had a fair audience, good collection, and all were well pleased with his able address and insist that we must have him here again when we can get him a larger crowd.

Yours for the cause,

W. H. WRIGHT.

N. B.—Rev. T. H. Leavitte of Watts will deliver an address here next Sunday at 3 p. m., subject, "Socialism, the True Gospel."

Riverside, Cal., May 11, 1908

Common Sense, Los Angeles, Cal

Dear Editor: Comrade W. V. Holloway took Riverside by storm yesterday and carried the most of the people's hearts away with him. We held a meeting at 5 p. m. on the street and he gathered, from 12 to start with, a crowd of 150 people and held them spellbound for over an hour. Not many socialists were out, but the crowd was composed of some of the best citizens of the town. Now if we can have more speakers like Holloway we will make socialists fast. Then in the evening at 7:30 p. m. we had a meeting at the Universalist church, a discussion of the subject, "Are Present Economic Conditions Conducive to Morality." Well, the minister of this church has been having meetings (or rather trying to) to discuss Bible questions, but the meetings dwindled away to nothing, and he had abandoned them. But we got him to start them again along this line. Last evening was the first one, and the house was packed. Holloway spoke the five-minute limit and tried to quit (through courtesy) but the minister wanted him to continue, which he did and treated the subject in a most able and convincing manner. Ten or twelve talked in the meeting, but all were agreed, including the minister, except two gray-haired gentlemen, who differed with us about men becoming down and out because they didn't SAVE their money—old, rich fellows, who made their money to start with twenty-five years ago. We are arousing quite a lot of interest in socialism here in this town. We are getting a socialist play staged here now soon, and think it will be a great boost for the cause, and wish the comrades would take the matter up in their towns. You can easily get a theater to stage them for you if you agree to go out and sell tickets to your friends. They are in for the money, you know, and had as soon make it from a socialist play as any other. Julius Hopp, 415 West 30th street, New York City, is the man to write to in regard to socialist plays. He is publishing a magazine called the Socialist theater; it is 10 cents; would pay any of you to write for it, as the stage is one of the best mediums of reaching the public with any message. Hope you will take the matter up; hope also that the circuit speakers will take this matter up and tell the comrades all around what we are doing and how it will help the cause. Pardon my long letter.

J. M. BOYD.

713 Lemon St., Riverside, Cal.

Editor—Please don't fail to mail me a copy of paper this is in. BOYD.

Am not a subscriber.

(You ought to be!—Ed.)

Chas. Theisen

Musician and Teacher of Music

Manager of the Socialist Propaganda Orchestra

String and Brass Music furnished for all occasions at "Common Sense" prices.

5344 Estrella Ave., Los Angeles, Cal.

Buy your

GAS MANTLES AND GAS FIXTURES

at the

Frush's Incandescent Gas Light Works

649 South Main Street

541

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

890206013

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Wood Denounces Y.M.C.A. Directors / Emma Goldman. – p. 12 ; 43 cm. In The Morning Oregonian [Portland]. –(May 25, 1908).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

WOOD DENOUNCES Y.M.C.A. DIRECTORS

Grills Them for Refusing to Rent Auditorium to Anarchists.

HIS WORDS ARE VITRIOLIC

Savage Attack Made While Introducing Emma Goldman, Who Speaks on Need for Individual Liberty.

Directors of the Portland Y. M. C. A. were censured yesterday in vigorous language by C. E. S. Wood for their refusal to permit Emma Goldman, high priestess of anarchy, to deliver her lectures in their auditorium. The criticism was delivered by Mr. Wood in connection with his introduction of Miss Goldman to an audience of 600 people in Merrill's hall yesterday afternoon. Mr. Wood spoke for 25 minutes and in referring to the difficulty Miss Goldman's followers had experienced in securing a hall for her meetings in this city declared the attitude of the general public towards the lecturer was due to "illiberal and bigoted ignorance." Speaking directly of the action of the Y. M. C. A. directors in causing the cancellation of the contract for the use of their building by Miss Goldman he said:

"This action was taken by the directors who were ignorant of what Miss Goldman would say in her lectures. They did not know what she would say and they did not care, otherwise they would have abandoned their golf links and other places of amusement to come here this afternoon and hear for themselves the message she had to give. But I dare say none of them are here.

Calls Them Easy Christians.

"I have no doubt that a majority of the young men in the Y. M. C. A. are Christians because Christianity is popular and because Christianity is easy. I also doubt seriously that the directors in this institution would have enlisted in the cause of Christianity at a time when in doing so they would be in danger of being bound to the faggot pile.

"Anarchism and What It Really Stands For," was the subject of Miss Goldman's lecture yesterday afternoon. Last night in the same hall she gave a continuation of the afternoon lecture, discussing more specifically the plan and method by which anarchists would place their theory in operation.

"Anarchism stands for the destruction of government," said Miss Goldman in defining her doctrine. "It stands for the destruction of the institutions that have robbed man of his right to live and to enjoy the fruits of his labor. The immediate evil is an economic one and its solution must be an individual and an economic one. The individual and social instincts are never antagonistic to each other and if they are brought into antagonism it is only because the conditions of society are such that the interests of the few are not the interests of the many, as they are.

Education System Wrong.

"It was charged by the lecturer that the present day education tends further to divide society into two classes, masters and slaves, while true education, as viewed by the anarchist, can be acquired only in real life and consists of a knowledge of self, a knowledge of one's proper place in society and a knowledge of one's relation to his fellowman. The centralized method of production was criticised because it degraded man to a mere particle of machinery, robbed him of his personality and initiative and made him the victim of the system and not the system subservient to the human being."

The simultaneous overthrow of centralized production, capitalism and government must be effected before the principles of anarchism can be put into operation. Less government was conducive to greater development, said Miss Goldman, who argued that crime is increasing in the United States. Nine of every ten crimes, it was alleged, are due to the present economic conditions and would be done away with under anarchism and its teachings. Government and organized authority, asserted the lecturer, had failed to bring about less crime, failed to contribute to better conditions in society, had made man no better or nobler and had served still further to separate society into two distinct classes. Based on scientific and philosophical grounds anarchism was recommended as the sole solution.

into shape and was released at his own request.

* * *

Frank Dillon is having a fine time with his legs. He was forced to retire in one of the Seal games. In spite of this the Los Lobos won.

* * *

H. I. Wilson, part owner of the Butte race track, has sold his track mare Gemmel to William Walker for $500. Gemmel won about $8000 for Wilson at Emeryville. Gemmel's first race for Walker's colors was a sad affair.

* * *

Rube Waddell is a real outlaw again. He had a row with Manager McAleer and jumped to the Philadelphia club of the Union League.

* * *

Judge McCredie is going to break up the habit of the sun gods of sitting on the railings in the bleachers. He has instructed a carpenter to tear off the railing and will put up a plank just high enough to keep people from falling off.

* * *

Wright, Eagan and Hogan pulled off a snappy double play yesterday. The pinch hitting business hurt our chance badly.

* * *

Once more Jack O'Connell will grace Portland with his presence. Jack has many friends who will be glad to renew acquaintance. Bull Perrine went South with Oakland.

* * *

Catcher Slattery is sure the luckiest kid. He has a long black account and doesn't care whether he pays half or not. His thick smear of finance makes him a hard player to manage.

* * *

That boy Ryan made a sensational catch of Van Haltren's fine liner in the sixth

C. E. S. Wood, Who Denounced Y. M. C. A. for Refusing Chapel to Emma Goldman.

if there were any [illegible] who admire [illegible] exceptionally good [illegible] for he certainly [illegible] and Re[illegible]

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

	W.	L.	P.C.
[illegible]
Philadelphia
Pittsburg
Boston
Chicago
New York
Brooklyn
St. Louis

St. Louis 6, Philadelphia 1

[illegible] May 25. [illegible] opening game of [illegible] St. Louis [illegible]

	R.	H.	E.
St. Louis	6	6	1
Philadelphia	1	4	2

Batteries—Raymond, McGinnity and Ludwig; Stone, Moore and Jacklitsch. Umpires—Rudderham and Emslie.

Chicago 4, New York 0

CHICAGO, May 25.—New York turned two of Evers' errors into runs, one of the locals' three hits into one by timely hitting. Taylor gave way to the ninth and was [illegible]

	R.	H.	E.
Chicago	4	[illegible]	[illegible]

Batteries—Taylor, [illegible] and Kling; McGinnity and Bresnahan. Umpires—O'Day and Emslie.

Cincinnati 0, Brooklyn 2

CINCINNATI, May 25.—Errors by Lobert and Hulswitt in the first inning gave the Brooklyns the only [illegible] they scored. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
Cincinnati	0	5	2
[illegible]

Batteries—Fraser, [illegible] and Bergen; Lafitte, [illegible] and Bergen. Umpires—[illegible] and Rigler.

OAKLAND TAKES LAST OF SERIES

Beavers Are Shut Out Because They Can't Bunch Hits on Wright.

GREAT CROWD SEES GAME

Paid Admissions Number 5155, and Specialors Overflow Bleachers Onto Field—Errors Contribute to the Score of the Visitors.

PACIFIC COAST LEAGUE.

Yesterday's Results.

Oakland 4, Portland 0.
Los Angeles 6-1, San Francisco 1-0.

Standing of the Clubs.

CLUBS	W.	L.	Portland	Oakland	L. A.	San F.	Per Cent.
Los Angeles		9	8	9	21		525
San Francisco	3		12	9	24		333
Portland	7	8		5	19		[illegible]
Oakland	11	5	4		19		442
Total		13	22	19	73	83

BY WILL G. MACRAE.

Now didn't those plausible Athenians do us for the opening battle of the series yesterday afternoon, but handed us through the splendid endeavor of the red M. Wright, a collection of goose eggs that would not hatch under any hen yet invented for anything that resembled runs. At that, there's no use expecting to win on all [illegible] while that [illegible] backward we received hurt [illegible] good baseball tossed [illegible] stay to satisfy the [illegible] of Portland's [illegible] and chivalry that rambled the [illegible] the grandstand was [illegible] stuck with people as a hog in a rug and the overflow from the land of bleachers found standing room behind the ropes in the field.

There was a thing wrong with the way the crowd was handled yesterday. Judge McCredie had a rope stretched and took time by the proverbial forelock and had a number of handy policemen on tap to [illegible] the eager ones back out of [illegible] of fair. At that, if the crowd hadn't [illegible] so thick around Bassett [illegible] two double-headers would not have dragged so prominently in Oakland's running for with the people [illegible] who Bassey would have got at least [illegible] of the long swipes.

No, the loss of the game didn't [illegible] much until we returned to the city and learned that Los Angeles had taken the double header from the Seals. Had we captured the Sabbath matinee, Portland would have been at the top of the procession. Wouldn't that rasp you?

Not Bud Perrill's Fault.

Not [illegible] Bud Perrill [illegible] a single run. He was a factor [illegible] was [illegible] but [illegible] pitching work [illegible] was Mr. Wright. He held Manager Mack's pill pounders lashed to the mast. The Portland hitters managed [illegible] Mr. Wright for five singles and [illegible] but try as McCredie's [illegible] could they cluster [illegible] Wright off Mr. Wright. The Oakland leader wasn't giving a donation party, and while it wasn't a bit nice of him, we withhold our anger.

Heitmuller wielded his wagon tongue in the fourth after Rip Van Haltren had [illegible] Bassey made a nice endeavor but the drive had Heiny's beef and brawn behind it and it scarred the paint off the fence. Eagan's out to Danzig advanced Heitmuller to third, and he scored when Hogan scratched a hit between [illegible] and second. Hogan tried to take liberties with Bert Whalen's wing and was caught at second. Several other attempts of the same sort with the same result made them respect Whalen and had some peace [illegible] the rest of the game.

Oakland's second run was a gift. Perrill [illegible] Cook on four wide ones. A fruitless effort to head off things put Haley and Slattery on the pegs. Mr. Wright lifted one to Raffery and Cook scored. Jimmy South put the bunch in [illegible] with a poke to Pernoll. Bud whipped the ball to Whalen and the fire drew Haley off third and he was run down. Whalen to Johnson.

Gets Slattery and Completes Double.

THE ST[illegible] drink it from [illegible] who suffer lea[illegible]
When one[illegible]
The barle[illegible] alcohol is an [illegible]
The prop[illegible] good for the w[illegible] comes through[illegible]
But a bee[illegible] be well aged,[illegible]
That is w[illegible]
the necessary [illegible]
And we age t[illegible]
It gives y[illegible]

Schl[illegible]

cided after the first inning when the Southerners scored three runs and followed their lead in the fifth, when a run was scored and two more in the seventh inning.

The afternoon game, which lasted 11 innings, was a pitchers' battle between Gray and Willis. Los Angeles scored the only run in the last inning. The score:

Morning Game.

LOS ANGELES

	A.B.	R.	H.	P.O.	A.	E.
Oakes, cf	2	1	0	2	1	0
Wheeler, 2b	3	1	1	0	4	1
[illegible]	4	1	1	0	0	0
Brashear, rf	4	1	4	4	0	0
Smith, ss	4	1	1	1	2	0
Ellis, lf	3	1	0	3	0	0
Delmas, ss	4	0	2	1	5	0
Hogan, c	3	0	0	2	4	0
Neale, p	4	0	0	0	1	0
Total	33	6	9	27	17	1

SAN FRANCISCO

	A.B.	R.	H.	P.O.	A.	E.
Hildebrand, lf	4	0	1	3	0	0
Mohler, 2b	3	0	0	1	3	1
Williams, 1b	4	0	1	8	0	0
Melchoir, rf	4	0	1	1	0	0
Zeider, ss	4	0	1	1	1	0
Piper, cf	4	0	0	2	0	0
McAuliffe, 3b	4	0	1	3	1	0
Berry, c	2	0	0	5	2	0
Hutt, p	3	0	0	0	4	0
Total	30	0	5	24	11	1

THE SCORE BY INNINGS

542

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

890206013

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Wood Denounces Y.M.C.A. Directors / Emma Goldman. – p. 12 ; 43 cm. In The Morning Oregonian [Portland]. –(May 25, 1908).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

who were ignorant of what Miss Goldman would say in her lectures. They did not know what she would say and they did not care, otherwise they would have abandoned their golf links and other places of amusement to come here this afternoon and hear for themselves the message she had to give. But I dare say none of them are here.

Calls Them Easy Christians.

"I have no doubt that a majority of the young men in the Y. M. C. A. are Christians because Christianity is popular and because Christianity is easy. I also doubt seriously that the directors in this institution would have enlisted in the cause of Christianity at a time when in doing so they would be in danger of being bound to the faggot-pile."

"Anarchism and What It Really Stands For," was the subject of Miss Goldman's lecture yesterday afternoon. Last night in the same hall she gave a continuation of the afternoon lecture, discussing more specifically the plan and method by which anarchists would place their theory in operation.

"Anarchism stands for the destruction of government," said Miss Goldman in defining her doctrine. "It stands for the destruction of the institutions that have robbed man of his right to live and to enjoy the fruits of his labor. The immediate evil is an economic one and its solution must be an individual and an economic one. The individual and social instincts are never antagonistic to each other and if they are brought into antagonism it is only because the conditions of society are such that the interests of the few [illegible] interests of the many, or vice versa."

Education System Wrong.

It was charged by the lecturer that the present day education tends further to divide society into two classes, masters and slaves, while true education, as viewed by the anarchist, can be acquired only in real life and consists of a knowledge of self, a knowledge of one's proper place in society and a knowledge of one's relation to his fellowman. The centralized method of production was criticized because it "degraded man to a mere particle of machinery, robbed him of his personality and initiative and made him the victim of the system and not the system subservient to the human being."

The simultaneous overthrow of centralized production, capitalism and government must be effected before the philosophy of anarchism can be put into operation. Less government was conducive to great development, said Miss Goldman, who argued that crime is increasing in the United States. Nine of every ten crimes, it was alleged, are due to the present economic conditions and would be done away with under anarchism and its teachings. Government and organized authority asserted the lecturer, had failed to [illegible] Illinois in some [illegible] to more money and [illegible] separate society into [illegible] Based on selfishness and [illegible] principle and [illegible] as the [illegible]

Miss Goldman will deliver [illegible] lectures [illegible] speaking at 8 o'clock tonight, Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

"The Relation of Anarchism to Trades Unionism" will be the subject of Miss Goldman's lecture at Alaska Hall tonight. "The Prison-Night at Mc-Clellan's Hall" will be the most revolutionary lecture which she will deliver in Portland. An admission fee of 25 cents will be charged to cover expenses, but ladies and soldiers in uniform will be admitted free. Tickets may be obtained at the office of the hall. Tomorrow night Miss Goldman will lecture on "The Social Significance of Modern Drama." Wednesday night she will speak on "Anarchism: Its Philosophy and Ideal." Thursday night she will lecture on "The Psychology of Political Violence in Its Relation to Anarchism." Friday night she will speak on "The Tragedy of Woman's Emancipation." Saturday night she will lecture on "The Hypocrisy of Puritanism." Sunday night she will speak on "The Drama of Modern Life." Monday night she will lecture on "The Individual, Society and the State." Tuesday night she will speak on "The Spirit of the Modern Drama."

Chit-Chat of Sporting World

A WHITE WASH is looking good to Bill Lange. Introducing the Kaiser of baseball to Portland fans at Vaughn street park.

• • •

The New York Giant management has offered [illegible] St. Louis Cardinal $5000 for Pitcher Raymond. The Cardinals [illegible] Raymond the [illegible] and [illegible] Reveral.

• • •

According to a New York ghost [illegible] a native of Gotland [illegible] ever after losing [illegible] come a prize fighter any day now.

• • •

The howl, "Let us alone," may or may not be effective. It all depends upon who "us" is. Just now the Scots are hollering "Let us alone," but Portland is deaf to the plea.

• • •

We said at the time that the airship company's date of sailing, April 1, would be a fool's joke.

• • •

Danny Long has dropped Chief Enola. The big policeman had trouble getting

C. E. S. Wood, Who Denounced Y. M. C. A. for Refusing Chapel to Emma Goldman.

[illegible] If there is any right fielder in the league who can cover more ground than the exceptionally good player we've been looking for he can hang it on Melchoir. He's there and He knows it.

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

	Won	Lost	P.C.
Chicago	18	5	.667
Philadelphia	15	9	.556
Pittsburg	13	9	.591
Boston	10	13	.435
Cincinnati	14	14	.500
New York	14	15	.483
Brooklyn	14	15	.483
St. Louis	11	17	.393

St. Louis 11, Philadelphia 1.

ST. LOUIS, May [illegible]. Eppa's [illegible] for [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

890206017

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Too Large an Army Now / Emma Goldman. – p. 9 ; 43 cm. In The Morning Oregonian [Portland]. –(May 27, 1908).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

...VES OF NERVE

...k House on Morrison ...et in Broad Daylight.

...PAYS NO ATTENTION

...mcone Come In, but Thinks ...Belong There, and Goes ...eaving Thieves in Posses- ...—Cullin Heavy Loser.

...ylight burglars committed a ... robbery yesterday afternoon ...he hours of 2.30 and 3 o'clock ...idence of Mr. and Mrs. Thom... 453 Morrison street and se... $500 worth of loot in jew... clothing. The robbers made ...ance to the house while Mrs ...ho was at home, gave them ...thinking the noise they made ...ed by another member of the ... They got away half an hour ...er having completely ran... house, and carried off their ... in two suitcases. They were ... domestic employed in the ... the family living next door. ...leisurely exit failed to excite ...rion.

...oldness and coolness with ... crime was committed has ... the police, to whom the mat... immediately reported, and who ...ng every effort to locate the ...whom they were given an ac... description.

Mr. and Mrs. Culler, whose ... jewelry and silverware will ...ate $200, the principal victim ...eft was Harry School, a Mor... ...et merchant, who has a room ...use, and who, in jewelry and ... sustained a loss which lies ...tween $300 and $400. F. Wil... G. Ran & Co., and Miss ...chanan, also roomers at the ...silence, were robbed, but the ...aken from their rooms were of ...alue.

...bery was discovered by Mrs ...ho returned home about 4:30 ... find all the doors wide open ...ooms showing evidence of hav... thoroughly ransacked. She had ...ouse at 2:30 o'clock after hav... what she supposed to be one ...household enter the front door. ...ater developed that she at the ... been the only occupant of the ... the noise she had heard had ...t of the burglars coming in ...e in Mr. School's room, with ... closed, when, thinking that all ... in the house, she departed, ...em in possession. Half an hour ... departure the thieves were ...ave.

... the men is described as a tall ...an of dark complexion, slender ... clean shaven, dressed in dark ... The other is described as a ...ter man of about 150 pounds in ...ight complexion, also clean ...nd dressed in a brown suit. ... is attached to a stranger who ...or a room at this house five or ... previous to the robbery. He ...hout baggage and succeeded in ...e entire house and getting a ... idea of its arrangement. The ... was effected by cutting a hole ...he glass in the front door large ...to permit the introduction of ...r's hand. By this means he ...d the latch and unlocked the ...

...e Vaudeville Theaters

Marquam.

...LMAN E. ADAMS, of the Port... Police Department, went to the ... show at the Marquam Grand ...last night equipped with a pat... ...raight jacket. It was the one ... Sheriff Stevens at the County ...l officer Adams and several ...fficers intended calling the bluff ...at he can slip any device ever ... The big audience was at a ...h of excitement when the well... officer strapped the jacket on ... lacing and locking it so tight ... could hardly breath.

... time it appeared as if Harden ... against a losing game. Officer ...sisted that he work on the open ... When Harden asked for a chair, ...fused him. For ten minutes he ... and twisted, tugged and pulled, ...ompanions and tied himself in ...ock by lock, buckle by buckle ...e fell away, and in the end ...t sent it aside and stood free.

George Barnes and Irene West in grotesque dancing are good, but they ought to keep still for their jokes were written by the well-known humorist, Noah, back in ark days. Jean Wilson sings a new illustrated song with his usual charm and the biograph has a lively comedy dealing with the adventures of a bridal couple.

Grand.

THE show this week runs largely to acrobats, as the two acts of this nature prove to be the features of the programme. The one which attracts the greatest attention, largely because of its novelty and the unexpected surprise at its close, is that presented by Potter and Hartwell. They term their stunt "The Man With Two Heads," and that describes it as well as any other perhaps. There is no use trying to describe it except to say that the performance is at all times skillful and occasionally excruciatingly funny.

The other big number on the bill is supplied by the Seven Samoys a troupe of April acrobats whose pyramid work is exceptionally good. Fred G. Bauer, the illustrated balladist, sings the popular song "As Long as the World Rolls On" in good voice. Marks, Hart and Lamarr present a decidedly amusing comedy skit of New England life called "Uncle's Visit." The majority of the audience took to it greedily and showed the performers to the echo. Harry Holman, billed as a blackface comedian in an act called "The Man in Red," failed to appear, or else altered his act at the eleventh hour and gave a "straight" monologue. The blackface act would probably be a considerable improvement. Lawrence and Harrington contributed a tough boy and girl act which seemed to be quite satisfactory to most of those present.

The moving pictures representing a trip through the infernal regions and to the bottom of the sea were interesting and very well received. While the entire bill is not the best that the Grand has offered in recent weeks, it is in the main quite creditable and shows a desire on the part of the management to provide the patrons of the Grand with the best goods in the entertainment line that can be secured. There will be the usual daily matinee and night performances during the entire week.

BANQUET OF COUNTY BAR

ASSOCIATION DINES AT THE COMMERCIAL CLUB.

Judge Williams and Others Speak at Dinner Attended by 80 Members and Guests.

Judge Williams requested that he be not called upon to address the Multnomah County Bar Association last night, but when the regular programme was ended there was such an insistent call for him that he rose and spoke in vigorous style against the proposed legislation in Congress to take away the power of issuing injunctions by courts of equity.

"I am," said Judge Williams, "as you all are aware, an admirer and supporter of the present administration at Washington. I cannot, however, agree with the President when he advocates taking away from the courts one of the functions imposed upon them by law. I deplore the tendency of the times to destroy the confidence the people have in our courts. What are we to do? Shall the courts of the land be conducted under the dictation of the rabble? Are Samuel Gompers and his followers to dictate what judges may and may not do?"

The occasion was the monthly meeting of the Bar Association at the Commercial Club and was preceded by a banquet. Judge Lionel R. Webster acted as toastmaster and the responses were made by Judge Thomas A. McBride on "Legal Reminiscences, Pious Reflections and Pointless Parables"; Judge Thomas O'Day, "The Judiciary"; Judge E. C. Bronaugh, "The Lawyer's Silent Partner"; Robert G. Morrow, "The Syllabi"; Assistant City Attorney Tomlinson (for Judge Cameron), "Observations from the Police Court." John Manning was also on the programme, but was unable to be present. The subject assigned him was "Criminal Practice."

Tracy Becker, of New York, and Judge Pipes were called upon and responded briefly. The meeting was the first to be held under a departure from the usual order and is to be followed with others of like nature, in an effort to have the bar take renewed interest in the association.

The meeting was held in the small banquet-room adjoining the club office and was attended by about 80 members and guests.

Last Honors to Francois Coppee.

PARIS, May 26. – At the funeral today of the late Francois Coppee, all classes

TOO LARGE AN ARMY NOW

EMMA GOLDMAN TALKS ON "PATRIOTISM."

Arraigns General Funston and Army Officials for Court-Martialing Man Who Shakes Her Hand.

The spacious hall in the Merrill building was fairly well filled last night by a crowd of curious ones who assembled to hear Emma Goldman deliver her widely heralded address on "Patriotism." Many who expected a fierce tirade against the Government were only partially satisfied for the remarks of the high priestess of anarchy were quite moderate.

In the course of her address she took occasion to berate the United States Army and the Government officials roundly for having tried and sentenced an enlisted man at San Francisco to five years in a military prison for having, as she termed it, "merely shaken hands with me" at the conclusion of one of her lectures at San Francisco. According to Miss Goldman, the United States Government is to be compared with the tyranny of Russia in this instance. "The citizens of this United States of America can no longer point the finger of shame at Russia, Germany and other European governments propped up by aggressive militarism," said the woman advocate of anarchism.

Continuing along this line Miss Goldman said: "This man, mind you, an enlisted man in the service of the United States Army, and who had put in 15 years of his life in the service, was condemned by court martial to serve five years for having shaken hands with me after one of my lectures. He did not state that he believed in the doctrines I advocate, but merely did as many of you here in Portland have done: congratulated me on presenting my line of argument in favor of the doctrine of anarchism. Yet for this act he was sentenced to serve five years in prison. General Funston has commuted this to three years, and no doubt General Funston is a good, upright, honest American citizen. He probably goes to church every Sunday, and while there studies out new plans for killing people on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. I tell you, brothers and sisters, we have too much militarism in this country today and the time is coming when the cry for a standing army will be overwhelmingly rejected. We have too large an Army and Navy now, and do not want any more soldiers for the Government to repeat the scenes enacted under General Bell and his troops in Colorado."

During her remarks Miss Goldman was frequently interrupted by applause, which came principally from a few of her fellow anarchists scattered throughout the audience. In conclusion she stated that patriotism was a mistaken idea as prevalent in this country today and that anarchism taught the only genuine style of patriotism extant.

Tonight Miss Goldman will deliver her farewell address in this city at Allisky Hall.

ONE CONCERT TO WAGNER

Venture of Damrosch Programme Meets With Approval.

The announcement that Walter Damrosch and his incomparable New York Symphony Orchestra will give one programme devoted exclusively to the works of Wagner has aroused a tremendous amount of interest and enthusiasm here. The three concerts to be given next Wednesday and Thursday, afternoon and evening, at the Armory, are the musical and social events of the week. The Wagner programme, to be rendered Thursday evening, was given in San Francisco to an enormous crowd, where the papers referred to it as "the perfection of orchestra work," and said, too, "The Wagner programme delights hearers."

Last night the orchestra opened its Northwest tour in Seattle at the Moore Theater, and every one of the 2200 seats was taken, while standing room was at a premium. There was a magnificent house, socially regarded, for [illegible] of the first officers were entertained by the City of Seattle, and all of the boxes were taken by prominent society people who were entertaining their friends among the officers. The coming concerts here will draw enormous crowds, the out-of-town demand being the heaviest ever known. The three concerts here are under the direction of Lois Steers-Wynn Coman, and the seat sale opens Thursday morning at 10 o'clock.

FRINGE TREE IN BLOOM

Rare Foliage and Flowers to Be Seen

THE DISTRICT ATTORNEY

JOHN MANNING INDORSED BY THE PORTLAND MUNICIPAL ASSOCIATION.

District Attorney John Manning has been indorsed by the Portland Municipal Association. This action, upon the part of an organization having for its purpose the improvement of the public morals, was taken in recognition of Mr. Manning's stand for civic reform. These specific acts which he has done, and which have resulted in making Portland a better city in which to live, are familiar to the voters of this county. It is generally admitted that the laws have never been more uniformly enforced, the innocent more securely protected, and the guilty more surely punished than during Mr. Manning's incumbency of the District Attorney's office.

The people know where Mr. Manning stands, and now is the time for the people to sustain a public servant who has made good.

at it from the sidewalk on Fourteenth street. The bloom endures less than a fortnight and will likely be at its full by next Sunday.

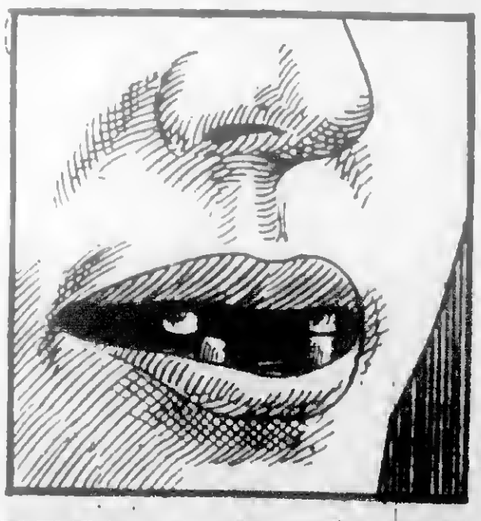
CLOTHING SALE.

All our brand new, highest-grade men's clothing a few days only:

$35.00 suits $23.75
$30.00 suits $20.00
$27.50 suits $19.75
$25.00 suits $18.75

Blacks and blues, too. Hewett, Bradley & Co., 344 Washington.

WHERE TO DINE.



All the delicacies of the season at the Portland Restaurant; fine private apartments for ladies, 305 Wash., near 5th.

Hall's new restaurant, 330 Washington street, now open for business.

TONSETH FLORAL COMPANY

123 6th st. Flowers and plants. Phones Main 5102; A 1102.

The family wealth in Dutch Guiana is put into jewelry, which the wife wears.

TEETH WITH OR WITHOUT PLATES

OUT-OF-TOWN PEOPLE

We can do your entire Crown, Bridge and Plate Work in a day if necessary. Positively Painless Extracting Free when plates or bridges are ordered. Sensitive teeth and roots removed without the least pain. Ten chairs. Only the most scientific and careful work.

20 YEARS IN PORTLAND.

W. A. WISE AND ASSOCIATES
Painless Dentists.
Failing Bldg.,
Third and Washington Streets.
8 A. M. to 8 P. M.; Sundays, 9 to 12.
Painless Extraction, 50c; Plates, $5.00.
Both Phones, A and Main 2029.

Slightly Used, High Grade

THIS WE...

In...

In our wind... pieces chose... tables in th... a solid carl... needed busi... for they are... and mahog... extraordina...

J. G...

... the ch...

BUT W...

the largest s...

No dead wei...

No delays.

No trouble.

Railroad wrecks

They are...

The Por...
Store No. 1...
Store No. 2...
Store No. 3...

544

840514034

The Emma Goldman Papers

En Route / Emma Goldman. – pp. 189-190 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 3, no. 4 (June, 1908).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

thing like a unified movement based on logical necessity is not in evidence in Denver.

Here and there are individuals who, freed from all superstitions and illogical mental processes, have worked out a clear and sane Anarchistic philosophy. They are well-read and mentally able men and women. It is to these individuals, then, that the radical new-comer would naturally turn for support and co-operation in forming a "movement." Here again he is doomed to disappointment. What are these individuals doing? Nothing, practically nothing!

Whenever the subject of arranging meetings for an Anarchist lecturer is broached to them, whenever it is suggested to form classes in economies, or to establish a club for scientific study, the would-be organizer is met with indifference and discouragement. These individuals are either too lazy or too cowardly, or too small and short-sighted to exert themselves to arouse an interest in a movement for social and economie freedom.

There is more or less activity among the Jewish Radicals on the West Side of Denver. They can usually be relied upon to lend moral and financial support when called upon. But it is of the American Radicals I write. And it is because I believe the Colorado English-speaking Anarchist is typical of the American Radical everywhere that I cite him as illustrative of indifference and supreme and narrow egotism.

If such is the case, then what is the Radical worker to do? First of all he must attempt to grasp the viewpoint of the American mind. He must study the ideals, the motives and desires of the so-called "native" American. It is useless to try to change the American attitude toward life and values, however much one may deplore it as narrow, hypocritical, and egotistical. It is folly to try to instill humanitarian impulses into the American. He is essentially egoistic. Whatever he does or believes, his actions and beliefs are always the result of mathematical calculation and personal gain. "Is it worth the price?" is the question ever uppermost in his mind. He always counts the cost.

All this is in strange and pitiable contrast to the Russian temperament. And yet, I repeat, it is worse than useless to try to Russianize the American mind.

If there is to be an American movement for social freedom it will have to express itself along the lines of the American temperament and genius. And if such a movement is incongruous and impossible, then, with a few lone exceptions, the work for freedom will be carried on by those who come to these shores in search of liberty and, not content nor silenced with loud protestations and empty words, demand their inheritance as free-born souls—the reality of freedom and justice.

* * *

EN ROUTE

MOTHER EARTH will contain this month such a variety of interesting reports and material anent my work on the Coast, that I shall merely add but a few words.

The gods themselves seem to have favored my tour. Never in all my previous experience have so many things of interest occurred as during this trip.

The brutality of the Chicago authorities, followed by the stupidity of their San Francisco colleagues, helped to advertise my meetings everywhere.

In Portland it was the Y. M. C. A. and a German society, "The Arion," who, in withdrawing their halls less Anarchism uncover the soiled spots of their "white purity," brought out large audiences six nights in succession. And now comes the brutal sentence of the soldier William Buwalda to five years' imprisonment, for which, by the way, Emma Goldman is responsible. At least that's what General Funston says. The General will have to be more original if he wants people to listen to him. The yarn that Emma Goldman is responsible for every violent act during the last fifty years, even before she was born, and for all others that might happen in the next hundred years, is getting stale and monotonous. Besides, General Funston—as a "Christian" and military man—does not believe in violence; of course not. Yet he coldly and deliberately robbed a man of his liberty, almost of his very life, because he dared to attend a public meeting in uniform. Such is the logic and humanity of those who practice legalized violence.

Yes, Portland proved unusually valuable, partly thanks to

545

840514034

The Emma Goldman Papers

En Route / Emma Goldman. — pp. 189-190 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. — Vol. 3, no. 4 (June, 1908).

Obtained from the University of Califomia, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

the stupidityy of the Y. M. C. A. and the "Arion," but particularly because of the great and generous efforts of Mr. E. C. S. Wood, the most liberal and unique figure on the Coast. The most gratifying feature at the Portland meetings, however, was the great mixture of humanity that thronged the halls: workingmen, tramps, hoboes, lawyers, judges, doctors, men of letters, women of society, teachers, students,—in short, everybody. At the meeting on May 25th a movement was started in behalf of William Buwalda to arouse public indignation against his barbaric and tyrannical sentence; also a fund to help him in every way. The sympathy of the meeting was wired to William Buwalda. We know, of course, that the military authorities at the Federal prison will not deliver the message, but we want all liberal and radical elements of America to know that the outrage perpetrated upon that soldier in Alcatraz prison will not go by unprotested. I shall, of course, continue to raise my voice in his behalf, and I hope the readers of MOTHER EARTH will make their indignation known and felt publicly. Those wishing to contribute their mite to the fund can forward the money either to Mr. E. C. S. Wood, Chamber of Commerce Building, Portland, Oregon, or to MOTHER EARTH.

I shall soon have finished my tour, naturally very tired and fatigued after four months' active work; but never more convinced of the growing interest in Anarchism and the sympathy with those who are engaged in the dissemination of the truth, as to what Anarchism really stands for.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

Spokane, Wash., May, 1908.

* * *

LOS ANGELES

(Report.)

EMMA GOLDMAN was in Los Angeles from April 28th to May 9th. In that time she delivered seven lectures and held a debate with a representative of the Socialist Party. She also gave two lectures in Pasadena. The local press did not go greatly out of its way to herald her arrival, only one evening paper having any extended notice, and, with the exception of reports of the first lecture in two morning papers, no criticisms of the various addresses were given. As both the reports mentioned were so worded as distinctly to belittle the lecturer's ability, it cannot be said that the success achieved owed anything to the influence of the press.

It is painful to be obliged to chronicle in this connection that Common Sense, the weekly organ of the Socialist Party, declined to accept a paid advertisement of the meetings. This was the course pursued by the Times last year, and Common Sense then could find nothing too bad to say of the policy that, in its turn, it pursued this year. What was it that Emerson said about politics being derived from "policy, a trick"?

It may be noted further that the Examiner, Hearst's organ and always, according to its own protestations, the fearless champion of the workingman, accepted the money for an advertisement, but subsequently returned it. This sheet was the only morning daily to pass the meetings over in entire silence.

If no aid came from the press, opposition of the most serious character was experienced in another direction. Almost to the last moment it was regarded as assured that the gentleman who makes a specialty of staging the leading public speakers who visit this city from time to time on lecturing tours, would handle the entire matter, advertising extensively and securing the best hall, which will seat some two thousand. When it came to the pinch, however, he found himself face to face with a hall boycott and dropped the matter. The amateur committee that took the problem up immediately discovered that only two halls were to be had, each seating only about 350, and one of them greatly out of the way.

Despite these really immense difficulties $440 was taken in at the doors, and literature was sold at the meetings to the extent of $104. Those in sympathy with Anarchism find much encouragement in this, believing that such results, obtained without the aid of sensational puffing and in the face of obstacles that appeared for the moment to be almost insuperable, testify to a genuine interest in the movement.

It should be added that the police acted with a discretion that, apparently, has not been shown elsewhere.

546

The Emma Goldman Papers

890322029

[Excerpt from Lecture] Emma Goldman in Oregon / Emma Goldman. — pp. 295-296 ; 26 cm. In The Public [Chicago]. — Vol. 11, no. 534 (June 26, 1908).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE

EMMA GOLDMAN IN OREGON.

Portland, Oregon, June 14.—Emma Goldman has come, given five lectures, and gone; and we are all laughing at the comedy you Chicago people played for Emma's benefit, and we shoot the lip at your big chief of police.

A small blue-eyed woman, and five interesting lectures. Oh, not nearly so violent as Thomas Carlyle, Bernard Shaw or Wendell Phillips. What's the matter with you people? Are you suppressing free speech just from pure tyrnnny because you don't agree with the thinker, or are you an advertising bureau for Emma?

She tells me she has been dragged off the platform in Chicago nnd New York before she uttered a word. Nice home of the free and land of the brave, this is!

Some of our hysterieni people wnnted her suppressed here. That's a catching disease—suppresaion. The wretch, whose grnndfather wns suppressed by jail or scaffold in Freedom's cause, no sooner gets frcedom for his own ism or ology, hut he immediately wishes to suppress all other isms and ologies. Mayor Lane of Portland told the hysterical ones that a document called the Constitution of Oregon, expressly reserved the right of the people to alter or abolish the govcrnment, and gave to every person the right to freely apeak on any question whatever, subject only to a legal responsihility for the abuse of that right. And Chief of Police Entzmscher said that whenever she violated the law he would arrest her, as he would any one; and meanwhile she had the same right as every other American to utter her ideas. Rcv. Mr. Eliot, the Unitarian minister, offered his church as a home for free speech. But this was not necessary. No diffieulty was found in getting a hall, and Miss Goldman gave five lectures about as turbulent as prayer meetings, or a Chautauqua lecture.

They were attended hy men and women of the dianer hueket, and men and women of the idle rich. Many came from mere curiosity, hut most were thoughtful people, interested to know what Anarchism reaily is. And I am ashamed to say, many were surprised to learn that it is Christian Brotherhood of Mankind—not bomh-throwing. Help for the disinherited and oppressed, not murder of rulers.

True, rulers were considered as useless and oppressive, and forcible government supporting special priviiege was eonsidered a last aurvival of despotic institutions; but the remedy proposed was hy thought and evolution, not hy murder.

Emma Goldman said in a tired, weary way, that she supposed many who came from curiosity, having got their knowledge of her from the newspapers, would be disappointed. "But," she went on, "I have never advocated violence in my life. Anarchism expressly condemns force against peaceahle men. And besides, violence as tactics would he folly. It only entrenches more firmly the ones assailed. Individual force against individual officials is worse than useless. It is not the official who is to hlame; it is the institution; and the only way to deatroy the institution is to make it ohnoxious to the human mind. An act of violence obscures the whole issue; creates sympathy for the one attacked, fear for the peace of aociety, nnd discredits the sanity of the cause."

"Of course," she explained; "poor, excited, unhalaneed individuals do hrood over the wrongs done in the name of government, and rush off to kill. They nre insane; they have my pity. But auch insane people are found among Republicans, as Guiteau; or Democrats, as Booth; or among religious denominations. It is only your ignorance, and the ignorance, or worse, of your newspapers, which makes you helieve that I ever did advocate violence." "I nm afraid," she aaid, in the same weary wny, "if you have come to be excited hy sensational utterances you will he disappointed."

One of her lectures was on the "Revolutionary Spirit of the Modern Drama," dealing in n very aympathetie and inteliectual manner with Ibsen, Hauptmann, Shaw nnd Suderman, hut especially Ibsen. As I witnessed these quiet meetings to discuss high thoughts, I felt how ridiculous the city would have made itself in sending in police, or ahadowing this woman with detectives. You might as well send police to the meetings of the trustees of the Chicago University.

I admit the wisdom of police supervision over n politieni eonvention, or n meeting of the legisiature; hut Emma Goldman! Pshaw! You Chicagoans are making apectacles of yourselves. By the way, by what right do your police prohibit speech before it is uttered?

I notice that The Puhlic has commented on the Buwaida case (p. 220)—the man who, after fifteen years' honorahle service, was court martialed for attending in San Francisco these identical lectures given here in Portland. And for applauding during the lectures, and for shaking hands with Emma Goldmnn afterward, he was sentenced to dishonorable discharge and five years at hard lahor in Alcatrnz prison. (Commuted to three years hy Generai Funston.) Think of it! and this "the land of the free!" Five years' hard iahor and a dishonorahle discharge, after fifteen years' service, for hearing Raiph Waldo Emerson or Ahraham Lincoln! For hearing a woman simply plead for more freedom, iess special priviiege, more humanity, iess exploiting of the masses; for more universai brotherhood and iess of hiind patriotism and glory, so-called, which leads men to destroy other men! Think of Buwalda heing imprisoned for hearing the doctrines of Christ made practical and modern!

It is a shame and a disgrace to American manhood and American intelligence. Nothing hefore that Republican convention in Chicago was as important as thia case of this ohscure soidier, for it is the eternal cause of immortal liherty.

It does not appear that there was any evidence before the court to ahow what Emma Goldman aaid, and what Buwalda applauded. He is court martialed for going to henr Emma Goldman. He is court martialed and convicted on the testimony of two spies—hired detectives. It would he an educational aet if the membors of the court martiai could he compelled to go and hear just what Emma Goldman says in those lecturea. It might at least give them some

890322029

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Emma Goldman in Oregon / Emma Goldman. — pp. 295-296 ; 26 cm. In The Public [Chicago]. — Vol. 11, no. 534 (June 26, 1908).
Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

idsas beyond sword belts and Russian militarism! If the Grand Army of the Republic, which fought for human freedom, lets this man suffer in prison, I shall believe the times have changed, and the spirit of liberty is dead.

I suggest that those desiring to do so write to their Congressmen. If we are all selfish cowards and sunk in the mire of gold, with no thought but comfort, let us know it.

C. E. S. WOOD.

NEWS NARRATIVE

To use the reference figures of this Department for obtaining continuous news narratives:

Observe the reference figures in any article; turn back to the page they indicate and find there the next preceding article on the same subject; observe the reference figures in that article, and turn back as before; continue until you come to the earliest article on the subject; then retrace your course through the indicated pages, reading each article in chronological order, and you will have a continuous news narrative of the subject from its historical beginnings to date.

Week ending Tuesday, June 23, 1908.

The Republican Convention.

Following the address of Senator Burrows as temporary chairman of the Republican convention at Chicago on the 16th (p. 274), the convention adjourned for the day. On the 17th, after a session of fifteen hours, the committee on credentials reported that the delegates placed on the temporary roll by the national committee were the delegates entitled to seats, and recommended that the temporary roll call be the permanent roll call. The report was adopted without debate. Senator Lodge of Massachusetts was then elected permanent chairman. After speaking half an hour he evoked a long continued expression of enthusiasm with his climax to the following tribute to President Roosevelt:

For his performance of his sworn duty he has been bitterly attacked. It was to be expected. Vested abuses and profitable wrongs cry out loudly when their entrenchments are carried, and some one is sure to be hurt when the bayonets of the law are pushed home. In the great American electorate money has few votes, but it can command many voices and cause many birds to sing. The result is that the President is the best abused and the most popular man in the United States to-day.

The applause lasted 47 minutes.

✣

Meanwhile the committee on resolutions had been in a turmoil over the platform since the assembling of the convention. Mr. Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, had appeared before the appropriate subcommittee with a request for the adoption of the following plank in the platform:

The Republican party is in accord with the great emancipator, Abraham Lincoln, when he declared that "labor is prior to and independent of capital. Capital is only the fruit of labor and never could have existed if labor had not first existed. Labor is the superior of capital and deserves much more consideration." Through his wise and humane policy the shackles were stricken from the limbs of 4,000,000 chattel slaves. The Republican party has been the stanch defender of property and property rights, yet holds and declares that personal rights and human liberty are and must of necessity be entitled to the first and highest consideration. Recognizing the new conditions arising from our marvelous industrial development, our people and our nation realize the fact that the wheels of industry and commerce of our time require that new law and new concepts of law must be enacted to conform to modern industry and commerce and advance freedom in line therewith. We therefore pledge the Republican party to the enactment of a law by Congress guaranteeing to the wage earners, agriculturists and horticulturists of our country the right of organized effort to the end that such associations or their members shall not be regarded as illegal combinations in restraint of trade. We pledge ourselves to the enactment of a law to prohibit the issuance of injunctions in cases arising out of labor disputes, when such injunctions would not apply when no labor disputes existed; and, that in no case shall an injunction be issued when there exists a remedy by the ordinary process of law, and which act shall provide that in the procedure for the punishment of contempt of court, the party cited for contempt shall when such contempt was not committed in the actual presence of the court be entitled to a trial by jury. We pledge the Republican party to the enactment of an amendment extending the existing eight-hour law to all government employes, and to all workers, whether employed by contractors or subcontractors doing work for or on behalf of the Federal government. We pledge the Republican party to the enactment of a law by Congress as far as the Federal jurisdiction extends, for a general employers' liability act, for injury to body or loss of life of employes. We pledge the Republican party to the enactment of a law to the extent of Federal jurisdiction granting women's suffrage and to submit a Constitutional amendment for ratification to the States for the absolute suffrage of women, co-equal with men. We pledge the Republican party to the enactment of a law creating a department of labor, separate from any existing department, with a secretary at its head having a seat in the President's cabinet. We pledge the Republican party to the enactment of a law for the creation of a Federal bureau of mines and mining, preferably under the proposed department of labor, and the appropriation of sufficient funds to thoroughly investigate the cause of mine disasters, so that laws and regulations may be recommended and enacted which will prevent the terrible maiming and loss of life in the mines. We pledge the Republican party to the enactment of a law for the establishment of United States government postal savings banks.

In behalf of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Firemen and Trainmen, Mr. H. R. Fuller asked the adoption of the following plank on the same subject:

We pledge ourselves to such legislation as will 840514036

The Emma Goldman Papers
Defying the Gods / Emma Goldman. — pp. 223-226 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. — Vol. 3, no. 5 (July, 1908).
Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

The court officers began hustling us out; but presently we were recalled. Mr. Wessel, attorney for Weinberg, was asking that the police return Mr. Weinberg's watch and letters which had been kept ever since the arrest. The Judge was endeavoring to be witty. "What!" said he to the police officer, "is there any law in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania which says that because a man makes a fool of himself, the police should therefore take away his watch?" All the sycophants laughed. Personally, I think it was a gratuitous insult, since the Judge had no evidence whatever to suppose Weinberg had "made a fool of himself," and had just been saying he had not. Mr. Wessel arose with a smile, "But, your Honor, what we want now is the watch!"

"O give the man his watch," protested the Judge.

"And the letters."

More talk about the letters, and then the Judge, forgetting his former two-edged cut at the police and at Weinberg, remarked with judicial dignity, "When a man is put under arrest, he is searched, and his property taken charge of for his own protection!" . . .

And so, "for his own protection," the police had been holding Weinberg's watch for four months, while he was out on bail! This is the limit.

I wish to thank all contributors to our defense, and to say that we have still work to do. Four men are in prison, under most rigorous and unjust sentences. We wish to do what can be done towards freeing these men or supporting their families till they are free.

Those who wish to assist in the work may communicate with Joseph Cohen, 859 N. 7th St., Philadelphia.

VOLTAIRINE DE CLEYRE.

* * *

THE man of virtuous soul commands not, nor obeys.
Power, like a desolating pestilence,
Pollutes whate'er it touches; and obedience,
Bane of all genius, virtue, freedom, truth,
Makes slaves of men and, of the human frame,
A mechanized automaton.

Shelley.

DEFYING THE GODS

By EMMA GOLDMAN.

THAT the Lord is a spiteful old gentleman everybody knows. He is never more content than when he can make his children feel his Almighty power. As to the unfortunate ones born of Lucifer,—such as the Anarchists, for instance,—no punishment is ever adequate to their crime. To deal with them God has created a special tribe, the uniformed species of man. Not that these latter are particularly in love with their Maker, nor do they bother much about his commands. But in their superstitious fear of his Satanic Majesty they are ever anxious to obey the divine rival in a true Christian spirit.

Of late, however, these faithfuls have made themselves too ridiculous to suit even the Lord himself. Disgusted with the conditions below, he determined to call a council to devise the best ways and means of freeing the heavenly State from that most stubborn and unyielding disease, Anarchism.

One of the chief advisers suggested more stringent regulations in watching the portals of the Sacred Shrine. But that had already been tried and found wanting. Anarchists were known to be a gay lot, who never applied for admission to that dull and monotonous place, except as a last resort.

"Deport them," suggested another counsellor, Mr. Oscar Straus, one of the Lord's own chosen people. The suggestion threw the Almighty into a fearful spasm. "Deport them!" he thundered, "shall I begin with my own Son, then? That would prove the scandal of the ages. It's well enough for a father to kill his child, but deport him,—never!"

He that seeeth and knoweth all, however, would not be discouraged by the imbecile advice of the heavenly ministers. "True, Anarchism cannot be destroyed," mused the Divine Father, "it has withstood all forms of persecution. Some Anarchists cannot even be damned; there is that devilish E. G. What have my uniformed angels not done to her; still, here she is, as irrepressible as ever. She has now visited twenty-seven cities and blasphemed me and my sacred institutions ninety times. If she could only be disposed of!"

549

840514036

The Emma Goldman Papers

Defying the Gods / Emma Goldman. – pp. 223-226 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. –Vol. 3, no. 5 (July, 1908).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

At last a divine, a heavenly thought: "A flood, a kingdom for a flood!" Casting about, his all-seeing eye beheld that insignificant speck of his domain, the United States, finally resting upon the snow peaks of the Montana mountains. He had once turned their hearts into ice when he had permitted his image to rob the hills and forests of their native sons. He now sent a huge ball of fire to bathe the white caps in a flood of light, and when the mountains beheld the glittering gold it seemed to them the reflex of their own treasures that greed had taken from their bowels and transmuted into tears. It made them weep—but not the subdued, quiet, cowardly tears of the slave; theirs were rebellious tears: wild, passionate tears of anger, rushing in torrents and floods down the white, pale cheeks, tearing and devastating everything in their path. And what the police failed to accomplish, the gods succeeded.

* * *

June first I left for Butte after two very successful meetings at Spokane. On the second of the month I was but seventy-five miles from Butte, only to find that hundreds of miles of railroad track and numerous bridges had been washed away, and that there was no possibility of going on or turning back west, unless one wished to tempt Providence. However, the true rebel is he who defies even the elements. To make these seventy-five miles I travelled twenty-three hundred, on foot, over mountains and canyons, forging on horseback and team creeks six and seven feet deep, by steamer and rail. It was a trip most interesting and difficult, and not without danger. It took two weeks and involved an additional expense of a hundred and seventy-five dollars, but it landed me in Butte and made the Lord ashamed of himself.

Like many other cities that I had visited, Butte promised many interesting features. Rev. L. J. Duncan, a Unitarian minister of broad and revolutionary mind and sweet spirit, tendered me an invitation to speak in his church, which advertised my coming and brought the wrath of the stupid and ignorant upon Mr. Duncan's head. Had I been able to fill my dates at the moment, Butte would have proved most successful. But I arrived two weeks later. Meanwhile the press was silenced by the Amalgamated: John D. Rockefeller, Morgan, and Clark, the sole owners of everything in that city, including the souls of the people. The mistress of capitalism that thrives on the advertising of gambling resorts, brothels, and mining swindles could not consistently accept such a disreputable ad as the announcement of Emma Goldman's lecture. But in spite of the conspiracy of silence I addressed nine meetings and disposed of a large quantity of literature.

In our next issue I shall bring my impressions of the occurrences and people I met on the tour, and I shall devote considerable space to Butte. So I will say no more about the latter now, except to quote a friend's clever characterization: "Butte is built on a bluff."

Helena, Montana, may not be built on one, but it is one. It is about the snuggest, most self-contented, bigoted, and mentally decrepit little town I have ever visited. I addressed two meetings there and was scheduled for a debate with Mrs. Ida Crouch-Hazlitt, editor of the Montana News. But thanks to the malicious stupidity of the City Council the debate did not take place. This body of old fossils hurriedly called a meeting to decree that I should not speak on Anarchism. Yet that very hour, within a stone's throw of the City Hall, I was expounding to a large audience what Anarchism stands for.

Mrs. Hazlitt, one of the few rebellious and broad-minded Socialists, had secured the City Auditorium for the meeting; but when it became known that she was to debate with me, the hall was refused and the deposit returned. However, my Socialist friend was not to be so easily suppressed. Finding the doors of the Auditorium closed, she addressed the assembled mass in front of the hall, handling the City Hayseeds in the most unceremonious manner. Mrs. Hazlitt deserves particular credit for calling the attention of the people to the gross misrepresentation of Anarchism and of myself. It is to be hoped that her spirit of fair play will not be punished by excommunication from the party, as happened in the case of C. Riddle.

Helena completed the most eventful and successful tour of my public career. Everything seemed to conspire to make it so: police malice, newspaper stupidity, and persecution. A great deal of credit, however, for

550

840514036

The Emma Goldman Papers

Defying the Gods / Emma Goldman. – pp. 223-226 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 3, no. 5 (July, 1908).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

my success is due to the untiring efforts of a comrade well-known to the readers of MOTHER EARTH, Alexander Horr. He acted as my advance agent, tramping from city to city, often at the risk of limb and life. Indeed, I know of no one as absolutely oblivious of his own needs and eager to aid the propaganda.

I cannot close this report without expressing my appreciation of the hospitality and kindness extended to me by all the comrades along the route.

* * *

Here I am again, then, at home—with MOTHER EARTH, the child of my heart's desire. Many friends will wonder why the magazine must appear in such scanty attire. It is simply because very little, almost no support is given to the magazine outside of my tour. Even our renewals have been much on the decline, possibly because of the hard times. The expenses of the publication are very considerable, and the magazine requires the undivided time of two persons, especially during my absence. And while they neither ride about in motor cars nor dine at St. Regis', they can not live on air. (There is not enough to go around even of that in New York, particularly in the summer.)

I had hoped to return with a sum sufficient to keep the magazine out of debt during the summer. But the Montana experience swallowed up a great deal more than the receipts in that State.* And so we shall have the usual summer complaint of all radical publications. Yet I am not at all discouraged. On the contrary, I am more hopeful for MOTHER EARTH than ever. I would only request our readers, who for some reason have not yet renewed their subscription, to do so at once; that is really the least any one of you can do if the magazine is to continue.

And now to work and preparation for the coming winter.

* See Sustaining Fund.

THE EIGHT-HOUR MOVEMENT IN FRANCE

A. BRUCKERE, in La Guerre Sociale.

SUFFICIENT time has now elapsed to enable one to form a correct opinion as to the merits of the great working class movement for an eight-hour day, inaugurated May 1st, 1906.

When the Syndicalist Congress at Bourges, having defeated the Reformists, became imbued with the spirit of its revolutionary elements, it decided on a general movement for an eight-hour day—an audacious decision which provoked a tempest of criticism.

"Vain folly," groaned Keufer,* "How much greater results would one obtain by the co-operation of classes, by the mixed committees of workers and masters."

"Anarchy!" cried Guesde,† gnashing his teeth. "To what purpose are these efforts, when it would be sufficient to use the ballot in order to obtain not only the eight-hour day, but also the rest, the total victory."

Who was right?

The agitation for an eight-hour day proved a great object lesson both in perseverance and in Socialism.

The workingman, suffering from his hereditary disease, slow starvation, has always lacked tenacity of effort. But systematic propaganda during eighteen months (September, 1904—May, 1906) imbued the producer with that great virtue—perseverance. The working class gradually became accustomed to long campaigns, concerted plans, and determined action. The results were highly beneficial to the workingmen. They learned to understand that their emancipation could proceed only from their own personal efforts, and that they could not rely on any exterior aid nor on the beneficence of the State.

The eight-hour agitation was also an object lesson in Socialism.

During eighteen months it was the class-war—the true class-war—far better than any electoral campaign. The working class took cognizance of itself. Twenty years of preaching of an abstract doctrine could leave hardly

* Leader of the Conservative Unionists, or Reformists.
† Leader of the orthodox Marxists.

551

The Emma Goldman Papers
890118001
"What I Believe," by Emma Goldman / Emma Goldman.– p. 3M ; 28 cm. In The World. –(July 19, 1908).
Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

"WHAT I BELIEVE"---By EMMA GOLDMAN

The Leader of the Anarchists, One of the Most Talked of Women in the World, Declares that She Has Been Persistently Misrepresented, and Writes of Her Creed, Caustically Arraigning Existing Social Conditions---"I Do Not Believe that Acts of Violence Can Bring About the Social Reconstruction"---"As a Promoter of Individual Liberty Government Stands Condemned"---"Ninety Per Cent. of All Crimes Are Property Crimes, Which Have Their Root in Our Economic Iniquities"---"Anarchists Are the Only True Advocates of Peace"---"Marriage and Love Are Not Synonymous."

Emma Goldman, the recognized leader of Anarchists in this country and one of the most talked of women in the world, who herself says that her name is used to frighten children and that she has been persistently misrepresented, here makes her own statement of her creed. Her creed will both shock and astonish, for her document is as remarkable for what the writer says she does not believe as for what it says she does believe. It will afford to readers of the Sunday World an opportunity for the first time to estimate the radical beliefs of this singular woman and of the scattered and rebellious social elements which she represents.

By Emma Goldman.

"WHAT I believe" has many times been the target of hack writers. Such blood-curdling and incoherent stories have been circulated about me, it is no wonder that the average human being has palpitation of the heart at the very mention of the name Emma Goldman. It is too bad that we no longer live in the times when witches were burned at the stake or tortured to drive the evil spirit out of them. For, indeed, Emma Goldman is a witch! True, she does not eat little children, but she does many worse things. She manufactures bombs and gambles in crowned heads. B-r-r-r!

Such is the impression the public has of myself and my beliefs. It is therefore very much to the credit of The World that it gives its readers at least an opportunity to learn what my beliefs really are.

The student of the history of progressive thought is well aware that every idea in its early stages has been misrepresented and the adherents of such ideas have been maligned and persecuted. One need not go back two thousand years to the time when those who believed in the Christian Idea were thrown into the arena to be devoured by lions to realize how little [illegible] are understood. [illegible] written in the blood [illegible] who have dared to express [illegible] the [illegible] women's right to [illegible] modern times, the New [illegible] condemnation [illegible] exempt from a crown [illegible].

What I believe will be rather than a finality. It outlines my faith in and goals and governments [illegible] a human institution. While it [illegible] formulation of [illegible] statement on the subject, [illegible] life is some[illegible] for [illegible] has [illegible] out it is [illegible] much "meat" of [illegible] that is arrogant stupidity and [illegible] a writer.

Anarchism is not only a process, however, that manifests itself in the social economic, culminating [illegible] development, his physical well-being, his latent qualities and innate disposition alone must determine the character and conditions of his work. Similarly will one's physical and mental appreciations and his soul cravings decide how much he shall consume. To make this a reality will, I believe, be possible only in a society based on voluntary co-operation of productive groups, communities and societies loosely federated together, eventually developing into a free communism, actuated by a solidarity of interests. There can be no freedom in the large sense of the word, no harmonious development, so long as mercenary and commercial considerations play an important part in the determination of personal conduct.

II. As to Government.

I believe Government, organized authority or the State, is necessary only to maintain or protect property and monopoly. It has proven efficient in that function only. As a promoter of individual liberty, human well-being and social harmony, which alone constitute real order, government stands condemned by all the great men of the world.

I therefore believe, with my fellow-Anarchists, that the statutory regulations, legislative enactments, constitutional provisions are invasive. They never yet induced man to do anything he would and would not do by virtue of his intellect or temperament; nor prevented anything that man has intelled to do by the same [illegible]. Wiers's pictorial description of "The Man with the Hoe," Meunier's masterpieces of the miners that have aided in lifting labor from its degrading position, Ibsen's descriptions of the underworld, Ibsen's psychological analysis of human life could never have been induced by government any more than the spirit which impels a man to save a drowning child or a crippled woman from a burning building has ever been called into operation by statutory regulations or the policeman's club. I believe indeed I know that whatever is fine and beautiful in the human, expresses and asserts itself in spite of government, and not because of it.

The Anarchists are therefore justified in assuming that anarchism—the absence of government—will insure the widest and greatest scope for unhampered human development, the highest [illegible] from the latter's communication to the New York Evening Post of June 20, dealing with the case of Private William Berwalds, which caused such a stir all through the Northwest. "The first duty of an officer or enlisted man," says our noble warrior, "is unquestioning obedience and loyalty to the Government to which he has sworn allegiance. It makes no difference whether he approves of that Government or not."

How can we harmonize the principle of unquestioning obedience with the principle of "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness"? The deadly power of militarism has never before been so effectively demonstrated in this country as in the recent condemnation by court martial of William Buwalda of San Francisco. Captain Augustus P. Blocksom, the case's military prosecutor, was a man who had a record of fifteen years of continuous service. [illegible] action and conduct were unchallenged," we are told, "with the exception of [illegible] conviction of [illegible] Buwalda's sentence to three years' [illegible] for the manslaughter of a prisoner [illegible] the butt of the officer's club. I believe indeed I know that whatever is fine and beautiful in the human, expresses and asserts itself in spite of government, and not because of it.

The Anarchists are therefore justified in assuming that anarchism—the absence of government—will insure the widest and greatest scope for unhampered human development, the highest [illegible] Buwalda's sentence to three years' [illegible] for the manslaughter of a prisoner [illegible] the butt of the officer's club. I believe indeed I know that whatever is fine and beautiful in the human, expresses and asserts itself in spite of government, and not because of it.

The Anarchists are therefore justified in assuming that anarchism—the absence of government—will insure the widest and greatest scope for unhampered human development, the highest [illegible] from the latter's communication to the New York Evening Post of June 20, dealing with the case of Private William Buwalda, which caused such a stir all through the Northwest. "The first duty of an officer or enlisted man," says our noble warrior, "is unquestioning obedience and loyalty to the Government to which he has sworn allegiance. It makes no difference whether he approves of that Government or not."

How can we harmonize the principle of unquestioning obedience with the principle of "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness"? The deadly power of militarism has never before been so effectively demonstrated in this country as in the recent condemnation by court martial of William Buwalda of San Francisco. Captain Augustus P. Blocksom, the case's military prosecutor, was a man who had a record of fifteen years of continuous service. [illegible] action and conduct were unchallenged," we are told, "with the exception of [illegible] conviction of [illegible] Buwalda's sentence to three years' [illegible] for the manslaughter of a prisoner [illegible] the butt of the officer's club. I believe indeed I know that whatever is fine and beautiful in the human, expresses and asserts itself in spite of government, and not because of it.

The Anarchists are therefore justified in assuming that anarchism—the absence of government—will insure the widest and greatest scope for unhampered human development, the highest [illegible] from the latter's communication to the New York Evening Post of June 20, dealing with the case of Private William Buwalda, which caused such a stir all through the Northwest. "The first duty of an officer or enlisted man," says our noble warrior, "is unquestioning obedience and loyalty to the Government to which he has sworn allegiance. It makes no difference whether he approves of that Government or not."

How can we harmonize the principle of unquestioning obedience with the principle of "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness"? The deadly power of militarism has never before been so effectively demonstrated in this country as in the recent condemnation by court martial of William Buwalda of San Francisco. Captain Augustus P. Blocksom, the case's military prosecutor, was a man who had a record of fifteen years of continuous service. [illegible] action and conduct were unchallenged," we are told, "with the exception of [illegible] conviction of [illegible] Buwalda's sentence to three years' [illegible] for the manslaughter of a prisoner [illegible] the butt of the officer's club. I believe indeed I know that whatever is fine and beautiful in the human, expresses and asserts itself in spite of government, and not because of it.

The Anarchists are therefore justified in assuming that anarchism—the absence of government—will insure the widest and greatest scope for unhampered human development, the highest [illegible]

EMMA GOLDMAN.

FACTS ABOUT EMMA GOLDMAN.

Born in Russia about forty years ago.

Educated in Germany. Speaks Russian, German, French and English; also reads and writes Italian and Spanish.

Came to America in 1885, with her parents, who settled in Rochester, N. Y. Worked as a factory girl.

Was married to Jacob Kersner, an alleged anarchist, but separation soon followed because he prevented expression of her own individuality.

Came to New York in 1889.

Led strike of Schirtmaker Girls' Union in 1890.

Arrested and convicted on charge of inciting to riot in a speech at Union Square Aug. 21, 1893. Spent ten months in Blackwell's Island Penitentiary.

Arrested on charge of having incited Leon Czolgosz to the assassination of President McKinley, 1901. Released for lack of evidence.

Was associated with John Most, Alexander Berkman, Justus Schwab and other New York Anarchists in publication of the Freiheit. Subsequently quarrelled with Most and publicly horsewhipped him.

Reported married in May, 1887, to Berkman upon the release after serving a term of fourteen years in the Allegheny, Pa., Penitentiary for his attempt to assassinate Henry C. Frick, the steel millionaire, during the Homestead strike.

Under an assumed name started a hair-dressing business on Broadway, New York City, 1892.

On the authority of Attorney-General Bonaparte in March, 1908, it has been learned that no legal ground can be found for deporting Emma Goldman, nor can she be barred at American ports if she leaves the country and returns.

For five years she has lived in an upper apartment at No. 210 East Thirteenth street.

ism. It might do the same here. For goodness' sake, let's not offend respectability, let's not hurt the religious feelings of the people.

Religion is a superstition that originated in man's mental inability to solve natural phenomena. The Church is an organized institution that has always been a stumbling block in progress.

Organized churchism has stripped religion of its naïveté and primitiveness. It has turned religion into a nightmare that oppresses the human soul and holds the mind in bondage. "The Dominion of Darkness," as the last true Christian, Leo Tolstoi, calls the Church, has been a foe of human development and free thought, and as such it has no place in the life of a truly free people.

VI. As to Marriage and Love.

I believe these are probably the most tabooed subjects in this country. It is almost impossible to talk about them without scandalizing the cherished proprieties of a lot of good folk. No wonder so much ignorance prevails relative to these questions. Nothing short of an open, frank and intelligent discussion will purify the air from the hysterical, sentimental rubbish that is shrouding these vital subjects, vital to individual as well as social well being.

Marriage and love are not synonymous; on the contrary, they are often antagonistic to each other. I am aware of the fact that some marriages are actuated by love, but the narrow, material confines of marriage, as it is, speedily crush the tender flower of affection.

Marriage is an institution which furnishes the State and Church with a tremendous revenue and the means of prying into that phase of life which refined people have long considered their own their very own most sacred affair. Love is that most powerful factor of human relationship which from time immemorial has defied all man-made laws and broken through the iron bars of conventions in church and morality. Marriage is often an economic arrangement pure, furnishing the woman with a life long [illegible], [illegible] and the man with a [illegible] of his kind or a pretty toy. That is marriage, or the training thereto, prepares the woman for [illegible] of a parasite, a dependent, helpless servant while it furnishes to man the right of a [illegible] over a human life.

How can such a condition of affairs have any [illegible] with love? With the exception [illegible] would forever all the wealth of money and power and life in the cruel world of unfreedom of [illegible] an oppressor. But it is not the age [illegible] romanticism of romeo and juliet, Faust and Marguerite or moonlight embraces [illegible] songs. Ours is a practical age. The first consideration is an income. So much the worse for us if we have reached the era when the highest ideals are to be checked. No an atmosphere wherein alone the human plant can grow into an exquisite flower.

VII. As to Acts of Violence.

And now I have come to that point in my beliefs about which the greatest misunderstanding prevails in the minds of the American public. "Well, come, now, don't you propagate violence, the killing of crowned heads and Presidents?" Who says that I do? Have you heard me, has any one heard me? Has any one seen it printed in our literature? No, but the papers say so, everybody says so, consequently it must be so. Oh, for the accuracy and logic of the dear public!

I believe that anarchism is the only philosophy of peace, the only theory of a social relationship that values human life above everything else. I know that some Anarchists have committed acts of violence, but it is the terrible economic inequality and great political injustice that prompt such acts, not anarchism. Every institution to-day rests on violence, our very atmosphere is saturated with it. So long as such a state exists, we might as well strive to stop the rush of Niagara as hope to do away with violence. I have already stated that countries with some measure of freedom of expression have had few or no acts of violence. What is the moral? Simply this: No act committed by an Anarchist has been for personal gain, aggrandizement or profit, but rather a conscious protest against some repressive, arbitrary, tyrannical measure from above.

President Carnot of France was killed by Caserio in response to Carnot's refusal to commute the death sentence of Vaillant, for whose life the entire literary, scientific and humanitarian world of France had pleaded.

Brasci went to Italy on his own money earned in the silk weaving mills at Paterson to call King Humbert to the bar of justice for his order to shoot defenseless women and children during a bread riot. Angelino executed Prime Minister Canovas for the latter's resurrection of the Spanish Inquisition at Montjuich Prison. Alexander Berkman attempted the life of Henry C. Frick during the Homestead strike only because of his intense sympathy for the seven strikers killed by Pinkertons and for the widows and orphans evicted by Frick from their wrecked little homes that were owned by Mr. Carnegie.

Every one of these men not only made their reasons known to the world in spoken or written statements showing the misery that led to their acts, proving that the unbearable economic and social pressure, the suffering and despair of [illegible] women and children prompted their acts. And not the philosophy of Anarchism. These same speaks frankly and ready to stand [illegible] consequences ready to give their own lives.

In diagnosing the true nature of our social disease I cannot condemn those who through [illegible] of their own are suffering from a wide-

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

890118001

The Emma Goldman Papers

"What I Believe," by Emma Goldman / Emma Goldman.— p. 3M ; 28 cm. In The World. —(July 19, 1908).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

human being has palpitation of the heart at the very mention of the name Emma Goldman. It is too bad that we no longer live in the times when witches were burned at the stake or tortured to drive the evil spirit out of them. For, indeed, Emma Goldman is a witch! True, she does not eat little children, but she does many worse things. She manufactures bombs and gambles in crowned heads. Br-r-r!

Such is the impression the public has of myself and my beliefs. It is therefore very much to the credit of The World that it gives its readers at least an opportunity to learn what my beliefs really are.

The student of the history of progressive thought is well aware that every idea in its early stages has been misrepresented and the adherents of such ideas have been maligned and persecuted. One need not go back two thousand years to the time when those who believed in the gospel of Jesus were thrown into the arena or hunted into dungeons to realize how little great ideas or earnest believers are understood. The history of progress is written in the blood of rebels, men and women who have dared to espouse new and unpopular causes, as for instance, the black man's right to be free, or woman's right to be equal to them from time immemorial, the New has met with opposition and condemnation. Why should my beliefs be exempt from a crowd of thorns?

"What I believe" is a process rather than a finality. Finalities are for gods and governments, not for the human intellect. While it may be true that Herbert Spencer's formulation of liberty is the most important on the subject, as a political basis of society, yet life is something more than formulas. In the battle for freedom, as Ibsen has so well pointed out, it is the struggle for, not so much the attainment of, liberty, that develops all that is strongest, sturdiest and finest in human character.

Anarchism is not only a process, however, that marches on with "solemn steps," coloring all that is positive and constructive in organic development. It is a tremendous protest of the most militant [illegible]. It is so absolutely uncompromising, insisting and persisting as a force as to overcome the most stubborn assault and to withstand the criticism of those who really constitute the last trumpets of a decaying age.

Anarchists are by no means passive spectators in the theatre of social development, on the contrary, they have some very positive notions as regards aims and methods.

That I may make myself as clear as possible without using too much space, permit me to adopt the topical mode of treatment of "What I Believe."

I. As to Property.

"Property" means dominion over things and the denial to others of the use of those things. So long as production was not equal to the normal demand institutional property may have had some raison d'être. One has only to consult economics, however, to know that the productivity of labor within the last few decades has increased so tremendously as to exceed normal demand a hundred-fold, and to make property not only a hindrance to human well-being, but an obstacle, a deadly barrier, to all progress. It is the private dominion over things that condemns millions of people to be mere nonentities, living corpses without originality or power of initiative, human machines of flesh and blood, who pile up mountains of wealth for others and pay for it with a gray, dull and wretched existence for themselves. I believe that there can be no real wealth, social wealth, so long as it rests on human lives—young lives, old lives and lives in the making.

It is conceded by all radical thinkers that the fundamental cause of this terrible state of affairs is (1) that man must sell his labor; (2) that his inclination and judgment are subordinated to the will of a master.

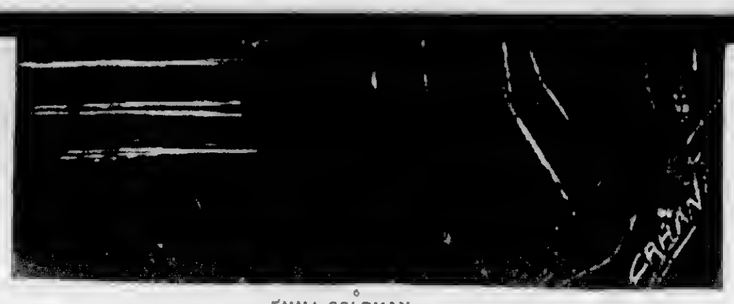
Anarchism is the only philosophy that can and will do away with this humiliating and degrading situation. It differs from all other theories inasmuch as it points out that man's [illegible] lies, is possible only to a society based on voluntary co-operation of productive groups, communities and societies loosely federated together, eventually developing into a free communism, actuated by a solidarity of interests. There can be no freedom in the large sense of the word, no harmonious development, so long as mercenary and commercial considerations play an important part in the determination of personal conduct.

II. As to Government.

I believe Government, organized authority, or the State, is necessary only to maintain or protect property and monopoly. It has proven efficient in that function only. As a promoter of individual liberty, human well-being and social harmony, which alone constitute real order, government stands condemned by all the great men of the world.

I therefore believe, with my fellow-Anarchists, that the statutory regulations, legislative enactments, constitutional provisions, are invasive. They never yet induced man to do anything he could and would not do by virtue of his intellect or temperament, nor prevented anything that man was impelled to do by the same dictates. Millet's pictorial description of "The Man with the Hoe," Meunier's masterpieces of the miners that have aided in lifting labor from its degrading position, Gorki's descriptions of the underworld, Ibsen's psychological analysis of human life could never have been induced by government any more than the spirit which impels a man to save a drowning child or a crippled woman from a burning building has ever been called into operation by statutory regulations or the policeman's club. I believe—indeed, I know—that whatever is fine and beautiful in the human, expresses and asserts itself in spite of government, and not because of it.

The Anarchists are therefore justified in assuming that anarchism—the absence of government—will lessen the widest and greatest scope for unhampered human development, the cornerstone of true social progress and harmony.



As to the stereotyped argument that government acts as a check on crime and vice, even the makers of law no longer believe it. This country spends millions of dollars for the maintenance of her "criminals" behind prison bars, yet crime is on the increase. Surely this state of affairs is not owing to an insufficiency of laws. Ninety per cent of all crimes are property crimes, which have their root in our economic iniquities. So long as these latter continue to exist we might convert every lamp post into a gibbet without having the least effect on the crime in our midst. Crimes resulting from heredity can certainly never be cured by law. Surely we are learning even today that such crimes can effectively be treated only by the best modern medical methods at our command, and, above all, by the spirit of a deeper sense of fellowship, kindness and understanding.

III. As to Militarism.

I should not treat of this subject separately, since it belongs to the paraphernalia of government. If it were not for the fact that those who are most vigorously opposed to my beliefs on the ground that the latter stand for force are the advocates of militarism.

The fact is that Anarchists are the only true advocates of peace, the only people who call a halt to the growing tendency of militarism, which is fast making of this erstwhile free country an imperialistic and despotic power.

The military spirit is the most merciless, heartless and brutal in existence. It fosters an institution for which there is not even a pretense of justification. The soldier, to quote Tolstoi, is a professional man-killer. He does not kill for the love of it, like a savage or in a passion, like a homicide. He is a cold-blooded, mechanical, obedient tool of his military superiors. He is ready to cut throats or scuttle a ship at the command of his ranking officer, without knowing or, perhaps, caring how, why or wherefore. I am supported in this contention by no less a military light than Gen. Funston. I quote from the latter's communication to the New York Evening Post of June 20, dealing with the case of Private William Buwalda, which caused such a stir all through the Northwest. "The first duty of an officer or enlisted man," says our noble warrior, "is unquestioning obedience and loyalty to the Government to which he has sworn allegiance; it makes no difference whether he approves of that Government or not."

EMMA GOLDMAN.

How can we harmonize the principle of "unquestioning obedience" with the principle of "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness?" The deadly power of militarism has never before been so effectually demonstrated in this country as in the recent condemnation by court-martial of William Buwalda, of San Francisco, Company A, Engineers, to five years in military prison. Here was a man who had a record of fifteen years of continuous service. "His character and conduct were unimpeachable," we are told by Gen. Funston, who, in consideration of it, reduced Buwalda's sentence to three years. Yet the man is thrown suddenly out of the army, dishonored, robbed of his chances of a pension and sent to prison. What was his crime? Just listen, ye freeborn Americans! William Buwalda attended a public meeting, and after the lecture he shook hands with the speaker. Gen. Funston, in his letter to the Post, to which I have already referred above, asserts that Buwalda's action was a "great military offence [illegible] worse than desertion." In another [illegible] statement which the General made in Portland Ore., he said that "Buwalda was a traitor—crime equal to treason."

[illegible] true that the meeting had been arranged by Anarchists. Had the Socialists issued the call Gen. Funston claims [illegible] would have been no objection to Buwalda's presence. Indeed, the General says: "I would not have the slightest hesitancy about attending a Socialist meeting myself." But to attend an Anarchist meeting with Emma Goldman as speaker—could there be anything more treasonable?

For this horrible crime a man, a free-born American citizen, who has given this country the best fifteen years of his life, and whose character and conduct during that time were "unimpeachable," is now languishing in a prison, dishonored, disgraced and robbed of all livelihood.

Can there be anything more destructive of the true genius of liberty than the spirit that made Buwalda's sentence possible—the spirit of unquestioning obedience? Is it for this that the American people have in the last few years sacrificed four hundred million dollars and their hearts' blood?

I believe that militarism—a standing army and navy in any country—is indicative of the decay of liberty and of the destruction of all that is best and finest in our nature. The steadily growing clamor for more battleships and an increased army on the ground that these guarantee us peace is as absurd as the argument that the peaceful man is he who goes well armed.

The same lack of consistency is displayed by those pseudo patriots who oppose anarchism because it supposedly teaches violence, and who would yet be delighted over the possibility of the American nation soon being able to hurl dynamite bombs upon defenseless enemies from flying machines.

I believe that militarism will cease when the liberty-loving spirits of the world say to their masters: "Go and do your own killing. We have sacrificed ourselves and our loved ones long enough fighting your battles. In return you have made parasites and criminals of us in times of peace and brutalized us in times of war. You have separated us from our brothers and have made of the world a human slaughter-house. No, we will not do your killing or fight for the country that you have stolen from us."

Oh, I believe with all my heart that human brotherhood and solidarity will clear the horizon from the terrific red streak of war and destruction.

IV. As to Free Speech and Press.

The Buwalda case is only one phase of the larger question of free speech, free press and the right of free assembly.

Many good people imagine that the principles of free speech or press can be exercised properly and with safety within the limits of constitutional guarantees. That is the only excuse it seems to me, for the terrible apathy and indifference to the outrages upon free speech and press that we have witnessed in this country within the last few months.

I believe that free speech and press mean that I may say and write what I please. This right, when regulated by constitutional provisions, legislative enactments, almighty decisions of the Postmaster-General or the policeman's club, becomes a farce. I am well aware that I was warned of the dangers if I remove the [illegible] in speech and press. I believe, however, that the cure of consequences resulting from the unlimited exercise of expression is to [illegible] more expression.

Mental shackles have never yet stemmed the tide of progress, whereas premature social explosions have only too often been brought about by a mad wave of repression.

Will our governors never learn that countries like England, Holland, Norway, Sweden and Denmark, with the largest freedom of expression, have been freest from "consequences?" Whereas Russia, Spain, Italy, France and alas! even America, have raised those "consequences" to the most growing political factor. Ours is supposed to be a country ruled by the majority, but every politician who is not vested with power by the majority can break up a meeting, drag the lecturer off the platform and club the audience out of the hall in true Russian fashion. The Postmaster-General, who is not an elective officer, has the power to suppress publications and confiscate mail. From his decision there is no more appeal than from that of the Russian Czar. Truly, I believe we need a new Declaration of Independence. Is there no modern Jefferson or Adams?

V. As to the Church.

At the recent convention of the political remnants of a once revolutionary idea it was voted that religion and vote getting have nothing to do with each other. Why should they? So long as man is willing to delegate to the devil the care of his soul he might with the same consistency delegate to the politician the care of his guts. That religion is a private affair has long been exploded by the U.S. Marxian Socialists of Germany. Our American Marxians, poor of blood and originality, must need go to Germany for their wisdom. That wisdom has served as a capital whip to lash the several millions of people into the well disciplined army of Socialists, which [illegible] acts, not anarchism. Every institution to-day rests on violence, our very atmosphere is saturated with it. So long as such a state exists we might as well strive to stop the rush of Niagara as hope to do away with violence. I have already stated that countries with some measure of freedom of expression have had few or no acts of violence. What is the moral? Simply this. No act committed by an Anarchist has been for personal gain, aggrandisement or profit, but rather a conscious protest against some repressive, arbitrary, tyrannical measure from above.

President Carnot of France was killed by Caserio in response to Carnot's refusal to commute the death sentence of Vaillant, for whose life the entire literary, scientific and humanitarian world of France had pleaded.

Brasci went to Italy on his own money earned in the silk weaving mills at Paterson to call King Humbert to the bar of justice for his order to shoot defenseless women and children during a bread riot. Angelino executed Prime Minister Canovas for the latter's resurrection of the Spanish Inquisition at Montjuich Prison. Alexander Berkman attempted the life of Henry C. Frick during the Homestead strike only because of his intense sympathy for the eleven strikers killed by Pinkertons and for the widows and orphans evicted by Frick from their wretched little homes that were owned by Mr. Carnegie.

Every one of these men not only made their reasons known to the world in spoken or written statements, showing the causes that led to their acts, proving that the unbearable economic and political pressure, the suffering and despair of their fellowmen, woman and children prompted their acts, and not the philosophy of Anarchism. They came openly, frankly and ready to stand the consequences, ready to give their own lives.

In diagnosing the true nature of our social disease I cannot condemn those who through no fault of their own are suffering from a widespread malady.

I do not believe that these acts can or ever have been intended to bring about the social reconstruction. That can only be done, first, by a broad and wide education as to man's place in society and his proper relation to his fellows; and second, through example. By example I mean the actual living of a truth once recognized, not the mere theorizing of the life element. Lastly, and the most powerful weapon, is the conscious, intelligent, organized [illegible] protest of the masses through direct action and the general strike.

It is the harmony of organic growth which produces variety of color and form—the complete whole we admire in the flower. Analogously will the organized activity of free human beings endowed with the spirit of solidarity result in the perfection of social harmony—which is anarchism. Indeed, only anarchism makes non-authoritarian organization a reality, since it abolishes the existing antagonism between individuals and classes.

Emma Goldman

TELLING SECRETS AT THE MANICURES.

It is startling to hear the secrets that are told in semi-public places. Most people have heard queer bits of talk of a private nature in street cars above or below ground, and on trains. Bowers do [illegible] Junction [illegible] at a Turkish bath as at the manicure's.

Sitting with her finger tips in those of her manicure sets the average woman's tongue goes with wonderful rapidity. Manicures are usually smiling, self-possessed little women who know how to give just the right amount of apparent interest while they listen their eyes and deftly deal with patients. Often, though, they are not listening half as intently as they seem to be and when they are they are as much amused as edified by the secrets poured out upon them.

We-Read women will sit and talk about their husbands and their mothers-in-law and their surgeries or the hateful ways of their most intimate friends to the women who give an occasional half hour to their finger nails. Not even a dressmaker, to whom much is told, hears half as much about her customer's secret worries and troubles as the manicure who holds one hand and then the other for revenue only.

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

890322031

The Emma Goldman Papers

Emma Goldman Leaves the Question of Violence Entirely Alone / Emma Goldman.– p. 388 ; 26 cm. In The Public [Chicago]. –Vol. 11, no. 538 (July 24, 1908).
Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

but the shores of the estuaries and harbors. The News urged that the case should be appealed, declaring that it would be indeed unbearable if all the holiday pursuits of the public at the seaside should have to be dependent upon the kind permission of some land magnate, and it cited the mountain precedent:

> The Access to Mountains hill establishes the principle that for all ordinary purposes of rambling or climbing the tourist is not to be hindered from making the mountains his playground. The same principle should be applied to the seashore, and with even better reason. Some money is spent in the mountains in reference to game preserving. The beach is barren and useless save for purposes of pleasure. The owner who should try to keep the public from it would be the supreme instance of the dog in the manger. But so selfish are some landowners in England, and to such an extent has the idea of private property in the surface of the earth taken possession of the minds of many of our governing class, that doubtless attempts will be made to keep the public from what should be inalienably their own. Would it be possible to enlarge the Access to Mountains bill, and make it apply also to the seashore? If such a course were possible, without endangering the original measure, it might be well to adopt it.

\+ +

Emma Goldman Leaves the Question of Violence Entirely Alone.

Miss Goldman has written Mr. C. E. S. Wood in regard to his report of her visit to Oregon, published as Editorial Correspondence in The Public of June 26th, that she can afford to pass without notice the misrepresentations of the hostile press, but she cannot afford to leave uncorrected the misrepresentations of her friends. She states that in fact she has never said that violence as tactics would be folly, for it only more firmly intrenches the one assailed; or that individual force against indvidual officials is worse than useless, because she has never argued these questions at all, nor does she look upon them in that light. She writes that she does not propagate violence and never has done so; but not because she is particularly sentimental about life, so much as that she does not believe in inducing any one to act under the influence of any power save his own reason and the dictum of his own soul. And she adds, "Besides, so long as I am not to pay the penalty of the act, I do not feel justified in inducing another person to do it." She also says that neither does she wish to be understood as classing the men who commit violence as unbalanced or insane; that the psychological cause which induces some to act against all consideration of self, while others will only lisp a mild indignaton against the social order, is to her of the greatest interest.

\+ +

Tolstoy Indicts the Russian Government.

What one isolated citizen can do to halt the bloody progress of a nation, the aged Tolstoy has done with his terrible denunciation of the hideous reign of terror being maintained by the Russian autocracy. Appearing in the London Daily Chronicle of the 15th, his letter immediately created a profound impression, and was regarded by the labor and socialist groups in England as justifying their protests against the King's recent visit to the Czar (p. 326). The meagre excerpts from the letter which were cabled to America on the day of publication, gave no space to the urgings to land reforms which appear here and there in the letter, and redeem it from hopelessness. In another department of this Public will be found fuller extracts, which are reproduced from what purports to be the full text. That this letter of Tolstoy's will produce immediate results in Russia, few will expect; but as surely as day follows night, the hours of this bestial imperialism, revealed now in all its bloody squalor, are being counted out to their ending.

\+ + +

DEMOCRACY IN ACTION.

Once more has democracy shown itself capable of self-government. Once more has direct legislation through the initiative and referendum amply fulfilled the predictions of its advocates and refuted the arguments of its opponents.

The election held in Oregon on the first of last June aroused great interest, not only in the State itself, but quite generally throughout the nation. For the sake of having in compact form a summary of the chief events that have occurred in Oregon in connection with direct legislation, the following resumé has been prepared. All the figures are official.

After ten years of effort in favor of the measure, and after a favorable vote for it by two legislatures had been secured, a direct legislation amendment to the Oregon constitution was adopted by the electors of the State on June 3, 1902, by a vote of 62,024 for, and 5,668 against it; being a majority of eleven to one in its favor.

First Enactments Under Direct Legislation in Oregon.

On the 6th of June, 1904, the electors enacted at the polls two laws, one for local option in temperance matters, and one for direct primaries.

840514038

The Emma Goldman Papers

George Pettibone / Emma Goldman. — pp. 253-254 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. — Vol. 3, no. 6 (Aug. 1908).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

and the dramatic method. The dramatist, the orator, and the writer, to be effective, must take the vague, general idea, personify it, and fit it to the here and now. He must take the mere abstraction that, applicable anywhere and at any time, would only faintly stir the few, and individualize it; making it walk across his platform, or stare from his page, so boldly that it leaps to the dullest eyes.

Pray do not think that I am praising Emma Goldman as Emma Goldman. I am using her to individualize my own argument, and, moreover, I try to recognize and account for a fact when it strikes me full in the face. Emma Goldman's success as an agitator is a fact, and I believe it to be a further fact that she, having the invaluable dramatic instinct, which forces its fortunate owner always to make the practical point, and being herself a member of an essentially practical race, instinctively confines herself to facts. This, I submit, is the secret of her strength; the strength of the scientific method.

A thoughtful and cultured Anarchist, who has read this article carefully, says: "Yes; but your entire programme is destructive. The people ask what is to be done, and you have nothing to offer." Should this article prove acceptable, I will show next month the illimitable field of constructive work that lies fallow, yearning for those who will work it by thrusting their spade boldly into the fruitful soil of actual, present-day fact. This will give better results than addling your brains with the pseudo-scientific, sectarian flap-doodle with which the Socialist movement has been rotten these many days.

GEORGE PETTIBONE

By EMMA GOLDMAN.

OF all the interesting figures it has been my good fortune to meet on my tour, that of Pettibone looms up like a star upon the firmament.

He died a few days ago at Denver, his home, from the effects of an operation for cancer.

Like all people who had witnessed from a distance Mammon's attempt and failure to slaughter three men on the block in that great social drama of the West, I knew little of Pettibone except that his great cheer and humor had never left him during the entire year of suspense and waiting in the Idaho penitentiary. When I saw him at Los Angeles, thin and worn from great physical suffering, yet with a face full of hope and cheer, I could readily understand what an inspiration he must have been to his two comrades in prison.

Stricken at San Diego, Cal., with violent stomach trouble, he had to be removed to Los Angeles, where he was kept under constant care and absolute seclusion. But when he heard of my arrival, he sent a mutual friend to ask me to call, "because I had wanted so much to see you all these years," he said, when I held his feverish hand. On that day he had enjoyed his first nourishment in weeks: an orange. I can still see the beaming face and his great joy that he would soon be well enough to resume his post in the battle against oppression and poverty.

He talked of many things. Of the judicial murder in Chicago, in 1887, that had proved a great factor in awakening his rebellious spirit, as it had in mine. He spoke of the events that were to furnish a second 11th of November, but instead had turned into a red-letter day for the labor forces in this country. He related many incidents of his experience with the bloodhounds, the Pinkertons, and how he used to make game of their ignorance and stupidity. He spoke of the authorities having attempted to induce him to turn against his comrades. "Just think of it! They appealed to my interests as a business man, and what chances I'd have to get free and become prosperous. How were these soul-

555

840514038

The Emma Goldman Papers

George Pettibone / Emma Goldman. – pp. 253-254 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 3, no. 6 (Aug. 1908).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

and mind-impoverished creatures to know that I would have preferred death a thousand times rather than to hurt one hair of the other boys."

Somehow it seemed to me that I had heard these big, loyal sentiments before. It was Albert Parsons, America's revolutionary pioneer, who refused to sign away his comrades' lives by securing clemency for himself. "Do you want me, the only American among the arrested, to free myself by tightening the noose around the necks of my comrades the more securely?" Parsons is reported to have said. He preferred to die with his brothers, even as Pettibone would have done.

The life of Parsons, claimed in 1887, paved the way for the liberation of Pettibone two decades later. Such is the inexorable price of progress.

Had Albert Parsons chosen his heir, he could not have selected a fitter personality than George Pettibone. His was a spirit all aglow with an intense fire against every form of tyranny; one that was at all times ready to stake everything for a great, liberating cause.

"I want so to get to Denver. I know I would grow well there. I do not really want life for its own sake, but to help the cause and those wo are making such a brave fight. It's for that I crave life so." And how he craved life! He clung to the hope of reaching Denver with every fibre of his being. That was three months ago. And now he is no more

The united efforts of greed and power to enact at Boise a second 11th of November have failed. But they were quite successful in undermining the health of Pettibone. When he was thrown in the bull-pen he was strong and vigorous. When he was rescued from the clutches of his jailers he was doomed to die from the cancer of the stomach.

There are not many Pettibones in this land of ours. But to know that he had lived, to have been able to grip his hand, to have looked into his firm yet tender face, is to have realized the great possibilities that the new dawn will witness in this country.

THE CAREER OF A JOURNALIST

A CONFESSION.

OURS is an era of deep social unrest; the finest minds and souls are filled with it; the social conscience will no longer be silenced.

The much-dreaded class of muck-rakers is steadily growing. Their criticism stops short at nothing, not even the most cherished institutions. In fine, we are witnessing the most radical transvaluation of all values.

One institution, however, our social critics have hitherto spared. Journalism, the disgrace of our age, the most shady profession of civilization, they dared not touch. The press, the supposed harbinger of truth, the bearer of culture, the teacher and moral guide of the people, was ever considered unassailable.

At last one came to the front who would not halt before the "sacred" shrine; one who found the necessary courage to tear the veil from the treacherous face of the press, so that the beguiled public may see, as it has never seen before, journalism at work.

Mr. William Salisbury, with his work, "The Career of a Journalist,"* has rendered society a great service by his graphic and able portrayal of the corruption and degradation of the American press. Having worked on the leading papers of New York, Chicago, and Kansas City for more than nine years, he is well equipped with the necessary experience to substantiate his charges.

Radical critics have ever maintained that journalism under the capitalistic régime has degenerated into a trade that condemns its votaries to mental prostitution. It is, therefore, encouraging, indeed, to find these contentions verificd by one who speaks from personal experience. And what are Mr. Salisbury's experiences? Simply this: Every newspaper of to-day is under the lash of the political shade and business interests of his paper. Personality, intelligence, judgment, conscientiousness must make room for the holiest of all Trinities, Profit, Sensation, Lies. Indeed, the highest salaried editor, down to the ohscurest penny-a-liner, must bend his knee before

* E. W. Dodge & Co., New York.

556

890109005

The Emma Goldman Papers

[What I believe. In Italian] Quello che io credo / Emma Goldman.– pp. 1-2 ; 29 cm.
In Cronaca Sovversiva [Barre, Vt.]. –no. 32 (Aug. 8, 1908).
Permission to reproduce or quote in any fonn must be obtained from the International Institute of Social History.
Institutional Location: Emma Goldman Archive.

ANNO VI. BARRE VERMONT, SABATO 8 AGOSTO 1908 Num. 32

Entered as second-class matter July 3rd, 1903 at the post-office at Barre, Vermont under Act of Congress of March 3rd, 1879. — S. BOTTELLI Publisher.

QUELLO CHE IO CREDO

Il mio credo è stato ludibrio le mille volte ai sarcasmi dei pennivendoli. Hanno sul mio conto diffuso tante storie e così tenebrose che non è punto a meravigliare se il popolino al solo udire il nome di Emma Goldman si sente addosso i brividi e lamenta che sia lontano nella storia il tempo in cui le streghe si mandavano al rogo o si sottomettevano alla tortura che le liberava provvidamente dallo spirito maligno.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

E per certo Emma Goldman è una strega. Non divora più, forse, i bimbi indocili, ma ne fa di ben peggiori: manipola bombe e le scaraventa sulle teste coprogresso sociale non assistono come spettatori indifferenti e passivi; ma ne vivono, al contrario, gli episodii più agitati, hanno i loro criteri positivi, i loro propositi, i loro metodi.

Io cercherò di riassumere chiaramente, senza abusare della vostra ospitalità questi criterii, questi propositi e questi metodi ed avrete così lo schema di quello che io credo:

I. LA PROPRIETA'.

La proprietà significa il dominio che taluni, ad esclusione degli altri, hanno sopra determinate cose; e finchè la produzione non fu in grado di soddisfare al bisogno si può dire che l'istinto della proprietà avesse un tal quale giustificazione, una ragione di essere. Oggi il primo economista venuto è in grado di farvi toccar con mano che la produttività del lavoro umano si è in questi ultimi decennii così spaventosamente accresciuta da eccedere, di qualche migliaio di volte, i bisogni normali denunciando nella proprietà individuale non soltanto l'ostacolo più grave all'umano benessere ma una barriera morale ed una terribile minaccia a tutto il progresso, alla civiltà tutta quanta.

Noi dobbiamo a questa privata propriei governi sono stati apertamente condannati da tutti i grandi pensatori del mondo.

Io credo quindi, cogli anarchici miei compagni, che disposizioni statutarie, provvedimenti costituzionali e legislativi sono pura usurpazione. Essi non hanno potuto ottenere mai che un individuo facesse ciò che per virtù del suo intelletto o del suo temperamento non avrebbe voluto fare, come non hanno mai potuto impedire che un individuo facesse ciò che dal suo intelletto o dal suo temperamento era portato a fare.

Le suggestive rappresentazioni pittoresche del Millet, il suo magnifico quadro: L'uomo dalla vanga; i capolavori del Meunier sul dolente "calvario dei minatori" hanno certo contribuito a trarre dalla sua angosciosa degradazione il lavoro, ad elevarlo ed a nobilitarlo, ma come il governo non ha saputo nè ispirare nè determinare le tragiche emozioni che Gorki riflette nelle sue descrizioni nelle sue rivelazioni dei vagabondi, nè l'acuta analisi psicologica della vita umana che pervade l'opera letteraria e filosofica dell'Ibsen, così nessun statuto, nessun codice, nè alcun randello di poliziotto può determinare l'irresistibile spirito di solidarietà, l'incoercibile impeto per cui l'uomo si butta a capo fitto nostri sentimenti e nella nostra esistenza sopravvive e fermenta di spietato, di selvaggio, di inumano; e Leone Tolstoi non ha torto quando chiama assassino professionale il soldato che non uccide pel gusto di uccidere come i primitivi, che non uccide nell'impeto cieco della passione come un impulsivo, ma uccide freddamente, pacatamente, meccanicamente senza chiedersi nè il perchè nè il come nè il quando, in ossequio alla disciplina eviratrice della caserma, in omaggio ed in obbedienza all'ordine dei superiori.

In questo giudizio del resto conviene con noi anche un luminare dell'esercito, il generale Funston, il quale occupandosi nel New York Evening Post del caso di William Buwalda 2) così si esprime:

"Il primo dovere di ogni ufficiale, di "ogni soldato, è la cieca obbedienza, l'il-"limitata devozione al governo cui ha "giurato fedeltà, sia che gli atti del go-"verno egli, nella propria coscienza ap-"provi o disapprovi .....
.....

Io ritengo fermamente che il militarismo — un esercito ed un'armata stanziale in ogni nazione—sia l'indice di una infausta decadenza dello spirito di libertà e dei sentimenti più generosi e più nobili ticolo dello Statuto, da una deliberazione del Congresso, dagli editti sovranni del General Postmaster o dal randello di un poliziotto, il mio diritto si risolve in una burla. Io sono ben sicura che sottraendo alle manette ed al bavaglio il diritto alla libertà di parola e di stampa si ovvierebbero le rappresaglie inevitabili, convinta come sono che il più sicuro rimedio contro le eventuali conseguenze di un illimitato esercizio della libertà, sia ancora nella libertà in una maggiore libertà. Le ritorte intellettuali non hanno mai trattenuto il fiotto incoercibile del progresso, mentre, per converso le premature esplosioni sociali sono state più delle volte determinate da uno stupido maroso di repressione.

Ricordino i nostri governanti che in Inghilterra, in Olanda, in la Norvegia, in Svezia e in Danimarca in cui la libertà di pensiero, di parola, di stampa, la libertà di espressione, è la più larga, gli attentati sono assolutamente sconosciuti, mentre la Russia, la Spagna, l'Italia, la Francia e, ahime! l'America, hanno elevato questi attentati (3) al grado di fattori politici di primaria importanza.

Quì, presso di noi, nella grande Repubblica Americana che presume essere governata dal suffragio universale, dalla

557

890109005

The Emma Goldman Papers

[What I believe. In Italian] Quello che io credo / Emma Goldman.— pp. 1-2 ; 29 cm.
In Cronaca Sovversiva [Barre, Vt.]. —no. 32 (Aug. 8, 1908).
Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the International Institute of Social History.
Institutional Location: Emma Goldman Archive.

strega. Non divora più, forse, i bimbi indocili, ma ne fa di beu peggiori: manipola bombe e le scaraventa sulle teste coronate. V'è da inorridire !

Tale l'impressione che il pubblicò ha di me e dei miei principii, ond'è che io debbo essere grata al World 1) il quale mi offre alla perfine l'opportunità di mostrare ai suoi lettori che cosa, in realtà, sieno le mie convinzioni.

Coloro che conoscono uu po' la storia del progresso sanno che ogni idea è stata al suo primo apparire fraintesa e che i suoi araldi sono stati calunniati e perseguitati ferecemente; e non occorre rimontare questi duemila anni di storia ai primi credenti nel verbo del Nazzareno dati in pastò alle belve del Circo o sepolti nel Mamertino per vedere in qual modo le pietose credenze sieno divenute le grande religioni, per qnali vie abbiano quegli umili apostoli trionfato.

La storia del progresso è stata scritta col miglior sangne degli uomini e delle donne che hanno saputo sfidare tutti i dileggi e tutte le collere sposando le cause più impopolari, il diritto dei negri al proprio corpo, il diritto delle donne alla propria anima, per non citare che nn esempio. Se da tempo immemorabile il nuovo non ha trovato mai che persecuzioni e condanne, come posso io sperare che non calchino snl mio ideale la corona di spine?

Del resto "quello che io credo" più che una finalità è un processo. Le finalità possono essere la gioia degli dèi e governi non dell'umano intelletto. Può darsi che la teoria della libertà formulata da Herbert Spencer abbia in materia una importanza capitale, come quella che può essere assunta a base politica della società; ma la vita è ben altro che una formnla. E nelle battaglie per la libertà è, nou 'la vittoria finale, ma la lotta che sviluppa ed esprime quanto di più nobile, di più forte, di più eletto è nell'indole umana.

L'anarchismo non è qnindi che un processo il qnale svolgendosi in cupe spire colora quanto di positivo, qnanto di costrnttivo è nel losvilnppo organico. È una protesta dell'indole più fiera e più temeraria.....

E gli anarchici a questo dramma del

1) Il presente articolo che è, come i lettori possono giudicare, nna magnifica e coraggiosa sintesi delle nostre aspirazioni, è la traduzione fedele di un'intervista che Emma Goldman ha avuto con un redattore del World, sul quale è apparsa prima alla data del 19 Luglio u. s.

cia a tutto il progresso, alla civiltà tntta quanta.

Noi dobbiamo a questa privata proprietà delle cose se milioni e milioni di lavoratori sono mere quantità trascurabili, poveri corpi senza un bagliore di originalità o d'iniziativa, povere e fragili macchine di carne e di sangue che edificano per gli altri le fortune paradossali riservando a sè stessi un'esistenza triste, sconsolata, miserabile.

Ed io non credo che vi possa essere reale prosperità, prosperità sociale, fino a tanto che la fortuna e l'agiatezza si comprano a prezzo di giovani e di vecchie esistenze, a prezzo d'innumeri sacrifizii umani.

È giudizio concorde di tutte le menti elevate che la causa fondamentale di questo terribile stato di cose è in questo triste binomio: nell'uomo condannato a vender il suo lavoro; nel suo pensiero, nella sua anima soggetti alla volontà di padrone.

L'anarchismo è la dottrina che a questo nmiliante stato di cose preconizza nn termine, e differisce dalle altre dottrine in questo: che soltanto lo svilnppo dell'individno, la sua salute fisica, le sue tendenze latenti od innate determinano dell'iudividno il carattere e l'attitudine al lavoro, così come il sno stato mentale e fisico soltauto determinerauno i snoi bisogni.

La realizzazione di questo ideale, secondo che io credo, non può essere che opera di una società fondata snlla cooperazione volontaria dei suoi grnppi produttivi, comnnità e società liberamente federate, ed avviate, sulla via maestra degli interessi comuni solidarizzati, verso le forme ultime del comnnismo libertario. La libertà nel senso più largo della parola, lo sviluppo armonico e cosciente d.lla società non sono possibili finchè ad inspirare ed a dirigere le nostre azioni rimangono le preoccupazioni grette, venali, mercenarie che dominano tutta la società attuale.

IL GOVERNO.

Io credo che nella necessita di mantenere e di proteggere la proprietà ed il monopolio sia la sola ragione del Governo, dell'autorità organizzata, dello Stato. In questa funzione soltanto esso ha mostrato di saper fare qualche cosa. Come custodi della libertà, come promotori dell'umano benessere e dell'armonia sociale, che sono le sole garanzie dell'ordine pubblico, nessun codice, le meno indegne di polizíotto può determinare l'irresistibile spirito di solidarietà, l'incoercibile impeto per cui l'uomo si butta a capo fitto nelle onde a salvare il bimbo che affoga od a strappare alle fiamme voraci che inghiottono la casa la povera inferma che vi geme.

Io credo qnindi, e so, che quanto di generoso e di nobile freme nell'umana creatura si esprime e si afferma non perchè' vi siano uu governo ed una legge, ma malgrado vi siano un governo ed una legge.

Non hanno quindi torto gli anarchici quando credono ed affermano che l'anarchismo — assenza di governo — aprirà al progresso umano la via più larga e più sicura, ce nenterà la pietra angolare del. l'armonia e del progresso sociale.

È nn abusato luogo comune che il governo costituisca un freno al vizio ed al delitto, è nna ritrita menzogna convenzionale a cui non credono neppnre i legislatori. Nessun paese spende qnanto il nostro tanti milioni di dollari per costringere tra i mnri e le inferriate della galera i snoi "criminali", e in nessun paese la delinquenza si diffonde e si inasprisce come in America. E questo infausto progresso non si deve certo all'insufficienza della legislazione Il novanta per cento dei delitti ha la sua fonte nella proprieta' ha la sua ragione nella disnguaglianza nell'iniquità economica che regola tutti i rapporti sociali. Certo vi sono reati che hanno nna remota radice ereditaria, ma è anche certo che a curarli e ad eliminarne le cause la legge è assolutamente inefficace e sterile, e possouo solo recarvi rimedio sensibile e salutare i metodi più illuminati della scienza medica moderna e, sopratutto nn profondo spirito di solidarietà, un sentimento diffuso e coscieute di fratellanza e di bontà.

IL MILITARISMO

Non accennerei in modo particolare a questo soggetto, che è tra gli attributi essenziali del governo, se i più feroci oppositori delle mie idee non fossero i più ardenti apostoli del militarismo.

Il fatto è questo che gli anarchici sono i soli araldi sinceri della pace, la sola gente che gridi nn basta ! energico alle tendenze militariste che delle gloriose tradizioni di questa libera repnbblica lastricano le vie alla libidine imperialista ed autocratica onde sono pervase le classi dominanti.

Lo spirito militare è tutto ciò che nei [illegible] le in ogni nazione—sia l'indice di una infausta decadenza dello spirito di libertà e dei sentimenti più generosi e più nobili onde un popolo si avvivi. Il clamore assordante con cui si reclamano un esercito più poderoso, una più formidabile marina, col pretesto che in essi sia una più seria e più durevole garanzia di pace, è argomento così assurdo almeno quanto quello del pacifico cittadino che per amor della tranquillità passeggia armato fino ai denti. Il curioso è poi che cotesti amanti della pace i quali non si stancano mai di chiedere un maggior numero di reggimenti o di navi, e che si recherebbero ad orgoglio il tempestare bombe da un areostato dello stato maggiore sull'odiato nemico, sono anche i più feroci persecutori degli anarchici, come di criminosi apostoli della violenza.

Io credo che la piaga del militarismo sarà sanata soltanto il giorno in cui gli amanti della libertà diranno ai loro padroni: andate voi stessi ad ammazzare coloro che odiate. Noi abbiamo combattuto anche troppe battaglie vostre. Voi ci avete in compenso resi parassiti e criminali; ci avete separati dai nostri fratelli, avete insanguinato il mondo di carneficine.

Noi non vogliamo combattere piu' per la nazione che ci avete rubato i

E sono intimamente convinta che la fratellanza umana e la solidarietà spazzeranno dall'orizzonte per sempre le striscie sauguigne della guerra e della distruzione.

LIBERTA' DI PAROLA E DI STAMPA

Mostrano di credere i più che i diritti alla libertà di parola e di stampa si possano, entro i limiti delle gnarantigie costituzionali, esercitare convenientemente e senza pericolo. Ma più che salda convinzione è questo il sofisma con cui cercano le maggioranze giustificare l'ignobile apatia, la criminosa indifferenza da esse serbata di fronte a continui selvaggi attentati degli organi e degli ufficiali dell'ordine contro la libertà di pensiero, di parola, di stampa.

Io credo che parola libera, stampa libera indichino che io ho il diritto di dire, di scrivere qnello che più mi piace. Se questo diritto mi è limitato da un arbitrio qualunque—sia l'indice di una infausta decadenza dello spirito di libertà e dei sentimenti più generosi e più nobili onde un popolo si avvivi. Il clamore assordante con cui si reclamano un esercito più poderoso, una più formidabile marina, col pretesto che in essi sia una più seria e più durevole garanzia di pace, è argomento così assurdo almeno quanto quello del pacifico cittadino che per amor della tranquillità passeggia armato fino ai denti. Il curioso è poi che cotesti amanti della pace i quali non si stancano mai di chiedere un maggior numero di reggimenti o di navi, e che si recherebbero ad orgoglio il tempestare bombe da un areostato dello stato maggiore sull'odiato nemico, sono anche i più feroci persecutori degli anarchici, come di criminosi apostoli della violenza.

Io credo che la piaga del militarismo sarà sanata soltanto il giorno in cui gli amanti della libertà diranno ai loro padroni: andate voi stessi ad ammazzare coloro che odiate. Noi abbiamo combattuto anche troppe battaglie vostre. Voi ci avete in compenso resi parassiti e criminali; ci avete separati dai nostri fratelli, avete insanguinato il mondo di carneficine.

Noi non vogliamo combattere piu' per la nazione che ci avete rubato i

E sono intimamente convinta che la fratellanza umana e la solidarietà spazzeranno dall'orizzonte per sempre le striscie sauguigne della guerra e della distruzione.

LIBERTA' DI PAROLA E DI STAMPA

Mostrano di credere i più che i diritti alla libertà di parola e di stampa si possano, entro i limiti delle gnarantigie costituzionali, esercitare convenientemente e senza pericolo. Ma più che salda convinzione è questo il sofisma con cui cercano le maggioranze giustificare l'ignobile apatia, la criminosa indifferenza da esse serbata di fronte a continui selvaggi attentati degli organi e degli ufficiali dell'ordine contro la libertà di pensiero, di parola, di stampa.

Io credo che parola libera, stampa libera indichino che io ho il diritto di dire, di scrivere qnello che più mi piace. Se questo diritto mi è limitato da un arbitrio qualunque, che non tiene calla maggioranza nè l'investitura, nè il potere, ha il diritto di sciogliere le pubbliche riunioni, di precipitare gli oratori dalla tribuna, di bastonare il pubblico e di disperderlo; ed il Postmaster generale, che neppure tienè dal suffragio e dalla maggioranza il proprio ufficio, può sopprimere e confiscare ogni e qualsiasi pubblicazione.

E le sue decisioni sono inappellabili come gli nkases del Piccolo Padre, lo czar.

In verità, pare a me che sia giunta l'ora di una nuova Dichiarazione D'Indipendenza ! Non ha più nn Jefferson' nè un Adams la Grande Repubblica ?

LA RELIGIONE

In un recente Congresso gli nltimi sparuti campioni di quella che fu pure un'idea rivoluzionaria, i socialisti, hanno decretato che religione e voto nou hanno tra loro nulla di comune.

Perchè ? Perchè fino a quando un uomo delega al demonio la cura della propria anima delegherà ad un politicante la cura dei propri diritti. La religione è nn affare privato della coscienza individuale: hanno sentenziato i Bismar...xisti socialisti d'Allemagna, ed i nostri marxisti Americani, poveri di sangne e d'originalità, sono costretti a dare a balia in Germania la loro saggezza. La quale saviezza poi è stata la frusta sapiente con cui si sono sospinti nelle file socialiste beu addomesticate parecchi milioni di lavoratori.....

La religione è una superstizione che ha le sue origini nella mentale incapacità dei primitivi a penetrare gli enigmi della natura : la chiesa non ha mai avuto altro ufficio che di sbarrare le vie de progresso.

Essa ha estirpato dalla religione quanto poteva avere d'ingenuo e d'innocente trasformandola in nn incubo sciagurato dello spirito nmano. Il regno delle tenebre, come l'ha chiamato Leone Tolstoi, non è che la persecnzione implacata dello sviluppo nmano e del libero pensiero, e non può come tale aver posto nella vita di un popolo veramente libero.

2) È l'ufficiale che fu mandato in galera per avere alla fine di una conferenza, stretta la mano ad Emma Goldman.

3) La Goldman teramente scrive "consequeuces" ma non è qui il caso d'usare le reticenze che ad essa erano imposte dal momento e dal giornale arciborghese che intervistava.
N. d. R.

890109005

The Emma Goldman Papers

[What I believe. In Italian] Quello che io credo / Emma Goldman.– pp. 1-2 ; 29 cm.
In Cronaca Sovversiva [Barre, Vt.]. –no. 32 (Aug. 8, 1908).
Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the International Institute of Social History.
Institutional Location: Emma Goldman Archive.

MATRIMONIO ED AMORE

È in questo paese l'argomento più scabroso: non si può parlarne senza scandalizzare la vereeonda pndicizia di tanta "gente per bene".

Eppure non v'è forse altro argomento in cui prevalgano tanti pregiudizii e tanta ignoranza; eppure uulla gioverebbe più al soggetto, a eui è legata tanta parte del benessere individuale e sociale, che un'aperta, spregiudicata ed iutelligeute discussione.

Matrimonio cd amore non sono sinonimi, sono anzi il più delle volte in aperto antagonismo. Certo, molti matrimoni sono la conseguenza e l'espressione dell'amore, ma nelle anguste pareti del matrimonio troppe volte il tenero fiore dell'affezioue è condannato ad avvizzire.

Il matrimon o è una istituzione che frutta alla chiesa una rendita paradossale e quel sicuro mezzo di frugare ogni più intima latebra della vita degli individui, che le elassi superiori hanno ritenuto sempre ritennto eome il più stretto e più sacro dei loro doveri.

L'amore è il più potente fattorc delle relazioni umane e, da che mondo è mondo, ha disprezzato sempre olimpicamente le leggi manufatturate dagli uomini, ha sempre spezzato violentemente le ritorte dioxi la chiesa e la morale hanno cercato avvilupparlo.

Il matrimonio è uua eombinazione economica, nella parte maggiore dei casi, in cui la douna riceve una polizza d'assicurazione sulla vita, mentre all'uomo è offerta o una magnifica pupattola o l'orgoglio di potersi riprodurre.

Il matrimonio è la seuola della domesticità che della donna farà un parassita della vita, una serva, una schiava impotente, mentre accorderà all'uomo il pieno diritto d'ipoteca sopra una vita umana.

Che cosa può avere di comunc coll'amore? coll'amore che per un attimo fuggente di passione darebbe tutte le ricchezze, sfiderebbe tutte le forze della terra e della vita?

Gli è che i erepuseoli romantici sono da un pezzo dileguati, e sono lontani Remeo e Giulictta, Faust c Margherita e gli estatici chiari di luna e i sogni e i fiori.

È secolo di pratiei il nostro.

La nostra prima preoccupazione è la rendita.

Ma se due individui si vogliono bene, a che cosa serve il matrimonio?

—È una salvaguardia per la donna, pei figli, per la famiglia, per lo Stato.

— Ma non è una garanzia per l'amore.

miea, l'ingiustizia politica mauifesta, flagrante.

Tutte le nostre istituzioni poggiano sulla violenza, non respirano che la violenza, sì che tutta l'atmosfera sociale ne è impregnata. E finchè dura tale sciagurata eondizione di eose pretendere di sopprimere la violenza è proposito eosì pazzo almeno eome quello che intendesse ad arrestare le eascate del Niagara.

Ho già rieordato ehe le uazioni le quali ispirano ad uu certo rispetto per la libertà i loro istituti non conoscono quasi gli atti di violenza. Quale morale deduruc? Uua sola, molto semplice: ue sun attentato anarchieo è stato determinato da preoceupazioni di profitto personale, di ingrandimento e di guadagno, ma è stato per converso la protesta indignata e eosciente contro determinati atti di repressione c :oprusi tir:nn ci dell'alto.

Il presidente Carnot è stato da Caserio uceiso in seguito al rifiuto da Carnot opposto alla domanda che il mondo letterario, scientifico ed umanitario gli aveva rivolto perchè eommutasse nella deportazione la seuteuza capitale prouunciata dall'atterita giurìa della Senna in odio di Edoardo Vaillant.

Bresei andò in Italia a spesc proprie, coi denari che aveva penosamente guadagnati nei setifici di Paterson, per chieder conto al re Umberto delle fucilazioni in massa da lui ordiuate durante i tumulti della famc, negli scioperi uilanesi del maggio 1898.

Angiolillo giustiziò il primo ministro Canovas del Castillo perchè questi aveva nelle putride segrete del eastello di Montjuich risuscitati gli orrori spaventosi dell'Inquisizione di Spagna.

Alessandro Berkman atteutò alla vita di Henry C. Frick, spinto soltanto dalla simpatia per gli undici scioperanti di Homestead mitragliati dai Pinkertons, spiuto dalla pietà per le vedove c per gli orfani scaceiati su ordine del Friek dalle loro capanne, erette sulla proprietà del Carnegie.

E questi uomini noa hanno soltanto rivelato al mondo, eolla parola e cogli scritti, le eause ehe ad insorgere li avevauo determinati dimostrando che l'oppressione economiea e politiea, le ineffabili sofferenze dei loro compagni, delle loro donne, dei loro b mbini—con la fi cs ofia dell'anarchismo—li avevano tratti al disperato cimento.

Ma apertamente e coraggiosamente dei loro atti hanno assunto la responsabilità e l'hanno pagato colla vita.

LA GUERRA SERVILE

Episodi e Documenti.

20 Giugno. — Prima giornata di sciopero generale. La città presenta una certa animazione. L'astensione del lavoro è pressochè generale. Solo i tramvieri, non essendo riusciti a trovarsi d'aceordo sul da fare, lavorano in attesa della nuova riunione che devono tenere a mezzogiorno. I luoghi pubblici, le banche, gli edifici di qualehe importanza sono sorvegliati dalla truppa. I liberi lavoratori, vanno di negozio in negozio raccomandando ai padroni di non chiudere, però, poco per volta, per tema di disordini, i negozi vengono chiusi.

Corre voce ehe Oltretorrente, il quartiere più popolarc e più ribelle di Parma, siano avvenuti gravi disordini.

L'Internazionale riporta un esteso resoconto del discorso detto ieri dal De Ambris all'assemblea della Camera del Lavoro. In esso si legge:

"La borghesia parmense devc convincersi ehe per quanto dura possa avere la la testa noi sapremo lo stesso spezzarglie la. E non creda di poter giuocare troppo alla buona con noi. Sappiamo che i volontari: spie, "soutneurs", ladri, vogliono quest'anno ripetere le gesta dei pattuglioni bolognesi, eleggendosi anche liberi poliziotti. Ebbene, questa sera promettiamo a noi stessi ehe nou sopporteremo l'insulto; e che spezzeremo le coste a chiunque, di cotesti masealzoni, intendesse prenderci per il petto! Ed un'altra promessa ancora, o compagni, vogliamo: Se domani quelcuno di noi dovesse essere tolto dalla circolazione, questo non dovrebbe per voi avere un valore superiore all'ineidente comune ehe può capitare a qualunque di uoi. Non sia questo fatto nè ragione di seonforto, nè di maggiore esasperazione. Prolungherete comunque lo sciopero; altri, in luogo nostro, prenderà la direzione del movimento".

Verso le nove del mattino un numeroso corteo di scioperanti uscendo dalla Camera del Lavoro, s'è inoltrato per le vie adiacenti imponendo la chiusura dei negozi. A metà della via Mazzini, incontratosi con nn forte gruppo di volontari lavoratori armati di rivoltella, subito nasce un grande tafferuglio; mentre i volontari sparano colpi di rivoltella in aria, gli scioperanti tiranno sassi. A questo punto giunge un plotone di cavalleria gli arrestati, nasce un nuovo conflitto fra la forza pubblica e gli scioperani. I carabinieri impongono la chiusura delle finestre e sparano colpi di moschetto.

Corre voce vi siano morti e feriti, fra i quali un soldato di cavalleria assai gravemente ed un ragazzo di 13 anni ferito ad una mano. È probabile che molti scioperanti feriti si siano nascosti per evitare d'essere arrestati.

I fatti del parmense hanno avuto, come potevasi attendere, la loro ripercussione nell'aula parlamentare. Ad analoga interrogazione dei deputati Berenini e Guerci, Giolitti ha dichiarato limitarsi a leggere le informazioni ricevute, dalle quali risulta che gli scioperanti di Parma tentarono di imporre la chiusura dei negozi; che furono lanciate tegole e sassi contro i soldati; che l'autorità giudiziaria è investita del mandato d'investigare e decidere se ci sia stato il prévio concerto. Si terrà conto — ha detto — di questa esistenza o no del previo concerto, che trasformerebbe la Camera del Lavoro di Parma in una associazione a delinquere.

Berenini ringrazia il ministro della risposta e dice che le ultime notizie danno ai fatti una versione meno impressionante di quella che si era dato loro prima.

Auguriamoci — continua — che questo sia l'ultimo episodio del conflitto, che si era mantenuto nelle forme più civili di lotta. Se si dovesse stabilire la responsabilità dei fatti, si dovrebbe risalire alle cause del conflitto agrario; e la responsabilità dovrebbe essere ripartita fra le due parti contendenti.....

Ammette che il prefetto di Parma esercitò sempre un'azione pacificatrice.

URSUS.

LA PROTEZIONE
dei nostri emigranti

Io non so se fra gli uffici protettivi che il governo italiano sussidia con i 73 mila dollari annui che preleva dal fondo dell'emigrazione che è costituito col dollaro e sessanta soldi di tassa che ciascun emigrante è obbligato a pagare, sia compresa anche la Protection Emigration Company, la quale mi pare che abbia gli uffici in Bleeker St.; so che pure questo ufficio tutore ed aiutatore dei lavoratori esplica la sua funzione cammoristica tetzione dell'Emigratiou ehe prende due dollari annui a ciascuu individuo e con certezza è sussidiata dal fondo dell'emigrazione?

Il nostro ambasciatore nella famosa intervista che concesse al redattore del N. Y. Times non si disse ce auche questo pseudo uffieio, che presta gli stessi servizii degli informatori dei campi di lavoro, è sussidiato, ma scommetterei che sì.

Ma passo alla beneficenza.

Questa istituzione, verso la quale rivolgono lo sguardo tanti vampiri e chiedono il guiderdone per le loro beuemerenze patriottiehe, è sussidiata dal fondo della emigrazione. Ma diffieilmente si entra se non arrivano le raccomandazioui giuste chè per i veramente bisognosi uon vi sono mai posti, essendo questi per lo più occupati da quelli ehe possono pagare cinquanta soldi al giorno. Diavolo! sono earetti quei signori lì; alle botteguccee di Mulberry si esce con venti e veutieinque soldi.

Queste notizie me le diedero alcuui ricoverati quando veune iu America la commissione parlamentarc, e proprio nel momento ehe essa visitava lo stabilimento, mentre io attendevo per vedere il deputato Ettore Cieeotti, mia conosceuza personale. Un altro fatto aneora che dimostra l'assistenza di questo istituto filantropico ai bisognosi.

A dicembre saranno due anni, Raffaele Novello il quale aveva avuto un piede rotto dalla ruota di un earro, chiese ed ottenne dal console il biglietto semi-gratuito per rimpatriare, ma siccome il piroscafo sul quale doveva viaggiare partiva sette giorni dopo, alla Beneffcenza si diresse per essere ricoverato e per quel tempo gli chiesero una cosetta di tre o quattro dollari. Che beneficenza!

Quando mi ricordo e considero il fremito cd il furore che produsse la blanda ed oggettiva prosa del Barzini per lo schizzo degli antri di Mulberry, penso che se il corrispondente del "Corriere della Sera" coraggiosamente avesse detto quanto di scandaloso, di turpe si commette da tutti i ladri in guanti gialli, gli spostati evasi alle patrie galere, e che il governo italiano per togliere d'addosso scaraventò in questa Ameriea dei sogni e delle illusioni per la conquista della ricchezza e degli onori, a quest'ora sarebbe stato linciato! Ma punto per ora.

D. NUCERA ABENAVOLI.

Sharpsburg, 20 Luglio.

559

890109005

The Emma Goldman Papers

[What I believe. In Italian] Quello che io credo / Emma Goldman.– pp. 1-2 ; 29 cm.
In Cronaca Sovversiva [Barre, Vt.]. –no. 32 (Aug. 8, 1908).
Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the International Institute of Social History.
Institutional Location: Emma Goldman Archive.

Ma se due individui si vogliono bene, a che cosa serve il matrimonio?

— È una salvaguardia per la donna, pei figli, per la famiglia, per lo Stato.

— Ma non è una garanzia per l'amore, e senza amore non v'è una casa felice; senza amore nessun bimbo dovrebbe essere dato alla luce; senza amore non deve la donna abbandonarsi ad un uomo.

La paura che l'amore non sia sufficiente garanzia per la donna, non ha alcun fondamento serio. Io credo che la prima aurora dell'emancipazione della donna si annunzierà, che sarà proclamata la sua prima Dichiarazione d'Indipendenza quando essa cercherà ed amerà il suo compagno per le doti della sua mente e del suo cuore non pei biglietti da mille che può avere in saccoccia. La seconda dichiarazione d'indipendenza squillerà allora quando essa saprà onestamente amare senza alcun bisogno di sanzioni inconcludenti di intrusi. La terza è la più grande delle sue affermazioni d'indipendenza la donna realizzerà nella maternità libera.

In una madre libera, in un padre libero sono le più sicure garenzie della protezione dei figli. In essi soltanto possono essere la forza, il vigore, l'armonia che costituiscano la pura atmosfera in cui la pianta umana possa germogliare i suoi fiori squisiti.

GLI ATTI DI VIOLENZA

Ed ora attingiamo del mio credo un punto intorno al quale prevalgono nel pubblico americano i giudizi più temerarii e più aberrati.

— Ci siamo, sta bene, non propagate voi la violenza, la strage delle teste coronate, dei Presidenti.....?

— E chi vi ha detto questo? qualcuno m'ha dunque udito a predicare l'assassinio? qualcuno l'ha tinto alle nostre pubblicazioni di propaganda?

No: ma i giornali lo dicono, lo dicono tutti, dunque deve essere vero.

— Oh, diligenza, lo scrupolo e la logica del pubblico!

Io credo che l'anarchismo sia la sola filosofia di pace, la sola dottrina, la sola teoria di consociazione sociale che la vita armoni coi bisogni e calcoli sopra ogni altra cosa.

So che parecchi anarchici hanno commesso atti di violenza, ma so pure che a determinare tali atti non fu l'anarchismo sì bene la stridente disuguaglianza economica e sociale, la quale, mentre da un lato ammucchia ricchezze favolose, dall'altro lato lascia languire nella miseria più nera, nella più squallida ignoranza, nella più desolante abbiezione, milioni di esseri umani.

Ed è appunto la filosofia dell'anarchismo—li aveva tratti al disperato cimento.

Ma apertamente e coraggiosamente dei loro atti hanno assunto la responsabilità e l'hanno pagato colla vita.

E facendo la diagnosi del malessere onde tutta la nostra società è inquinata, io non saprei condannare davvero coloro che, senza propria colpa, soffrono di una epidemia tanto diffusa.

Non credo poi che tali atti possano o intendano ricondurci alla ricostruzione della società.

Alla ricostituzione sociale arriveremo soltanto con una larga e profonda opera di educazione in rapporto al posto occupato nella società dall'individuo, ed alle sue relazioni coi compagni. Coll'esempio, non teorizzando all'infinito sugli elementi della vita, ma diffondendo il patrimonio delle verità riconosciute ed uniformando la propria vita al proprio pensiero.

L'arma più potente rimane poi la protesta economica cosciente, intelligente, organizzata delle masse quale erompe dall'azione diretta e dallo sciopero generale.

Così come la varietà di colore e di forme che noi ammiriamo nei fiori sono la risultante dell'armonia che presiede al loro sviluppo organico — la coordinata attività degli esseri umani costellati da un alto sentimento di solidarietà ci darà per risultante la più alta perfezione dell'armonia sociale che è l'anarchia.

L'anarchia soltanto può realizzare una forma libertaria di consociazione sociale; soltanto l'anarchismo che abolisce l'antagonismo esistente tra gli individui e le classi.

Emma Goldman

Scienza e Fede

Abbiamo avuto, omaggio cortese dell'autore, l'ultimo volume di Nicola Barbato: Scienza e Fede, in cui si riprende e si sviluppa la tesi già brillantemente e vittoriosamente sostenuta dal Barbato in pubblico contradditorio col pastore evangelico Buggelli: E' utile che continui ad esistere l'idea di dio secondo le religioni rivelate?

Ne parleremo diffusamente in uno dei prossimi numeri.

lavoratori armati di rivoltella, subito nasce un grande tafferuglio; mentre i volontari sparano colpi di rivoltella in aria, gli scioperanti tiranno sassi: A questo punto giunge un plotone di cavalleria poi un altro, i quali fra le urla, i fischi e la sassaiuola, caricano la folla. È un momento terribile.

Sopraggiunge altra truppa, ed incomincia una nutrita scarica di fucileria. Molti fuggono, altri salgono sui tetti dove gettano numerose tegole sulla truppa. Le fucilate si incrociano colle tegole, le rivolverate. Anche i soldati salgono sui tetti e sparano.

Un plotone di fanteria, zappatori, prende d'assalto la Camera del Lavoro, ne atterra la porta a colpi d'ascia, l'invade, arresta quanti incontra (oltre 70 persone), sequestra tutte le carte che trova, fracassa tavole, sedie, scansie, quanto trova. Fra gli arrestati sono tutti i membri della Commissione Esecutiva della Camera del Lavoro, l'anarchico Zavattero appena giunto da Genova, il ferroviere Salmi ed altri.

Qua e là, nei borghi, la sassaiuola sulla truppa e sugli agrari continua nutrita. I soldati hanno sparato numerosi colpi di fucile specialmente nel Borgo Carra e Miuelli. In quest'ultimo luogo, esseudo stato visto il De Ambris, i poliziotti gli danno una caccia infernale, sparando colpi di rivoltella in tutte le direzioni. Appare evidente il proposito della poliziottaglia — alleata dell'Agraria — togliere di mezzo, ad ogni costo, i dirigenti dello sciopero.

Riunitisi, alla sede del giornale l'Idea, i rappresentanti della Federazione nazionale dei lavoratori della terra e della Confederazione generale del lavoro, in unione ai rappresentanti locali del Partito socialista, dopo breve discussione deliberano che Valmaggi, Bellelli, Faraboli, Bindo Pogliani, Albertelli, Guido e Aristo Isola, si recbino dal prefetto per protestare contro le violenze perpetrate al mattino dai volontari e dalla polizia e dichiarare che sono pronti ad assumere l'incarico di pacificare gli animi, e di sorreggere i lavoratori nella lotta intrapresa.

Il prefetto ha ricevuto "gentilmente" la commissione ed ha dichiarato di esser disposto a far rispettare rigorosomente la legge e d'informarsi circa i fatti lamentati.

Mentre vengono trasportati in carcere e sa anche la Protection Emigration Company, la quale mi pare che abbia gli uffici in Bleeker St.; so che pure questo ufficio tutore ed aiutatore dei lavoratori esplica la la sua funzione cammoristica proprio a pochi passi del Consolato Italiano, il tutore e papà dei nostri connazionali.

Questo sedicente Ufficio di Protezione ha adottato un metodo di sfruttamento semplicissimo; una specie di assicurazione sulla vita.

Un esercito di spostati gira di villaggio in villaggio, nelle campagne, luugo le linee delle ferrovie, dovunque si soffre e si lavora, alla caccia degli illusi che abboccano all'amo insidioso. Dietro pagamento di due dollari annui danno una tessera della compagnia la quale garantisce di agevolarli in qualunque controversia, essere di protezione e di aiuto in tutte le amare sorprese della terra straniera; ma più di tutto e sopratutto promette di difenderli gratuitamente negli infortuni che possono capitare sul lavoro.

Vediamolo all'opera.

Due sono ad Haverstraw, N. J., La Rock Company, gestita da tre ebrei, da tre di questi maledetti dal signore, i quali, mercè questa maledizione comandano il mondo con il furto dei capitali, fallì o finse di fallire, senza pagare tre e più mesi di salari ad oltre duecento operai. Molti di questi avevano la tessera della Protection Emigration C. a cui per diversi anni avevano pagato i rispettivi due dollari e ad essa ricorsero e presentarono i documenti per la liquidazione dei salari dall'amministrazione giudiziaria della Rock Company.

Era passato più di un anno ed i protetti della Protetion Emigration Co. nulla sapevano e ne potevano sapere; alcuni altri chiesero l'intervento del console, a cui presentarono i documenti, ma lo zelo spiegato dal funzionario ufficiale non fu differente da quello della Protection Emigration Co.

Conosco però alcuni altri che affidarono i loro interessi alla Protetion Emigration Co., e dopo due anni gli avvocati riuscirono ad ottenere le liquidazioni, ma presero la metà o due terzi.

Bella protezione!

Tutti sanno che gli avvocati americani accettano le cause degli infortuni sul lavoro e per altre controversie, contentandosi del 25 o 30 per cento, rare volte prendono la metà. Qual'è dunque la prosarebbe stato linciato! Ma punto per ora.

D. Nucera Abenavoli.

Sharpsburg, 20 Luglio.

Repubblicani di ieri, e repubblicani d'oggi

Dunque, il presidente della Repubblica francese, Fallières, dimentico delle tradizione più gloriose della grande Rivoluzione, lasciò ieri Parigi per recarsi in "missione diplomatica" presso le corti del nord, ossia a Copenhaghen, a Stokolma, indi a Reval, ove il 27 corrente dovrà incontrarsi con Nicola II, l'abbietto e feroce assassino di tutte le Russie.

E fu davvero una triste giornata quella di ieri, una giornata di cordoglio pei graudi "priucipii" della repubblica. La natura stessa, quasi conscia dei fasti umani, volle apportare la sua nota di tristezza maggiore, velando l'astro immenso e scatenando una pioggia autunnale insistente.

Nou volli privarmi dello spettacolo contrastato, davvero troppo deholmente! della partenza di Fallières. Prima delle sei del mattino mi trovai nei pressi della stazione del Nord in attesa del corteo presidenziale. Approfittando dei momenti d'attesa, entrai nella vasta stazione, curioso di ammirare gli ornamenti fatti per la speciale occasione e che alcuni giornali del giorno innanzi avevano descritto "spleudidi e severi". La stampa è spesso servile, grottesca! Il "salone d'onore", decorato di fiori, di piante e di bandiere, assunse ai miei occhi l'aspetto d'una camera ardente. I poliziotti, in borghese, vestiti a festa e dai visi patibolari, apparivano dei veri e proprii becchini. Tutto era per ispirare tristezza.

Più tardi, alla spicciolata, giunsero in vettura i ministri Clemeuceau, Briand, Thomson, Picquart, Milliès-Lacroix, Viviani, Cruppi, Doumergue, Maujan e Simyau, poi il prefetto de Selves e l'immancabile Lepine, ndi giuuse il presidente Fallières accompaguato dal suo seguito e da uu numero assai limitato di parlameutari. I curiosi, che di solito abbondano in queste occasioui, furono piuttosto scarsi.

840514042

The Emma Goldman Papers

Labor Day / E[mma] G[oldman]. – pp. 297-299 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. –Vol. 3, no. 7 (Sept. 1908).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

of 1905, along with innumerable false promises of changes, have been aimed at the growing peasant discontent. All real concessions were made during or after the time of hundreds of armed peasant revolts.

And what is the outcome? The peasants feel that they have forced the government to terms. They are not grateful as they would have been had the changes been freely granted. They are only crying for more. Nothing short of full social and economic freedom will satisfy them.

The Russian upheaval is a conscious social movement, and this is why it may develop into the most portentous historic event. Like former revolutions and civil wars in Europe and America, it claims for the citizens the political rights of men. But unlike any preceding national cataclysm, it insists on social as well as political rights, on economic equality, on the right of every man to as much land as he can till, and of no man to more, and on the right of all the people to all the land for all time.

This evolutionary process is in the direction of Anarchist Communism, as can easily be gathered from the interviews the author of "Russia's Message" has had with many distinguished Russian thinkers. It is, therefore, to be regretted that Mr. Walling uses, in a certain passage, the term Anarchy in the popular sense, that of chaos. A literateur of his calibre, one who is undoubtedly conversant with the philosophy of Anarchism, should never stoop to such misrepresentation.

Three giant names, Bakunin, Kropotkin, and Tolstoy, point the way to liberation: Bakunin as organizer, Kropotkin as the scientific expounder, and Tolstoy as the awakener of the social consciousness.

"Russia's Message" will render important service to the revolutionary movement of Russia, as well as that of the entire world. It is to be hoped that this work may receive the recognition it merits so well.

LABOR DAY

A PAPER PREPARED FOR THE MEETING OF THE UNEMPLOYED AT COOPER INSTITUTE, SEPT. 7TH.

LABOR DAY! What a deep and significant meaning that term implies! Labor, the creator of wealth, the nourisher of the human race, the harbinger of peace and happiness,—Labor having its day, Labor arisen from the abyss, from out of the mines and mills and shops, from out of its pale, trembling, cringing condition. Labor, the mighty giant, conscious of its power, celebrating its great day of regeneration. What a wonderfully sublime and inspiring vista!

Such it might be, nay, will be some day. But to-day, what is it to-day? A ghastly lie, a caricature, a mocking, fiendish monster, sapping the very life element from its slaves, that its masters may become more powerful, more exacting. Yes, look at the thousands of workers who are marching to-day, I mean those whom the fiend labor holds in its clutches, what has labor done for them? True, it has given them bread for the moment, a cover over their heads, and possibly an extra coat, but what has it not taken in return, oh! what has it not taken from its ever yielding victims? It has taken their souls, their dignity, their self-respect, it has condemned them to carry the burdens of the world, a hard, cruel, merciless world, wherein they have no place, no rights, no chances. It has stolen their liberty that others may better enslave them.

And you, army of unemployed, you men and women of the road and the street, you countless numbers, who carry the banner, month after month, week after week, you, with empty stomachs and dull, heavy heads, with hunger and despair lurking in your eyes, what has labor done for you?

Hundred thousand men out of work in the city of New York—homeless, shelterless, clothless, foodless, in this city of wealth and affluence. Who dares speak of Labor Day in the face of this awful spectacle?

The "Evening Post" of September 5th in discussing the significance of Labor Day says: "It is a well-established tradition of American business affairs that Labor Day marks the end of holiday and idleness. On the morning

561

840514042

The Emma Goldman Papers

Labor Day / E[mma] G[oldman]. – pp. 297-299 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. –Vol. 3, no. 7 (Sept. 1908).

Obtained from the University of Califomia, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

of the Tuesday following the first Monday in September, the average American, metaphorically speaking, throws his coat off and gets to work." What wonderful wisdom our newspapers feed their readers on.

A well-established tradition, indeed; we Americans are full of traditions, but whoever lives up to them? We also boast of well-established tradition of free speech, press and assembly, yet we could not have marched without the grace of the police commissioner, yet we could not express ourselves, if the club should decree against it, yet men and women are dragged off the platforms and imprisoned, if they dare exercise that "well established tradition." Ah, we have loads of traditions, we Americans, on paper.

"Labor Day marks the end of holiday and idleness." You men have had a holiday and have been idle, not by choice, but by grim, iron necessity. Have you enjoyed either? Have you been merry-making with your wives and children? Have you feasted on nature's gifts? Have you strengthened your body in the invigorating embrace of the ocean? Or has not the street, the alleys, the gutter, the filthy quarters of tenth-rate saloons, the road, the box cars, been your holiday places?

To-day is to mark the end of idleness, and you, average Americans, are to throw off your coats and begin work?

Is there any one here who is not ready for it? But where, where is that all powerful, omnipotent God—Labor —that will give you a chance?

The end of idleness, yes, some day, when Society will have embraced the human family into a great brotherhood, —the end of idleness only when man realizes that labor has the power of his Liberation and not his damnation. When you and I will become conscious, that you and I must make labor subservient to us, to our needs, our happiness, our joy, and that we must stop being subservient to labor. Not until then will the end of idleness come.

But what now? What is to be done with the great host who are only too ready to throw off their coats—tatters would be a more appropriate term—and to set to work:

First and foremost to organize, to organize the unemployed from the Atlantic to the Pacific into a great body of men, not cringing slaves, who are satisfied with a chunk of bread and a cup of coffee, men, who want food, and who will demand it as loud as their stomach dictates.

Men, who will demand that some of the money, that city officials appropriate for themselves, should be used in building homes, where the unemployed shall find rest during the day and sleep at night, men who will insist that kindergartens and playhouses shall be erected, where the children of that vast army will be looked after. Who will demand that the cities shall have fewer churches, and fewer policemen, and that the money spent in keeping these breeders of superstition and crime shall be used in building large dining-halls for the unemployed.

I realize that these demands are but paliative, that they can not eradicate the unemployed question, but there is nothing that can eradicate that awful problem, except organized stalwart, brave, daring demands.

When we have learned to demand these immediate reliefs, we will also have learned to demand labor's true day—the day that will feast the dawn of human brotherhood and social well-being.

E. G.

INTERNATIONAL NOTES

FRANCE.

The recent savage outbreak of the authorities failed to weaken the combative powers of the General Federation of Labor.

The officers of that powerful organization who have been incarcerated after the bloody skirmish at Villeneuve —Saint-Georges, Griffuelhes, Pouget, Yvetot, Maucolin, Dret, and Marie, were replaced by a new Executive Committee, the latter immediately taking steps for the preparation of monster protest meetings against the outrageous prosecutions.

The French proletariat is displaying great solidarity. At the very moment when the entire bourgeois press is clamoring for the dissolution of the Federation, the Miners' Union, with a membership of 60,000, has joined that organization as a protest against the government and in evidence of solidarity with their struggling brothers.

The Typographical Union recently held a tremendous meeting condemning the massacre of workingmen and severely criticizing the opportunistic labor leaders.

The revolutionary workers of France are not alone in 562

840514040

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Latest Police Outrage / Emma Goldman. — pp. 273-275 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 3, no. 7 (Sept. 1908).

Obtained from the University of Califomia, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

MOTHER EARTH SUSTAINING FUND

RECEIPTS.

J. Nielsen, Denver, Colo.	$1.00
P. Stcenstra, Paterson, N. J.	1.00
Group "Freiheit," Paterson, N. J.	3.00
N. Y. World, article by E. G.	150.00
Subscriptions and Renewals	31.50
Total	$186.50

EXPENDITURES.

Deficit, as per July account	$351.03
Cost and office expenscs, July M. E.	180.00
Total	$531.03
Total expenditures	$531.03
Total receipts	186.50
Deficit	$344.53

* * *

NOTE

We have issued, in pamphlet form, "What I Believe," an article by Emma Goldman which recently appeared in the New York "World." Price, 5 cents. Per hundred, $3.00.

LA PACE

Militant Anti-Militarist Organ

GENOA, ITALY

PRICE, 3 L. (60 cents)

10c. A COPY $1 A YEAR

MOTHER EARTH

Monthly Magazine Devoted to Social Science and Literature

Published Every 15th of the Month

EMMA GOLDMAN, Proprietor, 210 East Thirteenth Street, New York, N. Y.

Entered as second-class matter April 9, 1906, at the post office at New York, N. Y., under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

Vol. III SEPTEMBER, 1908 No. 7

THE LATEST POLICE OUTRAGE

By EMMA GOLDMAN.

POLICE brutality and outrage against Anarchists have become such an every-day occurrence, that one no longer feels inclined to refer to them.

However, the latest "bravery" is so flagrant, so unspeakably brutal, that we can not possibly keep silent.

Comrade Alex. Berkman and a young girl friend, Miss E., were arrested, at a meeting of the unemployed, at Cooper Union, on Labor Day without the slightest provocation. They were brutally hustled out of the hall and fairly dragged to the station house. There they were received by a wild, raging, foaming human beast, Lieutenant Brenner, with the "kind and Christian" remark, "Yous ought to be brought here on a stretcher."

This disgraceful member of the human family must have waited for such a golden opportunity to show his heroic devotion to his trade of bullying people. At any rate, when Comrade H. Havel called at the station house to see Berkman, and asked on what charge he was being kept, the uniformed bully fairly yelled in his face, "We'll land him this time," and he kept his promise.

Until midnight Attorney Meyer London and H. Havel waited in the station to assist our arrested friends, when they will be taken before the night court. But they were assured that the hearing will not take place until morning.

No sooner had the lawyer and Havel departed, when Miss E. and Berkman were hustled over to court and tried without a chance of hearing or counsel. Comrade

563

840514040
The Emma Goldman Papers
The Latest Police Outrage / Emma Goldman. – pp. 273-275 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 3, no. 7 (Sept. 1908).
Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

Berkman was railroaded to the workhouse for five days and Miss E. fined $10. Fortunately, dear staunch friend Bolton Hall had rushed to the scene and paid her fine, else she too would have had to go to the Island.

The charge against her was vagrancy, as she refused to give her address, not wishing to annoy the people she was living with. Berkman was tried on disorderly conduct.

The morning press was full of bloodcurdling accounts of the "intentions and doings" of the Anarchists, and how the prompt action of the police prevented a "riot."

The newspaper flunkeys, about as coarse and vulgar as their uniformed brothers, glory in the fact that the officers lauded one boy a blow in the jaw and knocked another one down.

Wonderful spirit of liberty and human decency, is it not?

Now, what are the real facts about the whole matter?

The Brotherhood Welfare Association of New York held a parade and meeting of the unemployed, at Cooper Union.

Dr. Ben. L. Reitman, Chicago organizer of that Association, had been invited, as one of the speakers. Unfortunately he caught a severe cold, and, unable to concentrate on what he had intended to say at the meeting, he asked me to prepare a paper, which he would read. The Doctor probably thought that most of the speakers were either unfamiliar with the conditions of the unemployed, or too weakkneed to treat it in a radical manner.

That Dr. Reitman is well known and liked by society outcasts was very apparent by the ovation he was given when he began to read the manuscript, his voice hardly being audible. But the enthusiasm reached high tide when our Hoba friend announced, in his usual frank manner, that the paper was prepared by Miss Emma Goldman. (The readers will find the speech on another page.)

Naturally a commotion followed, especially among the "Gentlemen" speakers, who felt compromised. A certain Oberwager, well known as the worst lickspittle and yellow dog in trade union ranks, launched into the Doctor and Anarchism, in a most ferocious manner boasting of his great feat in having just knocked down a boy for distributing the anarchistic panic pamphlets.

Comrade Berkman quietly rose and called the speaker's attention to the fact that Dr. Reitman was no longer in the hall, and that it was unfair, to say the least, to attack a man who could not reply.

Thereupon several detectives fairly jumped on Berkman and Miss E., pulling, kicking and dragging them out of the hall.

The audience protested, but American audiences have too terrible an awe for the sacredness of authority to show a really vigorous and manly protest which would teach the uniformed bullies a lesson, once for all.

In no country, Russia not excepted, would the police dare to exercise such brutal power over the lives of men and women.

In no country would the people stand for such beastliness and vulgarity. Nor do I know of any people who have so little regard for their own manhood and self-respect as the average American citizen, with all his boasted independence.

Poor outraged, abused Goddess of Liberty, no foreign land has so little place for you as your own native soil.

❦ ❦ ❦

OBSERVATIONS AND COMMENTS

RUSSIAN roubles are ever sufficiently plentiful to induce "highly respectable" American lawyers to act as the agents of the Tsar's Third Section. But that Russian influence has grown so powerful with our Federal government as to dictate the decision to extradite a political refugee is a development urgently requiring serious consideration.

We have taken powerful strides within recent years along the road of imperialism and autocracy. Yet, there are some among us who still cherish old-time republican traditions. And the most sacred of them is the right of asylum for the victims of a tyrant's persecution. It has ever been our proud boast that we welcome the political refugees of the Old World. And though we should exclude Tolstoy as one who disbelieves in organized government, still we have never yet stooped to the rôle of gendarme for the malicious cretin on the banks of the Neva.

564

840514041

The Emma Goldman Papers

To Our Readers / Emma Goldman. – pp. 279-280 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 3, no. 7 (Sept. 1908).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

learns to fight for his rights; when both make common cause against a mutual exploiter, then only will the first step have been taken toward solving the negro question.

* * *

John Mitchell, former president of the United Mine Workers of America, has been promoted by the Civic Federation to a highly salaried position as an official of that organization.

A very profitable transaction—for Mitchell and the Federation. The former, as the exploiters' most loyal servant among influential labor leaders, fully deserves his promotion. The Federation now feels itself better equipped to achieve its objects: to hypnotize the workingman into a Nirvana-like contentment, leaving his interests to the loving care of the honorable gentlemen of the Civic Federation. Mitchell is the very man to assist in the "pacification" process. He declares that he will do his utmost to help "harmonize the mutual interests of labor and capital."

The tribe of Powderly, Sargent, and Mitchell will gradually help to open the eyes of labor. The workers are beginning to realize that slave and master can have no "mutual" interests. They will soon awaken to the treachery of their leaders who exploit labor as a stepping-stone to personal advancement. When the producers shall have fully awakened to the situation, they will have done with leaders. They will cease waiting for a Messiah to lead them out of the Egypt of wage slavery. They will do their own liberating.

* * *

Says Gompers: "Organized labor is intelligent enough to choose for itself the party which will best represent its interests." And he adds: "Workingmen, vote for Bryan! Those who take issue with my position are political renegades."

TO OUR READERS

A LITTLE over a year and a half ago I received a letter from our most ardent champion in Australia, Comrade Fleming, asking me to come to that far-off country. Comrade Fleming has for many years carried on a valiant fight against all superstition, and especially against that of politics, which has befogged the minds of the workers in Australia.

Of late there seems to have been quite an awakening among the more thoughtful people there, as to the futility of parliamentary action; and while Anarchism is far from being widely known in Australia, Comrade Fleming no doubt thinks that the soil is about ripe for our ideas. That must have been his reason for inviting me on a lecture tour; possibly also because our untiring comrade realized the impossibility of a single-handed fight.

At that time my thoughts were far from Australia. MOTHER EARTH had passed through a great deal of trouble after the Czolgosz number of October 1906, and I had all I could do to confine myself to our own needs. As it is, we are about as poor of active workers, not to speak of lecturers, as our movement is in Australia. Then, too, there was no reliable man to remain at the post in New York for any length of time. And last, but not least, a trip to Australia seemed to me quite an adventure which eighteen months ago, I had neither strength nor spirit to undertake.

Comrade Fleming, however, kept on urging me, assuring MOTHER EARTH a great success, if I would only come. After careful consideration, and now that our magazine is in the safe hands of Comrades Alexander Berkman and Hippolyte Havel,—the latter having been a silent, but most devoted worker on the magazine for over a year,—I have decided to venture the trip. Besides, since the American fleet has been so royally welcomed by the Australians, I feel confident that the publisher of MOTHER EARTH will receive no less a reception. Don't you think so?

To be able to sail for Australia in January, I have decided to begin my tour early this time, in the latter part of October. I shall have three months to cover a pretty large area between New York and San Francisco, at which port I shall embark. I shall therefore be able to

565

840514041

The Emma Goldman Papers

To Our Readers / Emma Goldman. – pp. 279-280 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 3, no. 7 (Sept. 1908).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

give cities along the route from one to two lectures.

Friends, this tour is to represent the battle royal for MOTHER EARTH. It is to be my last supreme effort to secure the magazine financially.

That MOTHER EARTH has friends—staunch and devoted friends—is best proven by this month's accounts of the Sustaining Fund,* in response to a personal letter, which the summer's hardships compelled me to send out. But the few who could and did help are not numerous enough to cover the monthly deficit; besides, I would rather not continue the magazine than burden my friends who have been so generous.

My last tour was undoubtedly a success, and, if added to this, I can cover new ground, I may be reasonably sure of accomplishing my cherished aim. The comrades who want to help make my tour a success, who want to arrange meetings, will communicate with me at once, as we have no time to lose. I shall have to give preference to the cities from which I hear first.

My list of subjects is not yet completed. I intend, however, to treat of the following themes:

The Dissolution of our Institution.
Puritanism, the Great Obstacle to Liberty.
The Psychology of Violence.
Marriage and Love.
Comrades, to Work!

Other subjects will be added.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

* * *

THE GENUINE TYPE IS ALWAYS SIMPLE

By W. C. OWEN.

"DON'T!" vehemently exclaims one of the characters in Oscar Wilde's "A Model Husband." "Don't use big words; they mean so little." It seems to me that nowadays, when hundreds of thousands make their living by appearing learned in literature, artistic criticism, and the various departments of what we are pleased to call the intellectual life, this is one of the most important lessons to take to heart. If Tolstoy had done nothing else, surely he would have laid us all under an inestimable debt for his insistance on this fact. In our daily, bread and butter life—the life that deals with the things with which we are entirely familiar and that, therefore, we know—we appreciate all this. There we do our best to bring people to the point; we try to get them to be clear, to tell us just what they mean, to drop the non-essential. This is the way in which we always act as regards things that seem to us of real importance.

* See p. 303.

But when we pass to the consideration of public affairs it seems that we are not so particular, although we are then entering on a domain with which we are less familiar, for we cannot know the affairs of millions of human beings so intimately as we know our own. Here, therefore, the footing is less secure, and it becomes the more necessary that the light should be clear; that we should not tolerate those who strive to confuse us by introducing long arguments on matters about which they cannot be positive. Above all, when we consider how inevitable it is that those who find themselves elevated to the position of leadership should quickly come to believe in the magic of their own high-sounding phrases, ought we to insist more strenuously than ever on the rules that we observe in ordinary life.

I doubt if Miss De Cleyre can believe more firmly than I do in emotion, since I consider it the most powerful of facts; but what I am convinced of is that emotion is excited by what we know, or, at least, by what, for the time being, we think we know. Here is a man wild with passion because he has been cheated, slandered, or otherwise injured. To him, for the moment, this is the actual fact in life; something entirely different from a vague, historical theory; and for that very reason he is profoundly moved. Nothing is of any importance as compared with the righting of that wrong; and it is this frame of mind that must be called into existence before the talk of overthrowing institutions, so deeply rooted as those we now complain of, can be other than wild vaporing.

But if facts are all-important, logic is still more so; for logic is the process by which facts, which standing alone would be comparatively weak, are shown to be linked together, forming a powerful combination. I take an illustration from the recent Socialist convention at Chi-

566

890222013

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Berkman's Partner Abuses the Police / Emma Goldman. — p. 9 ; 43 cm. In The New York Times. —(Sept. 14, 1908).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

BERKMAN'S PARTNER ABUSES THE POLICE

Cheers When Emma Goldman Says They're Not Worth Powder to Blow Them Up.

STENOGRAPHER ON WATCH

Brought In by Detectives and Has to Record a Defense of "Affinities" and Other Stuff.

Emma Goldman the Anarchist, closed a long defense of "affinities" yesterday with an attack on the police, in which she said the detectives of this city were not worth powder to blow them into perdition, even if she did not use the word "profession." The sentiment was hoisted on [illegible] by 300 or more men, women and children packed in a hall at 9[illegible] East Broadway.

Detectives Raftery and Bloom of the Police Bureau sat a few feet away from the speaker with a Police Headquarters stenographer taking down the speech, which was in German. They had been sent there by Acting Police Commissioner Ebser with instructions to stop the meeting should there be any violent demonstration against the police as a result of the arrest of Alexander Berkman last week. [illegible] took no action.

[illegible] about the east side [illegible] for the express purpose [illegible] demonstration, although [illegible] the Russian [illegible] Berkman, [illegible] Blackwell's Island [illegible] Berkman's [illegible] Emma Goldman's name, and [illegible] sprung each Berkman [illegible] Blackwell's Island [illegible] Berkman's [illegible] the platform [illegible] Miss Goldman [illegible] the police. She [illegible] Berkman and his sentence in the [illegible] to the [illegible] Anarchist [illegible] Anarchist [illegible] would not do again what [illegible] of [illegible] desired [illegible] Some of them [illegible] kept out of the [illegible] women should not live [illegible] not peer through [illegible] beat her husband in [illegible] his letters. [illegible] go into his room and [illegible] affairs [illegible] the meeting were told [illegible] of the publication of [illegible] which Berkman [illegible] getting out [illegible]

"BUFFS" CELEBRATE.

Gay Doings at an Engine House Raffle in Great Jones Street.

KNICKERBOCKER NOVELTIES.

J. B. Regan Has Brought New Grill-Room Devices from Europe.

The grillroom and main restaurant of the Hotel Knickerbocker, Broadway and Forty-second Street, both redecorated throughout the Summer, were reopened last night. The Astorbilt restaurant, which was opened last June to provide for open air dining, was closed. James B. Regan, proprietor of the hotel, who has recently returned from Europe, said that he had obtained there a number of things for both the grill and the main restaurant which will be innovations for an American hotel.

From France he brings 2,000 dozen pieces of chinaware for serving coffee in the grill. The pots and cups and saucers are made to match. The china pots will take the place of the customary silver pots. Also from France comes a number of big champagne glasses, made large enough to hold a French peach and champagne. The peach, costing $1—is pricked with a fork and put in the bottom of the glass, after which the champagne is poured in. This is supposed to flavor the drink, and after the champagne has disappeared the peach is left to be eaten.

All the Knickerbocker waiters, Mr. Regan said yesterday, will be furnished with silver cigar cutters from Berlin for preparing cigars for the guests of the hotel. He brought back, he said, a lot of solid silver funnels for straining old wines. All decanters will be of cut silver hereafter at the Knickerbocker.

"One of the most interesting things I found," he said, "was a ham boiler. I found that in Switzerland. It is heavily plated in the bottom on a raised base. Over it fits the [illegible] cut on a bias, and is inserted and the frame closed up, [illegible] in a tight hold with it on. The water is then able to get out slowly [illegible] of the ham or [illegible], as is wanted, without [illegible] it with the juices."

The grillroom has been decorated anew by James Wall Finn and Frederic J. Remington's picture of the Indians has been put in a new and better setting than the other one that used to be in the grillroom has been done away with, and thus we have gained [illegible] The grill, to dig [illegible]

Indeed, all the [illegible] the grillroom by [illegible] Bank the Amer[illegible] people to dance [illegible] and I shall [illegible] to dance [illegible] better [illegible] here from [illegible]

Mr. Regan spoke [illegible] the [illegible] in Paris. He [illegible] that it was [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

840514044

The Emma Goldman Papers

Apropos of My Lecture Tour / Emma Goldman. – pp. 318-319 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 3, no. 8 (Oct. 1908).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

Thirty years ago Germany stood foremost in the ranks of advanced thought. It was Germany that led in science; it was Germany to which the freethinkers and would-be emancipators of an enslaved world turned with ever growing hope. And to-day Germany is the most Kaiser-ridden, military-cursed country in the world, Russia not excepted. The Emperor rules, a true autocrat, and the worker may boast that he belongs to a party that has forty-three representatives in the Reichstag, making from time to time most eloquent speeches, but the bottom fact is that the moment he opens his mouth to complain of his unhappy lot the authorities throw him into prison.

That is what the ballot has done for him. Have you fared better?

Neither the old parties, mere agents of the plutocracy, nor the new party of political Socialists will or can ever do anything for you. It makes no difference for whom you vote. You only choose masters to still further oppress and enslave you. Cease to be their submissive tool. Stop being a sheep. You need no masters. Be a man; start to think and act for yourself. You will remain a slave as long as you are willing to delegate your powers.

Politics is a delusion and a snare. The workingmen can expect nothing from it. When they will cease to delegate their powers; when they will begin to produce for use, instead of for the employers' profit, then only will they win their freedom and independence.

❦ ❦ ❦

APROPOS OF MY LECTURE TOUR

THE announcement of my coming tour through America and Australia in the last issue of MOTHER EARTH has awakened considerable interest among friends and foes. The latter,—I mean the daily press,—are quite overjoyed, it seems, that America will soon be rid of such an evil as Emma Goldman.

Much as I sympathize with our bourgeois neighbors, I have to inform them that I have no desire to shake the dust completely of such a glorious land as ours. Besides, I believe in prevention of cruelty to animals, even to two-legged animals at the editorial helms of the New York Times and their colleagues who wrote such gleeful editorials about my departure. To leave America for good means to deprive these poor creatures of the only interesting object to write about. Where are their little brains to turn to for material of Anarchist plots and conspiracies, if I am not here? And therefore, if for no other reason, I shall have to return.

That our friends and comrades are interested in the coming tour they have proven by numerous requests for lectures from various cities along the route that I am to take.

I am therefore already able to announce that I will lecture on:

Oct. 18th-20th at Rochester, Germania Hall, Clinton avenue, N.
Oct. 21st at Pittsburg, Turn Hall, Fourth street.
Oct. 22d-24th at Cleveland.
Oct. 25th at Cincinnati, Vine Street Church.
Oct. 26th at Cincinnati.
Oct. 27th-29th at Indianapolis.
Oct. 30th to Nov. 1st at St. Louis.
Nov. 3d-6th at Kansas City.
Nov. 7th-13th at Omaha.

Meetings are also being arranged at Lincoln, Neb., Council Bluffs, Des Moines, Sioux City, Minneapolis, Fargo, Bismarck, Butte, Spokane, Seattle, and Portland. After that I shall go to California, where I expect to spend a month.

In cities where we have but few comrades, Dr. Ben L. Reitman will act as advance agent, in order to save time and break new ground. I ask the comrades to give him every assistance possible.

Below are the subjects I will discuss on my present tour:

The Dissolution of Our Institutions.
The Psychology of Violence.
Puritanism: the Greatest Obstacle to Liberty.
Life versus Morality.
Marriage and Love.
The Drama: the Strongest Disseminator of Radicalism.
The Political Circus and Its Clowns.

Mail intended for me should be addressed, as usual, to 210 East Thirteenth Street, New York City.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

568

890206006

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Emma Goldman Says She Is Coming Back / Emma Goldman.— p. 5 ; 40 cm. In The New York Times. —(Oct. 17, 1908).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

EMMA GOLDMAN SAYS SHE IS COMING BACK

Despite the Hopes Entertained That Australia Will Keep Her There.

SPEAKS A FAREWELL PIECE

Complacently Declaring for Everything That Will Hurt Existing Order— Profitable Audience of Girls.

In ... to take her farewell piece ... Emma ... Powers in Anarchy and ... at ... Hall, 114 Clinton Street, ... before starting on a long tour, of this country and Australia, but she dashed ... hopes which had been entertained that ... would voluntarily remain out of ... America.

"For ... of you all, and The New York ... particular," she said ... that I have my faith in the devil taking good care of me in the next year or so as ... that I shall come back!" ...

She ... in her old style to the ... many of them girls in the ... who crowded Clinton Hall to hear her at 25 cents a head. She has been talking at least once a week for some ... three months there, but Police ... Bingham always had ... on the audience to suppress any ... disturbance, and be ... to take down what she said. Miss Goldman understood that ... drew money at the box office ... if she wasn't good.

But ... was her last in New ... and she ripped ...

"I ... I am not hostile ... the agitation ... standing ... and order, and ... deeply ... I am for the ... yielding up ... all ... in here and now."

In ... Miss Goldman Alexander Berkman ... that ... street would ... "The Eternal ... Devil." "She ... does not ... her readers and turn ... ass," she ... "She is quite ... work ..."

... after which Miss Goldman ... She registered ... at the ... of the devil and ... Walt Whitman.

... other ... the ... had produced ... a ... of ... at ... ing ... and ... a ... which was wrong. She ... went on.

"... age is ... and ... Nature is not ... and ... irrational and ... ing ... Women ... slaves of ... and conventions. They get ... but they'll learn to break the ... some day.

Whitman was about the only real poet and consequent truth teller that this country has produced, she said. She referred copiously to her various magazines and pamphlets, which could be purchased at the door, and pleaded with her audience to ... for her magazine Mother Earth.

Miss Goldman appeared to be in excellent ... She knows she will not go to Australia with ... but remains here to keep the ... of Mother Earth coming ...

GRAYSON IS SUSPENDED.

Socialist Calls His House of Commons Colleagues "Murderers."

LONDON, Oct. 16. Albert N. Grayson, the Socialist member of the House of Commons from ... Yorkshire, who created a scene in the House yesterday by denouncing the members for not succoring the starving thousands on the streets of London after which he was obliged to leave the House, amid the cries of disapproval from his colleagues, was to-day suspended

SAYS LOEB MISLED HIM.

Ellis Island Caterer Threatens to Fight Loss of Contract.

There is likely to be trouble on Ellis Island at 2 o'clock this afternoon, for at that time the contract of Harry Balfe, caterer on the island, expires, and the Government intends to turn over the business of feeding immigrants to Fritz Brodt, a rival bidder. Mr. Balfe asserted yesterday that he would not give up without a fight, since he declared that statements of Secretary Loeb and Assistant Secretary Wheeler, made when Mr. Wheeler was Acting Secretary of the Department of Commerce and Labor, led him to believe that he was to be continued as caterer, and acting on this belief he made contracts for supplies.

These statements of Mr. Loeb and Mr. Wheeler, Mr. Balfe asserts, were made to him, when, upon learning that other bidders were after his contract, he went to Oyster Bay to see the President. He did not see Mr. Roosevelt, but declares that Secretary Loeb assured him there was no cause for worry, and that the President looked upon him with favor. Later Mr. Balfe asserts, Mr. Wheeler, in the hearing of Commissioner of Immigration, Robert Watchorn, gave him a renewal of the contract.

Commissioner Watchorn would not say yesterday whether or not he had heard the contract awarded to Balfe, but he declared that Balfe had told him that he should give way to Brodt without trouble. Balfe, however, has retained lawyers and threatens to fight his dismissal.

CLASH IN STANDARD OIL SUIT.

Objection to Government Counsel Shaking His Fist at Witness.

CHICAGO, Oct. 16. Cross-examination of W. D. Harbur, expert traffic witness called by the defense, brought out several clashes between counsel for the Government and for the Standard Oil Company similar to the bearing of the railroad phases of the Government's suit to dissolve the Standard Oil Company.

... that Judge Franklin Ferris was appealed to by Attorney Rosenthal to ... Frank B. Kellogg, Government counsel, to stand further away from the witness and stop shaking his fist in the face of the witness.

Judge Ferris told Mr. Rosenthal that he had seen no ... part of ... government attorney, and Mr. Kellogg ... that he had shaken his fist.

"... shaken my glasses," said Mr. Kellogg, "but not my fist."

"I object to your shaking your glasses, then," said Attorney Rosenthal.

"... attitude has been allowed counsel on both sides," said Judge Ferris. "Let the cross-examination proceed."

JESUIT BISHOP CONSECRATED

Ceremony for Laurenus Veres of Mexico Held In Washington.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16. With ... ceremonies ... directly or indirectly ... Pope, ... was consecrated in the presence of Mgr. Diomede Falconio, the Papal Delegate, the Right Rev. Laurenus Veres of the Diocese of Mexico was to-day consecrated a Bishop. The service was ... at Trinity Church, West Washington.

The day ... was held in this city in accord with the wishes of President Diaz of Mexico that the consecration by the Papal Delegate to the United States ... furnishes one of the few instances of a Jesuit being made Bishop in a Catholic church, the members of the society being almost exclusively teachers and pastors. Bishop Veres will return shortly to Mexico.

To Launch Largest Ocean Tug To-day.

The Mary F. Scully, the largest ocean tugboat afloat, will be launched to-day from the yard of her builders, the Staten Island Shipbuilding Company, at Port Richmond. The new tug was built for the Scully Towing Company of New York. She is of steel 150 feet long, 27 feet beam, 15 feet draught, and will carry 500 tons of coal.

She is fitted with a powerful searchlight, wireless telegraphy, and wrecking pumps, and will cost $150,000.

THE UNITED SERVICE.

The Army.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16. ... Capt. S. J. B. Schindel, Sixth Infantry, relieved from duty at Army War College Oct. 31 and will join his regiment.

First Lieut. J. C. Ballard, Medical Reserve Corps, will proceed to Fort Sam Houston, Texas, for temporary duty ...

NEGRO BULLY SHOOTS TWO WHITES HERE

His Face Battered to a Pulp When the Police Reserves Rescue Him.

SHOT A CONDUCTOR FIRST

Then Fled Through Brooklyn Street, Overturning a Little Girl, and Put a Bullet In Man Who Caught Him.

The crowd in a Bergen Street trolley car bound for Manhattan about 7 o'clock last night thereabouts enjoyed a fight which began when the car got to Rogers Avenue, Brooklyn, between the conductor, Henry Bellikoff, and a big negro who had refused to pay his fare and had afterward purposely placed himself on the running board, so that the car could not proceed without danger to him because of a wagon drawn up between the tracks and the curb. But the amusement changed to anger when the negro suddenly threw a ... over and ... Bellikoff in the left ...

A dozen ... sprang from the car as the conductor fell and ran toward the negro, ... what ... were raised on all sides. The negro realized his danger, and ... across Bergen Avenue turned down ... past the Union League Club, knocking down a man in evening clothes as he ran, and swung into Dean Street ... one of his pursuers.

Several ... were standing on the ... corner, and ... noticed an old and ... man ... short ... and ... should- ... stop running. ... crowd ... little, although ... ... and ... negro ... Avenue, ...

840514046

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Joys of an Agitator / Emma Goldman. – pp. 347-350 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 3, no. 9 (Nov. 1908).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

That describes the psychological status, which characterizes the results of the 11th of November, 1887.

The Black Friday grows to be more and more the day of the international proletariat; the day of mourning, but also the day of resentment, the day of the militant revolutionary spirit.

That the event of the 11th of November happened in a country reputed to be politically the most free and progressive in the world, in a republic which proclaims as its basis liberty and equality, gives it a special significance.

The 11th of November caused in many thinking minds the dissolution of this political superstition, and proved to be the failure of such a politically free country as far as the liberation of the modern proletariat is concerned. The condemnation of our comrades, with all its criminal and detestable tricks, showed that the tyranny which rules from behind the pedestal of the "sovereign people" is of a social and economical nature; and that "political freedom" and "equality before the law" are only cheap disguises to hide this fact from the multitude.

The 11th of November clarified the knowledge regarding the essential nature of modern republics and proved that exploitation and its institutions may reign supreme under any political mask, whether it be an absolute monarchy or a free republic. Under both forms of government these institutions are sacred, and those who doubt them and attack them must be crushed.

From this point of view the 11th of November was a great revelation to the international proletariat, and in this sense the Chicago crime of the Black Friday is commemorated in memorial meetings, which take place every year in November in many of the large cities in Europe.

They hold such memorial meetings in Barcelona and Madrid, in Rome and Milan, in Berlin, Vienna, and Zurich.

In his book "Paris and the Social Revolution," Alvan F. Sanborn writes on page 149:

"The anniversary of the death of Ravachol is celebrated by a pilgrimage of the faithful to the tomb of Diderot, who is regarded as a precursor of Anarchism (Montbrison, where Ravachol is buried, being too far away for Parisians); and every anniversary of the deaths of those who have died for the cause, and every funeral of a camarade is made a pretext for keeping alive the morbid cult. But the great saint day of the French Anarchist calendar is the 11th of November, the anniversary of the Anarchist executions at Chicago.

"All Anarchistic (one might almost say all revolutionary) Europe honestly believes that the Chicago hanging was as flagrant a violation of human rights, and the preceding trial as disgraceful a travesty of justice, as the worst absolute monarchy has ever had the audacity to perpetrate. Whatever the influence of this dramatic execution may have been in America, it was highly inflammatory in Europe. Under a practically free immigration system America will be indeed fortunate if it does not, sooner or later, import long stored-up rancor, originating from this event."

But the American proletariat? It does not, so far, understand the meaning of the 11th of November, but a revolutionary trade union movement will, must spring up from our unbearable social and economical conditions, and this movement will join, correspond with the movement of 1885-86, which resulted in the conspiracy of money and government to kill the tender buds of the revolutionary spirit of American labor.

* * *

THE JOYS OF AN AGITATOR

MUCH has been said and written of the great pioneers who attempted to break through the darkness of religious superstition. Yet whatever persecutions they may have endured, it does not seem to me likely that their obstacles were so hard to overcome as those one meets to-day in the attempt to destroy the political spook. After all, the religious superstition, while based on ignorance, also rests on the naivety of heart, on the childish belief in the power of the miraculous. Not so the political ghost. There is hardly an earnest and intelligent man in the country who really believes in its power, or has faith in politics. Yet that superstition has so eaten into the heart of the people, so dulled their senses that they are absolutely incapable of listening to

570

840514046

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Joys of an Agitator / Emma Goldman. — pp. 347-350 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. — Vol. 3, no. 9 (Nov. 1908).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

or appreciating anything that opposes that awful condition. The religious nightmare calls people to account for their mistakes, urges them to reform, to do better, to sin no more. The political monster opens up the very gates of hell, of all corruption and rottenness, and robs the stanchest hearts of what is good and fine in them.

Never was this more apparent than in the present campaign. Political pigmies, whom one wouldn't trust with one's purse, worked the political superstition with such skill that the people laid down their very souls, abdicated their reasoning and their self-respect.

Indeed, we who live in large cities, away from the political rabble, have not the faintest idea of the degrading, unnerving influence of politics upon the masses.

That I should have started my lecture tour at a time when the fiendish monster politics is celebrating mad orgies, with its victims paralized drunk, staggering in their blind worship, shows how naive we are, who live far removed from that disgusting spectacle.

Needless to say, my meetings were poorly attended, barely paying expenses. For some reason, Pittsburg turned out a large audience to hear the lecture on "The Political Circus and Its Clowns." Indianapolis, where six hundred people came to learn "What Anarchism Really Stands For," was saved by the police. The meeting was stopped in the same brutal, arbitrary manner as has often happened in other cities. Thus our contention that free speech and assembly is a myth has been proven true again. To be sure, the Indianapolis Mayor said that the police overstepped their power; but, of course, he could not go against the Department. No, not likely that one rogue will go against the other. The Chief, too, said that the stopping of the meeting may have been bad law, but it was good common sense. That the post of Chief of Police necessitates commonness no one will deny; surely no refined man would apply for the position of a ruffian. But when the Indianapolis Chief spoke of sense he must have been joking. Every child knows that the police have less sense than pigs.

I left New York with a large deficit for MOTHER EARTH, and lots of debts for literature investments and various miscellaneous things. I had hoped to accomplish enough during two weeks to warrant our reappearance in 64 pages. But the political muddle has frustrated my plans. I raised $133.00, while I had $165.00 expenses. MOTHER EARTH has no support; even the subscribers seem to consider it a special favor to pay up their subscriptions. I have no claim on any one who does not feel the impetus to assist. Nor do I propose that any one should have a claim on me. Therefore MOTHER EARTH will continue in its present size until I can make my meetings pay. We need every inch of space; besides, since none of the comrades seems to feel interest enough to help when the magazine is struggling for life, there is no reason why I should feel the necessity of keeping them posted whether MOTHER EARTH has enough to eat. As Anarchists we are under no mutual obligations, I take it. Henceforth there will be no accounts in MOTHER EARTH, either of our receipts or our expenditures, except an acknowledgment of contributions. Those who have assisted us staunchly, I mean the few faithful friends, will at times be informed as to our status quo.

* * *

Public activity in America would be unendurable if it were not for an occasional spirit one meets, who is like a bright spot upon a cloudy sky. Mr. Wm. Marion Reedy, of the St. Louis Mirror, is such a bright spot. Fearless, staunch, and liberty-loving,—that alone would stamp him a rarity among publishers and newspaper men. But he represents more than that. He is a bright, intelligent, and splendidly posted man in every line of thought. Nor does he lack that broad-mindedness which can appreciate ideas at variance with his own. He is, indeed, one of the rare exceptions among public men in this great land of ours. Thanks to Mr. Reedy's cooperation I had interesting and well attended meetings in St. Louis. I shall not mind whatever hardships I may yet have to overcome, if only it may be my good fortune to meet in every city a kindred spirit like Mr. Wm. Marion Reedy.

* * *

My tour will continue as follows:

Omaha .....November 7—14
Des Moines..... " 15

571

840514046

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Joys of an Agitator / Emma Goldman. – pp. 347-350 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 3, no. 9 (Nov. 1908).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

Minneapolis	November	17—22
Winnipeg	"	24—30
Fargo	December	2
Butte	"	6— 7
Spokane	"	9—11
Seattle	"	13—14
Vancouver	"	15—16
Portland	"	17—28
Los Angeles	First week in January.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

November, 1908.

* * *

INTERNATIONAL ANARCHIST CONGRESS OF 1909

IN accordance with the resolution taken by the Amsterdam Congress (August 24-31, 1907), a new international Congress will take place during the summer of next year; it will be the first to be held by the Anarchist International since its foundation, and at which we shall have to examine the work done during the last two years and try to take stock, for the future, of the experience of this first trial of an international Anarchist organization.

That the Congress should have the full importance it deserves and that it may have the help of comrades from distant lands (Argentine, Japan, etc.), it is necessary to begin at once its preparation.

We invite therefore the comrades of all countries to obtain as many adherents as possible, to communicate to us any ideas and propositions concerning the Congress which they would like to submit to the general discussion by publishing them in the Bulletin.

The exact date of the Congress, the town in which it shall be held, the conditions of admission, the questions to be discussed—these are all points to be decided upon. We shall only be able to do it when the general opinion of the comrades will be expressed.

As simply an organ of communication, the Bureau has only to register the wishes of the comrades and to coordinate them so as to satisfy the greatest possible number. But, while fulfilling the mandate received at Amsterdam to convene the new Congress, we believe to rightly interprete the intentions of the Amsterdam congressists as well as the spirit of our Association by extending the invitation not only to groups and individuals adhering to the International, but to all Anarchists—and we hope that all tendencies and shades in the Anarchist cause will be largely represented at the Congress.

As there is no engagement to be taken in advance, and as the resolutions that might be passed by those present would only bind those who approve of them and for as long as they approve them, no one need fear for his independence or his full liberty of initiative, while we all shall be able to gain from the discussion and from eventual understandings which may arise from the exchange of ideas and the personal intercourse established. For the internal business of the Association, private sittings will be held reserved to the adherents only. Those who would like to take any private decisions concerning any practical question, will find all necessary facilities accorded them by the meeting.

We also think—and we ask the comrades to take the thing into serious consideration—that it would be useful to limit the agenda to a few of the more important questions, and not to surcharge it with a number of subjects for which no time will be left for serious discussion, but which will only interfere with the time given to the chief subjects.

In any case—with the exception of the date and place, which must be decided in advance—the Congress remains master of its composition, its agenda, and of everything that concerns it.

We count on the enthusiastic activity of all Anarchists, and especially of those who, by their adhesion to the International, have shown their belief in the utility of a permanent organization between the Anarchists of all countries.

THE CORRESPONDENCE BUREAU OF THE ANARCHIST INTERNATIONAL.

Anarchist journals and reviews are requested to reproduce this appeal.

572

The Emma Goldman Papers
890206009
[Interview] Emma Goldman Says Anarchism Will Mean Absolute Equality and Freedom for Women with No Dual Code / Emma Goldman.— p. 1 ; 43 cm. In St. Louis Post-Dispatch. —(Nov. 1, 1908).
Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

Y MORNING, NOVEMBER 1, 1908.

Is Easier for Post-Dispatch Ad Answerers Than for Other People

PAGES 1—8

Emma Goldman Says Anarchism Will Mean Absolute Equality and Freedom For Women With No Dual Moral Code

She Tells Marguerite Martyn -That When Perfection Is Achieved Men and Women Will Be Equal.

Weaker Sex Will Achieve Glorious Equality by Demanding the Worship They Have Always Given.

BY MARGUERITE MARTIN.

EMMA GOLDMAN, leader of anarchy, whose speech and actions have shown nothing but defiance and hatred of what we term law, she who has been called the red-mouthed enemy of law, has more laws in her own heart than Blackstone ever recognized, and she obeys the laws she knows as proudly and willing as all "respectable" people obey our man-made laws.

She is by no means a lawless woman, as you might think, for she acknowledges all the laws of nature.

"Nature spells harmony. Even the dullest, the least impressionable of us is affected and influenced by the calmness and grandeur of nature when we come in contact with the great out-of-doors," she said.

We agree with her. Then why are we not all of Emma Goldman's belief? And why has she been pictured and written of as an implacable enemy of law?

These questions I was left to ponder upon after a talk with her. O, she is most convincing.

"The Devil Exonerated."

SHE is staying with her anarchist friend, Mrs. E. I. Adams of 1327 Franklin avenue, and is giving four lectures at Druid's Hall, Ninth and Market streets, before her departure on Monday for Australia.

"The Devil Exonerated," Sunday, at 3 p. m., at which meeting Mr. Marion Reedy will preside, is built upon the recent dramatic craze, "The Devil," and it is expected to attract the attention of many professional men.

She is a vividly impressive personality. One must have a good deal of imagination to fancy Joan of Arc as a more potent power in leading a revolution. And yet with all her railing against existing conditions, she has as yet led no armies to violence.

I asked her if it is her opinion that the wholesale murder of oppressors will be necessary and inevitable.

"The signs of the times are more and more reassuring," she replied. "Books, the drama and many of our most influential forces are preaching anarchy. But you know the pain and hardship it costs a mother to bring one little child into the world. I do not see how this complicated child, Society, is to be brought into a new being without pain and hardship.

"I love life," she continued. "The big, human universe. I by no means prefer riot and bloodshed and death. But anarchists are not passive spectators in the theater of social development. And through all ages the spirit of rebellion has been the spirit of progress."

The Greatest Problem.

THEN, while I made a fine drawing of her, I asked her to draw a word picture of what woman's position will be when the theories of anarchism prevail.

"You touch upon what I should consider the most vital subject in the world—the sex problem—if society were not so complex as to make it impossible to decide just what is the most important force.

"Woman's position should mean woman's freedom—her total emancipation; absolute sex equality. When perfection is achieved there will be that they are not George Sands, with absolute disregard of morality.

"This narrow, puritanical vision has banished man as the disturber from their life.

"Man was not to be tolerated at any price, except, perhaps as the father of a child, since a child could not very well come to life without a father.

"We have [illegible] the tragedy of the economic emancipation of woman, since she can choose her own trade or profession. We have seen her exchange the narrow walls and lack of freedom in her home to the narrowness and lack of freedom of office, department store or factory. We have seen her attempt to compete with men in business and professions prove futile under existing conditions.

"Nevertheless, the position of the working girl is far more natural and human than her seemingly more fortunate sister. You will say that with leisure and wealth a woman may have more opportunity for freedom. True, herself, so long will she be treated as such.

"She is no more responsible for the perpetuation of the race than are men, although she has shouldered the whole responsibility always. Anarchists do not believe with Socialists that so much as you produce so much should you consume.

"We do not talk of quantity, but of quality. The quality of woman's contribution to society would be equal to man's under proper conditions.

Woman's Highest Sphere.

"THE highest sphere of woman lies in developing her individuality, and she needs the whole world as a setting when she can shine resplendent.

"Those roses," and she alluded to a tall stalk of American Beauties which stood at her side, "would lose their effect without the green foliage to set them off. Just so does woman need her complimentary colors and

"Because refined people consider that phase of life their own, their very most sacred affair. No church or state has the right to the means of prying into it; no president has the right to dictate it, as Theodore Roosevelt has the impertinence to do. He would not have the right, if he were the father of all the large families [illegible] altitude of patriarch.

"Your love affairs are no more the business of your neighbor than [illegible] many times you have clean [illegible]

"What do you think of the [illegible] 'Three Weeks,' as a [illegible] independence?" I now asked, with trepidation.

Her Idea of "Three Weeks."

"AS a literary work I do not consider it, and at first I inclined not to read [illegible] had been misrepresented to me. I been given the impression heroine used her fine passion a means to an end, which

573
BEST COPY AVAILABLE

890206009

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Interview] Emma Goldman Says Anarchism Will Mean Absolute Equality and Freedom for Women with No Dual Code / Emma Goldman. – p. 1 ; 43 cm. In St. Louis Post-Dispatch. –(Nov. 1, 1908).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

knowledges all the laws of nature.

"Nature spells harmony. Even the dullest, the least impressionable of us is affected and influenced by the calmness and grandeur of nature when we come in contact with the great out-of-doors," she said.

We agree with her. Then why are we not all of Emma Goldman's belief? And why has she been pictured and written of as an implacable enemy of law?

These questions I was left to ponder upon after a talk with her. O, she is most convincing.

'The Devil Exonerated."

SHE is staying with her anarchist friend, Mrs. E. I. Adams of 1327 Franklin avenue, and is giving four lectures at Druid's Hall, Ninth and Market streets, before her departure on Monday for Australia.

"The Devil Exonerated," Sunday, at 3 p. m., at which meeting Mr. Marion Reedy will preside, is built upon the recent dramatic craze, "The Devil," and it is expected to attract the attention of many professional men.

She is a vividly impressive personality. One must have a good deal of imagination to fancy Joan of Arc as a more potent power in leading a revolution. And yet with all her railing against existing conditions, she has as yet led no armies to violence.

I asked her if it is her opinion that the wholesale murder of oppressors will be necessary and inevitable.

"The signs of the times are more and more reassuring," she replied. "Books, the drama and many of our most influential forces are preaching anarchy. But you know the pain and hardship it costs a mother to bring one little child into the world. I do not see how this complicated child, Society, is to be brought into a new being without pain and hardship.

"I love life," she continued. "The big, human universe. I by no means prefer riot and bloodshed and death. But anarchists are not passive spectators in the theater of social development. And through all ages the spirit of rebellion has been the spirit of progress."

The Greatest Problem.

THEN, while I made a line drawing of her, I asked her to draw a word picture of what woman's position will be when the theories of anarchism prevail.

"You touch upon what I should consider the most vital subject in the world—the sex problem—if society were not so complex as to make it impossible to decide just what is the most important force.

"Woman's position should mean woman's freedom—her total emancipation, absolute sex equality. When perfection is achieved there will be no more of this absurd idea of the dualism of sex. Man will possess enough of the womanly quality of gentleness—woman will possess enough of the manly quality of strength.

"The equalization of the forces of gentleness and strength will eliminate the undesirable forces of weakness and brutality – men and women will be perfect companions and the most enduring love is founded upon comradeship.

"Women Not George Sands."

"WOMAN has achieved some civil rights. Equal suffrage, gained in some localities, was a good demand. But the emancipated woman has been so misrepresented by yellow journalists and milk-and-water literateurs that the exponent of woman's rights rebelled, and lacking a sense of humor, has exerted her energy to prove that they are not as bad as they are painted; that they are not George Sands, with absolute disregard of morality.

"This narrow, puritanical vision has banished man as the disturber from their life.

"Man was not to be tolerated at any price, except, perhaps as the father of a child, since a child could not very well come to life without a father.

"We have seen also the tragedy of the economic emancipation of woman, since she can choose her own trade or profession. We have seen her exchange the narrow walls and lack of freedom in her home to the narrowness and lack of freedom of office, department store or factory. We have seen her attempt to compete with men in business and professions prove futile under existing conditions.

"Nevertheless, the position of the working girl is far more natural and human than her seemingly more fortunate sister. You will say that with leisure and wealth a woman may have more opportunity for freedom. True, but what freedom of thought or action she allows herself must be hidden behind closed doors at the peril of losing her position. And her cage is no less irksome for being a gilded one.

Where Emancipation Begins.

"NOT until woman possesses some attraction besides her sex will she have a mental or moral footing to stand upon. And the true emancipation begins neither in the courts nor at the polls. It begins with the woman's soul. Women are to achieve this glorious sex equality by demanding the respect, the worship for themselves that they have hitherto given the opposite sex. So much as woman demands, so much shall she receive. The more she receives from the world, the more she is in a position to give.

"There is no reason why she should always be merely a means to an end. So long as she makes a doormat of herself, so long will she be treated as such.

"She is no more responsible for the perpetuation of the race than are men, although she has shouldered the whole responsibility always. Anarchists do not believe with Socialists that so much as you produce so much should you consume.

"We do not talk of quantity, but of quality. The quality of woman's contribution to society would be equal to man's under proper conditions.

Woman's Highest Sphere.

"THE highest sphere of woman lies in developing her individuality, and she needs the whole world as a setting when she can shine resplendent.

"Those roses," and she alluded to a tall stalk of American Beauties which stood at her side, "would lose their effect without the green foliage to set them off. Just so does woman need her complimentary colors and environment. No woman who confines herself to the four walls of a home can advance with the world, so she is an obstacle to her own and her children's progress.

Finds Purity in Free Love.

"BUT you have no idea how many couples are living quietly and beautifully in what you call free love. The higher the mental development the more difficult to find a suitable mate—but the flower of such a union is the more perfect.

"I have in mind a man and his sweetheart who are too well known to mention, who, with their child, are examples of its exaltation. I know another radical couple who have lived side by side until now their sons are entering Yale and have proven the efficacy of the theory."

"But why don't we hear of them, since they have the courage of their convictions?" I asked.

"Because refined people consider that phase of life their own, their very most sacred affair. No church or state has the right to the means of prying into it; no president has the right to dictate it, as Theodore Roosevelt has the impertinence to do. He would not have the right, if he were the father of all the large families he so approves of, much less from the altitude of patriarch.

"Your love affairs are no more the business of your neighbor than how many times you have clean lines."

"What do you think of the novel, 'Three Weeks,' as a declaration of independence?" I now asked, without trepidation.

Her Idea of "Three Weeks."

"AS a literary work I do not consider it, and at first I was inclined not to read it, as I had been misrepresented to me. I had been given the impression that the heroine used her fine passion only as a means to an end, which would have been wholly wrong. But as the love story developed it was magnificent—a masterpiece.

"No, I do not believe Elinor Glyn is an anarchist. I rather think she relies upon her strong social position in defying conventions, and the success of her claim humor her, as an eccentric freak."

I asked her if she had distanced the numerous descriptions I have seen of her as having fierce black eyes, somber hair and masculine physique.

"No," she replied, "I have no desire to make myself felt in that way even for the sake of the strength such appearance might imply. I think you can see that I resort to no such tactics. And yet I love a rousing, sparkling black eye."

Her eyes are blue, her skin [illegible] soft and colorful. Her hair is a light brown, almost blonde, and waves gracefully back from a smooth brow. Her waist is [illegible] but none the less womanly. She wears the comfortable but not [illegible] costume of the Russian [illegible] dents.

"I do not try to [illegible] clothes for myself," she [illegible] admire any unusual [illegible] which is entirely [illegible] on. I have a [illegible] only people I'd get would be lunatics. That's all right, too. All the manicures would be dead if it wasn't for the lunatics.

SEPTEMBER 13—I've lost the ring Fred gave me. I don't care so much about the ring, but it's the association. That's a white lie, and I'll take it back right now. The ring cost $5 and has not a chip diamond concealed in it somewhere, but it only shows in the sun. Fred told me when he gave it to me that I mustn't value it on account of its intrinsic (that right?) worth, but on account of the purity of the sentiment involved. Now, what do you think of that?

SEPTEMBER 14—Oh! I believe I have found the man. He's at least thirty-five, but he is the darlingest darling in Chicago, and he isn't married. When I told pa, he said to wait a month or two, because the worst spavined horse looks all right in the twilight. Pa's getting to be a pessimist. I wonder if Clarence has any money. Honestly, I wouldn't care if he only had $8 a week, but it will be awful if he gets $12.

SEPTEMBER 15—I saw Clarence again. He doesn't look quite so good in daylight. When I asked him where his folks lived he said everybody he ever had in the world was dead and he had to face the world alone. It was awfully pathetic. I'm going to reserve judgment on Clarence. I don't believe he's spavined, but he looks collargalled. Anyway, you can't tell much about a man until he's taken you to dinner and you find out whether he eats Worcestershire sauce with his fish. I never saw a right man yet that didn't want Worcester with his fish and give the waiter 50 cents. He says that kind of a man that gives the waiter 50 cents will make his wife do the washing and trim over her last year hat. Clarence has little flecks of gray hair on the side. He looks intellectual, but I heard him say, "Don't want none," to the [illegible] car conductor that wanted [illegible] him transfers. [illegible] come in phases.

574

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

890206009

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Interview] Emma Goldman Says Anarchism Will Mean Absolute Equality and Freedom for Women with No Dual Code / Emma Goldman.— p. 1 ; 43 cm. In St. Louis Post-Dispatch. —(Nov. 1, 1908).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

ge Sands, with morality ical vision has disturber from olerated at any as the father could not very out a father the tragedy o' pation of wom-hoose her own

We have seen row walls and r home to the f freedom of ore or factory mp' to compete and professions g individuals per be ul ld ul
ul
ul

890206007

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Devil Called a Benefactor by Emma Goldman / Emma Goldman. – p. 16 ; 42 cm. In St. Louis Post-Dispatch. –(Nov. 2, 1908).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

DEVIL CALLED A BENEFACTOR BY EMMA GOLDMAN

His "Bad Impulses" Have Inspired All Progressive Movements, She Says.

"The Devil, the first free thinker and first benefactor the world has ever had," according to Miss Emma Goldman, the high priestess of anarchy, in a startling address Sunday afternoon at Druid's Hall.

"Religion has created the monstrous doctrine that all things connected with the flesh are evil," she declared. "The Devil has been blackened with the charge that he is responsible for the passions of the body. I say that the passions of the body are holy and beautiful, and that their demand for expression is a perfect justification for their satisfaction.

"If the Devil is responsible for the outbursts of passion against the conventional restraints which so-called morality has placed upon them, then everybody owes him an immense debt.

Devil in Literature.

"The Devil has been in all literature, from Marlowe's 'Dr. Faustus' to Mollnar's 'The Devil,' the angel of revolt and rebellion against conventions. All the great forward movements in civilization have been inspired by the bold impulses which have been ascribed to the Devil.

"No woman of today ever asks her fiance whether he has had a past. She knows that if he hasn't had one he is no man, but an imbecile."

William Marion Reedy introduced Miss Goldman as an "agitator possessed of the most powerful of all emotions—an idea."

"On behalf of myself and [illegible] distinguished citizen of St. Louis I take pleasure in welcoming Miss Goldman to this city," he said.

Miss Goldman's language in discussing free love was none the less restrained because she spoke to a mixed audience, several women being present. Most of the men greeted her declaration of individual liberty in love with cheers, but the women listeners mostly sat with bowed heads, blushing.

Advice to Golfer.

"De Clumsy: If I don't hit this time, it's the fault of the ball."

Miss Cobbe: "Of course! You should play golf with a football."

FOR AGED PEOPLE

Old Folks Should be Careful in Their Selection of Regulative Medicine.

With advanced age comes inactive bowel movement and sluggish liver. Nature is unable to perform her proper functions and requires assistance. Otherwise, there is constant suffering from constipation and its attendant evils. Old folks should never use physic that is harsh and irritating.

We have a safe, dependable and altogether ideal remedy that is particularly adapted to the requirements of aged people and persons of weak constitutions who suffer from constipation or other bowel disorder. We are so certain that it will cure these complaints

MOTHER HOPES DIVORCEE WILL WED VORHEES

"Miss" Farrar Declares She Has Gifts Professor Needs in a Wife.

ARE MENTALLY MATED

Mrs. Farrar Thinks Schoolteacher Would Make an Ideal Son-in-Law.

If Prof. George L. Voorhees and Miss Giralda Farrar marry, there will be one person made proud and happy that day. That person is Miss Farrar's mother. Miss Farrar says so herself.

She has given out a statement in Chicago declaring Mrs. Voorhees, who plows, who milks cows, who labors in the fields as the peasant women of Europe labor to provide for her eight children on the farm near Upper Alton, to be unworthy her intellectual husband.

Miss Farrar, divorcee, Saxon blonde, confessing to 40 summers, naively admits that wherein Mrs. Voorhees is lacking, she (Miss Farrar) is endowed with just the tastes and the mental gifts to glorify and make radiant and sweet the life of the principal of the Samuel E. B. Morse School in Chicago.

Thus stands the situation in the Voorhees affinity case and the divorce proceedings now pending in Chicago.

Mother Anxious for Wedding.

"The members of my family are very anxious for me to marry Mr. Voorhees," Miss Farrar told a Post-Dispatch reporter. "My mother says there is no one on earth whom she would be prouder of than Mr. Voorhees for a son-in-law."

Miss Farrar was not always Miss Farrar. Once she was Mrs. George McMillan. She lived with McMillan but five weeks. Six years ago she got a divorce. Non-support was the charge.

Voorhees is an old friend. Twenty-five years ago the Voorhees and the Farrar families were near neighbors in Chicago. The friendship between Miss Farrar and Prof. Voorhees, formed then, has grown with time.

"Should the courts grant Prof. Voorhees his freedom, would you marry him?" Miss Farrar was asked.

"I can only say that my mother would be very glad to see me marry him," was the reply. "The close relations between Prof. Voorhees and my family have existed for nearly a quarter of a century. I esteem him highly, very highly, indeed. Prof. Voorhees is an intellectual man. When my mother and myself went to live at 286 Rush street we went there to make a home for him. Previous to that time he never, in my estimation, had a home. His domestic life was not happy. The intellectual atmosphere necessary to a man of Mr. Voorhees' temperament was lacking.

"I surely will not be the one to blame a man for seeking intellectual society.

Double Trac

Lo

25c Corset Embroidery, 15½c
Beautiful wide Corset-Cover Embroidery, in blind and open effects; as an extra special; 3 yards to a customer, only 15½C
Main Floor—Aisle 3.

25c Cashmere Hose 14c
(1 to 1)
All cashmere, in black, tan, blue and other colors; light and heavy weight; for 2 hours only 14C
Main Floor—Aisle 8.

We

Rousing Hour Spec

$4 Jackets, $1.98
9 TO 10 A. M.
Nobby Fall Coats of all wool materials; stylish make and perfect fitting; for one hour Tuesday. $1.98

$8 Mi
Misses' S checked med braid a one hou

75c Taffeta Silk, 29c
Splendid assortment of plain and fancy Taffeta Silks, all colors, including black; also new satin stripe fancy silks 29

25c Red and White Damask, 14
200 yards 54-inch Red and White Damask, in beautiful patterns, as an extra special while it lasts, only 4 yards to a customer 14
Main Floor—Aisle 3.

$1 Kayser Gloves, 38c
Kayser's 2-clasp Silk Gloves, black and white, all sizes. Paris Point embroidered back, special 38C

15c Large as Silk Tr good sh white per doz

Ev

When you come to wa
milks are like it.
Then insi

How Quality is 576

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

840514048

The Emma Goldman Papers

En Route / Emma Goldman. — pp. 351-355 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 3, no. 10 (Dec. 1908).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

ers are not warned from time to time that the people preserve the spirit of resistance? Let them take up arms. . . . The tree of liberty must be refreshed from time to time with the blood of patriots and tyrants. It is its natural manure." Ask any school child if he was ever taught that the author of the Declaration of Independence, one of the great founders of the common school, said these things, and he will look at you with open mouth and unbelieving eyes. Ask him if he ever heard that the man who sounded the bugle note in the darkest hour of the Crisis, who roused the courage of the soldiers when Washington saw only mutiny and despair ahead, ask him if he knows that this man also wrote, "Government at best is a necessary evil, at worst an intolerable one," and if he is a little better informed than the average he will answer, "Oh well, he was an infidel!" Catechize him about the merits of the Constitution which he has learned to repeat like a poll-parrot, and you will find his chief conception is not of the powers withheld from Congress, but of the powers granted.

Such are the fruits of government schools. We, the Anarchists, point to them and say: If the believers in liberty wish the principles of liberty taught, let them never intrust that instruction to any government; for the nature of government is to become a thing apart, an institution existing for its own sake, preying upon the people, and teaching whatever will tend to keep it secure in its seat. As the fathers said of the governments of Europe, so say we of this government also after a century and a quarter of independence: "The blood of the people has become its inheritance, and those who fatten on it will not relinquish it easily."

(To be continued in the next issue.)

EN ROUTE

IN my last report I remarked that I should not mind the hardships of touring, if only my good star would occasionally let me meet a kindred spirit like Wm. Marion Reedy. I am sorry to say that until now fate, while quite generous with hardships, has not been so with the Reedys. Not that we lack thinking and feeling men and women in America. On the contrary; the number of people in all walks of life who have awakened to the realization of social and economic iniquities is simply astounding. In Kansas City, Mo., a new field to me, I had a constant stream of callers of both sexes. Not mere curiosity seekers, but people intensely interested in Anarchism, eagerly listening to its real meaning. Everyone found life barren and hard to bear; all agreed that ours is the most cruel, heartless, merciless age, with no recognition of individual worth or integrity. Everyone wants a change, but few there are who are willing and strong enough to voice their discontent in a loud, unmistakable protest against our system.

Although Dr. Reitman came to Kansas City but two days in advance of me, and in the very height of the election convulsion, the 2nd of November, he performed the miracle of arranging three meetings: one in Kansas City, Kansas, and two in Kansas City, Mo. The most interesting gathering was at the afternoon meeting of Nov. 6th, quite a number of professional and literary people turning out to hear "The Devil Exonerated." November 2nd and 3rd I lectured in Springfield and Liberal, Mo. In the former, a staunch, devoted, solitary soul, Comrade Fred Young, is making truly heroic efforts to keep our colors flying. The meeting in Liberal, though on election night, was interesting and gratifying because of the quality of the audience. Mostly sturdy farmers, of a simplicity and genuineness of soul that were really refreshing. Mr. Libscomb, who arranged the meeting, is a Socialist, of a tolerance and kindness of spirit that would put to shame the majority of our Eastern Socialists with their frantic effort to appear respectable.

In Omaha, Neb., preparations had been made for my coming some two months ago, a theatre rented, and the city covered with posters and cards. At the very last moment the owner of the theatre backed out, and we were

577

840514048

The Emma Goldman Papers

En Route / Emma Goldman. – pp. 351-355 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 3, no. 10 (Dec. 1908).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

compelled to look for other quarters. Halls were finally secured, and I was able to deliver eight lectures before fairly good-sized audiences. The most notable event of the week in Omaha was an 11th of November meeting, the first commemoration in this city of that cruel black Friday. It will interest the readers of MOTHER EARTH to know that in 1884 Albert Parsons, while on one of his brilliant lecture tours, also spoke in Omaha. But since that time until the 11th of November, 1908, no one enlightened the people of Omaha as to the greatest crime greed and authority committed in America. The police, who were quite disgusted that I should be allowed to speak, were in full force at our meeting. I was particularly bitter on that evening. Who would not be, with the memory of that horrible outrage of 1887 still turning his blood into fire? Everything went along smoothly that evening. But the next day the bluecoats retaliated with ferocity. They arrested Comrade Herman Michailowitch, a man whose untiring zeal and devotion to the cause compensate one for the lethargy and indifference so often met with in the radical ranks. Another man, who affected the nerves of Omaha's "finest," was brutally beaten on the head and kicked in the abdomen. Thanks to the efforts of a Single Tax friend, L. J. Quinby, Comrade Michailowitch was discharged the following day, while the other chap was kept in the county prison until his bruises would heal up. I hear now that he has been set free and furnished with transportation to South Dakota, his home, but that he is still in a bad condition as a result of the brutality of the police. Still, our good citizens insist that the world would go to perdition if laws and police were put out of business. I wonder how many drubbings the American lover of law will yet receive before he will learn to do without that criminal, vulgar, brutal institution, the police department. Omaha can be proud of one thing, however, the Women's Socialist Union, consisting of a group of women remarkably advanced, broadminded, and eager to keep abreast with modern ideas. It takes a long time before woman breaks with superstition and prejudice. But when she at last makes herself free, she rarely does so halfway, as is the case with most men, though the latter have always enjoyed greater opportunities to think and learn. The members of the little Omaha group are particularly to be congratulated on having eliminated puritanical mock modesty. The sex question is indeed one of the most vital of our time. Nowhere does one meet such density, such stupidity, as in the question pertaining to love and sex. Even radicals are still permeated with bourgeois morality in matters of sex, thanking the Lord they are not like the other fellows. Not so the women I have met in Omaha. Their breath of view and human appreciation of life's most vital elements were a great joy to me.

How little time and energy is indeed needed to arrange successful meetings for me, has again been demonstrated in Des Moines. Friend Reitman arrived in that city Friday morning, and Sunday we had two large meetings; in fact, so far the most successful on this tour. True, the newspapers and also the Chief of Police of Des Moines contributed to the success. A delegation of Jews and ministers called on the Chief urging him to stop me. To his credit be it said, he displayed greater judgment than is the usual heritage of his colleagues in other cities. He said that I "may" speak if I would observe the law. Fortunately, I am beyond good and evil, as far as laws are concerned. Since I do not believe in the necessity of laws, I am not in a position either to obey or break them. At any rate, no interference took place, and our halls were crowded.

Minneapolis and St. Paul did not make the usual showing. The comrade who arranged the meetings, though very earnest, lacks both experience and judgment, probably also time, as he works hard during the day. The hall was too far from the centre of the city, and but few cards were distributed. However, the situation was partially saved by the energy of Comrade Michailowitch, who had come to Minneapolis, and Dr. Reitman.

Winnipeg is, as ever, a splendid field for Anarchism, if only our Jewish comrades would devote more time to the English-speaking section of their city. But as with us in the States, the Jewish comrades in Winnipeg are still too Jewish, I fear, to really appreciate the great necessity of a wide-spread agitation in the language of the country they live in. At any rate, the Winnipeg comrades were less active in behalf of my meetings than on former occasions.

578

840514048

The Emma Goldman Papers

En Route / Emma Goldman. – pp. 351-355 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. –Vol. 3, no. 10 (Dec. 1908).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

The Canadians are still in the clutches of the Church, so that no admission can be charged on Sunday, and no literature sold. Yet Sunday is the best day for meetings. There were at least fifteen hundred people at both of my lectures on that day. I also had a debate with one of the leading Socialists, J. D. Houston, who ran as the Socialist party candidate for Parliament. The gentleman put forth the usual argument: "The State is an injurious, invasive institution, but we must make use of it until we have changed the system"; "Parliament has debauched many Socialists, but we must send our men there," etc., etc. However, there is one thing to be said about Mr. Houston—he is at least honest; he admits he knows nothing of Anarchism. He is very young in the Socialist movement, and therefore also knows little of the workings of that party. Else he would realize that, though as yet they have but little power, they have already become arbitrary, despotic, and compromising on every step. What would they be if they really had power? Fortunately the Lord has taken care that trees should not grow into heaven. An amusing feature of the debate was a Jewish convert to Christianity, now minister of the Baptist church which holds its services in the hall rented for the debate. When this soul baiter learned that I was to speak in "his" church, he called the wrath of his Lord and the police on my head, and vowed, cost what may, Emma Goldman shall not speak in Silkirk Hall. To the great chagrin of the pastor, God was busy attending to other matters, and the police refused to interfere. The janitor turned the keys over to us, and on Tuesday morning our boys took possession of the hall. The poor "servant of Christ" was beside himself and offered to pay the expenses and loss, about $130.00, if only Emma Goldman would not "desecrate" his church. Much as MOTHER EARTH needs cash, we refused the offer, as we thought the baptized Reverend needed a lesson.

I left Winnipeg not overburdened with gold, but with the satisfaction that much good had been accomplished by my visit there.

Since I wrote last, my meetings have considerably improved financially, but the net results are still far below those of my last tour, partly because the crisis is only now showing itself in all its cruelty. People were idle all summer, with no means to prepare for the necessities of the cold season. However, I am hopeful. I feel that though MOTHER EARTH will have to continue in its present form for some time, the danger of discontinuing altogether is past.

With greetings to all my friends,

EMMA GOLDMAN.

* * *

THE DAUGHTER OF THE DREAM

WILLIAM MARION REEDY in the St. Louis Mirror.

. . . She sees in the world nothing but the material to be remolded into something nearer to her heart's desire. And what is her heart's desire?

Freedom—absolute, unconditional, uninvasive freedom. That is Anarchy. There shall be no constraint of law upon the soul or the body of man. There shall be no duties except one's duty to one's self. There shall be no modification of any right, save a sense of and regard for the rights of others. Each individuality is to be a law unto itself. There shall be no institutions. Man and woman, too, shall be beyond man's rule. And the essence of all relations shall be—love. Free love, ask you? No. Just love, which is not love, if it be not free. Free of all the conventions, free of all ceremony, free of all influence save the promptings of love itself. There shall be no gods, no priests, no rulers, no judges, no policemen in the world she would make over. And before the world can be made over all present institutions must be destroyed —yes, all, except the I. Destroyed, how? By bombs? No. By ideas, by the new ideal of the sacred uninvasive privacy of man's being.

How she burns with the flaming ardor of her apocalyptic vision! How she sees it in the painting of Boecklin and of Stuck, in the rhapsodies of Nietzsche, in the chantings of Whitman and of Edward Carpenter, in the music of Wagner before "Parsifal," in Ibsen's drama, in Hauptmann's mysticism, in Gorky's brutal realism, in Rodin's statues, in D'Annunzio. She can see the airy oriflammes, can hear the dimly rising songs of intellectual revolt. The idea she can feel growing in the minds of thinkers. The ideal she can hear growing in the hearts

579

890222018

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Interview] Emma Goldman Says Everett Ought to Be Annexed to Russia / Emma Goldman. – p. 4 ; 28 cm. In The Everett Morning Tribune. – (Dec. 15, 1908).

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the University of Washington Libraries. Institutional Location: Manuscript Collection.

government exe of this con-States will re-prohibition. The s been a menace
se of his attitude, s been a mark for f the out-of-a-job
ted Oriental compe-Columbia has enough to remain a disturb-e labor market of the
on this side of the ortion is so small that effectively up the fuanti-Japanese sentied, should be placid.

—o—

that Lieut.-Gov. Hay's paign expenses reads f the provisions of ry law. If it is true is expenditures were hibited, he stands in sition of being open when he comes to
The law says that campaigns in ways disqualify a candi-and Mr. Hay's enuuses covers various treating. It will be in the time of the torney general's of-newspapers of the e of indefiniteness
f the law as to ne-

EMMA GOLDMAN SAYS EVERETT OUGHT TO BE ANNEXED TO RUSSIA

Last evening Emma Goldman [illegible] mud of Everett from her indignant feet and with her business agent, Dr. Reitman, departed for Bellingham, where the doctor has several college mates who have promised to hold a little reunion and the police have promised to arrest the belligerent Emma if she shall attempt to publicly proclaim her seditious doctrine.

In the absence of Mayor Jones the members of the police and fire commission yesterday afternoon conferred on the matter of allowing the apostle of anarchy to speak here, and it was decided that it was for the best interests of the city that she be denied this privilege. Chief Marshall accordingly notified Miss Goldman that he would arrest her if she tried to speak in public, and she promised that she would leave the city without making any demonstration.

Miss Goldman has found few opportunities of addressing audiences in this state on her present tour. Spokane refused to allow her to talk, and in Seattle Sunday evening she was headed off at the door of the hall which a crowd of about 200 sympathizers had broken into, and was taken to police headquarters where she was allowed her liberty on promise to leave the city and on payment of $1.50 to replace the broken lock. The landlord claimed: no arrangements had been made to lease the hall.

As one of the leading anarchists of the world Miss Goldman is an interesting personage. She is of short and rather pudgy figure, and not at all prepossessing. She dresses plainly but well as to quality of her apparel. In conversation one is impressed with her pugnacity, which is evidenced whenever the subject of interference with her liberty to speak is mentioned. Great muscles stand out on her neck when she grows indignant, and one can easily imagine her at the head of a mob or inciting her followers to violence. It is evident she is sincere in her crusade. She is a woman of education and has written much anarchistic literature. After she had been notified that she would not be allowed to speak here she came to the Tribune office to leave a parting protest.

"I am surprised," she said, "to find Russian methods in Everett. I offer your good people this:

"Resolved, that the city of Everett, in the state of Washington, should be taken off the American map and turned over to the dominion of the Russian czar.

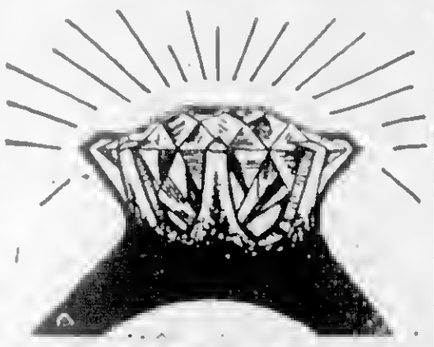
"Free speech! Free assembly! What a glorious principle! We alone, the children of a free country, can lay claim to it. Indeed, we give it to our children with their mother's milk; we give it to them in the schools. How it makes their hearts kindly and bosoms swell with that great refrain: Free speech, free press, free assembly! And yet, and yet, a handful of men, in a stuffy room in the city hall of Everett, decided on this day of the Lord, Dec. 14, 1908, that freedom of speech may be all right for America but it's all wrong for Everett. Their decision being backed by the power of the club, and might being right, free speech was grabbed by the throat and choked to death. 'My country 'tis of thee, sweet land of liberty.'

"Friday, Dec. 12, Dr. Ben L. Reitman, acting as my manager, secured Fraternal hall for a meeting to take place this evening. A deposit was paid after a contract was signed turning over Fraternal hall to Emma Goldman. No doubt the gentlemen of that hall are law-abiding citizens. The law provides that a contract is binding. Yet these very law and order people are the first ones to break the thing they believe in and demand. They refuse the hall, but forget that they have made themselves liable to damage.

"Another hall is secured, but the chief of police, who also believes in law, the law which guarantees free speech and assembly, this great patriot breaks his allegiance to American liberty and orders that Emma Goldman shall not speak. The city fathers, who certainly believe in law, aid and abet the conspiracy to throttle free speech.

"And so it has come to pass that American officials should Russianize an American city and that henceforth Columbia shall blush with shame over the treachery of her child Everett.

"Yes, but Emma Goldman is an anarchist. Oh, horrors! But what is anarchy? How are we to know if Emma Goldman is stopped from expression of her views or telling us what anarchism means? That's just it. Not Emma Goldman but free speech was stopped. As to anarchy, after all I do not blame the chief of police or the city fathers. Anarchism is a theory of human development, is therefore opposed to stagnation. Anarchism stands for freedom and non-interference, and is therefore opposed to the club. Anarchism stands for righteousness, and is therefore opposed to our social and economic iniquities; to crime and criminals. In short, anarchism believes in fellowship and brotherhood. Don't you see why it is offensive to a chief of police and city fathers?"



good or silverware.

WILLIE,
with the PACIFIC
HARDWARE CO.

Endless Varieties

Reduced Coats, Suits and Waists

DOLSON
"The Store Th
EVERETT T

DIAMONDS
—at the—
Little Jewelry Store
—with the—
Largest Stock
Buy here and save Money
H. N. SKINFER
The Optical Jeweler
1712 HEWITT AVE.

Waterfront Notes

The British steamer Belfast, which struck Seal rock last Friday night and was beached in Dugula bay will be towed to this port tomorrow evening and placed on the Everett marine ways for repairs. Two of the American Tughoat company's boats, the Mary C and the Edison, were sent to the scene of the wreck and with the aid of a piledriver the Belfast was lightened of about 150 tons of freight.

The scene of the wreck is a short distance this side of Deception pass. The Belfast struck Seal rock with force enough to cut a hole in the bow and the vessel at once began to fill. She was beached in shallow water at Dugula bay but the flood tide nearly covered her.

Fred E. Sander Sails.

In tow of the stout little tug Rosalie, Captain Ackles, the schooner Fred E. Sander departed from the City dock with a cargo of lumber for Rendondo. The Rosalie towed the schooner as far as Possession point, where the windjammer picked up a breeze and bowled away down the strait for the cape.

Talks To Business Men Of Work Of Y.M.C.A.

William E. Sweet, of Denver, last evening addressed the directors of the Y. M. C. A. and a number of business men on the value of Y. M. C. A. work in cities. Mr. Sweet is a wealthy business man of Denver. He gave $25,000 toward the erection of the association building in that city, and is president of the association, chairman of the state executive committee and is one of the most active members of the national association. He told of experiences in the way of securing do wealth and new building the principal
Y. M. C. A Yakima, and he is enthu
the associati learn of prog Sound cities, left on the O
B. C.

MINOR RAIL
SUES F

Summons case of Marti
H. Christopb litem vs the way was fil for judgment
$1,999 and c

Pay Less and Dress Better
—AT THE—
Norman Suit House
THE ONLY EXCLUSIVE SUIT HOUSE IN EVERETT
We Carry
High Art Clothing
PRIESTLEY'S RAINPROOF CRAVENETTES
And an Immense Line of UNCALLED FOR ORDERS
Which sell at One-half the Regular Price
The

A U XMA
The Dish so of—Clea Safe
Conv
It is ec ation a at.
Pric
Everett

FILES! FILES! FILES!

We Tell Ayer's Non-Alcoholic Cherry Pectoral
COMPLETE FORMULA
Each Fluid Ounce Represents

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

580

890209048

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Married State Attacked / Emma Goldman. – p. 16 ; 28 cm. In The Oregonian [Portland]. –(Dec. 21, 1908).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

to pass these marvelous values—Take advantage

Men's $15.00 Suits at $ 7.50
Men's $20.00 Suits at $10.00
Men's $25.00 Suits at $12.50
Men's $30.00 Suits at $15.00

$20.00, $25.00, $30.00 overcoats at one-half price—Young men's $15.00 to $30.00 suits at one-half price—Boys' $10.00 to $15.00 suits at one-half price—Little boys' Russian blouse and sailor suits at one-half price—Men's $25.00 cravenettes at one-half price—Be Here Early Today

terns; regular $2.25 values, at, each.. $1.74
7-piece nickel-plated Nut Sets—1 cracker and 6 picks; wonderful values, at, the set.. 19c
200 Candlesticks with fancy colored shade; regular $2.50 values, at, each.. $1.89
Bohemian Glass Nappies, gold handle; best $1.25 values, on sale at, special, ea 89c
50 nickel Chafing Dishes, 2-pint size, regular $3.75 values, on sale at, each.. $2.99
50 nickel Chafing Dishes, 3-pint size, regular $5.00 values, on sale at, each.. $3.95
Regular $6.50 nickel Chafing Dishes, ea.. $4.99
$2.50 nickel or brass 5 o'Clock Teas, at.. $1.88
Great Christmas sale of Carving Sets, best styles:
Regular $ 3.25 Carving Sets on sale for $2.59
Regular $ 4.50 Carving Sets on sale for $3.57
Regular $ 6.50 Carving Sets on sale for $4.79
Regular $ 7.50 Carving Sets on sale for $5.95
Regular $10.00 Carving Sets on sale for $7.95

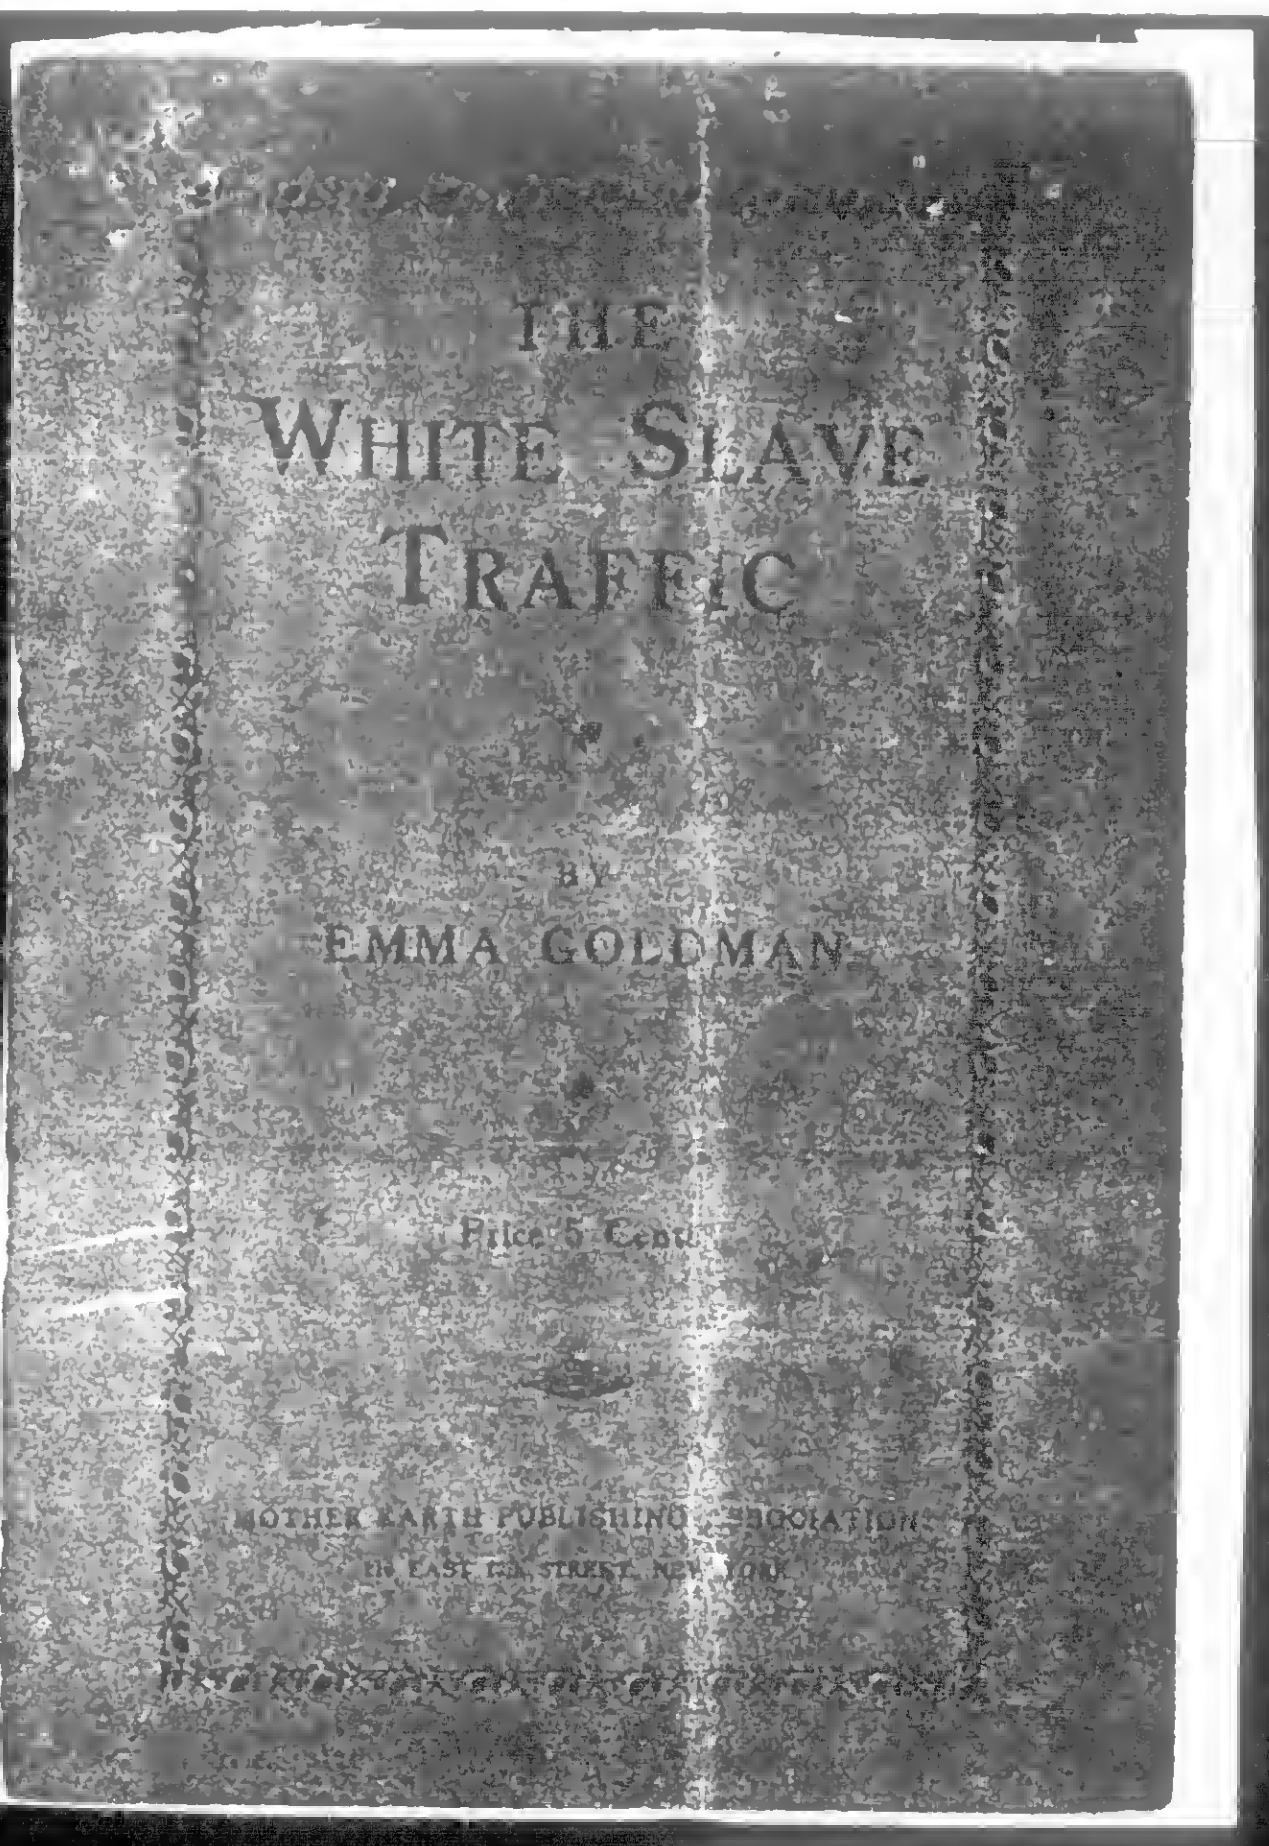
know you cannot equal anywhere in town

Great special sale of silk and wool Batiste Tailored Waists, made with broad pleats, pin or ½-inch tucking and embroidered designs; plain styles, fancy stripes, polka dots and plaids, all colors; values up to $8.50 each, on sale at this low price, ea.. $3.95
Women's Net and Messaline Silk Waists, fancy-trim'd, with yokes of lace, silk embroidery or braid; applique effect medallions and pin tucks; long sleeves, trimmed with tucks and lace; white, pink, light blue, mais and dark colorings; very handsome assortment to select from; grand values, special at.. $6.45
Special lot of taffeta silk, messaline silk and net Waists, made with fancy round yokes of lace, Gibson effect, in wide embroidered filet fronts of ½-inch tucking, with rows of Persian bands; white, lavender, blue, cern, canary, green, etc.; large variety to select from; unusual values, at this low price, ea.. $5.45

MARRIED STATE ATTACKED

EMMA GOLDMAN TALKS OF FREE LOVE.

Says Wives Have No Privacy and Women Lose Their Independence When They Wed.



Miss [illegible] woman [illegible] of priestess of what [illegible] very distressed [illegible] interesting [illegible] to have [illegible] E. S. Wood [illegible] [illegible] her and she [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

89061041

The Emma Goldman Papers

The White Slave Traffic / Emma Goldman. – New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., [1909]. – 12 p. ; 19 × 13 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the United States Library of Congress.

THE

WHITE SLAVE

TRAFFIC

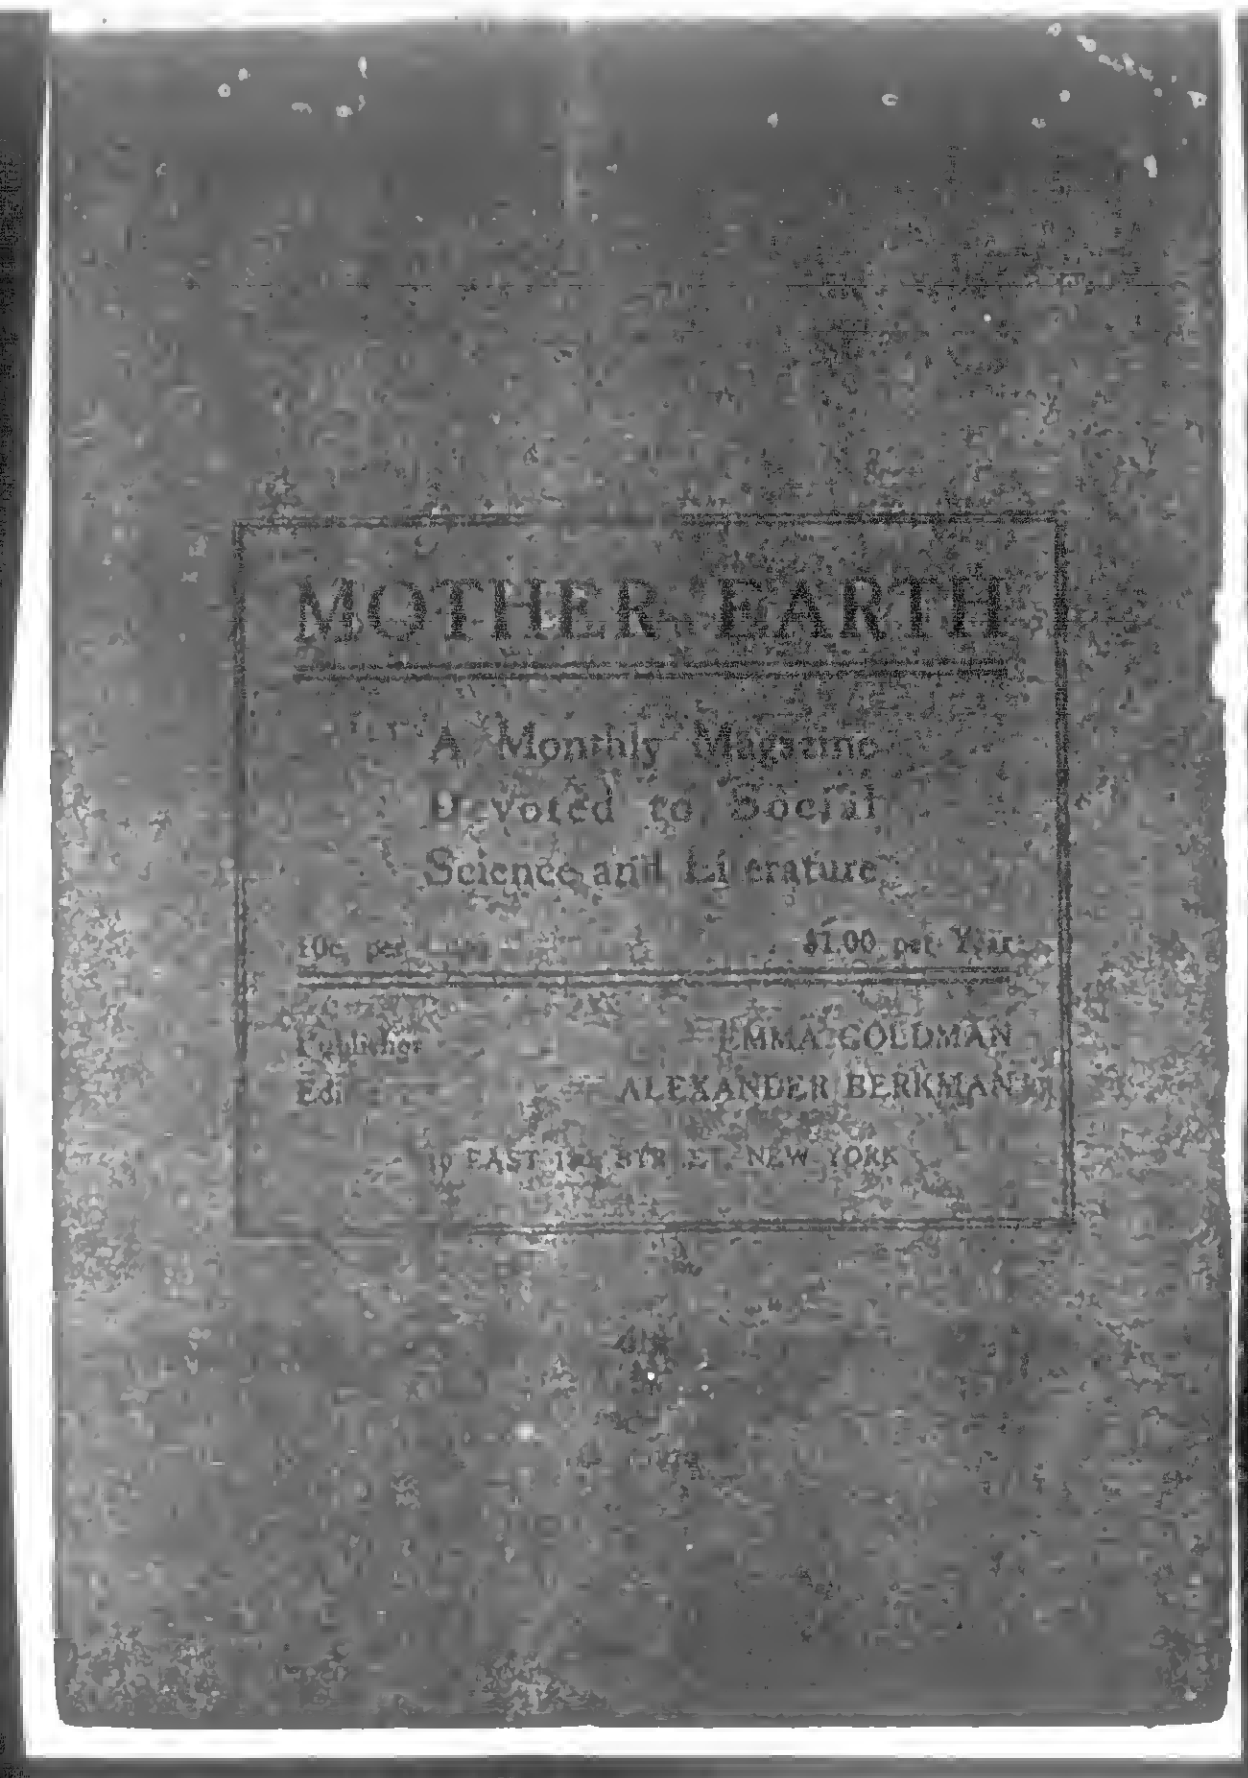
BY

EMMA GOLDMAN

Price 5 Cents

MOTHER EARTH PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION

55 EAST 125TH STREET, NEW YORK



BEST COPY AVAILABLE

89061041

The Emma Goldman Papers

The White Slave Traffic / Emma Goldman. New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., [1909]. — 12 p. ; 19 × 13 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the United States Library of Congress.

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

890611041

The Emma Goldman Papers

The White Slave Traffic / Emma Goldman. — New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., [1909]. — 12 p. ; 19 × 13 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the United States Library of Congress.

THE WHITE SLAVE TRAFFIC

OUR reformers have suddenly made a great discovery: the white slave traffic. The papers are full of these "unheard of conditions" in our midst, and the lawmakers are already planning a new set of laws to check the horror.

How is it that an institution, known almost to every child, should have been discovered so suddenly? How is it that this evil, known to all sociologists, should now be made such an important issue?

It is significant that whenever the public mind is to diverted from a great social wrong, a crusade is inaugurated against indecency, gambling, saloons, etc. And what is the result of such crusades? Gambling is increasing, saloons are doing a lively business through back entrances, prostitution is at its height, and the system of pimps and cadets is but aggravated.

To assume that the recent investigation of the white slave traffic by George Kibbe Turner and others (and by the way, a very superficial investigation), has discovered anything new is, to say the least, very foolish. Prostitution was and is a widespread evil, yet mankind goes on its business, perfectly indifferent to the sufferings and distress of the victims of prostitution. As indifferent, indeed, as mankind has so far remained to our industrial system, or to economic prostitution.

Only when human sorrows are turned into a toy with glaring colors will baby people become interested,—for a while at least. The people are a very fickle baby that must have new toys every day. The "righteous" cry against the white slave traffic is such a toy. It serves to amuse the people for a little while, and it will help to create a few more fat political jobs—parasites who stalk about the world as inspectors, investigators, detectives, etc.

What really is the cause of the trade in women? Not merely white women, but yellow and black women as well. Exploitation, of course: the merciless Moloch of capitalism that fattens on underpaid labor, thus driving thou-

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

890611041

The Emma Goldman Papers

The White Slave Traffic / Emma Goldman.— New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., [1909].— 12 p. ; 19 × 13 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the United States Library of Congress.

HQ251
G6

sands of women and girls into prostitution. With Mrs. Warren these girls feel, "Why waste your life working for a few shillings a week in a scullery, eighteen hours a day?"

Naturally, our reformers say nothing about this cause. George Kibbe Turner and all other scribblers know the cause well enough, but it doesn't pay to say anything about it. It is so much more profitable to play the Pharisee, to pretend an outraged morality, than to go to the bottom of things. Yet no less an authority than Dr. Sanger, the author of "The History of Prostitution,"* although not a radical, has this to say:

"A prolific cause of female depravity can be found in the several tables, showing the description of the employment pursued and the wages received by the women previous to their fall, and it will be a question for the political economist to decide how far mere business consideration should be an apology on the part of employers for a reduction in their rates of remuneration, and whether the savings of a small percentage on wages is not more than counterbalanced by the enormous amount of taxation enforced on the public at large to defray the expenses incurred on account of a system of vice, which is the direct result, in many cases, of insufficient compensation of honest labor."

The economic reason given for prostitution in the above quotation can be found in all works of any consequence dealing with the question. Nor is it necessary to seek information in books; one has but to observe everyday life to realize that there are thousands of girls working for two or three dollars a week, withering away in factories and shops, while life passes by in all its joy and glory, leaving them behind. What else are they to do? However, our present-day reformers would do well to look into Dr. Sanger's book. There they will find that out of 2,000 cases under his observation, but few came from the middle classes, from well-ordered conditions, or pleasant homes. By far the largest majority were working girls and working women. Some driven into prostitution through sheer want, others be-

* It is a significant fact that Dr. Sanger's book has been excluded from the U. S. mails. Evidently the authorities are not anxious that the public be informed as to the true cause of prostitution.

585

890611041

The Emma Goldman Papers

The White Slave Traffic / Emma Goldman. – New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., [1909]. – 12 p. ; 19 × 13 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the United States Library of Congress.

cause of a cruel, wretched life at home, others again because of thwarted and crippled physical natures (which I will speak of again later on). Also it will do the maintainers of purity and morality good to learn that out of 2,000 cases 490 were married women, women who lived with their husbands. Evidently there was not much of a guarantee for their safety and "purity" in the sanctity of marriage.

The very last to cry out against prostitution is our "respectable" class, since it was that class that ushered in prostitution, from Moses to Trinity Church. Dr. H. Ploss, Dr. Alfred Blaschko, Dr. W. W. Sanger, and other eminent writers on this subject convincingly prove that prostitution originated with the so-called upper classes. I quote Dr. Sanger:

"Our most ancient and historical records are believed to be the books of Moses; according to them it must be admitted that prostitutes were common among the Jews, many centuries before Christ. Moses appears to have connived at the intercourse of Jewish young men with foreign prostitutes. He took an Ethiopian woman himself. Assyrian women, Moabites, Midianites, and other neighbors of the Jews established themselves as prostitutes in the land of Israel. Jephtha, the son of a prostitute, became none the less Chief of Israel."

Moses evidently believed that therein lay the greatest safeguard for the daughters of his own people. We shall see presently that the Christians were not so considerate of their own daughters, since they did not employ foreigners for that purpose.

The history of the Christian Church will also serve as a history of prostitution, since the two always went hand in hand and furnished thereby great revenues for the Church.

Dr. Sanger cites the case of Pope Clement II., who issued a bull that all prostitutes were to pay a certain amount of their earnings, and that those living on prostitution were compelled to give half their income to the Church. Pope Sixtus IV. received 20,000 ducats from a single brothel, which, incidentally, he himself had built. Nor is it unknown that a great many cloisters and nunneries were in reality nothing else than brothels.

In modern times the Church is a little more careful

586

89061 1041

The Emma Goldman Papers

The White Slave Traffic / Emma Goldman. – New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., [1909]. – 12 p. ; 19 × 13 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the United States Library of Congress.

in that direction. At least, it does not openly demand tribute from prostitutes. It finds it much more profitable to go in for real estate, like Trinity Church, for instance, to rent out death traps at an exorbitant price to those who live off and on prostitution.

Much as I should like to, my space will not admit speaking of prostitution in Egypt, Greece, Rome, and during the Middle Ages. The conditions in the latter period are particularly interesting, inasmuch as prostitution was organized into guilds, presided over by a Brothel Queen. These guilds employed strikes as a medium of improving their condition and keeping a standard price. Certainly that is more practical a method than the one used by the modern wage slave in society.

Never, however, did prostitution reach its present depraved and criminal position, because at no time in past ages was prostitution persecuted and hounded as it is to-day, especially in Anglo-Saxon countries, where Phariseeism is at its height, where each one is busy hiding the skeletons in his own home by pointing to the sore of the other fellow.

But I must not lose sight of the present issue, the white slave traffic. I have already spoken of the economic cause, but I think a cause much deeper and by far of greater importance is the complete ignorance on sex matters. It is a conceded fact that woman has been reared as a sex commodity, and yet she is kept in absolute ignorance of the meaning and importance of sex. Everything dealing with that subject is suppressed, and people who attempt to bring light into this terrible darkness are persecuted and thrown into prison. Yet it is nevertheless true that so long as a girl is not to know how to take care of herself, not to know the function of the most important part of her life, we need not be surprised if she becomes an easy prey to prostitution or any other form of a relationship which degrades her to the position of an object for mere sex gratification.

It is due to this ignorance that the entire life and nature of the girl is thwarted and crippled. We have long ago taken it as a self-evident fact that the boy may follow the call of the wild, that is to say that the boy may, as soon as his sex nature asserts itself, satisfy that nature, but our moralists are scandalized at the very thought

587

890611041

The Emma Goldman Papers

The White Slave Traffic / Emma Goldman. — New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., [1909]. — 12 p. ; 19 × 13 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the United States Library of Congress.

that the nature of a girl should assert itself. To the moralist prostitution does not consist so much in the fact that the woman sells her body, but rather that she sells it to many.

Having been looked upon as a mere sex-commodity, the woman's honor, decency, morality, and usefulness have become a part of her sex life. Thus society considers the sex experiences of a man as attributes of his general development, while similar experiences in the life of a woman are looked upon as a terrible calamity, a loss of honor and of all that is good and noble in a human being. This double standard of morality has played no little part in the creation and perpetuation of prostitution. It involves the keeping of the young in absolute ignorance on sex matters, which alleged "innocence," together with an overwrought and stifled sex nature, helps to bring about a state of affairs that our Puritans are so anxious to avoid or prevent. This state of affairs finds a masterly portrayal in Zola's "Fecundity."

Girls, mere children, work in crowded, overheated rooms ten to twelve hours daily at a machine, which tends to keep them in a constant over-excited sex state. Many of these girls haven't any home or comforts of any kind; therefore the street or some place of cheap amusement is the only means of forgetting their daily routine. This naturally brings them into close proximity with the other sex. It is hard to say which of the two factors brings the girl's over-sexed condition to a climax, but it certainly is the most natural thing that a climax should follow. That is the first step toward prostitution. Nor is the girl to be held responsible for it. On the contrary, it is altogether the fault of society, the fault of our lack of understanding, of lack of appreciation of life in the making; especially is it the criminal fault of our moralists, who condemn a girl for all eternity because she has gone from "the path of virtue"; that is, because her first sex experience has taken place without the sanction of the Church or State.

The girl finds herself a complete outcast, with the doors of home and society closed in her face. Her entire training and tradition are such that the girl herself feels depraved and fallen, and therefore has no ground to stand upon, or any hold that will lift her up.

588

890611041

The Emma Goldman Papers

The White Slave Traffic / Emma Goldman. – New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., [1909]. – 12 p. ; 19 × 13 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the United States Library of Congress.

instead of throwing her down. Thus society creates the victims that it afterwards vainly attempts to get rid of.

Much stress is laid on white slaves being imported into America. How would America ever retain her virtue if she didn't have Europe to help her out? I will not deny that this may be the case in some instances, any more than I will deny that there are emissaries of Germany and other countries luring economic slaves into America, but I absolutely deny that prostitution is recruited, to any appreciable extent, from Europe. It may be true that the majority of prostitutes of New York City are foreigners, but that is only because the majority of the population is foreign. The moment we go to any other American city, to Chicago or the middle West, we shall find that the number of foreign prostitutes is by far a minority.

Equally exaggerated is the belief that the majority of street girls in this city were engaged in this business before they came to America. Most of the girls speak excellent English, they are Americanized in habits and appearance,—a thing absolutely impossible unless they have lived in this country many years. That is, they were driven into prostitution by American conditions, by the thoroughly American custom for excessive display of finery and clothes, which, of course, necessitates money, money that can not be earned in shops or factories. The equanimity of the moralists is not disturbed by the respectable woman gratifying her clothesophobia by marrying for money; why are they so outraged if the poor girl sells herself for the same reason? The only difference lies in the amount received, and of course in the seal society either gives or withholds.

I am sure that no one will accuse me of nationalist tendencies. I am glad to say that I have developed out of them, as out of many other prejudices. If, therefore, I resent the statement that Jewish prostitutes are imported, it is not because of any Judaistic sympathies, but because of the fact inherent in the lives of these people. No one but the most superficial will claim that the Jewish girls migrate to strange lands unless they have some tie or relation that brings them there. The Jewish girl is not adventurous. Until recent years, she had never left home, not even so far as the next village or town, unless it were to visit some relative. Is it then

589

890611041

The Emma Goldman Papers

The White Slave Traffic / Emma Goldman. — New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., [1909]. — 12 p. ; 19 × 13 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the United States Library of Congress.

credible that Jewish girls would leave their parents or families, travel thousands of miles to strange lands, through the influence and promises of strange forces? Go to any of the large incoming steamers and see for yourself if these girls do not come either with their parents, brothers, aunts, or other kinsfolk. There may be exceptions, of course, but to state that a large number of Jewish girls are imported for prostitution, or any other purpose, is simply not to know the Jewish psychology.

On the other hand, it speaks of very little business ability on the part of importers of the white slaves, if they assume that the girls from the peasant regions of Poland, Bohemia, or Hungary in their native peasant crude state and attire would make a profitable business investment. These poor ignorant girls, in their undeveloped state, with their shawls about their heads, look much too unattractive to even the most stupid man. It therefore follows that before they can be made fit for business, they, too, must be Americanized, which would require not merely a week or a month, but considerable time. They must at least learn the rudiments of English, but more than anything else they must learn American shrewdness, in order to protect themselves against the many uniformed cadets, who prey on them and fleece them at every step.

To ascribe the increase of prostitution to alleged importation, to the growth of the cadet system, or similar causes, is highly superficial. I have already referred to the former. As to the cadet system, abhorrent as it is, we must not ignore the fact that it is essentially a phase of modern prostitution,—a phase accentuated by suppression and graft, resulting from sporadic crusades against the social evil.

The origin of the cadets, as an institution, can be traced to the Lexow investigation in New York City, in 1894. Thanks to that moral spasm, keepers of brothels, as well as unfortunate victims of the street, were turned over to the tender mercies of the police. The inevitable consequence of exorbitant bribes and the penitentiary followed.

While comparatively protected in the brothels, where they represented a certain value, the unfortunate girls

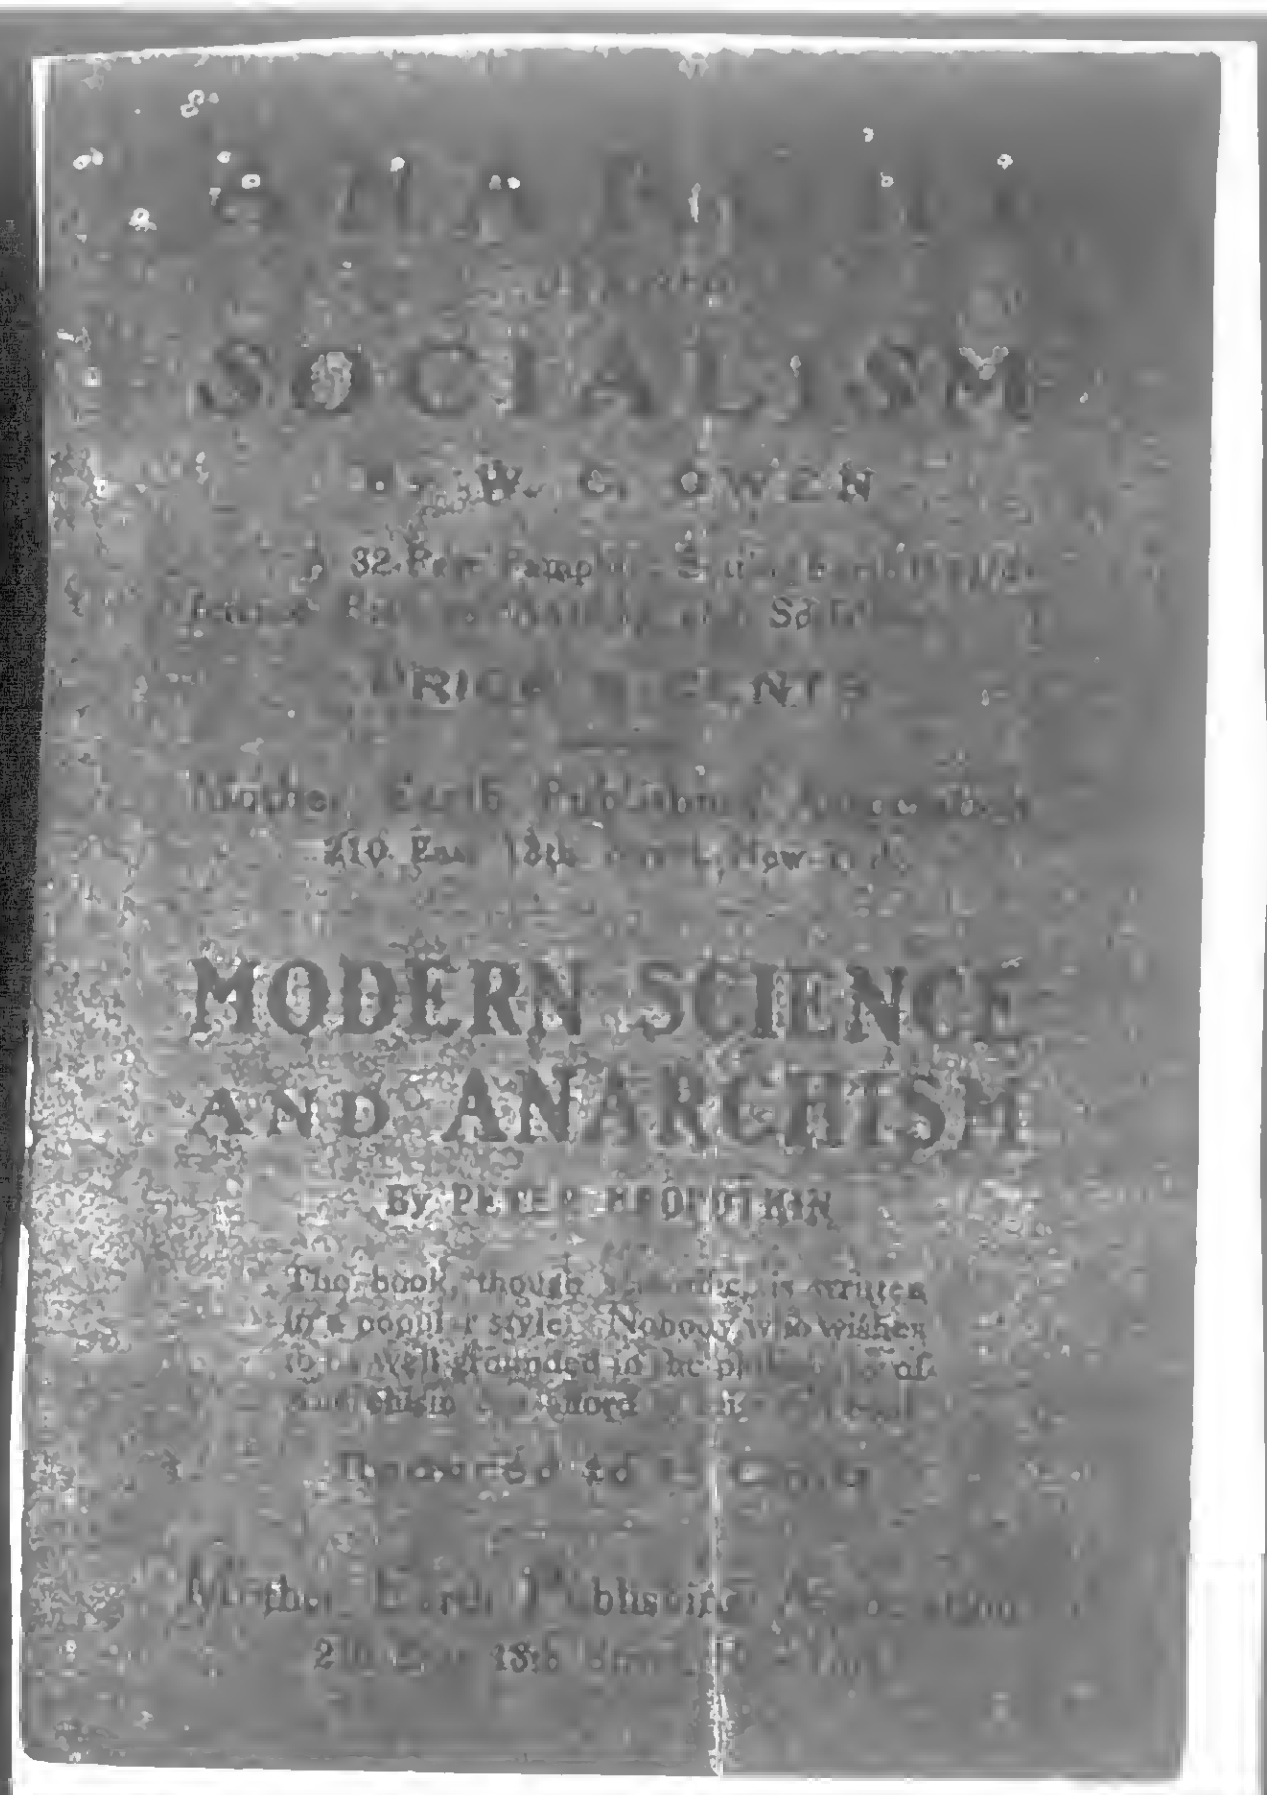
590

890611041

The Emma Goldman Papers

The White Slave Traffic / Emma Goldman. — New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., [1909]. — 12 p. ; 19 × 13 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the United States Library of Congress.



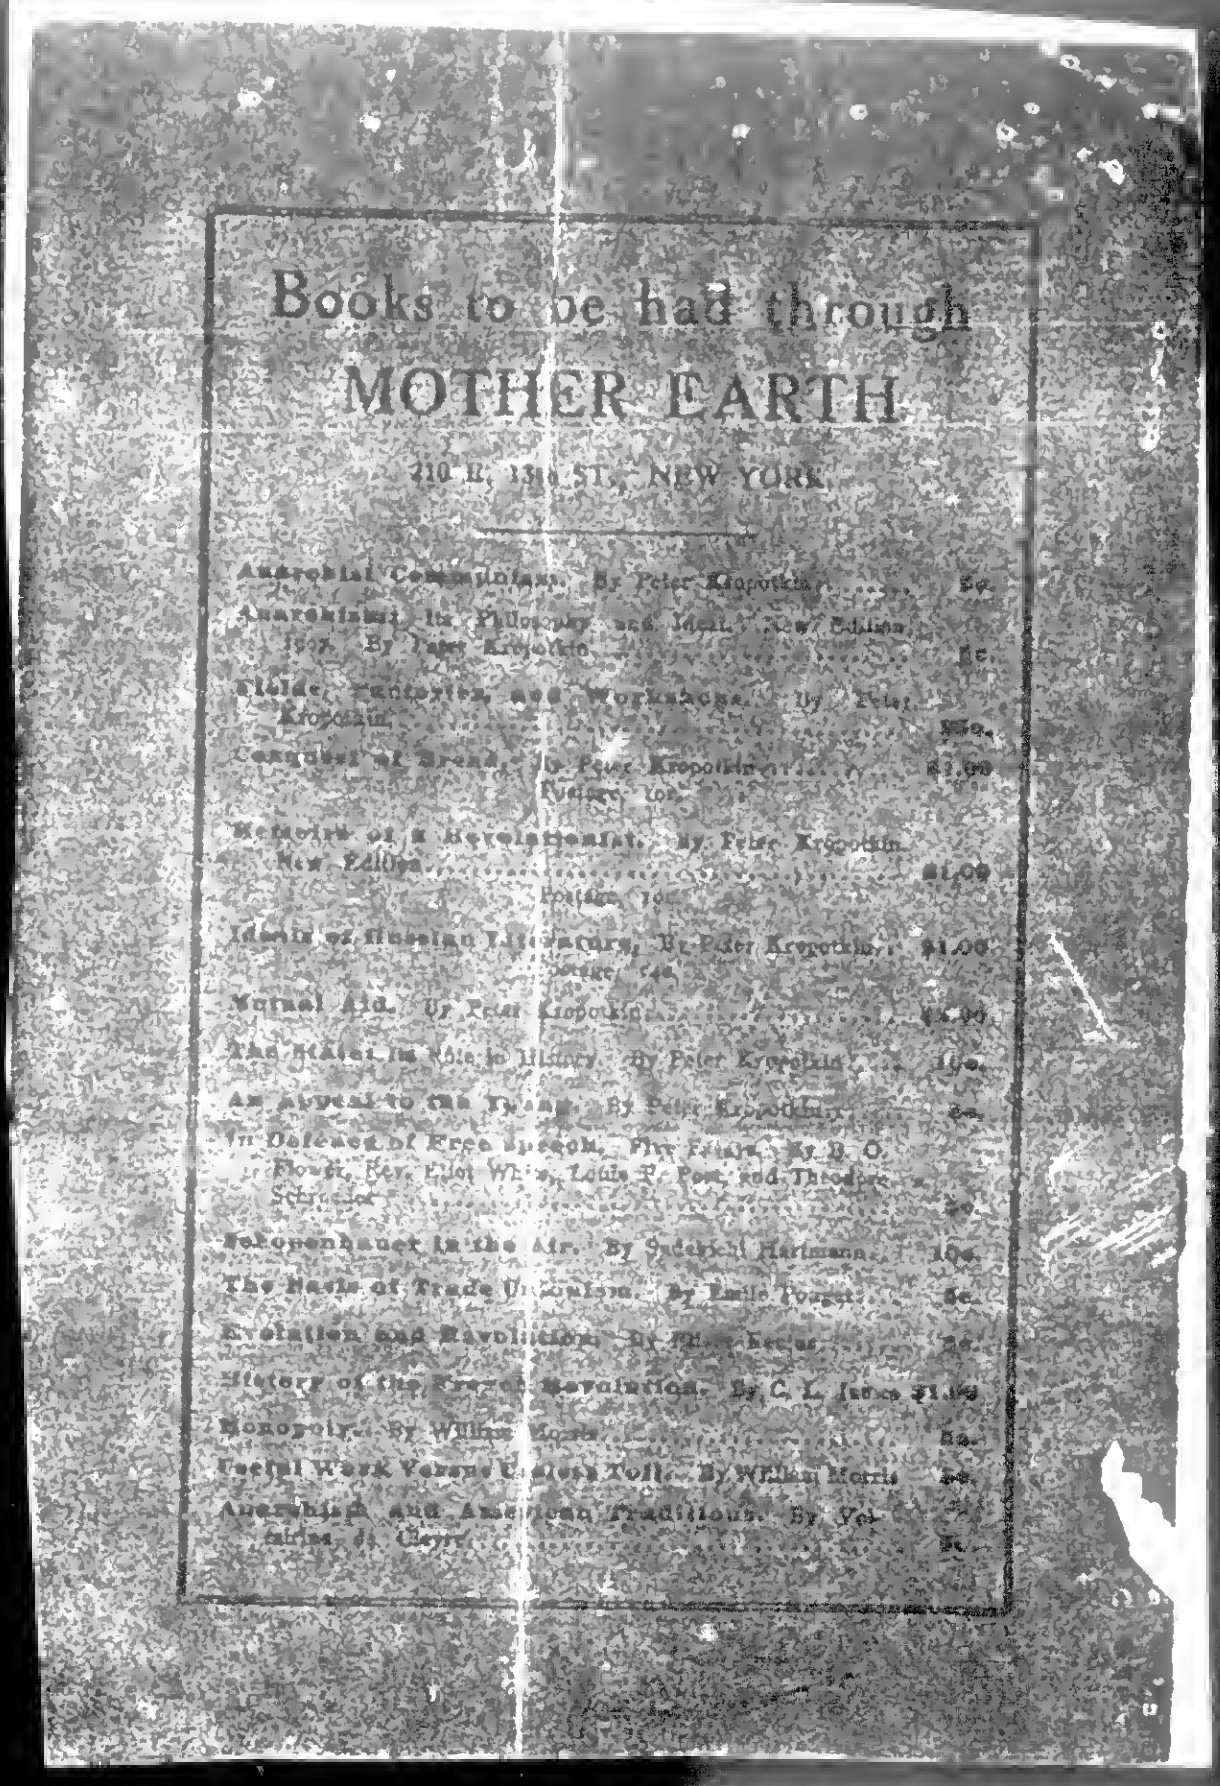
now found themselves on the street, absolutely at the mercy of the graft-greedy police. Desperate, needing protection and longing for affection, these girls naturally proved an easy prey for cadets, themselves the result of the spirit of our commercial age. Thus the cadet system was the direct outgrowth of police persecution, graft, and attempted suppression of prostitution. It were sheer folly to confute this modern phase of the social evil with the causes of the latter.

The serious student of this problem realizes that legislative enactments, stringent laws, and similar methods can not possibly eradicate, nor even ameliorate this evil. Those best familiar with the subject agree on this vital point. Dr. Alfred Blaschko, an eminent authority, convincingly proves in his "Prostitution im 19. Jahrhundert" that governmental suppression and moral crusades accomplish nothing save driving the evil into secret channels, multiplying its dangers to the community. In this claim he is supported by such thorough students as Havelock Ellis, Dr. H. Ploss, and others.

Mere suppression and barbaric enactment can serve but to embitter and further degrade the unfortunate victims of ignorance and stupidity. The latter has reached its highest expression in the proposed law to make humane treatment of prostitutes a crime, punishing anyone sheltering a prostitute with five years imprisonment and $10,000 fine. Such an attitude merely exposes the terrible lack of understanding of the true causes of prostitution, as a social factor, as well as manifesting the Puritanic spirit of the Scarlet Letter days.

An educated public opinion, freed from the legal and moral hounding of the prostitute, can alone help to ameliorate present conditions. Wilful shutting of eyes and ignoring of the evil, as an actual social factor of modern life, can but aggravate matters. We must rise above our foolish notions of "better than thou," and learn to recognize in the prostitute a product of social conditions. Such a realization will sweep away the attitude of hypocrisy and insure a greater understanding and more humane treatment. As to a thorough eradication of prostitution, nothing can accomplish that save a complete transvaluation of all accepted values—especially the moral ones—coupled with the abolition of industrial slavery.

591



BEST COPY AVAILABLE

The Emma Goldman Papers

The White Slave Traffic. Emma Goldman. ... New York: Mother Earth Pub. Assn. [1909]. ... 12 pp. ... 13 cm.

Pamphlet reprinting ... Paper read ... Mother Earth ... Vol. 4 No. 1 (March 1909) ...

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

830719010

The Emma Goldman Papers

A New Declaration of Independence / Emma Goldman.— New York : [Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n?], 1909.— 2 p. ; 14 × 17 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the Princeton University Library. Institutional Location: Roger N. Baldwin Papers.

fruits of his efforts; that each and every individual has the unquestionable and unabridgeable right of free and voluntary association with other equally sovereign individuals for economic, political, social and all other purposes, and that to achieve this end man must emancipate himself from the sacredness of property, the respect for man-made law, the fear of the Church, the cowardice of public opinion, the stupid arrogance of national, social, religious and sex superiority, and from the narrow puritanical conception of human life. And for the support of this Declaration, and with a firm reliance on the harmonious blending of men's social and individual tendencies, the lovers of liberty joyfully consecrate their uncompromising devotion, their energy and intelligence, their solidarity and their lives.

Published in "Mother Earth", Vol. IV— 1909-10.

A New Declaration of Independence

830719010

The Emma Goldman Papers

A New Declaration of Independence / Emma Goldman.— New York : [Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n?], 1909.— 2 p. ; 14 × 17 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the Princeton University Library. Institutional Location: Roger N. Baldwin Papers.

A NEW DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE

By Emma Goldman

When in the course of human development, existing institutions prove inadequate to the needs of man, when they serve merely to enslave, rob, and oppress mankind, the people have the eternal right to rebel against, and overthrow these institutions. The mere fact that these forces—inimical to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness—are legalized by statute laws, sanctified by divine rights, and enforced by political power, in no way justifies their continued existence.

We hold these truths to be self-evident: that all human beings, irrespective of race, color or sex are born with the equal right to share at the table of life; that to secure this right, there must be established among men economic, social and political freedom; we hold further that government exists but to maintain social privilege and property rights; that it coerces man into submission and therefore robs him of dignity, self-respect and life. The history of the American kings of capital and authority is the history of repeated crimes, injustice, oppression, outrage and abuse, all aiming at the suppression of individual liberties and the exploitation of the people. A vast country, rich enough to supply all her children with all possible comforts, and insure well-being to all, is in the hands of a few, while the nameless millions are at the mercy of ruthless wealth-gatherers, unscrupulous lawmakers and corrupt politicians. Sturdy sons of America are forced to tramp the country in a fruitless search for bread, and many of her daughters are driven into the streets, while thousands of tender children are daily sacrificed at the altar of Mammon. The reign of these kings is holding mankind in slavery, perpetuating poverty and disease, maintaining crime and corruption; it is fettering the spirit of liberty, throttling the voice of justice and degrading and oppressing humanity. It is engaged in continual war and slaughter, devastating the country and destroying the finest qualities of man; it nurtures superstition and ignorance, sows prejudice and strife and turns the human family into a camp of Ishmaelites.

We, therefore, the liberty-loving men and women, realizing the great injustice and brutality of this state of affairs, earnestly and boldly do hereby declare—, That each and every individual is and ought to be free to own himself and to enjoy the full fruit of his labor; that man is absolved from all allegiance to the kings of authority and capital; that he has by the very fact of his being, free access to the land and all means of production, and entire liberty of disposing of the 890713007

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Drama: The Strongest Disseminator of Radical Thought / Emma Goldman. — pp. 19-23 ; 18 cm. In The Suppression of Free Speech / edited by Alden Freeman. — East Orange : East Orange Record Print, [1909].

Obtained from the Wayne State University Libraries.

prophets who dissipated the clouds of superstitution and ignorance and prejudice which had for centuries enveloped the minds of men and who let in the sunlight of truth and science aud reason.

It may he said without exaggeration that Thomas Paine and Charles Darwin were in turn the Elijah and the Elisha of the eighteenth and the nineteenth centuries of the Christian era. One hundred years ago today Thomas Paine let fall his mantle of light upon the infant shoulders of Charles Darwin and vanished in a chariot of fire that shall blaze the trail of the seeker after truth from generation unto generatiou.

"Where liberty dwells, there is my country"—BENJAMIN FRANKLIN.

Introduction of Miss Goldman.

In introducing Miss Goldman, Mr. Freeman said:

It occurred to the managers of The Open Forum that this one huudredth anniversary of the death of the great agitator of the American Revolution could not he more fittingly observed than by listening to au address hy the most conspicuous agitator for freedom of thought and speech in America today. The Forum has therefore invited Miss Emma Goldman to deliver her lecturo on "The Modern Drama, the Strongest Disseminator of Radical Thought." Miss Goldman has delivered this lecture in the chief cities of the United States, and you have an intellectual treat in store. The Forum does not ask you to agree with all you hear from its platform. That you could not possihly do, for we endeavor to give a hearing to views which are widely opposed. The motto of The Forum is, "Prove all things. The Truth shall make you free."

I sometimes ask people why they consider this speaker or that "dangerous," and whether they would he themselves afraid to hear them speak. They iuvarlahly reply, "Oh, no; of course not dangerous for me to listen. But exceedingly dangerous for poor people and ignorant people to listen to." Well, my mind is at easc tonight, for it is well known that everyhody in East Orango is well-to-do and very intelligent.

I am glad that East Orange and New Jersey have this opportunity to observe that Miss Goldman has neither hoofs nor horns, and that she is not a witch, riding on a hroomstick in her journey across the Jersey meadows to speak in East Orange.

When in future you weep over the ill-usage and martyrdom of the heroine of Charles Kingsley's novel, "Hypatia," I would ask you to consider whether the teacher of Greek philosophy to the youth of ancient Alexandria has not her counterpart in America today. I have too much confidence in the clemental common sense of the American people to believe that the manhood and the womanhood of the great nation established hy Thomas Paine and George Washington, by Benjamin Franklin and Thomas Jefferson, will permit Emma Goldman to share the fate of Hypatia.

I have the honor to introduce Miss Goldman.

THE DRAMA

The Strongest Disseminator of Radical Thought

[This is the Lecture which the Police of New York and East Orange refused to allow Emma Goldman to deliver in Halls hired and paid for by her.]

596

890713007

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Drama: The Strongest Disseminator of Radical Thought / Emma Goldman.– pp. 19-23 ; 18 cm. In The Suppression of Free Speech / edited by Alden Freeman. – East Orange : East Orange Record Print, [1909].
Obtained from the Wayne State University Libraries.

The purpose of this lecture is to show that the drama, more than any other vehicle of human expression—such as the essay, article, or speech – has awakened radical thought. That this is so can be best proven by illustrations from various countries, with the possible exception of Russia and France.

Russia, with its terrible political pressure, has made people think and has awakened their sympathies, because of the tremendous contrast which exists between the intellectual life of the people and the despotic regime that is trying to crush that life. So, while the great dramatic works of Tolstoi, Tchechov, Gorki and Andrejev closely mirror the life and the struggle, the hopes and aspirations of the Russian people, they did not influence radical thought to the extent the drama has done in other countries.

France, on the other hand, with its struggle for liberty of centuries' duration, can be looked upon as the cradle of radical thought, and as such she, too, did not need the drama as a means of awakening the consciousness of her people. And yet the works of Brieux - such as "Robe Rouge," portraying the terrible corruption of the judiciary—and Mirbeau's "Les Affaires sont Des Affaires," picturing the destructive influence of wealth on the human soul, have undoubtedly reached wider circles than many of the articles and books which have been written in France on the social question.

In countries like Germany, Scandinavia, England, and even in America -though in a slight degree—the drama is that vehicle which is really making history, disseminating radical thought in ranks otherwise not to be reached.

Let us take Germany, for instance. From '48 till the 80's men of brains, of ideas and of the greatest integrity, made it their lifework to spread the truth of human brotherhood, of justice, among the oppressed and downtrodden of that country. Socialism, that tremendous revolutionary wave, was to the victims of a merciless and inhumane system like water to the parched lips of the desert traveler. Alas! The cultured people remained absolutely indifferent; to them that revolutionary tide was but the murmur of dissatisfied, discontented men, dangerous, illiterate trouble-makers, whose proper place was behind the bars.

Self-satisfied as the "cultured" usually are, they could not understand why one should fuss about the fact that thousands of people were starving, though they contributed towards the wealth of the world. Surrounded by beauty and luxury, they could not believe that side by side with them lived human beings degraded to a position lower than a beast's, shelterless and ragged, without hope or ambition.

This condition of affairs was particularly pronounced in Germany after the Franco-German war. Full to the bursting point with its victory, Germany thrived on a sentimental patriotic literature, thereby poisoning the minds of the country's youth by the glory of conquest and bloodshed.

Intellectual Germany had to take refuge in the literature of other countries, in the works of Ibsen, Zola, Daudet, Maupassant, and especially in the great works of Dostoyevsky, Tolstoi and Turgeniev. But as no country can long maintain a standard of culture without a literature and drama related to its own soil, so Germany gradually began to develop a drama reflecting the life and the struggles of its own people.

Arno Holz, one of the youngest dramatists of that period, startled the Philistines out of their ease and comfort with his "Familie Selicke." The play deals with society's refuge, men and women of the alleys, whose only subsistence consists of what they can pick out of the garbage barrels. A gruesome subject, is it not? And yet what other method is there

597

890713007

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Drama: The Strongest Disseminator of Radical Thought / Emma Goldman.— pp. 19-23 ; 18 cm. In The Suppression of Free Speech / edited by Alden Freeman. — East Orange : East Orange Record Print, [1909].
Obtained from the Wayne State University Libraries.

to break through the hard shells of the minds and souls of people who have never known want and who therefore assume that all is well in the world.

Needless to say, the play aroused tremendous indignation. The truth is bitter, you know, and the people living on the Fifth Avenues of Berlin hated to be confronted with the truth.

Not that "Familie Selicke" represented anything that had not been written about for years without any seeming result. Only the dramatic genius of Holz, together with the powerful interpretation of the play, could not help making inroads into the widest circles and setting people to thinking about the terrible inequalities around them.

Sudermann's "Ehre," too, dealt with a vital subject of that time. I have already referred to the sentimental patriotism so completely turning the head of the average German as to create a perverted ridiculous conception of honor, the doubting of which was considered a most heinous crime. Duelling became an every-day affair, costing innumerable lives. A great cry was raised against the fad, especially by the well-known writer and noblewoman, Bertha Von Suttner, and many other leading people. But nothing acted as such a clarifier and exposer of that national disease as the "Ehre."

Not that the play deals with duelling; it merely analyzes the real meaning of honor, proving that it is not a fixed inborn feeling, but that it varies with every people and every epoch, and it depends particularly on one's economic station in life. For instance, Sudermann tells us, the man in the brownstone mansion will necessarily define honor differently from the type described in the "Familie Selicke." Or, as Count Trast, the principal character in the "Ehre," a man widely conversant with the customs of various climes, relates that in his many travels he chanced across a savage tribe whose hospitality expressed itself, among other things, in offering the tribe's women to the stranger. The refusal to accept such hospitality was considered a mortal insult.

Thus Sudermann's "Ehre" helped to disseminate radical thought by showing the stupidity and absurdity of fixed conceptions of honor.

The dramatist who not merely disseminated radicalism, but literally revolutionized the thoughtful Germans, is Gerhardt Hauptmann. His first play, "Before Sunrise," refused by every leading German theatre and first performed in a wretched little playhouse behind a beer garden, acted like a stroke of lightning, illuminating the entire social horizon. Its subject matter deals with the life of an extensive land owner, ignorant, illiterate and brutalized, and his economic slaves of the same mental calibre. The influence of wealth, both on the victims who created it and the possessor thereof, is shown in the most vivid colors, resulting in drunkenness, idiocy and decay. But the most striking feature of "Before Sunrise," the one which brought a shower of abuse on Hauptmann's head, was the question as to whether or not a poor woman should bring children into the world indiscriminately; whether she is not the only one having a right to decide how many victims she is to place in this cold, cruel world.

During the second performance of the play a leading Berlin surgeon almost caused a panic in the theatre by swinging a pair of forceps over his head and screaming at the top of his voice: "The decency and morality of Germany are at stake if childbirth is to be discussed openly from the stage." The surgeon is forgotten, and Hauptmann stands a colossal figure before the world.

Hauptmann is one of the most versatile dramatists of the world, and his critique of social arrangements has taken up every stratum of society. "Kollege Kramton" treats of the economic struggle and artists un-

598

890713007

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Drama: The Strongest Disseminator of Radical Thought / Emma Goldman. — pp. 19-23 ; 18 cm. In The Suppression of Free Speech / edited by Alden Freeman. — East Orange : East Orange Record Print, [1909].

Obtained from the Wayne State University Libraries.

willing to prostitute their art. Kramton, a painter of great genius, is driven to the wall by a number of superficial, would-be artists whose talents consist of making ugly, shriveled, wealthy old ladies appear young and handsome. Thus "Kollege Kramton" proves that the economic struggle, with all its accompanying horrors, is not merely the curse of the workers, but is also gradually undermining the life of all classes.

Max Halbe's "Jugend" and Wedekind's "Fruhling's Erwacken" are dramas which have disseminated radical thought in an altogether different direction. They treat of the child and the dense ignorance and narrow puritanism that meet the awakening of the child's nature. Particularly is this true of "Fruhling's Erwacken." Young girls and boys sacrificed upon the altar of ignorance and of our sickening morality that prohibits the education of the youth in questions so imperative to the health and well-being of society, the origin of life and its functions. It shows how a mother and a truly good mother, at that keeps her fourteen-year-old daughter in absolute ignorance as to all matters of sex, and when finally the child falls a victim to her ignorance, the same mother sees her child killed by quack medicines. The inscription on the child's grave reads that she has died of anaemia, and morality is satisfied.

Like every new idea, the modern drama in its infancy was met with a great deal of opposition, even on the part of those who claim to be quite advanced and liberal. Thus Hauptmann was denounced by liberal papers and magazines as a degenerate.

Scandinavia, like Germany, was advanced through the drama much more than through any other channel. Long before Ibsen appeared on the scene, Bjornson, the great essayist, thundered against the inequalities and injustice prevalent in those countries. But his was a voice in the wilderness, reaching but the few. Not so with Ibsen. His "Brandt," "Doll's House," "Pillars of Society," and "The Enemy of the People," have considerably undermined the old conceptions and replaced them by a modern and real view of life. One has but to read "Brandt" to realize the modern conception, let us say, of religion. Religion, as an ideal to be achieved on earth; religion as a principle of human brotherhood of solidarity and kindness. Modern indeed compared with the conception the average preacher of this country entertains. Religion to our clergy serves as a bait for the foolish and as a means to fill the coffers of the church.

And then again, "Pillars of Society." What a tremendous indictment against the social structure that rests on rotten and decayed pillars, pillars nicely gilded and apparently intact, yet merely hiding their true condition. And what are these pillars? The owners of the world's wealth, the supposed upholders of morality and truth; they who make the laws of the land and who oppose, condemn and hound the social protestants.

Ibsen, though dealing with his own country, has at once described the conditions in our very midst, and by bringing us face to face with this state of affairs he has made us think and feel. Therein lies the greatest attribute that it also makes us feel and think.

England with her great pioneers of radical thought, the intellectual pilgrims like Godwin, Robert Owen, Darwin, Spencer, William Morris and scores of others, with her wonderful larks of liberty, like Shelley, Byron, etc., serves as another example of the influence of the dramatic art. Within, comparatively, a few years, the dramatic works of Shaw, Barrie, Pinero and Butler Yeats have carried radical thought to the ears formerly deaf even to Great Britain's wondrous poets. And thus a public which will remain indifferent reading an essay by, say, Robert Owen, on the destructive influence of poverty, or ignore Bernard Shaw's Socialistic Tracts, was made to sit up by Shaw's "Major Barbara," wherein poverty is described as the greatest crime of Christian civilization. Poverty makes people weak, slavish, puny; poverty creates disease, crime prostitution; in fine, poverty is responsible for all the ills and evils of the world. Poverty also necessitates dependency, charitable organizations, institutions that thrive off the very thing they are trying to destroy. The Salvation Army, for instance, as shown in "Major Barbara," fights drunkenness; yet one of its greatest contributors is Badger, a whiskey distiller, who furnishes yearly thousands of pounds to do away with the very source of his wealth. Bernard Shaw, therefore, concluded that the only real benefactor of society is a man like Undershaft, Barbara's father, a cannon manufacturer, whose theory of life is that powder is stronger than words.

America is still in its dramatic infancy. Most of its attempts along this line, to mirror life, have so far been wretched failures. Still, there are hopeful signs in the attitude of the intelligent public toward modern plays, even if they be from foreign ground.

Fifteen years ago Ibsen was played to empty houses. Today three or four different companies perform Ibsen's dramas before packed houses. The same is true of Shaw's and other dramatic works dealing with the pressing problems of the day. This is particularly true in regard to the last few years. True, our dramatic critics and the general public often miss the mark in their interpretation of the moral of some particular drama, as, for instance, in the "Servant in the House." With few exceptions the theatre-going public saw in Kennedy's masterpiece nothing but a religious revival, the reincarnation of Christ. Yet nothing could be further from the truth. The radical thought in the "Servant in the House" is not represented by the Bishop of Benares, but by Robert, that coarse, filthy drunkard, whom respectable society has repudiated. Robert, the sewer cleaner, is the real hero of the play; nay, its real and only Saviour. It is he who volunteers to go down into the dangerous sewer, so that his comrades "can 'ave light and air." After all, has he not sacrificed his life always, so that others may have light and air?

The thought that Labor is the Redeemer of social well-being has been cried from the housetops in every tongue and every clime. Yet the simple words of Robert express the significance of labor and its mission with far greater weight.

The only real drama America has so far produced is "The Easiest Way," by Eugene Walter. With powerful art it teaches the lesson of the destructiveness of our social and economic arrangements to all truth, justice and beauty. It further depicts the fatalism, cruel and senseless, conditioned in Laura's set.

These two features put the stamp of universality upon this first great American play and destine it to prove the strongest indictment against modern society.

These examples, though few, serve sufficiently to substantiate my belief in the importance of the modern drama in the dissemination of radical ideas and of a truer and nobler conception of human relationship.

East Orange's Barn Storming

[Leading Editorial on June 9, 1909, in THE NEWARK EVENING NEWS, the most important newspaper in the State of New Jersey, with an average daily circulation of nearly 70,000 copies. Excluding Sunday editions, which it does not issue, this journal is more popular as an advertising medium than any New York

599

840514050
The Emma Goldman Papers
The Joys of Touring / Emma Goldman. – pp. 370-379 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 3, no. 11 (Jan. 1909).
Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

The too gaudy dress, the too red lips, too bright eyes, too tense nerves Bespoke her calling. She was one of those who from olden times
Have in all civilized countries sat in the gates of the cities,
To sell their bodies. She knew in her own life the misery of society;
It made her kind. She put her fair arms about the unkempt, dirty woman,
She bent her head to receive the sickening, disgusting, pitiful caresses,
The craven gratitude of the poor starved soul unused to any kindness.
They went away together, two victims of society's curse.
And so I saw the kindness of the poor.

* * *

THE JOYS OF TOURING

Amid all the hardships and difficulties of an unpopular propagandist touring for an unpopular cause, there is one redeeming feature: the train! The train?! I hear my dear friends exclaim, who look upon modern achievements with horror. Yes, the train, with its tremendous speed of forty miles an hour, rushing through the wilds of the West, over huge mountains and through canyons, daring everything, halting at nothing. The train that takes one out of civilization, of stuffy cities, and still stuffier meeting-rooms; that separates one from friend and foe, strife and anxiety; that brings one back to himself, to his own thoughts and fancies, back into a world undisturbed by foreign invaders. At least that's what the train means to me. I don't know how I could possibly weather the storm and stress of meetings, discussions, and debates, were it not for the occasional respite in my only place of refuge—the train. Whatever the end of the journey may bring, while it lasts one is free from police persecution, hall difficulties, bad management of comrades, and even the well-meant care of friends. True, trains have the bad habit of banging up one's body, but they do not tax the brain at least. It is left free to follow its flights, no matter how foolish, and to prepare for new battles and defeats. No doubt, there are plenty of credulous people who believe that propaganda tours are a continuous performance of fun and ease. But, then, what's credulity if not the belief in the impossible.

Speaking of fun, it really is funny to put oneself up against a world of stupidity, mental laziness, and moral cowardice. If there is anything the world hates, it is to be conscious of itself, to be brought face to face with its own decrepit, hypocritical, rotten self. But the funniest of all things is to witness the frantic efforts of this world to shout and howl down the voice that cries in its wilderness. It's truly a farce comedy. See what mischief riding on a train does. Instead of reporting the joys of touring, I wandered off to the air castles of philosophy. If I were at least a Salvationist, I could sing "I am so happy, Jesus loves me," but being an Anarchist in pursuit of friends for MOTHER EARTH, I can only sing, "I ought to be happy I still have my neck." Which only goes to prove that it must be a bully neck if it could withstand the pulling of the last few weeks.

"Ours is a peaceful country. No room for violence." To be sure, except when we can hoist an Anarchist neck. Everyone wants to have a hand at that, from the bear hunter in the White House down to the policeman on the beat, from the soul-saving minister to the vote-catching Socialist. To all of them an Anarchist neck is like a red rag to the bull; simultaneously they make a dash for it. Poor fools! Will they ever learn that it is perseverance and tenacity that have stiffened Anarchy's neck, till it can withstand the fiercest onslaughts?

But what about the "Joys of Touring"? Well, after we had exchanged Canadian freedom for American despotism, I mean when we left Winnipeg and got to Fargo, N. D., the indefatigable Dr. Reitman succeeded in arranging a meeting within a few hours. He paid for his zeal with a day's chill and fever. Still, we had a splendid meeting and disposed of considerable literature, leaving for the city that is built on a bluff—Butte, Montana.

When I visited this stronghold of the Catholic Church and the smelter owners for the first time, last June, it was only after a strenuous battle with the elements and an expenditure of nearly two hundred dollars. And

600

840514050
The Emma Goldman Papers
The Joys of Touring / Emma Goldman. – pp. 370-379 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 3, no. 11 (Jan. 1909).
Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

when I finally reached this "promised land," I found that all halls had been refused to Emma Goldman, save one dark little, out-of-the-way place. I consoled myself with the thought that every truth had to make its way through obscure and underground channels before it became recognized as such. That my visit of six months ago had not been in vain, was best proved by the interest of those who remained behind and who spared no effort to make my second visit a success. It was altogether due to Comrade Robinson and our dear old friends Annie and Abe Edelstadt, and a few others, that the Auditorium, which was refused last time, could be obtained, and the meetings extensively advertised. The attendance was not very large. Butte boasts of being a strict union town, yet in no other city are the workers so completely in the clutches of the Moloch Capitalism as in Butte. Here he shows himself in all his monstrosity, lurking in every corner, ever ready to devour his victims. As a result, few miners have the courage to attend a public meeting, especially an Anarchist meeting. Those who came certainly deserve admiration. They have proven that even Butte cannot entirely subdue the spirit of liberty. The Social Science Club, which I have organized while here, will—I hope—serve as a nucleus for bringing together the earnest men and women, for study and work. If there is any city that especially needs rebellious, intelligent fighters against our social wrongs, it is Butte, Montana.

Some years ago, when I first visited the State of Washington, I was informed that it rains thirteen months in the year on Puget Sound. I wonder if that accounts for the muddy state of mind of some of its people. At any rate, everything looked muddy, felt muddy, and was muddy in the State of Washington. Spokane was busy showing her apples, and luring credulous people into buying real estate, which is surely the muddiest of all propositions. And as the foolish are ever on the increase, the town was overflowing with that prolific species of humanity. Every hotel and furnished room taken, at double the usual prices. Ditto churches, saloons, and other places of amusement, including halls.

Seattle seems to have muddled up the judgment and discretion of several comrades. At any rate, every meeting was a muddle, excepting one, which was saved by our getting to the city two days earlier than expected. It was held at the Labor Temple, Sunday, December 13th. Unfortunately, the proceeds of that meeting had to cover the loss of three other meetings. The crowning episode of the Seattle visit was the arrest of Dr. Reitman and myself, which, though not of grave importance for the moment, caused no end of trouble in other places. All this could have been avoided, if the arranger of the meeting had not hypnotized himself into the belief that he had rented the hall, and if he had also not hypnotized the Doctor into believing that a deposit had been paid. Ben Reitman, though young in the movement, is a strong believer in direct action. He thought the hall ours, and simply took possession of it. We found out later, to our sorrow, that our comrade was laboring under an hallucination. The proprietor of the hall felt his miserable property rights outraged and called the police. They came when I was about to get into the hall. They probably wanted to "save me" the climb, so they put me under arrest. After paying the "injured property man" $1.50, we were released. Such are the beauties of ownership. It will drag people to the station house, and even throw them into prison, for the paltry sum of $1.50.

It was only when we reached Everett and Bellingham that we were made to feel the full consequences of the Seattle experience. In Everett the Chief of Police so frightened the city fathers with ghost stories of danger that they decreed I should not speak. Of course, the Chief meant only "my safety," bless his mud-soul. He informed me that I would be thrown into the river, tarred and feathered, lynched and quartered. I assured him that I should enjoy such gracious treatment, but he would not listen to me. Of course, the meeting could not take place. The only thing accomplished in Everett was the statement which the editor of the Everett Tribune was brave enough to publish, and which we herewith reproduce for the edification of our readers:

After Emma Goldman had been notified that she would not be allowed to speak here, she came to the Tribune office to leave her protest.

601

840514050

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Joys of Touring / Emma Goldman. – pp. 370-379 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 3, no. 11 (Jan. 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

"I am surprised," she said, "to find Russian methods in Everett. I offer your good people this:

"Resolved, that the city of Everett, in the State of Washington, should be taken off the American map and turned over to the dominion of the Russian Tsar.

"Free speech! Free assembly! What a glorious principle! We alone, the children of a free country, can lay claim to it. Indeed, we give it to our children with their mother's milk; we give it to them in the schools. How it makes their hearts kindle and bosoms swell with that great refrain: Free speech, free press, free assembly! And yet, and yet, a handful of men, in a stuffy room in the City Hall of Everett, decided on this day of the Lord, December 14, 1908, that freedom of speech may be all right for America but it's all wrong for Everett. Their decision being backed by the power of the club, and might being right, free speech was grabbed by the throat and choked to death. 'My country, 'tis of thee, sweet land of liberty.'

"Friday, December 12th, Dr. Ben L. Reitman, acting as my manager, secured Fraternal Hall for a meeting to take place this evening. A deposit was paid after a contract was signed turning over Fraternal Hall to Emma Goldman. No doubt the gentlemen of that hall are law-abiding citizens. The law provides that a contract is binding. Yet these very law and order people are the first ones to break the thing they believe in and demand. They refuse the hall, but forget that they have made themselves liable to damages.

"Another hall is secured, but the Chief of Police, who also believes in law, the law which guarantees free speech and assembly, this great patriot breaks his allegiance to American liberty and orders that Emma Goldman shall not speak. The city fathers, who certainly believe in law, aid and abet the conspiracy to throttle free speech.

"And so it has come to pass that American officials should Russianize an American city, and that henceforth Columbia shall blush with shame over the treachery of her child Everett.

"Yes, but Emma Goldman is an Anarchist. Oh, horrors! But what is Anarchy? How are we to know if Emma Goldman is stopped from expression of her views or telling us what Anarchism means? That's just it. Not Emma Goldman but free speech was stopped. As to Anarchy, after all I do not blame the Chief of Police or the city fathers. Anarchism is a theory of human development, is therefore opposed to stagnation. Anarchism stands for freedom and non-interference, and is therefore opposed to the club. Anarchism stands for righteousness, and is therefore opposed to our social and economic iniquities, with its crime and criminals. In short, Anarchism believes in fellowship and brotherhood. Don't you see why it is offensive to a Chief of Police and city fathers?"

Bellingham will go down in history as the muddiest of all places. The brain of its Chief of Police (Cade is his glorious name; Cad would be much more appropriate) was so muddled, that he could see nothing but

"treason, conspiracy, and outlawry" in the simple attempt to hold a meeting. He arrested Reitman and myself on sight, "with due procedure of law," if you please. He swore out a warrant that deserves to be placed on record. It ran: "Emma Goldman and Dr. Ben L. Reitman, Anarchists and outlaws, having conspired to hold an unlawful assembly," etc. Wonderful rhetoric, isn't it? The detective who began to read to us this Solomonic paper, was so awestricken by the wisdom of his Chief that he lost his nerve and could not proceed. We were escorted to the station house and there ordered to leave the city at once, or enjoy the hospitality of the cells. As this was the first real Washingtonian hospitality, we decided to accept it. Chief Cade did not expect us to be so ready. At any rate, he gave us another chance, at midnight. We again declined, having quite settled down to a night's wake. In the morning we were brought before a mummy, commonly called Judge, who kindly placed us under $5,000.00 bail. Not much for Anarchists, do you say? That's the beauty of living in a democratic country. Every Chief of Police or Judge on the bench is just as good as the Russian Tsar.

The situation was so tragi-comical that we should have dearly loved to see how far the stupidity of authority could go. But I had dates to fill at Vancouver. Therefore we decided to relieve the Chief of the predicament of having made an ass of himself (with apologies to the ass). On the day of reckoning Bellingham will be doomed to perish, not because of its sins, but for its stupendously absurd Chief of Police and its equally stupid Judge. Its ignorant inhabitants may be redeemed in the personalities of Attorney Schamel, who volunteered his services gratis, and of a certain Mr. Lynch, who offered to go bail. Indeed, they were the only bright spot on that horizon of muddy humanity at Bellingham.

Just compare the action of the Bellingham authorities with that of Mayor Johnson, of Cleveland, O. The latter not only refused to stand for police interference, but when I lectured in Cleveland, October 22d, the Mayor gave me the use of the public square, where I addressed three thousand people, with only two officers present. If Chief Cade were not such a hardened rascal, Mayor Johnson's liberality would strike him dead.

602

840514050

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Joys of Touring / Emma Goldman. – pp. 370-379 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 3, no. 11 (Jan. 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

The more insignificant one's authority, the more important he is apt to imagine himself. This certainly seems to have been the case with the Immigration Inspector on the Canadian side of the border. He had no instructions to annoy us, but his bureaucratic heart swelled with pride at the possibility of saving Canada from one whom the papers had just heralded as an outlaw and conspirator. Poor fellow, he was really much more humane than his trade would indicate. When he saw the "dangerous creatures" in his wretched office, he assured them that he meant no harm. He tried to amend for the trouble he caused by playing the host and serving us with good coffee. And when the wire from Ottawa ordered the Inspector to let us proceed, he became quite talkative and chummy. Never before did the machinery of government seem such a grinding mill to me than when I watched that Inspector in his filthy, squalid little office. Here was a man, apparently well read, intelligent, not unkind, living in dismal, monotonous, dirty surroundings, annoying, bullying, and interfering with people who have never harmed him—all for the sake of a miserable pittance. What could not a man like that do in a sane society? But, then, ours is a mad world. That's why the servants of the law pass their lives where the masters would not permit their dogs to dwell. I sometimes think that the servants are a greater curse to the world than the masters. They are much more numerous and, alas! much more stupid.

After one has enjoyed the blessings of democracy for a time, one is apt to appreciate monarchical rule for a while. I felt quite relieved in Vancouver, after the democratic bulldozing we had received in our own free country. Not a policeman in sight at any meeting. And those who are on the street, courteous and obliging. If it were not unfair to the people of Vancouver, I would suggest that we send our police down there to learn how to mind their business, and not to interfere with free speech. And that is not the only thing "those inferior Canadians" can teach us. In the States a Mark Antony would have to speak before empty benches, unless the yellow journals heralded him as the real Brutus. Sensationalism is the curse of our country. No real interest in anything unless it be a sensation. In Canada the people are frightened away by sensation. They come to a meeting because they are interested, or not at all. Shall we ever be cured of that terrible poison, yellow journal sensationalism?

Coming to Portland during Christmas week, one could not expect much in the line of meetings. Still, it was worth the effort, if only to rest up from the stress and strife of the Puget Sound experience. Some real hospitality, this time of friends, was for me sufficient recompense for the scanty attendance at the lectures.

The important events of the Portland visit were two debates. One with a Jeffersonian Democrat, Mr. J. V. Barnhill, a man of considerable courage and some reading, who talked about everything under the sun, except Democracy. He expressed grave fear that under Anarchism he would not be able to sell his products. Mr. Barnhill did not impress me as if he could produce anything that others would care to buy. Still, I assured him that he would have all the liberty he wished, without let or hindrance.

The second debate was with Mr. Walter Thomas Mills, a Socialist. I was rather anxious to meet Mr. Mills, as I had heard a great deal about his cleverness and ability. But probably Mr. Mills does not believe in living up to his reputation. At any rate, I could see little of his ability, unless it be his voice, which is so shrill and loud it reminds one of the trumpets at the walls of Jericho. Thus Mr. Mills makes up in quantity of sound for quality of reasoning.

It is interesting to note how our worshippers of majority rule set that fetish aside when it suits their purpose. Mr. Mills was thrown out of the Seattle Socialist Party. Yet when I called his attention to the despotism of the majority, he replied, "Not for me. I am still in the Party, and I have my membership card." Which is analogous to General Bell's exclamation, "To hell with the Constitution!" Logic would ask, Why majority rule, or Constitution at all?

However, there is a great deal more to be said in behalf of Mr. Mills, than for his comrades in Seattle, who were instrumental in his expulsion. He is cultured, impersonal, and fair in dealing with opponents. Not so the present dictator of the Seattle Socialists, Dr.

603

840514050

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Joys of Touring / Emma Goldman. – pp. 370-379 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 3, no. 11 (Jan. 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

Titus. I debated with the latter six months ago. The arrogance, superficiality, and lack of principle on the part of Titus were appalling. I had quite decided never to meet him in debate again. Alas, the Socialists of Seattle are so poor in brain and character, that I had to accept Titus in preference to a certain Louis. This man, who claims he does not know Emma Goldman, nevertheless seems to know that she is in the employ of the capitalist class. Fortunately I believe in preventing cruelty to animals, else that insect would have received his deserts. As to Dr. Titus, I hoped that he had read up a bit during the last six months. Not on Anarchism. No, that would be expecting too much from a Catholic whose bible is the Communist Manifesto. The Doctor does not even know his Socialism. Else he would not have made himself ridiculous by telling the audience that Socialists do not bother about the future, that they deal only with the present. Just think of it! The Socialists, who have the most iron-clad programme as to regulating life from its very conception till death doth part, by the industrial mechanism of society. But, then, the Doctor knows better. Just as he knows that Kropotkin is not a bourgeois, that Marx did not annihilate Proudhon, that Bakunin did not disrupt the International, that Emma Goldman is not a tool of the capitalist class, that Anarchism does not mean assassination. He knows all that very well, indeed. Just think of a man using such rot as "arguments" in a debate on Socialism versus Anarchism. Poor Socialism, you have been degraded, compromised, and dragged into the gutter by just such men and such methods. What a disgusting spectacle!

In closing my report of the Joys of Touring, I must not forget to pay tribute to that band of brave warriors who recently beat their way in box cars to attend the I. W. W. Convention at Chicago. Brave, sturdy boys, full of the spirit of revolt, thoroughly disgusted with all political machinations. "Slum proletarians" they were recently called by Pope Pius De Leon. Yes, real proletarians whom political charlatans have misused, only to renounce them when they awakened to their own strength. If ever a real revolutionary industrial movement will draw up its lines to settle accounts with the despoilers of human life, it will owe much to the courage of the

I. W. W. boys of Butte, Spokane, Portland, Vancouver, and other cities.

Altogether, this was an interesting and profitable month. Profitable, though not in worldly goods. Far from it. What does an Anarchist want with that, anyhow? Experience may not pay the printer's bills right away. But it will, in the sweet bye and bye.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

En Route.

* * *

BLOODY SUNDAY

By VICTOR ROBINSON.

> Refuse not to succor your people; give orders without delay to representatives of all classes in the land to meet together. Let capitalists and workmen be present; let officials, priests, physicians, and teachers all come and choose their own delegates. Let all be free to elect whom they will, and for this purpose let the elections to the Constituent Assembly be organized on the principle of universal suffrage. This is our principal request, on which everything else depends. It is the best and only plaster for our open wounds, without which they will ever remain unhealed, and hurry us on to death. There is no one panacea for all our ills; many are needed, and we now proceed to enumerate them, speaking plainly and candidly to you, Sire, as to a father.—From the Petition of January 22, 1905.

Thousands, thousands, thousands,—more than twice ten thousand, all marching to the Tsar. Cruelly cold was St. Petersburg, but that vast multitude walked bareheaded. Loyal subjects of the throne were they, ready to die for the Emperor. They were led by a priest with cassock and cross. In the front rank ikons waved, and pictures of Nicholas II. were held on high. The streets of the capital rang with song, but it was not the Marseillaise they chanted,—it was the Hymn of the Imperial Family. No red flag, like a red eagle, rose in air. No one carried a gun. No double-edged swords clanked at their sides. They had not even stones in their pockets. Was ever before so huge an army so helpless? Their only weapons were yellow faces in which the anguish

604

831121077

The Emma Goldman Papers

Dear Friend / Emma Goldman, et al. – (Jan. 26, 1909, leaflet). – 1 p. ; 29 × 22 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the University of Michigan, Harlan Hatcher Graduate Library. Institutional Location: Labadie Collection, Emma Goldman Papers, Department of Rare Books and Special Collections.

LABADIE COLLECTION

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., JANUARY 26TH, 1909.

DEAR FRIEND:

You have no doubt heard of the latest police outrage on free speech and our comrades Emma Goldman, Dr. Ben L. Reitman and others. Without the shadow of an excuse, and after our first meeting was inadvertently permitted to take place unmolested, Emma Goldman and Dr. Ben L. Reitman were arrested and charged with conspiracy to incite to riot, etc., on eight separate counts each, and placed under $16,000 bail in cash (or double that in property). The object, seemingly, of placing their bail at such an exorbitant figure was to crush our comrades by the mere magnitude of the threat involved. As a matter of fact, it did succeed in keeping our comrades in prison and did break up our meetings, with the resultant financial loss to all concerned, and most of all to the injury of Mother Earth.

The police department was evidently under the impression that they had only to deal with the handful of obscure comrades within easy reach, for when the country promptly responded to the occasion their bail was reduced to $2800, then their bail waived on the eight charges and they were put on trial on a new charge of attempting to hold an unlawful assembly for the purpose of opposing all government and the advocacy of Anarchism, (this, presumably, is due to the fertility of the District Attorney's office, in order to make good on the novelty of the charge as against the malicious imbecility of San Francisco's "Finest"), and were released on $500 bail—quite a drop, from $16,000 to $500.

These tactics in open court is equivalent to a confession of culpability on the one hand and on the other hand it indicates a well-defined pupose to prosecute to the limit. Emma Goldman has been arrested times without number; this, however, is the first time that the authorities have actually put her on trial; and, judging by the venom, cunning and brutality that characterized the arrest of our comrades, the breaking up of our meetings, the clubbing of our friends and the general handling of the situation, there seems to be a determined effort on the part of the prosecution to convict at any cost, and it is up to us, who are on the ragged edge of this battle-field, to see that these malignant plans shall [illegible] nd well-conducted defense can make it fail. For this purpose we need a defense [illegible] r means supplied by local comrades, and you are asked to contribute according to your means, at once, and to constitute yourself a committee of one to get others to contribute.

If, in spite of all our efforts, these comrades of ours should be convicted, they will go to jail, for they scorn to appeal from one grade of tyranny to another; and some of the rest of us will also go to jail, and we hope that others will make it their business (whether Anarchists or not) to go to jail in such numbers that the public conscience may be roused to a realization of the infamy of attempting the suppression of free speech, for mark this: if Emma Goldman and Ben L. Reitman are railroaded to prison on this police-made excuse for a statute it will be impossible for them or any other Anarchists to speak anywhere in California, that the precedent will be followed up by other States with lively enthusiasm, and this will effectively check the Anarchistic propaganda in this country. This is not all. If the attempted suppression of the legal right of Anarchists to freely express their opinions and freely assemble for the discussion of their views, plans and purposes will succeed, it will be considered a mere wedge that Tyranny will hammer in the armor of Free Speech, and the next victims will be the Socialists, the Single-Taxers, the Mormons, the Prohibitionists and any and all minority movements that may stand in the way of plutocracy and respectable vice, and so we call on all liberty-loving people, without regard to differences on other matters, to join us in this fight with the common enemy. Piece-meal the enemy can cut us into mince-meat, but working together we are invincible. In the words of the elder Adams: "If we don't hang together we'll hang separately."

NOTE.—We are deeply involved in the defense and expense accounts, and we must have funds immediately to meet pressing obligations.

Address all communications to EMMA GOLDMAN, care of Alex. Horr, 1260 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco, Cal.

Cassius V. Cook
Emma Goldman
Reitman

EMMA GOLDMAN,
DR. BEN L. REITMAN,
ALEX HORR,
CASSIUS V. COOK, COMMITTEE.

605

840514052

The Emma Goldman Papers

On Trial / Emma Goldman. — pp. 411-417 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 3, no. 12 (Feb. 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

The political policy of the American Federation of Labor received such a crushing blow at the polls, it must be assumed it did not represent the opinions of the rank and file. Are they revolutionary or wedded to the old political parties?—that is the sole question. That they are not wedded to Socialism or semi-Socialism, is quite positive. The sentence of Messrs. Gompers, Mitchell, and Morrison, three of the most prominent labor leaders in the country, was to be expected, but the skill with which it was postponed until after election moves us to admiration. Unless President-elect Taft exercises his prerogative of pardon, the chances of Gompers et al. serving their sentences is excellent. Meanwhile the aforesaid leaders have capitulated and withdrawn the boycott, which is a clear victory for capital. Mr. Taft has an excellent opportunity to ingratiate himself in the hearts of Simple Septimus Labor, by pardoning the convicted men, if they promise to be good.

Roosevelt has demonstrated that presidents and kings can lie just like ordinary mortals. After denying indignantly that he intended to appoint certain labor leaders to office as a reward for supporting his creature, Taft, he promptly appointed them immediately after the election.

We are not vitally interested in Roosevelt's quarrel with Congress, or their mutual quarrels. We allways knew that there are dishonest men in Congress, and that Roosevelt is a man devoid of moral sense and decency. The result of the controversy does not surprise us, nor should it have surprised any sane student of political conditions. The growth of the Secret Service and violations of all sense of honor and fair play in the Post Office should not have astonished us; but even we have some illusions yet, and this was one of them. The disregard of personal liberty is indeed disquieting. 1908 saw us robbed of a few more of our precious rights.

Secretary Wilson of the Bureau of Agriculture reports that seven billion seven hundred and seventy-eight million dollars' worth of farm products were produced in the United States during 1908; in other words, about $90.00 per head of the population. Considering that we were in the midst of a panic, with from 30 to 75 per cent. of the members of certain trades out of work during the larger part of 1908, $90.00 worth of foodstuffs per head is rather considerable. We have seen only partial statistics, but we do not believe the average number of unemployed in the cities and industrial centers at any time during the past year was less than 30 per cent. Formerly we had but one bread line; now we have several in New York City alone. When Judge Gary, one of the heads of the Steel Trust, recently paid a visit with a party of friends to the Bowery Mission, there were some fifteen hundred men in that bread line. The Police captain of the district, a man not too sympathetic to the 'line," said that there were not over 2 per cent. of the "regulars" present. Ninety dollars a year of foodstuffs per head at the farm, and bread lines of starving men.

For good or evil, 1908 has faded into the past and left nothing but memories and lessons. All in all, we are inclined to say, Sir, it was a great year!

* * *

ON TRIAL

DEAR FRIENDS:

Police brutality and outrages have become such every-day affairs, no one pays the slightest attention to them. We are a novelty-loving people. We like variety: The news of a lynching, one day; an earthquake, the next; a big fire, the third; some sensational murder, the fourth; a prize fight, the fifth; the deportation of an Anarchist, the sixth, and so on, and so forth. Only not one and the same thing two days in succession; that would never satisfy our sensational tastes. Besides, brutality to Anarchists is but true American spirit. "Them foreigners have no business here, anyway; why don't they leave this country?"

However, the police outrage in San Francisco, while common enough, was really unusual in its extraordinary stupidity. It is for this reason that we have taken the trouble to record it at all.

We were charged with "Conspiracy and riot, making unlawful threats to use force and violence, and disturbing the public peace," etc., charges so "grave," indeed, that the Judge felt $16,000 bail for each defendant was but a trifle. But suddenly, four days after our arrest,

606

840514052
The Emma Goldman Papers
On Trial / Emma Goldman. – pp. 411-417 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. –Vol. 3, no. 12 (Feb. 1909).
Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

these "grave charges" were set aside, and a new charge concocted, that of "unlawful assemblage, denouncing, as unnecessary, all organized government, and preaching Anarchist doctrines." O horrors! On this "wise and dangerous" charge I was put on trial, Dr. Reitman to follow, after I shall have been given a vacation at the expense of the City of the Golden Gate.

I wish I were gifted with the power to describe the performance. The gravity of the Judge; the important air of the District Attorney; the mysteriousness of the detective witnesses for the State; the scared faces of the men called to serve on the jury. Each one anxiously watching the other fellow, lest he might be an Anarchist, which means dynamite and bombs. It was a spectacle for the gods. And then our lawyer, Mr. Ernest E. Kirk, a young and vivacious Californian, with the true Celtic spirit of humor and mischief. How he sweated every venire-man! How he made him sit up and listen. Listen and hear, for the first time in his life, things as they really are, and not what a prostituted press has fed its readers on for years. "What do you know about Anarchism?" "The papers say, it teaches bombs and dynamite." "What do you know about the defendant?" "The papers say, she induces people to kill." The papers, the papers! The only source of information, of knowledge, of the American people. The poisoners of the mind, the corrupters of the human soul. The villifiers and misrepresenters of the truth, America's greatest scourge and pest, the arch-enemies of all that is big and fine and true. If ever the day of judgment should arrive, not in heaven, but here on earth; if ever the forces for and against human regeneration shall meet in open battle, the men of the newspaper profession will be the first ones to face the wrath of an outraged, cheated, defrauded people. It has always been my opinion that the police department is recruited from the most contemptible human material; but my experience in San Francisco has taught me that, compared with the human species which is polluting American journalism, the police are as white and virtuous as the proverbial angels.

It required almost superhuman patience to clear the superstition and rubbish from the minds of a hundred and twenty men, before twelve could be selected as jurors capable at least of a semblance of fairness. However, it was our good fortune to find in Mr. Kirk not only an earnest and sincere man, but a mental athlete with the tenacity of a bull-dog. Once in his grip, no man escaped until every vestige of cobweb was torn, and he made to see that Anarchism resembled the newspaper stories about as much as the average penny-a-liner resembles the cherubim. We knew, of course, that the evidence gathered by the prosecution was so flimsy and absurd, that even the densest jury would acquit. "Denouncing, as unnecessary, all organized government, and preaching Anarchist doctrines." We pleaded guilty, not only to that, but even to more. We insisted that all government is criminal, destructive of liberty and well-being, and that it must be abolished by every method at our command. But, while the police and the courts of this country have gone beyond the limit in suppressing free speech and press, they could not, by the widest stretch of the imagination (which, by the way, they sorely lack), make it a crime to denounce anything as "unnecessary." Of course, no one can tell to what contemptible measures detectives and prosecuting attorneys would stoop. Because of that, Mr. Kirk's method of examination, of sifting and selecting the jurors, was an admirable one. Besides, our trial was not only for the purpose of vindicating free speech, but also to propagate Anarchism, which, while an alleged crime in a hall, was perfectly legal in the court room, you see. And we did preach Anarchism, every phase of it, more thoroughly and effectively than I could have done in a dozen meetings. This was particularly apparent from the change of attitude of the Judge.

Police Judge Deasy is but two months on the bench. He is therefore still humane, when dealing with the victims of a cold and cruel world. I have watched for four days, when poor, hungry, shivering, body and soul broken humanity was brought before him. Not once did I hear an unkind word, or even a reproach. "What is a man to do, your Honor, when he can find no work, and is hungry? He must beg or steal." "Yes, yes, I know, I do not blame you. I do not think you a criminal. You are only unfortunate." No, dear Judge, it is not even that. It's our damnable economic and social iniquities, our mad world of greed and money and power;

607

840514052

The Emma Goldman Papers

On Trial / Emma Goldman. – pp. 411-417 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. –Vol. 3, no. 12 (Feb. 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

the heartless, bloody mill of commercialism that grinds the dignity and self-respect out of these unfortunates; the system you believe in and maintain, Judge Deasy, is responsible for that horrible panorama that passes you daily. You are a party to it, like the rest of your class, like everyone who is indifferent to the terrible life about him. Fat, self-satisfied, contented, narrow minded, and narrow hearted Philistines.

But the Judge was kind, so he quite won my heart. I should not have cared, were he to send me to prison. He was humane with the victims of an inhuman society.

Of course, when Anarchists were brought before Deasy, he turned to stone, becoming cold and rigid and stern. He, too, had been poisoned by the newspapers. He, too, had read that Anarchists were human beasts, forever thirsting blood and plotting murder. Little wonder that he should be prepared to use his authority to send them where they would no longer disturb the "peace" of the community.

We do not flatter ourselves to have turned Judge Deasy into an Anarchist. That would mean to make him see the criminality of his position. But we did succeed in bringing a little light into his head. Light which will make him realize that the Anarchists are, indeed, dangerous; not because of their dynamite and bombs, but because they threaten every vested interest. Because they do not compromise, because they have declared war on every institution of to-day, based on hypocricy, sham, and the destruction of life and happiness. Yes, Judge Deasy became humane even to the Anarchists. He was really fair, as fair as any one can be in the capacity of a Judge.

And the evidence? A detective who had listened to my lecture for over two hours, and could only remember me saying, "The judiciary and police take your money, that's all they do for you." Pretty good for the memory of a detective, is it not? Further, that the audience was orderly and applauded good-naturedly. That nothing violent or boisterous occurred, and so forth. "Is that all?" asked the Judge.

The prosecuting attorney, the most amusing clown in the circus, became confused, fidgety, and nervous. He finally mastered spunk enough to say, "Your Honor, I want to show that the Industrial Workers of the World is an Anarchist organization, that the members wear red shirts and neckties." Everybody in the court room leaned forward to look at the jury box. Three jurors wore red neckties. Were they too, I. W. W. members? "But what have red shirts and the I. W. W. organization to do with the defendant Emma Goldman?" asked the Judge. Nobody knew, least of all the poor little District Attorney. He sat down in despair, large drops of perspiration running down his dear little, fat pig's cheeks.

We were disgusted. Here we had prepared ourselves to meet a gladiator, but alas, it turned out a louse.

There was nothing left to do, but to instruct the jury to render a verdict of not guilty. Mr. Cameron King, the partner of Mr. Kirk, delivered a beautiful address, which we hope to publish in the next issue of MOTHER EARTH. His address was intended for the Judge and the jury, but the logic of the law will have it that the twelve men, who have the power to rob one of his freedom, may listen to the prosecution, but must not hear the defence. Can there be more striking proof of the law's stupidity? The jurors were ordered to leave the court room, like little boys and girls are ordered out of the room, when grown-ups are talking about things which good little children must not hear.

Judge Deasy listened attentively, and seemed quite impressed by Mr. King's address. When the latter had finished, the jury was recalled, and the Judge instructed them to render a verdict of not guilty. Within a few minutes the farce was over, the clowns retired, and the circus was cleared. Of course, all other charges against Dr. Reitman and myself were dismissed.

Poor, stupid police. It was not their intention to help the cause of Anarchism to such a victory. But they did it, just the same. In appreciation thereof I suggest that we club together and buy a little dog's collar with red ribbons, for Detective Sergeant Bunner and District Attorney Ward.

Dogs are not so stupid, did you say? Quite right. Only in this case it was really a stroke of genius to arrest us, break up our meeting, and club the people out of the hall. For three reasons. First, my meetings would have been a failure, because of the heavy downpour of rain. (God, in his goodness, seemed to feel that

608

840514052

The Emma Goldman Papers

On Trial / Emma Goldman. — pp. 411-417 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 3, no. 12 (Feb. 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

Frisco's corruption, filth, and rottenness needed a bath. It has been raining for three weeks, and if that won't wash this city clean of its sins, she is doomed to perish). Second, nothing awakens public interest so much as persecution of an idea. Third, our trial furnished us the grandest opportunity to expose the lies and rascality of the American press in general, and the San Francisco newspapers in particular; the latter positively the most rotten in the country. A victory almost worth going to prison for. However, the Anarchists are a discontented sort. That's our greatest forte. There yet remained the reinstatement of free speech, which the police attempted to throttle with the club.

Within two days the largest hall in the city was hired, and a meeting advertised: "Emma Goldman Not Guilty, Monster Reception," etc. Sunday evening, January 31st, two thousand people streamed into the hall, and Emma Goldman spoke with her soul in her mouth.

The police were there; of course; so were our attorney and stenographer, and our dear, energetic bondsman, Cassius V. Cook, all ready to meet the "gentlemen of the force." But whether they had enough of the Anarchists, or whether they did not dare to act, I do not know, nor do I care. I only know that the meeting sealed our victory, and that the police must have felt like whipped curs.

Of course, I am not yet through with the Golden Gate City. I have inflicted myself on her "great hospitality" for the next four weeks. During that time I will deliver the series of lectures which the uniformed ruffians prevented two weeks ago. They have caused us a loss in actual expenses of two hundred dollars, not to mention the regular receipts. Some comrades have suggested that the city be sued. I know they mean well; but they seem to overlook the fact that Satan takes care of his ilk. That it would therefore be a loss of time and money on our part; besides, it were inconsistent to ask the help of the very institution we abhor more than any other —government.

The experience was, of course, costly and trying, but it was worth while, at least to me. It demonstrated the spirit of solidarity on the part of the Anarchists in this city. No matter what their differences, they all acted as one. It proved the generosity of our Los Angeles comrades, C. J. Sprading and the Foresters, who promptly sent the necessary bail. And, indeed, the solidarity of our comrades and friends all over the country. But the greatest joy to me during the last trouble was the staunchness of a few, who are still very young in our movement. Wm. Buwalda came out of prison December 31st. When he was arrested in connection with our meetings, he was asked why he persisted in associating with such bad people as the Anarchists, or Emma Goldman. Staunch Buwalda, who had faced fire more than once in the service of that insatiable monster, Uncle Sam, waved his jailers aside and proudly declared his right to associate with whomever he pleased. I shall soon acquaint our readers with Buwalda, the man and his character. Meanwhile I ask our friends to join me in a vote of thanks to the military authorities. They have annihilated the soldier, but have given birth to a man. Buwalda's "case" was dismissed.

Then there is Dr. Reitman. He has been locked up many times for vagrancy. But so long as a man is not an Anarchist, he is still considered respectable. It is the Doctor's first experience to be arrested for such an awful crime as "denouncing, as unnecessary, all organized government." But he stood his ground handsomely. He is rather disappointed that he missed the chance to swing between two thieves.

Thus Anarchists came out with flying colors, and the police look as stupid as ever, and a little more.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

San Francisco, Feb. 2d.

* * *

PROPAGANDA IN CALIFORNIA

(Report.)

ANARCHISM and brains have been very closely associated in the public mind in sunny Southern California of late, for Comrade Emma Goldman has been here, and wherever she goes the mentally alert are sure to take advantage of the opportunity to hear her.

Her series of lectures this year showed a remarkable versatility; in each sphere of thought she assayed to enter,

609

890713003

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Summary of Lecture] Mills and Goldman Debate the Question / Emma Goldman. – p. 3 ; 22 cm. In The San Francisco Call. – (March 1, 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

Mrs. Alice Farnsworth, on Way to California, Becomes Insane

[Special Dispatch to The Call]

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 28.—Displaying evidences of insanity, Mrs. Alice Farnsworth, 70 years old, here alone en route from London, Ont., to Stockton, Cal., has been turned over to the police.

"I'm going to a picnic," she said to a salesman at the union station, "don't stop me, for John Quincy Adams is going to be there and I want to see him."

The depot matron took charge of the woman and found that she was plentifully supplied with money, although plainly dressed. Several $20 bills were found in a skirt pocket, in the bosom of her dress and in her mittens.

BURGLARS SECURE MANY VALUABLE ARTICLES

Jones Street Residence Entered While Man and Wife Are Out

When W. V. Smith and his wife returned Saturday morning to their home, 1020 Jones street, they found that burglars had effected an entrance, getting away with several hundred dollars' worth of jewelry. The missing articles consisted of two diamond rings, one turquoise ring, one amethyst ring, three breastpins set with diamonds, pearls and garnets; one gold cross, two garnet set earrings, a gold bracelet and $5. The jewelry is valued by Smith at $450.

A. M. Bachener, a machinist, was held up in Pacific street during the night and relieved of a gold watch and some money. Charles A. Meyer of 115 Sutter street met a stranger in Market street, who appropriated his watch as the two were hobnobbing over a stronger currents until I have reached the 'death limit.' I suppose some day it will get me, all right, but I have to go somehow, and I can make a lot of money at this, so what's the difference?"

Pickpockets were encountered by

For a man weighing 143, Quill has been reduced, he says, through the effects of the tests, to 126 pounds. One of the experiments today was the lighting of a carbon which Quill held between his teeth from a current as it came with terrific force from the end of a wire. The shock threw his body back several times before he was able to overcome it sufficiently to get the end of the carbon to the sputtering flame. He also lighted a wax candle from sparks coming from his fingers.

MILLS AND GOLDMAN DEBATE THE QUESTION

Socialist and Anarchist Present Opposing Views

Emma Goldman the anarchist and Walter Thomas Mills the socialist took part in a joint debate yesterday afternoon and last evening in the Auditorium pavilion before large audiences.

The leader of anarchists said that the working men could never be organized in a movement to annihilate the forces of capital as long as they are divided religiously. She referred to all forms of religion as stumbling blocks in the way of the advance of the working classes. She said that muscular resistance and physical strength were the methods the working class should adopt to better themselves.

Mills assailed the ideas of Miss Goldman and said that the socialist had decided on an educational campaign and were endeavoring to appeal to reason. He asserted that the only way to defeat the capitalistic class was by organizing the voters, and to accomplish this end the socialists were compelled to admit to their ranks men of different religious beliefs.

the flight being made from the Dwight way baseball park at 2:20 o'clock. The ascent was made under the direction of P. A. Van Tassell, a veteran aeronaut of 30 years' experience in this country and Europe, who occupied the basket beneath the huge bag with C. C. Bradley, paying teller of the Crocker national bank of San Francisco, an enthusiastic member of the club. During the morning preparations for the flight were made by a force of men under the watchful eye of Van Tassell, and at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon the work of filling the great bag was begun.

Ordinary illuminating gas, furnished by means of special pipes laid by a local company, was utilized, about 50,000 cubic feet being necessary for proper inflation.

AIR CURRENTS TESTED

Shortly before the big balloon was cut loose a smaller bag, 20 feet in diameter, was liberated for the purpose of testing the air currents. This pilot rose rapidly and drifted in a northwesterly direction toward San Pablo bay. Without a hitch the preparations for loosing the larger balloon were carried out. Three bags of sand were shipped as ballast, and Van Tassel and his passenger took their places in the basket amid the instruments for testing temperature and pressure.

With the assistance of willing spectators, the guide ropes were loosed at Van Tassell's command, and with a rush the huge craft shot upward to a height of 2,000 feet. Part of the contents of one sandbag was cast overboard, and the balloon continued its ascent until it became a mere speck in the sky. Coming in contact with a cross air current at the higher elevation, the balloon was shuttled rapidly in a direction exactly opposite to that taken by the pilot, floating eastward in the direction of Grizzly the chief aeronaut made [illegible] remain in the air for three hours. He stated that he would stay only long enough to take his observations and test the efficiency of the craft after which he would descend upon the discovery of a convenient landing place.

The ascent was undertaken by the members of the club in an effort to stimulate interest in the sport of aeronautics in this state, and several more flights will probably be attempted during the spring and summer.

FALL SAYS McHARG TOLD A FALSEHOOD

Reply Made to Charge Against His New Mexico Record

EL PASO, Tex., Feb. 28.—In a statement here tonight Judge A. B. Fall answers charges made against his record as attorney general for New Mexico.

According to Judge Fall, McHarg told a falsehood when he informed the senate committee on territories that he had been hampered by the attorney general of New Mexico in his land fraud investigations.

Failure of statehood he attributes to an unwillingness to allow the wealth to pass into the control of eastern or western legislators.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Feb. 28.—In a telegram from Albany, N. Y., Herbert J. Hagerman, former governor of New Mexico, denies the truth of the statement sent out from Washington yesterday that he had declared the people of New Mexico unfit for statehood and climate was absolutely false.

PIONEER OIL MAN DIES—Pittsburg, Feb. 28.—William Miller McKinney, one of Pennsylvania's pioneers, oil operator and one of the first men in the United States to become interested in Portland cement, died here today from [illegible]

Ready Now

Harry Lauder's

Hear Melba

In her three new

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

610

880819008

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Interview] Emma Goldman Says Dawning Era Will Crush President / Emma Goldman.— 35 cm. In The San Antonio Daily Express. —(March 15, 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

FAT POSSUMS FOR PRESIDENT TAFT ON TEXAS VISIT

Senator Warnell of Missouri Arranges Golf Links on Taft Ranch.

EXPECTED NOW IN LATE OCTOBER

Persons in San Patricio County will head chartered cars from now on and will feed on the fat of Gulf coal country products until next fall, when President William Howard Taft comes to visit Texas and to enjoy a few weeks golf and hunting on the Taft ranch near Sinton. Senator T. J. Warnell of Liberty Mo., who with John M. Green of Kansas City, arrived in San Antonio last night from the Taft ranch, where Senator Warnell has been laying out a golf course for the President's use.

"There are a couple of niggers at the ranch who know the ways and haunts of possums at every season of the year," said Senator Warnell last night at the St. Anthony Hotel and I understand that these negroes will at the next hog killing can from other people will have all the good meat on the Taft ranch needed with the promise when the President arrives if President Taft doesn't admire a fat pig that Texas possum and San Patricio county corn yet takes twice the Georgia variety off the table it must be the fault of the people down in that section.

In October or November.

While the exact date of the President's visit to Texas and to the Taft ranch was not definitely set it will be during the October or November. Two weeks ago, when John M. Green was here in Washington he said that he was eagerly looking forward to his visit to Texas and that he could not postpone it later than fall. Texas has a high place in his regard and man seldom is separated for travel on account of the location here of Fort Sam Houston. It is the President's intention to make one of his mixed-food visits when known. From here he will go directly to Augusta, Charles P. Taft's magnificent country place on Corpus Christi Bay where Senator Warnell has just been laying off a golf course so that the President may enjoy him to worlds sport while he is at the ranch.

Senator Warnell selected a site for a golf and on the bay front for the course and will the work which will be done on the first it will be one of the best eighteen hole turf links in the State when the President arrives.

Senator Bing in Dividend and the party will have a fine outing before driving across and the finest packs of hounds ever in Southwest at their disposal will be used in the chase over the splendid stretches of traffic automobiles will be used in and when I leave here this week I expect to take the train at one stop that has been built of the Coleman-Fulmore Company, who operated the ranch, as he is also the owner of the ranch. Senator Warnell has been in San Antonio for the resident manager of the Taft ranch, who will be the official host to the party, is one of the executive committee of the Texas Cattle Raisers Association and is now in Fort Worth attending the convention when he will be here with Senator Warnell is manager of the ranch. Several Both Mr. Warnell and John M. Green leave late morning for Fort Worth to attend the convention.

Dr. F. A. Piper, Osteopath.
513-14 Hicks Bldg. Cal phone 1488.

Drs. Stephens and Strum, Osteopaths.
Fifth floor Moore Bldg. Telephone.

Watching a Stomach Digest Food

Was the Means Whereby Science Made Possible the Cure of Dyspepsia.

The Abbe Spallanzani was the first scientist to study systematically the chemical powers of the gastric juice, but it was by the careful and convincing experiments of Beaumont that the foundation of our exact knowledge of its composition and action was laid.

Beaumont was an army surgeon located at an obscure military post in Michigan while it was yet a Territory, and was called upon to treat a gunshot wound of the stomach in a Canadian voyageur—Alexis St. Martin. When the wound healed a permanent opening was left by means of which food could be placed in the stomach and gastric juice taken from it.

Beaumont made scientific experiments with his strange means and wrote a book which today is recognized among the classics of physiology.

Beaumont blazed the way for other scientists so that today medicines know what the stomach does with food and what food does to the stomach.

Science also knows what the gastric juices are and how to make them best for the system.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, thanks to the poor army surgeon and Alexis St. Martin, give man a means of digesting food, replenishing the exhausted juices, quieting the nerves and correcting dyspeptic conditions of the stomach.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are natural fruit and vegetable essences reduced to concentrated form and by tremendous power compressed into a tablet. These wonderful little digesters are known all over America and Canada. Full meals have been digested by them in glass tubes and they are sold by every druggist.

Physicians to the number of 53 say use them. They are meritorious and harmless. Go to your druggist and buy a package today, price 50c., or send us your name and address and we will send you a trial package by mail free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

EVERYONE
Wanting Perfect Health and Beauty ought to see
The True Vibrator
Free Demonstration.
MME. JORDAN'S BEAUTY PARLORS,
710 Grand Avenue.
Only week only.

BOARD OF CONTROL FOR ELEEMOSYNARY INSTITUTIONS

New Asylum Superintendent and State Health Officer May Get Measure Before Session.

PLANS TRAINING SCHOOL FOR THE ASYLUM HERE

Dr. J. R. Nichols of Greenville, formerly head of the Terrell Asylum and lately appointed to succeed Dr. W. L. Bates as superintendent of the Southwestern Insane Asylum, arrived in San Antonio yesterday. He will take charge of the institution this morning.

Impressed with the urgent need of a large addition to the Southwestern Asylum, and also the necessity of improvements in the medical staff and system of treatment, and further tabulating some radical changes in the system of management, Dr. Nichols promises to become very active in urging appropriations from the State through the Legislature.

One of the principal ideas in management which Dr. Nichols favors is the passing of all the State eleemosynary institutions under the management of a board of control. He yesterday conferred with Dr. William Brumby, State Health Officer, in the matter. It is understood that a bill embodying the idea has already been drawn up and placed in the hands of Senator Neal. The board of control is to consist of physicians paid for their services, who are to supervise the management of all the institutions, both scientifically and financially. This bill, after introduction can be considered in the extra session Legislature only through a special message by Governor Campbell, but as it is known that the Governor favors measures looking to the improvement of the State eleemosynary institutions it is believed that the idea will be put at effect this year. This system is in operation in many States.

That the Southwestern Insane Asylum is and will in need of appropriations to be used in enlarging it but that the modern treatment and the force of attendants should also be increased and added is in the statement of Dr. Nichols. To this end he will use all his influence and endeavor in getting the Legislature to make larger appropriations. He expresses himself that the bill providing for the doubling of the capacity of the asylum will be passed, but added that he will not be satisfied with just this.

"One of the principal and most effective treatments of the insane is diversion," said Dr. Nichols. "With the fund we now have access is practically no diversion whatever can be afforded the inmates of the institution.

"The medical staff also should be improved and added to. It is now inadequate."

Dr. Nichols is considering the installation of a training school that is employed in other States in the State asylums. He is also endeavoring to secure appropriations to be used in securing medical assistants from among the graduates one year of the State Medical College of the county. The position is to be offered each year as a sort of a prize to the graduates standing first in their class.

"Though he would not say whom he has selected for the positions Dr. Nichols does say that there are still eleven positions yet to be filled upon the staff of the institutions of which he today assumes the control. These appointments are to be made within a few days. They include the staff surgeon, druggist and assistants.

URGES BIG APPROPRIATION.

Perry J. Lewis Tells of Needs of Southwestern Asylum.

San Antonio is sent in line for a large asylum appropriation and I am very hopeful that the Legislature will give us a big living appropriation at its special session," said Perry J. Lewis, new president of the board of managers of the Southwestern Insane Asylum. Both Austin and Terrell want more money, it is true, for their asylums, but their claims are not so good as ours and the Legislature understands it.

"My asylum authorities have to consider the best working maximum for the number of patients to be handled in one hospital establishment. Both the Austin and Terrell hospitals have capacities now for above 1,500 or nearly 500 patients and are therefore overly or practically at the economic maximum. San Antonio, on the other hand has a capacity for only 750, less than half that of the other two and considerably under half the maximum, so it follows naturally that this asylum should get the next large appropriation, Governor Campbell agrees with this view and the asylum authorities generally do.

"By doubling the capacity here, as we wish to do with the $500,000 appropriation, we could lessen the cost per capita to the State for the patients in the hospital here. But if the Terrell and Austin Hospitals are increased in size the cost of administration, instead of decreasing per capita, will tend to increase, because the hospitals have practically reached their economic maximum. That is because the chief for taking care of a capacity of 1,500 is much the same as that for a smaller institution and the charges for superintendent and corps of assistants are largely the same. Of course the larger hospital has the larger charges for plant and payroll, but not in the same ratio to the individual patients that the charges are in the smaller hospital. Moreover, asylum authorities agree that it is not best to go above 1,500 patients in one hospital.

"Not only has the San Antonio hospital the best claims for an appropriation on account of its smaller size, but it has the healthiest location of any of the three hospitals, has the biggest tract of land, has more river land, in short, has the best natural equipment for a perfect insane asylum.

"During the past two years the hospital administration has been especially active in developing the industries in connection with the hospital. We have more land in cultivation than we ever had before, we have a big irrigated garden, we have a dairy where they are milking 30 cows a day, we have a fine chicken farm, all in connection with the hospital, and the hospital patients do most of the work in these industries. Of course, the patients are under careful supervision all the time, but it is the very best possible thing for them when they can be allowed to do work and to do work in the open air. All the patients like to get out and many of them take great interest in the work. The man in charge of our irrigated garden, one of the finest gardeners in this section, is a patient at the institution.

"With the appropriation for enlargement we can add to these industries. Our plan is to produce everything we can for the hospital's use on the premises and to do all the work for the hospital that we can with the hospital's own equipment. One addition which I favor if we get the appropriation is a water plant. Our water bill, at a minimum is now put a month in the city and is steadily runs up higher than that. That amount would represent interest you see, on a large investment, and I believe that the time has come when the institution should own and run its own water plant.

EMMA GOLDMAN SAYS DAWNING ERA WILL CRUSH PRESIDENT

Noted Anarchist Says the Car of Progress Is About to Overrun Taft and the Republicans.

WILL LECTURE HERE TOMORROW NIGHT

Emma Goldman, the world-renowned anarchist, is in San Antonio today and is stopping at the St. Anthony Hotel.

Miss Goldman, together with her traveling companion and the manager of her lecture tour, Dr. Ben L. Reitman, better known to the reading public as the "King of Tramps," arrived from El Paso last night at 9:45 o'clock.

The itinerary of her present tour has taken in New York, Chicago, Minneapolis, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle and smaller cities along the route, besides visiting Vancouver, B. C. and other cities in the British possessions.

"I am really off my scheduled trip now," said Miss Goldman, and the length of my stay in San Antonio will depend altogether on the treatment that is accorded me."

It will be recalled that about two months ago Emma Goldman and her manager, Dr. Reitman, were "suppressed" in San Francisco for denouncing the Government and preaching what was there termed anarchy. They were held in the sum of $1,000 each, cash bail, and kept in jail for a week, when money was raised from all parts of the country and sent to them to secure their freedom. A sensational jury trial followed, but before the case went in the jury the court decided that it was not unlawful to denounce the Government and that she had a right to preach anarchism. The judge then instructed the jury to acquit them, which was done.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

Dr. Reitman said that Miss Goldman is seldom interfered with by the police and that she was treated royally at El Paso. The only trouble one meeting and that was contemplated interference here from the city authorities or others.

He said, further, that while there has been a great deal of propaganda work done in the last twenty-five years that this is the first time an anarchist has ever been feted.

Forsees Taft's Doom.

"Mr. Taft is the most reactionary President ever elected," said Miss Goldman. "The most prominent thing about him is his fat. For instance, right in the midst of the progressive movements embracing modern thought and great radical development work in the country, which has so permeated Bryan and kept him up to his work seems never to have touched Taft at all. In short, he represents the staggering capitalism that is just about to be crushed by the car of progress and he and his party will be lost in oblivion in the coming era that is dawning on America.

He seems to have forgotten what is going on in the world. He has lived in the back yard of the Republican party so long that he hasn't got a good look at the swing of the new generation that is going to give every man an equal opportunity and do away with monopoly that is strangling the American people on every hand.

She said that in every instance where Mr. Taft has been called upon to decide a question involving the interests of labor against capital he invariably leaned toward the capitalist, while Mr. Bryan has demonstrated that he is at least progressive.

Miss Goldman does not want to be understood as favoring any political party, however, as she disclaims any preference, further than to say that Mr. Bryan and the Democratic party might at least be making a step in the right direction, while the Republican party and Mr. Taft stand for stagnation and ruin.

Lecture Tomorrow Night.

The first lecture to be delivered in San Antonio by this famous anarchist will be on "What Anarchism Really Stands For", and will be "Marriage and Love." They mean to have one meeting, at least, and, if well received the second will follow and possibly they will remain a week.

"Anarchists do not believe in religion, politics, marriage or government. They believe in free society of individuals," said Dr. Reitman, and in her lecture Miss Goldman will set forth these views fully and clearly."

Tuesday night at 8 o'clock is the time fixed for the first lecture, though up to a late hour last night the place for holding the meeting had not been arranged.

Dr. Reitman is the author of several works on social conditions and kindred topics. "The Psychology of Tramps" is his best known work, which deals with the abnormal conditions that exist in society which have produced the tramp. He has also delivered lectures on the subject at Johns Hopkins University, the University of Pennsylvania and at Ottawa, Mich., during the last two years.

Miss Goldman and Dr. Reitman were on the train that was wrecked at Hardeman, though they escaped injury.

Notice to Contractors.

Bids are wanted on a brick and stone head building for Seaton State Bank, Eagle Pass, which will be opened on 8th March, 1909, at office of bank. Plans and specifications can be seen at office of Geo. D. Mathieu, Eagle Pass, and at my office.

ALFRED GILES, Architect,
San Antonio, Tex.

KRUPPS WILL ENLARGE MEXICAN POWDER MILLS

Germans Take Contract From the Republic to Extend the Government's Works.

WILL MAKE SMOKELESS POWDER AND GUNCOTTON

Special Telegram to The Express.

CITY OF MEXICO, March 14.—Arrangements have just been completed by the War Department with the Krupp people of Germany for the installation of an extension to the Mexican military powder house at Santa Fe, a short distance from this city, for the purpose of manufacturing smokeless powder and guncotton.

The news of the final arrangements having been consummated comes coincident with the completion of the quarters that will contain the machinery. Fourteen buildings of steel, of sand, and in accordance with the requirements for the manufacture of powder, have been erected on the banks of a little stream on the outskirts of Santa Fe.

The old factory of the government at this point has been given to the sole manufacture of black powder, and this marks the first departure by this government into a wider field of manufacture of powder and firearms.

The negotiations with the Krupp people have been going on for over a year. The Krupp representative is Dr. Max Bloch, while the Krupp engineer that will direct the installation is Mr. Mierlein. The equipment of the plant will be modeled closely after the factory of the Krupp people in Germany.

All of the machinery will be imported, and a number of first-class powder workers will be brought over.

The method of manufacturing powder to said to be perfectly safe. Mr. Bloch, who has been connected with powder manufactories for the greater part of his life, is quoted as saying that though the explosive is one of the most terrible made there is no danger in the vicinity from the presence of the powder works. He has as it may, however, the new mining claims in that famous district. He is carrying on extensive development work in all of his mines and will press day within the near future be shipping a large quantity of ores to the smelter here.

Word has been received from Chihuahua of the death of Charles O'Neil, an old timer in Mexico. Mr. O'Neil was in charge of one of the bridge gangs at the time the Mexican Central was first building its main line from El Paso to the City of Mexico. He was 81 years of age.

Oils in Saltillo.

Special Telegram to The Express.

SALTILLO, Mexico, March 14.—Julita Rodrigues de Hori, wife of D. T. Hoyt of Saltillo, died yesterday after a short illness. She leaves, besides her husband, a daughter Carmen Hoyt, and numerous other relatives. Interment took place yesterday afternoon in the Panteon de Santiago.

Are Presented With Bowling Trophies

Special Telegram to The Express.

MONTERREY, Mexico, March 14.—Last night the members of the regular bowling team of the Young Men's Christian Association were presented with the three trophies won in the recent interstate bowling tournament at a special dinner presided over by General Secretary [illegible] Babcock of the City of Mexico, who happened to be here on one of his regular visits.

Hear Address by W. C. T. U. Lecturer.

Special Telegram to The Express.

MONTERREY, Mexico, March 14.—In the auditorium of the Laureno Institute this afternoon at 4 o'clock a large number of people heard an interesting talk by Miss Nelle O. Burger, said to me the youngest and yet one of the most famous lecturers and organizers of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. She has been spending some time in this country in the interest of that association.

Are Interested in Brownsville Bridge.

Special Telegram to The Express.

MONTERREY, Mexico, March 13.—Much interest is being taken locally in the report that arrangements here finally been made through agreement between the various railroads concerned and the two governments whereby a great international bridge will shortly be constructed between Matamoros, Mexico and Brownsville, Tex., joining the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railway with the Matamoros branch of the National, and making the construction of the line from Matamoros to Tampico a sure proposition.

Drouth Around Monterey is Broken.

Special Telegram to The Express.

MONTERREY, Mexico, March 14.—The long looked for rain has come and people living in Monterey and Northern Mexico, although shivering with the accompanying cold spell, are feeling better than for many months, as the drouth has been broken and good crops are assured.

Expect Another Cut in Price of Oil.

Special Telegram to The Express.

CITY OF MEXICO, March 14.—A further cut in the price of oils, as a result of the war being waged between S. Pearson & Son, Limited, and the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, is expected this week. Since the war began last August the price of oil has been cut more than 50 per cent.

Brown Confers With Harriman.

Special Telegram to The Express.

CITY OF MEXICO, March 14.—E. H. Brown, president of the National Railways of Mexico, returned here last night from the west coast, where he went several days ago to confer with E. H. Harriman. Mr. Brown's visit to Mr. Harriman is taken as significant and has caused considerable speculation here. Upon his return Mr. Brown refused to give out any information about the conference with Mr. Harriman.

Cheapest Good Abstracts.
Ever Made in San Antonio.
Bring the Cash—no Credit.
The Alamo Abstract Co., 20 Washer Bldg.

SHERIFF'S COLUMN.

Guadalupe County.

Strayed or Stolen—One bay mare, about 14½ hands high, heavy build, has on three shoes, star in face; wire cut scar on right forefoot, no brand. I will pay $25 for label and mare, or reasonable reward for mare. Phil P. Meeks, Sheriff Guadalupe County, Seguin.

If you can't spare the time to call, but our solicitor call upon you at your home. Drop a card.
ANSTEIN & SOSA, 118 Main Plaza.

L. T. Waters Undertaking Co.
211 East Commerce St. Both phones 666.

DOES HE WANT A FEDERATION.

Looks Like President Zelaya Has This Object in View.

CITY OF MEXICO, March 14.—It is reported here that unimpeachable evidence has been obtained that President Zelaya of Nicaragua is endeavoring to embroil Costa Rica in the present Central American difficulty. To that end it is stated he has built a number of forts and stockades along the border, in which he has sent large stores of ammunition.

The motives are incomprehensible to the well informed here, unless he hopes in force the federalism of the five republics.

EXPOSITION AT GUANAJUATO.

It Will Celebrate Centennial of Mexico's Independence.

Special Telegram to The Express.

CITY OF MEXICO, March 14.—City officials of Guanajuato have issued circulars announcing a centennial to be held at Guanajuato in 1910, celebrating the one hundredth anniversary of the independence of Mexico.

Silaos, Puebla has announced the postponement of its exposition in 1910, the exposition at Guanajuato promises to be the biggest affair of next year.

The city is receiving the support of the State in arrangements for the exposition.

Planned With Tepic Timber Lands.

Special Telegram to The Express.

TORREON, Mexico, March 14.—Gen. F. Madero, a well-known capitalist of Wash. Tex., is in the city today having just returned from a trip into the Tepic Territory, where he went to examine timber lands. Being well pleased with them, he has closed the deal with Terrazas brothers for the purchase of a large tract there.

To Build Railway to San Juan Mines.

Special Telegram to The Express.

TORREON, Mexico, March 14.—According to recent information, received through reliable sources a railroad is shortly to be built between Gomez Palo on the Mexican Central, and the San Juan mining properties, in the Mapimi district. Engineers are now in the field making the preliminary survey, and when this is completed it is expected that active construction work will be commenced immediately. The road will be about eighteen miles long and will be used almost exclusively in freighting the ores from the San Juan mines to the main line.

Find Man Dead in Ditch.

Special Telegram to The Express.

EL PASO, Tex., March 14.—A drowned man was taken from the storm irrigating ditch, running through the heart of

That Man

Who goes to a credit store, has his suit charged and pays at the end of the month—

THINKS he's doing a great saving stunt. But he just thinks so—it has actually cost him about $4 to $8 more than that same suit would have cost him here. We have a reason for making this broad assertion — it's easy to see why—we sell for cash.

$20.00 Suits, Our Cash Price, $14.32
$25.00 Suits, Our Cash Price, $19.80
$30.00 Suits, Our Cash Price, $23.10

Aaron Frank Clothing Co. 309-311 East Houston Street

FIGHT ON THE RULES AFFECTS TARIFF BILL

Continued From Page One.

forgents" have thirty-four members in line for the fight on the rules.

Representative Goldfogle of New York, who is suffering from a serious affection of his knee, is determined to be present if his physicians will permit. He will have to be carried in his seat if he attends.

Hope for the Democrats.

Mr. Clark learned tonight that several Democrats who, it was feared would not get here, would be on hand. Representative Clark of Florida, who is at Baldwin's Sanitarium, arrived last. Representative Currier of New Hampshire had promised him that he would be paired.

Representative Legare of South Carolina, who has been ill for some time, is claimed here to be paired with a Republican member. Champ Clark received a telegram today which indicates that the successor of Representative Davey of Louisiana would be here with his certificate in time to be sworn in tomorrow, thus giving the Democrats an additional one expected vote.

The "regulars" have been as active today as the "insurgents," and the Democrats have been filing in their forces. They are more reticent than [illegible]. Much will depend upon the action of the Democratic caucus tomorrow, where an effort will be made to have the various bills itself to the resolution which the steering committee of the "insurgents" and the Democratic leaders have compromised upon.

Representative Fitzgerald of New York, recognized as one of the ablest Democratic parliamentarians, issued a statement tonight in which he opposed the plan to elect a committee of fifteen to [illegible] the various resolutions of [illegible], and declared that [illegible] thought are made to the rules under before the tariff bill is reported so that is the most important question that has been before the House for [illegible] years.

Representative Lassiter of Virginia presented a proposition to amend the rules so that a motion to [illegible] the Speaker and appeal from a decision of members will be considered a question of highest privilege.

SHEPPARD IS RELATIVE.

Texas Congressman Will Not Leave Washington Today.

Special Telegram to The Express.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—Congressman Morris Sheppard, now en route to Washington from Texas, where he went from St. Louis that he would not be able to reach the city before this morning's afternoon owing to trains being cancelled on account of high water. Mr. Sheppard left Houston in time to be at the opening of Congress Monday, but missed connection at Denison.

Champ Clark, minority leader, is [illegible] nervously anxious to have every Democrat in his seat when the session of the House is called to order to aid the movement for a revision of the rules. Mr. Sheppard is [illegible] disappointed at his inability to answer the first roll call.

TWENTY PERISH IN COLLISION.

One Steamer Sinks Another Off Dutch Coast.

ROTTERDAM, March 14.—The steamer Maasmel, bound for Sunderland, collided today with the German ship Mannheim, for Hamburg, about twenty miles west of the Maas lightship.

The Mannheim sank almost immediately, twenty of the crew being drowned. The six remaining members of the crew were saved.

The Maasmel returned here with a big hole in her bow.

S.S.S. THE REMEDY FOR SORES AND ULCERS

The combination of healthful vegetable ingredients of which S. S. S. is composed, makes it an especially desirable and effective remedy in the treatment of sores and ulcers of every kind. Since an impure condition of the blood is responsible for the trouble, a medicine that can purify the blood is the only hope of a successful cure; and it should be a medicine that not only cleanses the circulation, but one that at the same time restores the blood to its normal, rich, nutritive condition. S. S. S. is that kind of a remedy. It is made entirely of healing, cleansing vegetable properties, extracted from nature's roots, herbs and barks of the forest and field. It has long been recognized as the greatest of all blood purifiers, possessing the qualities necessary to remove every impurity in the blood. When S. S. S. has purified the circulation, and strengthened and enriched it, sores and ulcers heal naturally and surely, because they are no longer fed and kept open by a continued discharge into them of irritating disease-laden matter from the blood. S. S. S. brings about a healthy condition of the flesh by supplying it with rich, nourishing blood and makes a permanent and lasting cure. Book on Sores and Ulcers and any medical advice mailed free to all who write.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

DR. W. A. WOMBLE, Specialist
Chronic and special diseases of men and women. Diseases of Kidney and Bladder, Blood and Skin, Rheumatism, Catarrh, Stomach, Eczema, Weakness, all Genito-Urinary Diseases. X-Ray and all modern appliances to treat you. Consultation free. Office, 3d floor Hicks Bldg., rooms 313-314. Hours 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Alamo Sash & Door Co.
—MANUFACTURERS OF—
SASH, BLINDS, DOORS, WINDOW FRAMES, PORCH COLUMNS STAIRS AND GRO MILL WORK OF ALL KINDS
OLD PHONE 988. HEARF ST., NR T. & P.

Houston Street Store
FOR RENT
Long Lease, Cheap Rent—the very best location on the street, only two doors from Wagner's Drug Store (the busy corner)! apply GUARANTEE SHOE CO.

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

Alamo City Commercial College
WHY NOT YOU?
Others here risen from lowly conditions to command responsible positions in the business world. They may be yours if you employ the means available. The A. C. C. & B. C. here and you will soon be fitted to grasp the opportunity that is offered those and [illegible] spaces who are do "the work the world needs done."
Cor. Houston and Soledad Sts. SHAFER & DOWNEY, Proprietors San Antonio, Tex.
REASONABLE AND UNIFORM RATES.

BUSINESS COLLEGE LEAVES ALAMO PLAZA
PUBLIC TAKE NOTICE!
Nelson & Draughon Business College
Leaves Alamo Plaza and moves to Elks' old halls, 118 West Commerce Street, Alamo Beak building. Splendid light, thoroughly equipped, commodious and remodeled rooms. Our patronage. J. F. Draughon, Vice president, Manager, San Antonio.

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

611

840514054
The Emma Goldman Papers
The End of the Odyssey / Emma Goldman. — pp. 47-51 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 4, no. 2 (April 1909).
Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

to keep strictly within facts. Even the title was altered accordingly. His subject is declared to be, not the future improvement, but the past history and present prospects of mankind. In the substance of his reasoning there was one modification which his opponents naturally worked for all it was worth. In the edition of 1798 he had described the positive checks on population as "Vice and Misery," the preventive as based upon "the fear of them." A criticism, in which he admitted force, was that he had said nothing about hope. Ambition, the desire of improving one's condition, is certainly a chief cause of continence, and this is something more than fear of vice and misery for oneself or his posteritty. Acknowledging this, the tone of theorizing is certainly more optimistic than before. This change in Malthus' language, rather than his meaning, together with the confession that he should have been more explicit at first, is the basis of the criticism often made by Coleridge and others, that the theory is a truism from which nothing can be inferred. That it is no truism, but an extremely complicated equation, may certainly be inferred from the facility with which critics misunderstand it, the multiplicitty of ways in which they manage to do that, and the oft-recurring argument ad verecundum—it is very strange that Menu, Confucius, Moses, Solon, Cato, even the ascetic Roman Catholic publicists, should have held up increasing the species as a sacred duty; and that discovering the direful results of doing so should have been reserved for Malthus!* Of the four subsequent editions, nothing need be said here, except that they become progressively more statistical, comprehensive, and bold, until even friendly critics thought he would have been clearer for taking less pains to be clear.

* George, whose "refutation of Malthus" is useful because it gives in epitome those of every one else, with exquisite consistency, suggests both these views; sometimes wondering ironically that this great truth never was discovered before; sometimes intimating that it does not amount to a great truth, because everybody knows all the truth there is in it, and governs himself accordingly. That Malthus actually stated all the truth there is in this, would never be suspected by a reader of George.

(To be continued.)

THE END OF THE ODYSSEY

BY EMMA GOLDMAN

"PERSEVERANCE and postage stamps will get any article published"—is a favorite slogan of a friend of mine.

On several occasions, when I have sent contributions to some of the leading magazines, they were returned. Indeed, it would have been nothing short of a miracle had my articles been accepted. "Progressive ideas are all right, if presented in moderate form and by respectable writers. But Emma Goldman, who is neither . . . Dear me! How can we compromise our good standing." And so I stopped wasting Perseverance and postage stamps.

However, I can bear my friend out in the truth of his claim. Perseverance is indeed a wonderful factor in helping to overcome difficulties, especially when combined with postage stamps or their equivalent.

He who travels on the wings of imagination travels far—sometimes. At least I thought so last October, when I took leave of my few but faithful friends to begin my tour around the world.

Ere I had gone very far I had occasion to verify my friend's opinion as to Persevcrance and postage stamps.

In India the people are often overtaken by famine epidemics, bringing great disaster to that John Bull ridden country. But how insignificant is the harm wrought by such awful outbreaks when compared to our national pest—election. Its poisonous effects are being felt at all times, but at no time does it assume such monstrous form as during a presidential campaign. Electiomania, America's greatest malady, far worse and more destructive than cholera. Will medical science never invent some serum to relieve us from its ravages? Just fancy talking reason or ideas to a feverish, delirious brain.

Perseverance and postage stamps suggested that cold compresses of reason have often broken the most stubborn fever. So for a month I diligently applied the eold-cure method. By the latter part of November my methods were crowned with suecess. The audiences began to show signs of normal temperature and an appetite for wholesome food. High-spirited and light-hearted, I swiftly

612

840514054

The Emma Goldman Papers

The End of the Odyssey / Emma Goldman. – pp. 47-51 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 4, no. 2 (April 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

moved along the route of success for MOTHER EARTH, nearing to the Pacific Ocean and Australia.

But a new spectre appeared now on the firmament, black and sinister, challenging the utmost vigilance and perseverance— Christmas. What? The month of glad tidings—of peace on earth and good will to all—a spectre? Yes, a hideous, black, deceiving spectre, that has held the human mind in bondage for almost two thousand years. The legend of the birth of the Redeemer, like all legends, is based on a lie. It has gone on perpetuating itself, until to-day it serves but as an excuse for commercialism, greed, and petty speculation. Christmas—a howling, pushing, scrambling, obsessed bargain huntress; with no interest or time for anything, least of all for Christ himself, were he to chance into the madhouse at Christmas time.

Hopes were low, and postage stamps few. But Perseverance shook his mane and cried, Onward! Nor did he relax his grasp when confronted with police brutality and persecution.

In January I reached Los Angeles, very much depressed and weary. But the balmy clime of the sunny South, coupled with the devotion and thoughtfulness of friends, rejuvenated my spirit. Comrade Claude Riddle's skillful management of my meetings did the rest. I left the Angel City relieved from a heavy burden in the form of a considerable debt, with a hundred and fifty dollars for MOTHER EARTH'S friend, the enemy—our printer. But all that was as nothing compared to the hope and strength that were mine, thanks to the love and kindness of my Los Angeles friends.

San Francisco was to be my last battlefield, the date of my departure for Australia having been set for January 23d. The comrades of that city, with Alexander Horr as prime mover, left nothing undone to insure success; but the treacherous Conspiracy of Circumstances assassinated our efforts.

The Conspiracy of Circumstances! Who does not know its power, its quiet, persistent, merciless power. Unlike a foe of flesh and blood, one cannot meet it in open battle, or even escape it. It is always with you. Never in my experience did I feel its blind, relentless fury as during my stay in San Francisco. It was this inanimate, dumb, blind force that was ever at our heels, using a thousand conceivable tricks to frustrate our every plan. More than once the Conspiracy of Circumstance was near succeeding. But Perseverance was no easy mark; especially the combined tenacity of sturdy warriors who met the enemy with unsheated sword.

It was a desperate battle, with Perseverance as victor, the Conspiracy of Circumstances eloping with all the postage stamps. No equivalent at hand to pay transportation to Australia, there was nothing left to do but to steer back to the little home of MOTHER EARTH. But Perseverance would not yield. The South, the South! it urged. Why not?

In all my travels I had never visited the South. Somehow the very thought of it conjured up horrible pictures—pictures of little victims in the cotton fields, of bodies dangling from trees, bodies mutilated to cinders and ashes. But when the idea of going to Texas was suggested to me, I recollected the wise saying, "He that is without sin among you, let him cast the first stone." Remembering the sweatshops of the East with its countless victims, how could I condemn the South? Mindful of the race feuds in New York City, the burning of negroes in Springfield, Illinois, how could I cast stones?

After visiting Los Angeles, where I had two good meetings and a debate, I proceeded to Texas. It was indeed a rich experience—though not in postage stamps.

My first stop was El Paso, a city containing, among other nationalities, thirty thousand Mexicans, whom an American administration subservient to that monster Diaz, would not permit to hold public meetings addressed in Spanish. Perchance these poor victims might tell the horrors of their country, the terrible despotism, the appalling poverty, more terrible than in the domain of the Bloody Tsar.

The press of El Paso, with the exception of the News, thrives on the Judas Iscariot gold pieces, ground out of the Mexican peons. No wonder it was so venomous in its denunciation of Anarchism. But with all that we had one meeting in El Paso and disposed of some literature. The principal good, however, was done by the intelligent and fair editorial of the News, which of course would never have been written had I not visited the South.

San Antonio, the most southern city of Texas, with its 840514054

613

The Emma Goldman Papers

The End of the Odyssey / Emma Goldman. — pp. 47-51 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 4, no. 2 (April 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

lazy, quiet, and easy-going exterior, with its old market place where slaves were bought and sold (selling and buying still continues with less cost to the modern master and with the consciousness of the slave that he is now free to sell himself). No hall could be procured in this city, except at a very high rent, and as the outlook was not promising, we decided to hold no meeting. But some propaganda was accomplished by several decent accounts in the local newspapers of interviews.

Houston looks like the average American city, but unlike others, it can boast of a miracle: the Chief of Police and Mayor offering the City Hall for a lecture by Emma Goldman. Who can say that the twentieth century lacks wonders? Having enjoyed the hospitality of the police so often without my consent, I could not accept their offer voluntarily. We secured a hall from some Catholic order, but when it became known that I would speak, the brethren thought Satan broke loose. Terror-stricken, they sent a committee to pay all our expenses and begged to be released from their contract. Who ever heard of a Catholic bargain with Hell?

For a time it looked as if Houston, too, would remain in darkness as to the real meaning of Anarchism. But, thanks to a few brave Houstonians, that city has now some excuse for being on the map. A group of Single Taxers came to our rescue in the freest and kindest spirit. The Single Tax "Log Cabin," donated by one of their comrades, Mr. J. J. Pastoriza, an extraordinary man in many respects, was turned over to our use. The Cabin is on the outskirts of the city, crude and rugged, with a romantic air about it, to satisfy the most poetic imagination. With lamps dimly lighting the place, and the men and women closely pressed together, it was nevertheless the most inspiring meeting of my entire tour. When I looked into the earnest faces, so near that I could almost touch them, I forgot the hardships of the past and the disappointments of the future—all I felt was the warm pulse of humanity, a rich, great, beautiful possibility of human brotherhood.

Man is greater than all theory. It is therefore of little moment whether Single Tax, economically, is but a petty reform and that, politically, it is hanging on the coat-tails of the Democratic party. As men I have found them the bravest and staunchest champions of liberty in the widest sense. And that is a great deal more than can be said of the party which has a mortgage on "scientific" Socialism, with a premium on the densest kind of stupidity. Its cowardice of authority and intolerance of everything not baptized in the holy church of the Marxian-Engels rites, are really sickening. Of course, there are exceptions, but they merely prove the rule. The few Socialists of independent mind and spirit are not very long tolerated by the Holy Synod.

With two meetings in Fort Worth I closed the tour of Golgotha, and reached New York nailed to the cross of necessity.

Reviewing the struggle of the last six months, I can say that but for Perseverance it would have been impossible. But it was not that alone. My friends and comrades have a big share in the accomplished feat. Especially is this true of the San Francisco and Los Angeles comrades, whose efforts were truly heroic. By that I do not mean to undervalue the assistance of comrades in other cities. Indeed not. Everyone helped in his own way. The way may not always have been the right one, but that is only because most of our comrades make up in idealism what they lack in practical judgment.

However, more than anything else, the unfaltering optimism, the great zeal, and the cheerful bohemianism of our friend, Ben L. Reitman, helped to conquer many obstacles.

My tour to Australia is not abandoned; only postponed —until I can discover the eloped postage stamps. That I do not lack Perseverance our readers know.

Meanwhile I shall deliver a series of lectures in New York, the first to take place Sunday, April 11, 11 a. m., at Lyric Hall, Sixth avenue, near Forty-second street.

The subject of my first lecture will be : "The Psychology of Violence."

The series will be continued during April and May, the lectures to take place Sunday mornings at Fraternity Hall, 100 West 116th street, corner Lenox avenue, New York.

614

890308014

The Emma Goldman Papers

[In the United States of America. In German] Vereinigte Staaten / Emma Goldman. – 33 cm. In Der Freie Arbeiter [Berlin]. – (April 10, 1909).

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the Zentrales Staatsarchiv (DDR), Merseburg, Germany.

14

Der freie Arbeiter (Berlin)

Nr 15

10 Apr 1909

Vereinigte Staaten.

In „Mother Earth" veröffentlicht Genossin Emma Goldmann einen Brief, der sich mit ihrer und des Genossen Dr. Reitmann Verhaftung in San Franzisko, die jedoch mit der Freisprechung der Angeklagten endigte, anlässlich einer Propagandatournee befasst, dem wir folgendes entnehmen:

„Wir waren angeklagt des „Aufruhrs und der Verschwörung, ungesetzlicher Bedrohung mit Gewalt und Zwang, und Störung des öffentlichen Friedens" usw. Anklagen, in der Tat so schwer, dass der Richter sich veranlasst fühlte, eine Bürgschaft von 16.000 Dollars für jeden Angeklagten als eine Kleinigkeit zu betrachten. Aber plötzlich, vier Tage nach unserer Festnahme, wurden diese „schweren Anklagen" zurückgestellt und eine neue Anklage ausgebrütet, die auf „ungesetzliche Versammlung, die Bezeichnung jeder organisierten Regierung als unnötig, und das Verkünden anarchistischer Doktrinen" lautete. O Schrecken! Auf Grund dieser neuen und gefährlichen Anklage wurde ich in Untersuchungshaft genommen, ebenso Dr. Reitman, so hatte ich nun Ferien auf Kosten der Stadt am goldenen Tor.

Ich wünschte, ich hätte das Talent, die ganze Vorstellung würdig zu beschreiben. Den Ernst des Richters, das wichtige Getue des Distriktsanwalts, das geheimnisvolle Benehmen der Detektives, die als Zeugen da waren, die Gesichter der Gerichtsdiener. Der eine den anderen ängstlich beobachtend, ob er nicht ein Anarchist sein könnte, was gleichbedeutend mit Dynamit und Bomben ist. Es war ein Anblick für Götter.

Unser Rechtsanwalt, Mr. Ernest E. Kirk, ein junger lebhafter Kalifornier, mit echt keltischem Humor ausgestattet, wie brachte er diese Scheinmenschen in Hitze. Wie sie dasassen und lauschten.

Was wissen Sie vom Anarchismus? Die Zeitungen sagen, Anarchismus ist die Lehre von Dynamit und Bomben. Was wissen Sie von den Angeklagten? Die Zeitungen sagen, sie veranlassen das Volk, zu morden. Die Zeitungen, die Zeitungen! Die einzige Quelle des Wissens und der Information der Amerikaner. Sie vergiften den Geist und verderben die menschliche Seele. Die Herabwürdiger und Verunstalter der Wahrheit, Amerikas grösste Plage und Pest, die Erzfeinde alles Guten, Schönen und Wahren. Wenn jemals der Tag des Gerichts kommen sollte, nicht im Himmel, aber hier auf Erden, wenn jemals die Streitkräfte für und gegen den Niedergang der Menschheit sich in offener Schlacht treffen sollten, diese Zeitungsprofessionisten werden wohl die ersten sein, die dem Zorn eines beschimpften, betrogenen und beschwindelten Volkes stand zu halten haben werden. Es ist immer meine Meinung gewesen, dass die Polizei sich aus dem verachtungswürdigsten Menschenmaterial zusammensetzt, aber meine Erlebnisse in San Franzisco haben mich belehrt, dass, verglichen mit der Menschenart, die den amerikanischen Journalismus entweiht, die Polizei so weiss und tugendhaft ist, wie die sprichwörtlichen Engel."

Wir wussten natürlich, dass der Beweis, den die Anklage zusammensuchen wollte, so locker und absurd ausfallen würde, dass selbst der dümmste Richter zu einer Freisprechung kommen musste.

Wir erklärten uns schuldig bezüglich der Behauptung, dass jede Regierung ein Verbrechen ist, dass sie Freiheit und Wohlbefinden zerstört, und dass wir darnach trachten müssen, sie abzuschaffen, mit allen Mitteln, die uns zur Verfügung stehen. Aber wann schon die Polizei und die Gerichte dieses Landes in der Unterdrückung der Rede- und Pressfreiheit über ihre Befugnisse hinausgegangen sind, können sie doch nicht bei noch so grosser Einbildungskraft ein Verbrechen darin finden, dass man etwas als unnötig bezeichnet.

Das Verhör war nicht nur von Nutzen für die Verteidigung der Redefreiheit, sondern auch für die Propaganda des Anarchismus, schon deshalb weil vor Gericht vollkommen gesetzlich sein kann, was in einem öffentlichen Saal ein Verbrechen ist. Und wir predigten den Anarchismus, jede Phase desselben, gründlicher und wirkungsvoller, als es in einem Dutzend Versammlungen möglich gewesen wäre.

Polizeirichter Desay, der erst seit zwei Monaten seines Amtes waltete, hatte ein offenes Herz für die durch Not und Elend zu Verbrechern gewordenen Unglücklichen. Niemals hörte ich ihn einen Vorwurf oder ein unfreundliches Wort gegen diese aussprechen. Ganz anders aber war sein Auftreten gegen uns Anarchisten. Da auch er durch die Zeitungen belehrt wurde, dass die Anarchisten menschliche Bestien seien, die sich nur nach Mord und Totschlag sehnten. Es wäre das nicht zu verwundern gewesen, wenn er seine Macht dazu benutzt hätte, uns dahin zu befördern, wo wir den Frieden der menschlichen Gemeinschaft nicht mehr hätten stören können.

Nachdem Mr. Kirk seine Verteidigungsrede beendet hatte, zogen sich die Geschworenen zurück und der Richter belehrte sie, dass ein Freispruch angebracht sei. In wenigen Minuten war die Farce vorbei, die Clowns zogen sich zurück und der Zirkus wurde gesäubert.

Binnen zwei Tagen nach der Freisprechung hatten wir den grössten Saal der Stadt gemietet und eine Versammlung wurde angekündigt: „Emma Goldman nicht schuldig! Riesen-Versammlung" usw. Am Sonntag, 31. Januar, abends, strömten 2000 Personen in den Saal, wo Emma Goldman eine begeisterte Ansprache hielt.

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

615

840514056

The Emma Goldman Papers

A Woman Without a Country / Emma Goldman. – pp. 81-82 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 4, no. 3 (May 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

since they consisted in the daily find of toads or lizards, which may take up all a Digger Indian's time, is, in Malthus' language, "accidents." Some of these accidents were blessings very terribly disguised. One of the most important was the Black Death, which killed serfdom throughout the greater part of Europe, by reducing the number of laborers, and exciting such competition for their services that they could no longer be kept from migrating in search of high wages. Such "accidents" would do the laborer no permanent good, if he were quite the shiftless being which some bourgeois writers represent him. But, though generally ignorant and stupid, he has certain "strong instinets and plain rules," which serve his turn. He will not work for less (real) wages than he is used to getting. Even down to the state of chattel slavery we can see this. Coolies may work for rice gruel; but it would never do not to make negro slaves more comfortable than many white men are. The "standard of comfort" among laborers, raised, from time to time, by "fortunate accidents," and kept from falling by strikes, peasant insurrections, increase of continence, in short by the laborer's determination to keep it up at whatever hazard, has been the guarantec of progress; for it is these struggles which increase knowledge.

Examples of the "accidents" are numerous. The breaking up of the Roman Empire killed chattel slavery, which requires extradition not to be obtained under the loose rule of the Barbarians. The restoration of slavery, though favored by circumstances in the colonies, has been stoutly withstood, and, in Malthus' time, was evidently failing. The discovery of America, by relieving pressure in Europe, raised the standard of comfort there; and legalization of Trades' Unions is evidence that it will not fall. The French Revolution made the peasants landowners, and the restored Bourbon dared not rob them; etc. Evidently, Malthus' economy is not a dismal science. Believing a high standard of comfort the condition of social improvement, he was no prophet of "parsimony." He encouraged, indeed, saving by retrenchment of expenses upon the lower appetites; but with a view to enjoyment, not mere money-making. The English proletaire who denies himself gin, if at all, that he may have good clothes, a furnished house, a lease, a library, is wiser than the French peasant who lives on black bread that he may buy more land. Malthus went further than perhaps any economist reckoned "orthodox" in recognition of the great truth that exchange is the chief source of riches and that starving to get ahead of each other, like the Coolies and the Jews in many places, makes all the people absolutely poor whomever it makes relatively rich. Thus his view of "progress and poverty" differed from Ricardo's, it has been said, as Arminianism from Calvinism. Malthus refers everything to the individual, Ricardo to certain institutions, such as land ownership, which he took for granted. In the minds of Socialists, Ricardo's principles tend to passive reliance on the Omnipotent Goodness of the State, those of Malthus to repudiation of the State, or Anarchism.

(To be continued.)

A WOMAN WITHOUT A COUNTRY

THE United States government in a mad chase after Emma Goldman.

What a significant title for a funny story. What rich material for a cartoon!

By the decision of the Federal government, Emma Goldman, the terrible, may now be deported. Well, serves her right. What on earth made her select our dear country, anyway? It's different with us Americans. We are here through no fault of ours. But for her to come voluntarily, to live here twenty-five years, and to go on as if she were at home—that is strong, indeed!

What didn't our government do to get rid of her?! For seventeen years the police have camped on her trail; her meetings were broken up; her audiences clubbed innumerable times, but that didn't seem to help. Then she was arrested again and again—not for what she said, but for what she was going to say. Why, she was actually sentenced to Blackwell's Island penitentiary once, for inciting to riot which didn't take place, but which might have taken place. Well, what happened? When she came out, she was worse than ever. In 1901 she was held under twenty thousand dollars bail, while our poor government spent thirty thousand dollars to connect her

616

840514056
The Emma Goldman Papers
A Woman Without a Country / Emma Goldman. — pp. 81-82 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. — Vol. 4, no. 3 (May 1909).
Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

with McKinley's death. In short, every conceivable method was used to relieve the anxiety of the United States government. But that woman simply sticks and sticks. However, if there is anything Uncle Sam cannot do, we should like to know it. Hasn't he men in the secret service patriotic enough to do any kind of a dirty job for money? Well, we sent some of them to a city called Rochester, where, many years ago, a man had the misfortune to marry that there Emma Goldman. He was a good man, you know; for no American citizen can be a very bad man. But that marriage was a blotch on his citizenship. So, out of Christian kindness and American loyalty, his naturalization papers were annulled. Wasn't that a clever idea? Of course, it cost quite a lot. Some people in Rochester had to be cajoled, intimidated, threatened, frightened, and possibly bribed. But it was done all right, and the country might now breathe easy if—but there is Emma Goldman, still enjoying our air, looking at our sky, counting our stars, basking in our sun, and dreaming un-American dreams,—can there be a greater indictment against any human being? Not enough of that, she actually disbelieves in our or any government, and insists that they are only here to divide human interests. She attacks the entire system; she will have it that it is a life-and-soul-destroying mechanism, and that it strips man of the finest and best in him.

Did anyone ever hear of such treason?

Were she an American citizen, we might some day hang or electrocute her. But an alien—what's left for us to do but to deport her. The trouble is, where, oh where can we send her?

Poor, poor United States government! Yours is, indeed, a difficult task. True, your hard, persistent labors have been crowned with some success. You have Emma Goldman's citizenship. But she has the world, and her heritage is the kinship of brave spirits—not a bad bargain.

Emma Goldman.

WM. BUWALDA'S LETTER TO THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT*

Hudsonville, Mich.,
April 6, 1909.

Hon. Joseph M. Dickinson,
Secretary of War,
Washington, D. C.

Sir:—After thinking the matter over for some time I have decided to send back this trinket to your Department, having no further use for such baubles, and enable you to give it to some one who will appreciate it more than I do.

It speaks to me of faithful service, of duty well done, of friendships inseparable, friendships cemented by dangers and hardships and sufferings shared in common in camp and in the field. But, sir, it also speaks to me of bloodshed—possibly some of it unavoidably innocent—in defense of loved ones, of homes; homes in many cases but huts of grass, yet cherished none the less.

It speaks of raids and burnings, of many prisoners taken and, like vile beasts, thrown in the foulest of prisons. And for what? For fighting for their homes and loved ones.

It speaks to me of G. O. 100, with all its attendant horrors and cruelties and sufferings; of a country laid waste with fire and sword; of animals useful to man wantonly killed; of men, women, and children hunted like wild beasts, and all this in the name of Liberty, Humanity, and Civilization.

In short, it speaks to me of War—legalized murder, if you will—upon a weak and defenseless people. We have not even the excuse of self-defense.

Yours sincerely,

Wm. Buwalda,
R. R. No. 3, Hudsonville, Mich.

* Copy of the letter Wm. Buwalda sent to the U. S. government when returning the medal awarded him for faithful service in the Philippines.—Ed.

617

840514057
The Emma Goldman Papers
The Easiest Way / Emma Goldman. – pp. 86-92 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 4, no. 3 (May 1909).
Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

as one who is useless and undeserving of even the humblest seat at the banquet table, and yet why should he debauch and stultify his soul by making himself proficient at something he has no interest in. Why? Speaking to one of our best known and most libertarian clergymen and to one of the ablest and most successful public school principals in New York—a woman of force and character—I was informed by both that work was in itself a noble thing, and in one case that we should feel our life well spent if we earned a living for ourselves—at anything honest, though obnoxious. Why one should consider work, which has no social value and is personally objectionable, as noble or self-satisfying merely because it is done well, is quite beyond us. By all means encourage, stimulate, and help the youth to discover that form of occupation which Bancroft, the historian, said would be a pleasure and solace in his old age, for by so doing you not only people the earth with efficient men and women, but you people it with free human beings.

* * *

THE EASIEST WAY

An Appreciation

By EMMA GOLDMAN.

HIPPOLYTE TAINE assures us that the real criterion of the development and culture of a people is its literature. No doubt Taine used the term in a broad sense, including also the drama. Is not the latter one of the strongest, if not the strongest, medium of literary interpretation of life? If so, we must assume that America had hitherto neither culture nor development, since its drama, at least, was of the poorest quality indeed. The people at large still consider the theater a place of cheap amusement and relaxation from the daily grind, while the melodramatic impossibilities serve as a vehicle to inflame the imagination of the street gamin or the hero worship of the boarding school miss.

However, the last fifteen years have wrought a great change from the nerve-racking mechanism of our existence to a deeper and finer appreciation of the true relations of life.

This awakening is the natural sequence of a commercialism which has about reached its zenith. This condition it is which furnishes the stimulus to a real American drama worthy of the name.

If it be true that nature will use up a great deal of human material to mold one genius, why may it not be equally true that innumerable dramatic attempts had to be made before the real drama could be born?

"The Easiest Way," by Eugene Walter, can be considered the first American work of real dramatic art. The artistic merit of this drama lies not so much in its harmony of details, itself extraordinary, but rather in its faithful and bold portrayal of life. After all, what is art but life? Life, not in the exceptional, but in its every-day, ordinary manifestations. When truly great, art merely aids us to see with the inner eye, the human eye. Thus, when we look at Rodin's masterpiece, "Old Age," representing an ugly, shriveled woman in the process of decay, we will at once behold the panorama of a thousand incidents and events. We can see the child's joys, the youth's dreams and aspirations, the intensity of mature love, with all its ecstasy and pain; we see a thousand blighted hopes, and an endless struggle against the inevitable laws of life, and the final dumb submission and despair. Looking upon art from this viewpoint, I consider "The Easiest Way" truly great. Of the five characters whose lives are unrolled before us, none represents the exceptional. No such spirit as of a Mrs. Alving, or the colossal figure of Brandt or Dr. Stockmann can be found in "The Easiest Way." Much less are we called upon to divine the complex temperament of Anna Mar or Heinrich the Bell-forger. Nothing but every-day people, living every-day lives; yet so vividly brought before us as to hold the rapt attention for hours and to dissolve themselves in our very blood till they become part of us.

No wonder respectability became enraged. To think that "disreputable" beings can suffer, that they, too, cling to life, and struggle and lie and cheat for "a bit of love, happiness, and peace!" Why, they even have a code of morals. The men clinging to their "honor," even though it costs a human soul. The women striving to become "respectable and decent" through matrimony. How per-

618

840514057
The Emma Goldman Papers
The Easiest Way / Emma Goldman. – pp. 86-92 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 4, no. 3 (May 1909).
Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

fectly awful that respectability should be molded of the same clay.

"The Easiest Way" is supposed to represent a "peculiar phase" of New York life. If that were all, it would be of little significance. After all, Laura Murdock and Elfie St. Clair are not the only demi-mondes who have been dramatized. We have had Zaza, Camille, Du Barry, and others. That which gives the play real importance and value lies much deeper. It lies, first, in the fundamental current of our social fabric which drives us all, even stronger characters than Laura, into the easiest way —a way so very destructive of integrity, of truth, and justice, yet the only one to exist at all. Secondly, the cruel, senseless, criminal fatalism conditioned in Laura's sex. These two features put the universal stamp on the play, and destine it to prove the strongest indictment against society.

Laura Murdock, a cheap actress, is playing with a stock company in the mountains of Colorado. She is kept by Willard Brockton, a wealthy man about town, interested in theatrical ventures. He travels twenty-five hundred miles to Denver to take Laura back with him to a palatial home in New York. The girl, however, has meantime fallen in love with John Madison, a young reporter. Unlike others of his set, he was willing to take Laura, though she had a past, since he himself had lived rather a fast and easy life. Brockton, the elder of the two, knowing the girl well, asks Madison how much he makes a week, and when informed that it is only thirty dollars, he warns Madison that Laura is utterly unfit to forego her habits of luxury. Holding to the old proverb that love is blind, Madison arranges with Laura for her to return to New York to seek independence, while he would exert strenuous efforts to "make his pile," when he would marry her.

In the second act we see Laura in a cheap furnished room, with all her money, jewelry, and dresses gone, unable to get an engagement. Madison is still in the West, writing daily long love letters to Laura, which, coming on a hungry stomach, with no prospects in view, fail to have the desired effect on the girl. At the moment of her greatest despair a visitor is announced, Elfie St. Clair, an ex-variety actress, now the mistress of a man old and ugly, but, in the words of Elfie, "who is good to me." The two girls were friends at the time when Laura lived in the same atmosphere. But now that she is undergoing a treatment of the virtue cure, she rebukes Elfie for her life and for her lack of understanding of Laura's new ideals. But necessity knows no law. Laura is about to be evicted. Though spurning Elfie's manner of life, she is willing to accept a loan from her. But Elfie, with all her cynicism and cruel knowledge of her atmosphere, has retained some sense of justice, and is about to leave her friend to her own fate. But when Laura breaks down, Elfie recants and is willing to assist her. At that moment Laura, realizing her utter distress and inability to stand the strain any longer, decides to go back to Brockton, who had come in Elfie's motor car and is waiting downstairs. Brockton is overjoyed, tells Laura it is his first real happy day in six months, and puts money on her table, but insists that she should go back to him only if she can do it voluntarily; and if not, offers to aid her to a position with one of the theatrical companies. When Laura resolves to return, Brockton insists on her writing to Madison, renouncing her love for him. "I know it's cruel, but I've given Madison my word of honor to let him know should you return to me." Two months later we see Laura in an expensive hotel, amidst souvenirs of the previous night's debauch. Brockton is there, apparently quite at home. Laura has all the luxuries for which she had sold herself; but in consequence she is growing to hate Brockton and is very anxious about Madison, to whom of course she did not send the letter dictated by Brockton. At that moment a telegram arrives announcing that John Madison had made a fortune in the West and is hurrying East to marry Laura. He is due that afternoon. Brockton, reading the news of Madison's sudden luck in one of the morning papers, realizes that Laura had not "played him fair" and did not send the letter. He insists that he would not permit her to receive Madison and that the latter must learn everything, but finally yields to Laura's promise to tell all to Madison. When Madison arrives Laura is too weak to meet the critical moment and suffers him to depart to make preparations for the wedding, without keeping her promise to Brockton.

619

840514057
The Emma Goldman Papers
The Easiest Way / Emma Goldman. – pp. 86-92 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 4, no. 3 (May 1909).
Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

The fourth act finds Laura dressed for her journey, waiting for Madison. When the latter arrives he tells her that all is ready for the final step, but that he had heard rumors about her and Brockton. But Laura assures him that she has kept faith. John has taken her word, and then suddenly sound Brockton's footsteps in the hall; his key opens the door, and with the manner of being at home he walks through the parlor to the bedroom. At that moment Madison knows all. He points his revolver at Brockton, but is stopped by Laura. She pleads with Madison and urges her helplessness, her weakness, her need. Madison cannot believe her again. Finally she threatens suicide. Madison, cold and rigid, scoffs at her, "You haven't the nerve." He leaves her.

Laura stands for a moment paralyzed with grief and despair, and then hysterically screams, "To hell with them all! I'm going to Rector's to make a hit."

When I saw the play the first time I could not help wishing for an American Bernard Shaw to write a thirty page preface as a text-book for critics. Indeed, what our critics do not know about the drama would fill more than thirty pages. To quote a few Solomonic oracles: "'The Easiest Way' is a slum play." "'The Easiest Way' attacks the theater trust." "'The Easiest Way' shows how a man about town victimizes a poor girl," etc., etc. But then our critics possibly knew better, but it were dangerous to analyze such a powerful indictment against society.

To say that Brockton forced Laura to return, or that the theater trust even is responsible, seems to be an absurd and superficial grasp of "The Easiest Way."

Brockton is certainly not an ideal character. And yet, compared with other men whose money decides human destiny, he is kinder and more humane, at least to Laura. In fact, the girl herself tells us so in the first act: "You have been awfully good to me, and now you will surely not stand in the way of my happiness." And he does not, only he knows Laura and therefore has little faith in her perseverance.

Again, in the second act, Brockton shows that he is not altogether void of decency. He asks Laura not to come unless she can do so voluntarily. He even offers to get her an engagement. Finally, in the last act, when the house built on a lie crumbles to pieces, with Madison horribly shaken, Brockton says, "You are all in. How I wish I could be all in." A man who is still capable of such regrets has something in his favor.

No, it is not Brockton. It's our criminal waste of human energy, our cold, cruel, economic and social fabric, that drives Laura, even as it drives the average girl to marry any man for a "home." Or as it drives all men to endure the worst indignities for a miserable pittance.

"Do you know what it means to be hungry?" Laura asks Madison in her last desperate attempt to hold him. No, he did not know. His rigid, puritanical clinging to "honor" and "truth" made him blind to the awful force of conditions that has broken stauncher spirits than Laura's.

And then—there is that other condition, the fatalism of Laura's sex. Elfie St. Clair sums up the inevitability of that force in the following words: "Don't you know that we count no more in the life of these men than tamed animals? It's a game, Laura, and if we don't play our cards well, we lose." There it is in a nutshell. Woman in her battle with life has but one weapon, one commodity—her sex. To succeed she has been trained to bring into the competitive field not brains, skill, judgment, character, or integrity; her sex was her attribute. That alone served as trump card in the game of life. Aye, and it has also served her as the greatest force to bring men to her feet.

Thus both Brockton and Madison in their attitude to Laura are similar. Madison bids for her with a marriage license and Brockton—well, he wants the girl as his mistress, but in return gives her more freedom of movement The only condition he ever made was that she be "on the square" with him. While Madison makes it very clear to Laura "what it means to be my wife."

Yes, it is that cruel, blind fatalism that has made of woman a parasite, an inert thing. Why, then, expect perseverance or energy of Laura? The easiest way is the path mapped out for her from time immemorial. She could follow no other.

It is impossible to do justice to the wealth of dramatic and artistic moments contained in "The Easiest Way." What wonderful psychologic grasp of human character,

620

840514057
The Emma Goldman Papers
The Easiest Way / Emma Goldman. – pp. 86-92 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 4, no. 3 (May 1909).
Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

as portrayed by Elfie St. Clair. Harsh, cynical, yet so full of human touches. How much some of our Christian ladies could learn from her. The simple thoughtfulness of putting a fresh flower on Laura's table, and her readiness to forgive and help, though she was so bitterly hurt by her friend's scorn. And in the third act, when she pours out her loneliness into Laura's ears, "Do you know that you are the only thing I love?" Just think of it, ladies and gentlemen, a "bad" woman, one who sells her body, yet craving love and affection.

The most tragic moment in the whole play, to me, is not that Laura goes to "make a hit." After all, compared with the dull, dreary life of thousands of working girls, hers is the brighter. The tragic moment is expressed in the loud, shrill organ music, at the moment when Laura cries, "Paint my face and adorn my body. They have robbed me of my soul!" That terrible lack of sympathy, of oneness with human sorrow; a quivering soul, and discordant sounds streaming through the window. Men and women living side by side, passing each other, yet each blank and barren. That is at once the most tragic and dramatic moment of the entire play.

As to the artistic rendering of "The Easiest Way," a separate essay ought to be devoted to that. Frances Starr in her interpretation of Laura is truly exquisite. But, then, America is rich in individual dramatic artists: Julia Marlowe, Mary Shaw, Maude Adams, Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske, etc., etc. That which makes an epoch in American acting is the extraordinary artistic harmony of the ensemble. The next step, and the most difficult, is the revolutionizing of the audiences. The one who will accomplish that feat will make himself immortal indeed.

INTERNATIONAL NOTES

SPAIN.

The Spanish Anarchists have initiated a wide-spread movement for the liberation of the victims of Alcala del Valle.

In 1903 various agrarian strikes took place in Spain, during which the people repeatedly clashed with the authorities. This also happened at Alacala del Valle, where the rural police made brutal use of their weapons, killing and wounding a number of the strikers. The affair resulted in the arrest of 94 persons. The government resorted to the torture of the prisoners—men and women—to wring confessions. Thus the authorities hoped to "prove" that it was the strikers who were responsible for the massacre! Many of the prisoners were subsequently released, while 36 were tried by court-martial and sentenced to long terms. Most of the convicted men are still suffering in the Spanish dungeons at Bagno. A strong movement is on foot to bring about the release of these victims of governmental cruelty.

INDIA.

The Free Hindusthan, published in New York City, writes:

Since the Indian Nationalists declared their creed in the Indian National Congress of 1907 at Surat, it is the policy of the British government to break up the Nationalist organization by any means.

Our recognized leader and genuine patriot, Sj. Bal Gangadhar Tilak, became a victim of this policy, and has been deported for five years. Sj. Arabinda Ghose was charged with bomb-throwing, and put in prison, and is awaiting trial. Sj. V. O. Chidambram Pillai, the originator of the "Swadeshi Steamship Company," is sentenced to transportation for life on a charge of sedition, and at least two hundred young journalists and printers have been sent to prison. These acts of repression could not extinguish the fire of patriotism that burns in the people of India; and the Nationalist party arranged for their Congress at Nagpur. But, to the ruin of the British government, nine of our Bengal leaders were deported at the early part of December. We are sorry to know that Sj. Aswini Kumar Dutt, Sj. Krishna Kumar Mitra, Sj. Subodh Chandra

621

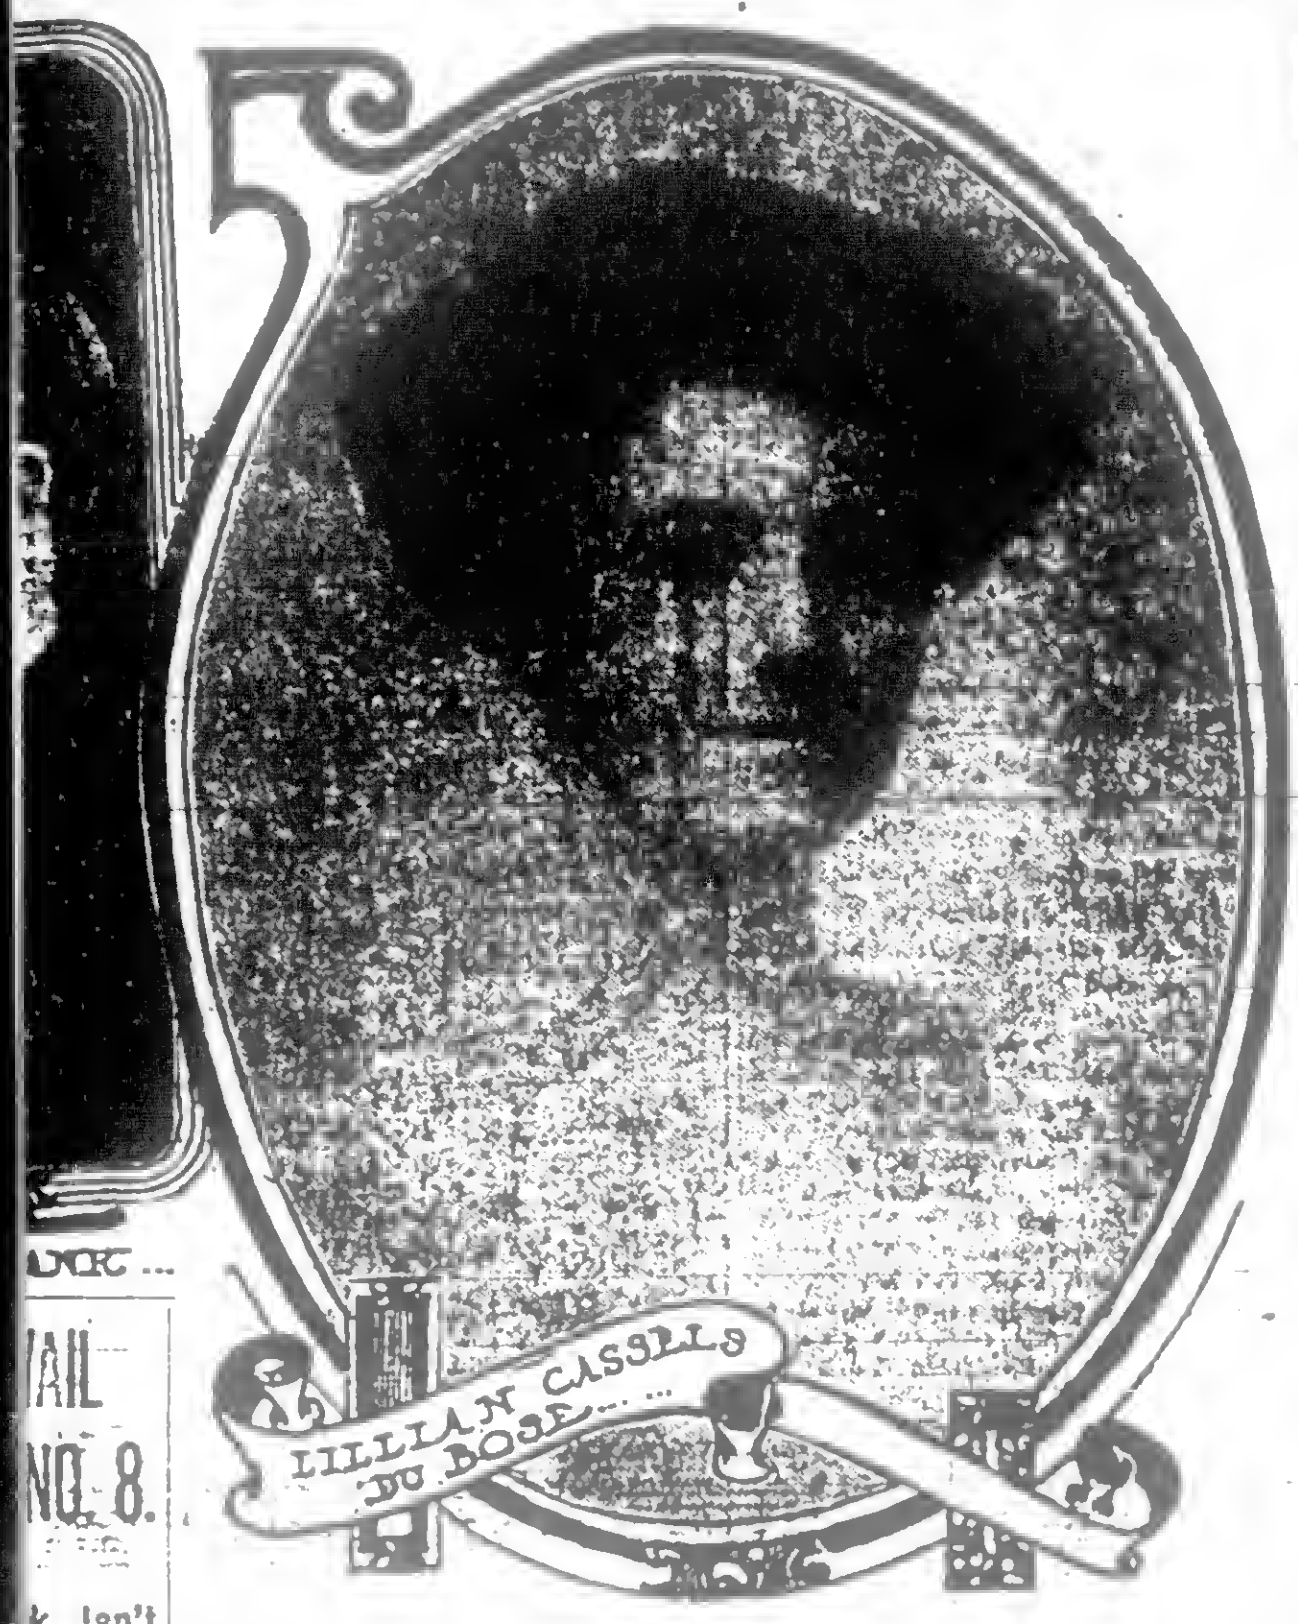
880719003

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Interview] Policemen Stop Emma Goldman; Clear the Hall / Emma Goldman. – pp. 1-2 ; 54 cm. In The World. – (May 24, 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

The World.



"Circulation Books Open to All."

Ask every person you possibly can. That's the secret of success.

The Morning World gives "Lost & Found" advertisements a circulation in New York City (daily) greater than the Herald, Sun, Times, Tribune and Press COMBINED.

PRICE { ONE CENT in Greater New York and Jersey City. TWO CENTS outside of Greater New York, Jersey City and on trains.

...AND BRIDE LOOK HAPPY, BUT ...FRIENDS' WOE CAN'T BE PICTURED.

POLICEMEN STOP EMMA GOLDMAN; CLEAR THE HALL

Alden Freeman, the East Orange Socialist, Whose Guest She Was at a Luncheon, Was One of the Anarchist's Auditors Who Were Ejected From the Place.

CROWD CHARGED AFTER ARRESTS ARE MADE

More Than 1,000 Persons Had Gathered in the Street Before the Hall Where Emma Goldman Had Announced that She Would Hold Another Meeting.

Emma Goldman and Alexander Berkman, the Anarchists who defy the Government to deport them, were brought up yesterday with a round turn by the police. Complying with orders said to be direct from Gen. Bingham, the police cleared Lexington Hall, at No. [illegible] East One Hundred and Sixteenth street, in which Miss Goldman was speaking, and later charged and dispersed more than 1,000 persons outside the hall.

Among those ejected was Alden Freeman, of East Orange, who has been criticised by society women of the Oranges for taking Miss Goldman and Berkman to the luncheon in East Orange which was attended by leaders of the Mayflower Descendants, D. A. R., Huguenots, Pilgrims and other societies.

Two Arrests Made.

Rebecca Edelsohn, twenty-one, and Leopold Bergman, thirty-three, were locked up in the East One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street station, charged

FIVE WILD STEERS GIVE NEW YORK SPANISH HOLIDAY

Thirty Shots Fired Into One in City Streets on His Second Escape After Being Taken in River—Two Swim to Hoboken—One Killed by Men in Boats.

Long after the dinner dishes were washed yesterday—and the women and children of Death Valley were takover the railroad tracks. Seeing children playing in the gutter up the street he whipped out his revolver and took a shot. The bullet struck the steer in

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

622

880719003

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Interview] Policemen Stop Emma Goldman; Clear the Hall / Emma Goldman.— pp. 1-2 ; 54 cm. In The World. —(May 24, 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

Escape After Being Taken in River—Two Swim to Hoboken—One Killed by Men in Boats.

Long after the dinner dishes were washed yesterday—and the women and children of Death Valley were taking the air out front, a herd of 200 long horn steers trotted up from the bull pen at the foot of West Thirty-ninth street, headed for the abattoir of the New York Dressed Beef Company, at the corner of Eleventh avenue. One of the herd, a wise old fellow, fresh from the plains, probably scented impending danger within the high gate, for he merely stepped in, then turned and walked out again.

Local cowboys in the employ of the company attempted to head off the beast, but too late. The steer, with lowered head, pranced down toward the river, and four other long horned companions, taking the cue, followed suit.

Women and children on the doorsteps of Thirty-ninth street beat a hasty retreat as the five steers raced down the street. Their hoofs clattered over the long pier extending out from Twelfth avenue; then, one, two, three, four, five—overboard they went.

Way up the street the abattoir hands had all they could do to prevent a stampede. When they finally reached the pier five long horns were skimming Jerseyward through the water.

Two Swam the Hudson.

Rowboats were pressed into service, but two of the steers were within the Hoboken province before the butcher cowboys shoved out from the pier. They had to let these go, and lassoed two that were struggling in the tide in midstream. The fifth took a northerly course and was overhauled by the Lackawanna tug Rhinehart off Fort Lee.

The steer that had led the runaways was lassoed and towed to a cement barge at West Thirty-eighth street, after a mighty struggle. Several times he nearly swamped the rowboats, but his captors clung to the lassoes and guided him to shore. It was a trying job to haul him up on the barge and lead him to the pier, and there was much rejoicing when he shook the water from his ears and snorted.

Out in the stream another crew of cowboy butchers struggled to get the second steer ashore, but the beast fought so they were forced to kill him and tow the carcass ashore.

The steer on the pier possibly saw the doom of his brother, for of a sudden he darted away toward Twelfth avenue. At the end of the pier he wheeled south and charged down the avenue with all the speed that was in him.

"Mad bull!" came the cry, as men, women and children darted indoors. It didn't take the steer long to make five blocks, and when he reached Thirty-third street he headed east. By the time he reached Tenth avenue there was a howling mob in his wake. The two blocks between Ninth and Eleventh avenues were crowded with children at play, but away down the street the steer was heralded and every youngster fled in safety.

Policeman Alexis Kleinmeier turned over the railroad tracks. Seeing children playing in the gutter up the street he whipped out his revolver and took a shot. The bullet struck the steer in the side; he looked around, then went on again. Five more shots by Kleinmeier hit the living target, but the steer continued.

Bullets Didn't Stop Him.

Policemen Owen Smith and Charles Thon hurried into Thirty-third street from Ninth avenue and fired point blank. The steer snorted loudly and reared. A second volley brought him to his knees. The three policemen emptied their revolvers of six shots each. The steer, shaking its head, scrambled up and ran on.

Once the steer dropped near Ninth avenue, but a small boy shied a stick that struck him in the head, which had the effect of bringing him to his senses. When the beast fell there were toreadors and matadors galore, but as soon as the big form arose there was a hasty scampering.

Thirty-third street resembled a Plaza del los Toros. The steer charged the police, then wheeled around and ran west toward Tenth avenue while the police fired shot after shot.

As the steer raced across the New York Central tracks on Eleventh avenue there was a volley of shots.

John McNulty, yardmaster of the Central, was sitting in his office at Thirty-second street when a bullet came through the window, whizzed over his head and lodged in the telephone box in an adjoining office.

The steer ran through the railroad yards and got tangled in the maze of freight cars and locomotives. The police and crowd surrounded him, bullets flying fast. There were thirty bullets in him and he was still on his feet when the cowboys lassoed him and used the knife.

The steer taken from the river by the Lackawanna tug was put aboard a "sleigh," used in transporting cattle through the streets. He fought so on the way down Eleventh avenue that he was killed there.

The two that swam across the river were hauled out at Hoboken and brought back to the abattoir.

SWIFT SHIFT IN A BRIDGE.

Old Span Removed, New One Put In.

All in Ten Minutes.

Thousands of persons in Jersey City yesterday morning watched workmen replace an old span of the Pennsylvania freight trestle at Seventh street and Newark avenue with a new span that will give more room for the regrading and raising of Newark avenue at that point.

The actual moving of the spans did not take more than ten minutes, and it was regarded as a remarkable engineering achievement. After the new span was in place two sets of tracks were laid on and freight traffic was resumed. The total period of interruption to train movements was less than half an hour.

THE PLAZA HOTEL SUMMER GARDEN.
Grand opening Monday eve., May 24. Mahen [illegible] orchestra.

angee for taking Miss Goldman [illegible] luncheon in East [illegible] ange which was attended by [illegible] of the Mayflower Descendants, D. [illegible] R., Huguenots, Pilgrims and other [illegible] cieties.

Two Arrests Made.

Rebecca Edelsohn, twenty-one, [illegible] Leopold Bergman, thirty-three, were locked up in the East One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street station, charged with disorderly conduct. Miss Goldman and Berkman, furious over the arrests, said that the prisoners will be defended by Meyar London, counsel for the Architects, who plans to fight for the privilege of Miss Goldman and Berkman to address New York audiences without police interference.

Miss Goldman hired Lexington Hall for the four Sundays of May and notified the "inner circle" that she would lecture there. She lectured on May 9 and 16. Commissioner Bingham received Saturday a tip that the lecture was tingled with "to-hell-with-Governments" sentiments. Capt. Walsh of the One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street station, received orders yesterday to disperse the audience if Miss Goldman tried to speak.

At 11 A. M. more than 200 persons had paid 25 cents admission to hear Miss Goldman. She walked to the platform on the arm of Alexander Berkman, who introduced her and her subject, "The Modern Drama." Lieut. Rafsky, of Police Headquarters, who was escorted by three policemen, strode across the platform after Miss Goldman had been speaking a few minutes and whispered to her that she must desist.

"Don't interrupt me," Miss Goldman whispered in reply. "If you have anything to say tell it to the manager of the hall, from whom I have a lease, while I am delivering a lecture within the bounds of the law."

Rafsky found Manager Grossman, who said he could do nothing because Goldman had leased the hall to Miss Goldman. Rafsky telephoned to Capt. Walsh, who sent the reserves to the hall on the double quick. Meanwhile Miss Goldman told the audience that the police had tried to break up the meeting, but had failed.

The Hall is Cleared.

Excitement was high when the police reserves, headed by Sergts. Adams and Allen, marched into the hall and mounted the platform and faced about. Adams then ordered the audience to leave the hall peacefully and quietly, and the police moved down the first row of chairs, drawing them away from their occupants. Men and women were on their feet instantly, and the determined attitude of the police checked a demonstration and the hall was cleared without serious confusion. Emma Goldman shouted that she would return at 2 P. M. and lecture to the people. Then she, too, left the hall on Berkman's arm without molestation.

Capt. Walsh sent forty policemen to the hall at 1.30 P. M. Ticket-holders who applied for admission were told that Miss Goldman's lecture had been called off. Long-haired men with flowing cravats and women with red ribbons somewhere on their gowns or hats protested that they "knew their rights" and demanded admission. The police returned polite refusals, and when these were unavailing made threats of arrest. It did not take long for One Hundred and Sixteenth street in the vicinity of the hall to fill from curb to curb. Self-assertiveness increased with the

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

623

880719003

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Interview] Policemen Stop Emma Goldman; Clear the Hall / Emma Goldman.— pp. 1-2 ; 54 cm. In The World. —(May 24, 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

THE

...side of the crowd, which interfered with the street cars and pedestrians.

Policeman Boudreau ordered Rebecca Edelstein and Leopold Berkman to move on. They said they were entitled to stand near the entrance and inform ticket holders of the situation. Boudreau started to lay his hand on Berkman's shoulder when, he says, Miss Edelstein seized him by the wrist. He was engaged with her when he received two painful blows in the neck and, turning, seized Berkman.

Police Charge the Crowd.

Instantly the shouts and commotion aroused the crowds. Threats were raised here and there. Capt. Walsh ordered a charge and his policemen with clubs ready moved out into the street, sweeping all before them. Men, women and children on the outskirts fled, and the street was cleared in short order. Police lines were formed at the approaches to the hall, but the crowd made no further effort to antagonize the police. Neither Emma Goldman nor Berkman participated in the afternoon's demonstration. Miss Goldman said last night at her home, No. 210 East Thirteenth street:

"Interference with my lecture to-day was a renewal of my persecution by the New York police. It proved that free speech no longer is tolerated in this country. Mr. Alden Freeman, of East Orange, attended the morning lecture to pass judgment on it, because he invited me to deliver a lecture on the same subject this week in Orange. The audience was made up almost entirely of Americans, many of whom told me later that the action of the police was an outrage. One elderly woman, a leader of the Daughters of the American Revolution, told me she wished to express to me her sympathy. She gave me her name and address, but I am not at liberty to disclose them. The audience was made up of highly intelligent and prosperous men and women who were anxious to hear me lecture."

Dr. Benjamin L. Reitman, of the Anarchist councils, made this statement:

"As an American citizen I wish to protest against the deliberate brutality of the police and their malicious infringement upon the rights of free speech. Miss Goldman had rented the hall and had a contract for it. Most of the audience were Americans in whose blood the love of freedom of speech and assembly had been bred. It was probably their first experience with such arbitrariness and, therefore, aroused in them great indignation and protest. They could not help but feel that free speech is a farce and that the American police can exercise more arbitrary authority than is conceivable in monarchical countries."

Miss Goldman says she will deliver her lecture in Lexington Hall next Sunday as advertised.

FOUGHT AN IRON DEER, LANDED IN THE GUTTER,

Brennan, Fired by Stories from African Jungle, Battled Outside Antique Shop.

Patrick Brennan, of No. 344 East Thirty-first street, in whose veins runs the blood of fighting stock, is a great admirer of Theodore Roosevelt, and has taken a lively interest in the ex-President's hunting trip.

He was swinging through East Thirty-fourth street about 11 o'clock last night when, in front of W. C. Overwalder's antique shop, at No. 33, he saw a life-size iron statue of a deer, with wide-spreading antlers. A little iron boy stood before the deer, with hand upraised.

"Look out, lad, the creature'll kill

RACE FOR LIFE, THEIR CRAFT A STREAK OF FIRE.

Explosion Sets Motor Boat Libbie Ablaze on Hudson—She's Run Ashore at Thirty Miles an Hour.

FOUR LEAP OVERBOARD AS FLAMES REACH THEM.

$12,000 Boat Destroyed—Narrow Escape for Owner and Three Others.

A vivid streak of fire shot halfway across the Hudson River off One Hundred and Twenty-third street about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. It might have been taken for reflected sunlight but for the fact that the sun was not shining. When the flame disappeared the [illegible] was a total wreck, and the four persons who had been gayly sailing down the river in her a few minutes before had had a narrow escape from death or serious injury.

Albert Hartog, who used to be in the automobile business, and who lives at the Hotel Normandie with his wife and family, owned the motor boat and kept it at Mahon's boat house, at West Eighty-third street. He and his son Ferdinand, eighteen years old; the engineer, Ralph Stenson, and the latter's assistant, a boy, made several trips as far as Fort Lee ferry around noontime, while Mrs. Hartog and two younger children sat in Riverside Park and watched them.

An Explosion.

On the last trip of the Libbie, which was a forty-foot boat, with a 120 horse-power motor set forward, an explosion occurred. What caused the trouble probably never will be known. A canvas cover, adjusted to keep the breaking waves off the motor when the boat was going at high speed, was blown fifty feet in the air. The boat had just been turned about by Mr. Hartog, who was steering, and was headed down stream. There was not a sign of

THEIR ROMANCE OUT OF ELECTION

ESTHER S. BAUM

Teacher and Lawyer Betrothed at Young Woman's Home on the East Side.

The bethrothal of Miss Esther S. Baum, a public school teacher, to David Robson, a lawyer of No. 132 Broadway, took place yesterday at the home of the young woman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Baum, No. 27 Avenue C.

The romance grew out of a meeting during the campaign on the east side last fall. Mr. Robson was the Republican candidate for Assembly in the Sixth District, and Miss Baum was an ardent supporter of the Teachers' Equal Pay bill. As a member of the Women Teach-many times at ...nue D.

DAVID R

When he was ...cratic district b... came to Mr. R... advocate. He t... Miss Baum, an... courage, he said ... "Miss Baum, ... haven't received ... vocacy of the ... bill."

"Reward!" ... woman in surpr...

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

624

850424010

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Mild Goldman Talk While Police Listen / Emma Goldman. – 28 cm. In The New York Times. –(May 25, 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

GIRL MISSING TWO WEEKS.

Police Search the East Side in Vain for Elsie Rosenfeld.

No news has been received by the parents of Elsie Rosenfeld, an attractive-looking girl of 20 years, since she disappeared from her home, 287 Seventh Street, on Sunday, May 9, to go with a girl friend to obtain some work from a near-by dressmaker. The father, Jacob Rosenfeld, who works at a furrier's in East Eleventh Street, went to Police Headquarters, and a general alarm was sent out for the girl on Monday, May 10. Detectives have since sought for the missing girl in vain.

Mrs. Rosenfeld cannot account for her daughter's disappearance.

"She was my firstborn and a good girl," she said yesterday. "For some weeks she had been out of work, and she was not content. On that Sunday morning she came to me and said she had good news for me. Then she told me she was going with a friend who knew the forewoman of a large dressmaking place in Grand Street to get work.

"Elsie dressed and went away, taking a new, unfinished waist, which she said she could finish on the machine at the new place. When night came and she did not come home we became alarmed for her safety. That night we could find no trace of her."

When asked if it was likely that Elsie had eloped, the mother replied that, so far as she knew, there was no young man in the case, because the girl always spent her evenings at home with her four young brothers and sisters. Mrs. Rosenfeld was sure that if her daughter was free and able to write she would let her parents know and not keep them in such agony of suspense.

The girl is described as having dark brown hair, dark complexion, and blue eyes, good teeth, and has a scar about half an inch long under the right eyebrow. She is of Hungarian descent and speaks English with a broken accent.

The police say that everything possible has been done to trace the girl, but that it is difficult to get any information in such densely populated districts, where three or four families live in one flat, the majority of them not speaking English. They discredit the mothers belief that the girl is being held a prisoner in some house.

WROTE HIS OWN OBITUARY.

Cyrus Clark, Who Died Yesterday, Left One Blank in It.

Cyrus Clark, for many years President of the West End Association, and prominent in the development of the west side, died yesterday in his home, 327 West Seventy-sixth Street, of paralysis, in his seventy-ninth year. He was stricken on May 15. There was a recurrence of the attack on Wednesday.

Mr. Clark was known as a very methodical man, a phase of his character which was emphasized by his preparation of his own obituary notice, with the date of his death left blank. This blank his son filled yesterday. The notice which Mr. Clark had written says:

"Cyrus Clark was born Sept. 18, 1830

MILD GOLDMAN TALK WHILE POLICE LISTEN

Anarchist Had Been Notified That No Anarchy Propaganda Would Be Permitted.

HITS POLICE AND PURITANS

People Clubbed If They Try to Speak Freely, She Says—Talk Symposium at the Sunrise Club.

Emma Goldman, whose lecture on the drama the police stopped on Sunday morning, talked back to the police last night at a Sunrise Club meeting in the Café Boulevard. She also made remarks about Puritanism, fired a broadside at Anthony Comstock, and called George Bernard Shaw a jingo. The Sunrise Club opposed her about 16 to 1. The police, who were there in force, but in plain clothes, didn't seem to mind. They made no attempt to check the flow of oratory.

Nothing was said about anarchy. Had there been, there might have been a different ending, but Miss Goldman had been notified that Inspector Herlihy and twelve of his men were ready to break up the dinner party if the speakers grew violent in attacking law and order.

Miss Goldman had been invited to talk to the Sunrise Club on "The Hypocrisy of Puritanism." She talked for half an hour, and into that crowded many thoughts which in condensed form amounted to a general condemnation of Puritanism and censure for all who hold Puritanical views. The dining room was filled to its utmost capacity to hear her, and as many women were there as men.

After first paying her respects to Mr. Shaw, Miss Goldman passed on to the Mayflower Society. "The other day, when I happened to be present at a meeting of the Mayflower descendants, I had a chance to see the result of Puritanism in this country," said Miss Goldman. "Some of those Mayflower descendants are still using smelling salts, I hear. I looked at them and realized what Puritanism had done for this country. And as for Bernard Shaw, he lives in a glass house, and shouldn't throw stones at America. England is really responsible for the Puritanism here, seeing that Puritanism originated in England."

Miss Goldman said that she could think of nothing harsh enough to say against Puritanism. While it no longer has power to torture those with whom it is dis-

BOYS' FLYING SEANCE.

Pupils of School 77 Want Aeroplanes, but Must Use Kites.

If any one finds a dozen or more kites drifting about the fields between Astoria and Flushing, the boys of Public School 77, at First Avenue and Eighty-sixth Street, would like to hear about it. They would like to know how far their runaway kites did go yesterday afternoon before coming to earth.

A small army of boys from this school with kites of curious shapes and still more curious construction crossed to Astoria by the Ninety-second Street Ferry yesterday afternoon and had a kite contest on the public school athletic field, just north of the Astoria ferry house.

"Ever since the arrival of the Wright brothers in the city the boys have been literally crazy on the subject of aeronautics," said Principal Edward A. Page yesterday. "Nothing will suit them now but to build a school aeroplane. We have four or five lads who believe they have solved within the last three weeks some of the most difficult problems of aerial navigation. Kite flying seems to be about the first step in the science, so we decided to begin at the foundation and let the boys show what they could do."

Within fifteen minutes after the junior sky pilots reached the ground forty or more kites were in the air, some mounting so high toward the heavens that their bright-colored material seemed mere dots of color against the blue sky. Others took a more slanting direction, running far out over the roof of a big iron foundry.

As an incentive to juvenile ambitions, prizes were offered. Walter Mohr and Abraham E. Horn, teachers of manual training in the school, were the officials, and they were kept busy running from one point of the field to another to verify the superiority or some particular kite. The big 14-foot kite made by Abraham Moscom won the award for being the largest, but it was outstripped in high flying by many others. Alfred Vollmer, a 14-year-old boy, won the prize for the highest flight. His kite, a big green-covered creation, went up in the air for one mile, at least, so the judges said, and no one disputed them.

The kite that pulled the strongest met with disaster. It was made by John Berkowitz, and when the scales were attached to the stout cord it showed a pull of twenty-eight pounds. The northwesterly wind which came in lively gusts made it a difficult matter to hold the kite, as it was eight and a half feet long and covered with white cloth. Berkowitz's fingers were cut in the effort to hold it, and once it dragged three boys half way across the field. But finally a gust of wind caused the huge kite to dip far beyond the roof of the iron foundry, and the cord broke. Half a dozen boys were over the fence in a minute. They ran nearly a mile, only to hear that it had

625

850424010

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Mild Goldman Talk While Police Listen / Emma Goldman. — 28 cm. In The New York Times. — (May 25, 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

own obituary notice, with the date of the death left blank. This blank his son filled yesterday. The notice which Mr. Clark had written says:

"Cyrus Clark was born Sept. 18, 1830, in the town of Sardinia, Erie County, N. Y., and his parents moved to Buffalo soon afterward, in which city he received his early education. In 1849 Mr. Clark came to New York and entered the employ of Clark, Southworth & Co., silk merchants, where he stayed five years, and then started for himself under the name of Vincent Clark & Co. At the end of ten years he retired from the silk business, having invested his money in real estate to good advantage.

"After spending three years in Europe studying civic conditions Mr. Clark returned to this city in 1870 and took up his residence on the west side. He caused the first bill to be introduced into the Legislature to exempt mortgages from taxation, and was President of the West End Association for fifteen years. He was a member of the Union League Club for forty-six years, and was Vice President of the club for one term. He is survived by two sons and three daughters."

ELKINS YACHT IN COLLISION.

The Venetia Loses Bowsprit in Crash with Schooner in the Bay.

A collision between Senator Stephen B. Elkins's steam yacht Venetia and the three-masted schooner Harry S. Shepard, near the South Brooklyn side of the upper bay, damaged both vessels yesterday. The Venetia's bow struck the starboard side of the schooner and tore away several feet of the railing. Her engines refused to work after the accident, and she drifted about helplessly for a short time until a Merritt-Chapman Wrecking Company's tug responded to the yacht's whistle for help, and towed both vessels to a dry dock in the Erie Basin. The Venetia's bowsprit was smashed and the forward port side was splintered in the collision. She was on her way to the dry dock to be overhauled before going into commission for the Summer when the accident occurred.

A strong tide was flowing, and the skippers of both vessels did not reckon on the strength of the current until the collision seemed inevitable. The Venetia was going northwest and the schooner was going due east, headed for the Beard docks in South Brooklyn.

CAR ROWDY PUT UNDER BOND.

He Jumped Through a Window and Fell in a Woman's Lap.

Magistrate Dooley held court in the Gates Avenue building yesterday, and Ernest Kruder, 18 years old, of 37 Maujer Street, was brought before him, charged with disorderly conduct for attempting to board a train through the car window at the Nostrand Avenue station of the Myrtle Avenue elevated line on Sunday night.

William T. O'Connor, a special policeman for the B. R. T., told the Magistrate that Kruder landed squarely in a woman passenger's lap after jumping through the car window. The woman refused to give her name or make a complaint.

"I'll put a stop to this particularly obnoxious type of rowdyism right at the start," the Magistrate said, addressing Kruder. "I'll put you under a bond of $500 to keep the peace for six months, in default of which you will spend that time on Blackwell's Island."

OCEAN TRAVELERS.

Some of Those Sailing To-day—Yesterday's Arrivals.

The steamers sailing to-day and some of their passengers are:

KAISER WILHELM DER GROSSE, (Bremen).—Mrs. J. J. Astor, C. H. Ault, Mr. and Mrs. Louis F. Benson, the Hev. Miss Goldman said that she could think of nothing harsh enough to say against Puritanism. While it no longer has power to torture those with whom it is displeased, it is, nevertheless, a great power in this country.

"Else how can an old bigot like Anthony Comstock live in a city like New York?" she continued.

Puritanism, she said, was afraid of life and that which is true and natural in life. "Has it driven out the evil spirit?" she continued. "No; it has driven it deeper into the flesh and has made people do on the sly what they are afraid to do in the open. It has created the false modesty which made Pittsburg hold up its hands in horror at a picture recently exhibited there." Passing on to talk of freedom of speech, she said:

"It is being outraged every day; if you don't believe it go and attend some of the meetings we are trying to hold and you will be clubbed out the same as some people were clubbed out yesterday. Most of the police cannot read, so how can they interpret what should be uttered and what should not be?"

She wound up by saying that the country should not be ruled by the police or such men as Anthony Comstock, or by such women as members of the Mayflower Society. "Certainly not by those Mayflower ladies who are dull in their heads and dull in their hearts," she concluded.

C. E. Walker, President of the Sunrise Club, announced that the other speakers would be limited to seven minutes each. He called on Henry Nicolls, who said that in some things he agreed with Miss Goldman. He added that J. P. Morgan was a typical Puritan. Then he took a fling at the police and said they were "ridiculous."

F. L. Johnson, associate editor of Power, followed Mr. Nicolls. He said that Miss Goldman was wrong in at least one thing—the origin of Puritanism. He said that it began in Eden, when Eve handed Adam the apple and they grew ashamed of having no clothes. Then Col. William W. Wingate of Brooklyn, a newly-initiated member of the club, got up. He said he didn't sympathize with Miss Goldman at all. He was a Puritan, he said, and he, for one, believed that preaching against organized government and against law and order and other things should not be allowed. He referred to Miss Goldman as a foreigner "who comes here and begins to attack the laws."

"Our laws were made by a judiciary body, and some of them were interpreted by one of the greatest Presidents who ever lived—he who is now on a hunting trip to Africa—and such laws should be observed and obeyed and should not be allowed to be attacked," he declared.

President Walker said after that that he was sorry the audience did not appreciate satire. Then another "Puritan" got up. He was Joseph M. Norton, Jr., who said that he was the grandson of a Puritan. A suffragist spoke next. She was announced as "Mrs. Julia Gatere," and said that she had only one "kick" and that was against masculine government. She said she didn't want the marriage laws changed at all, except, perhaps, to make divorce a little easier.

Arthur H. Grant, who followed her as a speaker, was inclined to think that they had all been tilting at windmills.

Several other members of the club took a fling at Miss Goldman and the police and at one thing or another. John Francis Tucker, the Rev. L. C. Barnes, and Harry Tucker were among them. J. R. Abarbanells said that had the blue laws been enforced at Coney on Sunday it would have been a return to Puritanism. As things stand, he said, Puritanism is a symbol of graft and hypocrisy. Adolph Benevy, Dr. M. R. Leverson, and others spoke. Dr. Leverson said the police ought to be abolished, "especially Commissioner Bingham," he addsd.

CITY BREVITIES.

THE TIMES acknowledges the receipt of $5 from R. Frankenheimer of 23 West Seventy-first Street, for the fund which TIMES readers have contributed to save the child of Abraham Sakolik from deportation. The amount raised has been sufficient to pay for the child's board in the hospital and prevent its separation from its parents.

yond the foot of the Iron Foundry and the cord broke. Half a dozen boys were over the fence in a minute. They ran nearly a mile, only to hear that it had been seen sailing off a mile further on, and they returned in disappointment.

Milton Herkowitz won the award for the most grotesque kite. His kite resembled a scarecrow. The body of the man was of black cloth with outstretched arms supported with wooden braces, and an enormous white head. This manikin refused to fly very high. He will undergo some modifications before being sent up again.

John Toledo had one of the most spectacular kites. It was red, white, and blue, with a big star in each of the triangles. It added to the gaiety of the air in which white, green, black, red, and yellow kites were soaring. Alexander Lozar had a strange balloon-shaped kite, but it wouldn't go up.

The contest was the first kite-flying exhibition ever held by any public school in New York. Most of the boys are going to take their kites to Arlington, N. J., during the week for the kite prize contests there, under the direction of Samuel F. Perkins, the kite man of the Aero Club of America.

MRS. DANIEL J. SULLY'S BILL.

Wife of ex-"Cotton King" Brought to Court on a $400 Account.

A motion to have Mrs. Daniel J. Sully, wife of the former "cotton king," declared in contempt of court for refusing to be examined before trial in a suit brought against her by Theodore B. Starr & Co., jewelers, at 206 Fifth Avenue, was made by counsel for the firm before Supreme Court Justice Guy yesterday. Decision was reserved.

The action arises from a $400 bill for stationery which, it is alleged, Mrs. Sully owes the firm, which, with interest, now amounts to about $500. Mr. Sully, it is acknowledged, had a running account with the firm, but it is asserted that his wife gave her personal order for the stationery. Last Fall, while being examined, her counsel stated an arrangement was made by which Mr. Sully agreed to pay the bill, but shortly after his connection with the firm of Hayden, Stone & Co. ended, and nothing has been done in the matter of the stationery bill since that time.

Mrs. Sully's counsel held that his client should not be considered in contempt, as a disposition has been shown to arrange the matter, and that he would produce his client at any time. When asked by the court if arrangements would be made for her appearance to-day, counsel argued that it was a short notice, inasmuch as she was now living in the country. It was indicated that she would appear at the earliest possible moment, and under these conditions decision was reserved.

READY TO BUILD A SUBWAY.

Bradley-Gaffney Syndicate to File Broadway-Lexington Av. Plans Soon.

The Bradley-Gaffney-Steers combination of subway builders has decided that the new law, relating to the construction of subways by private capital, if signed by Gov. Hughes, will meet its ideas on the subject of building the Broadway-Lexington Avenue line. The plans for the new subway will be filed with the Public Service Commission in the near future, and will call for the expenditure of about $50,000,000.

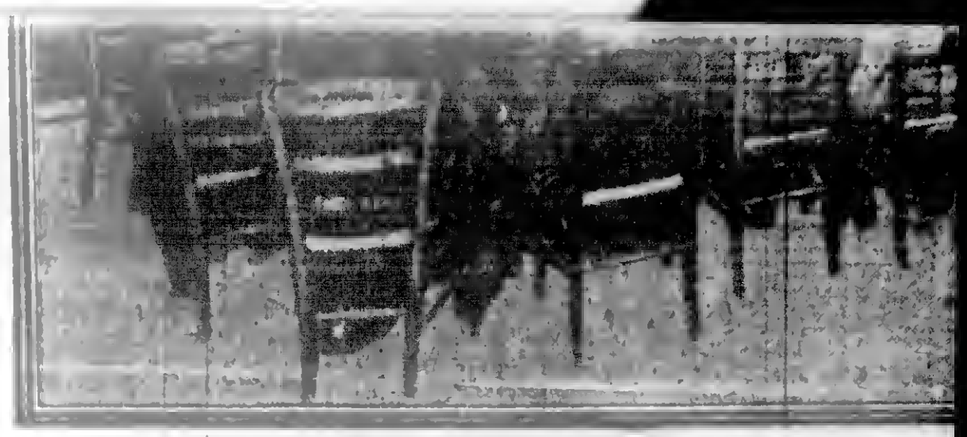
In so far as the plans of the Public Service Commission for the Broadway-Lexington Avenue line call for the construction of elevated lines in the Bronx, the Bradley-Gaffney-Steers people will not follow them, as their idea is to build a subway for the entire length of their route. There is now pending before the Board of Esti-

880809000

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Interview] An Interview with Emma Goldman / Emma Goldman. – 43 cm. In The New York Times. –(May 30, 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.



finally to expound and obtain a personal impression of this extraordinary woman I called at his office in the Palais de Justice this morning. I expected to find a typical European bureaucratic official but was agreeably disappointed. THE NEW YORK TIMES was my open sesame. A kindly brown-eyed man of about 53 years of age, with mustache and pointed beard tinged with gray, his manner and appearance entirely that of the man of science rather than the policeman—rose from his desk to greet me in English—"savage English," he smilingly termed it—but very intelligible, none the less. He still held in his hand a piece of broken earthenware which he had been examining under a magnifying glass.

"See," said he, our exchange of courtesies over. "This broken pot contains some wax. We found it at the scene of a burglary last night. The burglar had cut a pane of glass with a diamond. He used the wax to help him remove the glass without making any noise. The policeman who found this pot thinks we may identify the finger prints. Unfortunately, no. The fin-

Profile of Criminal Arrested in San Francisco.

[illegible]'s photograph and measurements taken last month in San Francisco, and the photograph and measurements July, 18, 1880. There, truly, was the same individual in one case 17 years of age, in the other 37; the slight difference in measurement due to the fact that his physique was not fully developed at the beginning of his criminal career in France.

"Follow M. Bernardet and he will tell you everything. I have nothing to say about myself except that my father was an anthropologist, and when a young man, being possessed with the idea that we needed some scientific method of identifying criminals, I got my first ideas from his scientific studies. In order to work out my system I joined the Police Department as an under secretary some thirty-two years ago. It was not till 1889 that I obtained official authority to make measurements of the criminals in our prisons. This resulted

Criminal Being Measured Under the Bertillon System
The Bertillon School for Detectives in me into the filing room. It was filled with shelf after shelf of card cases.

"We first classify our criminals according to the date of their birth. Here you have those born from 1840 to 1849, next, from 1850 to 1859—and so on. The San Francisco card gave one man's age as 37. We knew we must find him in the division 1870-79. Our next division is the length of the head—long, medium, short. Next the width of the head—broad, medium, narrow. Next the left middle finger—long, medium, or short. Then the foot—again in three grades, long, medium, or short. The forearm governs next in three degrees; the height follows, still in three degrees, tall, medium, short. Then you have six sub-divisions of this section of shelves. We have finally got down

What She Is Like And What She Believes.

An Interview with E

Character Study by O Never Seen or Heard

By CHARLES WILLIS THOMPSON.

AND I at [illegible] the lecturer, who had been talking about five minutes [illegible] the impression which [illegible] would get [illegible] reading or hearing [illegible] Goldman, it was [illegible]

The [illegible] those who had been [illegible] the [illegible] spoke [illegible] English.

[illegible] the [illegible] the [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] starting a [illegible] a riot, but I don't want to be unfair. If she [illegible] those [illegible] poses [illegible] "And [illegible] Detectives [illegible] for [illegible] character [illegible] hear [illegible] character [illegible] want [illegible] Detectives [illegible] and [illegible] hours [illegible] and [illegible] suggestive [illegible] fidelity [illegible] To [illegible] Goldman [illegible]

[illegible] writer of violent and shocking matter against government, and getting weak-minded folks to kill Kings. The real Emma Goldman is a well-read, intellectual woman with a theory of society not very different from that entertained by a lot of college professors who can talk without danger of police interference, and her way of preaching it is not as sensational as [illegible]

What sort of [illegible]

[illegible] answer the [illegible]

Some of [illegible] printed about [illegible] was wanted [illegible] Jewess. Said [illegible] of either the Russian or the Jewess [illegible] for [illegible] Miss Goldman [illegible] that is the typical and [illegible] make up of Emma Goldman.

+ + +

As for the rest [illegible]

A reporter of THE NEW YORK TIMES [illegible] Miss Goldman [illegible] know What [illegible] Reedy [illegible]

She [illegible]

Well, she said, "here is what he said about me in The St. Louis Mirror. I am willing to stand by that.

Here is what Mr. Reedy wrote about Miss Goldman's beliefs:

"Law is nothing but the tyranny of a king here, an Emperor there, a Parliament in another place, a majority everywhere. No man has a right to prescribe for another, or to proscribe another. No one has a right to punish another. No one will injure another in the time to be when laws and institutions, being removed, shall cease to distort the mind and abort the spirit. Parties are a superstition. • • •

"This is Emma Goldman's gospel. Is it ugly or brutal or ignorant, or vicious? It is not. It is an aspiration toward and an effort for the perfection of humanity. • • • There is nothing wrong with Miss Goldman's gospel that I can see, except this. She is about 8,000 years ahead of her age. Her vision is the vision of every truly great-minded man or woman [illegible]

"What were you saying when Rafsky stopped you?" she was asked.

"The subject of my lecture," she said, "had to do with the drama as a determinator of advanced thought. I intended to show that the drama, more than any other vehicle of human expression, sows the seeds of radicalism. To prove that contention I had a number of illustrations ready, showing how new ideas had been propagated through the playhouse. I was trying to show—or would have tried [illegible] me [illegible] Rafsky [illegible] quiet [illegible] face. But there was [illegible] no ill-humor.

What are the titles of your lectures?

"'The Easiest Way,' 'Minorities Versus Majorities,' and 'Anarchism and What It Really Is,'" she answered. "The first deals with Eugene Walter's play, and seems to be the most popular. My first lecture in New York this season was delivered April 11. I must say that the police of that precinct were very decent, but the Headquarters police were there, and they notified the proprietor of the hall that I must not be allowed to speak again.

+ + +

"After that we had more trouble with the police, but when I made my contract for lectures in Lexington Hall the police and the proprietor were perfectly well aware of who I was and what lectures I was going to deliver. Not less than 12,000 circulars advertising the lectures had been distributed, and the police had no excuse for not knowing the circumstances.

"The police never addressed themselves to me, but they went to Wasserman, the owner of the hall, and threatened him [illegible] State, which makes it an offense for a hall keeper to rent it to any one who will propagate 'criminal Anarchy.'

"What is 'criminal Anarchy?'" she was asked.

"It has never been defined," she said with a smile. "It never will be defined, because there is no such thing in existence. No Anarchist gets up on the platform and propagates assassination, and if he doesn't the idea of such a law is an absurdity. However, the thing is even more

Emma Goldman.

May.

[illegible] STEPHEN CHALMERS.

[illegible] of May [illegible]
[illegible] the world is breathing

[illegible] of warning
[illegible]

[illegible] greening,
[illegible] young,
[illegible] dreams are flow-

[illegible] found their

"[illegible]
[illegible] one away."
[illegible] hand to ensnare one,
And [illegible] sings in May.

Belgian Coal Miners.

[illegible] coal is mined at a greater [illegible] in Belgium than in most [illegible] the number of miners killed [illegible] less in that country than in [illegible] For the ten-year period [illegible] the number of fatalities [illegible] workmen was 1681 per [illegible] before mines the Sumner [illegible] have been killed by [illegible] that in the coal mines

627

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

880809000

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Interview] An Interview with Emma Goldman / Emma Goldman.— 43 cm. In The New York Times. —(May 30, 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

casured Under e Bertillon System (Upper Picture.)
Bertillon School for Detectives in Paris.

Full Face of Criminal Arrested in San Francisco.

—long, medium, short. Next the width of the head—broad, medium, narrow. Next the left middle finger—long, medium, or short. Then the foot—again in three grades, long, medium, or short. The forearm governs next in three degrees; the height follows, still in three degrees, tall, medium, short. Then you have six sub-divisions of this section of shelves. We have finally got down to

An important adjunct of the service is M. Bertillon's training school for applicants for positions on the detective force. The course over which he presides takes three months, and twenty young men form the class. His system he calls Le Portrait Parlé. The motto conspicuously displayed on the wall gives the keynote of his method:

"The eye only sees in things what it

Every now and then, to test the progress made by his class, M. Bertillon has prepared sets of cards on which are drawn more or less fragmentary outlines of noses, chins, ears, and the like. These features belong to members of the class, who are turned loose in the courtyard and told to pick out the classmate whose features they are.

"Sometimes," said my informant, "we give a man a card with the outline of his own left ear or nose, and he has quite a time discovering himself."

Training of this character sharpens the perception wonderfully, especially when it is as thorough and painstaking as M. Bertillon insists upon. The men who pass his examination as a rule become most valuable detectives.

A very interesting record prepared under "the master's" direction is an album containing the photographic records of about 6,000 "undesirable per-and escaped. We had no clue to the murderer except from finger prints on the glass of the broken case. These we carefully preserved and photographed. About six months later a burglar was arrested in Marseilles. His measurements and finger-print record were forwarded to us. The finger prints were identical with those on the glass of the dentist's silver case. The man was Scheffer. When he was accused of the Paris murder he broke down, confessed, and was sentenced to death."

And with this further illustration of the practical operations of M. Bertillon's system, my visit to the Palais de Justice ended, M. Bertillon in parting congratulating me that he was compelled so seldom to make such inquiries in America regarding American lawbreakers in France as the San Francisco Chief of Police had made regarding Raoul-Bernard.

"I wonder," he added with a smile, "if the San Francisco authorities will burden themselves with the expense of shipping him over to us. The cell on which he has a lien for life is still awaiting him here, in spite of the hasty 'French leave' which he took nine years ago."

with Emma Goldman — — —

Ibsen and Hauptmann Used in Her Lectures.

udy by One Who Had or Heard Her Before.

rid.culous than that, for in order to know whether or not one is going to advocate assassination you must first let him speak. If you are a hall keeper, you can't reasonably refuse to let a speaker have your hall to advocate 'criminal Anarchy,' because you can't tell whether he is advocating it or not until after you have heard him speak.

"At any rate, I had not talked more than five minutes before Rafsky came up to me and told me that the proprietor of the hall down-stairs want us to talk no longer. I replied that I did not the proprietor was entitled to the use of the hall, because I had paid for it. Rafsky went out and came back with some policeman from Headquarters, and cleared the hall in five minutes. The audience didn't want to go—it was not a Jewish audience, but an American audience, and knew its rights. It had to, though. I expected an arrest, and remained on the platform after the audience went out, but they didn't arrest me." She said that in a matter-of-fact sort of way, as though an arrest for talking about Ibsen were an every-day matter with her. It isn't, though. She has only been imprisoned once in America, though the popular impression is that prison fare is her daily bread. She served time in 1893, but that was the only occasion.

It is difficult to give an idea of the impression made by hearing an intelligent, ladylike, womanly woman of Emma Goldman's sort talk in such a tranquil way about arrest and imprisonment, as if it were an ordinary and expected incident of daily life. It is just about as it would be if some lady of your acquaintance started that topic at a progressive euchre party.

\+ \+ \+

"Did you ever advocate violence?" she was asked.

"No," she said, but in the same matter-of-fact way—no one can doubt that if Emma Goldman advocated violence she would announce it and accept the responsibility for it, for there is not an atom of sham in her make-up. "One of the first lectures I delivered was on 'The Psychology of Violence,' because I wanted to show that acts of violence had very little to do with any philosophy of life."

Just imagine Rafsky hearing that sentence and trying to figure out what it meant. Why, he'd arrest her in a minute.

"I wanted to show," she went on, "that such acts proceed from several conditions. First, of course, is the psychology of the individual himself, as shown, for instance, in abnormal sensitiveness to a great wrong. Secondly, there is the great pressure, economic or social, and thirdly—which I consider the most important factor—the feeling resulting from the bitter opposition which every new idea meets."

"But is Anarchism, as you teach it, a thing which has to do with violence?" she was asked.

"Violence," Miss Goldman said, "has nothing whatever to do with the philosophy of Anarchism."

And she went on to illustrate, to say that if a man threw a bomb because he believed in prohibition, or civil service reform, or the Emmanuel movement, it would not be charged against the principle that the man believed in; but that every time a man who happened to believe in Anarchism threw a bomb or fired a pistol, that was charged up against the thing he happened to believe in. Lots of us think that Anarchism means murder. To Miss Goldman Anarchism is a philosophy, and bomb throwing is just such an incident as might happen to any doctrine, from Methodism to the Kneipp cure anyway, it has nothing to do with the doctrine.

"What did you serve time for?" Miss Goldman was asked.

"I'm quoting Cardinal Manning," she said, adapting. "He said, 'Necessity knows no law, and I obeyed it.'"

"I have read," said the inquirer, "that after you were closed up at Lexington Hall you were allowed to speak at the Sunrise Club without being arrested. Did you moderate your views at all?"

Miss Goldman smiled gently. "No," she said, "and I don't moderate them anywhere. I try to show everywhere that Anarchism does not stand for what it is supposed to represent—assassination, violence, murder; that Anarchism is really a world concept that is closely related to every aspiration toward a better world since the beginning of time.

\+ \+ \+

"But I have never advocated assassination in the whole course of my career. I did say once that wherever despotism is flagrant violence is the inevitable result. I take that view to-day, and neither do I condemn the men who commit such deeds. I have never condemned, and I never intend to condemn, a man who commits a crime of violence. The reason is that if organized society does not recognise the individual the individual will and must feel himself an alien to society and will therefore retaliate."

"If you do not preach violence, how do you account for the activity of the police against you?"

"Because the police are very ignorant and don't understand what they hear. Personally, though, I believe the yellow journals are more responsible than the police. They have surrounded my name with such a cloud of falsehood that you can hardly blame a not over-educated policeman for thinking Emma Goldman is a very dangerous person."

"Did you ever know Czolgosz, the murderer of President McKinley?" she was asked.

"I met him twice," she said, with a straight look that had nothing behind it except honesty. "I knew him just about as much as I know you, and that's all. I never knew who he was until after the death of McKinley. The first time I saw him was at a meeting in Cleveland—I didn't know his name then. I had just finished my lecture and he came up and asked me if I had any literature to distribute.

"I said I did and pointed out to him the place where radical pamphlets were being sold. The second time I saw Czolgosz was when I was going to the Rock Island station on July 12, just before McKinley was shot. Czolgosz rang the bell just as I was getting ready to start, and I came to the door and asked what he wanted. He said he wanted to meet some of the radical leaders and I said: 'I am going to the station now, and if you will come along I will talk to you on the way.'

"So we walked along. I didn't ask him his name, and I never knew who he was until, a couple of months later, I saw his picture in the papers as the slayer of President McKinley."

"If your acquaintance was so short, how did you know him by a casual newspaper picture?"

"Czolgosz," said Miss Goldman, "had a very remarkable face. Having once seen him you could not forget him. You must have remarked that yourself, by seeing his picture in the papers—didn't you?"

Emma Goldman is not a beautiful woman. She is, however, one of those rather rare women with whom a certain brilliancy of the intellect takes the place of mere prettiness. That is to say, her face is so attractive and charming that it produces all the effect of beauty. Her features are regular, and her eyes, which are large and fine, have the curious combination of brilliancy and softness—rare, that, in eyes of blue and gray; and Miss Goldman's eyes have both those colors, according as she changes from one emotion to another.

But she would not like to have her looks made the subject of even a paragraph in a newspaper article; she is too much of an advocate to let the sex question enter in for a moment. To call her "pretty"—though she really is a woman of charm—would be as much out of place as it would be to call Daniel Webster handsome, instead of intellectual or brilliant. It is hard to avoid such a characterization in speaking of a woman.

But then Emma Goldman is not a woman. She is a force.

Emma Goldman.

The Ultimate Consumer

BY McLANDBURGH WILSON.

MANUFACTURERS in legions
Hold the legislative ear,
Farmers, packers, and importers
Raise their voices loud and clear,
But despite most careful searching
In which every one concurred
Mr. Ultimate Consumer
Never has been seen or heard.

When importers shall have vanished,
Man the years have died,
One Last Man shall be remaining,
On the fading ginbe astride.
He will show himself surviving Tariff, government, and laws—
'Twill be Ultimate Consumer,
But too late to help his cause.

Good Advice.

ALL things come to he who waits,
If he waits in a place that he meets
But never wait for an uptown car
On the downtown side of the street

628

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

840514059

The Emma Goldman Papers

Our Friends, the Enemy / Emma Goldman. — pp. 110-111 ; 19 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 4, no. 4 (June 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

OUR FRIENDS, THE ENEMY

By EMMA GOLDMAN.

SUPPRESSION of Anarchist meetings and clubbing of their audiences have become such an ordinary affair, one hates to waste space in writing about it.

After all, what are the police for, if not to suppress the Anarchists? No one attacks the machinery of government, the corruption of politics, the brutality of the police, the sham of our existing society, so persistently as do the Anarchists. Therefore they must be silenced. Therefore they must be suppressed.

Realizing this, I should have not the least objection to the attitude of those in power towards myself and my comrades. What I do object to is the contemptible, cowardly, sneaking methods they employ.

Within the last month, the police of New Haven, Brooklyn, Yonkers, East Orange, and New York have suppressed eleven meetings that I was to address. Was it done openly? No. Detectives sneaked behind the hall owners, bullying and threatening them with arrest and ruin, until they had to yield. That is the curse of this country. Everyone imagines himself free and independent, and yet nearly everyone is mortally afraid of the police. It is because they know that the average officer on his beat is omnipotent. No matter in what trade, business, or profession one is engaged, the success or failure thereof will depend on the grace of the police. Therein lies the secret of the absolute indifference on the part of the general public to the daily and hourly criminality of those who are here to "protect the lives and the liberties of the people."

But, "the Constitution of the United States declares that Congress shall make no laws abridging the freedom of speech." That is all well and good for Congress, but what has that to do with the police of the United States? They have "evolved" their own laws, laws to suit their own purposes, and the most interesting thing about their laws is that they are almost always sustained in the courts, by the press, and public opinion; else how is it possible that the Chief of New Haven, assisted by a few officers, can prevent five thousand people from entering a hall? Is it that these people do not know their rights as guaranteed by the Constitution, or is it because they have been police-ridden so long that they have lost the manhood to sustain their rights? Or how are we to explain the 275 American citizens dining at the Sunrise Club in New York City under police surveillance, without the slightest protest? Did they, too, not know their rights?

I am being assured that most people approve of the suppression of Anarchists, or of myself, because their minds have been poisoned by gross misrepresentation of Anarchy. Possibly; but in that case there is even less excuse for their slavish submission, since the interference with the right of expression means also the interference with the right of hearing or listening to anything that might dispel misrepresentation. In short, it is impossible to get away from the fact that the authorities of this country are so arbitrary, so outrageously brutal because they rely on the ignorance and cowardice of the people.

Fortunately, I have learned long ago that the ultimate success of a truth depends not on the many, but on the perseverance and earnestness of the few. Too bad that the police never learn anything; else they would know that their action during the last month tends only to strengthen the zeal, devotion, and faith in a great cause. This, too, they would know: that while they have suppressed eleven meetings, thereby causing MOTHER EARTH a great material loss, they have planted the seed of discontent and hatred in many hearts. Already there exists great bitterness among those who feel, and great opposition among those who think. As to myself, I hate to hurt the sensibilities of my friends, the police; but they might as well attempt to direct the course of the stars as to direct the course of my life's work. They can not do it; at least not while I live.

* * *

A VISIT TO YONKERS

By H. KELLY.

AS the immortal bard said, "Circumstances make compromizers of us all." Such were the thoughts that circulated through my brain as I wended my way to the village—nay, town, of Yonkers a few days ago. My good friend Emma Goldman felt the divine call to

629

900615039

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Emma Goldman Talks in Barn / Emma Goldman. — pp. 9-12 ; 21 cm. In The Suppression of Free Speech in New York and in New Jersey... —[(June 1909)].

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the International Institute of Social History. Institutional Location: Heiner Becker's private collections.

[The following story is quoted verbatim from the only newspaper published in East Orange. The picture of the Police Force, used as a frontispiece in this pamphlet, was photographed expressly for the East Orange Record and printed in the issue of May 29th on the front page of the paper alongside the article which follows.]

While residents in the vicinity of Main and Walnut streets are trembling for fear that that section of the city will be blown up by dynamite bombs on the evening of June 8, the night set for the invasion of East Orange according to the newspapers by Emma Goldman, alleged Anarchist; Alexander Berkman, and an army of "Reds" from Paterson, Newark and New York, THE RECORD has it on reliable authority that the Goldman lecture will not take place at all, and that all the excitement and newspaper articles constitute nothing but a scare.

The civil authorities, however, do not take this view of the matter, and will be ready for anything that may happen. Both the city and county authorities will be on the alert. Chief Bell will personally attend the meeting, if it is held, and a force of officers will be under his command. County Prosecutor Mott has written a letter to Chief Bell, in which he says:

"If this woman violates the law, not only should she be arrested, but the proprietor of the hall where she speaks and Mr. Freeman, if he is responsible for her being there, should also be arrested and held to hail for the grand jury. I must insist that no halfway measures be adopted in regard to this woman and those associated with her. I regard Mr. Freeman's announcement as a challenge to lawful and organized government in this country, and as the representative of the State and in this county I accept his challenge and am prepared to meet the issue, whether he and his anarchistic friends can with impunity violate the statute laws of the State of New Jersey.

"I may or may not conclude to attend this meeting myself if it takes place, with a sufficient number of my own detectives to deal with the situation, but the duty to do this rests primarily upon you, and I request that you be present at this meeting with a sufficient force of your own men to stop her the moment she violates the law, and to arrest her and the others responsible for such violation."

An informal discussion of the proposed Goldman lecture followed the meeting of the City Council Monday night, at which it was decided to recommend to John English, proprietor of the hall in which she is scheduled to lecture June 8, to return the deposit made by her when she engaged the hall. English was told that he would be backed up by the city in any legal complications that action might precipitate and he willingly agreed to the suggestion.

"It was first planned," said Chairman Edward S. Pierson, of the council, Tuesday morning "to have the police merely keep a watch on the assemblage. But a little talk among the officials of the city brought us to the conclusion that it was not wise even to allow the Anarchist or Anarchists in the city. We ought to back up the Federal Government and do the same as New York City did Sunday. We have made up our minds not to allow Emma Goldman even to enter the hall.

"If English has any trouble over the matter he will be backed up by the city."

The discussion was brought about by Thomas R. Creede, president of the Playground Commission, who addressed the council as follows:

"We have all been shocked by having a desperate character brought into town and dumped at first at a harmless place, up at a pink tea party at the Woman's Club.

"When a meeting held in New York, by Emma Goldman and a chaperon from this town was broken up by the police with night sticks, the people were urged to come out to East Orange to hear the same lecture.

"We have a police department that can take care of the police end of it if you notify them to prevent the appearance of this disreputable crowd and their irresponsible chaperon. And, further, the Board of Health should examine this gentleman for his sanity.

"Why, I was ashamed of myself this morning, when several business men in the city came into my office and twitted me that these people couldn't have the lecture on the East Side in New York, but they could in East Orange."

Chairman John Lenord Merrill, of the Police Committee protested against a public discussion of the matter.

"I am opposed to airing it too much," he said, "for we are only showing our hand to these people."

It was finally decided that the council could go on record safely enough as opposed to the giving of the proposed lecture by the Anarchist, and a resolution to that effect was unanimously adopted.—East Orange Record, May 29, 1909.

EMMA GOLDMAN TALKS IN BARN.

Police Keep Her from Public Hall and Stand Beside Her in the Stable. Big Audience In and Outside the Barn. Raps the Police and Says We're Getting Russianized.

[Headlines and story are copied from New York Times, of June 9, 1909.]

Emma Goldman, although she was thwarted by the police of East Orange, N. J., under the leadership of Mayor Cardwell and a delegation of leading citizens and Police Chief Bell from speaking in English's Hall last night, had a triumph nevertheless. With a band of distinguished adherents, including Ferdinand P. Earle, she drove to the stable of Alden Freeman and there by the light of oil lamps, standing on a chair, she delivered the address on the modern drama which New York police had suppressed, and that, too, right in the most fashionable section of East Orange.

Close upon 1,000 persons must have listened to her, for the stable was so jammed with people that Chief of Police Bell was crowded right up against her chair. The yard of Mr. Freeman's place outside was black with people, and evidently there were well-known citizens among them, for in the road behind the house many automobiles were parked.

When Miss Goldman decided to give her address, "The Drama as the Strongest Disseminator of Radical Thought," she engaged English's Hall, in East Orange, and gave him $5 to seal the bargain. Then the Mayor brought pressure to bear, and Mr. English tried to withdraw. Miss Goldman wouldn't take back her $5 and said she would see about it. She said it in such a way as to put the police on their mettle.

Fifteen of them, with the chief and Mayor Cardwell, were on hand early last night in English's restaurant, to be ready for a surprise.

So when Mr. Freeman, meeting the anarchist at the station, arrived at the hall with Mr. Earle, Alexander Berkman, Leonard Abbott, Manager Reitman, and others at the same time that Miss Goldman drew up in front of it in Mr. Freeman's carriage, the place was well defended.

Miss Goldman made one sally. She pushed through the little crowd, followed by the men of her party, and advanced directly against the chests of the police force. The chief and 900615039

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Emma Goldman Talks in Barn / Emma Goldman. — pp. 9-12 ; 21 cm. In The Suppression of Free Speech in New York and in New Jersey... —[(June 1909)].

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the International Institute of Social History. Institutional Location: Heiner Becker's private collections.

his men stood like a stone wall. Mr. Freeman then announced that the lecture would be given in his barn, and that all were welcome. All moved thither, including the police force.

When Miss Guldman pushed into the stable, she could only find room to stand by making the people crowd closer together. There was not even an extra inch, so far as any one could see by the light of the oil lamps on the empty wagons inside and outside the stable, and hundreds crowded about the doors, scores about the windows. Then Mr. Abbott got to the chair, and read a manifesto on the constitutionality of free speech, which he said many distinguished people had signed.

Then Mr. Freeman, amid considerable applause, read by the dim oil lamplight an eulogy of Thomas Paine, who died 100 years ago yesterday, and after it introduced Emma Goldman as:

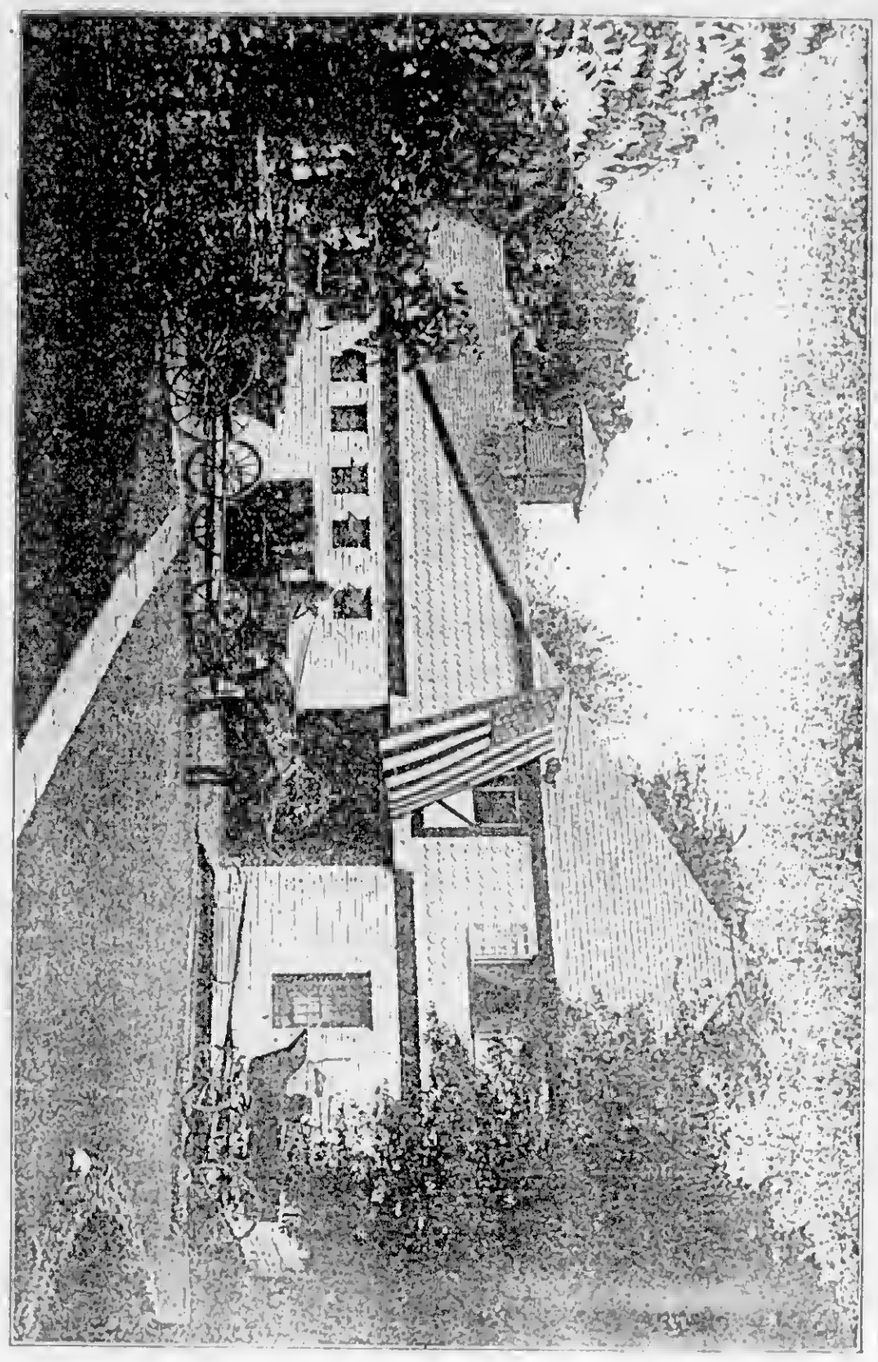
"The most conspicuous agitator for freedom of thought and speech in America—and I am glad that East Orange has this chance to observe that Miss Goldman has neither hoofs nor horns, and does not ride on a broomstick."

Loud cheers and laughter followed this, and the cheers mingled with loud whistles from without as Miss Goldman took the chair.

"As I drove here," she said in a piercing voice, "it came to me that those Russians battling for freedom could not have believed possible what happened in your town tonight. They think this country is the cradle of liberty—they do not believe such things happen here at all. But America is gradually coming to Russian conditions—she is nearing them faster all the time."

Here there came more cheers and whistles, and Miss Goldman entered on her subject, and the people without the dim-lit barn pressed forward, and Chief Bell took his place by Miss Goldman's chair.

But here the noise from without so increased that one of the audience got to his feet and said sententiously: "I for one would be very glad if the people who don't want to hear would disperse; the police are here—they might disperse them."



"Not the police," said Miss Goldman; "they would make more confusion in one minute than they could stop in five years." More cheers and laughter, followed by comparative silence, which enabled Miss Goldman to point out how all the most radical plays she could think of had wakened up "the sleepy brains of people" to thought. Finally she got to the development of the drama in this country.

"You have been too busy making money to do anything worth while," she said. "Yet your drama is awakening, and it will awaken thought in the workman, and once he is awakened there will be something doing"—here she looked at Chief Bell scornfully—"against all this organized force and power. This is particularly true recently. For instance, the public saw in the 'Servant in the House' a masterpiece, but yet they took it merely as a religious revival—the reincarnation of Christ. The true radical message in that play is given by Robert.

"But, so far, America's only real drama is 'The Easiest Way.' It shows the destructiveness to all truth, justice, and beauty of our economic arrangements. It shows the cruel, senseless fatalism of Laura's set, and explains how men work in the mill and the mines so that parasites and idlers can live on them."

Here some one called out: "Now, how about 'Uncle Tom's Cabin?'"

"That," cried Miss Goldman, turning to the speaker, "dealt with an issue supposed to be dead long ago. But it lives today, for only two days ago a Judge decided openly that a black had not the same feelings as a white, and could not get so much

Scene of the Paine Centenary Celebration in East Orange on June 8, 1909.

Carriage in readiness to take Miss Goldman and the other speakers to the Police Station in case either the city or county authorities had the "nerve," to carry out their threats to make arrests.

631

900615039

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Emma Goldman Talks in Barn / Emma Goldman. – pp. 9-12 ; 21 cm. In The Suppression of Free Speech in New York and in New Jersey... –[(June 1909)].

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the International Institute of Social History. Institutional Location: Heiner Becker's private collections.

damages when they were hurt. Ah, do not talk to me of your liberty and your independence. Now, I want to add one word"—she looked again at the chief—"we are well protected here—"

"It's 'cause we know you," put in the chief.

"Not at all," said Miss Goldman, amid laughter, "for if you knew me you'd know I can take care of myself. I am here to protect you against yourselves."

A great burst of laughter came from the crowd and more cheers.

"You may not think it," cried Miss Goldman in a shrill voice, "but I am not fond of notoriety. But if those who try, and in this case partly succeed in stopping meetings of this kind—meetings where truth is spoken—think that in any such way they will down truth and progress they are wrong, wretchedly wrong. In all ages men have tried the same methods and have failed.

"If the truth depended on Emma Goldman it would not be worth while, but it depends on justice and human liberty. I am grateful, deeply grateful, to the police and the papers for acting so they make the people think a thousand times more than I could make them."

There was this time a genuine cheer. Miss Goldman stepped down from her chair, people crowded about to shake hands, and some cried: "Give us more." Then the audience dispersed.—N. Y. Times, June 9, 1909.

A Local Account of the Meeting in the Stable.

The motley gathering in the stable, representing all classes of society, by the dim light of three kerosene lamps presented a weird spectacle. Miss Goldman stood on the end of a settee to deliver her lecture, the crowd pressing so closely about her as to give her scarcely elbow room. If anyone was afraid of Anarchists or bombs there was no evidence of it.

Throughout the evening the crowd was in a good-natured frame of mind and no effort was made to embarrass the speaker in any way. The 300 or more people in the stable were quiet and orderly but the thousand or more outside were restless because they could not see or hear the speaker. They cheered vociferously when the people in the stable applauded, although they had not the slightest idea what they were cheering about. Some of the younger element amused themselves running the carriages that had been removed from the stable about the grounds, and one carriage ran down two policemen who happened to be in the way.

Before the speaking began Mr. Freeman announced that a collection would be taken up as no admission had been charged, but Miss Goldman refused to permit this to be done.

Leonard D. Abbott, a Socialist, was the first speaker of the evening.—East Orange Record, June 21, 1909.

Mr. Abbott's Speech.

Leonard D. Abbott pointed out that the constitutional provisions safeguarding free speech were not intended for those whose ideas are popular and accepted, but that it was for the protection of dissenting thinkers, such as Miss Goldman, that free speech was provided.

Mr. Abbott said, in part:

"It would be comic, if it were not tragic, these attempts in the United States of America, in the twentieth century, in this year 1909, to suppress the right of free speech.

"Every pioneer movement, every righteous, unpopular cause has had to go through this kind of persecution. The spirit of Emma Goldman reminds me of the spirit of William Lloyd Garrison, the anti-slavery agitator. When Garrison was hemmed in by his enemies eighty years ago, he said: 'I will be as harsh as justice and as uncompromising as truth. I am in earnest. I will not equivocate. I will not excuse. I will not retreat a single inch. And I will be heard!' That is the spirit of Emma Goldman.

"I do not agree with all Emma Goldman's ideas, but I have only admiration for her ability, her integrity and the courage and perseverance with which she is prosecuting her fight all over the country."—N. Y. Evening Call, June 9, 1909.

Alden Freeman then read a paper on Thomas Paine, whose death occurred just one hundred years ago. Before referring to his notes Mr. Freeman said that his address had been examined by eminent legal counsel and pronounced proper to be read to either the "Daughters of Solomon" or the "Sons of the Queen of Sheba."

The address is given in full herewith:

THOMAS PAINE

Centenary Address by Alden Freeman

"The world is my country; to do good is my religion."—THOMAS PAINE.

One hundred years ago today there passed from life into the undying fame of assured immortality a chieftain among the Fathers of our Country, the foremost agitator of the American Revolution, Thomas Paine.

Despised as an atheist in his own lifetime, Thomas Paine has, in this centenary year of his death, received at the hands of the American people his most signal vindication. On the 4th of March was inaugurated in the city of Washington as President of the United States a man elected by the suffrages of a vast majority of all those qualified to vote among our ninety million inhabitants, who is connected with a church which is based upon the principles with which Thomas Paine began his "Age of Reason." Paine's words are worth quoting: "I believe in one God and no more; and I hope for happiness beyond this life. I believe in the equality of man; and I believe that religious duties consist in doing justice, loving mercy, and endeavoring to make our fellow creatures happy."

I have talked with Unitarians about this passage and they assure me that it embodies the faith of the Unitarian Church of which President Taft is a member.

But prejudice still exists against the "Stormy Petrel" of the Revolution, and it may be well to recall the services for which Thomas Paine will eventually be ranked along with Franklin and Washington, Hamilton and Jefferson, among the makers of this nation. Living the life of a scientist and pamphleteer in England, in 1774 Benjamin Franklin persuaded Paine to immigrate to America and use his pen in behalf of the colonists. The historian Botta declares that "no writer ever possessed in a higher degree the art of moving and guiding the multitude at his will." There seems to be no question that Paine was the first to advocate over his own signature the complete separation of America from Great Britain, and it is remarkable that in the same pamphlet he advocated as the first act of legislation by the new nation the abolition of negro slavery.

It was Thomas Paine who by his knowledge of chemistry taught the colonists how to make their own gunpowder and formed an association which provided the colonial armies with powder for their guns at the critical period when the supply from Europe was cut off.

On January 1st, 1776, six months

632

840514061

The Emma Goldman Papers

A New Declaration of Independence / Emma Goldman. — pp. 137-138 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 4, no. 5 (July 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

lieve that the only way to "reform" the police is to stop feeding them.

The kicking out of Bingham was, of course, the most decent official act of Mayor McClellan for many a day. But so far we have noticed no change in the manner of administration. In fact, the police followed the same old tactics in trying to prevent Emma Goldman's lecture Friday, July 2, arranged under the auspices of the Harlem Liberal Alliance. The manager of the hall was threatened in the usual way, and but for the presence of mind of a few comrades and the determination of the speaker, the lecture would not have taken place.

The only way to win free speech is—to speak, and to keep on doing so whenever free speech is threatened. No movement for free speech, properly considered, can be a temporary affair. The fight is a continual one. Only thus will we conquer. It therefore affords us great pleasure to inform our readers that all those who have become interested in the present fight for free speech consider the movement a permanent one, and are using their best efforts to interest ever wider circles and to increase the number of signatures to the Demand for Free Speech, published in our last issue. Since then the following names have been added: New York: Charles Edward Russell; James F. Morton, Jr.; Thomas Seltzer; Dr. E. B. Foote, Jr.; Gilbert E. Roe; Courtenay Lemon; E. C. Walker; C. P. Somerby; Leon Dabo; George Sylvester Viereck; Ex-Congressman Robert Baker; Leonard Van Nappen; Theodore Schroeder; Harry Kelly. Chicago: Francis Hackett; Charles T. Halliman, and Floyd Dell, of the editorial staff of the Chicago Evening Post; Louis F. Post, editor of the Public; Clarence S. Darrow; Voltairine de Cleyre, of Philadelphia; Michael Monahan, of Orange; Robert Thomas Paine, of Hoboken, and J. William Lloyd, of Westfield, N. J.; Rev. Eliot White, of Worcester, Mass; Eugene V. Debs, of Terre Haute, Ind.

A NEW DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE*

By EMMA GOLDMAN.

WHEN, in the course of human development, existing institutions prove inadequate to the needs of man, when they serve merely to enslave, rob, and oppress mankind, the people have the eternal right to rebel against, and overthrow, these institutions.

The mere fact that these forces—inimical to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness—are legalized by statute laws, sanctified by divine rights, and enforced by political power, in no way justifies their continued existence.

We hold these truths to be self-evident: that all human beings, irrespective of race, color, or sex, are born with the equal right to share at the table of life; that to secure this right, there must be established among men economic, social, and political freedom; we hold further that government exists but to maintain special privilege and property rights; that it coerces man into submission and therefore robs him of dignity, self-respect, and life.

The history of the American kings of capital and authority is the history of repeated crimes, injustice, oppression, outrage, and abuse, all aiming at the suppression of individual liberties and the exploitation of the people. A vast country, rich enough to supply all her children with all possible comforts, and insure well-being to all, is in the hands of a few, while the nameless millions are at the mercy of ruthless wealth gatherers, unscrupulous lawmakers, and corrupt politicians. Sturdy sons of America are forced to tramp the country in a fruitless search for bread, and many of her daughters are driven into the street, while thousands of tender children are daily sacrificed on the altar of Mammon. The reign of these kings is holding mankind in slavery, perpetuating poverty and disease, maintaining crime and corruption; it is fettering the spirit of liberty, throttling the voice of justice, and degrading and oppressing humanity. It is engaged in continual war and slaughter, devastating the country and destroying the best and finest qualities of man; it nurtures superstition and ig-

* This "Declaration" was written at the request of a certain newspaper, which subsequently refused to publish it, though the article was already in composition.

633

840514061

The Emma Goldman Papers

A New Declaration of Independence / Emma Goldman. — pp. 137-138 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 4, no. 5 (July 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

norance, sows prejudice and strife, and turns the human family into a camp of Ishmaelites.

We, therefore, the liberty-loving men and women, realizing the great injustice and brutality of this state of affairs, earnestly and boldly do hereby declare, That each and every individual is and ought to be free to own himself and to enjoy the full fruit of his labor; that man is absolved from all allegiance to the kings of authority and capital; that he has, by the very fact of his being, free access to the land and all means of production, and entire liberty of disposing of the fruits of his efforts; that each and every individual has the unquestionable and unabridgeable right of free and voluntary association with other equally sovereign individuals for economic, political, social, and all other purposes, and that to achieve this end man must emancipate himself from the sacredness of property, the respect for man-made law, the fear of the Church, the cowardice of public opinion, the stupid arrogance of national, racial, religious, and sex superiority, and from the narrow puritanical conception of human life. And for the support of this Declaration, and with a firm reliance on the harmonious blending of man's social and individual tendencies, the lovers of liberty joyfully consecrate their uncompromising devotion, their energy and intelligence, their solidarity and their lives.

❦ ❦ ❦

THE MIDNIGHT LUNCH ROOM

By ELSA BARKER.

With little money one may enter here,
And yet those haggard faces watch outside
The frosty window—and the door is wide!
The clatter to my unaccustomed ear
Of dishes and hard tongues, is like a spear
Shaken within the sensitive, wounded side
Of Silence. Soiled, indifferent hands provide Pitiful fare and cups of pallid cheer.

In my warm, fragrant home an hour ago
I wrote a poem on the peace they win
Who worship Beauty. Let me breathe it low:
What would it mean if chanted in this din?
What would it say to those out in the snow,
Who hunger, and who may not enter in?

ANARCHISM AND MALTHUS

By C. L. JAMES.

(Continuation.)

RICARDO'S positive dogmatism, plausible syllogizing, and coherent style, gave his writings an advantage over those of Malthus. As concerns conservatism they were equal, or rather Ricardo's superabundant acknowledgment of indebtedness to Malthus made the latter appear to the generation which did not read him more conservative than the former really was.* The Seniors, McCullochs, Benthams, Macaulays, Mills, Leckys, Martineaus, Marcels, and other orthodox exponents of Ricardo, contemporary with the Socialistic upheavals and panics between 1848 and 1871, but little aware to what purposes Marx and Proudhon were turning their instructor, deduced from Ricardo, whom they represented as the greater pupil of Malthus, notwithstanding the real difference, that labor depended for support on the wage-fund; that to lessen the wage-fund by frightening capital was to do laborers the worst of injuries; that the admitted harshness of the social state was due principally to a "natural monopoly" which government did not make and could not destroy; that artificial monopolies were, indeed, wrong and pernicious, for which reason a liberal government was preferable to a monarchy or oligarchy; but Anarchy, of course, would be the worst of anything, and Socialistic interference with the natural laws of production fostered Anarchy by promising impossibilities and causing disappointment; for which reason authority should be strictly upheld and Utopianism encouraged; above all that the only real remedies were parsimony and continence (a queer jumble, which shows how little these public instructors themselves understood the true relation of Malthusian economy to Ricardian). There was just enough

* Thus Henry George, whose premises are taken straight out of Ricardo, thinks it necessary to refute Malthus, of whose real relation to Ricardo he knew very little. Extension of cultivation is, according to Ricardo, the cause of rent. Its own cause (George supposes) is, for both Malthus and Ricardo, increase of population. To save Ricardo without adopting Malthus, George ingeniously argues that it is not increase, but concentration, of population which extends cultivation. The truth is, Malthus had not said it was either.

634

850424017

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Summary of Lecture] Emma Goldman Speaks That Piece / Emma Goldman.— 28 cm. In The New York Times. —(July 3, 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

ING LETTERS.

Treatment of Thousands a Misconception.

The New York Times;
les F. Aked, D. D., pastor of Baptist Church of New York, rticle to The Saturday Evening 6 which leaves one gasping. A Minister's Mail; Mr. Rocke- and it is a strange revelation ttude of a minister of the Goss of the letters which come to to intercede with Mr. Rocke- of the people who writs the tters began when he had been han a week. An enormous mail his church. "It was impos- carry all this stuff away," he he Trustees of my church took loaded his automobile up with brought them and me to the where I was then staying." everybody he knew in England tulations, but he was quickly e opened," he says, "about a Every one was an appeal for t not understand it until I rs which contained newspaper the secret stood revealed. A d published a string of lies to had been appointed 'almoner' Rockefeller, charged with the way his millions."

ked do with these appeals? He letters and "threw them away hat was in them and what l neither know nor care." He rocess of time the rush ended; e first fortnight, then a thou- t two or three months; since months, about 2,000, and now week. "Such letters," he says, opened"—never if he and his ess what the letters contain. rpose of this article some that consigned to the waste basket few days have been read."

appeals." Dr. Aked tells us, elic. * * * In the most reck- us way an old minister of the on evil times, appears to have ers to me and an illuminated nted to him by his church on fter twenty years of service. do not know what happened things, as I explained, were nd the poor man bewails his great map of Palestine, on w plan, is supposed to have it was delivered to my pub- tified them that they could do with it—I should not receive it ellow who sent it bombards me for its return."

s the Rev. Dr. Aked do with With the exception of a bundle which, by a fortunate acci- by his secretary and returned, notice has ever been taken of hat it has never occurred to nt a circular explaining cour- is not an "almoner" of Mr. llions, and to send it to them he, many of whom had been wspaper article which doubtless been"

A LAYMAN.
y 1, 1909.

TAXIMETERS.

s Protest That They Are and Accurate.

EMMA GOLDMAN SPEAKS THAT PIECE

Thirty Policemen Hear Her Awful Views on the Drama in Comparative Peace.

NO RIOT AND NO ARRESTS

Some 250 Intelligent Persons Undisturbed by Her Views of Hauptmann and Ibsen.

To a crowd of 250—all that could by any possibility be jammed into the hall at 109 West 115th Street, where she was to speak, even with two people sitting on a chair and other persons standing up along the wall—Emma Goldman, the Anarchist, succeeded last night in delivering her awful speech on "The Drama."

The last time she tried to deliver it, in Lexington Hall, a Plymouth Rock conservator named Rafsky—a Headquarters detective lineally descended from John Alden—stopped her because she was disturbing the peace. She was talking about Hauptmann and Sudermann and Ibsen, and every policeman knows that "them fellers is Anarchists."

Last night Emma Goldman tried it again. She went to the hall prepared for anything from a mere arrest to a riot, and addressed the crowd with a come-one-come-all look. For Inspector Titus was on the job, and with him at least thirty policemen. Twenty of them were in plain clothes and about ten in uniform, and the man who couldn't prove that he had a right to hear the foundations of society uprooted had a hard job getting past the sleuths.

When the uprooters of society were all gathered together—and somehow all of them looked singularly like pretty intelligent folks—Emma Goldman arose to her full height, which is not much, and said that Gerhardt Hauptmann was a credit to the German stage. At that moment a tall young policeman strode rapidly down the aisle, thrust his jaw forward, and looked at Miss Goldman with a fixed and threatening gaze. Miss Goldman looked back at him defiantly and gave vent, without the least shame, to the revolutionary sentiment that Ibsen had created a new literature for the Scandinavians. The tall young policeman folded his arms and retired to the rear.

Encouraged by this, Miss Goldman went much further and said that George Bernard Shaw was a clever man. At this moment Inspector Titus, visibly agitated, sent forward several cleverly disguised young sleuths to the front row to ascertain if there was anything deadly and mysterious behind what Miss Goldman was saying. There was. She went even further in her mad career and said that "The Third Degree" was a good play. Several of Inspector Titus's sleuths went back to him and asked if an incendiary statement like that afforded sufficient warrant for arrest. The Inspector thought it over, and said no. Then Miss Goldman.

ORPHAN'S HAPPINESS BRIEF.

Adopted Child Who Never Had a Home, Finds Her New Mother Dead.

Six-year-old Faith Rose, who never had a home until she was adopted a few days ago by Mrs. Cora M. Rose of 50 Oliver Street, Newark, will probably have to return to the orphan asylum whence she was brought recently. When the little girl went to her foster mother's room on Thursday night because she was lonely she found Mrs. Rose dead. The child ran to neighbors for assistance, and the County Physician was summoned. He found that the woman had died of dropsy.

Little could be learned of Mrs. Rose by the police further than that she was a Christian Scientist, and had lived at 50 Oliver Street for about ten months. She had been ill a long time, but had refused to see a doctor.

The child will be the owner of the few possessions of her foster mother and will probably be returned to the Home for the Friendless in Newark.

GRAND JURY RAPS 'JOY RIDERS'

And Praises the Police Force Right in the Teeth of the Shake-Up.

In a presentment handed in to County Judge Dike yesterday, the Kings County Grand Jury attacked the practice of "joy riding" in the city-owned automobiles.

Calling the attention of all Commissioners and heads of departments to the new law relating to this practice, which goes into effect Sept. 1, the Grand Jury declared that even the gasoline used by these "joy riders" was owned by the city, and that to use it for such a purpose was theft.

The jury suggested that all vehicles owned by the city be plainly marked as such in letters not less than four inches in length.

The Grand Jury criticised the management of the Brooklyn Disciplinary Training School for Boys, and suggested that the Mayor and the Board of Charities investigate the institution.

OUTGOING LINERS CROWDED.

Season's Record for Kaiserin Auguste Victoria—Seven Ships Sail To-day.

The Hamburg-American Line steamship Kaiserin Auguste Victoria will sail for Hamburg to-day with the record number of cabin passengers for this season. Her total number of cabin passengers is 860 persons, of whom 560 are in the first and 300 in the second class.

The Kaiserin Auguste Victoria holds a record as a passenger carrier. In June, 1906, she left here with 875 cabin passengers, and in June of the next year she carried 844 persons in her cabin.

Every table in the Ritz-Carlton Restaurant is reserved throughout the voyage.

The transatlantic steamships sailing today and some of those booked to sail on them are:

KAISERIN AUGUSTE VICTORIA, (Hamburg)—Mr. and Mrs. John Albertson, Dr. and Mrs. E. W. Andrews, Mrs. J. P. Atkinson, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. V. Bermuth, Mrs. Charles Bradley, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Brooks, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Bryson, Mr. and Mrs. Sharswood Brinton, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Caldwell, Mrs. H. Warner Crane, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Coffin, Charles Felix Chlapowski, Dr. Joseph R. Duryee, T. A. Dykman, Mr. and Mrs. William N. Dykman, Prince and Princess Nicholas Engalitcheff, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ebeling, Miss Ethel L. Farnsworth, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Gould, William J. Hosford, Mr. and Mrs. U. T. Hungerford, H. A. Hutchins, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hornblower, Alfred Booth, Hallgar

THE

MODJE AMONG

Her Funer St. Stan Had C

MANY CL

Count Bozen to . Pol

Helena Mo actresses of American dr ance in New in a theatre town but in h Catholic Chu St. Stanisla Helena Mod years ago sh and since t services in th in New Yor capacity or Modjeska, wa is small, seat sons, and is s the poorer P

Yesterday mass celebr actress the Polish men clusion of an Glider was t John E. Kell writers, and twenty alto almost entire and women her homage.

The bier, d lilies and tributes of and. Players front of the In through t bright spotli obscured the Father Joh Islaus's Chu Mgr. Lavelle lish in prai Fathrr Wroi only for a quent sermo

All during in the chur the women h the cry of u ils way thro At the end, eatly inside outside stre casket was waleh was t

To-day C Mme. Modje remains of Augusta Vic still another brated. Th affairs in C their home died, and again.

LAMP UP

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

850424017

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Summary of Lecture] Emma Goldman Speaks That Piece / Emma Goldman.— 28 cm. In The New York Times. —(July 3, 1909).

Obtained from the University of Califo.nia, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

er twenty years of service.
o n.t know what happened things as I explained, were the poor man bewails his feat nap of Palestine, on plan, is supposed to have
It was delivered to my pubfied them that they could do th it—t should not receive it w who sent it bombarda me or its return."
the Rev. Dr. Aked do with th the exception of a bundle hich, " by a fortunate acciy his secretary and returned, other has ever been taken of at it has never occurred to a circular explaining cour-not an "almoner" of Mr.

ns, and to send it to those many of whom had been aper article which doubtless n." A LAYMAN.
, 1909.

TAXIMETERS.

Protest That They Are nd Accurate.

he New York Times:
HE TIMES seeks to be fair torial expression. On that
It for granted that part of -day's issue has been made ion or without a full knowl-
Under the title "The Taxi-the taxicabs are harmless.
machines are most repre-
the closest inspection."
device for registering disnk compensation in a pas-protection of the passenger.
on the cabs of the New on Company is carefully
d before it is put into prac-d then is subject to con-
. Every possible precauploy honest chauffeurs, so factors a "reprehensible"
arily be a dishonest meter that does it a party to a think you intend to convey
So far as this company is to say most positively and arnestness that the meters are known to be accurate spection at any time. We e inspection and we ask nd the investigation.
RICHARD W. MEADE.
k Transportation Company.

e New York Times:
published to-day you init-that the taximeter instead n for the passenger is just manner in which the taxied in the favor of the les has been astonishing."
ything it means that the
for the purpose of cheat-that I hardly think you to legally organized corsiness depends upon affi-
. Speaking for my own that every possible effort the passenger fairly. Our and inspected constant-ion is accurate, and no employed who attempted dvantage of a passenger.
TIMES will correct the has created in making it can seek to avoid inspec-and if it can be shown ter is adjusted to register of $1,000 to any charity name.
JOHN H. NAUGHTON.
Taximeter Cab Company.

past the sleuths.
When the uprooters of society were all gathered together—and somehow all of them looked singularly like pretty intelligent folks—Emma Goldman arose to her full height, which is not much, and said that Gerhardt Hauptmann was a credit to the German stage. At that moment a tall young policeman strode rapidly down the aisle, thrust his jaw forward, and looked at Miss Goldman with a fixed and threatening gaze. Miss Goldman looked back at him defiantly and gave vent, without the least shame, to the revolutionary sentiment that Ibsen had created a new literature for the Scandinavians. The tall young policeman folded his arms and retired to the rear.
Encouraged by this, Miss Goldman went much further and said that George Bernard Shaw was a clever man. At this moment Inspector Titus, visibly agitated, sent forward several cleverly disguised young sleuths to the front row to ascertain if there was anything deadly and mysterious behind what Miss Goldman was saying. There was. She went even further in her mad career and said that "The Third Degree" was a good play. Several of Inspector Titus's sleuths went back to him and asked if an incendiary statement like that afforded sufficient warrant for arrest. The Inspector thought it over, and said no. Then Miss Goldman, encouraged by this leniency of the authorities, plunged into far worse excesses and eulogized Eugene Walter and "The Easiest Way."
It was difficult for an audience to treat a thing like this seriously. Actually, a large force of police was out to protect the Harlem Innocents from a perfectly ordinary lecture on literature, in which there was not a sentence or a word that anybody might not have said. The police themselves seemed to feel the ridiculousness of their position. When one of the Sergeants was asked if he couldn't oblige with an arrest to relieve the monotony, he said: "Not unless you go in there and start a rough-house."
After Miss Goldman got through, Alden Freeman and a number of her sympathizers got up and talked. Meanwhile the great army of police which had assembled there to prevent anybody from saying too much about Hauptmann strolled up and down and cussed the Police Department. Everybody was too loyal to Inspector Titus to cuss him.
As to what Miss Goldman said, it was just this: That the drama rather than the novel is the true lover of thought in literature; that Hauptmann has demonstrated it in Germany, Ibsen in Scandinavia, and that while America is not doing very much we at least have Eugene Walter.
Coming away from there, an American citizen said to a policeman, "Do you do this because you like to, or because you have to?"
"G'wan!" said the cop.

$4,262,395 INHERITANCE TAXES

$777,539 Gain Over Last Year In Collections from 15 Counties.

ALBANY, July 2.—For the nine months ended June 30, State Controller Gaus reports that there was received as taxes on collateral inheritances from the fifteen counties which report directly to his office the sum of $4,262,395. The receipts from the same source for the corresponding nine months last year were $3,484,756, which shows a gain for this year's period of $777,639.
Sixty-six of the estates making returns paid a tax of $10,000 or over. Of this number, twenty-five were the estates of women. Westchester County's payments of the larger sums were entirely on women's estates. Of the taxes in excess of $10,000 forty-eight were received from New York County. Here is a list of the estates whose taxes were $10,000 and greater in New York, Kings, Westchester, and Nassau Counties.

NEW YORK COUNTY.

Mary C. Pinkney.....$300,000.00
Matilda W. Jerude.....

Victoria—Seven Ships Sail To-day.

The Hamburg-American Line steamship Kaiserin Auguste Victoria will sail for Hamburg to-day with the record number of cabin passengers for this season. Her total number of cabin passengers is 860 persons, of whom 560 are in the first and 300 in the second class.
The Kaiserin Auguste Victoria holds a record as a passenger carrier. In June, 1906, she left here with 875 cabin passengers, and in June of the next year she carried 844 persons in her cabin.
Every table in the Ritz-Carlton Restaurant is reserved throughout the voyage.
The transatlantic steamships sailing today and some of those booked to sail on them are:
KAISERIN AUGUSTE VICTORIA, (Hamburg)—Mr. and Mrs. John Albertson, Dr. and Mrs. E. W. Andrews, Mrs. J. P. Atkinson, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. V. Bermuth, Mrs. Charles Bradley, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Brooks, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Bryson, Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood Brioton, Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Caldwell, Mrs. H. Warner Crane, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Coffin, Charles Felix Chlapowski, Dr. Joseph R. Duryee, T. A. Dykman, Mr. and Mrs. William N. Dykman, Prince and Princess Nicholas Engalitcheff, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ebeling, Miss Ethel L. Farnsworth, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Gould, William J. Hosford, Mr. and Mrs. U. T. Hungerford, H. A. Hutchins, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hornblower, Alfred Booth Huttner, Prof. and Mrs. E. Kuhnemann, Mr. and Mrs. Martin W. Littleton, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Lindsay, Mrs. G. G. W. Lowrey, Mr. and Mrs. Louis C. Madeira, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. James E. Nichols, Mrs. Raymond C. Penfield, Mr. and Mrs. William Lathrop Rich, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Steinmetz, Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Motgenthau, J. B. Shaw, Mme. Louise Gerard-Thies, William H. Wilder, T. Chester Walbridge, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Webb, and Burgess W. Wooley.
CARONIA, (Liverpool)—The Rev. and Mrs. Charles F. Aked, Capt. and Mrs. W. Anderson, A. Sanderman Allen, Mrs. H. J. Parker, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Brewster, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Canfield, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Choate, Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Cuttle, Mrs. Daniel Chauncey, Jr., Mrs. Frederick T. De Long, Mrs. N. V. V. Franchot, Edmund H. Gillilee, Douglas Gerrard, Mr. and Mrs. James Hay, Mrs. Charles Lathrop, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Kennedy, Col. and Mrs. George S. McGraw, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Middleton, Mrs. Robert T. Newberry, Mrs. T. J. Oakley, Capt. and Mrs. G. B. Pillsbury, Miss Elizabeth Plankinton, Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Taft, Dr. and Mrs. William Turk, and William H. Zimmers.
PHILADELPHIA, (Southampton)—Frederick H. Allen, George J. Brewer, Paul Broquet, J. W. Carpenter, Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Clark, Mrs. Louise Coleman, Mr. and Mrs. William Crooke, Charles W. Drane, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel F. Dickinson, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley W. Edwards, Dr. and Mrs. Russell Story Fowler, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence W. Gallagher, Henry G. Gray, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Holmes, Judge Franklin C. Hoyt, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Kalp, Henry C. Kelsey, Mrs. Charles Ludlow, Mrs. S. A. Meigeath, Mrs. Taylor Morse, H. H. Mott-Smith, Mr. and Mrs. F. R. A. Plagge, Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Seale, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Spencer, Julian Franklin Stone, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew V. Stout, H. S. Vanderbilt, and A. Toxin Worm.
CELTIC, (Liverpool)—Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Andrews, Mr. and Mrs. J. Sinclair Armstrong, Mrs. A. L. Ashman, Mrs. William M. Bremer, Gilbert Butler, Mr. and Mrs. William Campbell, Capt. W. H. Cartwright, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Walter de Frece, Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Gambrill, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Kerr, Judge James T. Malone, William C. McCutcheon, Dr. and Mrs. E. C. Palmer, Col. and Mrs. W. H. Phelps, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Scribner, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Swan, Mr. and Mrs. I. R. Thomas, Charles E. Waltz, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Emerson Woodford.
MINNETONKA, (London)—H. V. Andrews, Mrs. G. G. Bauer, Mrs. Catherine Dwight, R. V. Flanders, Prof. and Mrs. Joseph Marshall Flint, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Gardiner, Mrs. J. Aspinwall Hodge, Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Hoguet, Mr. and Mrs. Maximilian Morgenthau, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick E. Smith, Clarence Watson, and Capt. and Mrs. Andrew C. Zabriskie.
CHICAGO, (Havre)—Mrs. Paul Armin, Miss Nellie J. Crocker, Dr. Jane W. Carroll, George Corteyn, Prof. and Mrs. G. Fontaine, Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Gilmore, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Hess, William Denbar Jowett, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur S. Kimball, C. W. Lasher, Prof. E. A. Lindorff, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Meriwether, the Rev. and Mrs. R. H. Van Cleve, and Mrs. E. T. Wilkinson.

and Players C front of the al
In through the bright spotlight obscured the li
Father John lslaus's Church
Mgr. Lavelle lish in praise
Father Wrobl only for a few quent sermon
All during th in the church the women had the cry of a c its way throug
At the end, wh
erily inside th outside stood casket was ca which was to
To-day Colu
Mme. Modjesk remains of the Auguste Victo still another fu brated. The affairs in Cal their home a dled, and wi again.

LAMP UPSE

Old Man and Neighbors—O

Two persons barely escaped last night when of Mrs. Patrick of the tenem ninth Street.
The fire was of a kerosene was trimming over the carpe
Guire fled scre
Mrs. Mary H across the ha
McGuire, heart her door, and fled to the st spread to the
Joseph A. Ll
ninth Street, w an alarm. Ji Avenue and J
Forty-ninth Sir
ing.
On the third
John Reese, conscious, over men carried hi
Joseph Weiss who live in th
Sheppard by ca third floor. H over neighborin
$5,000.

WINNING

Red Flags a from Big

A parade of other organiza celebrate the by Local 100, H ers' Union, to noon, followed
Cooper Union.
siders cheered line of march.
The parade
the neighborhoo
the headquarte Union. In all line, the baker
white blouses.
carried, only t
which there w
American flags.
ers are Socialis from playing
One feature peurance in li dren dressed lnvet by a t loaf, which r

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

840514063

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Spanish Uprising / Emma Goldman. – pp. 174-176 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 4, no. 6 (Aug. 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

of civilization to produce the world; and his Patriotism will not evince itself in the stolid love of self, family, city, or State, but in the sacrifice of all for humanity!

* * *

THE SPANISH UPRISING

By EMMA GOLDMAN.

WITHIN the last two weeks organized authority has been shaken to its very foundations by the revolutionary uprising in Spain.

To think that neither the influence of religion, with its power to dull the human mind, nor the army with its lead and iron methods, no longer serves as a safeguard against revolution! Moreover, the rebels, once having thrown off the bridle, know no bounds. They actually "burn churches and outrage nuns." What beasts! What brutes!

In view of the fact that these blood-curdling stories emanate from a servile and prostitute press, ever ready to malign and misrepresent the least revolt against tyranny, one will do well to carefully weigh and measure these reports. But even if they were true, if the Spanish people really burned churches and maltreated the cuervos negros,* what of it? Has not the Catholic Church, especially in Latin countries, driven the people to despair; has it not for centuries lived off their sweat and blood; has it not used every means to lash them into submission and rob them of their energies and manhood? Were the people of Spain to retaliate a million-fold, it would sink into insignificance compared with the countless crimes and black terror of the Catholic Church.

Politicians and vote hucksters only can maintain the lie that religion is a "private affair." Revolutionists the world over have realized long ago that religion is one of the greatest obstacles to the emancipation of mankind,—hence the strongest support of tyranny and oppression.

The most striking feature of the present uprising does not consist in what has or has not been done to churches and nuns. Much rather it is to be found in the tremendous anti-military spirit and the recognition of that most effective weapon, the General Strike.

* Black crows—popular expression of scorn for the black clergy.

While it is true that the Moroccan war—a struggle for the enrichment of a handful of speculators—has fanned the spark of popular discontent into fire, it is much more true that the anti-militarist agitation, carried on in Latin countries for years, has paved the way for the present revolt.

Militarism, like the church, is one of the strongest bulwarks of our present system. This has become particularly apparent during recent years. Governments employ armies not merely to subdue weaker nations and conquer territory, but to silence the slightest cry of discontent at home. Realizing this, the revolutionary elements in every land have inaugurated a wide-spread agitation against militarism. The present Spanish uprising—the most heroic and inspiring revolutionary event of recent years—is the direct result of those efforts.

And the General Strike?

True, a leading German Socialist not long ago declared the General Strike to be general nonsense; and when asked if the workers of the world should prevent the possible coalition of European powers against the Russian Revolution by the declaration of a General Strike, he scornfully ridiculed the suggestion. How foolish the "Sage of Berlin" must feel in face of the fact that the General Strike has since proved such a tremendous weapon in the hands of labor.

Yet another cause, no doubt, aided in preparing the Spanish uprising—the memory of Montjuich, that hell of the modern Spanish Inquisition.

Twelve years ago a bomb exploded during a religious procession at Barcelona. Immediately three hundred workingmen were arrested and tortured in the most fiendish manner: hot irons, the thumbscrew, and rack were employed to extort confessions. When, finally, the majority of the victims perished, and a cry of indignation arose all over Europe, the few survivors of the torture were released. Perchance among the participants in the present revolt are friends and relatives of those victims. This, together with the unspeakable oppression, exploitation, and forced military service suffered by the Spanish people, sufficiently explains the present revolution.

I am not optimistic enough to hope that the heroic and self-sacrificing efforts of our Spanish brothers will for-

637

840514063

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Spanish Uprising / Emma Goldman. – pp. 174-176 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 4, no. 6 (Aug. 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

ever abolish torture and tyranny. But as a forerunner of a greater and more effective storm they are wonderfully encouraging and invigorating. Those who have the revolutionary spirit can learn from Spanish events the great power of anti-militarism and the General Strike.

❦ ❦ ❦

THE PRESENT CONDITION OF RUSSIA*

By PETER KROPOTKIN.

NEVER were the conditions of Russia so desperately bad as they are now. Neither during the depressing years of the reign of Alexander III., nor during the wild reaction of the last years of Alexander II., nor even during the mad despotism of Nicholas I., did the orgies of the defenders of autocracy reach the climax they have attained now. Even that little, that microscopically little, that had been obtained in Russia for some protection of the individual from the bureaucracy, is now wiped off from life as something unworthy, useless, harmful.

From the very first day of his accession to the throne, Nicholas II. permitted himself, in virtue of his own personal will, surreptitiously to alter the established Constitution of Finland. In his very first manifesto, issued on the day of his father's death, he ordered the words, "Grand Duke of Finland," to be taken out of the title of the Emperor of Russia. By a stroke of his pen he thus abolished the ninety-year old autonomy of a nation which peacefully followed its own development; he tore to pieces the treaties of annexation of Finland; he gave the lie to the oath taken by his father and grandfather.

His first act was to put himself above the binding laws of the country. And now, for fourteen years in succession, he patronizes those who trample under foot all the concessions that give however slight a guarantee to the individual's personal safety against the outrageous attacks of the rulers of Russia—the gangs of hooligans who find their immunity by entering the ranks of the present rulers of Russia.

Sure of the protection of Nicholas II., they have simply

* Part of a speech delivered June 25t I at the South Place In stitute, at a meeting of welcome to Vera Figner. Reprinted from the London Freed m undertaken the rooting out of all the best forces of the Russian nation. Such a bacchanalia of savagery and cruelty Russia has not seen since the times of the half-mad Tsar, John IV.—also surrounded by fortune-tellers—the murderer of his own son. Thus it is that in the twentieth century Russia has again to live through that shameful page of her history.

The abolition of the old-established rights of the nationalities allied with Russia in the Caucasus and Finland; the sending of hundreds of students as soldiers to Port Arthur, as a punishment for disturbances; the surrender of the schools into the hands of the illiterate priests, church cantors, and bellringers; the bribing of the army by doubling the pay of the officers in those parts of the Empire where the state of siege was introduced; the surrender of the most vital parts of the State organization to all sorts of adventurers, like Bezobrazoff and Stoessel, provided they would grovel at the feet of "our father the Tsar" and "our mothers the Empresses"; and finally, the handing over of all the life of Russia to the adventurer Von Plehve and his secret agents, because that man had promised Nicholas II. in 1903 to maintain autocracy by secret police rule for another ten years—this is what Russia got during the first ten years of his reign from Nicholas II., whom the plunderers of Russia now call their father.

And now, after the defeat of the first efforts of the Revolution, Russia has been given up to a band of thieves, murderers, and criminals against all the moral conceptions of mankind.

The prisons are overcrowded; many of them contain three and four times more inmates than they were built for. And such an overcrowding is bound to continue, because the present rulers of Russia are prosecuting now, before their packed courts, thousands of persons, for all they have done and said during the years of relative liberty, 1905 and 1906. All that was considered then as necessary and desirable for the renovation of Russia, is prosecuted now. A book issued at that time, a meeting convoked to discuss the strike which compelled Nicholas II. to make his first concessions, a speech delivered at a meeting, or even in court by a lawyer, or in the Duma by a Deputy—all this is now prosecuted.

638

840514064

The Emma Goldman Papers

Our Fight / E[mma] G[oldman]. – pp. 187-189 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. –Vol. 4, no. 6 (Aug. 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

by exhaustive application to every animal species and been found the clue to progress through heredity. Women have never chosen to breed food for gunpowder. They have submitted to do so only because they could not help themselves. Now there is in the bourgeois system a tendency which, by bringing liberty and hope to women, promises far more energetic restraint on propagation than the world has ever known,—a tendency which capitalists view with indifference; reactionaries, and Socialists, not infrequently, with alarm; judicious friends of humanity, with unmixed satisfaction. The wages paid directly to women in the factories first afforded to proletarian women, unprotected by settlements and other contrivances of the rich, a means to live which was not easily taken from them. True to the maxim that it is not misery but hope which works improvement, they, who till now had been well enough content not to own themselves, became refractory the moment the had something to lose. The entire modern movement for the property rights of married women, equality of pay with men for all working women, opening of all the trades to women, political equality of the sexes, easy divorce, began with employment of women as bread-winners, which came in as a necessity of the bourgeois situation. That complete emancipation of women, defect in food for gunpowder, cessation of war, the downfall of those appliances for plunder which war created, are all threatened by this movement, there can be no occasion for me to prove. Mr. Roosevelt will show you that—and afterwards gnash his teeth.

The Malthusian Theory is the fatal objection to every form of Socialism, even if called Anarchism, which encourages man to think that he can enslave women and escape the most righteous retribution of being a slave himself. It is the strongest possible argument for that kind of Socialism or Anarchism which proposes, through complete emancipation of women, to abolish the fundamental tyranny from whence all others spring.

OUR FIGHT

By E. G.

OF all the forces that help to enslave man, that of habit is the most pernicious. Not a superstition or prejudice can compare in its binding and fettering influence on human action with the power of habit.

Take, for instance, the police of New York or other cities. For years they have practiced the habit of stopping meetings, clubbing audiences, bullying speakers and hallkeepers. Had they met with any real opposition, interference might never have become a habit.

After all, the police are not interested in whatever a speaker may say; nor is their official zeal so very intense that they would go out of their way to annoy people. It is simply the habit of annoying or interference, that's all.

It is also the force of habit that will make the people submit, meekly, to police bullying.

The public has endured arbitrary, brutal treatment so long, until it has gotten quite used to it. The inevitable result is that the police invade the people's rights, suppress free speech, act brutally, because of the same reason that makes the public cringe and bow and submit; namely, the force of habit.

Sometimes, however, two habits may clash and then it will depend on the strength of either as to who shall remain the victor.

The habit of rebellion, for instance, has overcome the most deeply rooted habit of submission. True, there are not many with whom rebellion becomes a habit. Most people are inspired by the moment and then slink back into the old indifferent state. But there are a few whose very blood nurtures rebellion into a habit; and though they meet with a thousand obstacles, they will continue to rebel, even if their lives were at stake.

Such must have been the force that gave birth to the Free Speech Committee. If it were not for the habit of rebellion, the men and women who formed themselves into that fighting body could never have undertaken such a task.

First, there was the time-worn habit of the police to 639

840514064

The Emma Goldman Papers

Our Fight / E[mma] G[oldman]. – pp. 187-189 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. –Vol. 4, no. 6 (Aug. 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

grow violently mad at the "red sounding" term of Anarchism and Emma Goldman.

Second, there was the habit of inconsistency on the part of many radicals, who stand for free speech, with a "but" dangling at free speech.

Third, the Committee realized that the interest in principles is not so great as to induce many people to part with some of their worldly goods; yet money was needed.

But, habit came along and cried, Onward. What else was there to do but heed?

On May 23rd the police habit of interference reached its culminating point in the breaking up of a literary meeting, the forcible eviction of an audience, and the impudent police declaration that Emma Goldman will never again be allowed to speak in New York.

Two months later Emma Goldman did speak in a public meeting, and what is more, not a single uniformed officer was present.

How wonderful! Nothing so very wonderful, except the clash of habits in open battle with the habit of rebellion carrying off the victory.

No doubt, the change in the police department of New York City may have had something to do with the new methods of the police. New York is too cosmopolitan and advanced a city to stand for a military régime. Bingham, while a tin soldier, was nevertheless possessed by the military spirit. What he could not suppress with iron methods, he would make impossible with lies and meanness. The new Commissioner probably has more brains, is therefore amenable to reason. At any rate, we welcome the change. But it is not that alone that has helped to disperse the cloud of despotism that made every Anarchist public utterance in New York impossible.

The credit is due chiefly to the strenuous efforts of the Free Speech Committee.

The demand for free speech, signed by a hundred public-spirited men and women and circulated all over the country, worked like magic.

The protest meeting at Cooper Union aroused a great deal of enthusiasm, while the broad-minded attitude of the Chicago Public and the St. Louis Mirror contributed towards the enlightenment of some "good" people as to the real status of free speech. But most of all it was the unceasing energy of a few optimistic spirits who persevered in exercising "hypnotic influence" on police headquarters.

Thus it came to pass that free speech could be re-established in New York City, partially at least, and that Newark, Jersey City, and Brooklyn have also been rescued from the habit of police invasion.

All this, however, should lead no one astray. So long as free speech must go knocking at the doors of every chief or captain, it is nowhere at home and therefore never safe.

The Free Speech Committee realizes this; it is therefore determined to continue in its habit of opposition to invasion until free speech can assert itself without special privileges.

There are scores of cities in America where free speech has been thrown upon the dust-heap. The Free Speech Committee means to carry its fight into these benighted towns. Philadelphia, Providence, Worcester, Buffalo, Chicago, Indianapolis are to be treated to a dose of the rebellious habit until free speech becomes a reality.

Ours is a material world, and while the spirit is one of the greatest assets for a good fight, material aid is needed.

If the readers of MOTHER EARTH, too, have the habit of rebellion, they will feel impelled to send part of it in the form of a check to our valued Chairman, Leonard Abbott, 41 W. 25th Street, New York City.

The habit of being a target for the police is quite strong with me. I do not mind it a bit, as they are poor shots, and therefore can inflict no vital wound.

I shall therefore go right on to every place in the land and leave it only when I have established free speech as a right, and not as a privilege.

AN EXPERIENCE

By ROLAND D. SAWYER.

I WAS sitting in the Pullman diner between Buffalo and Chicago. We were going along at the clip of a mile a minute, a matter which Franklin Wentworth says is sufficient evidence that humanity can be trusted. Two well-groomed, large-bellied business men seated them-

640

840514066

The Emma Goldman Papers

Adventures in the Desert of American Liberty / Emma Goldman. — pp. 210-215 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 4, no. 7 (Sept. 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

ADVENTURES IN THE DESERT OF AMERICAN LIBERTY

EMMA GOLDMAN.

I DO not know whether reaction precedes a revolutionary awakening, or if it is the result thereof. Certain it is that at no time has reaction been so active in America as at the present moment. Never before were fundamental rights so trampled into the dust, nor was man so absolutely at the mercy of the reactionary forces of this country.

Yet it cannot be denied that there is a strong mental awakening, a great social unrest in every walk of life. Almost every time-worn institution and belief is undergoing a revision. Even the least developed are groping towards greater light.

One may therefore justly ask, How is it that the forces are becoming more arbitrary, that capitalism is daily growing more brazen and merciless, as proven by the McKees Rocks disclosures and many other events, and that the government of the country, down to the ordinary patrolman, is becoming more arrogant and tyrannical?

I can see no other reason for the seeming contradiction except in the fact that the general discontent and mental activity have so far failed to bring into being the spirit of revolt, without which the tide of reaction can never be hemmed.

Whatever of liberty has been gained in the past owed its existence to that spirit, to everlasting defiance of cumbersome and obnoxious forces. The radicals of this country, in particular, have so far failed to grasp this great historical truth. Thus it happens that an earnest worker for freedom in the large sense has this to say:

"I would indeed be glad to help the battle for free speech, but I am absolutely opposed to your defiant methods."

Evidently our friend does not realize that the lack of defiance, of constant, vigorous opposition to enchroachments on liberty has resulted in the present wave of autocratic measures. I am by no means a novice in experience as to how far autocracy can go.

I have been its target long enough to know. Yet I can say that not until this summer, and especially during the last four weeks, have I realized the arrogance, the brazenness, the total indifference to consequences, of American reactionaries. They are absolute, and they have been made so by the childish belief of the American people in paper guarantees. Were I to relate the struggle, the incessant battle for the simplest right, about which everybody prates though no two people agree as to its interpretation—the right of free speech, it would sound like a tale from darkest Russia, incredible in this free land. Suffice it to say that every inch of breathing space has been gained only after a defiant battle with the forces whose only logic is the club and gun.

In Providence, R. I., where the activity of the Free Speech Committee, represented by our friend Ben Reitman, had sufficiently prepared intelligent public opinion, the police had "kindly allowed" the meetings, but only after it made it impossible to charge admission, which latter furnishes the only means of carrying on our campaign. The stupidest moving picture show can obtain a license to charge admission. That we could not even take up a collection, shows the venom and utter unreasonableness of those who have the power to hold one up.

The humorous side of the situation, however, was this: The very people who came to protect the law from us broke every law of the fire, building, and health department. Our halls could barely hold 500 people, yet three times the number crowded in to hear our two lectures. O, for the wisdom of the police! Thanks to it we scored a tremendous moral victory for free speech.

In Boston, the city of "culture" (what a deadly weight traditions become), we found most halls closed to us—police intimidation. However, my strenuous colleague in misery would not desist. A hall was finally secured and one meeting set aside to celebrate the stupidity of the Boys in Blue. The city of Boston, whose every stone bears the footprints of the American champions of liberty, turned into a camping ground for professional man-killers who vied with

641

840514066

The Emma Goldman Papers

Adventures in the Desert of American Liberty / Emma Goldman. – pp. 210-215 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 4, no. 7 (Sept. 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

each other in stabbing liberty the quickest. Those who attended the anti-military lecture redeemed Boston; they at least were not in agreement with that cruelest of all spirits, that of militarism.

In Malden, Mass., a dismal looking town, reminding one of the puritanical sterility of papa Endicott's times, the original hall keeper showed the yellow streak. Again the search for a hall. One half-finished was found; with the aid of a few Jewish radical boys, who appropriated the "Shabbess" candles of their mothers, the darkness of Malden was somewhat relieved. The edict of the Chief was, of course, against Anarchy. But who cared?

Lynn was the piece de resistance in our Massachusetts experience. Not that we were spared the usual ordeal of hall hunting at the eleventh hour. No, not if the Executive Committee of the Lester Union could help it. Can there be a more disgusting spectacle than trade union officials cringing before their masters? All law-abiding citizens, mind you, sticklers for private property, too. But when it comes to break a contract with Anarchists and show the real lickspittle nature of the trade unionist, law goes smash.

Another hall was secured, filled with an interested and enthusiastic audience. Lynn deserves to become the American Lourdes. It has a miracle—a sensible Mayor. He was urged to interfere. "Why should I?" said the Mayor. "If the people want to hear Miss Goldman and she wants to talk, she is entitled to go ahead."

Worcester, Mass., once the home of a few young dreamers, myself included, turned into a battle field the moment we arrived. "Emma Goldman will not speak in Worcester under any condition," said the Chief of Police, and the Mayor echoed, "Why, no!" Contrast these two American Cossacks with the simple statement of the Lynn Mayor.

We expected difficulties in Worcester, since Comrade Berkman had been stopped from lecturing in that city last March; therefore we were ready for the enemy.

Worcester is bound to be saved. It shelters two truly staunch lovers of liberty in Comrades Eliot

White and Mabel White. I only wish some of our would-be radicals could have seen how boldly these came to the front. It might help to inspire them. Friend White is known to MOTHER EARTH readers for his brave stand when Comrade Berkman was stopped. This time Eliot White did more. He came from Sagamore Beach as soon as the alarm was sounded and placed himself at our disposal. Mabel White, detained by her youngest baby, showed her worth in the following communication:

To the EDITOR OF THE TELEGRAM:

The constitution of the United States guarantees to all the people the right of free speech. Miss Emma Goldman's opinions on many subjects are not in accord with mine, but in the courageous fight which she is making to maintain the right of freedom of speech, I deem that it behooves all of us who value our liberties as Americans, to hold up her hands.

Mayor Haussling, of Newark, wrote July 20th concerning a proposed lecture in Newark by Miss Goldman: "I have no official knowledge of anything tending to show that there will be an attempt to suppress the exercise of free speech by the speaker or by anybody else in connection with the meeting, but I can assure you that if there were any such intention on the part of any of the police authorities, it will not be carried out.

"I will not permit any interference with the rights of free speech or public assemblage while I am Mayor of this city."

If the constitutional right to speak in public should be denied Miss Goldman in Worcester, it will be a pleasure to me to open my house for her to make an address, and can only regret that I shall not be able to be there and welcome her in person.

MABEL A. WHITE.

Seabrink Cottage, Sagamore Beach, September 7.

No one can accuse me of any particular weakness for ministers. I have always found them wanting. Fortunately, Eliot White's ministry is only acquired, while his integrity is innate, therefore so much a part of him.

With the aid of the Whites and the newly organized branch of the Free Speech Committee, Anarchism was heard—not, indeed, under the stars and stripes, but under a more befitting canopy: the limitless sky, myriads of glittering stars for our electric lights, and green, fragrant trees to shield us.

I am not optimistic enough to believe that our victory will enlarge the horizon of the Worcester Chief or Mayor, but I do think that our determined effort

642

840514066

The Emma Goldman Papers

Adventures in the Desert of American Liberty / Emma Goldman. – pp. 210-215 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. –Vol. 4, no. 7 (Sept. 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

will teach them that even arbitrary methods have their limitations.

Vermont has quite cured me of my faith in the elevating influence of nature on man. In scenic beauty, variety of color, and natural resources Vermont probably surpasses California. Yet its people are terribly behind the times in their development. I venture to suggest that many Vermonters have more than Three Acres, but their conception of liberty is far below that of some tenement house dweller. The mental caliber of the average Vermonter is fittingly portrayed in the following letter:

To the EDITOR OF THE FREE PRESS:

It is announced that Emma Goldman is to speak in the Burlington City Hall.

Free speech is guaranteed to citizens of the United States by federal and State constitutions, but no less a man than Abraham Lincoln said that there might occasions arise that would justify straining the constitution a little. There is such an occasion when a professional disturber of the public peace takes advantage of free institutions to practice her business.

Vermont has no use for Anarchy, Socialism, or Free Love, and we do not wish to hear any talk about them. We must be content to go on to social success or failure under established institutions in their orderly progress. Treasonable utterances should be energetically discouraged if they cannot be altogether prevented. In any event, the use of public buildings for their promulgation should not be permitted.

An alert and resourceful executive could find a way to dissuade this pestiferous alien hybrid from poisoning the air of Burlington with her noxious emanations. If gentle means, moral suasion, and a reasonable show of authority should not avail, public opinion would probably justify discouraging her with a club. But under no circumstances whatever should Emma Goldman be permitted to speak in the City Hall.

Yours truly, HORACE CHITTENDEN.

After all, even Nature's beauty fails where there is nothing———

Barre, Vt., has a large group of Italian Anarchists. While they are not as active as one might desire, still they give some character to the town.

Montpelier, too, has the nightcap on. The first and greatest excitement it witnessed in years was our coming there. Especially after we met our usual fate of hall refusal and were rescued by some spirited Italian Socialists to their hall, all Montpelier was on the street, trembling with fear.

Burlington verified the old proverb, "The pettiest tyrant is the slave placed in power." The Mayor of this town is by trade a blacksmith; he prides himself on that. He does not know, of course, that a trade never degrades a man, but that man can degrade his trade. The Mayor of Burlington is certainly no credit to his. At any rate, for arrogance, dense ignorance, and petty despotism he can hardly be matched. His letter to the Burlington press anent his arbitrary violation of our rights sufficiently characterizes the man:

LETTER TO THE PUBLIC.

Announcement having been made that Miss Emma Goldman, the apostle of Anarchy, would speak in City Hall Friday night, I wish to say that she will not be allowed to preach any of her un-American doctrines in any building owned by the City of Burlington; and I would also request that the proprietors of all other halls refuse to let her have them for the above-named purpose, as I believe it is about time that the American people should insist that Miss Goldman, while representing Anarchist teachings, should not be allowed to address public audiences.

Burlington, Sept. 2. JAMES E. BURKE, Mayor.

The "intelligent" Mayor went further. After another hall was secured he came down with two lackeys and delivered himself of a speech, compared with which the oratory of poor Mark Antony sinks into insignificance. "In the name of peace, of society, etc., etc., you can not speak here to-night. I will assume all responsibility." What is one to do in the face of such brazenness, especially when money is lacking and friends not on hand? We simply had to leave the battle field to the "victor," for the present anyway. Our first complete failure was not easy to bear. But as every cloud has its silver lining, we contented ourselves with the only redeeming moment in Burlington, the editorial in the News, containing a most splendid defence of unlimited free speech. We regret that for lack of space we cannot reproduce here the article.

Thus runs the tale of two weary wanderers in quest of the thing that everybody worships and which, like all idols, is non-existent—free speech. I am not sanguine enough to hope that we will ever establish it, under government. Still, if we were less handicapped by lack of means, we could teach the authorities that we are determined to resist every arbitrary encroachment on our rights.

643

89061 1034

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Interview] Emma Goldman Says She Will Fight to Finish, War with Chief Matthews and His Men / Emma Goldman. — pp. 1,5 ; 43 cm. In The Telegram and Gazaette [Worcester, Ma.]. —(Sept. 6, 1909).

Obtained from the Worcester Public Library, Worcester, MA.

EMMA GOLDMAN SAYS SHE WILL FIGHT TO FINISH, WAR WITH CHIEF MATTHEWS AND HIS MEN

Emma Goldman, anarchist leader, a little woman who manages to keep the police surrounded by pins and needles despite her apparent lack of belligerent weapons, passed her first Sunday in Worcester in 25 years, yesterday. She had the Worcester police on the upstairs seat all day, but she attempted no demonstration whatsoever.

About her most important stunt yesterday was to get all the members of every radical society in Worcester into line, for a strenuous fight, the issue of which will be to see whether Chief of police David A. Matthews or Miss Goldman has the backing of the law, in the woman's avowed intention of addressing an audience in the heart of the commonwealth.

Miss Goldman in her work of getting in touch with Worcester radicals has for her future tour manager, Dr. Ben L. Reitman of New York.

Early yesterday forenoon, Dr. Reitman secured the services of Moses J. Segal, 29 Wilson street, secretary and organizer of the Worcester anarchists society, and who figured prominently during the visit of Alexander Berkman to Worcester, in March of last year.

Together, the two men scoured the city yesterday and last night. They got promises of support from radicals all over Worcester, many of whom called personally to pay their respects to Miss Goldman at the Bay State house, where she is stopping.

After a little conference, last night, between Dr. Reitman and leaders of the radical movements in Worcester, it was decided to have a meeting at socialist headquarters, 376 Main street, this morning at 10 o'clock. Here plans will be talked over of how best to proceed in the struggle with the police to secure Miss Goldman a platform in Worcester, from which to speak, as she wills to speak. It is likely that money will be raised for the purpose, as the radicals put it, of fighting the fight of free speech in Worcester, of hiring the services of some prominent New York attorney, and probably of bringing injunction proceedings to restrain Chief Matthews and the police force from interfering with proposals of Dr. Reitman to rent a hall for lecture purposes.

Miss Goldman's manager announced, last night, that not only will Worcester radicals [illegible] their time and money, but the free speech committee, composed of [illegible]

[illegible] police who usurp powers denied to congress and to the legislatures, will aid in the fight in Worcester, with money, and members of the committee will attend to the actual bombarding of the police stronghold in person.

Among others there will be Rev. Eliot White, with whom Miss Goldman said she and Dr. Reitman have been in close touch for some time. Rev. Mr. White was reported yesterday at Sagamore

Continued on Page Five.

Will Have L... am...

Charles J. Glidden still want... Worcester a center for balloo... sions, with one ascension or ... to establish a park for aeropl... gibles and other machines for ... air.

What stands in the way is t... to get gas of proper quality in ... ary quantity and on such t... is secured in Nashua, N. H., Boston, Rutland, Vt., and o... where balloons are sent up.

It is Mr. Glidden's desire ... large balloon to be called the ... to secure a large enough ... land for a park from which t... ascensions, and to give Wor... a chance to see their ... going along in the flying line. Worcester merchants, prof... and street railway people ... importance of this and bring ... bear so that gas can be secur... terms as will make ascensions ...

He considers Worcester bette... an aerial center than any of ... that have been selected.

Mr. Glidden came to Worceste... ter and interested prominent ... newly organized aero... but the gas question prevented ... velopments of the project.

The aeronauts of Boston wo... come to Worcester to make t... sions, as Worcester can be re... than any of the cities and ... Worcester are usually favorab...

Mr. Glidden, one of the most ...

JAMES DU... LABOR ...

For the first time in the his... ganized labor in Worcester it ... door meeting and concert in ... with the Labor day festival, ... today.

This was the happy thought ... dent Alex Moir, Anthony F... and James J. Reagon of th... tee of arrangements which ... early before the remainder of ... mittee.

When James Duncan, Quincy ... vice president of the ... F... clearing house for nearly all of ... unions of the United States, a... Poli's theater last night to add... present, that edifice was ... filled. The indoor lecture ... was in the nature of an experi... Moir said.

...TON TO GROUNDS ...S ROMANCE

...r of companions visited ... in El Paso. He saw ... the stage, and shortly ...ntance. He returned to ...en with the young girl's ...reafter the life of the ...weetness in it for him. ...o El Paso the next day, ...t again, and made her ... to him

...tence was kept up until ...n be decided he must be ...nd love, so he came East, ...aveling with her.

DR. BEN REITMAN, ANARCHIST, TALKS ON THE COMMON AND SOCIALISM IS TREATED BY REV. N. W. DEVENEAU

In spite of Chief of police D. A. Matthews and all the Worcester blue coats, anarchy had its innings at the rear of city hall, yesterday, where Dr. Ben Reitman, who is in Worcester with Emma Goldman, appeared twice, drawing a crowd quietly the first time, and seeking to speak from the steps openly afterward.

Not a policeman was in sight, and some of the things said of Chief Matthews

Thomas P. Abbott after some announcements mentioned the subject of free speech. He quoted the United States and Massachusetts state constitutions as giving the right of free speech, and said that while the socialists were far from the anarchists in their beliefs and desires, yet they also desired the preservation of free speech.

"The anarchists believe in the individual and so do the capitalists," he said. "We do not. The anarchists and capitalists are in the same class, and we do not believe in either.

"In this matter of

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

890611034

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Interview] Emma Goldman Says She Will Fight to Finish, War with Chief Matthews and His Men / Emma Goldman. – pp. 1,5 ; 43 cm. In The Telegram and Gazaette [Worcester, Ma.]. –(Sept. 6, 1909).

Obtained from the Worcester Public Library, Worcester, MA.

The union men who responded to their country's call did their work so well that after the war there were no guardsmen left for the meetings of the unions. I merely say this to show that the union men can be relied upon to do their duty.

"We have been attacked by the corporations and others for levoring sympathetic strikes. Did it occur to you when the United States interfered in behalf of Cuba that that was a sympathetic strike?

"It was a case of the little nation striking against the larger one, and then the United States interfering, being larger them the two of them together. It is a question if the Maine, which was blown up in Havana harbor, was sent over there for this purpose.

"Here I want to tell you how President Roosevelt looks upon unionism. He was one of our greatest presidents. I called upon ex-President Roosevelt, some time ago, and showed him a clipping I had in my possession, clipped from a paper published in Chicago, showing that at a convention of the citizens 'alliance, composed of manufacturers not favorable to organized labor, the toastmaster stood up and said, when he called the toast, 'Our flag,' that the year had not been a good one, because the federal government still permitted labor organizations. Before I could get any further with the clipping, Mr. Roosevelt said: 'I know all about it. I saw it. I gave some of those fellows who were there Jesse James. I was down in Cuba, as you probably know. I did some hustling there, as you also know, and so did the other soldiers.

"'When night would come, before going into our hivouac, we would look along in the trenches, and where we had been, to see if there was not someone who was injured and who was dying, or someone who was dead and whose body needed burial.

"'If a man were still alive, we would ask him if he had some message to send home to some loved one. If they had, we would tell them that we would take it for them. If the man were dead, we would go into his pockets and find out his right name, for there were many who enlisted under an assumed name, but before they went into battle, they often put a letter in their pockets for someone dear to them. I was surprised, in making these examinations, to find so many union cards in the soldiers' pockets.'

"Taking up this matter of war again, I do not want to be understood as meaning that there should be no war where dishonor of the country is at stake."

The speaker alluded to the enforcement of the anti-Sherman act, which was made to bear upon the cases of the executive council of the A. F. of A., who are still under sentences.

"I believe in being a good citizen," he continued. "I try to be a good citizen. If I make a mistake, it is because I don't know any better. I believe that working people, like everybody else, should respect the laws. If there are any laws that are distasteful to them they have the remedy at hand. If they do not use tha ballot, it is nobody else's fault but their own.

"The hobby of the Kirby class of manufacturers is to charge unions with the limitation of output. It is said that fools rush in where angels fear to tread, and that one of our greatest morals is to pull the beam out of your own eye so that you may clearly see the mote in our neighbor's eye.

"If Kirby, et al., would pull out the proverbial beam, this unwarranted charge against organized labor would be withdrawn. The trade agreement, which, until commercial conditions change, may be called the magna charta of labor, generally provides for a minimum wage rate.

"This places compensation for work performed in a position whereby the ordinary workman is paid the minimum wage rate, and the extra skilled or expert workman is paid higher according to his earning capacity. If the worker is employed by piece work he earns whet he can by the scale.

"In no sense, can the trade union or the trade agreement be charged with the limitation of output and the phrase is only a juggling of words to prejudice the public mind against paying men

according to their earning power.

"But it is a fact that the employers often make the minimum wage rate of the trade agreement the maximum wage rate on their pay roll and because the trade agreement does not arbitrarily designate the value of the earning power of the extra skilled and the expert such an employer endeavors to pay the better skilled workman the minimum wage rate, and then complains about paying the less skilled workman the minimum rate. It is a daring and unjust system, but the injustice is not chargeable to the unions.

"The jolt which free speech has received from the federal judiciary since last Labor day, indicates more than anything that has happened in a century that eternal vigilence is the price of liberty. The remedy will be found in discussion and publicity. When decisions of the kind were not made as public as now, the unholy system could help to perpetuate itself, but in these times of free thought, free press, and almost free speech, such unwarranted decisions will not long survive.

"The federal judge in question in an interview, stated that organized labor needed a lesson. To such a mind, evidence and argument

are wasted energy. He concludes that certain men need a lesson and the only other essential to him was opportunity, and it came his way, and it appears safe to conclude that whatever the evidence he learned the lesson.

"Has he done so? Is he more celebrated as a judge now, than before his decision curtailing free speech, or is he looked upon as a man without judicial mind and governed by passion, instead of by deliberation? Long after Justice Wright has ceased to give such decisions, freedom of speech will be recognized, and will prevail, and trade unionism will advance.

this is not enough, the claim is made that it has been taken out of his employer's pay. A laborer cannot afford to patronize one of these houses unless he has it with lodgers.'

"Great American! Was it for this the Paine-Aldrich tariff bill was passed?

"And so, after a long educational campaign, it appears that we are seeing the beginning of revenge, and a system of Place President Taft shook himself rid of tariff cobwebs in Washington, and has been enjoying the soothing sea breezes of New England, salutary thoughts have arisen in his mind, and among them is his endorsement of postal savings banks.

"Long before either of the great political parties was willing to give this subject a moment's serious thought, organized workmen had declared in favor of the system, and it is gratifying to know that the president has announced that at the earliest opportunity he will urge the passage of this law. It will be found to contain all the virtues he has claimed for it and many others."

EMMA GOLDMAN

Continued From Page One.

beach, and Miss Goldman says he has promised to come to Worcester to assist her to establish her cause.

Rev. Mr. White is a member of the free speech committee, the only one from Worcester on the list. The socialist minister came into the limelight during Berkman's visit, when he was arrested on Mechanic street, charged with creating a disturbance, when 10,000 persons were on the streets, seeking a chance to see Berkman.

According to the radicals who favor free speech and who say that Chief Matthews is overdoing the job in preventing Miss Goldman from speaking, the meeting this morning will be an important step in the biggest fight Worcester has seen in some time.

Miss Goldman declared last night that she will remain in Worcester, not so much from a desire to speak as from a desire to fight to the bitter finish a war with the police.

She wants to measure her strength alongside that of Chief Matthews and his finest, and she says she believes she has right and justice on her side.

The chief refused point blank Saturday to permit her the use of a hall in Worcester. Then Miss Goldman and her manager decided to remain in Worcester, until Mayor James Logan returns. They said, yesterday, they will see the mayor, and will put it up to him. In case this fails, their recourse will be to the courts.

The plan now is to retain Maurice Hilquith, a New York attorney to come to Worcester and fight the case, possibly as counsel in chief. It is said that a few persons who will become interested in the struggle in Worcester are: J. G. Phelps Stokes, his wife, Rose Pastor Stokes, Charles Edward Russell, Rev. Eliot White, Eugene V. Debs, Marius de Zayas, Carl de Fornaro, Ferdinand Pinney Earle, Rev. Roland D. Sawyer of Ward hill, Clarence S. Darrow, of counsel for Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone, William English Walling and his wife, Anna Strunsky Walling, and C. Erskine S. Wood, ex-state senator of Portland, Oregon.

Miss Goldman emphasizes her intention of not conducting any surreptitious meetings or lectures. She says she wants to fight in the open, and the issue she will make prominent is that of the right of free speech, she says.

The last time

the anarchist leader and friend of Berkman's, spoke in Worcester, was Dec. 12, 1907, when she addressed a large crowd in Arcanum hall, 566 Main street, in Yiddish, on woman's part in the anarchistic system. The police were not wise to her coming then, so she was not molested, and the first inkling the police had of her visit was the account in The Telegram of her speech the next morning.

At the Bay State house last night, Miss Goldman appeared highly optimistic as to the future of her clash with the police. She characterised Chief Matthews as arbitrary and set in his ways, as not listening to reason, while Dr. Reitman referred to the head of the force, as "Czar Matthews."

Miss Goldman was indignant that the chief had refused to permit her the use of a hall. But she did not dwell on this one topic, she showed her versatile mind by devoting time to anarchism, to Worcester as her old home and changes in the city, and to numerous other themes, including a roast of the Salvation army which was conducting divine service next door.

"Why those people there must think their God is deaf, they make so much noise," she laughed. "Listen at that racket. It is enough to rouse a stone-deaf man. And that has been going on all day. It is nerve-racking

It isn't music, but noise.

And that noise is excruciating.

"Oh, say, I've been a real good Christian today. I read the newspapers, that's what all Christians do on Sundays. I read some of the current magazines, and wrote a number of letters. And oh say, I didn't even have an evil thought about the chief of police here. I am a good Christian today.

"I walked through the streets of Worcester today and I had to marvel at the wonderful growth of the city. Everything has changed. When I was here 18 years ago Worcester was little more than a village compared to the progressive city it looks today. I wish I could say as much about the intelligence of the police force. The police seem to be entrenched in the same old rut.

"They told me the city is nolicense. Why, Worcester was always nolicense. When I was here first it was nolicense. It is nolicense on this trip. I seem to be a hoodoo for liquor, as I manage to come here when it is dry.

"On Main street I inquired for the old place near Pearl street where Mr. Berk-

ON FREE

[illegible] with [illegible]

To the editor of The [illegible]

Kindly permit me [illegible] of your paper to [illegible] sense of [illegible] the [illegible] free speech.

Of late years it has [illegible] on the part of the police [illegible] to set [illegible] above [illegible] of the United States [illegible] state, in interfering free [illegible] their own [illegible]

In your city, [illegible] was suppressed and a [illegible] by [illegible] up. This [illegible] American precedent has been [illegible] another, namely, the [illegible] keepers and the [illegible] chief, that he will not allow a speaker to address a meeting [illegible].

Lest the police forget I [illegible] that "the constitution of [illegible] States shall make no law [illegible] dom of speech or the press, [illegible] of assembly."

The constitution of Massachusetts [illegible] well as any other state [illegible] seems right. How comes it [illegible] police of the city of Worcester [illegible] up above the constitution?

It is asserted that free speech [illegible] right, but not for anarchists, [illegible] not for Miss Emma Goldman, [illegible] come to lecture here.

If thet be true what guarantee [illegible] that free speech may not also be [illegible] to other schools of thought, [illegible] conflict with the views of the [illegible]

The free speech committee [illegible] the provision that congress shall [illegible] law abridging freedom of [illegible] very wise one indeed since [illegible] limit to abridging speech the [illegible] begin in that dangerous and [illegible] measure.

It is said that Miss Emma Goldman [illegible] breaks the peace with her addresses, [illegible] has just completed a tour through a [illegible] part of Massachusetts, yet that part [illegible] still intact. Boston, Lynn, Brockton, Malden, etc., have heard Miss Goldman. Is it possible that Worcester is less American, less true to the traditions of the state, that it will gag a human voice, even before it was heard?

Miss Goldman has never spoken here, save once, in German, with not an officer present. How, then, do the police know whether or not she ought to be suppressed?

True, she was suppressed in a few [illegible] but so are people suppressed in [illegible] Must we therefore revert to such [illegible] potic means? Besides, thanks to the efforts of my society and the [illegible] of some men in those towns Miss Emma Goldman has since lectured [illegible] many occasions without [illegible]

The national free speech [illegible] composed of men and women [illegible] of life, is not so much [illegible] archism or Miss Goldman, [illegible] terested in free speech, the [illegible] cherished American right. [illegible] terested in that right, [illegible] that the greatest safety for [illegible] freedom of speech, press and [illegible] Where that right has been [illegible] despotism replaced freedom, and [illegible] acts replaced the free word.

With this in view, my society will [illegible] nothing undone to save free speech from [illegible] arbitrary interference. The liberty loving citizens of Worcester willing to aid [illegible] our fight can see me at the Bay State [illegible] or address me there.

Dr. Ben L. Rietman,
Representative national free speech committee.
Worcester, Sept. 5.

FROM THE BENCH

A Judge Commends Pure Food

A judge of a Colorado Court said: "Nearly one year ago I began the use of Grape-Nuts as a food. Constant confinement indoors and the monotonous grind of office duties had so weakened and impaired my mental powers that I felt the imperative need of something which neither doctors nor food specialists seemed able to supply.

"A week's use of Grape-Nuts twice each day convinced me that some unusual and marvelous virtue was contained therein. My mental vigor returned with astonishing rapidity; brain weariness (from which I had constantly suffered) quickly disappeared clearness of thought and intellectual health and activity which I had never previously known were to me the plain results of a few months' use of this food.

"Unhesitatingly I commend Grape-Nuts as the most remarkable food preparation which science has ever produced so far as my knowledge and experience extends."

There's a reason for Grape-Nuts food is a certain and remarkable brain builder and can be relied upon. "There's a reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

645

890611034

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Interview] Emma Goldman Says She Will Fight to Finish, War with Chief Matthews and His Men / Emma Goldman. – pp. 1,5 ; 43 cm. In The Telegram and Gazaette [Worcester, Ma.]. – (Sept. 6, 1909).

Obtained from the Worcester Public Library, Worcester, MA.

viewing such decisions as among the snags used in the effort to retard its progress.

In conclusion, the first effect on the public of the Paine-Aldrich tariff bill, containing protection to the steel industry to preserve the wages of American workman, as the steel magnatee put it, is the contention at the works of the Pressed Steel Car Co., at McKees Rocks, Pa.

Thus, it does not appear that the purpose of the bill was protection to American workmen in any sense of the term. This company did not hire meny American workmen. They would not work for such low wages and under such undesirable conditions, and if the purpose of the act was intended to protect the poor foreigners employed by the company, they certainly know nothing of it. Paul Kellog recently published in The Survey some McKees Rocks statistics. For instance —

John Malinak, riveter; pay, July 10, four days, $3.50. He stated five other men working with him on same job received same pay for same period. Danko Lacik, riveter, paid July 10, 10 days, two nights, $6.50. The company owns 200 double houses in Schoenville. These rent for $12 a month for four rooms, well ventilated but without water in the houses. The rent may be taken out of the pay envelope of the boarding boss, and when this is not enough, the claim is made that it has been taken out of his lodger's pay. A laborer cannot afford to rent one of these houses unless he fills it with lodgers.

"Dear America! Was it for this the Payne Aldrich tariff bill was passed?"

And so, after a long educational campaign, it appears that we are soon to have a postal savings bank system. Since President Taft shook himself rid of tariff cobwebs in Washington, and has been enjoying the soothing sea breezes of New England, salutary thoughts have arisen in his mind, and among them is his endorsement of postal savings banks.

Going before either of the great political parties was willing to give this subject a moment's serious thought, organized workmen had declared in favor of the system, and it is gratifying to know that the president has announced that at the earliest opportunity he will urge the passage of this law. It will be found to contain all the virtues he has claimed for it and many others.

EMMA GOLDMAN

Continued From Page One.

man used to have his little art
This I was told had disappeared, big Slater building stands in its
"When I came to Worcester, to ask for no privileges. I did to annoy anybody or to make miserable. But if the police stand way, there is nothing left me but to them. Worcester is the only Massachusetts which has tried to stop me from speaking. People have about anarchists; they seem to go around with bombs in our pockets. I have passed through cities, but when I go through them a ond time, I find them still ever. I never caught myself bomb yet.

"This very interference of the helps the cause. Why, it gives us tisement we could never get in any way. The police seem to be our When someone the other day mayor of Lynn if he wanted me the use of a hall, he replied that as as there were people in Lynn who to hear Miss Goldman speak, and as as Miss Goldmen had something to about, why, he did not see he reason to interfere unless she law. That was the correct attitude official to take."

With Dr. Reitman and Secretary
Miss Goldman walked up and down and Front streets, last night, as union station and back to the hotel, attracted little attention, few people ognizing the anarchist leader in the looking woman in brown and white.

Dr. Reitman requested the reporter night, to ask some landlord to prevail manager the use of his hall for Goldman. The doctor said that Leonard D. Abbott, chairman of the speech committee, may come to Worcester to assist in the fight on the police.

ON FREE SPEECH.

Dr. Reitman Asks Why Police Interfere With Meetings.

To the editor of The Telegram:—

Kindly permit me through the columns of your paper to acquaint the good citizens of Worcester with the purpose of the national free speech committee.

Of late years, it has become a habit on the part of the police in various cities to set themselves above the constitution of the United States and every other state, in interpreting free speech to suit their own conception.

In your city, some time ago, free speech was suppressed and a peaceable assembly broken up. This illegal and un-American precedent has been followed by another, namely, the intimidation of hall keepers and the declaration of your chief that he will not allow a certain speaker to address a meeting in Worcester.

Lest the police forget I inform them that the constitution of the United States shall make no law abridging freedom of speech or the press, or the right of assembly.

The constitution of Massachusetts as well as any other state guarantees the same right. How comes it then, that the police of the city of Worcester sets itself above the constitution.

It is asserted that free speech is all right, but not for anarchists, especially not for Miss Emma Goldman, who has come to lecture here.

Pray tell me what guarantee is there that free speech may not also be denied to the exponents of thought, should they not agree with the views of the police?

The free speech committee feels that while it is that congress shall make no law abridging freedom of speech, is a mockery indeed since there is no free speech the moment we allow ourselves to become cowardly and desperate [illegible] Miss Emma Goldman, [illegible] with her addresses. She [illegible] through a large [illegible] that part is [illegible] Brockton. Miss Goldman. Is [illegible] less American [illegible] traditions of its [illegible] human voice, [illegible] never spoken here. [illegible] not an official [illegible] do the police [illegible] ought to be suppressed in a few cities, [illegible] suppressed in Russia, [illegible] revert to such despicable thanks to the efforts [illegible] and the liberty spirit [illegible] towns Miss Emma [illegible] lectured there on [illegible] without molestation.

[illegible] free speech committee, [illegible] men and women in all walks [illegible] so much interested in assuring Miss Goldman as it is in [illegible] free speech, the most dearly [illegible] American right. And it is because [illegible] that right, because it feels that the greatest safety for liberty is [illegible] of speech, press and assembly, [illegible] that right has been abridged, despotism replaced freedom, and violent [illegible] replaced the free word.

With this in view, my society will leave nothing undone to save free speech from arbitrary interference. The liberty-loving citizens of Worcester willing to aid in [illegible] fight can see me at the Bay State [illegible] there.

Dr. Ben L. Rietman,
Representative national free speech committee.

FROM THE BENCH

A Judge Commends Pure Food

[illegible] court said: [illegible] than the use [illegible] instant [illegible] monotonous had so [illegible] mental [illegible] need [illegible] doctors [illegible] able to

Nuts twice

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

646

890611040

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Nineteen Cops Hear Lecture on Anarchy / Emma Goldman. – pp. 1, 9 ; 43 cm. In The Telegram and Gazette [Worcester, Ma.]. –(Sept. 9, 1909).

Obtained from the Worcester Public Library, Worcester, MA.

...ing the town its annual ... a few years, hop at last ... Chance of Worcester ... Mickey" received in its ...

...was brought home ... and at once proved ... sufficient to run the ... cost to buy the ... ticket-town furniture. ... from being like for ...

... The Wage portion of ... completed this fall by ... George C. Wes... ... stone will be ...

... of Worcester paid ... ... is considered a ... ... Hubert M. ... ... was engaged ... ...

890611040

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Nineteen Cops Hear Lecture on Anarchy / Emma Goldman. – pp. 1, 9 ; 43 cm. In The Telegram and Gazette [Worcester, Ma.]. –(Sept. 9, 1909).

Obtained from the Worcester Public Library, Worcester, MA.

NINETEEN COPS HEAR LECTURE

Continued From Page One.

in the ear of the chief, and created great excitement around station 1. It looked the blue streak clear through, as if a band of bomb throwers had struck town. When the chief learned that the crowd had left Bartlett street, he telephoned to as many patrolmen as he could reach, telling them to hasten immediately to the home of Rev. Eliot White.

The detachment on the lawn was mixed a bit. There were three detectives from the inspectors' department, Lieut. George H. Hill and four gumshoe men from the liquor squad and Sergt. E. C. Fitzpatrick and 10 patrolmen in uniform from among the finest.

The crowd was assembled compactly in the yard, being gathered about the box which Miss Goldman had mounted. The helmets of the cops gleamed here and there in the dim light, but no damage was done by the crowd, save to the grass, so there was nothing for the cops to do.

Not only did Miss Goldman speak, but Dr. Reitman, her manager, spoke twice, as if to rub it into the opponents of Miss Goldman. Rev. Mr. White was introduced at the end, and he spoke, commending the crowd and the speakers, and started a subscription to help Miss Goldman and the free speech movement, by contributing $5.

The fact that more than 1½ hours had been consumed by speakers in public in Worcester, was looked upon as a great triumph for the denouncers of Chief Matthews in his fight with Miss Goldman. And then, to add to the importance of their victory,

There was a conference between Dr. Reitman, Miss Goldman and half a dozen Worcester anarchists, immediately at the close of the open-air session at 10 o'clock.

People began pouring onto Front street as early as 6 o'clock last night, to get into position for the fun expected to come later when Miss Goldman or her manager might clash with the police. But the hall remained locked. Mores J. Segal, secretary of the Worcester anarchists, tried the door, and it didn't budge. In their surprise, the anarchists did not know what to make of the incident. They then sought Napoleon Huot, keeper of the hall, who is said to have declared he could not open the hall, or his license would be revoked. This was taken to mean that the chief of police had forbidden the opening of the hall to Miss Goldman.

While Miss Goldman and Rev. Mr. White moved down Front street, in order to reach the minister's home, Dr. Reitman and the other anarchists remained near Front and Bartlett streets until nearly 8 o'clock. The crowd hung around, and finally moved off, after the manager, when he came up Front street.

The procession, almost a triumphal one, for Dr. Reitman, who was in the lead, moved past Harrington corner up Main to Lincoln square, thence up Lincoln street to Catherine, and thence to the home of

Rev. Mr. White.

Along the line of march, people had been continually dropping off, while now and then new ones joined on behind and lengthened the ranks.

The lawn was reached about 8.20 o'clock. The crowd was too large to think of admitting it to the house, so the people were told to crowd onto the lawn on the east side of the house. This they did, when the police got busy and shoved them off into the street, telling them to move off or away.

"This is what you call freedom in America," came from the anarchist leader.

Then Rev. Mr. White protested to Lieut. Hill, saying the lawn belonged to him, and he wanted to invite the crowd to come in. The invitation was given, and again the small army, composed mostly of young people, overran the grass and flowers.

Miss Goldman made a request that everybody remain quiet, and when a fresh youngster said he wanted to get over where trouble would be soon starting, she immediately hushed him up with a stinging rebuke. Noticing that people were treading on the flowers, she said:—

"Be careful of the plants; they want to live just as well as you do."

Amid silence, Dr. Reitman mounted the temporary platform. He apologized that the meeting was not in Beaver hall, and he recounted the earlier incidents of the night. He said he had made no misrepresentation to Huot, the keeper, having told him the hall would be used by Emma Goldman, the anarchist.

"I paid the money and got the hall," said the doctor. "Huot told me today I could not have the hall. He said if we had the hall, his license would be taken away. I believe he was intimidated by the police.

"This is the 20th century, friends, when we are in the midst of great discoveries, in the age of flying machines, when the north pole has been discovered. The police have tyrannically refused to allow [illegible] have looked up Dr. [illegible] on conviction of [illegible] We have worked up our case all day and would not accept [illegible] tonight unless we had sufficient evidence to justify our action.

Dr. Fitch was previously arrested in connection with the intoxication [illegible] Miss Edith Dooley, prosecutor for the state senate, who died under [illegible] circumstances in Detroit, in April, 1907.

Two criminal prosecutions were started after the Presley tragedy and when the case against a member of the lower house of the legislature was [illegible] out of court for lack of sufficient evidence, the case against Dr. Fitch which developed upon the detaining of a [illegible] legislator, was nolle prossed.

[illegible] Goldman [illegible]

[illegible] Thomas Fenn wrote [illegible] He was not admitted. [illegible] asked was the case [illegible] age of reason, if war [illegible] Gerber, came out in support of that the people got hold of them. Then the city was made.

"So it is with us today. The [illegible] the ideas of this century do not [illegible] I should spread among you the [illegible] of anarchy, for they realize it would [illegible] be healthy day there if the workingmen [illegible] realized the truth of anarchistic [illegible] ideas. I guess Chief Matthews [illegible] I was going to speak to the working classes, not on the border or dynamite, I may carry, but on the message of anarchy I bring.

"The statement has been made, that I cannot speak on anarchy. Let me say that the police can keep me out of a hall, but the policeman who can stop me from speaking my mind has yet to be born."

At this point Miss Goldman paid a high tribute to Rev. Mr. White, as a brave champion of free speech, and the compliment was greeted with applause.

Miss Goldman then said it was not her intention to roast the police; that they acted according to their impulses and not according to reason or logic. She said she came to Worcester to speak on "Anarchism" and what it stands for. She then asked the question "What is anarchism?" and answered, it as follows:

"The police say that anarchism stands for bomb throwing; for throwing of dynamite.

"The people, some of them, believe the same thing, for they never heard any differently. The truth is that anarchism stands for destruction, not of the individual, but of the institutions of society that oppose human progress. We must develop the individual and also the collectivity to attain the ideal of anarchism.

"Every individual is urged ahead by the social instinct. Without that individual development would be impossible. Institutions in society today separate a man from his fellows, institutions make it possible for one man to slay 1000 human souls in order to gain his ends. Institutions antagonize the individual and the social instinct; anarchism tends to harmonize the individual and the social instinct.

"Of the institutions there is one, capitalism, or the dominion of things, the power of the few to own the earth and to exclude the majority of men from the enjoyment of their rightful share of the fruits of the earth. Capitalism makes slaves, grinds man down until he becomes a mere machine. There capitalism robs a man of the most fundamental and important constituent of human existence.

"Capitalism must be done away with sooner or later. Capitalism must be destroyed, whether the capitalists like it or not.

"Beside capitalism there is another institution that stands in the way of human progress. This is government, which blocks the development of the race along the proper lines. You claim to have a free government in America, and yet you are little better than the poor people in Russia fighting for their liberty. American liberty is rather farcical, as you see by tonight's happenings.

"You can no more say what you think here in America than the people of Russia can. Your freedom is flimsy

as the firecrackers you shoot off on the Fourth of July.

"The government does not make you good. It does not prevent crime. It does not harmonize human interests. You laboring men, the government does not help you; it is always on the side of those who can pay for it. The government fosters crime. Today America is spending millions to care for criminals behind the bars, not to mention the vast number of criminals today walking the streets of Worcester. For you know there are criminals who don't get behind the bars; the man who steals a big sum is known as a gentleman; he can become your highest official in the government; only the poor fellow who steals the mite is known as a thief. This is your government.

"Let me tell you that the prisons are overfull. These institutions of capitalism and government make people commit crimes; anarchism insists that prison and courts cannot deal with crime.

"Anarchism, my friends, looks forward to the time when we shall understand human beings and shall be bonded together in a greater brotherhood.

"In order to keep crime down, we are forced to maintain an intricate and expensive machinery of government. This is useless and gives employment to men who never earned an honest cent in their lives.

"You workingmen are carrying a whole lazy class on your backs, and it is about time you awoke to the fact.

Your burden is a big one.

It is the weight of this burden that robs you of your strength, what little you have, and prevents your getting your just share of the world's goods.

"Law teaches, not that men should not kill. The law teaches you only how to kill. How to kill on the battlefields, how to kill in the name of your country, in the name of religion, or capitalism. Governments clash. Two thieves get together for a scrap. The thieves, too cowardly to fight their own battles, pull you in to fight their battles for them. You get wounded and mayhap killed, while the thieves laugh at you.

"What is patriotism? You go to war and fight for your country, under the guise of patriotism, you deprive another human being of his life. You kill, for a hollow sham's sake.

"The law protects crime in the name of

WORKING HARD.

Second Regiment Men Try For Places on Rifle Team.

Worcester 2d regiment officers and members of 2d regiment companies are working hard for places on the 2d regimental rifle team. These are the best records made by 2d regiment men at the rifle range this week, for qualifications and for places on the team:—

Lieut. Delevan R. Nichols, battalion adjutant—200 yards 39, 600 yards 36, 800 yards 41, 1000 yards 30, rapid fire 30.

Capt. Edwin G. Barrett, City guards—200 yards 40, 600 yards 35, 800 yards 42, 1000 yards 11, rapid fire 36.

Corp. H. G. Spring, City guards—200 yards 37, 600 yards 19, 800 yards 7, 1000 yards 22, rapid fire 21.

First Sergt. Roland Johnson, Light infantry—200 yards 42, 600 yards 37, 800 yards 37, 1000 yards 14, rapid fire 18.

Sergt. Roland Olmsted, Light infantry—200 yards 40, 600 yards 32.

Corp. H. R. Hodge, Light infantry—200 yards 41, 600 yards 45, 800 yards 38, rapid fire 35.

Priv. W. J. Millward, Light infantry—200 yards 44, 600 yards 38, 800 yards 49, 1000 yards 30, rapid fire 26.

Corp. H. L. Scarles, Light infantry—200 yards 42, 600 yards 42, 800 yards 42, 1000 yards 26, rapid fire 24.

Priv. F. L. Fisher, Light infantry—200 yards 37, 600 yards 24.

The men will have another tryout for the regimental team Saturday.

Beside work for positions on the regimental team, which have been closed to Worcester for years, on account of no rifle range, the men are working in all companies to qualify, and to make the company teams for the regimental competition which comes next month.

WIRES OVER STREET SNAP.

Cause Blockade in Trolley System While Repairs Are Made.

Two breaks occurred simultaneously in trolley wires over Main street at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, one at Foster street and one in front of 415 Main street. The loose ends of the wire dangled into the street, where pedestrians were crossing, and nearly struck two women at Foster street, who were underneath when it broke.

Traffic was stopped for 10 minutes, until the overhead repair gang from Market street carbarn arrived and tied up the loose ends. After that, traffic was resumed and cars were able to pass under the broken wire, by connecting the trolley pole to the wire on the northbound track. The breaks were repaired at 5.30 o'clock and traffic resumed without interfarance.

Extra car 371, bound for the fair grounds, split a switch at Chadwick square at 3 o'clock, the rear trucks swinging over into the tracks for southbound cars. The rear of the running board on the right side was broken and traffic delayed 20 minutes, until the car was replaced on the rails. No one was hurt.

Many cars going to the fair and returning were held up, cars extending back to the fair grounds, and back toward the city 200 yards.

A Boynton-street car, at 2.45 o'clock, yesterday afternoon, broke its trolley pole on Highland street near Elm park, stopping traffic on the line for a half-hour.

FIRST RALLY TONIGHT.

Dr. Garst to Have It at Fairview Society Hall.

Dr. Julius Garst, candidate for republican nomination for senator in the 1st district, will have the first rally of the campaign, tonight, at Fairview improvement society hall, 14 Grand View avenue. Dr. Garst will be the principal speaker, and will be supported by other speakers.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS OPEN.

Attendance of Children Is Close to 20,000.

Public schools opened yesterday with an attendance close to 20,000. Of this number about 18,000 are in the graded schools and 2000 in the high schools.

Will Meet Wednesday.

A battery will have its monthly meeting Wednesday, and name committee to arrange for the observance of the battery anniversary, which falls Oct. 12. It is likely that a celebration of the occasion will be postponed a few weeks. The battery had no drill last night.

[illegible] Arden until 1 o'clock, when Dr. Lyle again was called on the telephone. The most startling report of them all was then repeated to him:—

"It is said in New York that Mr. Harriman is dead."

"Those reports are not true," replied Dr. Lyle. "Mr. Harriman is better today."

His assurance [illegible] qualified in the [illegible] of money, however, by a visit paid to Arden house by Mrs. Mary Simonds, Mr. Harriman's sister, who lives in Cedar Valley, at the foot of the mountain.

A short time, when Mrs. Simonds was asked to confirm or deny a rumor that her brother was dying, she replied:—

"If he were dying, do you think I should be sitting quietly here at my [illegible]"

Tonight a member of the Simonds family was asked if the sister's visit indicated any change for the worse. The reply was: "No, quite the contrary."

Rev. J. Holmes McOuatters is the young rector of the Episcopal church of which Mr. Harriman is a member. As pastor of St. John's church at Arden, he has long enjoyed the confidence of the Harriman family and, by those who compare the millionaire's broad views here to a baronial estate, he is sometimes referred to as Mr. Harriman's chaplain.

Alarmed by the morning papers, Dr. McOuatters drove to Arden house about 10.30 from his home at Chester. On his way he told the newspaper men he had no first hand information from Tower hill. He passed two hours with the Harriman family, and was not seen in the valley again until he drove home between 4 and 5 o'clock.

Reluctant to discuss his visit, he yielded when told that an erroneous interpretation might be placed upon his call if followed by absolute silence, and asked:—

"You tell me, Dr. Lyle asserts that Mr. Harriman is better?" The signed statement was repeated to him.

"Well," he replied, "you can quote me also as saying that Mr. Harriman is better. Anything further for publication he refused.

The two oxygen tanks appeared on the platform at the Arden station late today. They were crated, but through the slats of the crates the words, "Oxygen for medical purposes," stared out in large white letters.

The station agent said the tanks were empty and had been sent down from Tower hill to be returned to the manufacturer, and lost no time in hurrying them to a locked storeroom.

Employes of the estate asserted today that Mr. Harriman's wife and his children were keeping close indoors. Although the weather has been fair.

they have not been seen rambling about the grounds or playing tennis since the crisis of Sunday.

The 4.15 train on the Erie railroad was held up at Jersey City for 10 minutes tonight until it was boarded by two men of professional appearance, carrying leather bags like medical cases. A Harriman automobile was waiting at Arden when the express dashed through. It is believed that it must have been by mistake that it did not stop at Arden, for, as soon as it passed, the chauffeur scorched to Turner and picked up the two strangers shortly after the train left them there.

Those men would not say whether or not they were physicians. They were hurried away in the Harriman car toward Tower hill.

Mr. Harriman's friends have made no attempt to deny that during the last three days he has had other medical attendants than Dr. Lyle. One employe said today that six physicians were at the house Sunday night. It is believed the best specialists in the country are being rushed to the bedside and that some of them are always on hand.

The lines about

Arden house were drawn closer tonight than at any time since Mr. Harriman's relapse. The more attracted the attention of the financial world to this placid country estate, Charles T. Ford, superintendent of the estate, sent out word tonight that no more newspaper men would be allowed across to Dr. Lyle by either written message or telephone. He said the guard about the house had been strengthened and given peremptory orders to pass no one without his permission.

These precautions are not directed against the newspaper men so much as against a group of spies sent here by Wall street interests. Several of these sleuths mingle with the newspaper representatives this evening to learn what they knew. Though such information would be of no use in the stock exchanges on this side of the Atlantic after the closing hour, it might prove valuable in the markets abroad, which open before the New York morning papers have been read by Wall street.

It was learned on excellent authority tonight that Mr. Harriman has been in bed since Friday, too weak to be moved. A [illegible] of a multitude of unofficial reports leaves excellent evidence that he is under the constant care of a corps of physicians and nurses, and that he has a high fever which is being relieved by ice packs and alcohol baths.

It is believed oxygen is kept always on hand if it is not now being administered. The conclusion is that the [illegible] improvement may be freely construed as a change from a crisis to a state of grave danger. Mr. Harriman's condition is still extremely critical.

[illegible] that Mr. Harriman was operated on yesterday for a cancerous growth was denied tonight by his superintendent, Mr. Ford.

"There is not a word of truth in it," he said. "I have been about the place all day and every day, and if there had been an operation I am sure I should

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

648

890611040

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Nineteen Cops Hear Lecture on Anarchy / Emma Goldman.— pp. 1, 9 ; 43 cm. In The Telegram and Gazette [Worcester, Ma.]. —(Sept. 9, 1909).

Obtained from the Worcester Public Library, Worcester, MA.

man to submit the records of the money order and registered letter departments to the inspection of Mr. Gaston.

All day this authorization had been anxiously awaited by the officials gathered at Ann Arber in the hope that the post-office records would show who had been the sender of a registered letter containing a remittance of money which Miss Millman received at her home just before leaving on her ill-starred trip to Detroit three weeks ago.

Whether the investigation of the Ann Arbor postoffice records is to be pursued further tomorrow could not be learned tonight.

Chief of detectives McConnell made this statement to the assembled newspaper men.

"We have locked up Dr. George A. Fritch on suspicion of murdering Maybelle Millman. We have worked on the case all day and would not arrest him tonight unless we had sufficient evidence to justify our action."

Dr. Fritch was previously arrested in connection with the mysterious death of Miss Edith Pressley, proofreader for the state senate, who died under suspicion circumstances in Detroit, in April, 1907.

Two criminal prosecutions were started after the Pressley tragedy and when the case against a member of the lower house of the legislature was thrown out of court for lack of sufficient evidence, the case against Dr. Fritch which depended much upon the obtaining of a conviction of the legislator, was nolle prossed.

NINETEEN COPS HEAR LECTURE

Continued From Page One.

In the ear of the chief, and created great excitement around station 1. It looked tha blue streak clear through, as if a band of bomb throwers had struck town. When the chief learned that the crowd had left Bartlett street, he telephoned to as many patrolmen as he could reach, telling them to hasten immediately to the home of Rev. Eliot White.

The detachment on the lawn was mixed a bit. There were three detectives from the inspectors' department, Lieut. George H. Hill and four gumshoe men from the liquor squad and Sergt. E. C. Fitzpatrick and 10 patrolmen in uniform from among the finest.

The crowd was assembled compactly in the yard, being gathered about the box which Miss Goldman had mounted. The helmets of the cops gleamed here and there in the dim light, but no damage was done by the crowd, save to the grass, so there was nothing for the cops to do.

Not only did Miss Goldman speak, but Dr. Reitman, her manager, spoke twice, as if to rub it into the opponents of Miss Goldman. Rev. Mr. White was introduced at the end, and he spoke, commending the crowd and the speakers, and started a subscription to help Miss Goldman and the free speech movement, by contributing $5.

The fact that more than 1½ hours had been consumed by speakers in public to Worcester, was looked upon as a great triumph for the denouncers of Chief Matthews in his fight with Miss Goldman. And then, to add to the importance of their victory,

There was a conference between Dr. Reitman, Miss Goldman and half a dozen Worcester anarchists, immediately at the close of the open-air session at 10 o'clock.

People began pouring onto Front street as early as 6 o'clock last night, to get into position for the fun expected to come later when Miss Goldman or her manager might clash with the police. But the hall remained locked. Mores J. Segal, secretary of the Worcester anarchists, tried the door, and it didn't budge. In their surprise, the anarchists did not know what to make of the incident. They then sought Napoleon Huot, keeper of the hall, who is said to have declared he could not open the hall, or his license would be revoked. This was taken to mean that the chief of police had forbidden the opening of the hall to Miss Goldman.

While Miss Goldman and Rev. Mr. White moved down Front street, in order to reach the minister's home, Dr. Reitman and the other anarchists remained near Front and Bartlett streets until nearly 8 o'clock. The crowd hung around, and finally moved off, after the manager, when he came up Front street.

The procession, almost a triumphal one, for Dr. Reitman, who was in the lead, moved past Harrington corner up Main to Lincoln square, thence up Lincoln street to Catherine, and thence to the home of

Rev. Mr. White.

Along the line of march, people had been continually dropping off, while now and then new ones joined on behind and lengthened the ranks.

The lawn was reached about 8.20 o'clock. The crowd was too large to think of admitting it to the house, so the people were told to crowd onto the lawn on the east side of the house. This they did, when the police got busy and shoved them off into the street, telling them to move off or away.

"This is what you call freedom in America," came from the anarchist leader.

Then Rev. Mr. White protested to Lieut. Hill, saying the lawn belonged to him, and he wanted to invite the crowd to come in. The invitation was given, and again the small army, composed mostly of young people, overran the grass and flowers.

Miss Goldman made a request that everybody remain quiet, and when a fresh youngster said he wanted to get [illegible] would be soon starting, she immediately hushed him up with a stinging rebuke. Noticing that people were treading on the lowers, she said:—

"Be careful of the plants; they want to live just as well as you do."

Amid silence, Dr. Reitman mounted the temporary platform. He apologized that the meeting was not in Beaver hall, and he recounted the earlier incidents of the night. He said he had made no misrepresentation to Huot, the keeper, having told him the hall would be used by Emma Goldman, the anarchist.

"I paid the money and got the hall," said the doctor. "Huot told me today I could not have the hall. He said if we had the hall, his license would be taken away. I believe he was intimidated by the die to get a hall, or even speak. They are trampling underfoot the right of freedom of speech that belongs to every one of us.

"In London, Miss Goldman could speak in Trafalgar square. In New York, Toledo and Cleveland, she can lecture. While in Boston and Lynn they permitted her to speak. If the mayor or the chief here did not permit her to speak, you would never learn any more about anarchy than they know."

Then Dr. Reitman declared that Tolstoi, Kropotkin, Thoreau, Anatole France, Emerson and Herbert Spencer were anarchists. As he closed, the doctor was applauded.

Miss Goldman was given a round as she appeared. She said:—

"Friends and fellow workingmen: When Thomas Paine wrote 'The rights of man,' he was not attacked by anyone: The same was the case when he wrote 'The age of reason.' It was not until these works came out in cheaper volumes that the people got hold of them.' Then the stir was made.

"So it is with us today. The capitalistic class of this country do not desire that I should spread among you the teachings of anarchy, for they realize it would not be healthy for them if the working class realized the truth of anarchistic principles. I guess Chief Matthews realized I was going to speak to the working class, not on the bombs or dynamite I may carry, but on the message of anarchy I bring.

"The statement has been made that I cannot speak on anarchy. Let me say that the police can keep me out of a hall, but the policeman who can stop me from speaking my mind has yet to be born."

At this point Miss Goldman paid a high tribute to Rev. Mr. White, as a brave champion of free speech, and the compliment was greeted with applause.

Miss Goldman then said it was not her intention to roast the police; that they acted according to their impulses and not according to reason or logic. She said she came to Worcester to speak on "Anarchism" and what it stands for. She then asked the question "What is anarchism?" and answered, it as follows:

"The police say that anarchism stands for bomb throwing; for throwing of dynamite.

"The people, some of them, believe the same thing, for they never heard any differently. The truth is that anarchism stands for destruction, not of the individual, but of the institutions of society that oppose human progress. We must develop the individual and also the collectivity to attain the ideal of anarchism.

"Every individual is urged ahead by the social instinct. Without that individual development would be impossible. Institutions in society today separate a man from his fellows. Institutions make it possible for one man to slay 1000 human souls in order to gain his ends. Institutions antagonize the individual and the social instinct; anarchism tends to harmonize the individual and the social instinct.

"Of the institutions there is one, capitalism, or the dominion of things, the power of the few to own the earth and to exclude the majority of men from the enjoyment of their rightful share of the fruits of the earth. Capitalism makes slaves, grinds man down until he becomes a mere machine, there capitalism robs a man of the most fundamental and important constituent of human existence.

"Capitalism must be done away with sooner or later. Capitalism must be destroyed, whether the capitalists like it or not.

"Beside capitalism there is another institution that stands in the way of human progress. This is government, which blocks the development of the race along the proper lines. You claim to have a free government in America, and yet you are little better than the poor people in Russia fighting for their liberty. American liberty is rather farcical, as you see by tonight's happenings.

"You can no more say what you think here in America than the people of Russia can. Your freedom is flimsy

as the firecrackers you shoot off on the Fourth of July.

"The government does not make you good. It does not prevent crime. It does not harmonize human interests. You laboring men, the government does not help you; it is always on the side of those who can pay for it. The government fosters crime. Today America is spending millions to care for criminals behind the bars, not to mention the vast number of criminals today walking the streets of Worcester. For you know there are criminals who don't get behind the bars; the man who steals a big sum is known as a gentleman; he can become your highest official in the government; only the poor fellow who steals the mite is known as a thief. This is your government.

"Let me tell you that the prisons are overfull. These institutions of capitalism and government make people commit crimes; anarchism insists that prison and courts cannot deal with crime.

"Anarchism, my friends, looks forward to the time when we shall understand human beings and shall be bonded together in a greater brotherhood.

"In order to keep crime down, we are forced to maintain an intricate and expensive machinery of government. This is useless and gives employment to men who never earned an honest cent in their lives.

"You workingmen are carrying a whole lazy class on your backs, and it is about time you awoke to the fact.

Your burden is a big one.

It is the weight of this burden that robs you of your strength, what little you have, and prevents your getting your just share of the world's goods.

"Law teaches, not that men should not kill. The law teaches you only how to kill. How to kill on the battlefields, how to kill in the name of your country, in the name of religion, or capitalism. Governments clash. Two thieves get together for a scrap. The thieves, too cowardly to fight their own battles, pull you in to fight their battles for them; you get wounded and mayhap killed, while the thieves laugh at you.

the law. In this [illegible] And yet you, [illegible] are guilty of these murders are present to you.

"Anarchism is absolutely opposed to government, not because it wants to do away with [illegible] but rather [illegible] because it would destroy [illegible] that are harmful.

"The government has become a sort of moral crutch. It serves the same purpose Christ does to some; because we plead for them, they think they have the right to go ahead and commit all the sins in the category.

"Anarchism is the theory of human development,

it is the theory of human harmony. It makes no difference what race you are, you are the same under anarchism. Government tries to separate the races; government divides the world into supposed spheres; each surrounded by a wall, and behind which are ministers and policemen armed who try to choke something down your throat, or to suffocate your ideas. Therefore, I say that anarchism is entirely different from what you have been led to believe.

"The most important issue I propose is this: You have been told I propagate violence. You always believe what you are told, without investigation. I am here to tell you I defy anyone, mayor or chief of police to show me in all anarchistic literature one line that advocates violence.

"It is quite true some anarchists have used violence, but the same can be said of the republicans or the democrats."

Here a voice called out that "in Worcester the democrats are pretty weak," which sally was greeted with laughter.

"Anarchists who have committed acts of violence do so, not because of any precepts of anarchism, but because of the system you support which leads to violence. Are you opposed to violence? Do you believe in prize fights? Do you believe in war, or soldiery, or in police uniforms? Then you believe very much indeed in force.

"Blame Chief Matthews and your mayor for acts of violence, for they are to blame.

"We intend to bring anarchy about by means of an intellectual revolution. We are preaching revolution, and intellectual revolution. I shall continue my work until my life gives out. Let the government take care of itself. It is the battle between reason and ignorance, and ignorance must give way to reason."

As Miss Goldman ceased, she was greeted with great applause. Dr. Reitman then took the platform again, and announced that books and anarchistic literature in general would be placed on sale after the session was over.

He then introduced Rev. Mr. White, remarking that the next time "Matthews will think twice before shutting anybody up."

Rev. Mr. White shook hands with Miss Goldman, accounting it a pleasure to do so. He expressed himself as pleased with her lecture. He said he thought the crowd ran from 350 to 400 persons. As a starter he chipped in $5 for the cause of free speech and to assist Miss Goldman.

"I do not blush for Worcester," he said, "but I do blush for some of the people in Worcester. I have learned lots that surprises me about some Worcester people, lately.

"I want to thank Lieut. Hill for coming here and protecting us. The crowd has been orderly, and not at all a gang of hoodlums."

Rev. Mr. White's sally about the police protection was greeted with sarcastic jeers aimed at the police.

The meeting was then declared over, and the crowd walked off the lawn quietly. Miss Goldman and Dr. Reitman took their stands in front, where they sold anarchistic literature under the eyes of 19 members of the police force.

About 10.05 o'clock, the sale finished, and Rev. Mr. White invited Miss Goldman and Dr. Reitmen inside. Miss Goldman then announced that she would be glad to have a quiet little conference with any members of the Italian-speaking anarchists in the crowd. Four stepped forth to the porch, along with Secretary Mores J. Segan.

The police then cleared away, and the crowd disappeared.

The comment of all the free speech enthusiasts was that "'Twas a famous victory."

From the inspectors were: Romanso Thayer, James J. Casey and Fred P. Good; from the liquor squad, Lieut. Hill, Robert T. Hardy, Frank K. Blair, Herbert W. Merrill and Edward J. McCarthy; from the ranks, Sergt. E. C. Fitzpatrick and 10 patrolmen. Some of the blue coats had been hurried from far off beats by the chief, in the awful emergency.

COMING TO WORCESTER.

State Board of Health to Inspect State Sewage Purification.

Three members of the state board of health and Engineer X. Henry Goodnough, will come to Worcester this forenoon, and, together with the Worcester board of health, will inspect the state hospital purification system.

Beside looking over the hospital's system, the commission will inspect the Worcester sewage disposal system, and will go to Millbury along the Blackstone [illegible] The commission will report to the next legislature.

The Worcester board of health has asked City engineer Frederick A. McClure to accompany it.

Payrolls Are Made Up.

City treasurer DeWitt Clinton's office force, yesterday, put up these payrolls for city departments: Public library $225.82, public library, monthly $800.71; rifle range $98.85, Hope cemetery $350.40, parks department $559.14, reservoirs $851.47, water maintenance and construction $1913.38, street department $4079.35; total $8733.82.

Bids to Be Opened.

Bids will be opened at 12 o'clock tomorrow noon, for $135,000 city bonds, of which $50,000 is for playgrounds, $50,000 for construction of [illegible] and Harmon streets, made

CHARTS MADE.

[illegible]

MRS. ERICKSON SUES

[illegible]

GO TO SEATTLE.

C. B. Perry and A. S. [illegible] Wives, Will Attend Grand Lodge.

Charles B. Perry, Millbury, recently elected grand master Massachusetts grand lodge of Iowa, and Hon. A. S. [illegible] grand sire of the order, Mrs. Perry and Mrs. [illegible] Worcester yesterday for Seattle, they will attend the supreme MARRIED.

ADAMS-MacLEOD—In this city, Sept. 8, by Rev. Harvey W. Ewing, Worcester, Adams and Nellie E. MacLeod, both of Gardner.

CADIGH-ILLALET—In this city, Sept. 8, Rev. Harvey W. Ewing, Harry Rupert Cadigh of Chatsworth, N. H., and Miss Florence Ilsley of Worcester.

DUBOIS-DURKIN—In Brookfield, Sept. 8, Rev. Michael J. Murphy, Charles [illegible] of Palmer and Miss Mary Elizabeth Durkin of Brookfield.

FENTON-FORBES—In this city, Sept. 8, by Justice of the peace Charles B. Johnson, Franklin Arthur Fenton of Brooklyn, N. Y., and May Forbes of Newark.

FINNERTON-QUINT—In this city, Sept. 8, by Rev. Francis H. Legros, Charles Finnerton and Miss Jennie Victoria Quint, both of Worcester.

GORLEY-LYONS—In Fitchburg, Sept. 8, by Rev. W. I. Phelan, Patrick H. Gorley and Annie K. Lyons, both of Fitchburg.

MACREADY-BROMAGE—In this city, Sept. 8, by Rev. Henry Hague, James Henry Macready and Miss Edith Florence Bromage, both of Worcester.

NESBITT-DeWOLFE—In this city, Sept. 8, by Rev. Emanuel Charlton of New Bedford, Clifford L. Nesbitt of Worcester and Miss Lucia Ella DeWolf of New Bedford.

PUTNEY-STRATTON—In East [illegible] 8, by Rev. Asa M. Bradley, George A. Putney and Miss Elsie M. Stratton, both of [illegible] Gold.

PERCY-STEVENSON—In this city, Sept. 8, Rev. Gardner Butler of Charleston, S. C., by Rev. Herbert G. Buckingham, Miss Flet Percy of South Acton and Miss Ethelyn Stevenson of Worcester.

PRIEST-DIVOLL—In Providence, Sept. 8, Rev. Alexander Mitchell, Edwin Lawrence Priest of Clinton and Miss Helen C. Divoll of this city.

THOMPSON-HINDLEY—In South [illegible] 8, by Rev. Charles H. Smith, Howard Thompson and Annie Hindley, both of South Boston.

DIED.

ANDERSON—In this city, Sept. 7, Julia, widow of Herman Anderson.

Funeral from the home of her daughter, E. C. Potters, 10 School street, this, Sept. 9, 2 p. m. Relatives and friends are invited to attend.

BENT—In Gardner, Sept. 8, Mrs. Mary Bent, aged 55 years.

BLOUIN—In Whitinsville, Sept. 8, Albert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ebodbia Blouin, aged 16 months.

CHENEY—In Athol, Sept. 8, C. Warren Cheney, aged 73 years, 11 months and 18 days.

DIVOLL—In Leominster, Sept. 8, William Divoll, aged 57 years, 4 months and 2 days.

KOSKI—In Fitchburg, Sept. 8, Amanda (Kielinen), wife of John E. Koski, aged 21.

LYNCH—In Webster, Sept. 8, Patrick, aged 71 years.

MURPHY—In Marlboro, Sept. 9, Mrs. [illegible] Murphy, aged 34 years, 2 months and 14 days.

NEUDECK—In Millbury, Sept. 8, Julia, wife of Charles Henry Neudeck, aged 52 years.

RUHIN—In this city, Sept. 8, Charles Shurn, aged 20 years, 2 months and 4 days.

Relatives and friends are invited to attend funeral services from the home, 11 Murray, Friday at 2 p. m., interment in Millbury.

SOUTHGATE—In this city, Sept. 7, Reuben Southgate, aged 75 years, 5 months and 7 days.

Relatives and friends are invited to attend funeral services from his late residence, 85 Millbury street, Friday, at 11 a. m.

ST. JAMES—In this city, Sept. 8, Celia (Mullen), wife of Theodore St. James, aged 45 years.

TOURET—In Marlboro, Sept. 8, Therese Louise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Touret, aged 1 year, 9 months and 6 days.

WARD—In Westboro, Sept. 8, Annie A. Ward, aged 55 years, 7 months and 19 days.

WHEELOCK—In Milford, Sept. 8, Mary (Cochrane), wife of Nelson T. Wheelock, aged 28 years, 8 months and 7 days.

YOUNG—In this city, Sept. 7, Albert Young, aged 60 years, 10 months and 2 days.

Funeral will be from the home, 84 [illegible] street, Friday, at 10 a. m. Relatives and friends invited to attend.

TREET SNAP.

Trolley System Are Made.

[illegible] simultaneously in [illegible] street at 4 o'clock [illegible] at Foster street [illegible] Main street. The [illegible] dangled into the [illegible] cars were crossing. [illegible] women at Foster [illegible] beneath when it [illegible] for 10 minutes, until [illegible] cars from Mar[illegible]ket and tied up the [illegible] of traffic was, re[illegible]sumable to pass under [illegible] connecting the trolley on the northbound [illegible] was repaired at 5.30 [illegible] speed without later.

[illegible] used for the fair [illegible] at Chadwick [illegible] the rear trucks [illegible] the tracks for south[illegible] [illegible] of the running [illegible] was broken and [illegible] minutes, until the car [illegible] No one was

[illegible] the fair and return[illegible] extending back in [illegible] back toward the [illegible] car, at 2.45 o'clock, broke its trolley pole [illegible] near Elm park, stopping for a half hour.

HARD.

[illegible] Try For Places [illegible] Team.

[illegible] officers and [illegible] [illegible] companies of [illegible] on the 2d regiment [illegible] are the best rolling [illegible] men at the [illegible] for qualifications [illegible] team —

[illegible] Nichols, battalion adjutant, 200 yards 25, 200 yards [illegible] fire 20.

[illegible] Corbett, City guards—[illegible] 25, 200 yards 42, 1000 [illegible]

[illegible] City guards—200 [illegible] 200 yards 7, 1000 [illegible]

[illegible] Johnson, Light infantry—[illegible] 200 yards 27, 200 yards [illegible] fire 15

[illegible] Reed, Light infantry—[illegible] 200

[illegible] Light infantry—200 [illegible] 200 yards 20, rapid

[illegible] Light infantry—[illegible] 35, 200 yards 49, [illegible] fire 24

[illegible] Light infantry [illegible] 42, 200 yards 42, [illegible] fire 24.

[illegible] Light infantry—[illegible] 24

[illegible] another tryout for Saturday.

[illegible] actions on the regi[illegible] have been closed [illegible], on account of [illegible] are working in [illegible] city, and to make [illegible] for the regimental [illegible] next month.

Y TONIGHT.

[illegible] at Fairview Assembly [illegible].

[illegible] candidate for republican [illegible]

[illegible] first rally of the [illegible] Fairview Improvement [illegible] Grand View avenue. [illegible] principal speaker, [illegible] by other speakers

OOLS OPEN.

[illegible] Is Close to [illegible]

[illegible] opened yesterday with [illegible] to 10,000. Of this [illegible] are in the graded [illegible] the high schools.

[illegible] Wednesday.

649

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

900227001

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Talks on Pedagogy / Emma Goldman.— 24 cm. In The Telegram and Gazette [Worcester, Ma.]. —(Sept. 10, 1909).

Obtained from Clark University. Institutional Location: University Archives. Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the Worcester Telegram & Gazette, Worcester, MA 01608.

Telegram Sept. 10, 1909

tematic doctrines concerning the most serious situations of life which confront the intelligence of mature men and women.

"The innocent belief that a gordius arises by a sort of metamorphosis from the horsehair, is almost a prerogative of normal childhood; the current belief that clams are the parents of eels, the crystalline style having, perhaps, given the clue to this discovery, while hardly a credit to the intelligence of fishermen, is excusable under the poetic licence commonly acceded to them.

"Doctrines relating to original creation, generation, birth, heredity, degeneracy and rehabilitation of individuals and of races congenital, talent, death, reincarnation, diseases and healing, have always had and will doubtless forever continue to have a firm grip upon the intelligent interest of men and will continue to exert a powerful influence upon the social as well as the religious and the intellectual life.

"That the unqualified reference to birthmarks as the result of maternal impressions, should be given from the chair in a college classroom; and that the doctrine that all human beings at birth are equal in potential intelligence, should be a constituent of the argument of a graduation oration; that some 15 years after its publication, Butschli's experiments with foam could be exploited in a respectable magazine as a new discovery of the artificial production of life; that Loeb's brilliant work on artificial parthenogenesis could pass muster so many times as an instance of the creation of life; that clairvoyants and spiritualists can regularly conduct thriving establishments, to trade on the credulity of all classes, and carry on as matter-of-fact a business as that of the plumber; that the belief in pancreas has so largely supported the enormous traffic in patent medicines; that every day, among intelligent classes of our people, diseases like cancer, typhoid, diphtheria, paralysis due to organic lesion, are judged amenable to incantation or even absent treatment; are facts which point out one of the prime tasks of biological instruction.

"Multitudes of superstitions regarding vital phenomena, are handed on as traditions from generation to generation. The remarkable credulity in new ones finds explanation, it seems to me, in the old saying, 'truth is stranger than fiction,' so if one remarkable phenomenon be true, why not another which is no more astonishing.

"This fallacy is the strongest weapon of impostors. When, and only when the weight of accumulated evidence respecting natural laws is actually felt, it becomes a ballast which enables the judgment to keep an equilibrium and to steer a discriminating course.

"As a second explicit purpose of the biological course, I would submit that of the cultivation of imagination. With all due respect to the 'discipline, of the systematically elaborated 'good, old-fashioned college course of Latin, Greek and mathematics, it is a mild criticism to say that, while it cultivated both the memory and, at its best, the fine discrimination of abstract ideas, it did not give the imagination the training which its importance in the intellectual life may justly claim.

"The gradual realization of the unparalleled complexity and uniformity of biological phenomena is a poetic inspiration. This inspiration must grow from the seed in each individual intellect, and depends in every case for its development, upon some first-hand knowledge of many facts and their coordination.

"It is regretable that the esthetic value of the scientific imagination is not more generally appreciated by men of culture, but it is especially deplorable that so often it is recognized by them as existing in others.

"When we reflect upon the breadth and power of imagination, which enabled Darwin to grasp the significance of the host of apparently unrelated phenomena and to correlate them into a consistent thesis, it is almost paradoxical that Darwin should be referred to by the avowed exponents of the beautiful, the good and the true, as the machine for grinding out facts, and be held, up to the youth as a warning example of a soul dislocated of poetic feeling through the pursuit of science.

"Ought we not warn the children against the ardent and long-continued pursuit of the art and appreciation of music, lest they lose their boyhood relish of 'My bonnie lies over the ocean,' and 'There is a tavern in the town.'"

Prof. Mead furnished a complete explanation of the course used at Brown, which lays much stress nf hygiene, as an important dapartment of the biological department. He concluded his paper with a chapter which forcibly and comprehensively pointed out the evidence of ignorance of hygienic requirements, through which an immense total of ill health, distress, anguish and disgrace enters human life.

Prof. Hodge's paper on the Clark college course in biology created much interest, the various steps being followed with the closest attention. He began with insects, giving as a matter of vital importance the mosquito and what it is costing the country, referring to Blackstone river conditions.

He said the first laboratory period was on the mosquito, the students being sent out to get all the insects they can collect. The students, not being told what insects were, often brought back frogs, newts, turtles and bats, but once in a while they brought in insects.

Continuing, Prof. Hodge said:—

"Let the nature study of the graden center about the child and the home. Of course, these lines of interest extend beyond the home and the child, but the child need not, at this stage, be taught relations beyond his own sphere of interest.

"In preparation for active membership, let the biology of the high school center about the life, interests and problems of the town, the city, the state and nation. Do the highest interests of the community require that its educated citizens know this or that, is the question which determines whether a topic be admitted to the high school course.

"In the college, the student enters the world of pure science with its universal language and its special and technical methods. Here, for the first time, not the child or community, but the logical development of subject matter must dominate.

"The nature-study point of view is to teach the child. The scientific point of view is to teach the subject. If the student cannot master the subject, he has no call to study science. This main line of cleavage between biological nature-study and technical science thus falls between the high school and college strata. If we hold to the general culture idea of the college, we might even put it between the college and university strata, but present tendencies are toward rather efficient specialization in the college.

"With distinct, though, coordinate and score, everything clears up. Subject matter of the courses separates each topic of its appropriate stratum or level, each beat for its own sake and purpose and in its proper place; the nature-study stratum eight or nine years thick, devoted to the interest vital to life of child and home; the high school stratum, only one year thick, but a very hard capstone to the looser formations below, and a seam of veritable 'vita ore' for community and national life; the college-university stratum, pure crystal and gold and precious stones, with which to build the universal temple of truth in the world."

Prof. Hodge gave, in interesting detail, the features of his course, using a diagram to show the dynamic types.

The course begun with insecta and followed along to crustacea, vermes, mollusca, coelenterata, protozoa (protophyta), algae, fungi, lichens, hepaticae, muscl, bacteria, angiosperms, pisces, amphibia, aves, mamalia and embrylogy, each head being subdivided by several of the relative subjects.

There was a general discussion following, in which Prof. Hodge facetiously remarked, in answer to the question of mosquitoes at the north pole: "Oh, yes, you can find any quantity of them there; they kill the polar bears."

Prof. O. W. Mills, Westminster college, North Wilmington, Pa., a graduate of Clark university, expressed his strong approval of Prof. Hodge's syllabus, saying he was teaching, as nearly as possible, along these lines, and the work was proving most successful. He predicted that time would show Prof. Hodge's outline in universal force.

Prof. Clark, Williams college, gave a very interesting resume of the study of biology, citing examples of cases where a world of knowledge and satisfaction had been shown students who had never before realized the extent of the science.

The subject of students incapable of taking the biological course was brought to attention when Prof. Bristol, New York university, related instances of his experience in teaching.

Prof. Hodge gave a short talk on the stupid man who sometimes enters his classes, saying, "When I believe I have done the fair thing and am unable to make any progress with them whatever, I show them the door. There are students who come to the college who are totally incapable of taking a course in biology."

"What are you going to do with these men?" asked Prof. Mead.

"Let them clerk in a store," responded Prof. Hodge.

The final adjournment of the conference of biological instruction came at a time when there was general feeling of satisfaction, with a common belief among the biologists that a marked advance had been made, with the possibilities of future good, far and wide, through printed accounts of the deliberations.

TALKS ON PEDAGOGY.

Emma Goldman Asks Questions About Work in Colleges.

The afternoon conference under the department of school hygiene and pedagogy was on "Education as a college subject," and Dr. E. E. Brown presided. He was introduced by Dr. Burnham of Clark university. Dr. Brown introduced Dr. Edward Franklin Buchner, professor of education of Johns Hopkins university.

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

900227001

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Talks on Pedagogy / Emma Goldman.— 24 cm. In The Telegram and Gazette [Worcester, Ma.]. —(Sept. 10, 1909).

Obtained from Clark University. Institutional Location: University Archives. Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the Worcester Telegram & Gazette, Worcester, MA 01608.

Telegram Sept 10 1909

Dr. Buchner gave a paper on "Pedagogy as a college subject," in which he placed education as a college subject dependent a good deal upon the college itself. He said that the traditions of the college, the location of a college with relation to the density of population, and the financial resources of a college, had much to do with the question as to what the college attempted in the study of education and pedagogy.

He also contended that the interest which the college takes in the future of its graduates had much to do with the question.

His idea was that the college should just consider the intrinsic merits of pedagogy, the real value of education, to its own academic culture, before deciding whether it should include the study of education in its curriculum.

Dr. Anna J. McKeag, professor of pedagogy in Wellesley college, gave a paper on "Pedagogy as a study in colleges for women."

She summarized the policy she advocated in this way:—

"First, the undergraduate introducing courses should be given to professional and non-professional students in the same classes.

"Secondly, the work in observation of children and schools should form a part of such courses.

"Next, informational, cultured and inspiritual aims should not be neglected.

"Then, I should say that more narrowly technical courses are best given to graduate students.

"Lastly, I would think that our departments should include a sufficiently large teaching staff to make possible a personal knowledge of the capacities and aims of the student."

In introducing the above summary, the speaker said: "I should like to outline a course in secondary education, which might be profitably given to graduate students in colleges for women. These graduates are supposed to have had as undergraduates the introductory courses in education.

"Such a course might include a sketch of the development of secondary education, with special reference to the development of the American high school; a study of fundamental principles of the education of adolescent pupils; a study of the organization and curriculum of two typical high schools, one a city school, one a village school; and a special study of the best modern methods of teaching one high school subject by each member of the class; and also practice teaching, with each member of the class being required to teach a class in her chosen subject for a semester."

Dr. Thomas M. Balliet, dean of the school of pedagogy, New York university, spoke on the general subject of the conference. One statement of his was that he didn't believe practice teaching as advocated by the previous speaker, was a practical or satisfactory method, inasmuch as it was extremely difficult to arrange for practice teaching.

One of his contentions was that just as colleges prepare for professional schools in medicine, law and theology, so they should give a training that would serve for the foundations of education.

The undergraduate, he said, must be given what will help him most in the schoolroom. Experienced teachers, he contended, should take graduate work in preference to any other work.

Dr. G. Stanley Hall of Clark university gave a reminiscent talk, in which he told of some of his early experiences as a teacher of pedagogy. He also spoke briefly of the method and course of pedagoical teaching in use in Clark university.

He said that there had been no great attempt to systematize the course in use in Clark college, so that the course would qualify a graduate to teach in schools and colleges sb much as it would make a graduate expert in the teaching of pedagogy.

The conference was then oponed for diacussion, and Mr. Norton of Harvard university, Supt. Adams of Spencer, and Emma Goldman, anarchist, spoke.

Miss Goldman asked questions, which she addressed to the previous speakers. Dr. Buchner was asked if the colleges of today were not taking up too much time and trouble in filling its pupils with predigested food, rather than to develop the originality of the pupil, if the colleges were not stuffing the child rather than to bring out what is in the child.

Dr. Buchner answered: "No."

Miss Goldman also asked if it was more important that education should be made the means of equipping young men and young women to know and recognize their own ability, rather than to teach them to do things to use their ability, and if this college

today wasn't doing the former rather than the latter. Dr. Buchner answered that the colleges probably were teaching their students to recognize their ability rather than to use their ability.

Miss Goldman's last question was as to whether or not women's colleges were not neglecting to teach their students the important question of sex psychology. Dr. Buchner answered: "Yes."

Dr. B. T. Baldwin of Swarthmore college and Westchester state normal school, Pennsylvania, spoke briefly on the development of education in the United States, tracing its history from the first course in Brown university and indicating its expansion and growth, and urged the establishment and practice and observation schools.

At 5 o'clock there was a lantern demonstration of children's drawings and the psychology of testing, by Prof. William L. Stern of the University of Breslau.

MATHEMATICAL CONFERENCE.

Prof. E. H. Moore Opens With Lecture on Postulational Methods.

Prof. E. H. Moore, University of Chicago, opened the mathematical conference at 10 a. m. yesterday, giving a lecture on postulational methods in mathematics. At 4 p. m., the mathematicians and physicists joined in conference, the matter of one teacher for the two subjects being discussed. The discussion was animated, the opinion that a mathematician who is also a physicist should be able to teach both branches of study in the high schools being advanced.

Interest centered in the lecture of Prof. Vito Volterra of University of Rome, which was on the topic of ancient problems and new theories in elasticity, on the principle of Huygens and theory of Fredholm.

Prof. Volterra begun with a resume of mathematical history and physics in general, and continued in the line of logic and research concerning twisted elasticity. The lecture was delivered in French.

The lecture on radiation from gases heated by sudden compression was given by President Ernest Fox Nichols, Dartmouth college.

New ideas on the optical properties of metallic vapors were given by Prof. Robert Williams Wood, Johns Hopkins university, these being the results of recent experiments.

DEGREES ON EDUCATION.

Clark University to Confer Them at Its Celebration.

The crowning feature of the program of the educational conference at Clark university, will occur at 8 o'clock, tonight, when the university will confer several degrees on some of the most prominent educators of the world, who are in the celebration at the university.

The exercises will be in the gymnasium of the college and will be open to the Worcester public, free of admission.

The presence of two Nobel prizemen adds much to the importance of the deliberations. They will be prominently identified at tonight's exercises.

Ernest Rutherford, D. Sc., LL. D., F. R. S., is professor of experimental physics in the University of Manchester, and was the winner of the Nobel prize in chemistry.

Albert A. Michelson, Sc. D., LL. D., F. R. S., is professor of physics in the University of Chicago, Rumford medalist, American academy of arts and sciences, Nobel prizeman in physics, former president American physical society.

The gymnasium has been elaborately decorated and the program for the exercises is extensive. At 9 o'clock there will be a reception given by the president and board of trustees of the university in the assembly hall of the first floor of the main building, to all members of the university and college, and to the visitors of the conference and the guests.

The department of biology having closed its program yesterday, there will be sessions today only under the management of the departments of mathematics and physics and the department of psychology.

The department of psychology begins its program at 9 o'clock with a lecture on "Studies of association and mental hygiene," by Dr. C. G. Jung of Switzerland. This will be a continuation of his lecture, yesterday. At 10 o'clock there will be a lecture by Dr. L. William Stern of the university of Breslau on "Individual psychology." Dr. Sigmund Freud of Vienna will be the next lecturer and will continue his series on psychiatry.

In the afternoon there will be a conference on "Elementary psychology in the college," with Dr. Carl E. Seashore chairman. The subject of this conference will be limited to the first year's work, five or six semester hours, whether this is given in one or more courses. For the purpose of discussion it will be assumed that the course is open to sophomores.

There will be a paper on "The preparation of the student," by Dr. E. F. Buchner. Next there will be a discussion on "The aim of the course," by Dr. Stern. Following this comes a discussion led by Dr. Joseph Jastrow and Dr. Steven S. Colvin, on "The contents of the course."

At 5 o'clock there will be a demonstration of children's drawings, a continuation of a similar demonstration yesterday.

In the departments of mathematics and physics there will be a lecture by Prof. E. H. Moore, University of Chicago, on postulational methods in mathematics, being the fourth of his series.

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

890425000

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Interview] Police May Turn Hose on Anarchists / Emma Goldman. — p. 2 ; 43 cm. In Public Ledger [Philadelphia]. —(Sept. 28, 1909).

Obtained from the Pennsylvania State University Libraries, University Park, PA.

DGER—PHILADELPHIA, TUESDAY MORNING, SEPTEMBER 28, 1909.

Millard Company, Third street pipe line 145,000
Millard Company, Turnpikeside, preliminary filters 650,000
Filbert Company, coal and ashes handling machinery 133,000
Total $1,000,000

1908.
Filbert Company, Gardner's Point pipe connections $28,000

1909.
Millard Company, Queen Lane filter plant 1,100,000
(This contract will be increased monthly to about $2,000,000.)

RECAPITULATION

[illegible] ..... $8,[illegible]
[illegible] ..... 2,[illegible]
[illegible] ..... 2,[illegible]
[illegible] 1,270,000
[illegible] 1,000,000
[illegible] 28,000
[illegible] 1,100,000
Total ..... $16,[illegible]

*Where the name of the contracting firm is not given in the table such contracts were let to the McNichol Company.

The total of awards included in the foregoing lists is $33,002,410.

Further effort will be made to produce a statement of the total of city contracts, and to establish what proportion of this total is the portion of city work which has been secured by the two Senators and their allies.

REFORM PARTY CAMPAIGN TO BE OPENED TONIGHT

Prominent Speakers and Candidates to Define Issues at Academy Meeting.

The William Penn party will formally open its campaign at the Academy of Music tonight, and judging from the demand for seats it will be one of the largest independent political meetings ever held in this city. Nearly all of the aggressive reformers who were connected with the movement in 1905 will act as vice presidents of the meeting. Among them will be a number of prominent Democrats, including Roland Morris and ex-Congressman William M. Ajjer, and several prominent leaders of the labor movement.

Inclement weather promises to be an abundance of campaign enthusiasm, as a rain of the hard drenching will march to the meeting headed by brass bands and will occupy the seats in the Academy with [illegible] fireworks.

Arrangements have been made for an overflow meeting outside the Academy, and there will be speakers [illegible] to gain admittance to the building.

The contracts consist of twenty and [illegible] keynote, it is said, [illegible] of the various [illegible] Francis A. Lewis, [illegible] Lewis and John J. Mc[illegible] but Mr. Gibbon[illegible] [illegible] can generally [illegible]

REFORM GAINS A RECRUIT

Republican Committeeman of 44th Ward Joins Gibboney Stalwarts.

E. M. Holloway, Jr., who declares that he is a member of the Republican Committee of the 44th Ward, representing the 38th division, wrote a letter to the Gibboney Stalwart party yesterday, espousing the reform cause.

In his letter he says:

"I worked hard to obtain the nomination of D. Clarence Gibboney for District Attorney on the Republican ticket, and earnestly believe that Mr. Gibboney won that nomination.

POLICE MAY TURN HOSE ON ANARCHISTS

O'Leary Says He Will Disperse Outdoor Meeting With Water if Emma Goldman Speaks.

WOMAN REACHES CITY

Odd Fellows' Building Engaged and Test to Be Made of Right to Make Address.

Emma Goldman, anarchist, lecturer and editor, came from New York at noon yesterday for the purpose of speaking to a Philadelphia audience tonight on the subject of "Anarchism: What It Really Means," in the Odd Fellows' Building.

When Assistant Superintendent O'Leary was asked whether Miss Goldman would be permitted to deliver an address from the Little Hotel Wilmot, also in the plan, he replied:

"Not if a fire hose can prevent her. She had better put on a rubber suit if she undertakes to make a speech there, because she will certainly get a ducking.

"There is nothing more distasteful to anarchists than a stream from a fire engine. I found that to be the most effectual measure to break up riotous gatherings uptown during the car strike last June that could be employed. It saved broken heads and a lot of shooting.

"Put it down there will be no address by Emma Goldman at the Odd Fellows' Building."

Miss Goldman came over in the same train from New York with Mayor Reyburn, and the Mayor observed her, though he did not recognize her as the famous anarchist. He thought, he said, that she belonged to the suffragist movement. He was attracted by her attire, which he described as canary yellow and at least 40 years behind the Paris mode. The Mayor thought that if she were not a suffragist she might be an actress, not of the chorus girl type, but a music-hall artist. Miss Goldman's companions led the Mayor toward this belief.

A few hours after Miss Goldman arrived in the city she submitted to be interviewed. She was found to be not without ideas on a variety of subjects aside from anarchism. She does not like the police, thinks women get the worst of it through life, let drop a few opinions on the scientific subject of the duality of personality, and said she objects to—shrinks from—crowds.

She is a very little woman to have created such a stir, and her face suggests peace and a well ordered life, rather than anarchy and its teachings. She is 40. Led into telling her age she said:

"It is no matter, when we women have something in our hearts we cease to care about being young. It's only the empty headed that want to keep up the farce."

The high priestess of the anarchists is almost good looking. She has light brown hair, which would be very pretty if there were more fit and a complexion that certain women would go far to get. It is a pink flesh complexion. Her underlip droops somewhat, which lends the suggestion of sensuality.

She was dressed in a navy colored [illegible] and a white shirtwaist and wore [illegible] She might be described as very magnetic. It is easy to talk to her on serious subjects.

Miss Goldman said that she came from Russia 23 years ago and afterward studied to be a trained nurse. She brought [illegible] of her family with her but absorbed them all in Chicago and other American cities. She got over disparation for her future life work [illegible] from the prosecution of the Haymarket rioters in Chicago in 1887. The men hanged elicited her sympathy and she determined to go out and right the cause of the downtrodden. According to her story she has been traveling a rocky trail these 22 years.

There have been some fights. Miss Goldman's friend Mayor Tom Johnson invited her to speak in Cleveland, and, according to the literature she is distributing, Director Miller has introduced a [illegible] The Mother Earth Magazine, of which Miss Goldman is the head.

When Miss Goldman was asked what she thought of the suffragist movement she said:

"The ballot won't free women any more than it has freed men. It has really enslaved men and it would do the same thing for women, so I don't approve of women voting. But I, of course, think that women should be entitled to all the [illegible] since they populate the world and therefore perform the greatest service to mankind."

"What of the financial aspect of your tours?" she was asked. "Who pays the bills?"

"I am traveling in the interest of my magazine," she replied, "and we always charge admission to our meetings, and the receipts defray our expenses."

Some one inquired why it was that she always managed to reach Philadelphia during a political campaign. Was there any political significance attached to her visits?

"None whatever," she said. "We are absolutely independent of political influences."

NO TOBACCO AND NO WIVES MAY END MINISTERS' HOME

Suit to Recover Fund Bequeathed to Institution That Has Only One Resident.

Whether the John C. Mercer Home for Disabled Clergymen of the Presbyterian Faith, situated at Ambler, Montgomery County, has failed of its purpose as a charitable institution was the question submitted to Judge Sulsberger yesterday in a suit by the heirs of Mrs. Mercer to recover the trust fund for the founding of the home.

Mrs. Mercer, who died in 1866, set aside $100,000 of her estate for the home, but she provided that it should shelter no clergyman who used tobacco in any form. During its 21 years of existence only 35 applications for admittance were received, of which 12 were refused because they failed to show proper eligibility, eight did not pursue their applications and only 15 were admitted. There is only one inmate remaining, and the board of managers applied to the Attorney General to institute proceedings for the purpose of applying the trust property for the payment to selected beneficiaries stipulated amounts, to be determined by the managers of the institution.

Ex-Judge W. W. Porter, counsel for the trustees of the estate of Lydia I. Biddle, heirs under the Mercer will, objected to this action, contending that, the charity having failed, the property should revert to the heirs.

John G. Johnson and A. Culver Boyd, appearing for the board of managers, maintained that the charity as intended by Mrs. Mercer could be successfully carried out. Peter Boyd, an attorney, who is treasurer of the board of managers of the institution, told Judge Sulsberger that the prohibitive tobacco clause was not the real cause for the small number of applications for admission to the institution, but as no provision had been made in the will for clergymen and their wives the majority of these, even though indigent, did not care to leave their homes. He was of the opinion that if the home ceased to exist the fund could be turned over to the Board of Ministerial Relief of the Presbyterian Church, which cares for 157 clergymen, and that the trust would then be fully carried out.

Judge Sulsberger took the matter under advisement.

SOPHIE BECK ARRAIGNED

Waives Hearing, and May Be Brought to Philadelphia Today.

Mrs. Estella Graham, alias Sophie Beck, who was arrested at Atlantic City on Friday by postal inspectors, on a charge of conspiracy in using the United States mails in the Storey Colton Company swindle, was arraigned yesterday before United States Commissioner Morgan, of Camden, at the courthouse. The proceedings were a mere formality. Mrs. Graham waived a hearing, and she was remanded to await removal to Philadelphia.

No incident of the hearing was the refusal of Mr. Morgan to permit newspaper photographers to take pictures of the prisoner. He said:

"The defendant is in the custody of the law and helpless. She will be punished for whatever crime she has committed, and I forbid the taking of her picture or the making of any sketches whatever, as it would be manifestly unfair."

Mrs. Graham said that efforts to obtain bail would be made in Philadelphia. Deputy Inspector Cortelyou said that before Miss Beck is removed to Philadelphia it will be necessary to obtain an order from either Judge Dickinson or Judge Reilstab at Trenton and it is likely that Miss Beck will be removed today. In Philadelphia she will probably be arraigned before Judge Holland, who will fix the bail.

It is said that Miss Beck is a Camden woman and that before her marriage to Graham her name was Schafer.

MAN DOUBLY ACCUSED

Held on Charges Made by Wife and Another Woman.

After several sensational stories told on the witness stand and the announcement of the arrest of one of his accusers, Raymond Warren Broadbent, of 3312 Woodland avenue, was held in $1500 bail for court yesterday afternoon by Magistrate Gaffney. Broadbent, formerly a clerk in the City Controller's office, is charged with assault and battery by his wife, Ida May Broadbent, of 409 Spring Garden street, and with a serious offense by Mrs. May Dietrich on behalf of Rose Yetter, a friend of Mrs. Dietrich. While the hearing was in progress it was announced that Mrs. Dietrich had been arrested on complaint of Broadbent's brother.

Mrs. Broadbent cited three cases where [illegible] and [illegible] assaulted [illegible] Broadbent said that he was a victim of political enemies. He declared that he had been removed from the Controller's office to make room for some one more powerful politically. In answer to this, Sheriff Gillilan, who, the hearing developed, was attorney for Mrs. Broadbent in divorce proceedings begun some months ago by Broadbent, said that the defendant had been removed for incompetency. Mr. Gillilan declared that Broadbent's charges against his wife were absolutely groundless, and that the arrest of Mrs. Dietrich appeared to him to be a scheme to bar her testimony in the charges against the prisoner.

TO RAISE RAILROAD PENSIONS

BAER DENIES DEAL TO FIX COAL PRICES

President of Reading Says There Was No Conspiracy Among Anthracite Carriers.

BUYING RIVAL LINES

Purchase of Jersey Central Declared to Be Necessary—Wanted to Save Lehigh Valley.

The story of the way the Philadelphia and Reading Railway Company obtained control of the Central Railroad of New Jersey and how the Lehigh Valley Railroad was reorganized and put upon a paying basis was told yesterday by George F. Baer, president of the Reading companies, during a cross-examination conducted for more than three hours by James B. McReynolds and G. Carroll Todd, special assistants to the United States Attorney General. Mr. Baer also reviewed the relations, past and present, existing between various subsidiary companies of the Reading and between the anthracite coal-carrying railroads.

The cross-examination was held on the third floor of the Federal Building. It was a continuance of the suit which has been conducted for the last two years by the Government against the anthracite coal-carrying railroads, which are charged with conspiracy to eliminate competition and to increase the cost of coal.

Mr. Baer took the stand at 10.30 in the morning and held it, with the exception of an hour and a half intermission, until 3.30 in the afternoon. Besides the special attorneys, Major Warren, counsel for the Temple Coal and Iron Company; Samuel Dickson, counsel for the Schuylkill Coal and Navigation Company; former Judge Campbell, of the Reading Railway, and former Judge Mool, representing New York companies, took part in questioning the witness.

It was denied by Mr. Baer that there had been any attempt at conspiracy on the part of the coal roads and in this connection told of the agreements entered into between the railroads and the independent operators of the coal mines. He answered questions as to the regulation of the price of coal and then took up the history of the transactions between his railroad and the Jersey Central.

Mr. Baer explained that the Philadelphia and Reading needed the Jersey Central tracks to enter New York city, which, he said, is the general distributing point for anthracite coal. For a number of years unsuccessful efforts had been made to unite the roads. An attempt to obtain a lease had failed because the courts had decided that under the laws of New Jersey a lease could not be given.

Story of Jersey Central.

In 1900, Mr. Baer said, he had learned that the interests which controlled the stock of the Jersey Central road were willing to sell and that they had refused an offer from the Baltimore and Ohio as being too low. He saw the danger to the Reading in case adverse interests should obtain the Jersey Central and at the same time realized the opportunity to obtain control of the road for the Reading.

"The situation demanded prompt action," continued Reading's president. "I told J. Pierpont Morgan, a voting trustee of the Reading Company, that I thought I could buy the line legally by obtaining a majority of the stock. I made a critical examination of the reports of the road for several years to see if we could buy it profitably. Inside of a week arrangements were made whereby the stock was bought."

"One allegation of the Government was that the Reading Company in payment of the stock did not make a bona fide purchase," interrupted former Judge Campbell. "In other words, that the transaction was effected by an exchange of securities. Is that true?"

"I do not know where such stories originated," replied Mr. Baer. "We created a syndicate and the Reading bonds were sold to it and good money was paid for them."

In connection with the history of the reorganization of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, Mr. Baer declared that the anthracite coal carrying roads had never held a majority of its stock and that they only managed the road through the consent of the other stockholders. He referred to the bad condition of affairs which had befallen the Lehigh Valley Railroad before an interest in it was acquired by the anthracite coal carrying roads.

"It was thought very dangerous" [illegible]

652

890425000

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Interview] Police May Turn Hose on Anarchists / Emma Goldman. – p. 2 ; 43 cm. In Public Ledger [Philadelphia]. –(Sept. 28, 1909).

Obtained from the Pennsylvania State University Libraries, University Park, PA.

Total.....$16,764,000

Where the name of the contracting firm is not given in the table such contracts were let to the McNichol Company.

The total of awards included in the foregoing lists is $13,002,418.

Further effort will be made to procure a statement of the total of city contracts, and to establish what proportion of this total is the portion of city work which has been secured by the two Senators and their allies.

REFORM PARTY CAMPAIGN TO BE OPENED TONIGHT

Prominent Speakers and Candidates to Define Issues at Academy Meeting.

The William Penn party will formally open its campaign at the Academy of Music tonight and judging from the demand for seats, it will be one of the largest independent political meetings ever held in this city. Nearly all of the aggressive reformers who were connected with the movement in 1905 will act as vice presidents of the meeting. Among them will be a number of prominent Democrats, including Roland Morris and ex-Congressman William McAleer and several prominent leaders of the labor movement.

The ten-day term promises to be an abundance of campaign enthusiasm, as all of the ward delegations will march to the meeting headed by brass bands, and will enliven the route to the Academy with plenty of fireworks.

Arrangements have been made for an overflow meeting outside the Academy and there will be speakers on hand to inform those unable to gain admittance concerning the issues of the campaign.

The contractors' control of the city and its results will be the keynote, it is said, on which the addresses of the various speakers will hinge. Francis A. Lewis, who will act as chairman of the meeting, will explain the issues to be advocated by the reformers. Plans for a change in the city government will be made in addresses by candidates D. Clarence Gibboney, Edwin S. Lewis and John J. Murphy. It is expected that Mr. Gibboney will review the records of the police magistrates and speak generally upon civic conditions.

Edwin S. Lewis, candidate for Register of Wills, will discuss city contracts and probably present a list of the contracts secured by McNichol and Vare in the last few years.

Judge W. Newton, the Rev. Dr. Floyd W. Tomkins, rector of Holy Trinity, and Miss Anna E. Gorman, representing the Equal Franchise Society, will speak briefly from the platform.

It is probable that Mr. Lewis may also discuss the proposed Broad street subway and the Philadelphia Transit Company. It is expected that he will also discuss the Vare-Penrose controversy.

All of the candidates will lay especial stress on the Penn party platform, which includes demands for the reduction of the six-for-a-quarter gas, for a loan of $3,000,000 for elevation of railroads and schools and playgrounds, and for the abolition of the fee system.

It is expected that several hundred people will attend the meeting and a large number of these, it is said, will be ready to make complaint in behalf of their organizations in behalf of the various reforms they favor. This will enable the chairman of the meeting to bring forward the plans to vote on them.

Among those who will be present yesterday [illegible] as vice presidents of the meeting are:

[illegible]	William M. Aleer
[illegible]	Fred. M. Ingle
[illegible]	John W. Mulholland
[illegible]	Robert Ritchie
[illegible]	W. Mayer Wharton
[illegible]	J. Hay Whitney

REFORM GAINS A RECRUIT

Republican Committeeman of 44th Ward Joins Gibboney Stalwarts.

E. M. Holloway, Jr., who declares that he is a member of the Republican committee of the 44th Ward, representing the 12th division, wrote a letter to the Gibboney Stalwart party yesterday, espousing the reform cause.

In his letter he says:

"I worked hard to obtain the nomination of D. Clarence Gibboney for District Attorney on the Republican ticket and earnestly believe that Mr. Gibboney won that nomination.

"The action of the leaders of the Organization in preventing the opening of the ballot boxes has disgusted all decent Republicans who believe in a square deal, and they will resent this action of the contractor-bosses by working hard for an overwhelming majority for Gibboney, Murphy and Lewis on November 2.

"A large number of workers in our ward, who have been loyal to the Organization, no longer trust leaders who, to promote [illegible] with their enemies at the expense of their own loyal supporters, and they now refuse to further stand for men guilty of such treachery.

"I urge every true Republican to at once withdraw his allegiance from the combination of contractor-bosses masquerading under the name of the Republican party, and by voting and working for Gibboney, Murphy and Lewis on November 2 help to restore the Republican party to man who have the principles of the party at heart rather than the advancement of their own selfish interests."

POLITICAL NOTES

Judge Carr heard argument yesterday on the motion for a new trial for Christian W. Hout, the Tenth Ward registrar convicted by a jury in Quarter Sessions Court of [illegible]

Odd Fellows' Building Engaged and Test to Be Made of Right to Make Address.

Emma Goldman, anarchist, lecturer and editor, came from New York at noon yesterday for the purpose of speaking to a Philadelphia audience tonight on the subject of "Anarchism: What It Really Means," in the Odd Fellows' Building.

When Assistant Superintendent O'Leary was asked whether Miss Goldman would be permitted to deliver an address from the Little Hotel Wilmot, also in the plan, he replied:

"Not if a fire hose can prevent her. She had better put on a rubber suit if she undertakes to make a speech there, because she will certainly get a ducking.

"There is nothing more distasteful to anarchists than a stream from a fire engine. I found that to be the most effectual measure to break up riotous gatherings uptown during the car strike last June that could be employed. It saved broken heads and a lot of shooting.

"Put it down there will be no address by Emma Goldman at the Odd Fellows' Building."

Miss Goldman came over in the same train from New York with Mayor Reyburn, and the Mayor observed her, though he did not recognize her as the famous anarchist. He thought, he said, that she "belonged to the suffragist movement." He was attracted by her attire, which he described as canary yellow and at least 40 years behind the Paris mode. The Mayor thought that if she were not a suffragist she might be an actress, not of the chorus girl type, but a one-night-stand artist. Miss Goldman's companions led the Mayor toward this belief.

A few hours after Miss Goldman arrived in the city she submitted to be interviewed. She was found to be not without ideas on a variety of subjects aside from anarchism. She does not like the police, thinks women get the worst of it through life; let drop a few opinions on the scientific subject of the duality of personality, and said she objects to—shrinks from—crowds.

She is a very little woman to have created such a stir, and her face suggests peace and a well ordered life, rather than anarchy and its teachings. She is 40. Led into telling her age she said:

"Oh, it's no matter, when we women have something to our heads we cease to care about being young. It's only the empty headed that want to keep up the farce."

The high priestess of the anarchists is almost good looking. She has light brown hair, which would be very pretty if there were more of it, and a complexion that certain women would go far to get. It is a pink, flesh complexion. Her under lip droops somewhat, which lends the suggestion of sensuality.

She was dressed in a canary and red skirt and a white shirtwaist and wore no jewelry save a modest pin and a plain band ring. She might be described as very magnetic. It is easy to talk to her on serious subjects.

Miss Goldman said that she came from Russia 25 years ago and afterward studied to be a trained nurse. She brought no ideas of war by with her, but absorbed them all in Chicago and other American cities. She got her inspiration for her future life work mainly from the prosecution of the Haymarket rioters in Chicago in 1887. The men ranged elicited her sympathy and she determined to go out and fight the cause of the down-trodden. According to her story she has been traveling a rocky road these 22 years.

There have been some lights, Miss Goldman declared. Mayor Tom Johnson invited her to speak in Cleveland and, according to the literature she is distributing, Elbert Hubbard I has left of her, and Joaquin Miller has entertained her. The Millionaire is the Master Earth Magazine, of which Miss Goldman is the head.

When Miss Goldman was asked what she thought of the suffragist movement she said:

"The ballot won't free women any more than it has freed men. It has really enslaved men and it would do the same thing for women, so I don't approve of women voting. But I, of course, think that women should be entitled to all the privileges men enjoy and, indeed, more, since they populate the world and therefore perform the greatest service to mankind."

"What of the financial aspect of your tours?" she was asked. "Who pays the bills?"

"I am traveling in the interest of my magazine," she replied, "and we always charge admission to our meetings, and the receipts defray our expenses."

Some one inquired why it was that she always managed to reach Philadelphia during a political campaign. Was there any political significance attached to her visits?

"None whatever," she said. "We are absolutely independent of political influences."

Miss Goldman uses good, even fluent English, speaking, however, with a foreign accent, and her voice is rich and pleasant to hear.

With Mr. O'Leary none of these qualities weigh. He looks only at the police record. He drew from his desk certain documents appertaining to Miss Goldman's history. He recalled that he assisted in arresting her in Philadelphia in 1893, when she was "wanted" in New York. According to the records, she tried to speak here in 1901, but failed, and was again unsuccessful in 1904.

She and Doctor Reitman announce, however, that she will be successful in speaking her thoughts tonight or legal proceedings will result. Doctor Reitman said yesterday that he proposed to make a test case, and he intimated that it would be well for Mr. O'Leary to become thoroughly versed in the law.

NO CIVIL SERVICE PLANK

Indorsement of Merit System Omitted, as Reform's Attitude Is Known.

Although it is generally known that the William Penn party approves of civil ser-recover the trust fund for the founding of the home.

Mrs. Mercer, who died in 1881, set aside $100,000 of her estate for the home, but she provided that it should shelter no clergyman who used tobacco in any form. During its 21 years of existence only 33 applications for admittance were received, of which 11 were refused because they failed to show proper eligibility, eight did not pursue their applications and only 15 were admitted. There is only one inmate remaining and the board of managers applied to the Attorney General to institute proceedings for the purpose of applying the trust property for the payment to selected beneficiaries stipulated amounts, to be determined by the managers of the institution.

Ex-Judge W. W. Porter, counsel for the trustees of the estate of Lydia I. Biddle, heir under the Mercer will, objected to this action, contending that, the charity having failed, the property should revert to the heirs.

John G. Johnson and A. Culver Boyd, appearing for the board of managers, maintained that the charity as intended by Mrs. Mercer could be successfully carried out. Peter Boyd, an attorney, who is treasurer of the board of managers of the institution, told Judge Sulzberger that the prohibitive tobacco clause was not the real cause for the small number of applications for admission to the institution, but as no provision had been made in the will for clergymen and their wives the majority of these, even though indigent, did not care to leave their homes. He was of the opinion that if the home ceased to exist the fund could be turned over to the Board of Ministerial Relief of the Presbyterian Church, which cares for 457 clergymen, and that the trust would then be fully carried out.

Judge Sulzberger took the matter under advisement.

SOPHIE BECK ARRAIGNED

Waives Hearing, and May Be Brought to Philadelphia Today.

Mrs. Estella Graham, alias Sophie Beck, who was arrested at Atlantic City on Friday by postal inspectors, on a charge of conspiracy in using the United States mails in the Storey Cotton Company swindle, was arraigned yesterday before United States Commissioner Morgan, of Camden, at the courthouse. The proceedings were a mere formality. Mrs. Graham waived a hearing, and she was remanded to await removal to Philadelphia.

An incident of the hearing was the refusal of Mr. Morgan to permit newspaper photographers to take pictures of the prisoner. He said:

"The defendant is in the custody of the law and helpless. She will be punished for whatever crime she has committed, and I forbid the taking of her picture or the making of any sketches of her, as it would be manifestly unfair."

Mrs. Graham said that efforts to obtain bail would be made in Philadelphia.

Postal Inspector Cortelyou said that before Mrs. Beck is removed to Philadelphia it will be necessary to obtain an order from either Judge Cross or Judge Bellsiah of Trenton, and it is likely that Mrs. Beck will be removed today. In Philadelphia she will probably be arraigned before Judge Holland, who will fix the bail.

It is said that Miss Beck is a Camden woman, and that before her marriage to Graham her name was Schafer.

MAN DOUBLY ACCUSED

Held on Charges Made by Wife and Another Woman.

After several sensational stories told on the witness stand and the announcement of the arrest of one of his accusers, Raymond Warren Broadbent, of 3312 Woodland avenue, was held in $1500 bail for court yesterday afternoon by Magistrate Pole Bigher. Broadbent, formerly a clerk in the City Controller's office, is charged with assault and battery by his wife, Ida May Broadbent, of 4609 Spring Garden street, and with a serious offense by Mrs. May Dietrich on behalf of Rose Yetter, a friend of Mrs. Dietrich. While the hearing was in progress it was announced that Mrs. Dietrich had been arrested on complaint of Broadbent's brother.

Mrs. Broadbent cited three cases where she had been murderously assaulted. Broadbent said that he was a victim of political enemies. He declared that he had been removed from the Controller's office to make room for some one more powerful politically. In answer to this, Sheriff Gilfillan, who, the hearing developed, was attorney for Mrs. Broadbent in divorce proceedings begun some months ago by Broadbent, said that the defendant had been removed for incompetency. Mr. Gilfillan declared that Broadbent's charges against his wife were absolutely groundless, and that the arrest of Mrs. Dietrich appeared to him to be a scheme to bar her testimony in the charges against the prisoner.

TO RAISE RAILROAD PENSIONS

Pennsylvania Employes' Relief Association Discusses $25 Increase.

As a result of a meeting held at Altoona yesterday, the Pennsylvania Railroad Relief Association is likely to adopt a plan by which pensions paid to all retired employes [illegible] a month.

It is proposed to have all members of the association donate two cents each day to make the increased fund. To the high officials $25 a month would be only a small addition to the pensions, but it would be a large addition to the pensions of the great majority of employes.

ACCUSED OF FORGERY

Bookkeeper Arrested on Complaint of Employer.

Leon J. Lippman, of this city, was arrested in New York last night on the charge of forgery. According to the police, Lippman is wanted in this city for obtaining about $2500 from his employer, Thomas

Purchase of Jersey Central Declared to Be Necessary—Wanted to Save Lehigh Valley.

The story of the way the Philadelphia and Reading Railway Company obtained control of the Central Railroad of New Jersey and how the Lehigh Valley Railroad was reorganized and put upon a paying basis was told yesterday by George F. Baer, president of the Reading companies, during a cross-examination conducted for more than three hours by James B. McReynolds and G. Carroll Todd, special assistants to the United States Attorney General. Mr. Baer also reviewed the relations, past and present, existing between various subsidiary companies of the Reading and between the anthracite coal-carrying railroads.

The cross-examination was held on the third floor of the Federal Building. It was a continuance of the suit which has been conducted for the last two years by the Government against the anthracite coal-carrying railroads, which are charged with conspiracy to eliminate competition and to increase the cost of coal.

Mr. Baer took the stand at 10.30 in the morning and held it, with the exception of an hour and a half intermission, until 3.30 in the afternoon. Besides the special attorneys, Major Warren, counsel for the Temple Coal and Iron Company; Samuel Dickson, counsel for the Schuylkill Coal and Navigation Company; former Judge Campbell, of the Reading Railway, and former Judge Moot, representing New York companies, took part in questioning the witness.

It was denied by Mr. Baer that there had been any attempt at conspiracy on the part of the coal roads and in this connection told of the agreements entered into between the railroads and the independent operators of the coal mines. He answered questions as to the regulation of the price of coal and then took up the history of the transactions between his railroad and the Jersey Central.

Mr. Baer explained that the Philadelphia and Reading needed the Jersey Central tracks to enter New York city, which, he said, is the general distributing point for anthracite coal. For a number of years unsuccessful efforts had been made to unite the roads. An attempt to obtain a lease had failed because the courts had decided that under the laws of New Jersey a lease could not be given.

Story of Jersey Central.

In 1900, Mr. Baer said, he had learned that the interests which controlled the stock of the Jersey Central road were willing to sell and that they had refused an offer from the Baltimore and Ohio as being too low. He saw the danger to the Reading in case adverse interests should obtain the Jersey Central and at the same time realized the opportunity to obtain control of the road for the Reading.

"The situation demanded prompt action," continued Reading's president. "I told J. Pierpont Morgan, a voting trustee of the Reading Company, that I thought I could buy the line legally by obtaining a majority of the stock. I made a critical examination of the reports of the road for several years to see if we could buy it profitably. Inside of a week arrangements were made whereby the stock was bought."

"One allegation of the Government was that the Reading Company in payment of the stock did not make a bona fide purchase," interrupted former Judge Campbell. "In other words, that the transaction was effected by an exchange of securities. Is that true?"

"I do not know where such stories originated," replied Mr. Baer. "We created a syndicate and the Reading bonds were sold to it and good money was paid for them."

In connection with the history of the reorganization of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, Mr. Baer declared that the anthracite coal carrying roads had never held a majority of its stock and that they only managed the road through the consent of the other stockholders. He referred to the bad condition of affairs which had befallen the Lehigh Valley Railroad before an interest in it was acquired by the anthracite coal carrying roads.

"It was thought very dangerous," he continued, "to let the Lehigh Valley Railroad at that time go into the hands of receivers, because of the effect it would have on the other railroads."

He learned of the possibility of the purchase of the stock of the Asa Packer estate, Mr. Baer said.

"Mr. Morgan," he continued, "was anxious that it should be done. I saw Mr. Bliss, secretary about the Packer stocks. This [illegible] and their division among four of the anthracite coal carrying roads. We had to change presidents. Then we got Mr. Thomas, of the Erie Railroad, to come in, and now we have managed the Lehigh Valley ten years and demonstrated its ability to take care of itself.

"We never had a majority of the stock. We never sought it. The stockholders in the Lehigh Valley Railroad always sustained us. The reason we took hold of the road was because we feared the general effect which the failure of one company has upon another."

Agreements With Independents.

Other points brought out in Mr. Baer's testimony were the arrangements between the independent coal operators and the coal carrying companies, the fixing of the price of coal and [illegible]

840514068

The Emma Goldman Papers

In Justice to Leon Szolgosz / Emma Goldman. – pp. 239-241 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 4, no. 8 (Oct. 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

The police threatened to stop not only Miss Goldman, but any one else who dared to say a word on the subject.

The Single Taxers meanwhile at their open-air meeting at the Plaza of the City Hall denounced the action of the Director and passed condemnatory resolutions. On Tuesday a committee of them visited the Director and informed him of their attitude, as a result of which, Mr. Clay addressed a letter to Mr. Reitman requesting the submission of Miss Goldman's manuscript to him, that he might determine what further action to take. This communication was met by an emphatic refusal on the part of counsel for the Free Speech Association, Henry John Nelson, declaring that any such action on the part of Miss Goldman would be to recognize a self-constituted censorship, wholly illegal. Thereupon the police were ordered to allow the meeting to proceed, but to prevent Miss Goldman from entering the hall.

Between three and four hundred uniformed men, accordingly, were sent to Odd Fellows' Temple to prevent one small woman from forcing her way into the hall. These men acted with their usual brutality, shoving and hustling men, women, and even little children about the street in a most insulting and brutal manner.

When Miss Goldman arrived, in company with Mr. Nelson, Timothy O'Leary, the prize ruffian of Philadelphia, commanded her in the words and tone of the hired "tough" which he is: "Go back where you came from. You can't come in here." Thus forced down the steps, and followed by a squad of police who would not allow her even to walk upon any street leading in the direction of the hall, Miss Goldman finally was allowed to go to her attorney's office, where it was determined to apply to the courts for an injunction the following day.

Meanwhile the meeting was proceeding, being addressed by Messrs. Robinson, Ryan, Hannon, and Guerrera, Single Taxers; Mr. Henderson, Socialist; Mr. Reitman and myself. The chairman, Mr. Munroe, put condemnatory resolutions, which were unanimously passed by the meeting.

The police stood two and three deep around the room, in the outer corridors, and double lining the street for a block, during the entire meeting. Most of the speakers paid their compliments to the "guardians of law" with more or less directness; all insisted that it was no longer a question of Miss Goldman or her ideas, but of the right of free speech to all.

On Friday morning the hearing in the injunction case came before Judges Wilson and Audenried. At present writing no decision has been reached, and it is very problematical when it will be or what it will be. Anarchists are always met by the argument, "Use such means to obtain your rights as the law grants, and do not say you have no rights until these means are tried." Well, this time they are being tried, with what effect we shall see. Fair reports have been given by the Ledger and the Record, and one or two editorials strongly censuring the Director have appeared. A number of letters from citizens have also given voice to the sentiment of the constitutional element of the community. The mass, however, are indifferent.

VOLTAIRINE DE CLEYRE.

* * *

IN JUSTICE TO LEON SZOLGOSZ

EDITOR OF PUBLIC LEDGER:

In the issue of your paper of the 6th instant, there appeared the following letter:

"Sir:—The fact that the assassin of William McKinley, under oath, swore that he attributed his act of crime to the utterances of Emma Goldman, is ground enough for preventing her speaking here. T. T. H."

Among decent people it is customary to ignore any printed accusation that is not signed in full.

However, I ask the courtesy of your paper, not for my defense, but for the benefit of your readers who, I take it, believe in hearing both sides.

T. T. H. states that the "assassin of William McKinley swore under oath that he attributes his act of crime to the utterance of Emma Goldman." It requires but little logic to see that T. T. H. speaks from hearsay and not from knowledge.

If the "assassin" had given any such sworn testimony, would not the authorities have confronted him with me, and would that not have been sufficient evidence, espe-

654

840514068

The Emma Goldman Papers

In Justice to Leon Szolgosz / Emma Goldman. – pp. 239-241 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 4, no. 8 (Oct. 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

cially at that moment of popular frenzy, to hold me for trial, nay, even to send me to prison?

For the enlightenment of T. T. H. permit me to say that the State of New York employed 200 detectives and spent $30,000 to connect me with the "assassin." Evidently, they were leaving nothing undone to get sufficient evidence. Is it reasonable, then, to assume that sworn testimony, such as is referred to in the letter of T. T. H., would have been allowed to pass?

In justice to that victim of economic iniquity and social ignorance, Leon Czolgosz, I wish to state once for all, that he made no such statement, under oath or otherwise, nor had he ever claimed to be an Anarchist.

Leon Czolgosz made one statement when he was placed in the electric chair, and the good Christian Brothers, in their great Christian love attempted to draw a confession from their helpless victim.

They told him that Emma Goldman had denounced him as a worthless beggar, or something to that effect. "It makes no difference what she says, she knew nothing of the act," was the "assassin's" reply.

As to what else that boy may or may not have said, only his warders and the prison walls know.

Warders, in the sublime words of Oscar Wilde, "must set a lock upon their lips, and make their face a mask," and again,

"Every prison that men build for men,
Is built with bricks of shame
And bound with bars, lest Christ should see
How men their brothers maim."

No, the "assassin" has made no statements, nor could there be found even circumstantial evidence to connect me in any way.

Besides, I absolutely deny that utterances, no matter how incendiary, have ever induced any one to commit violence. Two conditions are necessary for such acts: First, a great social wrong that is undermining the liberties of a people. Secondly, a deep, sensitive social or individual psychology, incapable of enduring that wrong. Where these factors are lacking, one might preach violence from every housetop without the slightest result. On the other hand, where social conditions outrage every sense of justice, violent acts are their natural results.

This brings me to the most vital point. Not Anarchism, the philosophy of social peace and harmony, nor Emma Goldman's speeches are responsible for the act of the "assassin" of William McKinley, but people like T. T. H., like those who are attempting to throttle free speech. In fact, all those who are maintaining and supporting a system which, as Thomas Paine said, "Sends old age to the workhouse and youth to the gallows."

No doubt T. T. H. means well, but he has much to learn. I suggest that he attend the Free Speech Meeting, Friday night, at the Labor Lyceum. He might learn there what liberty really means.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

Philadelphia, Oct. 7th, 1909.

* * *

IN DEFENSE OF FREE SPEECH

THE police suppression of Emma Goldman in Philadelphia has resulted in a systematic campaign of agitation against the forces of reaction.

Single Taxers and other radicals have joined hands with the Anarchists in defense of free speech. A series of protest meetings is being arranged, in order to arouse the publice consciousness to the outrage upon the freedom of speech and assembly. The first meeting of the series took place Friday, October 8th, proving a most interesting and enthusiastic affair. Various speakers addressed the meeting, among them ex-Congressman Robert Baker, Frank Stephens, Voltairine De Cleyre, George Brown, Dr. Ben L. Reitman, and others. Leonard D. Abbott, Chairman of the Free Speech Committee, presided. Letters of sympathy and encouragement were read from prominent lovers of liberty from various parts of the country. Several of these communications are reprinted below. The complete report of the protest meeting will be published in our next issue.

Philadelphia, October 7, 1909.

DEAR ABBOTT:

I am glad you are to preside at the meeting to-morrow night. Our meeting is not called as a protest against 655

840514069

The Emma Goldman Papers

In Defense of Free Speech / Emma Goldman. — pp. 241-243 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. — Vol. 4, no. 7 (Oct. 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

cially at that moment of popular frenzy, to hold me for trial, nay, even to send me to prison?

For the enlightenment of T. T. H. permit me to say that the State of New York employed 200 detectives and spent $30,000 to connect me with the "assassin." Evidently, they were leaving nothing undone to get sufficient evidence. Is it reasonable, then, to assume that sworn testimony, such as is referred to in the letter of T. T. H., would have been allowed to pass?

In justice to that victim of economic iniquity and social ignorance, Leon Czolgosz, I wish to state once for all, that he made no such statement, under oath or otherwise, nor had he ever claimed to be an Anarchist.

Leon Czolgosz made one statement when he was placed in the electric chair, and the good Christian Brothers, in their great Christian love attempted to draw a confession from their helpless victim.

They told him that Emma Goldman had denounced him as a worthless beggar, or something to that effect. "It makes no difference what she says, she knew nothing of the act," was the "assassin's" reply.

As to what else that boy may or may not have said, only his warders and the prison walls know.

Warders, in the sublime words of Oscar Wilde, "must set a lock upon their lips, and make their face a mask," and again,

> "Every prison that men build for men,
> Is built with bricks of shame
> And bound with bars, lest Christ should see
> How men their brothers maim."

No, the "assassin" has made no statements, nor could there be found even circumstantial evidence to connect me in any way.

Besides, I absolutely deny that utterances, no matter how incendiary, have ever induced any one to commit violence. Two conditions are necessary for such acts: First, a great social wrong that is undermining the liberties of a people. Secondly, a deep, sensitive social or individual psychology, incapable of enduring that wrong. Where these factors are lacking, one might preach violence from every housetop without the slightest result. On the other hand, where social conditions outrage every sense of justice, violent acts are their natural results.

This brings me to the most vital point. Not Anarchism, the philosophy of social peace and harmony, nor Emma Goldman's speeches are responsible for the act of the "assassin" of William McKinley, but people like T. T. H., like those who are attempting to throttle free speech. In fact, all those who are maintaining and supporting a system which, as Thomas Paine said, "Sends old age to the workhouse and youth to the gallows."

No doubt T. T. H. means well, but he has much to learn. I suggest that he attend the Free Speech Meeting, Friday night, at the Labor Lyceum. He might learn there what liberty really means.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

Philadelphia, Oct. 7th, 1909.

* * *

IN DEFENSE OF FREE SPEECH

THE police suppression of Emma Goldman in Philadelphia has resulted in a systematic campaign of agitation against the forces of reaction.

Single Taxers and other radicals have joined hands with the Anarchists in defense of free speech. A series of protest meetings is being arranged, in order to arouse the publice consciousness to the outrage upon the freedom of speech and assembly. The first meeting of the series took place Friday, October 8th, proving a most interesting and enthusiastic affair. Various speakers addressed the meeting, among them ex-Congressman Robert Baker, Frank Stephens, Voltairine De Cleyre, George Brown, Dr. Ben L. Reitman, and others. Leonard D. Abbott, Chairman of the Free Speech Committee, presided. Letters of sympathy and encouragement were read from prominent lovers of liberty from various parts of the country. Several of these communications are reprinted below. The complete report of the protest meeting will be published in our next issue.

Philadelphia, October 7, 1909.

DEAR ABBOTT:

I am glad you are to preside at the meeting to-morrow night. Our meeting is not called as a protest against

656

840514069

The Emma Goldman Papers

In Defense of Free Speech / Emma Goldman. – pp. 241-243 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 4, no. 7 (Oct. 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

the State of Pennsylvania, but on behalf of the State of Pennsylvania. The victim of last week's mistake in Philadelphia was not Emma Goldman but the State of Pennsylvania. We know that Emma Goldman survived that incident unhurt. But who can say that the State of Pennsylvania survived that incident unhurt?

Our meeting is not inspired by an interest in one person or one idea. It belongs to all persons and all ideas. Anybody can stand oppression easier than the oppressor. Emma Goldman can stand the police administration of Philadelphia better than the State of Pennsylvania can stand the police administration of Philadelphia. In the arenas of free speech the last idea is as good as the first. The idea of one is as good as the idea of all. The ideas of minorities are as good as the ideas of majorities. It would be as much right for the one rebel to gag all the conformists as for all the conformists to gag the one rebel.

The police administration of Philadelphia stands for the club. We stand for thought and love. The police are always given the choice of weapons and sometimes they choose the weapon of barbarism. The man who trusts his brain and his heart so little that he appeals to the club in contests of the brain and the heart retains the vision of the savage and can enjoy no prestige in the courts of the soul. The trouble in Philadelphia is not so much the policeman as the police consciousness. And I may say that I am less interested in getting the people out of the hands of the policeman than in getting the police consciousness out of the brains of the people. And I may say that it's not half so sad to see the liberties of Philadelphia threatened as to see that there is no general protest against the threat. Not half so sad to see a few men misusing a few clubs as to see a whole community misusing a lot of brains. Not half so sad to know that a handful of misguided officials make a mockery of justice as to know that many thousands who would like to dare not join us in this protest. Not half so sad to have a little woman stopped by a big bluff from speaking as to have a whole city stopped by a little bluff from hearing. Not half so sad, my brothers. Not half so sad.

HORACE TRAUBEL.

MY DEAR LEONARD ABBOTT:

It has been decreed by "the wise fathers of this city" that I may not be with you to-night. Do you think Philadelphia will still be safe if I send you a message instead?

Henrik Ibsen said that the majority accepts a great truth only when it has become a lie.

Whosoever doubted Ibsen's deep understanding of the mass psychology had ample opportunity to be convinced in Philadelphia Tuesday, September 28th.

Ten thousand people came to a meeting at Odd Fellows' Temple, but because the majority has turned a great truth into a lie, free speech was stabbed in the heart, Tuesday evening, September 28th.

Life! liberty! happiness! The inalienable right to free thought and expression, in the old long ago, represented a truth for the unpopular few. A sublime truth, for which men gave their all. The penalty of that truth was death. Heroic, unflinching death!

Liberty, independence, free speech, free assemblage are now popular slogans, hailed and proclaimed by all. Liberty by the "grace" of the law, independence at the behest of gold, free speech at the mercy of the club. What mockery, what terrible absurdity.

Ibsen is right; the majority has accepted the truth only when it became a lie, a hideous, brazen lie.

It was that lie, more than the police department of Philadelphia, that made the outrage of September 28th possible.

Men had been known to shed their last drop of blood for a truth, but who would expect anyone to rise in rebellion for a lie?

That's why ten thousand people submitted supinely to the brutal force of police clubs.

I register my protest not against the gagging of my voice. Silence is more powerful than speech. I protest with all the ardor of my soul against the perpetuation of the majority lie.

Liberty fettered by law! Independence at the behest of gold! Freedom of expression at the mercy of the club!

I protest against this lie, against this hideous, brazen lie.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

657

890501001

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Testimony] Emma Goldman Talks Anarchy Before Judges / Emma Goldman.— p. 1 ; 43 cm. In Public Ledger [Philadelphia]. —(Oct. 2, 1909).

Obtained from the Pennsylvania State University Libraries, University Park, PA.

...URDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 2, 1909.—22 PAGES. PRICE ONE CENT.

EIGHT PAGES
COPPER ETCHINGS

The Finest Newspaper Supplement Issued in America

12 PAGES OF MAGAZINE EQUAL TO ANY 25 CENT MONTHLY PERIODICAL.

4 PAGES OF WOMAN'S SECTION (4 COLORS). BY ANNE RITTENHOUSE, THE FASHION AUTHORITY.

4 PAGES OF COMIC AND CHILDREN'S SECTIONS (4 COLORS).

32 PAGES MOST COMPLETE NEWS SECTIONS.

60 PAGES IN ALL.

THE SUNDAY PUBLIC LEDGER

COOK STORY CALLS OUT NEW CRITICISM

Prof. Updegraff, of Naval Observatory, Finds Extraordinary Speed Record.

24.78 MILES FOR 18 DAYS

WASHINGTON BUREAU, THE PUBLIC LEDGER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—While Washington scientists refused tonight to go into the controversial aspects of the apparent contradiction in Doctor Cook's story this morning, in which he declared that after a day of "dazzling light" he saw the sun set for a few moments on April 3, 1908, after having been quoted before as explaining his not having seen the midnight sun as early as April 1 by the fact that the weather was cloudy from that date to the 7th, Prof. Milton Updegraff, of the Naval Observatory, gave some facts about the midnight sun that make it clear that Doctor Cook, according to his story, as printed this morning, had to travel during the last 17 days of his journey northward at an average speed of nearly 25 miles a day.

Doctor Cook's first accounts claimed an average of something like 15 miles, though that average probably applied to a longer period than the 17 days now under consideration. Commander Peary has claimed a daily speed of 35 miles a day. Nevertheless, an average of 24.78 miles is considered extraordinary for so long a period as 18 consecutive days.

Professor Updegraff is director of the Nautical Almanac and in giving figures he read from the official publication of the observatory.

On April 3, 1908, the date referred to in Doctor Cook's account, the lowest point at which the midnight sun could have been observed, according to Professor Updegraff, was 54 degrees 20 minutes, or, according to the technical phraseology, the declination of the sun, as appearing to an observer at the North Pole, was 5 degrees 40 minutes.

A degree is about 69½ miles in length. In Doctor Cook's account as printed this morning he said that on April 3 the weather became settled and clear, while the sun at midnight sank for a few moments. That would make April 4 the first day on which Doctor Cook first saw the midnight sun, or could have seen it if the weather continued clear.

According to the figures given by Professor Updegraff, the lowest point at which the midnight sun could have been seen on April 4, 1908, was 51 degrees and 56 minutes, a distance of 6 degrees 5 minutes from the Pole. That means approximately 421 miles, according to the data supplied by Professor Updegraff, and from April 4 to 21, when the Pole was discovered, leaves only 17 days for that part of the journey.

The lowest points at which the midnight sun could have been seen on the days of the week following April 1, 1908, with the distances from the Pole, are given below:

[illegible] degrees [illegible]

SLAYS CELLMATE WITH A RAZOR

Quarrel Over Crust of Bread Results in Killing of Prisoner.

BRIEF FIGHT FOR LIFE

Weapon Given to Convicts to Enable Them to Shave Themselves.

Possession of a crust of bread was the incentive of a desperate quarrel in Holmesburg County Prison yesterday morning, which resulted in the death of Peter Gimbronia, at the hands of his cellmate, Antons Zachish. The blade of a razor which had been given to the men in order that they might shave themselves, as is customary every Friday morning, was the weapon used by the slayer.

Zachish showed remorse when his deed was discovered by Matthew Hastings, the keeper, and said that if he had not succeeded in killing Gimbronia, his own life would have been forfeited. The man's explanation was borne out by the fact that the handle of the razor was found tightly clutched in Gimbronia's hand. According to Zachish's story, Gimbronia attempted to cut him during their quarrel over the bread. Zachish wrestled with the man and succeeded in knocking the blade from the handle. Both men made a dive for the blade, and Zachish was the first to reach it. A desperate struggle ensued, Gimbronia endeavoring to ward off his opponent with the razor handle. Zachish finally had his opportunity and struck a fatal blow.

Attracted by the scream of the victim, Hastings ran to the cell with his revolver in hand, to find Zachish standing over the dead form.

"I killed the man; yes, I killed the dog" were the first words that greeted the guard.

The quarrel and its fatal ending occupied only a few minutes. When Hastings gave the men their allowance of bread and the razor they were apparently in good humor, and were chatting amicably. The guard had inadvertently placed a crust of bread in the combined portion of bread that was given to the two men and the claim of both men for the extra allowance led to the fight. Hastings had not reached the end of Block C, on his round with the bread and the razors, when he heard the disturbance in Cell 48.

The two men, who were convicted on separate charges of aggravated assault and battery, have been cellmates since July 19 and were regarded as model prisoners. The men, being fellow-countrymen, soon became friends and were never known to quarrel, and their keepers never experienced any trouble with them whatever.

Gimbronia was sentenced to 18 months by Judge Ralston, on July 8. He was accused by Emanuel Maganico of assaulting him. Special Policemen Jackson and Smith, of the 23d and Brown streets station, testified that Gimbronia had brutally beaten Maganico.

Zachish was sentenced to one year on July 15 by Judge Ralston. He had beaten Marco Zarish, of 237 New street, during a quarrel at the latter's home. Gimbronia lived at 913 South Fairhill street.

Zachish will be kept in solitary confinement until the Coroner's inquest, which, probably, will be held on Monday.

It is the custom in the Eastern Penitentiary and the Moyamensing and Holmesburg Prisons to distribute razors to the prisoners three times a week, Monday, Wednesday and Friday. The men are closely watched while they are shaving themselves, to prevent any attempt to harm either themselves or their cellmates.

BOY KILLS BABY WITH PISTOL

Climbs After Weapon on Bedroom Shelf and Causes Its Discharge.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO PUBLIC LEDGER.]

HOBOKEN, N. J., Oct. 1.—Edna Hansen, 4 years old, was shot and killed today by her seven-year-old brother, Charles, at their home, 515 Willow avenue.

The children were playing in a bedroom, where [illegible]

WHITNEY AT SALEM

Does Not Go to Boston to Meet Cook, as Was Expected.

SALEM, Mass., Oct. 1.—Harry Whitney, who is on his way home from Greenland, left the St. John's express here tonight instead of continuing to Boston, where it was thought he might meet Doctor Cook. On the journey Mr. Whitney remained most of the time in his Pullman compartment with friends. In response to an inquiry at Portland he said:

"The report that a meeting has been arranged between Doctor Cook and myself is unfortunate. I have had no communication with either Doctor Cook or Mr. Peary."

Regarding Doctor Cook's records, Mr. Whitney said that when Doctor Cook gave him the boxes at Etah the explorer opened one, remarking, "This contains my instruments," and showed them to Mr. Whitney. There was another box which Doctor Cook did not open, and the contents of which Mr. Whitney says he did not know, though he has no reason to doubt Doctor Cook's statement that in it were rough drafts and notes concerning the discovery of the North Pole.

LIPTON COMING TO U. S.

British Sportsman Will Again Challenge N. Y. Yacht Club.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Joseph Garretson, of Cincinnati, who was among the passengers to arrive on the steamship Mauretania last night, brought word from Sir Thomas Lipton that he would sail from England for New York on October 9, to make a tour of the country and to issue a challenge to the New York Yacht Club. Referring to his plans, Sir Thomas said:

"I will race for the cup if I am permitted to do so on even terms. But I will not engage to sail a marine freak across the ocean to compete against a skimming dish. When the Shamrock crossed the ocean she came within an ace of sinking with all hands on, and I shall never ask another man to subject his life to such useless risks."

Sir Thomas further said that he hoped the New York Yacht Club would permit a race under conditions he would suggest.

Members of the New York Yacht Club tonight made it clear that there has been no change of sentiment in the club since a similar proposition of the Irish Baronet was rejected two years ago, and that the club still holds that the famous America's trophy stands for maximum speed on the required water line length. It was pointed out by some of the members that gossip regarding challenges for the America's Cup, especially by friends of Sir Thomas, are perennial at this season of the year, as under the rules challenges must be made before November 1 in order to comply with the 10 months' rule allowed to build a defender.

GIFT FOR CHINESE NAVY

American Fleet Officers to Present $1000 Punch Bowl.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO PUBLIC LEDGER.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—The Imperial Chinese, as well as the Imperial Japanese, navy is to be remembered in splendid fashion by the officers and enlisted men of the Atlantic fleet who made the round-the-world voyage last year. Only those officers and men who were serving in the second squadron of the fleet are responsible for the Chinese gift.

The token that is going to China is a magnificent punch bowl more than two feet high and costing more than $1000. It is the joint gift of the officers and men of the battleships Louisiana, Virginia, Georgia, Wisconsin, Illinois, Kearsarge, Kentucky and Ohio, the vessels that visited Hongkong under Rear Admiral Schroeder, the present commander in chief of the Atlantic fleet.

BOY'S STRANGE ACCIDENT

Clothes Catch in a Tree, and He Hangs Head Down Half an Hour.

Harry McGurry, 14 years old, of 611 Baker street, hung head down nearly half an hour yesterday as a result of a fall from one of the top limbs of a chestnut tree. His clothes caught on a lower limb and, do all that he and two youthful companions could, he could not free himself.

Finally Edward Groves, a farmer, drove along. He had a rope and one of the other boys got this around McGurry's body. Then the lad was hauled to safety. He was unconscious.

REAL HERO IN COLLEGE LIFE

EMMA GOLDMAN TALKS ANARCHY BEFORE JUDGES

Would Destroy All Governments, She Admits, When Appealing for Right of Speech.

DECISION IS RESERVED

Action to Prevent Police Interference With Her Public Lectures Heard in Court.

Anarchistic teachings of Emma Goldman, in which she openly advocated the abolition of all government, figured prominently in a hearing yesterday before Judges Willson and Audenried, of the injunction proceedings brought by her to prevent police interference with her public lectures.

Miss Goldman had an early opportunity to explain her views on anarchy. While she unhesitatingly admitted her desire to see the ultimate overthrow of the government, even by force, if necessary, she maintained that during her 20 years in the lecture field, only on one occasion had she been stopped from speaking.

The colloquy between Judge Willson and the woman proved the most interesting feature of the proceedings, especially to the men and women followers of the anarchist, who sat about her in the courtroom. Miss Goldman, wearing a loose, black silk gown and a fancy shawl, sat within a few feet of Mayor Reyburn and Director Clay, whom she had named among the defendants in her suit.

Questioned by the Court.

She was the first witness, and, following her examination by Henry John Nelson, her counsel, upon her teachings and writings, Judge Willson questioned her as follows:

Q. Then your views of what you call anarchy are to this effect: that there ought to be no government and that all government ought to be destroyed, and each person take care of himself according to his views of right and wrong? A. My ideas are to the effect that the people, if properly educated and developed, can take care of themselves. They need no government at such a stage of education and development. The Government could then be destroyed, and—

Q. Even by force? A. In some future time, yes, when the people are able to take care of themselves, government should be destroyed.

Assistant City Solicitors James I. Alcorn and Andrew Wright Crawford, representing the police officials, cross-examined Miss Goldman on her arrest and [illegible] in New York for inciting to riot, and read extracts from the pamphlets sent to the department as indicating the nature of her proposed lectures. These included "Anarchy and What It Really Stands For," and a book on the marriage state, but the Court ruled out Miss Goldman's views as expressed in the latter book. Judge Willson also declined to permit Mr. Alcorn to examine the woman regarding the statement attributed to Czolgosz, the slayer of President McKinley, that he committed the crime at her suggestion.

After she had resumed her seat, Miss Goldman asked permission to say something, and, although her counsel attempted to quiet her, Judge Willson told her to come to the bar of the court and said that she might add anything supporting the argument of her attorney.

"For 20 years," she said, "I have been in the public lecture field, and in all that time I have never been stopped from speaking, except in one instance in 1908. Why then have the police authorities of this city the right to prevent me from speaking before I have been heard? If we have free speech, every human being has the right to talk, at the same time being ready to take the consequences of his or her remarks."

Reitman Once More.

Dr. Ben H. Reitman, manager for Miss Goldman, created amusement while telling of an address he made in Odd Fellows' Temple last Tuesday night after Miss Goldman had been prevented from speaking. The topic of his address, he said, was: "Malignant Police Brutality That Made Philadelphia Blush." Mr. Alcorn, to show that the address was of incen-

658

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

890501001

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Testimony] Emma Goldman Talks Anarchy Before Judges / Emma Goldman.— p. 1 ; 43 cm. In Public Ledger [Philadelphia]. —(Oct. 2, 1909).

Obtained from the Pennsylvania State University Libraries, University Park, PA.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—While Washington scientists refused tonight to go into the controversial aspects of the apparent contradiction in Doctor Cook's story this morning, in which he declared that after a day of "dazzling light" he saw the sun set for a few moments on April 3, 1908, after having been quoted before as explaining his not having seen the midnight sun as early as April 1 by the fact that the weather was cloudy from that date to the 7th, Prof Milton Updegraff, of the Naval Observatory, gave some facts about the midnight sun that make it clear that Doctor Cook, according to his story, as printed this morning, had to travel during the last 17 days of his journey northward at an average speed of nearly 35 miles a day.

Doctor Cook's first accounts claimed an average of something like 15 miles, though that average probably applied to a longer period than the 17 days now under consideration. Commander Peary has claimed a daily speed of 35 miles a day. Nevertheless, an average of 34.71 miles is considered extraordinary for so long a period as 18 consecutive days.

Professor Updegraff is director of the Nautical Almanac and in giving figures he read from the official publication of the Observatory.

On April 3, 1908, the date referred to in Doctor Cook's account, the lowest point at which the midnight sun could have been observed, according to Professor Updegraff, was 84 degrees 20 minutes, or, according to the technical phraseology, the declination of the sun, as appearing to an observer at the North Pole, was 5 degrees 40 minutes.

A degree is about 69½ miles in length. In Doctor Cook's account as printed this morning he said that on April 3 the weather became settled and clear, while the sun at midnight sank for a few moments. That would make April 4 the first day on which Doctor Cook first saw the midnight sun, or could have seen it if the weather continued clear.

According to the figures given by Professor Updegraff, the lowest point at which the midnight sun could have been seen on April 4, 1908, was 81 degrees and 55 minutes, a distance of 8 degrees 5 minutes from the Pole. That means approximately 421 miles, according to the data supplied by Professor Updegraff, and from April 4 to 21, when the Pole was discovered, leaves only 17 days for that part of his journey.

The lowest points at which the midnight sun could have been seen on the days of the week following April 1, 1908, with the distances from the Pole, are given below.

April 1—85 degrees 5 minutes, 240 miles.
April 2—85 degrees 2 minutes, 344 miles.
April 3—84 degrees 20 minutes, 392 miles.
April 4—83 degrees 55 minutes, 431 miles.
April 5—83 degrees 15 minutes, 444 miles.
April 6—82 degrees 10 minutes, 473 miles.
April 7—82 degrees 40 minutes, 496 miles.

This would mean that if Doctor Cook saw the midnight sun for the first time April 7, as he has been quoted as saying, and if the lateness of that date was due simply to his position and not to the cloudiness of the sky, he would have been on or about the 82d parallel, with nearly 500 miles to cover in the 14 days remaining before April 21, when he says he reached the Pole.

Prof. Willis Moore, Chief of the Weather Bureau and president of the National Geographical Society, will not introduce Doctor Cook when he delivers his lecture in the National Theatre here Sunday evening. Professor Moore's declination to serve is explained by the neutral attitude preserved so far by the society, and his own unwillingness to seem by his personal activity to put the stamp of official approval on Doctor Cook's exploits. Personally, he said, he would gladly welcome Doctor Cook.

AIDS MAN HER AUTO INJURED

Holds Victim's Head in Her Lap in Accident on Fifth Avenue.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO PUBLIC LEDGER.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Mrs. Marion Story, of 20 Park avenue, was riding past Madison Square Park, in Fifth avenue, in her automobile today when it struck and knocked down John Colton, a laborer. Mrs. Story turned upon the lever of the car and stepped to the street, and as Colton lay on the ground moaning from pain caused by a broken rib, she took his head in her lap and comforted him until an ambulance arrived from Bellevue Hospital.

Colton refused to let a traffic policeman arrest Mrs. Story's chauffeur.

Snowstorm Near Elmira, N. Y.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Oct. 1.—Snow fell this morning in considerable quantity at Dundee, a village north of this city.

Attracted by the scream of the victim, Hastings ran to the cell with his revolver in hand, to find Zachish standing over the dead form.

"I killed the man; yes, I killed the dog!" were the first words that greeted the guard.

The quarrel and its fatal ending occupied only a few minutes. When Hastings gave the men their allowance of bread and the razor they were apparently in good humor, and were chatting amicably. The guard had inadvertently placed a crust of bread in the combined portion of bread that was given to the two men and the claim of both men for the extra allowance led to the fight. Hastings had not reached the end of Block C, on his round with the bread and the razors, when he heard the disturbance in Cell 48.

The two men, who were convicted on separate charges of aggravated assault and battery, have been cellmates since July 15 and were regarded as model prisoners. The men, being fellow-countrymen, soon became friends and were never known to quarrel, and their keepers never experienced any trouble with them whatever.

Gimbronia was sentenced to 18 months by Judge Ralston, on July 8. He was accused by Emanuel Maganico of assaulting him. Special Policemen Jackson and Smith, of the 22d and Brown streets station, testified that Gimbronia had brutally beaten Maganico.

Zachish was sentenced to one year on July 15 by Judge Ralston. He had beaten Marco Zarish, of 237 New street, during a quarrel at the latter's home. Gimbronia lived at 913 South Fairhill street.

Zachish will be kept in solitary confinement until the Coroner's inquest, which, probably, will be held on Monday.

It is the custom in the Eastern Penitentiary and the Moyamensing and Holmesburg Prisons to distribute razors to the prisoners three times a week, Monday, Wednesday and Friday. The men are closely watched while they are shaving themselves, to prevent any attempt to harm either themselves or their cellmates.

BOY KILLS BABY WITH PISTOL

Climbs After Weapon on Bedroom Shelf and Causes Its Discharge.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO PUBLIC LEDGER.]

HOBOKEN, N. J., Oct. 1.—Edna Hansen, 4 years old, was shot and killed today by her seven-year-old brother, Charles, at their home, 515 Willow avenue.

The children were playing in a bedroom, where there was a revolver on a shelf over the bed.

It is supposed that the boy got up on the bed and took down the revolver, and that it went off as he was clambering down.

The other persons in the house rushed to the bedroom and found the little girl lying dead, while her brother was frantically beseeching her to speak to him. The bullet penetrated the little girl's left lung.

CORN FAMINE IN MEXICO

90 Per Cent. of Vegetables Also Destroyed; May Lift Import Duty.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 1.—Mexico faces a corn famine which will require the lifting of the import duty on that cereal, according to Luis Balcetrier, secretary of the Sociedad Agricola Mexicana. The recent frost, which worked injury to the crop estimated at millions, is but the culmination of a series of disasters to farmers of the republic, including copious rains, droughts and tornadoes. In former famines the Government has lifted the duty on imported corn.

Ninety per cent. of the vegetable crop is also destroyed, and prices in some instances are doubled.

MILITIA GUARD NEGROES

Surround Jail in Mississippi to Prevent Lynching.

COLUMBUS, Miss., Oct. 1.—Anticipating that an attempt would be made to lynch Henry and Reese Betts, negroes, charged with the killing of J. W. Smith, a prominent planter, because of the acquittal today of another negro charged with arson, the county jail here was placed under guard of the local military company tonight on request of the Sheriff.

"Drys" Carry Virginia Town.

WINCHESTER, Va., Oct. 1.—The local option election at Woodstock, Va., today resulted in a victory for the "drys," the majority being 31. Two years ago the town went "dry" by a majority of one vote.

Sir Thomas further said that he hoped the New York Yacht Club would permit a race under conditions he would suggest.

Members of the New York Yacht Club tonight made it clear that there has been no change of sentiment in the club since a similar proposition of the Irish Baronet was rejected two years ago, and that the club still holds that the famous America's trophy stands for maximum speed on the required water line length. It was pointed out by some of the members that gossip regarding challenges for the America's Cup, especially by friends of Sir Thomas, are perennial at this season of the year, as under the rules challenges must be made before November 1 in order to comply with the 10 months' rule allowed to build a defender.

GIFT FOR CHINESE NAVY

American Fleet Officers to Present $1000 Punch Bowl.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO PUBLIC LEDGER.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—The Imperial Chinese, as well as the Imperial Japanese, navy is to be remembered in splendid fashion by the officers and enlisted men of the Atlantic fleet who made the round-the-world voyage last year. Only those officers and men who were serving in the second squadron of the fleet are responsible for the Chinese gift.

The token that is going to China is a magnificent punch bowl more than two feet high and costing more than $1000. It is the joint gift of the officers and men of the battleships Louisiana, Virginia, Georgia, Wisconsin, Illinois, Kearsarge, Kentucky and Ohio, the vessels that visited Hongkong under Rear Admiral Schroeder, the present commander in chief of the Atlantic fleet.

BOY'S STRANGE ACCIDENT

Clothes Catch in a Tree, and He Hangs Head Down Half an Hour.

Harry McGurry, 14 years old, of 4216 Baker street, hung head down nearly half an hour yesterday as a result of a fall from one of the top limbs of a chestnut tree. His clothes caught on a lower limb and do all that he and two youthful companions could, he could not free himself.

Finally Edward Graves, a farmer, drove along. He had a rope and one of the other boys got this around McGurry's body. Then the lad was hauled to safety. He was unconscious.

REAL HERO IN COLLEGE LIFE

Cornell's President Says It's the Student Who Does His Work.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO PUBLIC LEDGER.]

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 1.—"The real hero in university life is the student who conscientiously does his university work," said President Jacob Gould Schurman, of Cornell University, in his annual address to the students at the opening of college. For the first time he spoke from the steps of Goldwin Smith Hall in the open. The president lamented the outside activities which take up the students' time, and said that intellectual things were regarded more highly abroad than in this country. He said, in part:

"There are in our universities those who love what they call student activities. In many they take a larger place than they ought. The university exists for intellectual work to be done in the laboratory, the class room and at home. Every student activity that interferes with good scholarship is a mistake. I recognize no student activity of supreme importance except studious activities."

MAYOR ADMITS AND RESIGNS

Acted as Go-between With South Carolina Dispensary Board.

CHESTER, S. C., Oct. 1.—Yielding to the expressed demand of the press and people of this city, Henry W. Samuels today presented his resignation as Mayor of Chester. At the trial at Columbia of James M. Farnum for bribery, Samuels testified for the State, saying that he had acted as a go-between for Farnum and Joseph S. Wyche, of this place, former member of the dispensary board. Samuels also admitted acting as representative of several liquor houses before the board.

Samuels's resignation was offered at a citizens' mass meeting and was accepted.

Calhoun Bribery Case.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 1.—The trial of Patrick Calhoun on a charge of having offered a bribe to a supervisor was continued today until November 15, at the request of the defense.

among the defendants in her suit.

Questioned by the Court.

She was the first witness, and, following her examination by Henry John Nelson, her counsel, upon her teachings and writings, Judge Willson questioned her as follows:

Q. Then your views of what you call anarchy are to this effect: that there ought to be no government and that all government ought to be destroyed, and each person take care of himself according to his views of right and wrong? A. My ideas are to the effect that the people, if properly educated and developed, can take care of themselves. They need no government at such a stage of education and development. The Government could then be destroyed, and—

Q. Even by force? A. In some future time, yes, when the people are able to take care of themselves, government should be destroyed.

Assistant City Solicitors James L. Alcorn and Andrew Wright Crawford, representing the police officials, cross-examined Miss Goldman on her arrest and conviction in New York for inciting to riot, and read extracts from the pamphlets sent to the department as indicating the nature of her proposed lectures. These included "Anarchy and What It Really Stands For," and a book on the marriage state, but the Court ruled out Miss Goldman's views as expressed in the latter book. Judge Willson also declined to permit Mr. Alcorn to examine the woman regarding the statement attributed to Czolgosz, the slayer of President McKinley, that he committed the crime at her suggestion.

After she had resumed her seat, Miss Goldman asked permission to say something, and, although her counsel attempted to quiet her, Judge Willson told her to come to the bar of the court and said that she might add anything supporting the argument of her attorney.

"For 20 years," she said, "I have been in the public lecture field, and in all that time I have never been stopped from speaking, except in one instance in 1908. Why then have the police authorities of this city the right to prevent me from speaking before I have been heard? If we have free speech, every human being has the right to talk, at the same time being ready to take the consequences of his or her remarks."

Reitman Once More.

Dr. Ben H. Reitman, manager for Miss Goldman, created amusement while telling of an address he made in Odd Fellows' Temple last Tuesday night after Miss Goldman had been prevented from speaking. The topic of his address, he said, was: "Malignant Police Brutality That Made Philadelphia Blush." Mr. Alcorn, to show that the address was of incendiary character, quoted the doctor as having declared that "within a year Mayor Reyburn would be driving a coal wagon and Director Clay would be a bartender."

Mayor Reyburn and Director Clay told the Judges that they prevented the Goldman lectures, believing that a breach of the peace would have followed. The Mayor said that after a consultation with the Director, and considering the woman's record, it would have been unwise to have permitted her to speak. Mr. Clay referred to the red flag demonstration in South Philadelphia two years ago, and he said he was afraid that the lectures would bring about a like condition.

Mr. Nelson argued that there was a broader question involved than the one whether Miss Goldman was an anarchist, because if the police were permitted to act as they did in the present case the minority might be suppressed from speaking where the majority were in power, thus resulting in injury and injustice.

Mr. Alcorn quoted Judge Sulzberger's ruling in enjoining the production of "The Clansman" in this city in support of the contention that the courts should hesitate in interfering with the police power.

It is likely that Judges Willson and Audenried will decide the suit today.

MISS GOLDMAN SPEAKS HER MIND QUITE FREELY

Has Thoughts to Make Public Concerning Mayor Reyburn and Director Clay.

Miss Emma Goldman, in a third floor back room of an Arch street apartment house—all because "the hotels are crowded at this season of the year"—is awaiting, and not without impatience, the action of the court to decide whether she may legally speak here.

She was seen in her room yesterday afternoon. She was not exactly as suave and amiable as on Monday at the Little Hotel Wilmot. Her experiences with the police here have made her indignant, and she is prepared to fight the issue, she says, to the bitter end.

She had some thoughts to make public concerning Mayor Reyburn and Director Clay, who testified against her [illegible] in her injunction proceedings. [illegible] very decided impressions of both [illegible]

She said of Mayor Reyburn: "[illegible] pressed me as a man about town, [illegible] bored by these things and did not [illegible] what to say. For instance, [illegible] statement in the affair [illegible] meeting he saw a police[illegible]

659

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

890501003

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Interview] Miss Goldman Speaks Her Mind Quite Freely / Emma Goldman. – pp. 1-2 ; 37 cm. In Public Ledger [Philadelphia]. –(Oct. 2, 1909).

Obtained from the Pennsylvania State University Libraries, University Park, PA.

ear that Doctor Cook, ac-tory, as printed this morn-vel during the last 17 days northward at an average 25 miles a day.
first accounts claimed an thing like 15 miles, though ubably applied to a longer 17 days now under considnder Peary has claimed miles a day. ...erage rage of 24.78 miles is coninary for so long a period e days.
lsgraff is director of the ac and in giving figures he official publication of 908, the date referred to account, the lowest point midnight sun could have according to Professor 84 degrees 20 minutes, or,

he technical phraseology, of the sun as appearing at the North Pole, was inutes bout 6¼ miles in length s account as printed this bl[illegible] on April 3 the sel and near which ight sank for a few m ould make April 4 the ch doctor took first saw n, or could have seen it ontinued clear he figures given by Prothe lowest point at which could have been seen on 84 degrees and 58 min-of 6 degrees 5 minutes that means approximateo; ling to the data sup-or Upiegraff and from n the Pole was discover-17 days for that part of ts at which the midnight een seen on the days of ng April 1, 1906, with the e Pole, are given below ees 5 minutes, 340 miles

es 2 minutes 344 miles
es 20 minutes, 392 miles
es 35 minutes, 421 miles
es 35 minutes, 444 miles
es 10 minutes 473 miles
es 40 minutes, 496 miles an that if Doctor Cook
t sun for the first time been quoted as saying,
se of that date was due sition and not to the sky, he would have been 84 parallel, with nearly
In the 11 days remain-21, when he says he ore, Chief of the Weathesident of the National iety, will not introduce n he delivers his lecture Theatre here Sunday

r Moore's declination to by the neutral attitude by the society, and his s to seem by his per-ut the stamp of official or Cook's exploits. Pere would gladly welcome

ER AUTO INJURED

Head in Her Lap in Fifth Avenue.

AM TO PUBLIC LEDGER.]

Oct. 1.—Mrs Marion venue, was riding past
Park, in Fifth avenue,
today when it struck
John Colton, a laborer open the door of the
to the street, and as ground moaning from roken rib, she took his d comforted him until ed from Bellevue Hos-

let a traffic policeman
s chauffeur.

ear Elmira, N. Y.

Oct. 1.—Snow fell this rable quantity at Dunn of this city.

this claim of both men for the extra allowance led to the fight. Hastings had not reached the end of Block C, on his round with the bread and the razors, when he heard the disturbance in Cell 433.

The two men, who were convicted on separate charges of aggravated assault and battery, have been cellmates since July 15 and were regarded as model prisoners. The men, being fellow-countrymen, soon became friends and were never known to quarrel, and their keepers never experienced any trouble with them whatever.

Gimbronis was sentenced to 18 months by Judge Ralston on July 5. He was accused by Emanuel Maganios of assaulting him. Special Policemen Jackson and Smith, of the 23d and Brown streets station, testified that Gimbronis had brutally beaten Maganios.

Zachish was sentenced to one year on July 15 by Judge Ralston. He had beaten Marco Zaris, of 227 New street, during a quarrel at the latter's home. Gimbronis lived at 913 South Fourth street.

Zachish will be kept in the county prison until the Coroner's inquest, which probably will be held on Monday.

It is the intention of the Eastern Penitentiary authorities to hang Gimbronis and Hunsenberg. Prisoners are hanged on the prison premises three times a week, Monday, Wednesday and Friday. The men are closely watched by guards, preventing themselves from attempting to harm either themselves or their fellow-inmates.

BOY KILLS BABY WITH PISTOL

Climbs After Weapon on Bedroom Shelf and Causes Its Discharge.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO PUBLIC LEDGER.]

HOBOKEN, N. J., Oct. 1. Edna Hansen, 4 years old, was shot and killed today by her seven-year-old brother Charles at their home, 55 Willow avenue.

The children were playing in a bedroom, where there was a revolver on a shelf over the bed.

It is supposed that the boy got up on the bed and took down the revolver, and that it went off as he was clambering down.

The other persons in the house rushed to the bedroom and found the little girl lying dead, while her brother was frantically beseeching her to speak to him. The bullet penetrated the little girl's left lung.

CORN FAMINE IN MEXICO

90 Per Cent. of Vegetables Also Destroyed; May Lift Import Duty

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 1.—Mexico faces a corn famine which will require the lifting of the import duty on that cereal, according to Luis Balestrier, secretary of the Sociedad Agricola Mexicana. The recent frost, which worked injury to the crop estimated at millions, is but the culmination of a series of disasters to farmers of the republic, including copious rains, droughts and tornadoes. In former famines the Government has lifted the duty on imported corn.

Ninety per cent. of the vegetable crop is also destroyed, and prices in some instances are doubled.

MILITIA GUARD NEGROES

Surround Jail in Mississippi to Prevent Lynching.

COLUMBUS, Miss., Oct. 1.—Anticipating that an attempt would be made to lynch Henry and Reese Betts, negroes, charged with the killing of J. W. Smith, a prominent planter, because of the acquittal today of another negro charged with arson, the county jail here was placed under guard of the local military company tonight on request of the Sheriff.

"Drys" Carry Virginia Town.

WINCHESTER, Va., Oct. 1.—The local option election at Woodstock, Va., today resulted in a victory for the "drys," the majority being 31. Two years ago the town went "dry" by a majority of one vote.

as under the rules challenges must be made before November 1 in order to comply with the 10 months' rule allowed to build a defender.

GIFT FOR CHINESE NAVY

American Fleet Officers to Present $1000 Punch Bowl.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO PUBLIC LEDGER.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—The Imperial Chinese as well as the Imperial Japanese, navy is to be remembered in splendid fashion by the officers and enlisted men of the Atlantic fleet who made the round-the-world voyage last year. Only those officers and men who were serving in the second squadron of the fleet are responsible for the Chinese gift.

The punch bowl is going to China is a magnificent affair, it is said, more than two feet high and costing more than $1000. It is a present of the officers and men of the battleships Louisiana, Virginia, Georgia, Wisconsin, Illinois, Kearsarge, Kentucky and the vessels that visited Hongkong under Rear Admiral Stockton, the present commander in chief of the Atlantic fleet.

BOY'S STRANGE ACCIDENT

Clothes Catch in a Tree, and He Hangs Head Down Half an Hour.

Harry McGurry, 14 years old, of 4216 Baker street, hung head down nearly half an hour yesterday as a result of a fall from one of the high limbs of a chestnut tree. His clothes caught on a lower limb and, do as he and two youthful companions could, he could not free himself.

Finally Edward Graves, a farmer, drove along. He had a rope and one of the other boys got this around McGurry's body. Then the lad was hauled to safety. He was unconscious.

REAL HERO IN COLLEGE LIFE

Cornell's President Says It's the Student Who Does His Work.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO PUBLIC LEDGER.]

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 1.—"The real hero in university life is the student who conscientiously does his university work," said President Jacob Gould Schurman, of Cornell University, in his annual address to the students at the opening of college. For the first time he spoke from the steps of Goldwin Smith Hall in the open. The president praised the outside activities which take up the students' time, and said that intellectual things were regarded more highly abroad than in this country. He said in part:

"There are in our universities those who love what we call student activities. In many they take a larger place than they ought. The university exists for intellectual work. It is done in the laboratory, the class room and at home. Every student activity that interferes with good scholarship is a mistake. I recognise no student activity of supreme importance except studious activities."

MAYOR ADMITS AND RESIGNS

Acted as Go-between With South Carolina Dispensary Board.

CHESTER, S. C., Oct. 1.—Yielding to the expressed demand of the press and people of this city, Henry W. Samuels today presented his resignation as Mayor of Chester. At the trial at Columbia of James S. Farnum for bribery, Samuels testified for the State, saying that he had acted as a go-between for Farnum and Joseph H. Wylie, of this place, former member of the dispensary board. Samuels also admitted acting as representative of several liquor houses before the board.

Samuels's resignation was offered at a citizens' mass meeting and was accepted.

Calhoun Bribery Case.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 1.—The trial of Patrick Calhoun on a charge of having offered a bribe to a supervisor was continued today until November 15, at the request of the defense.

The Government could then be destroyed, and—

Q. Even by force? A. In some future time, yes, when the people are able to take care of themselves, government should be destroyed.

Assistant City Solicitors James L. Alcorn and Andrew Wright Crawford, representing the police officials, cross-examined Miss Goldman on her arrest and conviction in New York for inciting to riot, and read extracts from the pamphlets sent to the department as indicating the nature of her proposed lectures. These included "Anarchy and What It Really Stands For," and a book on the marriage state, but the Court ruled out Miss Goldman's views as expressed in the latter book. Judge Willson also declined to permit Mr. Alcorn to examine the woman regarding the statement attributed to Czolgosz, the slayer of President McKinley, that he committed the crime at her suggestion.

After she had resumed her seat, Miss Goldman asked permission to say something, and, although her counsel attempted to quiet her, Judge Willson told her to come to the bar of the court and said that she might add anything supporting the argument of her attorney.

"For 20 years," she said, "I have been in the public lecture field, and in all that time I have never been stopped from speaking, except in one instance in 1908. Why then have the police authorities of this city the right to prevent me from speaking before I have been heard? If we have free speech, every human being has the right to talk, at the same time being ready to take the consequences of his or her remarks."

Reitman Once More.

Dr. Ben H. Reitman, manager for Miss Goldman, created amusement while telling of an address he made in Odd Fellows' Temple last Tuesday night after Miss Goldman had been prevented from speaking. The topic of his address, he said, was "Malignant Police Brutality That Made Philadelphia Blush." Mr. Alcorn, to show that the address was of incendiary character, quoted the doctor as having declared that "within a year Mayor Reyburn would be driving a coal wagon and Director Clay would be a bartender."

Mayor Reyburn and Director Clay told the Judges that they prevented the Goldman lectures, believing that a breach of the peace would have followed. The Mayor said that after a consultation with the Director, and considering the woman's record, it would have been unwise to have permitted her to speak. Mr. Clay referred to the red flag demonstration in South Philadelphia two years ago, and he said he was afraid that the lectures would bring about a like condition.

Mr. Nelson argued that there was a broader question involved than the one whether Miss Goldman was an anarchist, because if the police were permitted to act as they did in the present case the minority might be suppressed from speaking where the majority were in power, thus resulting in injury and injustice.

Mr. Alcorn quoted Judge Sulzberger's ruling in enjoining the production of "The Clansman" in this city in support of the contention that the courts should hesitate in interfering with the police power.

It is likely that Judges Willson and Audenried will decide the suit today.

MISS GOLDMAN SPEAKS HER MIND QUITE FREELY

Has Thoughts to Make Public Concerning Mayor Reyburn and Director Clay.

Miss Emma Goldman, in a third floor back room of an Arch street apartment house—all because "the hotels are crowded at this season of the year"—is awaiting, and not without impatience, the action of the court to decide whether she may legally speak here.

She was seen in her room yesterday afternoon. She was not exactly as suave and amiable as on Monday at the Little Hotel Wilmot. Her experiences with the police here have made her indignant, and she is prepared to fight the issue, she says, to the bitter end.

She had some thoughts to make public concerning Mayor Reyburn and Director Clay, who testified against her yesterday in her injunction proceedings. She had very decided impressions of both of them.

She said of Mayor Reyburn: "He impressed me as a man about town who was bored by these things and did not know what to say. For instance, he made a statement to the effect that on Monday morning he saw a patrol wagon contain-

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

660

890501003

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Interview] Miss Goldman Speaks Her Mind Quite Freely / Emma Goldman.— pp. 1-2 ; 37 cm. In Public Ledger [Philadelphia]. —(Oct. 2, 1909).

Obtained from the Pennsylvania State University Libraries, University Park, PA.

PUBLIC LEDGER—PHILADELPHIA, SA

...the same disorderly persons who had been arrested for disturbing the peace, adding that my meeting might cause a disorder and cause other people to be arrested. All things he had seen were arrested. 'Now you know that was childish.

"Director Clay was more sure of himself than the Mayor, and seemed to take his position more seriously."

Here there was an interruption by Detective Sullivan. Miss Goldman's manager, who said: "More arrogant, Miss Goldman."

"Yes, perhaps that is better," said the little Anarchist.

"I liked to see him swell up with importance," she said, "and then have to pull his vest down in front."

She went on to say that even Director Clay, for all his seriousness, was inconsistent, according to her interpretation of his testimony.

"Director Clay sent Dr. Reitman a letter (and I have the letter) in which he requested me to send him a proof of my proposed speech last Tuesday night, and he would pass on whether or not it contained matter to inflame the public mind.

"On the stand he said that he had no intention of censoring speech, that he merely wanted the assurance that I would not incite to riot."

She said the judges were very fair in their action toward her, allowed her to speak when she wanted to, which she really thought was good of them, and most unexpected. But she said the police represented a 'wall of ignorance.' That is the way she described the cordon of blue coats that surrounded her Tuesday night and drove her back from the Odd Fellows' Temple.

Both she and Doctor Reitman spent a quiet day. Miss Goldman went to New York night before last on a special mission, and there was some mystery thrown around that visit yesterday.

There were many callers, young men and women, who have ideas of their own about government, the police and the like, flocked to the Arch street apartment. There were two men outside the house who noted these visitors, two men who waited and waited, to see that Miss Goldman's movements were within conformity with the law.

Miss Goldman expects to be informed of the decision of the court today. She confidently expects to be told that she may speak in Philadelphia. But court or no court, she says she intends to speak here. She does not fear arrest; she courts that. But the annoying thing she fears is that the police, not willing to arrest her, will simply keep her moving whenever she attempts to speak. When she referred to that possibility yesterday, she stamped her foot.

SALOON SHOOTING UNSOLVED

Detectives Seeking Man Who Took One of Victims Home.

The mystery of the fatal shooting of James Quinn and Harry Saylor in the saloon of the former's father, Patrick Quinn, at Old York road and Lycoming street, remains without development. Six detectives, Walsh, Carr, Ulrich, Coogan, Ford and Belshaw, have been working on the case, under the direction of Assistant Superintendent O'Leary. Nothing has been learned to incriminate any one.

The identity of the man who took Saylor home on a Willow Grove trolley car after the shooting has not been ascertained. The conductor of the car is sure that Saylor rode on his car and was supported by another man. The detectives are searching for the man, as it is believed that he may shed light on the tragedy, and show whether the men were murdered by a highwayman or that the shots were fired during a craps game, as Saylor is reported to have told the conductor. James Cassidy, who was shot in the leg, is still delirious in the Samaritan Hospital.

Funeral services were held yesterday over the body of Saylor at his late home, at 910 North Twelfth street. Contrary to expectation there was no crowd of the curious. The services were conducted by the Rev. J. J. Kerslake, pastor of Fern Rock Methodist Episcopal Church.

ASSAULTS HER AUNT IN COURT

Mother Flies Into Passion When Denied Custody of Daughter.

Mrs. Mary Naughton, [illegible] a [illegible] ...sion at the bar in Quarter Sessions No. 2, yesterday, because the Court refused to order her elderly aunt, Mrs. Mary Conlin, of 822 Ellsworth street, to return her 16-year-old daughter, Mary. She rushed at Mrs. Conlin, tore off her hat, and then pulled down her hair. At that point court officers interfered and seized and ejected her from the courtroom.

The girl, Mary Naughton, has lived with her grandaunt, Mrs. Conlin, ever since her mother sought to regain possession of her by means of habeas corpus proceedings, but Judge Mc-Michael concluded that the girl was better off with Mrs. Conlin. Thereupon, Mrs. Naughton stepped toward her daughter, who drew back behind her grandaunt, and the [illegible] attack in

LAST CHANCE TO REGISTER TODAY

Books Will Be Kept Open at the Polling Places Until 10 o'Clock Tonight.

HIGH TOTAL EXPECTED

Commissioner Woodruff Explains Many Points Which Confuse Citizens.

This is the last day to qualify under personal registration for the November election. About 150,000 citizens have not registered. The leaders of all parties expect that from 85,000 to 90,000 of these will do so and thus make the total the highest since this act went into effect three years ago. More than 200,000 citizens registered in the first two days. The registration last year was 235,000.

To register the applicant must have these qualifications:

First. He must have lived in the State one year and the election division 60 days and must be of the voting age.

Second. He must have paid personal property or poll tax within two years. The receipt should be presented to the registrars.

Poll taxes may be paid today at the Receiver of Taxes' office or to the ward deputies. Receipts will be issued until 10 o'clock tonight.

Registrars sit in the regular polling places from 7 a. m. to 10 a. m. and from 4 to 10 p. m.

Clinton Rogers Woodruff, chairman of the Board of Registration Commissioners, made the following statement explaining a much misunderstood feature of registration.

"There seems to be an impression in many parts of the city that failure to have one's name on the assessor's list is a disqualification for registration. This impression is wholly erroneous. The appearance or nonappearance of a name on the assessor's list has nothing whatever to do with registration. The assessor's list has only to do with the payment of poll taxes.

"If an elector presents himself to the board of division registrars, properly qualified as to residence, citizenship and age, and presents a tax receipt paid not more than two years and not less than 30 days before the day of election, which is this year, November 2, he is entitled to be registered whether his name is on the assessor's list or not."

John H. Fow recently brought action in court seeking to overrule the instructions of the Board of Personal Registration Commissioners that a citizen who does not present his tax receipt must swear that it is "either lost or mislaid." Mr. Fow was refused registration on the second day because he said that his tax receipt was locked up in his home and he could not get it. He refused to swear that it was mislaid or lost. The courts have not given any decision.

Mr. Woodruff, speaking of these instructions, said:

"After very careful consideration the board reached the conclusion that the absence of a tax receipt would disqualify a voter, unless he could give sufficient proof that he had paid a tax. After investigation of the law and consultation with our counsel we reached the conclusion that in such cases the law requires an affidavit as to what has become of the tax receipt.

"In regard to the production of a tax receipt working a hardship, our experience during the past three years shows that it is only a reasonable requirement. The last year 235,000 voters register each year with scarcely a ripple indicating that it is not a reasonable requirement."

REGISTRATION TO BE SEARCHED FOR FRAUD

Committee of 70 Will Endeavor to Discover All Improper Entries.

Efforts will be made by the Committee of Seventy to have removed from the registration lists all false names and names of dead or removed voters. After the final registration day investigators for this committee will make searching examination of the lists and then go before the Registration Commissioners and ask that the names found in the improperly on the lists be removed.

The Personal Registration Commissioners have named October 13 and 14 for hearing the evidence. Other persons may ask for the striking off of names beginning next week.

Hearings will be held by the commissioners next week for the placing on the lists names of voters who have been sick or out of the city during the three registration days.

While the investigators for the Committee of Seventy say that they believe fraud has [illegible]

Party Division Committee to give all assistance to bring about an honest registration. Every citizen in the division has been asked to send to the committee a list of all persons living in their homes who have a right to register.

By way of impressing the necessity of complying with this request, the committee in a long letter to each voter, reviewed the fraudulent registrations of a year ago and also the criminal actions taken against four registrars, one of whom was convicted. The notice to the voters is signed by Richard L. Gibbs, secretary.

ZIBA T. MOORE ATTACKS ATTITUDE OF MR. ROTAN

Declares Criminals Do Not Fear His Re-election as District Attorney.

Ziba T. Moore, an Assistant District Attorney under John C. Bell, issued a statement yesterday attacking District Attorney Rotan's position. He denounced the Republican leaders and the attitude of the City Commissioners in refusing to open the two disputed ballotboxes. Mr. Moore is supporting Gibboney, being one of the promulgators of the Gibboney-Stewart party title.

"I did not have the pleasure of listening to Mr. Rotan's speech," says Mr. Moore, "but read it in this morning's paper, and from his speech, together with his indorsement, there is no doubt from the standpoint of the disposition of the cases which reach the District Attorney's office that there is no criticism to be had with the conduct of his office.

"A large number of serious crimes are committed which never reach the District Attorney's office, and these crimes increase or decrease, according to the fact as to whether the criminals stand in fear of the law, and also depend largely on political conditions.

"The crimes which we are interested in at the present time, and which strikes at the very foundation of our Government, is the fraudulent vote. Does any one for a moment think that any crooks who are willing to stuff the ballotbox stand in fear of the present District Attorney, with political conditions as they exist today?

"Would Mr. Rotan's election be notice to criminals that it was a victory for good government and due to the indorsement of the lawyers and the business men's committees? These committees will be kept to the front by the contractor bosses' organization until after the election, and then, if Mr. Rotan is elected, these committees will search in vain for some part of the credit of Mr. Rotan's election.

"It will be a victory solely of the contractor bosses if Rotan is elected, and a victory for good government in the event of a Gibboney candidate.

"I call upon Mr. Rotan to explain the necessity of the 'secret' ballot law, why it was ever enacted if an officeholder in order to have his vote counted must make affidavit after election as to how he voted? What is the use of putting the State to such an expense every year to maintain the secret ballot?"

ORDERS OUT AGAINST MURPHY

Mecleary Hopes to Defeat Candidate in His Home Division.

News reached the cars of reform followers in the Seventeenth Division of the Thirty-first Ward yesterday that Magistrate Mecleary, Organization leader of the ward, had issued orders that John J. Murphy, Penn party candidate for City Treasurer, must be defeated in the division in question. Murphy lives in this division, and on learning yesterday of the reported orders of Mecleary, expressed his defiance.

The political situation in this division is novel from the fact that Murphy's father, James F. Murphy, is Organization leader of the division. He is also janitor of the Lucretia Mott Public School. Reformers say that Mecleary announced his intention of using every officeholder in the division to bring about Murphy's defeat.

Mr. Murphy did not express any alarm at Mecleary's orders. He said:

"In view of the sentiment for good government, in the division, I cannot see how the political bosses can carry it for the Organization. An illustration of what the result will be is shown by the attitude of the voters. A large number of voters in this division are refusing tax receipts offered them by Organization agents and have insisted upon paying for their own tax receipts."

LABOR IS TAKING PART

Active Campaign for Reform Being Conducted by Union Men.

Labor organizations throughout the city have made arrangements to conduct an auxiliary campaign for the reform cause in every ward. While these meetings will be held in the interests of all the Penn party candidates, especial attention will be paid to the candidacy of John J. Murphy, who is president of the Central Labor Union.

Some of the largest halls in the city, it is said, have been engaged for these meetings, and labor leaders of national prominence have been obtained to address them.

Among those who will address the labor political meetings during [illegible]

D. N. FELL PUT ON T[illegible]

Son of Supreme [illegible] Named by Boar[illegible] Succeed I[illegible]

POLITICIANS [illegible]

Had Hoped to I[illegible] Until After [illegible] White a Park C[illegible]

David N. Fell, Jr., [illegible] Court Justice D. Nev[illegible] pointed a member of [illegible] vision of Taxes yesterd[illegible] late Rinaldo A. Lukens, [illegible] the part of the Judges [illegible] surprise, as politicians [illegible] predicting that the pl[illegible] filled until after election [illegible] then go to a Democrat.

Dr. J. William White, [illegible] gical Department of t[illegible] Pennsylvania, was elec[illegible] Park Commissioner to [illegible] Samuel Gustine Thomp[illegible]

In both cases many [illegible] sented. According to re[illegible] was made on the first [illegible] was no discussion by th[illegible] it was policy for them t[illegible] that the organization [illegible] to be played to act ut [illegible] appointment.

It has been the custom [illegible] of Revision of Taxes wa[illegible] one of the three places [illegible] Mr. Lukens was of the [illegible] Organization and Demo[illegible] thought a Democrat w[illegible] following the long-estab[illegible] It was reported that the [illegible] ers sought the lucrative [illegible] post to carry out a politi[illegible] was that the Organiz[illegible] should support Rotan, [illegible] berth would be awarded [illegible] Organization Democrat.

It is the belief of lawye[illegible] the leaders of the bench [illegible] of Judges sought to rem[illegible] tion of trading from the [illegible] naming a Republican. No [illegible] would discuss the action [illegible] candidates named in nom[illegible] or place. It was said h[illegible] that the law does not req[illegible] the Board of Revision o[illegible] be a Democrat or repres[illegible] party.

The Judges also appoi[illegible] broth, clerk of Quarter [illegible] No. 2, a tipstaff to succeed [illegible] Bradford Murray. J. E. F[illegible] land street, was named t[illegible] ceed J. W. M. McElfresh. [illegible] was elected a probation [illegible] Juvenile Court to fill t[illegible] vacant by the resignation [illegible] J. Cochran.

Mr. Fell is the oldest [illegible] Fell. He is a member o[illegible] of Fell & Spalding. Mi[illegible] brought him largely into [illegible] field. It is said that he wa[illegible] by real estate authorities [illegible] father did not exert his i[illegible] behalf. At present he is [illegible] of the Jury Board. His s[illegible] $7500 a year.

Doctor White is one of t[illegible] surgeons in the country. [illegible] member of the University [illegible] nia faculty many years a[illegible] time headed the Athletic [illegible] is a most energetic wor[illegible] great interest in any work [illegible] becomes identified.

LEAVES REFORM[illegible]

William H. Rose, 30th [illegible] er, Goes Over to [illegible]

William H. Rose, who ha[illegible] engaged in the movement [illegible] the 30th Ward, has anno[illegible] for the Republican ticket. [illegible] a letter sent to James [illegible] chairman of the 30th War[illegible] Committee. He also resig[illegible] committee.

"I desire to take this [illegible] advising you," said Mr. [illegible] cannot submit any further [illegible] which are being pursued in [illegible] by those in charge of the [illegible] the William Penn party. [illegible] that there is work to be d[illegible] there are some evils which [illegible] remedied, but I am thorou[illegible] with the methods resorted t[illegible] dictates of your party and b[illegible] with them on the stump [illegible] calling into question the ho[illegible] faith of public servants wh[illegible] a desire to be loyal to the [illegible] discharge of their public d[illegible]

661

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

890506001

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Anarchist's Letter / Emma Goldman. — p. 2 ; 43 cm. In Public Ledger [Philadelphia]. —(Oct. 3, 1909).

Obtained from the Pennsylvania State University Libraries, University Park, PA.

...'S LOSSES

...th Seeks to Re-
... in Securities
... Bros. & C...

...lth of 1891 Erie ave...
...mmon Pleas court...
...ndler Bros. & Co...
...receive stocks and...
...which she a...
...mith, not B. speech...
...me from Her...
...ork in a business e...
...to which he k...

...lief to Lena Mar...
...Emma said that sh...
...s I...
...

...CTRIC BATTERY

...rrent When Driver
Light Pole

...of 15 West D...
...lth has le...
...employer...
...morning, and it...
...not until it was...
...ing [illegible]

...before the house at...
...he fled the house...
...When Margaret Lat...
...ployed at that ad...
...she testified that the...
...gon of a wagon was...
...side and told Vingie...
...getting to the pres...
...when he put his hand...
...rk as though para...
...in surprise...
...charged with elec...
...had got a shock...
...is proved that the...
...butted on the head...
...rmarian James Gra...
...street, ordered the...
...t Vingie was re...
...hurt and was re...

...DING ELEVATED

...s to Be Completed
...0 Days.

...gun tomorrow upon...
...sections of the Broad...
...el tracks. The ent...
...work on both sections...
...0 working days. Pas...
...tenders from Sedgley...
...diana avenue to Girard...
...ill by A. Armstrong &...
...No. 10 will extend...
...o the Port Richmond...
...ayard. Hearing Park...
...[illegible] Broad...
...ks will be elevated,...
...l be run on the lat...
...ve been moved over...
...s [illegible] to...
...e tracks most of the...
...of Twenty-seventh and...

...SUIT LISTED

Demurrer to Motion Dismissed.

...Jr., an attorney, gain...
...y in his suit against...
...missioner William H...
...mon Pleas Court No...
...ider a demurrer to the...
...ting of the finances of...
...olumbia and St. An...
...yor Reyburn was in...
...otion of the road, and...
...notes figured in the...

...did not prosecute the...
...ot put in a formal an...
...will be listed for final...
...r.

...was shot in the saloon, as was at first reported, but was attacked near his home, either for the purpose of robbery, or for the purpose of removing a dangerous witness to the shooting in the saloon.

RAPID PAVING ON MARKET ST.

Work on the Retail Shopping District Nearly Completed.

Wood block paving on Market street from Eighth street to the City Hall is 75 per cent completed. Within a few days the retail shopping district of the street will be paved and ready for traffic. Only four squares out of the entire section from Eighth to Broad street are still unpaved. These squares are from Seventh to Eighth street and from Tenth to Twelfth street on the south side of the street and on the north side of the street from Thirteenth street to Broad. As soon as the district is completed the pavers will begin on the section from Second street to Eighth. This portion of the street, the contractor promises, will be completed before the Christmas holidays.

CLINICS IN MANY HOSPITALS

Members of State Medical Society Attend Demonstrations.

Special events in connection with the one hundred and first annual meeting of the Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania, which was opened at the Bellevue-Stratford on Tuesday, were brought to a close yesterday afternoon by clinics in many hospitals.

Among them were the University Hospital, the Philadelphia General Hospital, the Pennsylvania Hospital, the Medico-Chirurgical Hospital, the Germantown Hospital, the Methodist Hospital, the Jefferson Hospital, the Polyclinic Hospital, the Wills Eye Hospital and the Women's Hospital.

FOOTBALL HERO SAVES 2 LIVES

Tackles Children in Pathway of Runaway Team.

John Keough, formerly a football player at Amherst College and now student in the dental department of the University of Pennsylvania, saved the lives of two little girls who were directly in the path of a runaway team at 36th street and Woodland avenue yesterday. Keough, who was on his way to Franklin Field to take part in the game between Penn Freshmen and the eleven from Conway Hall, heard the shouts of many persons and saw the galloping horses advancing on the fear-stricken children. He dashed away from a companion and grasping the children around the waists with his arms, threw them to the sidewalk. The children were unhurt, but Keough sustained a few slight bruises.

The children are Annie and Marcelle Freschen, sisters, aged 10 and 11 years, respectively, who live at 3707 Woodland avenue. The team was owned by the Penn Reduction Company, and it is thought that one of the horses has been service in the Fire Department. The team was standing quiet till a patrol wagon with bells clanging, passed. Then one of the animals pricked up its ears and dashed after the patrol, drawing the other horse along.

KEPT FROM DEAD WIFE

Man Sent to Jail for Trying to Force His Way to Bedside.

Elmer R. Taylor, of 1303 North Lawrence street, was sent to the County Prison for 3 days yesterday by Magistrate Tompson, because he tried to force his way into the home of his sister-in-law to see his dead wife, from whom he had separated. It was said that one of her last requests was that he be kept from her body, as she did not want anything to do with him.

Mrs. Clara Lederer, of 1427 North Tenth street, a sister of Mrs. Taylor, from whose home the funeral will be held, told the Magistrate that she communicated the wish of Mrs. Taylor to her husband but that it did not stop him from attempting to force his way into the house. She also said that since Taylor had deserted her sister she had been forced to support her two children by washing clothes and by sewing. In this way she impaired her health to such an extent that she fell easy prey to the disease which caused her death.

DESPONDENT MAN ENDS LIFE

Drinks Carbolic Acid Because of Poor Business.

Three little children were made orphans yesterday by the suicide of their father, Charles Pape, a barber 36 years old, who swallowed carbolic acid at his home, 1512 Melon street. Pape was despondent on account of poor business.

When he returned home about noon yesterday his gloomy countenance caused his wife to ask him what was the matter. He replied that he was not feeling very well and he would go up stairs and get something for a headache. When he failed to return, Mrs. Pape became alarmed, and receiving no answer to her calls, ran up stairs and found Pape lying on the bed, fully clothed, with an empty bottle of carbolic acid in his hand.

Dr. R. E. Bauer, 1514 Fairmount avenue, who was summoned, pronounced the man dead.

court to which she applied for an injunction restraining the police from further intimidating her. Emma Goldman is holding levees and educational meetings in her quarters at 1502 Arch street. Incidentally she is flooding the city with appeals and literature seeking further aid in the battle which she declares she is waging in the cause of freedom. Her friends are actively canvassing the city for subscriptions to her cause and incidentally seeking a hall owner who will lease his place to the anarchist lecturer.

In this Miss Goldman is experiencing the greatest difficulty. Odd Fellows' Temple has been refused and she has been informed by managers of other centrally located buildings that she would have to assure them that there would be no police difficulty such as occurred last Monday night. Dr. Ben L. Reitman, Miss Goldman's manager, said yesterday that the police are compelling hall owners to refuse the use of their properties to the Anarchists.

Several delegations of factory workers visited Miss Goldman during the day. One group was composed of a dozen pretty girls. As types they were excellent samples of the factory hands who have annually reverenced the apostle of anarchy. The receptions were always the same. They were ushered into the presence of Miss Goldman and supplied with pamphlets for which they gave all their spare dimes and quarters.

"Why don't you start a meeting that we may not have stood here in vain?" said one girl. She had worked herself up in a fever of fiery excitement. "Be violent," she said, "write a red-hot declaration and then be pinched." Miss Goldman smiled at the girl's enthusiasm and said, "We will talk about that way, Lena."

It is rather startling to hear these factory girls, who possibly never went [illegible] grammar school, quote Max Stirner, Ibsen, Thoreau and Tolstoy.

The Anarchist's Letter.

The following letter has been received:

To the Editor of Public Ledger:

Sir: I take the liberty to ask the hospitality of your paper because I found you exceedingly fair and unbiased during the recent police outrages on free speech. During the court hearing on my appeal for injunction it developed that the police department of this city stopped my lectures on September 28 for the following reasons:

First: That my police record proved that my lectures always lead to disturbances.

Second: That I am a convicted anarchist.

It requires neither Solomonic wisdom nor a deep sense of justice to see that such reasons are poor grounds for the suppression of an established tradition that of free speech and assemblage.

Evidently the forefathers of this country realized that police records are not always very accurate, else they would not have provided that Congress even shall make no law abridging the freedom of speech or press or the right of assemblage, much less did they delegate that right to the police department of Philadelphia.

As to what my record may or may not be has nothing to do with the present struggle. But for the benefit of your readers I wish to say this:

I have been in the lecture field for 18 years, have spoken in innumerable cities including Philadelphia and have never had a single disturbance. The only disturbers were the police, when they attempted to stop meetings and suppress free speech. I may also state that in all these years I have been held for trial but once—1908—and not because of any riot, but for quoting Cardinal Manning, to wit, "Necessity knows no law."

My lectures have been published in my magazine Mother Earth, the latter being entered in the United States second class mail. Yet it remained for the police of Philadelphia to suppress me even before I was heard.

Does it not seem as if this city has come to a very lamentable state of affairs if the right of free speech is made to depend on the grace and whim of the police department?

A convicted anarchist? Though not an authority on jurisprudence, I know that there is no such law in the statutes that can make such a discrimination. Just as well discriminate against a convicted Christian, Jew, Buddhist or Mohammedan.

Besides, to say whether or not an anarchist may speak the officials must make themselves conversant with the philosophy of anarchism. Far be it from me to reflect on the intelligence of the Philadelphia police; but I do wish to say that they know as much about anarchism as they know about anything that requires the capacity of reasoning and reflection.

Were the authorities to know but the history of their own country they would know that some of the greatest anarchists have raised their voice for human justice and liberty right here in America. David Thoreau, the author of "Walden," was an anarchist, for it was he who in his famous tract, "Evil Disobedience," proclaimed the human truth to wit: "I am at all times called upon to do only what I think is right and not what the State thinks is right." Thoreau went to prison for refusing to pay taxes.

Ralph Waldo Emerson was an anarchist, and with his essay on "Self reliance" has contributed to the wealth of anarchistic literature that champions individual freedom. John Brown, Wendell Phillips, Lloyd Garrison and scores of others were anarchists, inasmuch as they opposed the abuse of power. Yes, they were dreamers of a state of society wherein each man shall have the greatest scope and opportunity for self-development, a society wherein the individual shall learn to appreciate his relation to his fellows and the value of mutual assistance and voluntary co-operation.

A dangerous theory? Yes, but dangerous to those who would falter the human mind and gag the human voice; dangerous to those who always have opposed every thing for progress and individual well-being.

As to myself, I came here not to enter into a fist fight with the police. I came here to get forth my ideas, and I absolutely deny the right of any official to stop me from speaking. True, the police represent an iron wall of physical power and ignorance worn with age, but then I represent a truth and a never-to-be-destroyed longing for liberty.

The club may be a mighty weapon, but it sinks into insignificance before human reason and human integrity.

Therefore I shall speak in Philadelphia.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

Philadelphia, October 1, 1909.

...any of the new wood block paving was laid Chief McLaughlin, of the Electrical Bureau, he said, prepared all the underground connections requisite to carry out the project.

The entire scheme for the improved lighting of the centre of the city embraces not only Market street between the Delaware and Schuylkill rivers, but also Walnut and Chestnut streets between the Delaware and 34th streets. It has the hearty approval of the Mayor, who expects Councils to furnish the money needed with the least possible delay.

The plan contemplates 350 sidewalk arc lights on Market street between the two rivers, where now there are but 50 such lights, and in Chestnut and Walnut streets combined 156 arc lights, where now there are but 97. The new lights are to be supported in pairs on ornamental sidewalk posts, four to each block, and four such posts, each with twin lights, at street intersections.

Estimates of cost are as follows: Market street, poles and arc lamps complete, about $9000; Chestnut street, $4200; Walnut street, $7000; total cost of construction, $24,000. Annual estimated cost of maintenance of the additional electrical lights: Market street $30,000, Chestnut street, $22,600, and Walnut street, $13,300, total, about $66,000.

WOUNDED PATIENT'S MYSTERY

Photograph Leads to Belief That He Gave Assumed Name.

Through photographs found upon the person of a wounded young man, who was a patient in a hospital at Spokane, Wash., the Philadelphia police were able to obtain his identification yesterday as Conrad Clark, a former resident at 226 North Eleventh street. He gave the assumed name of James Fitzgerald to the Spokane police, who had him under surveillance at the hospital, believing that he was a member of a band of yeggmen.

Mrs. Clark and her daughter Lena identified three photographs carried by the patient, and in order to establish complete identification, further information was requested from the Spokane police. It is said that a man named Fitzgerald, the name given by the young man, was shot by the police while in the West.

APPOINTED BANK EXAMINER

Commissioner Smith Selects Moore's Secretary as Assistant.

Bank Commissioner W. H. Smith has selected as his own successor in the vacant place of examiner J. W. Conn, of this city, secretary to J. Hampton Moore.

It was said last night that Mr. Conn would qualify shortly for his new position.

Mr. Conn held an important place in a large financial institution in this city 15 years before becoming Mr. Moore's private secretary. He was recommended for the vacant post of examiner by Mr. Moore, Senator Sproul, of Chester, and John R. Valentine, of Haverford. Mr. Conn's home is near Ardmore.

AEROPLANE SPEED TESTS HERE

Charles F. Willard to Fly in a Curtiss Machine.

The first flying machine flights in Philadelphia are to be given at Point Breeze during the week of October 11-16, by Charles Foster Willard with a Curtiss aeroplane, the Golden Flyer No. 1. Willard has already made successful flights with the machine at Mineola, Long Island, Montreal and Athens, Pa. Mr. Willard will come here from Richmond this week in get the machine ready for breaking records if possible.

Willard's speed record is now 13 miles in 19 minutes while his endurance record is 56 minutes.

PINIONED BY A TON OF LEAD

Workman Held Fast More Than an Hour.

William McCloskey, of 2117 Arch street, who is employed in the Wetherill paint manufactory, at 30th and Walnut streets, lay helpless more than an hour yesterday with a leaden ingot weighing almost a ton pinioning his left leg to the ground. His cries were heard by a man passing the place, who told the police of his plight.

McCloskey was just quitting his work, later than usual, when the ingot fell. When the police arrived they were forced to use a crowbar to release him. He was removed to the University of Pennsylvania Hospital.

Local Fire Record.

A. M.			Loss.
12:25—	820	Christian street; Harry Collins's dwelling	$50
3:55—	124	North Lindenwood street; Charles H. Witsch's dwelling	$90
8:50—	1012	Philip street; Thomas Hyde's dwelling	25
11:18—	5100	Larchwood avenue; Carria Strobel's grocery store	$5

Fires Elsewhere.

NORRISTOWN, Pa.—Charles A. Cox's barn, near West Point, destroyed, seven horses and cow burned. Loss, $15,000.

PITTSBURG.—Warehouses of Macbeth-Evans Glass Company and Paterson Coal and Supply Company destroyed; loss, $100,000.

...reached. Common Pleas ... granted an additional delay ... yesterday before taking a ... proposed compromise of the ... by George H. Earle, Jr., ... Pennsylvania Sugar Refining ... against the American Sugar ... Company, known as the Sugar ...

All parties interested had ... day to submit the terms upon ... releases of claims against the ... could be obtained, but Joseph ... kin, counsel for Mr. Earle, ... Judges Willson and Audenried ... the postponement were granted ... ment would be reached with ... the court in arranging the ...

This was in accordance with ... gestion made by the Judges ... ago, and Mr. Junkin explained ... agreement to compromise the ... ference held in New York. ... Although counsel would not ... ment, it is thought that the ... of the Pennsylvania Company ... first objected to the terms of ... lement, have been won over ... mit themselves to the offer ... Earle.

This offer, believed to be ... one in question, was that the ... would pay $750,000 to the ... Refinery Company and would ... note for $1,250,000 made by ... and secured by the Pennsylvania ... pany. This loan was negotiated ... tave Kissel, but it was said ... did not understand that Kissling ... ling as an agent for the ... tective committee of bondholders ... Pennsylvania Company on the ... compromise, maintaining that ... were inadequate, and that more ... could be obtained if the suit ... der the Sherman anti-trust law ... trial.

This objection it is now ... been overcome, and the litigation ... speedily adjusted.

THE WEATH...

Local Record, Oct...

United States Weather Bureau. ...
Temperature.
MAXIMUM (5 p. m.) ...
MINIMUM (8 a. m.) ...
MEAN ...
Normal 62

Barometer	...
Temperature	...
Humidity	...
Wind: Direction	...
Velocity	...
Weather	...
Sunshine 65 per cent

Temperature—Deficiency ... deficiency since October 1, ... since January 1, 311 degrees.
Rainfall—Deficiency since Oct... deficiency since January 1, ...
Weather a year ago, cloudy.

Day's Record Else...

Observations made at 8 p. m. ...

Stations	8 p m	Ther.	Rain-fall	W.
Abilene, Tex.	78	94
Atlantic City	66	84
Atlanta, Ga.	72	80
Bismarck, N. D.	64	74	..
Boston, Mass.	56	64
Buffalo, N. Y.	52	54
Cape May, N. J.	60	60	.
Charleston, S. C.	70	70
Chicago, Ill.	64	74
Cincinnati, O.	66	74
Cleveland, O.	54	54	..
Denver, Col.	64	76
Detroit, Mich.	54	62	..
Duluth, Minn.	44	44	..
Eastport, Me.	50	56	.01
Galveston, Tex.	76	82	..
Hatteras, N. C.	68	70	..
Helena, Mont.	54	..	..
Huron, S. D.	58	74	..
Jacksonville	72	82	..
Jupiter, Fla.	74	82	.20
Kansas City	74	78	..
Key West, Fla.	80	86	..
Los Angeles	62	68	.24
Memphis, Tenn.	74	80	..
New Orleans	80	84	..
New York city	58	68	..
Norfolk, Va.	66	76	..
N. Platte, Neb.	74	90	..
Omaha, Neb.	80	90	..
Palestine, Tex.	68	88	..
Pittsburg, Pa.	56	60	..
Portland, Me.	54	60	..
St. Louis, Mo.	76	82	..
St. Paul, Minn.	64	70	..
Tampa, Fla.	76	86	..
Washington	58	68	..

*Highest for twelve hours p...

Official Fore...

WASHI...

For Pennsylvania and New ... day and Monday: not much ch... ture; moderate northwest win... riable.

For Maryland and Delaware ... Monday: no decided change ... light, variable winds.

Fair and pleasant weather ... Saturday in all districts of th... the Rocky Mountains, with ... northern New England and ... da, where showers occurred. ... disturbance is now causing ... tween the coast and the ... the Rockies, while another d... importance seems to be deve... dle Missouri River Valley. ... risen in the central valleys a... ly stationary elsewhere.

Some cloudiness will probab... central valleys, with a few ... showers, but generally fair ... vail in nearly all districts ... mountain ranges. The tempe... the Ohio Valley and in the ... rectly south, while elsewhere ... will occur. Comparatively ... will prevail in the Southwest.

Sun, Moon and ...

Sun rises...	5:55 a.m.	Sun ...
Moon rises..	8:38 p.m.	Moon ...

PHILADELPH...

High water.	4:26 a.m.	High ...
Low water..	11:26 a.m.	Low ...

REEDY ISLA...

High water.	1:18 a.m.	High ...
Low water..	7:44 a.m.	Low ...

BREAKWATE...

High water.	10:11 a.m.	High ...
Low water..	6:38 a.m.	Low ...

662

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

890506003

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Interview] Woman Anarchist Ready for a Test / Emma Goldman.– p. 2 ; 43 cm. In Public Ledger [Philadelphia]. –(Oct. 4, 1909).

Obtained from the Pennsylvania State University Libraries, University Park, PA.

ER—PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 4, 1909.

CK EVASIVE ON OLITICAL RUMOR

es to Deny He Has Formed Coalition With Senator McNichol.

ATOR SILENT TOO

n Leaders Say the Asphalt ntractor Is Not Aiding Their Campaign.

ical circles and on the Stock Ex- which is a sensitive political bar- it was reported on Saturday that Mack had joined his old business anies P. McNichol, and that the rtest in 1905, had been brought to This report gained belief because sudden advances of stock con- by the Mack interests ack, who is president of the Gen- shalt Company and heads several ing concerns returned to the city urday night. He was asked last ether there was any truth in the flying him with McNichol and the ation

e been out of the city three he replied in a non-committal any suggestions looking to peace de to you?"

e been out of the city and know about politics."

you aid the movement to oust Organization and the contractor he made the same reply.

ou take any part in politics and as conspicuous as in 1905?"

not answer that now and do not talk politics. This is the time to business, as prosperous times ning, and it is necessary to be ter the long depression."

Mr. Nichol, who perhaps with ould be the only person who ld authoritatively Mack's status reported friendly move, declined on the subject. He said that he e it came during the campaign e drawn into the waging daily ries and that he intended to this attitude.

leaders last night declared Mack was evincing no interest mn campaign and that no financial assistance had come from him. One aid that it would injure the cause Mr. Mack and his coterie make easily identified in politics as they now.

Mack is not with us," declared Wentworth Case, "and as far as e not taking any interest in politics know that he has not assisted in ing is expected of him."

he address at the First Christian Berks and Marshall streets last Clarence Gibboney was asked thought of the rumor that Mack rned to the Organization. He he knew nothing whatever about ut Mack.

HOOL JANITORS SAFE

Says They Are Protected From Political Intimidation.

A. L. Finck, Penn party City Committeeman from the 24th Ward, called attention to the report that janitors for the schools were being influenced by to work for the Republican ticket such information before William , chairman of the Board of Education Property Committee, and asked ing.

y Mr. Tilden said that he had d of any intimidation and con ition need have the slightest fear will be disturbed in his position, r who threatens him, if he does in that position and behaves as people should when not on duty. Information I quote a sentence present Educational law relating to janitors as follows: 'They shall [illegible] of the Education gh these employes are elected by that Board is neither the Sectional or any other power or influence to Board of Education can remove and even then there must be for removal.

e at perfect liberty to use this any way you wish—publicly or and quote me as saying that al 'boss' or the Sectional School s any power of removal over the of the public schools of the city elphia and from my knowledge rience with the Board of Educa- sure that the janitors will be in their positions so long as their duty in those positions.

happy to add that the janitorial the public schools today, like lse in connection with the Political Meetings Today.

REPUBLICAN.

City Committee meets at 1:30 p. m. and the ward committees assemble in the evening to get instructions for the campaign.

DEMOCRATIC.

C. La Rue Munson, candidate for Supreme Court, will meet the Democratic City Committee and leading Democrats at the City Committee headquarters, Tenth and Walnut streets, 2 p. m.

WILLIAM PENN.

Open air meeting, 1523 Snyder avenue, 36th ward, evening.

Meeting in Wharton Hall, 36th and Wharton streets, 36th ward, evening. These meetings will be addressed by the county candidates and other speakers.

LANE PREDICTS VICTORY FOR ROTAN BY 50,000

Says Heavy Registration Means Organization Has Forces in Line.

Chairman Lane, of the Republican City Committee, said last night that the registration on the last day would exceed 35,000, and that the total enrollment for the election would be greater than last year. It is estimated that the total will be about 287,000 or 2000 greater than last year, the record mark. This is due to the activity of the Organization and the desire on the part of citizens of all political affiliations to participate in the election.

"Republican workers have never been so active or performed such good service as in the three registration days," said Mr. Lane. "The important work of the campaign has been done and our reports indicate that of those registered the Republican ticket will get such a sweeping vote as to give the whole ticket more than 50,000 majority."

Reform leaders would not venture an opinion concerning the complexion of the registration. They said that the division workers had been most vigilant upon all three days and that reports would be received later in the week which would give what they believed would be an accurate index to the situation and the temper of the voters.

Scattering returns show that the registration on Saturday was heaviest in the reform and distinctly residential wards. In the 24th Ward the registration on Saturday was 3000, making the total about 8500, this being 700 more voters than registered last year.

Politicians [illegible] different explanations for the heavy enrolment. The Republican leaders say that it was brought about almost entirely by the zealous work of the Organization in the 1174 divisions. Reform leaders declare that the interest the citizens are showing in the reform cause contributed to the result.

In years past usually 100,000 citizens failed to register. With an estimated registration of 287,000 out of an assessment of 350,742 citizens the number who cannot participate in the election is 72,742. As about 15 per cent. of those who register do not participate in an election by reason of removals, deaths or other causes it is estimated that the total vote in November will be about 250,000.

Reports from other cities and towns in Pennsylvania indicate a surprising apathy in the coming election. In Pittsburg it is much less than last year, and in smaller cities in the State it has fallen off about 4 per cent. compared with last year.

ANOTHER RECRUIT

Fifteenth Ward Reformer Leaves Party and Gives Reason.

Lawrence S. Brady has sent his resignation as a member of the 15th Ward Penn party committee and joined the Organization. He did this in a letter to R. Willis Lyelle, chairman of the ward committee. This letter says that Gibboney has as "one of his closest and most 'practical' allies a former city contractor, whose highest hope is to see the present Republican Organization defeated in order that he may again enjoy a monopoly of municipal contracts."

Continuing the letter of resignation reads:

"In short, reform has become a mask behind which many men of no political conviction other than the Jacksonian principle, that to the victor belongs the spoils, seek to hide the desperate eagerness to feed at the public trough.

"Mr. Gibboney's ability to administer the important functions devolving upon the District Attorney is at best problematic, though his personal honesty is not to be questioned. Mr. Gibboney's policy has been to defame Philadelphia. His platform is built of fair promises, but obligated as he is to advocate short ballot, 'The end justifies the means' what guarantee have the people that he would be permitted to redeem those pledges, even if elected?

"Mr. Rotan has, on the contrary, been tried out by the people and he has 'made good.'"

LOCAL OPTIONISTS BUSY

This State to Be Storm Centre of National Campaign.

Pennsylvania will be the storm centre of the local option fight which will be waged with especial vigor during the next six months throughout the entire country.

[illegible]

WOMAN ANARCHIST READY FOR A TEST

Emma Goldman Challenges Right of Police to "Misinterpret Law."

PLANS FOR THE FUTURE

Many of Her Followers Visit Her and Proffer Assistance.

Emma Goldmen has called for a meating of the radical clans and declares herself ready to test to the limit the "authority of the police officials in this city to misinterpret the law." That was the construction that the woman anarchist put on Director Clay's opposition to her, at a meeting in her rooms yesterday afternoon. In obedience to circulars sent out by the Free Speech Committee, some twenty representatives of the various Free Thinker and Single Tax Societies visited Miss Goldman, at 1208 Arch street, yesterday and formulated plans for future action in this city. Two tentative programmes were mapped out. One simply consists of a series of dates on which she will address meetings in case the courts grant her prayer for injunction against the Mayor and the police. The other contains so many various methods of attempting to force free speech that, Miss Goldman declares, to publish it would be only to play into the hands of those who oppose her.

"If this decision is handed down tomorrow," said Miss Goldman, "whether favorable or adverse, I will make public some startling statements in regard to the fruits of my work here. I have in reserve the names of some of the most influential private citizens in this city who have offered me their support financially and morally. These names I shall give out just as soon as I learn my status with the courts."

Miss Goldman's followers are fearing that a new method will be pursued to discourage her attempts to speak here. They say they do not believe that the courts will hand down a decision today, nor, for that matter, tomorrow.

"It would not surprise me at all," said Nathan Hotz, a freethinking advocate of Miss Goldman's, "to see an attempt on the part of the courts to withhold the decision indefinitely. By this method they may seek to discourage the woman and make her quit in disgust."

Miss Goldman laughed at Hotz's fears. "That's foolish," she said. "The courts are not afraid of me."

A body of 12 University students called on the little anarchist yesterday and offered her their support. Miss Goldman declared that she had had 12 offers from private citizens to lecture to parties in their homes. She says she has declined these.

"Why should I accept private offers," said Miss Goldman, "when I have such a more worthy task before me? I am not anxious to talk. The sensation does not please me. I have a desire, however, to establish free speech, and if it is in my power I shall do so."

Referring to her meeting yesterday afternoon, Miss Goldmen cited an instance of the willingness that some people have shown to flock to her standard, but are deterred by the fear of public opinion.

"A well-known doctor called here," said Miss Goldmen, "and said, 'I would do anything in my financial power to help you, and nothing would give me greater pleasure than to affiliate with you morally, but the publicity attached to it will ruin my practice and hurt me socially.'"

"However," continued Miss Goldman, "he proved his sincerity by leaving me a generous check."

Such incidents are common at the anarchist's headquarters, but not so common as the hero worship scenes enacted by the visiting factory girls. To them Miss Goldman is a creature to be worshiped in the light of an emancipator. They sincerely believe that she will upset the existing social conditions, and they sit by and absorb her words in the most flattering silence.

Miss Goldman announced last night that she will speak tonight on the City Hall plaza if the injunction for which she has applied is granted.

SOCIALISTS DENOUNCE THE OTHER PARTIES

Campaign Book Declares Workingmen Ought Not Support Them.

Political leaders who are of the opinion that the coming election will be close and that it might be decided by a few thousand votes thrown to either the Penn or Republican candidates, are asking whether the Socialist party will support Murphy, the labor leader, or vote wholly for their party candidates. – While the Socialist party has not made much headway in this city, it now polls more than country is shown in this table compiled by the City Committee:

UNITED STATES.
1896, Pres.	2,040	1898,	Cong.		32,284
1900, Pres.	21,812	1902,	Pres.		55,501
1904, Cong.	30,150	1906,	Cong.		235,000
1908, Pres.	36,564	1904,	Pres.		446,250
1907	54,000	1908,	Pres.		412,000
PENNSYLVANIA.
1898, Gov.	4,778	1905,	Treas.		10,000
1900, Pres.	4,511	1906,	Gov.		15,100
1902, Gov.	21,010	1907,	Treas.		14,344
1904, Pres.	21,361	1908,	Pres.		23,913
PHILADELPHIA.
1899, Mayor	1,044	1905,	State Tr.		3,000
1899, Rec. Tax	1,200	1904,	Pres.		1,224
1903, Solicitor	2,000	1905,	State Tr.		1,233
1906, Magistrate	1,000	1906,	Gov.		2,000
1907, Mayor	1,701	1907,	State Tr.		3,021
1908, Solicitor	3,004	1908,	Pres.		6,192

TRAGEDY IN HOME OF ILLNESS

Father Attending Sick Child Breaks Neck by a Fall.

Thomas Ellis fell down the stairs in his home at 434 Dearborn street yesterday, breaking his neck. When he fell he was carrying a glass of milk to his little daughter Dorothy, who has been ill for several weeks and by whose bedside the father had been watching night after night.

Ellis had suffered from vertigo, and his fall is attributed to an attack of this disorder. Mrs. Ellis has been ill as a result of her constant watch at the bedside of Dorothy. The father took up the nightly watch and slept on a cot beside the bed of the little girl. Dorothy awoke about 4 o'clock and asked for a glass of milk. Ellis was overjoyed, for he took the signs of her returning appetite as an indication of her recovery. He hastened downstairs and had reached the top step on his return. Dorothy saw him throw up his arms and fall backward.

The frightened child saw the huddled form of her father at the bottom of the steps and called to her sleeping mother. Before Mrs. Ellis could respond the child had reached her father's side and was tugging at his clothing in her efforts to arouse him. A physician was summoned, but declared that Ellis had probably died instantly.

The terrible experience was too much for the little girl. She has been in a state of delirium since, and the doctors say she may lose her mind. Mrs. Ellis has collapsed and is under the care of neighbors.

DIES IN HOTEL CORRIDOR

Henry H. Ayers Stricken When Leaving the Walton.

Henry H. Ayers, the Walnut street furrier, died yesterday in a corridor of the Hotel Walton of convulsions, to which he had been more or less subject ever since five years old, when he fell down an open hatchway, in Thirteenth street near Chestnut, injuring his head. He was contemplating undergoing an operation for the affliction next week.

Until three weeks ago Mr. and Mrs. Ayers and their three-months-old child lived at 1820 Ontario street. They removed to the Walton, expecting to pass the winter there. Mr. Ayers had breakfast yesterday and appeared to be in the best of health and spirits. After spending some time in his room he told his wife that he was going out, but would return shortly. He left the room and had gone only a few steps from his door when he was seized with an attack. A nurse who attends his baby found him there, but before she could render any help he died. Dr. Herbert Cornforth, of Eighteenth and Spruce streets, had been called meanwhile, but when he arrived he could do nothing. Ever since his accident Mr. Ayers had been undergoing treatment at various intervals at the hands of Dr. Charles K. Mills and Dr. Laura S. Chapin.

He was 35 years old and his fur establishment at 1250 Walnut street, was conducted under the firm name of W. W. Ayers & Anna B. Ayers.

LIQUOR DEALERS AND POLICE

Retailers to Investigate Blocking of War on Speak-easies.

The Philadelphia Retail Liquor Dealers' Association has decided to investigate the complaints of its private detectives to the effect that they receive little attention from the police when asking for the suppression of speakeasies and other places where liquor is sold illegitimately.

At its meeting yesterday the association declared that it would appoint a committee to wait upon Mayor Rayburn and Director Clay. The complaint of the liquor men will be directly against the police, who, they contend, are blocking their efforts to kill the speakeasy by refusing to take the prisoners that the association's detectives arrest. Edward T. Wells, attorney for the association, has prepared extensive data, with the instances of alleged indifference and refusal on the part of the police. Thomas F. Watson, president of the association, declared yesterday that sufficient evidence of speakeasies could be furnished to demand closer police supervision.

No time was set for the committee to call at the City Hall, but it is believed that the complaint will be made within the week.

POLICE ROB

Seriously W... and M... T...

ONE OF ...

Identified ... Wat...

Four men su... in a highway ... terday by Pol... of the Fourt... tion. Lennon ... oners to the ... volver, while ... of Ninth and ... shot in the ... Agnew's Hosp... rious.

According to ... flans have ... hood of Tant... sult themselve... Several person... Among them ... South Tenth ... the police, we... bers of the ... his home. On... it is said, two ... a wall, while ... watch and dia... the man who ... Burns, of Da... and swore out ... arrest. Edgar ... was also reco... waymen.

Early yeste... Lennon saw ... band of more ... and Snyder a... the rear, he a... attempted to ... tion. Compan... mediately surr... spite the odds ... his ground. ... powered and th... and Edgar we... their followers ... himself on his ... men. The bull... and he fell to ... man who war... dered to halt ... great respect ... obeyed.

The shot attr... eral nearby ho... trol, in which ... hospital. Cove... his revolver. ... march to the ... obeyed without ... that Burns wa... other prisoner... Ninth and Wo... ley, of Ninth ...

Burns was h... by magistrate ... no direct evid... Rowley they ...

LION DID

Parents Deny ... Accident

The Evening ... count yesterda... old baby of M... of 3004 Almond... tern by a lion... Hunter Brothe... The story also ... had been lacer... he ran to reac... Mr. and Mrs. ... there was no ... said that they ... gation in the h... son who had a...

Mrs. H. ...

Mrs. H. J. M... har home, 1125 ... band is vice pr... tilling Compan...

THE ...

Local ...

United States W... Temperature ... MAXIMUM (6 p. ... MINIMUM (8 a. m... MEAN ... Normal, 62.

Barometer ... Temperature ... Humidity ... Wind—Direction ... Velocity ... Weather ... Rainfall ... Sunshine, proper ... Temperature—D...

663

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

890506007

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Testimony] Emma Goldman's Case to Be Reheard / Emma Goldman. — p. 2 ; 43 cm.
In Public Ledger [Philadelphia]. —(Oct. 7, 1909).
Obtained from the Pennsylvania State University Libraries, University Park, PA.

PHIA. THURSDAY MORNING. OCTOBER 7, 1909.

NOVEL QUESTION OF MAN'S RELIGION RAISED IN SUIT

Society Defended Widow's Action on Ground That Husband Was Not a Catholic.

Mrs. Sarah N. Goodwin got a verdict against the American Catholic Union for $552.50 in Common Pleas Court No. 4 yesterday, as insurance on the life of her husband, Samuel C. Goodwin, who died a year ago last January. The union, which is a beneficial association, refused to pay the insurance on the ground that Goodwin was not a Catholic.

In the course of the trial Judge Audenried, who was sitting, called upon Michael J. Ryan to inform the Court how the claim of a man to be a Catholic could be disproved if it were not true. Mr. Ryan was not in the Goodwin case, being in the courtroom as attorney in another matter. He said he did not know unless there had been a public excommunication or the person had openly renounced the faith, there was no expunging of names from membership records or letters of dismissal as in other churches. If baptized a Catholic a person remained such till death outwardly whatever his practice, unless excommunicated, which is rarely done, or unless he withdrew his adherence publicly.

Mrs. Goodwin testified that her husband entered the Catholic Church in 1901, and observed the commandments of the church till the time of his death. The death was sudden. Therefore no priest had been called to administer the last sacraments. He had received communion, he said, with her on Christmas Day, ten days before his death.

Thomas A. Fahy, attorney for the union, sought to prove by the fact that Goodwin had been buried in a non-Catholic cemetery, Mount Holly, that he was not a Catholic. The fact was explained as having been made beside the graves of Goodwin's parents, who were not Catholics, and were buried in that cemetery.

FOUND DEAD IN THE MARSH

Police Undetermined Whether Exposure of Violence Was the Cause.

The body of a man supposed to be that of George Beck, of 2331 Lee street, Frankford, was found in the marsh land in the rear of the Keystone Fish Co. at Rhawn street and the Delaware River yesterday. The police are not sure whether the man died from exposure or was murdered as if it was Beck his wandering habits support the first theory, while the form condition of the woods in which he was found and the derangement of his clothing seem to suggest the theory of death by violence.

William Wiese of 2310 Rhawn street was gunning along the river when the excited howling of his dog attracted his attention. He had been attracted and he hastened to the spot. His dog was pointing to the body of the man.

In the man's pocket there was found a bearing the name and address of Beck. Inquiry at the house indicated that he had been apparently demented for a long time and frequently wandered from home for indefinite periods. He went away on Sept. 21 and on the 27th and 28th of September he was seen in the vicinity of Frankford. On the 29th a trace of him was found. A number of the persons who knew him positively identified the body as that of Beck when it was discovered. It is thought that Mrs. Beck, who was ill, took the death of her husband so much to heart that it hastened her own death, which occurred from pneumonia. She had been ailing for some time.

DROPS DEAD AT SON'S BEDSIDE

Mother Passes Away While Trying to Bid Children Good-by.

Mrs. Jane Lindsay, 56 years old, of 446 North Fifth street, dropped dead of vertigo beside the bed of her two sons into whose room she had crept early yesterday morning. The sons were awakened by the falling body and called Doctor McIntosh, police surgeon at the Third street and Fairmount avenue station. It is believed that the mother felt that death was approaching and sought to say goodby to her sons before she died.

The sons, Robert and Pierce, have occupied rooms with their mother at the Fifth street address since the death of the father several years ago. The mother often had attacks of vertigo and had requested the girls that her sons should be present so that she could talk to them when she was about to die. The only relative the boys now have is Edward Brasil, formerly a crossing watchman at Eighth and Willow streets and now thought to be in Harrisburg.

FELL DEAD AT TIME CLOCK

Watchman Overcome as He Inserted Key to Register.

William Henry Gordon, a veteran of the British campaign in Egypt years ago, dropped dead yesterday morning in the act of punching a time-clock in the Girard Building, where he was employed as a watchman. In another week Gor-

EXCITING SCENES ON PARK AUTO COURSE

Grandstand Rail Breaks, Throwing Spectators in Way of Cars, But Nobody Is Hurt

BOY IS NEARLY KILLED

Crosses Path of Flyer—Three Machines Do Laps in Less Than Eight Minutes.

Hundreds of persons, the largest crowd of the week, were thrilled yesterday morning at the trial spins for the Quaker City Motor Club's 200-mile race on Saturday by a succession of exciting happenings.

First of all they saw eighteen cars dash around the track, one after another, three of them breaking the record of last year by making the round of the course in less than eight minutes. Then they were thrown into a tumult of applause by the appearance of George Robertson, winner of last year's race, in a Simplex car.

The excitement was increased by the collapse of the railing of a section of the grand stand so that nearly two score of persons were tumbled out upon the track. Nobody was hurt. Shortly after this Willie Wallace, in his Palmer-Singer, risked his life to escape running over a boy who ran across the track just as the machine was rushing past. On the whole, the two or three hours of racing from daylight until 7:30 o'clock was filled with interest for the crowd.

Chevrolet, the French driver, had hoped to make the round of the track in 8 minutes flat, but he did not succeed. However, Burman, in an Buick, and Dingley, in a Chalmers-Detroit, were unofficially timed at less than 8 minutes.

Several watches also caught H. F. Grant, the driver of the Alco car, making the distance in eight minutes flat. On the stretches it is estimated that he ran as fast as 80 and 85 miles an hour.

The best time made by Chevrolet, a Buick was 8:25. Wallace made 8:27 in his Palmer-Singer, while Dingley, in a Chalmers-Detroit, and Zeugle, in a Chadwick, each raced around in 8:30.

Robertson's appearance on the track was loudly cheered. He made no attempt at record breaking and covered five laps in an average of 9 minutes, his best round being 8:42. One of Robertson's dangerous opponents will be Grant in his Alco. Grant has never driven any car but the Alco in races. Two years ago, in the Lowell event, he finished second in the 250-mile race through losing eight tires. This year again over the 308-mile course, with 30 laps, he was 5 minutes ahead of Robertson, the eventual winner, when on the 25th lap he broke the tangled in his chain and put him out of the running.

Grant said that while the course was better than last year it was far from ideal particularly along the river stretch, where the cinders have been laid. Whether the cinders caused trouble or whether it was because the cars have not yet settled down to work, the running was most uneven. The troubles were frequent and other little accidents were happening constantly to bother the drivers.

Joe Brennon, the mechanician for Chevrolet, came into the home stretch on one of his rounds with his face covered with blood and dirt. He explained that as they turned off Belmont avenue and into Wynnefield avenue, the machine threw up a lot of loose stones which punished them severely.

Persons who had crowded upon the grand stand had a narrow escape from injury when the railing of one of the sections gave way and threw them into the track. Nobody was hurt and fortunately no cars were passing at the time. Captain Duncan, of the Park Guards, and a squad of his men quickly cleared away the damage, so that the racing went on without interruption.

Wallace, in the Palmer-Singer, had quite a speeding up the River Drive a boy ran across the track. Wallace swerved the car to the side and put on the brakes. He missed the boy by a bare 6 inches and nearly upset the car.

The course has been roped off from the Fifty-second street entrance to Sweet Briar turn and today it will be roped off still further. Captain Duncan has assigned 45 men to the guarding of the track during the practice runs. At night 17 men, under Sergeant Hahn, are on duty and on the day of the race there will be 70 of the Park Guards and from 1500 to 1700 policemen patrolling the course.

In addition to policemen and Park guards the services of Company B, Engineers Corps, N. G. P., have been obtained for Saturday. About 50 of the engineers, under command of Captain St. George H. Cook, Lieutenant James H. Andrews and

EMMA GOLDMAN'S CASE TO BE REHEARD

Question of Nationality to Be Considered by the Court.

Emma Goldman's nationality is the technicality on which Judges Audenried and Willson have been hanging their arguments in the case of her plea for injunction. A rehearsing of the case will be held tomorrow and then several other legal points, that the courts declare block their path to a decision, will be threshed out. Henry John Nelson, City Solicitor Gendell and Assistant City Solicitor Aiken appeared before the two Judges yesterday and the rehearing was decided upon. Miss Goldman was deeply incensed when the nationality question was raised.

"First of all, I am a citizen, as I have proved many times. But, please understand that I am not contemplating proving it again." Miss Goldman shrugged her shoulders expressive of a disdain of the Court's questionings.

"What I want to tell the people in pursuance of the cause for which I stand," she continued, "has practically made way for a much greater basic principle than my demand that I be permitted to speak here. If should be told that my prayer for injunction would be granted by the court on the one condition that I prove to their satisfaction that I am an American citizen, I would be destroying my rights to claim championship of the Constitution by acceding to their wishes. The Constitution of this country gives me the unreserved right to free speech. That is given unqualifiedly, and by making any compromise I would be setting a precedent that could be cited in shutting the door of free speech in the face of thousands of admirable people entitled to speak, but who could not because they are not citizens.

"No! No! No!" she cried, "I am not fighting for myself alone. The most meagre student of current events can hark back the last five years and name thousands of foreigners who have spoken and nobody dared deny them because our Constitution forbade the abridgment of their right of free speech."

Yesterday Miss Goldman's mail was greater than ever before. Letters were received from Eugene V. Debs, Senator C. E. S. Wood, of Portland, Ore.; William Marion Reedy, of St. Louis; J. G. Phelps Stokes and Rose Pastor Stokes, Elbert Hubbard and Louis Post, of Chicago. All these letters will be read at a mass-meeting that will be held under the auspices of the Free Speech Committee at the Labor Lyceum, Sixth and Brown streets, on Friday night.

Leonard D. Abbott, of New York, will be chairman of the meeting, and speeches will be made by former Congressman Robert Baker, of Brooklyn, Bolton Hall, of New York, Voltairine de Cleyre, of this city, and Dr. Ben L. Reitman, of Chicago. There is a possibility that Mr. and Mrs. Stokes will also be present and address the meeting. Miss Goldman will not attempt to speak, but a letter from her will be read.

TRIAL OF HILLEGAS

Government Expected to Close Today in Boyertown Bank Case.

Another day was consumed in the tracing of checks and accounts included in the transactions of DeWitt C. Hillegass with the Farmers' National Bank, of Boyertown, when the trial of Hillegass, charged with aiding in the misapplication of the bank's funds, was resumed yesterday in the United States District Court.

A. L. Moise, who represented the bank in bringing suit to recover notes, was the principal witness. He testified to the various actions and amounts represented and recovered in the suits after judgment had been obtained.

Trial will be resumed today, when it is expected the Government will rest its case.

MASHER GOES TO JAIL

First Chased by Mother of Girl He Called "Doll Baby."

John Prendergast, 1221 South Philip street, was sent to the House of Correction by Magistrate Hughes yesterday morning for saying, "Oh, you doll baby" to Miss Reba Segal, of 732 Dickinson street.

According to the testimony at the hearing [illegible] and Fourth and [illegible] nue police station Miss Segal, who is 21 years old and pretty, was standing in the front doorway of her home eating a pear when Prendergast, with whom she was not acquainted, happened by. Miss Segal said that after calling her a doll baby, Prendergast asked her for some of the pear, and that when this was refused, he came up on the steps and became impudent. By the time Miss Reba's mother appeared, broom in hand, and chased Prendergast for two blocks, when he ran into the arms of Policeman Barnett. Magistrate Hughes called Prendergast a "ping ugly," and said that he would make an example of him.

ACCUSED OF STEALING TOOLS

EX-MAGISTRATE IS ACCUSED OF FRAUD

Charles Fulmer Arrested Charged With Conspiracy to Register Bogus Names.

HE IS REFORM WORKER

Friends Declare Organization Followers Made Plot Against Him.

Ex-Magistrate Charles Fulmer, a Penn party City Committeeman of the 29th Ward, was arrested yesterday and held for a hearing tomorrow before Magistrate Gallagher, charged with conspiracy. It is alleged by George W. Fisher, an Organization follower, that Fulmer gave him sums of money at different times to register illegal voters in the 10th and 12th Wards.

Fulmer, according to Fisher, agreed to pay an additional, $200 providing he was successful in registering the names.

According to Magistrate Gallagher, Fisher made a confession in which he is alleged to have said that Fulmer planned to register bogus voters in the two wards and subsequently place the blame on the Organization.

Several reform followers said yesterday that the conspiracy charge against Fulmer was the result of a plot of Organization followers. The Penn party adherents asserted that a man was sent to them who said he had information detrimental to the Organization which would benefit the reform cause.

The Penn party followers emphatically denied that any attempt was made to register fraudulent voters, and declared that detectives were sent to the wards in question to get possession of poll-tax receipts, which it is said were being distributed in a wholesale manner by Organization followers.

Interesting developments are promised this morning, when Fulmer will be arraigned. Organization men assert that other men prominent in the reform cause will be arrested before the affair is settled.

It was said that the investigation led to the door of one of the most active reform leaders.

It is probable that no further arrests will be made, but the Organization leaders declare that men very "high up" in reform will be exposed as having knowledge of Fulmer's actions.

VENDER'S UNLUCKY START

His Cart Upset by Runaway on First Trip.

Misfortune for Angelo Petruzzi was good fortune for his neighbors in the vicinity of Seventh and Carpenter streets yesterday morning. Angelo had saved his money and invested it in a pushcart. And yesterday he had stocked it with vegetables and was on his first trip. He was standing on Seventh street, near Carpenter, volubly discussing qualities and prices with a crowd of women in the Italian vernacular when a runaway brewery wagon, driven by John Richter, came along. Richter had nothing but empty barrels aboard, and his horse had taken fright at a hand organ. Smash went Angelo's new cart. Eggplants and onions, beets and corn, mingled in the street. Angelo and a crowd of men ran after the brewery wagon. But the women remained where they were and picked up the vegetables.

Police Sergeant Wilson stopped the horse at Eleventh and Carpenter streets and arrested Richter. It was with difficulty that Wilson saved Richter from rough handling by Petruzzi's partisans, and at the station house Petrusal demanded immediate payment for his loss. He was finally induced to leave the station house by giving him a paper with Richter's [illegible] at a bank. Then Richter was released.

THE WEATHER

Local Record October 6.

United States Weather Bureau, Philadelphia.

Temperature	1908.	1909.
MAXIMUM	74	69
MINIMUM	58	52
MEAN	66	60

Normal, 61.

	8 a. m.	8 p. m.
Barometer	30.34	30.22
Temperature	58	67
Humidity	80	78
Wind—Direction	W	W
Velocity	8	8
Weather	Clear	Clear

Sunshine, 100 per cent.
Temperature—Excess today, 5 degrees; deficiency since October 1, 3 degrees; since [illegible]

664

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

890506009

The Emma Goldman Papers

Emma Goldman and M'Kinley's Death / Emma Goldman. – p. 8 ; 43 cm. In Public Ledger [Philadelphia]. –(Oct. 8, 1909).

Obtained from the Pennsylvania State University Libraries, University Park, PA.

inty. k to how been of n ariff. tion, ame ien- nity but ary hy va

than

R

that omitted that pro- al- ly le- tell ion of San of in to but upon its annual value—that is, upon the amount which it brings the owner in rentals. If the land happens to be unoccupied, it is not assessed and pays nothing; hence it is no burden to a landowner to hold on to unimproved real estate. These facts, coupled with the further circumstances that few Englishmen own their home or factory sites, but hold them on long leases, and that land has become so sacred an heirloom that it is rarely or never sold outright, show how wide a departure from tradition is the proposal that land shall be value-rated and taxed on the basis of its value.

It has no market value in any sense that would be understood in other countries, and the attempt to fix one, and thus to reach the "unearned increment" is instantly denounced as a pretext of the "have-nots" to impose new and unjust burdens on the "haves." On the other hand, the argument that the great landowners, the peers and other rich men, have hitherto escaped a just share in the burdens of taxation, is being forcibly used. Hence the bitterness of the struggle over this vital part of a very complicated controversy.

ARCHAIC MOSSBACKS

The opposition of the Camden Council to a project to bring their city into direct railway communication with Philadelphia is not explicable upon any theory that does not impeach either their honesty or their common sense. No one can possibly doubt the enormous gain to Camden from a tunnel under the Delaware River. There may be doubt whether the scheme is financially practicable, but Camden is not called on to consider that. The projectors are not asking financial aid from the Council; they are only asking the necessary legal authorization to overcome Camden's natural isolation. It might be expected that the whole population would welcome the proposition with delight.

It may be that the residents of Camden do welcome it, but if so they are miserably misrepresented by their Council. Instead of doing everything to encourage and facilitate the execution of the plan with proper assurance of responsibility, the Councilmen have put all imaginable obstacles in the way, and have finally loaded down the ordinance with such multiform and unreasonable conditions as are equivalent to refusal.

As an instance of mossback obstruction this is so astounding as to be incredible. The most inveterate hostility to corporations could not account for stupidity like this. It is not strange that some hostile counter-influence is suspected, some interest that recognizes the great change that would result from a tunnel under the Delaware opening all New Jersey to quick and cheap transportation from Philadelphia and the Continent. Such interests might naturally oppose a new competitive force, as the omnibus drivers opposed the street railways; but that is not a reason why Camden should prefer horsecars to electric cars.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS

Purposes and Effect of the Proposed Changes in Fundamental Law.

BY GEORGE H. THORN,
Chief Clerk, State Department.

Ten proposed amendments to the Constitution, and a schedule designed to carry them into effect, will be printed upon the ballot for the general election in November, thus submitting them for adoption or rejection by the people.

While each of the amendments revises a different section of the Constitution, the purpose of all is to the same end—namely, to abolish the February election, to provide that the general election shall be held in November of even-numbered years and the municipal election in November of odd-numbered years, and that there shall be but one regular election each year.

To accomplish this purpose, and to retain the harmony of the constitutional provisions, it is necessary to amend the several sections as set forth below.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT I

Provides that when a vacancy in office occurs two months or more before the general election in November in offices a successor to which may be filled by appointment of the Governor the vacancy shall be filled at the said election.

The provision now in force is that the vacancy shall have occurred three months or more before the election.

NO. II

Fixes the terms of the State Treasurer and of the Auditor General at four years each, instead of three and two years respectively as at present, but provides that the State Treasurer and the Auditor General elected in 1909 shall serve terms of three years each.

NO. III

Provides that the terms of office of Justices of the Peace and of Aldermen shall be six years instead of five years as at present.

NO. IV

Applies only to Philadelphia and fixes the term of office of Magistrate at six years [illegible] the term is five years.

NO. V

Provides that the general election shall be held biennially in each even-numbered year on the Tuesday next following the first Monday of November, instead of annually, as at present.

NO. VI

Abolishes the February election and provides that the municipal election shall be held biennially in the odd-numbered years, on the Tuesday next following the first Monday of November, instead of annually as at present.

NO. VII

Provides that election boards shall be elected biennially instead of annually, and further, that the General Assembly may by law require said boards to be appointed either generally or in cities only, instead of being elected.

NO. VIII

Provides that State officers shall be elected on a general election day (November of even-numbered years), and that local officers shall be elected on a municipal election day (November of odd-numbered years).

NO. IX

Fixes the term of office of all county officers at four years, instead of three years, as at present.

NO. X

Provides that the terms of office of County Commissioners and of County Auditors shall be four years, instead of three years as at present, classifying them as county officers coming under the ninth amendment.

Schedule for the Amendments.

By the provisions of the schedule the terms of all officers now fixed at an odd number of years will be extended one year, so that the terms shall always be for an even number of years. That is, the term of election officers will be two years, that of assessors, constables, School Directors, Councilmen, supervisors and of all city and county officers will be four years, and that of Justices of the Peace, Aldermen and Magistrates will be six years.

County officers elected in 1907 and 1908 will each serve four years, but those elected in 1908 will serve only three years.

The February (municipal) election will of the ballot. Vote first for the candidates of your choice. Then mark the amendments in regular order.

EMMA GOLDMAN AND M'KINLEY'S DEATH

A Caustic Denial That She Was in Any Way Implicated, and a Vigorous Retort.

To the Editor of Public Ledger:

Sir—In the issue of your paper of the 6th instant, there appeared the following letter:

"Sir—The fact that the assassin of William McKinley, under oath, swore that he attributed his act of crime to the utterances of Emma Goldman is ground enough for preventing her speaking here. T. T. H."

Among decent people it is customary to ignore any printed accusation that is not signed in full.

However, I ask the courtesy of your paper, not for my defense, but for the benefit of your readers, who, I take it, believe in hearing both sides.

T. T. H. states that the "assassin of William McKinley swore under oath that he attributes his act of crime to the utterances of Emma Goldman." It requires but little logic to see that T. T. H. speaks from hearsay and not from knowledge.

If the "assassin" had given any such sworn testimony would not the authorities have confronted him with me, and would that not have been sufficient evidence, especially at that moment of popular frenzy, to hold me for trial, yea, even to send me to prison?

For the enlightenment of T. T. H. permit me to say that the State of New York employed 200 detectives and spent $30,000 to connect me with the "assassin." Evidently they were leaving nothing undone to get sufficient evidence. Is it reasonable, then, to assume that sworn testimony, such as referred to in the letter of T. T. H., would have been allowed to pass?

In justice to that victim of economic inequity and social ignorance, Leon Czolgosz, I wish to state once for all, that he made no such statement under oath, or otherwise, nor had he ever claimed to be an anarchist.

Leon Czolgosz made one statement; however, when he was placed in the electric chair. "Good Christian brothers," "in their great Christian love," attempted to draw a confession from their helpless victim.

They told him that Emma Goldman had denounced him as a worthless beggar, or something to that effect. "It makes no difference what she says, she knew nothing of the act," was the "assassin's" reply.

As to what else that boy may or may not have said only his warders and the prison walls know.

Warders, in the sublime words of Oscar Wilde,

"Must set a lock upon their lips, and make their face a mask."

And again,

"Every prison that men build for men is built with bricks of shame,
And bound with bars, lest Christ should see
How man their brothers maim."

No, the "assassin" made no statements, nor could there be found even circumstantial evidence to connect me in any way.

Besides, I absolutely deny that utterances, no matter how incendiary, have ever induced any one to violence. Two conditions are necessary for such acts. One is a great social wrong that is undermining the liberties of a people. Secondly, a deep-sensitive social or individual psychology incapable of enduring that wrong. Where these factors are lacking one might preach violence from every housetop without the slightest result. On the other hand, where social conditions outrage every sense of justice violent acts are their natural results.

This brings me to the most vital point. Not anarchism, the philosophy of social peace and harmony, not Emma Goldman's speeches are responsible for the act of the "assassin" of William McKinley, but people like T. T. H., like those who are [illegible] system which, as Thomas Paine said, "Sends old age to the workhouse and youth to the gallows."

No doubt T. T. H. means well, but he has much to learn. I suggest that he attend the free speech meeting Friday night at Labor Lyceum. He might learn there what liberty really means.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

Philadelphia, October 7, 1909.

The mass-meeting which will be conducted under the auspices of the Free Speech Committee tonight at the Labor Lyceum, Sixth and Brown streets, will have Mayor Reyburn as its guest if he accepts an invitation tendered [illegible] Tuesday. The invitation was prompted

MILITARY SURGEONS' MEETING

Medical Director Wise Declares Better Education is Required.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO PUBLIC LEDGER.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—The annual meeting of the Association of Military Surgeons continued its session today with a discussion of the needs of the service from a military point of view. Considerable criticism of the present conditions was heard and Medical Director Wise declared that one of the greatest needs in America is more general education among surgeons.

Dr. Wise declared that the United States has the finest surgeons in the world and some of the greatest men of medicine to be found anywhere, but that the primary education of most physicians has been absolutely neglected.

He added that the need for better educated doctors was felt particularly in the public service, where men frequently apply for admission and are found to be splendidly equipped from the professional standpoint, so far as medicine and surgery go, but who could never pass an examination in the simplest branches of English.

A medical "plucking board" was demanded by Surgeon Blackwood, for the purpose of keeping the service up to the highest standard. When a man fails to fulfill the requirements of his position, Doctor Blackwood wants to see him retired and a man who can qualify put in his place. The line and the navy have such a board, he declared, and the medical department should have one also.

Such authorities as Medical Director J. C. Wise, Medical Inspector H. O. Beyer, Surgeon in Chief Stokes, Surgeons E. S. Bogart, Raymond Spear, George Pickrell, George A. Long and J. N. Blackwood, of the United States Service, read papers on the various questions of organization and equipment, frankly exposing the lack of many essentials that exist not only in the American service but among foreign navies as well.

CHINESE MINISTER'S RECALL

Chief of Far Eastern Bureau to Confer With Knox and Crane.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO PUBLIC LEDGER.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—A phase of the Far Eastern question which throws much light on the temporary recall of the new United States Minister to China, Mr. Crane, from San Francisco is the arrival in Washington at the end of the week in time for the conference between Minister Crane and Secretary Knox of Ransford S. Miller, chief of the new Far Eastern Bureau of the State Department. Mr. Miller was formerly secretary of the American Embassy at Tokio, and is now returning from an extensive tour through Manchuria and Korea.

This fact makes it almost certain that the recall of Mr. Crane as he was about to sail for his post had to do with further instructions and the arriving at a complete understanding on his part with the State Department as to the exact status of American interests in the Orient.

Secretary of State Knox has taken a particular interest in Oriental affairs since entering President Taft's Cabinet. Aided by the President, whose position in the Philippines has given him a wide insight into Eastern matters, Mr. Knox established the Far Eastern Bureau.

The conference of Mr. Knox, Mr. Miller and Mr. Crane is expected to take place on Saturday or Sunday. Secretary Knox is still at his home at Valley Forge, Pa.

PLAN FOUR NEW BATTLESHIPS

Navy Board Programme Also Includes Many Other War Craft.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO PUBLIC LEDGER.]

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 7.—It is understood that the programme for additional ships for the navy, which is a result of the meetings of the Navy General Board, includes four battleships, submarines, destroyers, colliers, armored cruisers and other craft.

Naval officers are hoping that the programme will include two large repair ships for the fleet on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, which are essential, they state, and no fleet can be complete without them.

The submarine Octopus is engaged in carrying on various manoeuvres and firing Whitehead torpedoes in Narragansett Bay secretly, in accordance with the plan to develop certain tests which were started in the bay last month by the first submarine flotilla.

OFFICE FOR HALE'S SON

Named as Third Assistant Secretary of State to Succeed Wm. Phillips.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—Chandler Hale, of Maine, son of Senator Hale, has been selected as Third Assistant Secretary of State to succeed William Phillips, of Boston, who will become Secretary of the American Embassy at London, succeeding John R. Carter. Mr. Carter will be appointed Minister to Roumania.

Although they have not yet received their commissions, no doubt is expressed of their appointment within a day or two.

Mr. Hale is 36 years of age. He served as assistant secretary to the American

ARCHAIC MOSSBACKS

[illegible] letter to the International Balloon Race for the Gordon Bennett Cup came down in a large pine tree near Warsaw at the end of a 650-mile flight from Zurich and made himself the winner of the race, coming close on the heels of Glenn H. Curtiss, captor of the grand prize in the international aviation meet at Rheims, the record height attained by Wilbur Wright at Berlin, and Curtiss's victory at Rheims. Mix's achievement is a most gratifying enhancement of American aeronautical prestige and the harbinger of greater triumphs to come.

665

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

890506013

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Goldman Meeting Without Goldman / Emma Goldman.— p. 2 ; 43 cm. In Public Ledger [Philadelphia]. —(Oct. 9, 1909).

Obtained from the Pennsylvania State University Libraries, University Park, PA.

ER—PHILADELPHIA, SATURDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 9, 1909.

FORM MEETINGS IN GERMANTOWN

...boney Makes Caustic Criti... ...sm of Penrose's Speech to Kensington Folk.

...ORE HAS TO EXPLAIN

...tor Asks Why Former As... ...ant District Attorney "Flopped" to Organization.

...mantown citizens filled three halls ...ight to give an uproarious recep... ...the Penn party candidates. There ...uch red fire burned along the ...ares and the Perseverance Band ...at it could to enliven the occasion ...n while

...principal meeting of the evening ...ld at the Town Hall, where women ...in the gallery heard some words ...subject of woman suffrage. A ...who appeared to be the ... ...of the business community filled ...ll. But at Hibernia Hall ... ...event of the evening took place. ...T. Morse was speaking, when out ...un auditor who gave his name ...as Thomas Gaffney, of the 2d ... interposed a question as to why ...ore "flopped" over to the reform ... The speaker had just concluded a ...e to his sudden change of politics ...he Organization ranks to those of ...n party.

...Morse endeavored to explain that ..."flopped" over suddenly after a ...nlightening conversation on the ... of politics with a certain con... ...of the city.

...affney came back and wanted to ...he substance of that conversation ...uers, becoming visibly embar... ...explained that he would prefer ...nter into it in details. Suddenly ...ere cries of "Put him out." "Put ...

...at point the Chairman of the ... Charles Graham rose to com... ...affney to remain quiet, but Mr. ...equested Mr. Graham to be seated ... said that he would attend to the ... The attention had grown em... ...ng to the entire assemblage, when ...man appeared and the man who ...cetiously referred to as the ... of Summerville was removed ... hall.

...yburn the Chief Target.

...Reyburn was the chief target ...evening, he along with McNichol ... Vare, furnished the principal ...for the campaign arguments of ...ing at the various meetings. ...ence Gibboney discussed Senator ...e attitude in the campaign briefly ...A. Lewis had this to say about ... Stuart. The Governor came to ...delphia the other day and asked ...te for Rotan for District Attor... ...am not inclined to take the Gov... ...riously on this topic I am in... ...be reminded of two and a half ...o, when he came to town to ad... ...to vote for Mayor Reyburn. We ... Governor advice two and a ...rs ago as I voted for the Mayor, ... we did get a prize package."

...O. Lewis also had a fling at the ...He said that the election of the ...Penn candidates would bring to ...he end of Reyburnism, which had ...the city since 1905. He said that ...tractors' combine would fall to ...et November 3 if their candi... ...are defeated and the Republicans ...f Philadelphia would have a ...o reorganize and regenerate their ...mittees and separate them from ...trol.

Mr. Gibboney's Speech.

...ndidates made virtually the same ...at the three meetings. Mr. Gib... ...id ...rve that the distinguished ... ...from this State was "trotted ... ...tariff speech in Kensington last ... I read his speech with much ...and as an exposition of Republi... ...m my ... connection of Repub... ...But what relation had his re... ...the question of the control of ...quality by political contractors? ...Penrose very properly had noth... ...to say on that subject.

...rely regret that Senator Penrose ...help the tens of thousands of ...ans who voted for me at the June ... to redeem the city and the Re... ...party from the base rule of po... ...tractors. Why does he not come ...good causes? Why does he not ...great power of his position and ...nce against the domination by ...contractors of the Republican ...tion in this city? I would greatly ...e him standing with my Republi... ...nds and myself on a common ...form for true Republicanism, which ...ection frauds and all the other ...ils inevitably follow and are a ...overnment by a political com...

Political Meetings Tonight.

WILLIAM PENN.

Fifteenth Ward, Merrill's Hall, 15th street and Fairmount avenue.

Combination meeting of the Sixth, 10th, 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th, 19th and 20th Wards. Labor Lyceum Hall, Sixth and Brown streets. Speakers will include D. Clarence Gibboney, John J. Murphy, Edwin O. Lewis, Vivian Frank Gable, Colonel Shaldon Potter and Ziba T. Moore.

nation for Sheriff some time in the past, to the evident amusement of the candidates and the audience, but to the discomfiture of the chairman.

Organization's Death Struggle.

Edwin O. Lewis was introduced following Magistrate Eisenbrown, and said in part:

"What a miserable spectacle the Mayor makes—possessing the power of a king, yet playing only the part of a king's jester to McNichol and Vare. Boss rule has always meant that puppets are placed in high office. The contractors don't dare nominate for powerful offices men of independence or brains, for fear they would break the bonds of allegiance to the system that created them.

"So ex-Boss Dave Martin, chief of the Hog Combine, declares that no Republican will vote for John J. Murphy for City Treasurer. We will see. Some 80,000 citizens voted for Murphy on June 5, and does Mr. Martin dare to read them out of the Republican party? Martin says Murphy would not be worthy of election over Dobbins as treasurer of a secret society or a building association, but at least Mr. Murphy has no dollar mark on his forehead, nor has a United States Senator publicly branded him as a traitor.

"I have not heard that Mr. Murphy is a candidate for treasurer of any secret society. Mr. Dobbins can have the treasurership of Dave Martin's building society, what Murphy will get is the Treasurership of Philadelphia, and the united workingmen and other unbossed citizens will put him there.

"Strip tickets and good transit service depend on this election. The William Penn party will get back the six-for-a-quarter tickets, if it is successful in the election. Nothing is more important to the development and happiness of a great city than its street car service, and there will be no betterment here so long as the Transit Company is bound hand and foot, with the political contractors. It is to the interest of the real owners—not the stock-jobbing politicians of the street railway system—that it be divorced from all connection with McNichol and Vare and, Henry Clay, and be run as a business institution rather than as an annex of a contractors' machine."

Organization's Death Struggle.

Mr. Lewis declared that the contractors' organization was engaged in a struggle for its life and that the issue was, "Shall Philadelphia have government by the people, or government by two contractors for the benefit of those two contractors?"

"Mayor Reyburn is a creature of Organization rule, one of the visible examples of what curse boss rule is to a large city," he said. "We make no progress from one year's beginning to another. Reyburn's administration is a joke in City Hall and has been so looked upon by members of Councils from its inception. Contractors McNichol and Vare openly rule all departments of the city government. The Mayor is incompetent because he can't help it. He is childish in his thoughts, and in the control of unprincipled men becomes the instrument for much evil that he would not otherwise think of."

Walter E. Ilex, Common Councilman of the 2d Ward, presided at Chestnut Hill, where A. F. Gable and Thomas Mac-Farland were among the speakers who were not heard at the other two meetings.

At the Hibernian Hall, where Charles Graham, former president of the British-American Association, of which David M. Pascoe was secretary, presided, it was said that the sentiment in favor of Pascoe would throw at least 300 votes to the cause of the reformers.

PERSONAL REGISTRY BADGES

Commissioners Now Wear Insignia of Office.

"Arrest that man!" exclaimed a friend of Personal Registration Commissioner Pierie yesterday.

Mr. Pierie wore on his left breast a bright silver badge, which did not look unlike the insignia of an officer of the law. Mr. Pierie smiled and exposed the badge, which proved to be nothing more than the State coat of arms, on the rim of which was this: "Personal Registration Commissioner, Philadelphia."

This innovation was started some time ago. Each of the four commissioners and the two clerks now have the silver seal upon their persons. Some one suggested that it would be better if the State made the commissioners special officers so that they might arrest any man on sight who should fraudulently register.

Councilmen and city officers also wear badges of office. It is said that every city employe will be required shortly to carry some sign of his office, as is the case in European official circles.

POLITICAL CELEBRITIES HERE

Bellevue-Stratford Entertaining Men of Public Note.

It might have been thought there was a big political conference on in town yesterday, judging from the group of celebrated personages who were seen about the corridors of the Bellevue-Stratford. There were Governor Fort, of New Jersey; Congressman Fowler, Congressman Loudenslager and ex-Governor Stokes, all of the same State; former Congressmen James Watson, of Indiana

GOLDMAN MEETING WITHOUT GOLDMAN

Friends of Woman Anarchist Have Demonstration Under Police Guard.

LETTER FROM EMMA

Her Denunciation of Methods That Silenced Her Greeted With Applause.

Mayor Reyburn did not attend the anarchists' meeting in the Labor Lyceum, at Sixth and Brown streets, last night. He answered the invitations which had been given him by Leonard Abbott, the chairman, by sending Captain Callahan, with four lieutenants and 50 policemen, to see that everything was conducted in a gentlemanly and ladylike manner.

Neither did Emma Goldman attend the meeting. Judges Audenried and Willson, who presided at the supplementary hearing as to whether Miss Goldman had a right to resort to the protection of the United States law when she was admittedly an alien, continued the case yesterday without rendering a decision. So, of course, the lady anarchist did not attempt to discuss her anarchistic principles in person. She sent instead a letter which was read with great gusto at the meeting, the reading being liberally punctuated with cheers and applause. In fact, so much did the anarchists like the letter that they had it read twice, and then adopted resolutions protesting against the denial of free speech to their Jeanne d'Arc.

The policemen received quite as hearty a greeting as did Emma Goldman's letter; only the welcome was a little different. The speakers mingled ridicule and compassion in their references to the "men standing there at the back of the hall who don't like their dirty job any more than you like it." Most of the speakers went over the head of Captain Callahan and addressed themselves to Director Clay, who unfortunately said the speakers was not present.

The talks all criticised the Director for his disregard of the law of free speech. The audience howled with pleasure every time the head of the Department of Public Safety was scored, so that the talkers scored him all the harder. In addition to the speeches, a number of letters were read from such personages as Elbert Hubbard, Eugene V. Debs, Senator C. S. Wood, of Portland, Ore., William Marion Reedy, of St. Louis; J. G. Phelps Stokes, of Connecticut, and Louis Post, of Chicago. All of these letters told how terrible a thing it was when free speech was denied an anarchist.

Chairman Abbott introduced the following speakers: Former Congressman Robert Baker, of Brooklyn, Dr. Ben L. Reitman, Voltairine de Cleyre, Will Price, William Robinson and Charles D. Ryan. The speakers also talked about free speech, using such expressions as the "price of the blood of martyrs," "what your forefathers died for," etc.

Then the following resolution was adopted:

"Whereas, the inalienable right to peaceably assemble and to hear a public address by Emma Goldman in Odd Fellows' Temple has been denied to us, the people of Philadelphia, and,

"Whereas, a human voice has been silenced before it was heard,

"We, the people of Philadelphia, protest against this illegal action of the city officials and demand our constitutional right.

"Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to Mayor Reyburn, Director of Public Safety Clay and the press."

Emma Goldman's letter follows:

"It has been decreed by 'the wise fathers of this city' that I may not be with you tonight. Do you think Philadelphia will still be safe if I send you a message instead?

"Henrik Ibsen said that the majority accepts a great truth only when it has become a lie.

"Whosoever doubted Ibsen's deep understanding of the mass psychology had ample opportunity to be convinced in Philadelphia Tuesday, September 28.

"Ten thousand people came to a meeting at Odd Fellows' Temple, but because his Majesty had turned a great truth into a lie, free speech was stabbed in the heart Tuesday evening, September 28.

"'Life, liberty, happiness' the inalienable right to free thought and expression, in the old long ago represented a truth for the unpopular few. A sublime truth, for which men gave their all. The penalty of that truth was death, heroic, unflinching death.

"Liberty, independence, free speech, free assemblage are now popular slogans hailed and proclaimed by all. Liberty by the 'grace' of the law, independence at the behest of gold. Free speech at the mercy of the club. What a mockery, what a terrible farce.

"Ibsen is right. The majority has accepted the truth only when it became a lie, a hideous, brazen lie.

"It was that lie, more than the police department of Philadelphia, that made the outrage of September 28 possible.

"Men had been known to shed their last drop of blood for a truth, but who would expect any one to rise in rebellion for a lie?

"That's why 10,000 people submitted supinely to the brutal force of police clubs.

"I register my protest not against the sagging of my voice. Silence is more powerful

SMALL BOY FATALLY SHOT; CROWD THREATENS SLAYER

Victim Wounded by Angry Man, Who Narrowly Escapes Lynching.

Raymond L. Lauerhaus, 12 years old, was fatally shot in the breast and back last night while watching a fight, at Bodine street and Girard avenue, between a crowd of corner loungers and Andrew Sherer, of 418 Jefferson street. After the shooting Sherer threw away the revolver and ran four blocks with a crowd at his heels. As he stumbled exhausted from the fight and the run he was arrested by Policeman Holzwarth, at Fourth and Poplar streets. When the policeman took Sherer back to the call box, at Second and Girard avenue, the crowd had grown to such proportions and their passions had risen to such an extent that it looked for a time as if they would succeed in lynching Sherer. The policeman drew a revolver and backed up against a wall, protecting his prisoner. A concerted effort was made to push both him and his prisoner under the wheels of a passing freight train. Help in the form of several policemen arrived in time to avert a second tragedy.

The story told at the Front and Master streets police station was to the effect that as Sherer was passing the corner of Bodine street and Girard avenue, the crowd made fun of his bundle and called him names. A scuffle ensued, in which Sherer drew a revolver. The gang scattered, and Sherer fired at Lauerhaus, who is said to have been only an onlooker. The first shot struck him in the breast, and as he fell a second entered his back. Then Sherer ran. When the crowd saw him running they regained their courage and chased him.

At the station house 15 cartridges were found in Sherer's pockets. A revolver was found under a back gate along the route Sherer took in his dash to escape. The police say it is the one he used in the affray.

MIDGET BIJOU IS STRANGELY CLOSED

Lilliputians' Theatre, in 46th Ward, Notified Suddenly to Stop Performances.

The Midget Bijou, at 41-43 South 52d street, was closed by order of the building inspectors last night, who gave as a reason for their action that two stage walls of the hall were not fireproof, and that the registered proprietor of the place, J. A. Shoneman, had not complied with all the requirements of the theatrical law of 1901. The theatre is controlled by a group of Lilliputians, who have given performances at various places in the neighborhood for several years.

Shoneman says he has been conducting the place unmolested since March 20, when the building inspectors put their sign of approval on the building and declared it to be fireproof, and that the safety of the public was not endangered in attending concerts in the hall.

Friends of Shoneman, who say that they know the turbulent state of politics in the 46th Ward better than he does, declare there have been ulterior reasons for the closing, and when the question was put directly to Shoneman he said he believed politics had a lot to do with it, but because of his short residence in the ward and his inactivity in politics he would not enter into a discussion in which he could not produce names and facts.

His friends, however, say that since he came there the business of three other moving picture shows has suffered while he was making money. Those who suffered, they said, are strong politically.

Shoneman says the notice to cease his shows came without warning at 6 o'clock in the evening when it was too late to have the faults remedied by any one in authority in the Department of Public Safety. A large crowd of women and children had assembled outside the place for the evening performance when he told them the show would not go on.

Shoneman says that on March 20 he completed an expenditure of $12,000 on the place, which he built for a moving picture show. The hall occupies only the first floor, and the floors above are let out in flats. The seating capacity of the place is 250, and for this number of persons there are eight exits.

Edwin Clark, chief of the Bureau of Building Inspection, could not be found last night to tell why the place was allowed to start last March if it did not comply with the requirements.

BOY BLED TO DEATH

Leukemia Prevents Cessation of Flow After Tooth Extraction.

Daniel Rogeany, 10 years old, of Pineville, N. J., bled to death in the University of Pennsylvania Hospital, whither he had been taken Thursday from his home, near Millville, when the blood following the extraction of a tooth could not be stopped. The doctors diagnosed his case as leukemia, which means that there were

WIFE... HELD...

Woman F... Heart ... Hear...

PAIR FI...

Frenzied ... Declar...

William Fi... street, 60 ye... night charge... wife Amalia... "She war m... to ma)" axe... police locked... Fisher was... Policemen Br... Tenth and T... an hour afte... into his room... coming and... thrown hims... wife and kis... "She was m... work," he ... was led from ... Hall, along ... Charles Prut... house, who e... husband will ... before Magist... Fisher and ... the rear of th... At about half ... by Prutzer a... the third floo... but 20 minute... the door of th... the front of t... long hall bet... the Alde... was weeping. ... carried a revo... it. "Fix this f... man. "Amel... want to kill ... Alderman ... Fisher and ra... shop of Jacob ... corner of Tent... stein took the ... police station. ... sent out. Prutzer said ... out of the hou... arrived Fisher ... the stairs cry... volver. On th... kettle of beer ... was lying acro... in her left br... She was take... where she wa... The police a... Mrs. Fisher k... husband, accor... frequently qua... men. Fisher a... whether he ha... Mrs. Fisher a... where he could ... fused last nigh... obtained the ... Fisher is a v... say that he r... that the fami... earnings of M... tels. She neva... weeks at a t... were the alter... was at home t... mane had ser... stein, who own... Until a little ... lived at Tenth ... cigar store be... Siegel said th... move on comp... Since Wedne... husband had ... dents of the ... reached the ho... he met Mrs. Pr... ing to Prutzer, ... her and called ...

THE...

Local ...

United States W... Temperature... MAXIMUM (1 P... MINIMUM (7 a... MEAN ... Normal, 60.

Barometer ... Temperature ... Humidity ... Wind—Direction ... Velocity ... Weather ... Sunshine, 100 ... Temperature—E... since October 1, ... 1, 527 deg. ... Rainfall—Deficie... deficiency since J... Weather a year ...

Day's ...

Observations ma... T...

Stations.	Ap...
Abilene, Tex	...
Atlantic City	...
Atlanta, Ga.	...
Bismarck, N. D.	...
Boston, Mass.	...
Buffalo, N. Y.	...
Charleston, S. C.	...

666

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

890506013

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Goldman Meeting Without Goldman / Emma Goldman.— p. 2 ; 43 cm. In Public Ledger [Philadelphia]. —(Oct. 9, 1909).

Obtained from the Pennsylvania State University Libraries, University Park, PA.

...bboney Makes Caustic Criticism of Penrose's Speech to Kensington Folk.

...OOKE HAS TO EXPLAIN

...uditor Asks Why Former Assistant District Attorney "Flopped" to Organization

...ermantown Hall filled three halls night to give an uproarious reception to the Penn party's candidates. There ... much cheering along the thoroughfares and the Perseverance Band ... what it could to enliven the occasion ... were there.

The first political meeting of the evening ... held in the Town Hall, where women ... the party heard some words on the subject of woman suffrage. Most of what appeared to be the business community of ... ha.' But at Hibernia Hall a more ... ful event of the evening took place. ... Moore was speaking, when suddenly an auditor who gave his name ... Thomas Gaffney, of the 22d ... interposed a question as to why ... Moore "flopped" over to the reform ... The speaker had just concluded a ... reference to his sudden change of position ... the Organization ranks to those of ... Penn party.

... Moore endeavored to explain that ... had "flopped" over suddenly after a ... enlightening conversation on the ... ject of politics with a certain contractor of the city.

... Gaffney came back and wanted to ... the substance of that conversation.

Moore, becoming visibly embarrassed, explained that he would prefer ... to enter into details. Suddenly ... were cries of "Put him out! Put ... out!"

... that point the chairman of the ... eting, Charles Graham, rose to compel Gaffney to remain quiet, but Mr. ... requested Mr. Graham to be seated ... and said that he would attend to the ... ation. The situation had grown embarrassing to the entire assemblage when ... patrolman appeared and the man who ... facetiously referred to as the ... yor of Summerville was removed ... the hall.

Reyburn the Chief Target.

Mayor Reyburn was the chief target ... the evening, he along with McNichol ... the Vares, furnished the principal ... terial for the campaign arguments of ... evening at the various meetings.

Clarence Gibboney discussed Senator ... rose's attitude in the campaign briefly ... "As Lewis said, this is not about ... Senator Penrose. The Governor came to ... Philadelphia the other day and advised ... to vote for Rotan for District Attorney. ... am not inclined to take the Governor ... seriously on this topic. I am inclined to be reminded of two and a half ... ars ago, when he came to town to advise us to vote for Mayor Reyburn. We ... the Governor's advice two and a ... f years ago and voted for the Mayor. ... sure we did get a prize package."

Edwin O. Lewis also had a fling at the ... yor. He said that the election of ... illiam Penn candidates would bring to ... end the era of boss rule which had ... cided the city since 1905. He said that ... contractors' combine would fall to ... ces after November 3 if their candidates were defeated and the Republicans ... Philadelphia would have a ... ance to reorganize and reexamine their ... ty committees and separate them from ... control.

Mr Gibboney's Speech.

The candidates made virtually the same ... eches at the three meetings. Mr Gibboney said:

... observe that the distinguished senator from this State was drafted to ... ke a tariff speech in Kensington last ... ening. I read his speech with much ... terest and as an exposition of Republican economic doctrines it does not differ ... ch from my own conception of Republicanism. But what relation had his remarks to the question of the control of ... municipality by political contractors? ... nator Penrose very properly had both ... to say on that subject.

... sincerely regret that Senator Penrose ... not help the tens of thousands of ... publicans who voted for me at the June ... maries to redeem the city and the Republican party from the base rule of political contractors. Why does he not come ... for good citizens? Why does he not ... the great power of his position and ... influence against the domination by ... litical contractors of the Republican ... nization in this city? I would greatly ... n friends and myself on a common ... form for true Republicanism, which ... ors election frauds and all the other ... s which inevitably follow and are a ... t of government by a political com... of contractors.

Not a word of sympathy or approval ... the McNichols and the Vares could I ... in the remarks of Senator Penrose ... night. This silence on his part and ... of Governor Stuart on Wednesday ... ht is much more impressive in condemnation of these contractor-bosses than ... expression of party fealty ... el we hope that in the not far distant ... re the senior Senator from Pennsylvania will ally himself with the loyal Republicans who are striving to redeem this ... from its present boss rule."

... ...ruscle A. Lewis held the attention of ... auditors and pleased the women assembled at the Town Hall by his many ... will include D. Clarence Gibboney, John J. Murphy, Edwin O. Lewis, Vivien Frank Gable, Colonel Sheldon Potter and Zibe T. Moore.

nation for Sheriff some time in the past, to the evident amusement of the candidates and the audience, but to the discomfiture of the chairman.

Organization's Death Struggle.

Edwin O. Lewis was introduced following Magistrate Eisenbrown, and said in part:

"What a miserable spectacle the Mayor makes possessing the power of a king, yet playing only the part of a king's jester to McNichol and Vare. Boss rule has always meant that puppets are placed in high office. The contractors don't dare nominate for powerful offices men of independence or brains, for fear they would break the bonds of allegiance to the system that created them.

"So ex-Boss Dave Martin, chief of the Hog Combine, declares that no Republican will vote for John J. Murphy for City Treasurer. We will see. Some 80,000 citizens voted for Murphy on June 5, and does Mr. Martin dare to read them out of the Republican party? Martin says Murphy would not be worthy of election over Dobbins as treasurer of a secret society or a building association, but at least Mr. Murphy has no dollar mark on his forehead, nor has a United States Senator publicly branded him as a traitor.

"I have not heard that Mr. Murphy is a candidate for treasurer of any secret society. Mr. Dobbins can have the treasurership of Dave Martin's building society; what Murphy will get is the Treasurership of Philadelphia and the united workingmen and other unbossed citizens will put him there.

"Strip tickets and good transit service depend on this election. The William Penn party will get back the six-for-a-quarter tickets, if it is successful in the election. Nothing is more important to the development and happiness of a great city than its street car service, and there will be no betterment here so long as the Transit Company is bound, hand and foot, with the political contractors. It is to the interest of the real owners—not the stock-jobbing politicians of the street railway system that it be divorced from all connection with McNichol and Vare and Henry Clay, and be run as a business institution rather than as an annex of a contractors' machine."

Organization's Death Struggle.

Mr Lewis said that the contractors' organization was engaged in a struggle for its life and that the issue was, "Shall Philadelphia have government by the people or government by two contractors for the sole benefit of those two contractors?"

Mayor Reyburn is a creature of Organization rule, one of the visible examples of what curse boss rule is to a great city," he said. "We make no progress from one year's beginning to another. Reyburn's administration is a joke in City Hall and has been so looked upon by members of Councils from its inception. Contractors McNichol and Vare openly rule all departments of the city government. The Mayor is incompetent because he can't help it. He is childish in his thoughts, and in the control of unprincipled men becomes the instrument for much evil that he would not otherwise think of."

Walter E. Rex, Common Councilman of the 2d Ward, presided at Chestnut Hill. ... V. F. Gable and Thomas MacFarland were among the speakers who were not heard at the other two meetings.

At the Hibernian Hall, where Charles Graham, former president of the British-American Association, of which David M. Fowler was secretary, presided, it was said that the sentiment in favor of Pascoe would throw at least 500 votes to the cause of the reformers.

PERSONAL REGISTRY BADGES

Commissioners Now Wear Insignia of Office.

"Arrest that man!" exclaimed a friend of Personal Registration Commissioner Pierie yesterday.

Mr. Pierie wore on his left breast a bright silver badge, which did not look unlike the insignia of an officer of the law. Mr. Pierie smiled and exposed the badge, which proved to be nothing more than the State coat of arms on the rim of which was this, "Personal Registration Commissioner, Philadelphia."

This innovation was started some time ago. Each of the four commissioners and the two clerks now have the silver seal upon their persons. Some one suggested that it would be better if the State made the commissioners special officers an that they might arrest any man on sight who should fraudulently register.

Councilmen and city officers also wear badges of office. It is said that every city employe will be required shortly to carry some sign of his office, as is the case in European official circles.

POLITICAL CELEBRITIES HERE

Bellevue-Stratford Entertaining Men of Public Note.

It might have been thought there was a big political conference on in town yesterday, judging from the group of celebrated personages who were seen about the corridors of the Bellevue-Stratford. There were Governor Fort of New Jersey, Congressman Fowler, Congressman Loudenslager and ex-Governor Stokes, all of the same State, former Congressman James Watson, of Indiana, Senator John W. Daniel, of Virginia, Senator James P. Taliaferro, of Florida, and ex-Senator Allee, of Delaware.

Most of them are here for the automobile race today, and the others are in the city on private business. Senator Taliaferro has taken a box for the Fairmount Park event and will entertain a company of friends in it. He is a great automobile enthusiast, and came all the way from Florida, where many a big motor race has been held, to attend the Philadelphia meet.

WANTS HISTORICAL PAGEANT

...ends of Woman Anarchist Have Demonstration Under Police Guard.

LETTER FROM EMMA

Her Denunciation of Methods That Silenced Her Greeted With Applause.

Mayor Reyburn did not attend the anarchists' meeting in the Labor Lyceum, at Sixth and Brown streets, last night. He answered the invitation, which had been given him by Leonard Abbott, the chairman, by sending Captain Callahan, with four lieutenants and 50 policemen, to see that everything was conducted in a gentlemanly and ladylike manner.

Neither did Emma Goldman attend the meeting. Judges Audenried and Willson, who presided at the supplementary hearing as to whether Miss Goldman had a right to resort to the protection of the United States law when she was admittedly an alien, continued the case yesterday without rendering a decision. So, of course, the lady anarchist did not attempt to discuss her anarchistic principles in person. She sent instead a letter which was read with great gusto at the meeting, the reading being liberally punctuated with cheers and applause. In fact, so much did the anarchists like the letter that they had it read twice, and then adopted resolutions protesting against the denial of free speech to their Jeanne d'Arc.

The policemen received quite as hearty a greeting as did Emma Goldman's letter; only the welcome was a little different. The speakers mingled ridicule and compassion in their references to the "men standing there at the back of the hall who don't like their dirty job any more than you like it." Most of the speakers went over the head of Captain Callahan and addressed themselves to Director Clay, who unfortunately, said the speakers, was not present.

The talks all criticised the Director for his disregard of the law of free speech. The audience howled with pleasure every time the head of the Department of Public Safety was scored, so that the talkers scored him all the harder. In addition to the speeches, a number of letters were read from such personages as Elbert Hubbard, Eugene V. Debs, Senator C. S. Wood, of Portland, Ore., William Marion Reedy, of St. Louis; J. G. Phelps Stokes, of Connecticut, and Louis Post, of Chicago. All of these letters told how terrible a thing it was when free speech was denied an anarchist.

Chairman Abbott introduced the following speakers: Former Congressman Robert Baker, of Brooklyn, Dr. Ben L. Reitman, Voltairine de Cleyre, Will Price, William Robinson and Charles D. Ryan. The speakers also talked about free speech, using such expressions as the "price of the blood of martyrs," "what your forefathers died for," etc.

Then the following resolution was adopted:

"Whereas, the inalienable right to peaceably assemble and to hear a public address by Emma Goldman in Odd Fellows' Temple has been denied to us, the people of Philadelphia, and,

"Whereas, a human voice has been silenced before it was heard,

"We, the people of Philadelphia, protest against this illegal action of the city officials and demand our constitutional right.

"Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to Mayor Reyburn, Director of Public Safety Clay and the press."

Emma Goldman's letter follows.

"It has been decreed by 'the wise fathers of this city' that I may not be with you tonight. Do you think Philadelphia will still be safe if I send you a message instead?

"Henrik Ibsen said that the majority accepts a great truth only when it has become a lie.

"Whosoever doubted Ibsen's deep understanding of the mass psychology had ample opportunity to be convinced in Philadelphia Tuesday, September 28.

"Ten thousand people came to a meeting at Odd Fellows' Temple, but because his Majesty had turned a great truth into a lie, free speech was stabbed in the heart Tuesday evening, September 28.

"'Life, liberty, happiness!' the inalienable right to free thought and expression, in the old long ago, represented a truth for the unpopular few. A sublime truth, for which men gave their all. The penalty of that truth was death. Heroic, unflinching death.

"'Liberty, independence, free speech, free assemblage' are now popular slogans hailed and proclaimed by all. 'Liberty by the grace of the law, independence at the behest of gold.' Free speech at the mercy of the club. What a mockery, what a terrible farce.

"Ibsen is right. The majority has accepted the truth only when it became a lie, a hideous, brazen lie.

"It was that lie, more than the police department of Philadelphia, that made the outrage of September 25 possible.

"Men had been known to shed their last ... expect any one to rise in rebellion for a lie?

"That's why 10,000 people submitted supinely to the brutal force of police clubs.

"I register my protest not against the ... gine of my voice. Silence is more powerful than speech. I protest with all the ardor of my soul against the perpetuation of the ... majority's lie.

"'Liberty tempered by law,' independence of the behest of gold,' 'Freedom of expression at the mercy of the club!'

"I protest against this lie, against this hideous, brazen lie."

P. R. T. TO BE ATTACKED

Committee of Fifteen Will Renew Campaign for Strip Tickets.

Charles L. Fluck, of the Committee of Fifteen, has arranged for the appointment of a sub-committee which will be empow-

Raymond L. Lauerhaus, 18 years old, was fatally shot in the breast and back last night while watching a fight, at Bodine street and Girard avenue, between a crowd of corner loungers and Andrew Sherer, of 418 Jefferson street. After the shooting Sherer threw away the revolver and ran four blocks with a crowd at his heels. As he stumbled exhausted from the fight and the run he was arrested by Policeman Holzwarth, at Fourth and Poplar streets. When the policeman took Sherer back to the call box, at Second and Girard avenue, the crowd had grown to such proportions and their passions had risen to such an extent that it looked for a time as if they would succeed in lynching Sherer. The policeman drew a revolver and backed up against a wall, protecting his prisoner. A concerted effort was made to push both him and his prisoner under the wheels of a passing freight train. Help in the form of several policemen arrived in time to avert a second tragedy.

The story told at the Front and Master streets police station was to the effect that as Sherer was passing the corner of Bodine street and Girard avenue, the crowd made fun of his bundle and called him names. A scuffle ensued, in which Sherer drew a revolver. The gang scattered, and Sherer fired at Lauerhaus, who is said to have been only an onlooker. The first shot struck him in the breast, and as he fell a second entered his back. Then Sherer ran. When the crowd saw him running they regained their courage and chased him.

At the station house 18 cartridges were found in Sherer's pockets. A revolver was found under a back gate along the route Sherer took in his dash to escape. The police say it is the one he used in the affray.

MIDGET BIJOU IS STRANGELY CLOSED

Lilliputians' Theatre, in 46th Ward, Notified Suddenly to Stop Performances.

The Midget Bijou, at 41-43 South 52d street, was closed by order of the building inspectors last night, who gave as a reason for their action that two stage walls of the hall were not fireproof, and that the registered proprietor of the place, J. A. Shoneman, had not complied with all the requirements of the theatrical law of 1901. The theatre is controlled by a group of Lilliputians, who have given performances at various places in the neighborhood for several years.

Shoneman says he has been conducting the place unmolested since March 20, when the building inspectors put their sign of approval on the building and declared it to be fireproof, and that the safety of the public was not endangered in attending concerts in the hall.

Friends of Shoneman, who say that they know the turbulent slats of politics in the 46th Ward better than he does, declare there have been ulterior reasons for the closing, and when the question was put directly to Shoneman he said he believed politics had a lot to do with it, but because of his short residence in the ward and his inactivity in politics he would not enter into a discussion in which he could not produce names and facts.

His friends, however, say that since he came there the business of three other moving picture shows has suffered while he was making money. These who suffered, they said, are strong politically.

Shoneman says the notice to cease his shows came without warning at 6 o'clock in the evening when it was too late to have the faults remedied by any one in authority in the Department of Public Safety. A large crowd of women and children had assembled outside the place for the evening performance when he told them the show would not go on.

Shoneman says that on March 20 he completed an expenditure of $12,000 on the place, which he built for a moving picture show. The hall occupies only the first floor, and the floors above are let out in flats. The seating capacity of the place is 350, and for this number of persons there are eight exits.

Edwin Clark, chief of the Bureau of Building Inspection, could not be found last night to tell why the place was allowed to start last March if it did not comply with the requirements.

BOY BLED TO DEATH

Leukemia Prevents Cessation of Flow After Tooth Extraction.

Daniel Rogeany, 10 years old, of Pineville, N. J., bled to death in the University of Pennsylvania Hospital, whither he had been taken Thursday from his home, ... the extraction of a tooth could not be stopped. The doctors diagnosed his case as leukemia, which means that there were not sufficient red corpuscles in his blood, and a corresponding predominance of white ones. In the marked absence of red corpuscles the blood will not coagulate. Hence when the dentist at his home pulled the tooth, not knowing the boy had the disease, the blood continued to flow because it would not solidify.

The boy rapidly became weaker and weaker, till at last his father took him to the University Hospital. There the cavity was plugged and the blood stopped. Treatment for leukemia was begun, but his system was so weakened from the long drain that it would not respond. He lapsed into unconsciousness Thursday night and did not recover.

667

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

890513002

The Emma Goldman Papers

Miss Goldman's Views / Emma Goldman.— p. 7 ; 43 cm. In Public Ledger [Philadelphia]. —(Oct. 16, 1909).

Obtained from the Pennsylvania State University Libraries, University Park, PA.

no other facts than those which have been stated, and, indeed, so far as the averments of the bill are concerned, there is no ground whatever upon which we could grant the injunction prayed for. With the past action of the defendants and with any injury which may have resulted to the plaintiff from such action, we are not concerned. If such action was unauthorized and illegal, the plaintiff has a right to proceed in the courts of law to recover damages for any resulting injury.

"Courts of equity do not grant injunctions to cure wrongs which have been already perpetrated. They can only endeavor to prevent future wrongdoing, and to enable such relief to be given it should be averred and made to appear that action has been threatened and is likely to follow for which there is no legal justification and which is likely to result in injury to a plaintiff. The bill filed in this case contains no such averments and for that reason alone would not sustain the prayer for relief which it contains.

"Waiving for the moment, however, this technical reason why we would be obliged, upon the case as it stands, to refuse any relief to the plaintiff, we may briefly consider the question which doubtless was intended to be raised. The plaintiff bases her claim of the right to deliver the lectures which she proposes to deliver on two grounds. First that, under the Constitution of Pennsylvania, 'Every citizen may freely speak, write and print on any subject, being responsible for the abuse of that liberty', and second, that, under the Fourteenth Amendment of the Constitution of the United States, no State can 'deny' to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.'

Denies Her Right of Citizenship.

"As to the first ground, we may say that the plaintiff cannot take advantage of the protection afforded by the Constitution of Pennsylvania, because she is not a citizen either of Pennsylvania or of the United States. As to the second ground upon which the plaintiff bases her claim of right to deliver the proposed lectures we may say at the outset that it does not appear that the State of Pennsylvania has attempted to discriminate against the plaintiff personally, or as one of a class of persons, and thereby to deny to her or to such class the equal protection of the laws.

"The question which the plaintiff would have us determine is whether or not public officers, entrusted with the preservation of the peace, acting, as we ought to presume the defendants would, in the honest exercise of their judgment, should be restrained from prohibiting the delivery of lectures which would be likely to excite public disturbances and to result in a breach of the public peace. If public officials should attempt to interfere in such a case, their interference would be justified, not upon the ground that the person to be effected by their action was an alien or a citizen, but the knowledge that dangerous and disturbing sentiments, tending to disturb the peace, would be uttered.

"We do not mean to say that an alien has the same or as full a right to attack the institutions of our country and to advocate the abolition of the constituted and constitutional government of the land that a citizen might have, but so far as the case which is before us is concerned, we should regard the right of a citizen as no higher than that of an alien. The Constitution of Pennsylvania, in giving the right to citizens to speak freely, confers the right subject to their being held 'responsible for the abuse of that liberty.'

Anarchistic Views Discussed.

"The plaintiff is an avowed anarchist. However honest or able she may be, she does not hesitate to declare that, in her belief, all government should be abolished and that every citizen should regulate his or her own conduct according to his own views of what is right and wrong and that force may be resorted to for the purpose of destroying government and establishing the right of individual independence from governmental control. It necessarily follows from the holding of such views that it would also be regarded as the right of any individual to determine, according to his own judgment, when the time arrives for the exercise of force to accomplish the destruction of government.

"That the utterance of such views in the community would be likely to excite such feelings and antagonism as would result in a breach of the peace is by no means unlikely. It is not unreasonable to hold that such speech is an abuse of the liberty to speak freely on any subject. Whether it be a citizen or an alien who desires to advocate ideas, which, if carried out, would naturally lead to the destruction of government, whose protection that person seeks, it would seem that, in the exercise of that right of self-preservation which belongs as well to governments as to individuals, such abuse of the right of free speech might, not unreasonably or unlawfully, be prevented.

"That the plaintiff intended to advocate such destructive views as have been mentioned was admitted by her when examined before us. If she avowed a purpose of delivering a lecture advocating wholesale assassination of any class of public officers or persons, we think it would hardly be questioned that the peace officers of the city would be justified in preventing the utterance of such views. We are unable to perceive that there would be any well-defined line of discrimination in such a case from one in which the views would be destructive of the life of the nation.

Federal Law Is Cited.

"By the laws of the United States there is a discrimination against those who are known as anarchists. The right of naturalization is forbidden to them and, when known, they are excluded from admission into the country. If when entering the country they are not known to belong to that class of disturbers and are afterwards discovered to belong to it, within a prescribed time, they may be deported from the country. The ban of governmental disapproval is thus placed upon the utterance of sentiments such as the plaintiff holds and desires to advocate in public. We are asked to afford the opportunity for the proclamation and advocacy of these destructive and dangerous sentiments and to compel officers of the peace, notwithstanding they may be of the opinion that breaches of the peace would result therefrom, to abstain from interfering with the holding of public meetings for the expression of such ideas. This we do not feel called upon to do.

"It is a familiar principle of equity that plaintiffs cannot ask relief if they do not come into court with hands that are clean. We cannot avoid reaching the conclusion that one who openly and in advance announces the purpose of advocating such doctrines and sentiments as the plaintiff avows is not within the class that can claim protection and relief from a court of equity.

"In what we have said we do not regard ourselves as in any sense ignoring or limiting that right of free speech which the Constitution was intended to give and protect. That right is one too sacred and fundamental to be lightly regarded or readily waived or withheld. It is, however, a right necessarily subject to limitation and restriction, arising out of its abuse in an effort to make use of it for the destruction of government or persons. It follows, therefore, from what we have thus stated, that, even if the case before us on the technical grounds before referred to were adequate for the purpose of obtaining relief against a threatened wrong, we would regard it to be our duty to refuse an injunction in the case."

MISS GOLDMAN'S VIEWS

Says Decision Proves There Is No Justice in the Courts.

Emma Goldman made the following statement last night:

"The refusal of the injunction has not come as news to me. But the arguments set forth in the refusal are certainly a surprise. I must confess I had credited the judges with more foresight and understanding.

"It is said that I came to ask the protection of the Government my ideas aim to destroy. I did not ask protection. I only asked that the Court live up to its own principles, non-interference with the right of free speech.

"Their refusal of the injunction proves more than anything anarchists can say, namely, that there is no justice in the Courts and that the very people who have sworn to protect liberty are the first ones to destroy it. Thus the decision as rendered by the Court will do more to destroy the belief in authority than 100 speeches on anarchism.

"Director of Public Safety Clay has stopped my meeting to save Philadelphia's peace. He might have done better had he saved the Philadelphia people a useless expense in watching me, while for five days I was in New York attending to my magazine and conferring with members of the free speech committee.

"Do the people of Philadelphia still think Director Clay a fit caretaker of their affairs?

"Needless to say, I still maintain my right to speak, which I shall certainly avail myself of as soon as arrangements have been completed.

"EMMA GOLDMAN."

Miss Goldman will go to New York tomorrow to attend a mass-meeting called to protest against the execution of Ferrer in Spain.

PROTEST AGAINST FARE RAISE

Citizens Living Along West Chester Pike to Meet Tonight.

A second meeting of citizens residing along the West Chester pike who are protesting against the raise of fare on the line of the Philadelphia and West Chester Traction Company is to be held this evening, at Newtown Square.

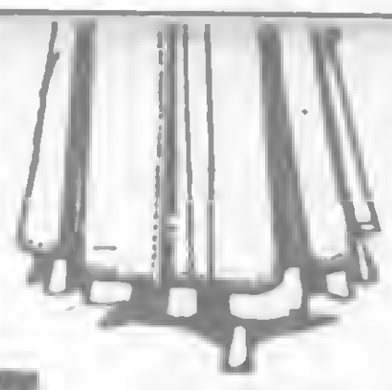
A committee, of which J. F. T. Lewis is chairman, will make a report on an interview with A. Merritt Taylor, president of the corporation. Many citizens along the pike have not used the trolleys since the increase in fare.

HILLEGAS F

Convicted of Aid tion of Ba

After a deliberat jury in the United yesterday convicted charged by the Go in the misapplicatio Farmers' National Sentence was defer for a new trial.

Hillegas and Mor ier of the bank, we elphia for the insolve which closed its doo



The charges agai will be disposed of term of court.

GIFTS MADE

Corporation Ente and Aw

The fourth annu the salesmen and the Charles E. H Red Room of the night. An armche Charles E. Hires, W. Williamson, manager of the cor On the part of was given to John shown the great last season. A w S. Frank Cofield largest individual vided for Mr. Ba leagues.

Mr. Hires was

$16.50 TO $75.00 MISSES' AND LITTLE WOMEN'S SUITS
$10.98 to $49.98

shades. Coats are cut 42 and 45 inches long, some prettily trimmed, others in plain mannish effects. Guaranteed satin lining. Skirts in the very latest models. The tailoring and fit of these suits cannot be duplicated in other stores for less than $20. As illustrated, $14.98. Lot of 150 only.

Three-quarter lined with good quality satin. Plain tailored sleeves and notched collar. A very stylish, perfect-fitting model, with the new side plaited effect, in finest quality black broadcloth. Well worth $20. Today, only $14.98.

The entire coat effectively braided. Collarless models inlaid with finest quality velvet. A very stylish, well-made perfect fitting coat for women, misses and little women. Coats that are marked to sell in other stores at $12.50, here at the low price of $7.98.

Several advanced styles in serge, homespun, worsted and fancy mixtures. Strictly man tailored garments with the new length coats; satin lined, and prettily trimmed. Newest cut skirts. These suits are actually worth from $16.50 to $75. Specially priced here at only $10.98 to $49.98.

Second floor.

Attractive Dresses
$9.98 to $2
Worth $15 to $22.

In our great dress section we are sho variety of models in moire silk, taffe plain serge, diagonal and wide wale made in Jersey effect. Moyen Age waisted styles, prettily strapped or b All the wanted shades.

Men's $1.50 Plaited Negligee Shirts at 98c

Men's $1.25 Underwear, 79c

Winter weight, fine quality, soft natural wool, with just enough cotton to prevent shrinking. Shirts & drawers to match. All tailored seams throughout. Sizes 34 to 48 inches. A bargain.

Men's $1.50 Pajamas, 98c

Good quality outing flannel. Coats have military collars, large pearl buttons, & with silk frogs. Trousers to match, with fly front & drawing tapes. Sizes 15 to 19 inches. Fine for the coming cold nights.

First floor, South.

$4.50 Petticoats, Here Today at Black taffeta silk petticoats sectional flounce of plaits; n

$1 Petticoats

Black mercerized moreen pe flounce of satine strappings.

Second flo

The Rush for These Bargains Begins at 9 o'clock

Girls' $8.75 Chinchilla Coats,

$4.98

Promptly at 9 o'clock this tremendous sale begins, and it's a wonderfu opportunity for big savings, for these are all-wool chinchilla coats, in re gray and navy, all sizes 4 to 14. They're the smart-looking full-lengt double-breasted coats that button close to the neck. They're finished wit black velvet collars, lined throughout with handsome shepherd check materials. Regular $8.75 coats. Special at (No mail or 'phone orders)... $5.75

$3.50 "College" Dresses, $4.98

For girls of 6 to 14 years. Navy, red and brown serges with white embroidered Buster Brown collar and turn-back cuffs; trimmed with silk tie and brass buttons; priced at $4.98.

Children's Jaunty Coats

Sizes 2 to 6 years. All-wool broadcloth, thibet, velour, caracula, curly bearskin, etc., beautifully trimmed & tailored, lined or interlined. Worth $5 to $10,

$1.98 to $6.98

$3.50 Babies' Coats, $1.98

Short coats of serge and curly bearskin—double-breasted models with pearl buttons. Sizes 6 months to 5 years. Special at $1.98.

Girls' Stylish Fall Coats

The newest, up-to-date models, mad of all-wool kersey, cheviots, diagon mixtures, caracula and chinchilla fancy trimmed or man-tailored. Siz 6 to 14 years. Worth $5.50 to $14.9 at

$3.98 to $9.98

$4 Children's Coats at $2.98

Box and plaited coat models in whi serge with roll collar and cuffs, bra trimmings. Sizes 6 months to years. Regular $4 values, very sp cial at $2.98.

Second floor.

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

890513010

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Interview] Anarchists Not Allowed to Meet / Emma Goldman.— p. 2 ; 43 cm. In Public Ledger [Philadelphia]. —(Oct. 17, 1909).

Obtained from the Pennsylvania State University Libraries, University Park, PA.

PUBLIC LEDGER—PHILADELPHIA, WEDNESDAY MORNING, OC

ARRANGES FUNERAL AND ENDS HIS LIFE

Interviews Undertaker, Then Goes to Hotel and Kills Himself.

SUICIDE A DRUG USER

Says Cost of His Room Preparatory to Firing Fatal Shot.

A man who registered as Charles M. Gane, of Boston, was found dead in his room at the Continental Hotel yesterday morning. He came to this city Thursday. Friday he went to an undertaking establishment and calmly made arrangements for the cremation of his body. His death was not discovered until the undertaker called for the body. Gane had told the undertaker that the body for which he had made the crematory arrangements was that of his brother.

Gane was about 35 years old, and was well dressed. He had taken a room on the third floor of the hotel, facing Ninth street, and had kept to himself while in the hotel. He was found sitting in a chair in his room with a bullet wound in the head. A revolver was in his hand, and on the floor was a collection of morphine needles.

On Friday morning Gane went to the undertaking establishment of Colonel J. Lewis Good, at Spruce street near Tenth, and made arrangements for the funeral in detail. The man was composed and not in the least nervous at the time. He discussed the cost of cremation with Colonel Good without giving the slightest intimation that he was arranging the affair for himself.

"What does it cost to cremate a body?" asked Gane.

He was told the charges made for the work by the Germantown crematory.

"In this instance I want the body wrapped in a sheet, put in a plain coffin and taken to the crematory," continued Gane. "I know your firm and feel that you can be trusted to carry out the arrangements. How much will it cost for everything?"

He was told the total cost of the cremation and ceremony, and was then asked if it was necessary to send carriages for any relatives.

"No, I just want the cheapest funeral you can provide. What will it cost to bring the ashes from the crematory?" the man continued.

He was told the charge.

"That will be all right," replied Gane. "I'm going to Boston and will send you the money. You need not worry about that end of it."

The man was then asked for his name and the address from which the body was to have been taken. He declined to give the information, saying:

"You will get those details in time. It is not necessary for me to make explanations now."

When Colonel Good arrived at his undertaking establishment yesterday morning he found a letter from Gane. It read:

"Call at the Continental Hotel and get the body for cremation. The money you will find on a table in my room."

The undertaker called for the body. The hotel people were sure that a mistake had been made. They knew of no body to be taken from the hotel. The undertaker insisted on going to the room described in the letter. A clerk accompanied him and they found the door locked. There was no reply to their knocks, and the clerk looked over the transom into the room. There, sitting in a chair, fully clad, blood running from his mouth and a hole in the side of his head, sat Gane.

The suicide had gone to his room early Friday evening. He had not been seen since, and in all probability had not left the room. Both of the adjoining apartments were occupied, but none of the occupants heard the report of the revolver when fired. It is thought he shot himself early in the morning.

Who Gane is no one at the hotel or at the Coroner's office knows, and nothing definite can be learned until his Boston connections are found. The cause of the killing, also, is unknown, except that the man was a victim of morphine. Both arms were badly scarred from the use of the needles which were found in his room.

Two envelopes were left by Gane, carefully addressed and placed on the table in his room. One was for the management of the hotel and contained the exact amount of his bill, including the day of his death. The other envelope was addressed to the chambermaid and contained a $5 bill.

It is thought that Gane is a member of a well-to-do Boston family. His clothing, suit case and personal belongings are of good quality and show good taste. No papers had been left in the room, and there was no means of making a positive identification. The signature of the man on the register was sharply written and the first name was abbreviated.

FLAG FOR CENTRAL HIGH

Patriotic Order Sons of America Makes Gift to School.

The combined commanderies and camps of the Patriotic Order Sons of America in this city presented a flagstaff and flag to the associated alumni of the Central High School yesterday for the new athletic field at Broad street and Olney avenue. The presentation was made by Past State President Charles Hoffman, and the flag was received by Dr. Thomas S. Gates, president of the alumni association. Dr. Gates accepted the flag in behalf of the boys of the school, and said that the flag would be flown from the flagstaff on all athletic occasions.

KILLS HIS BOSOM FRIEND

Victim Said to Have Betrayed Secret of Alleged Murder.

Learning that his bosom friend, Marius Ricci, had betrayed the secret that he had murdered a man in Delaware several months ago, Antonio Paccitto, drew his revolver and fatally shot the man last night without a word of warning, in their home at 61 Montrose street. The two men, who were boyhood friends in Italy, came to this country together about two years ago and made their home in the same house. Last summer the two young men visited friends in a country town in Delaware. While there Paccitto had an argument with another countryman whom he met on the road. At the height of the quarrel Paccitto, it is alleged, drew his revolver and shot his opponent. The two men fled, leaving the prostrate form of the man on the road.

Recently Ricci and Paccitto had some words over a girl whom they are both said to have courted in Italy. Out of spite Ricci is said to have told several friends of Paccitto's alleged crime. Paccitto heard of it last night for the first time, and hurrying home told Ricci, who was playing cards in the dining room, that he wished to speak to him in the parlor. Ricci went into the other room and as he crossed the threshold Paccitto shot him. Policeman McBrearty was summoned and placed Paccitto under arrest. Ricci was removed to the Pennsylvania Hospital, where the physicians said that death had been instantaneous.

SCRATCH CAUSES DEATH

Vaccination Infected by Injury Received in Play.

William Plumridge, 6 years old, 2811 Vine street, died yesterday at the West Philadelphia Homeopathic Hospital of lockjaw, the alleged result of infection of a vaccination sore on his left arm.

In a deposition made before Deputy Coroner Weiden, the lad's father, Frederick W. Plumridge, said he attached no blame to Doctor Woodland, 3808 Haverford avenue, who vaccinated the boy five weeks ago. He believed the physician had exercised proper sanitary precautions, and that the disease that caused his son's death was contracted while "skylarking" with companions.

Mr. Plumridge said his son told him he had injured his arm by falling into a hole while playing in the woods near 40th and Race streets on October 12. The arm became sore and inflamed two days afterward, and he was removed to the hospital.

Porter F. Cope, secretary of the Anti-Vaccination League of America, has been subpoenaed by Coroner Ford to testify at the inquest to be held tomorrow in the case of the boy. Mr. Cope expects to show at that time that lockjaw was caused by impure virus being used to vaccinate the child, and that tetanus was not caused by the wound becoming infected with foreign matter some time after the vaccination had been performed.

"If it can be shown," said Mr. Cope last night, "that the virus was impure, as I imagine is the case in most instances, the manufacturer of the same lays himself open to serious charges. This is the fourth case of the same sort to occur within a month in Philadelphia, and, considering the number of children who have been recently vaccinated, I believe that many more cases will be heard of in a short time.

"It is very evident that an impure virus is on the market, and every time a child is vaccinated it is taking the gravest sort of a chance. Of course, it is quite possible that a wound may become infected with dirt, as has been said to be the case in all these four instances in which death has resulted, but, as a matter of fact, this is not the likely explanation."

BOY DIES OF HYDROPHOBIA

Bitten by a Dog Eight Weeks Ago.

Edward Leslie Fries, 5 years old, son of William Fries, of Ridge and Parker avenues, Roxborough, died yesterday in St. Timothy's Hospital, of hydrophobia, which resulted from the bite of a dog received about eight weeks ago. Edward was playing near his home one day in August. A black and tan terrier, belonging to Henry R. Edmunds, president of the Board of Education, whose summer home is on Fairthorn avenue, fought with a larger one, and the boy attempted to separate them. The terrier turned on him, biting him on the face, hands and leg. Mrs. Sarah Davis, his aunt, and Mrs. Sarah Grew, his grandmother, heard his cries and beat off the dog. Edward was taken to St. Timothy's Hospital, where the wounds were cauterized. They healed, and nothing was thought of the incident until Tuesday, when Edward complained of pains in the stomach. Dr. William Devitt, the family physician, gave the boy medicine but it did not relieve the pain. The doctor, upon learning that the boy had had spasms when water was offered, called in Dr. M. Howard Fussell, who diagnosed the case as hydrophobia. The boy was taken to the hospital on Friday evening, and continued in convulsions until his death yesterday morning. The dog that bit the boy disappeared the day Edward was bitten and has not been seen since.

TROLLEY RIDERS PROTEST

Ask Restoration of Old Rate of Fare

ANARCHISTS NOT ALLOWED TO MEET

Clay Issues Orders Against Memorial Assembly in Memory of Ferrer.

PASTOR CONDEMNS ACT

Emma Goldman Says in Spite of Police She Will Yet Speak Here.

Director Clay announced late yesterday that a meeting advertised as a memorial to Prof. Francisco Ferrer, who was executed in Spain on Wednesday as the instigator of the recent Barcelona riots, to be held tonight in Industrial Hall, Broad and Wood streets, would not be permitted. The Director explained that this action was taken because the list of speakers and the manner in which the meeting was announced showed that it was to be anarchistic. As evidencing his authority to prohibit the meeting, he quoted from the opinion of Judge Willson, rendered Friday, refusing an injunction against the Director, applied for by Emma Goldman.

The meeting for tonight had been widely announced by means of red cards with heavy black borders. At the top of each card were printed the "last words" of Professor Ferrer and of August Spies. "Aim straight! Long live the modern school!" read the former. "Our silence in the grave will be more powerful than the voices you strangle today," ran the latter. Professor Ferrer was referred to as "the man who wanted children taught the truth," and it was stated that "Emma Goldman's sketch of Ferrer and his life work will be read." The speakers were to be Voltairine De Cleyre, Frank Stevens, the single tax advocate, Harry Kelly, of New York, and Dr. Ben Reitman, of Chicago, Emma Goldman's advance agent, who was to be the chairman.

Clay Issued Orders.

Director Clay held one of these cards in his hand as he made the announcement in his office. He said that he had received positive information that the building had been leased for the purpose, and had issued orders that it must not be so used. He directed that a number of detectives and patrolmen be detailed to see that his order was carried out.

Mr. Clay said that he based his action upon Judge Willson's ruling. "The announcement of the meeting," he declared, "coming so closely upon the Court's decision, looks to me like a defiance of the Court and the law as laid down by the Court, that anarchists have no standing in this community. They cannot become citizens and be naturalized under the United States laws, and consequently they can have no status here. I shall use all the police power at my command to enforce the law and prevent the holding of this meeting."

Emma Goldman sighed wearily when told in her room, at 1508 Arch street, of this latest action of Director Clay. "I am not surprised," she said, as she leaned her head in her hands. "Judge Willson has now made the police omnipotent. I shall not now be surprised to see them stop every meeting advertised, whether it concerns astronomy, the drama or the North Pole, if only they can find an anarchistic looking name among the speakers. Director Clay can now back his empty head on the grounds that Judge Willson gave him. As a matter of fact, one of the speakers, Mr. Stevens, is not an anarchist at all, but a single taxer."

Not to Blame for Violence.

Miss Goldman declared that the anarchists would now not be to blame if the people of Philadelphia took to violence. "Judge Willson will drive the people to secret meetings," she said. "If they want to bring Russian methods into America we are satisfied. They are doing exactly what the Russian Government is doing. It stops free speech and thereby forces the people to secrecy and violence. There are other methods than open public discussion, and if the police drive the people to despair they will have to use those other methods. I am not responsible. It is certainly significant that it is only in a republic that a Ferrer memorial is prohibited when they have been held in the monarchical countries of Europe."

Miss Goldman herself will leave Philadelphia this morning to address a Ferrer memorial meeting in Clinton Hall, New York, tonight.

Doctor Reitman was present, and at this point he said:

"I am immensely pleased at the action of the police. Let them club the people and send them to jail. It will awaken a voice in Philadelphia greater than ours, a voice that even Director Clay will hear."

Miss Goldman deprecated this outburst and requested that care be taken not to print the words as here.

"We will go to the hall tonight in hold the meeting," said Dr. Reitman.

May Attempt to Speak.

"Of course," said Miss Goldman last night, "we are not going to be shut down in any such drastic and England way. It does not require very much wisdom to see that Judge Willson's decision was given only to get rid of the situation, and not to meet it. I suppose only just what we shall do yet. I may attempt to speak on the street at City Hall. The Free Speech Committee will undoubtedly carry my case to a higher court. A petition will probably be circulated in Philadelphia, to be signed by all who believe in free speech and to be presented to the Mayor. It is not alone a question of my right to speak, but even more of the right of the people to hear me."

One thing that Miss Goldman said would surely be done was the holding of a series of meetings in the interest of free speech in Philadelphia this winter for the purpose of arousing popular sentiment. "I have faith in my own," she said. "If women want a thing we get it."

"Miss Goldman will speak in Philadelphia at an early date," said Dr. Reitman. "When she attempts it there will be just three courses open to the police. They can allow her to speak. They can send her to jail. Or they can send her to the hospital. Either of the latter two courses will do anarchy more good than harm. Director Clay is making Philadelphia the laughing stock of the entire nation. In no other city has a high police official been so foolish and showed so little knowledge of law and psychology as to say in advance that Miss Goldman should not speak. In some places they have stopped her from speaking, but it has always been done by lower officials without the sanction of their superiors. But Clay is a Puritan of the type of 200 years ago. He thinks that he knows better than the average citizen what is good heavy, and that if it were not for his judgment the city would be ruined."

Miss Goldman said that tonight's meeting would be held at some place in private. "The police," she declared, "will not know where to find it, but it will be some place. We will fight it out this winter. Notices of the meetings will be sent on cards through the mails, or if necessary, we will carry them to the people. I am ready for the fight. I hate underhand methods, but if the police are determined not to allow free speech it is the only way left open to me."

Miss Goldman said that she would give her sketch of Ferrer to the papers for publication tomorrow morning, since it could not be read in public tonight.

Plain clothes men were shadowing Miss Goldman's residence in both front and rear last night.

NAVIGATION CONFERENCE

Plan to Increase Authority of Commissioners Discussed.

United States Shipping Commissioner Augustin R. Smith returned yesterday from New York, where he attended a conference of Federal officers who hold the same office as himself. The meeting was presided over by E. T. Chamberlain, the United States Commissioner of Navigation, with whose bureau the commissioners are connected. Many subjects were discussed, but the principal topic was in regard to giving more authority to the commissioners in settling disputes. The proposition, which was introduced by Mr. Smith, was favorably regarded by the other commissioners, though it would mean more work for them and no increase in salary if it should become effective.

"The plan," Mr. Smith said yesterday, "would expedite the settling of all differences between masters, consignees, agents or owners of vessels and the crews, and it would prevent needless litigation. Where cases are now taken to the United States Courts for adjudication, running on for months without settlement, the commissioners, like police magistrates, could pass judgment, from which, of course, there would be a right of appeal. The principal matters with which the commissioners have to deal are those of wages, discharging, provisions and fines for dereliction of duty.

"Being more familiar with the technical questions involved, and frequently with the record and character of the disputants, the commissioners could settle the differences in such cases more equitably and quickly than is now done. The suggestion meets with the approval of nearly every person in this city connected with the shipping business to whom I have spoken in reference to it."

The matter will be presented by Commissioner Chamberlain to Secretary Nagel, of the Department of Commerce and Labor, and, if it has his indorsement, a bill embodying the plan will be introduced at the next session of Congress.

SHIPS DELAYED BY STORM

Merion, Overdue, Not Sighted. Lassel Arrives Two Days Late.

The American Line steamship Merion, which was scheduled to arrive here from Liverpool today, is not expected to reach her dock at Washington avenue [illegible] because of the stormy weather she has encountered in her voyage across the ocean. Until a late hour last night the vessel was not reported by any of the Atlantic coast stations. It is unusual for the Merion to get by the Nantucket station without being sighted.

Not since 1907 has the Merion crossed the ocean from Liverpool so heavily laden with passengers and cargo as she is on this trip. At the office of the line it was reported that she was bringing 136 cabin and 678 steerage passengers and a general cargo of 4400 tons.

The Philadelphia and Gulf Line steamship Lassel, two days overdue, arrived here yesterday from New Orleans

THOUSANDS EA[illegible] FOR STRIP TI[illegible]

Canvassers Report Ra[illegible] Interest in Petition t[illegible] Sent to Councils.

VOLUNTEERS ARE A[illegible]

More Than 100 Men [illegible] Campaign of Comm[illegible] of Fifteen.

Fragmentary reports brou[illegible] canvassers of the Committee [illegible] yesterday indicated that the st[illegible] the petitions for a restoration [illegible] tickets on the Rapid Transit [illegible] run for into the thousands.

Canvassers have been instru[illegible] turn their copies of the petiti[illegible] ert D. Drippa, secretary of t[illegible] too, on Wednesday, when th[illegible] preparing the papers for pres[illegible] Councils on Thursday will engr[illegible] af clerks.

Unexpected aid in making t[illegible] has come to the committee, as [illegible] 100 men have called at the [illegible] office to get petitions for cir[illegible] their neighborhood. The first [illegible] was a plumber, who had his [illegible] in his hand and was covered [illegible] grime of his day's labor. H[illegible] lives in the First Ward. Ten [illegible] he returned the paper with 120 [illegible] attached.

One of the residents of [illegible] brought back his paper yes[illegible] contained the names of 75 r[illegible] that suburban section of the ci[illegible] papers of these volunteer wo[illegible] sent in during the day. The [illegible] names appended ranged from [illegible] the average being about 100 to [illegible]

Many Eager to Canva[illegible]

"It is impossible to give eve[illegible] mate of the number of signa[illegible] petitions thus far," said Mr. D[illegible] we have heard from only a [illegible] ber of canvassers. The numb[illegible] who have called to ask for th[illegible] of getting names in one of th[illegible] of this movement.

"Before the canvass was [illegible] old a man well known to th[illegible] community, but whose name [illegible] give, came in, and in a very [illegible] his paper was returned with 20[illegible] tached. If similar work is [illegible] in other parts of the city it [illegible] reach more than the 100,000 es[illegible] members of the committee.

"From the meagre informat[illegible] at hand I cannot say that one [illegible] the city indicates more int[illegible] another. Citizens are simply [illegible] this demand for what we fe[illegible] plain right of the public."

It is probable that a meeti[illegible] committee will be held tomorr[illegible] sider the form of resolution to [illegible] in Councils. The petition wi[illegible] sented in the Common branch [illegible] the resolution there will be [illegible] Mr. Porter, of the 32d Ward. [illegible] that it will be couched in the [illegible] demand for the restoration o[illegible] tickets and will cite the ter[illegible] agreement drawn by the Mer[illegible] sociation.

When the long petition is p[illegible] will be accompanied with a [illegible] ment of the action of the tw[illegible] on the strip-ticket controversy [illegible] be arranged in chronological [illegible]

At the next meeting of the [illegible] the statement to be presented [illegible] cers of the Rapid Transit Co[illegible] be discussed. It was expecte[illegible] would be ready by tomorrow, [illegible] stated yesterday at the office o[illegible] mittee that it was not like[illegible] would be submitted for adopti[illegible] eral days. The statement to [illegible] the stockholders of the Rap[illegible] Company will likewise be s[illegible] careful consideration.

Demand That Faith Be

"This is not a movement to [illegible] either the officers of the Rap[illegible] Company or its stockholders," [illegible] Drippa. "It is simply a demand [illegible] company keep faith with the [illegible] do what its agreement promised [illegible] done. I think we will be ab[illegible] vince the stockholders of the [illegible] that they have a very vital [illegible] this popular movement, for th[illegible] public, but the shareholders [illegible] made to suffer by the mistak[illegible]

Canvassers were instructed [illegible] tering upon their duties to avo[illegible] discussion and not to urge [illegible] to sign the papers; that the [illegible] must be willingly given. The [illegible] of some of the men engaged h[illegible] have become known to the [illegible] through information that has [illegible]

"Some men want to go over [illegible] traction situation with the c[illegible] said Mr. Drippa. "Some indi[illegible] morous remarks at the expe[illegible] company, but there is a great [illegible] to sign. Some men even lacke[illegible] accompanying the canvasser a [illegible] block and aid in the work by [illegible] all their friends and explaining [illegible] of the fight with the politicians."

One of the enthusiastic [illegible] the Committee of Fifteen [illegible] urged that a procession [illegible] organized to escort the [illegible] Tenth and Chest[illegible] Hall with a [illegible]

669

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

890513010

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Interview] Anarchists Not Allowed to Meet / Emma Goldman.– p. 2 ; 43 cm. In Public Ledger [Philadelphia]. –(Oct. 17, 1909).

Obtained from the Pennsylvania State University Libraries, University Park, PA.

[illegible] publishers of Thomas J. [illegible] Street, at Byron street near Tenth, had made arrangements for the funeral of Gans. The man was cremated and was in the best natures at the time. He [illegible] the cost of cremation with that [illegible] without giving the slightest [illegible] that he was arranging the affairs for the deceased.

"What does it cost to cremate a body?" asked Gans.

He was told the charges made for the work by the thermometre crematory.

"On this occasion I want the body wrapped in a sheet, put in a plain coffin and taken by the crematory. mentioned there. I know your firm and feel that you can be trusted to carry out the arrangements. Have much with it cost for everything."

He was told the total cost of the cremation and ceremony and was then asked if it was necessary to send carriages for any relatives.

"No, I just want the cheapest funeral you can provide. What will it cost to bring the ashes from the crematory?" the man continued.

He was told the charge.

"That will be all right," replied Gans. "I'm going to Boston and will send you the money. You need not worry about that end of it."

The room was then asked for his name and the address from which the body was to have been taken. He declined to give the information, saying:

"You will get those details in time. It is not necessary for me to make explanations now."

When Colonel Goed arrived at his undertaking establishment yesterday morning he found a letter from Gans. It read:

"Call at the Continental Hotel and get the body for cremation. The money you will find on a table in my room."

The undertaker called for the body. The hotel people were sure that a mistake had been made. They knew of no body to be taken from the hotel. The undertaker insisted on going to the room designated in the letter. A clerk accompanied him and they found the door locked. There was no reply to their knocks, and the clerk looked over the transom into the room. There, sitting in a chair, fully clad, blood running from his mouth and a hole in the side of his head, sat Gans.

The suicide had gone to his room early Friday evening. He had not been seen since, and in all probability had not left the room. Both of the adjoining apartments were occupied, but none of the occupants heard the report of the revolver when fired. It is thought he shot himself early in the morning.

Who Gans is no one at the hotel or at the Coroner's office knows, and nothing definite can be learned until his Boston connections are found. The cause of the suicide, also, is unknown, except that the man was a victim of morphine. Both arms were badly scarred from the use of the needles which were found in his room.

Two envelopes were left by Gans, carefully addressed and placed on the table in his room. One was for the management of the hotel and contained the exact amount of his bill, including the day of his death. The other envelope was addressed to the chambermaid and contained a $5 bill.

It is thought that Gans is a member of a prominent Boston family. His clothing, suit case and personal belongings are of good quality and show good taste. No papers had been left in the room, and there was no means of making positive identification. The signature of the man on the register was shakily written and the first name was abbreviated.

FLAG FOR CENTRAL HIGH

Patriotic Order Sons of America Makes Gift to School.

The combined commanderies and camps of the Patriotic Order Sons of America in this city presented a flagstaff and flag to the associated alumni of the Central High School yesterday for the new athletic field at 29th street and Lehigh avenue.

The camps assembled at 9th and Diamond streets in full regalia at 2 o'clock and, headed by the Liberty Band, proceeded to the athletic field. At the entrance to the grounds the pupils of the Central High School, headed by a fife and drum corps, fell into line and paraded around the grounds, passing the reviewing stand, which was occupied by members of the faculty and prominent members of the order. The Ladies' Auxiliary, Patriotic Order of America, led by District President Sarah L. Black, carried a flag.

After a number of musical selections, an invocation was offered by the Rev. [illegible] Gehl, pastor of the Methodist [illegible] at 26th and York streets. E. S. Hendricks, State president of the Patriotic Order Sons of America, made an address which he spoke of the purpose of the organization. Prof. Robert Ellis Thompson, president of the Central High School, also spoke.

H. J. Deily presented the flag and staff in behalf of the order. The speech of acceptance was made by Prof. Edward J. Gallen, a member of the High School faculty. As the flag fluttered to the breeze a myriad of tiny flags fell from the folds and most of the spectators captured one or more of them as souvenirs. The exercises closed with prayer by the Rev. H. F. Wentz.

The flagstaff is erected in close proximity to the running track, facing Somerset street, and occupies a position of vantage, as the flag can be seen for miles in every direction. The pole is 125 feet in height, is made of Oregon pine and is said to be the highest in the city. On a gas plate attached is inscribed: "Presented to the Associated Alumni of the Central High School of Philadelphia, by the Camps of Philadelphia, October 16, 1909." The flag is 10 by 20 feet.

Athletic contests and a game of football between the freshmen and sophomore classes followed the flag raising exercises.

Made Sick by Motor Cycling.

[illegible] conditions attach to the illness of Miss [illegible], of Crestmont. Mr. Bentz [illegible] automobile motorcycled, 1428 miles daily. His illness is the result of internal [illegible] the continuous jarring [illegible] with the riding of [illegible].

Physicians [illegible]

Edward Leslie Fries, 5 years old, son of William Fries, of Ridge and Parker avenues, Roxborough, died yesterday in St. Timothy's Hospital, of hydrophobia, which resulted from the bite of a dog received about eight weeks ago. Edward was playing near his home one day in August. A black and tan terrier, belonging to Henry R. Edmunds, president of the Board of Education, whose summer home is on Fairthorn avenue, fought with a larger one and the boy attempted to separate them. The terrier turned on him, biting him on the face, hands and leg. Miss Sarah Davis, his aunt, and Mrs. Sarah Grew, his grandmother, heard his cries and beat off the dog. Edward was taken to St. Timothy's Hospital, where the wounds were cauterized. They healed, and nothing was thought of the incident until Tuesday when Edward complained of pains in the stomach. Dr. William Deritt, the family physician, gave the boy medicine but it did not relieve the pain. The doctor, upon learning that the boy had had spasms when water was offered, called in Dr. M. Howard Fussell, who diagnosed the case as hydrophobia. The boy was taken to the hospital on Friday evening and continued in convulsions until his death yesterday morning. The dog that bit the boy disappeared the day Edward was bitten and has not been seen since.

TROLLEY RIDERS PROTEST

Ask Restoration of Old Rate of Fare on West Chester Road.

A protest meeting which crowded the public hall at Newtown Square last night, expressed its disapproval of the refusal of the Philadelphia and the West Chester Traction Company to consider returning to the old rate of fare, by hooting the decision of the Railway officials. The meeting represented the residents along the West Chester pike and was presided over by J. F. T. Lewis, the chairman of the committee who interceded with the company.

The Rev. H. J. Reydall, pastor of the Broomall Presbyterian Church, addressed the meeting and asked the residents of the pike to refrain from violence.

A general boycott of the company's cars was advocated by the citizens and another attempt will be made to convince A. Merritt Taylor, president of the trolley company, that an injustice is being done the residents of the pike. To this end and to formulate plans for the creation of a citizens' protective association, the following committee was appointed: William Taylor, of Media, Richard Dawson, Dilwyn Lewis and Horatio Donahauer, all of Newtown Township.

Another meeting will be held when the new committee has completed its business.

FRANCIS ON EVE OF FREEDOM

Storey Cotton Swindler Will Leave Prison Tomorrow.

Stanley Francis will finish the sentence tomorrow for the part he played in the notorious Storey cotton swindle. His term in the Eastern Penitentiary expired on September 11, but he was obliged to serve one more month in order to make [illegible] This additional month will really be completed today, but on a Sunday no application can be made to the Federal Court, which must give an order before the prisoner can be freed.

Tomorrow Henry J. Scott, Francis's attorney, will take him before Commissioner Craig to make formal application for his release. Francis will have to make affidavit that he is a bankrupt or not worth more than $300, which, according to his attorney, he will do. There are a number of liens against the Franklin Building on Sansom street below Fifth street, and Mr. Scott said that the court would have to decide whether individual creditors or the President Government Bureau have a right in the mortgages.

widely announced by means of red cards with heavy black borders. At the top of each card were printed the "last words" of Professor Ferrer and of August Spies. "Aim straight! Long live the modern school!" read the former. "Your silence in the arena will be more powerful than the voices you strangle today," ran the latter. Professor Ferrer was referred to as "the man who founded children taught the truth," and it was stated that "Emma Goldman's choice of Ferrer and his life work will be read." The speakers were to be Voltairine de Cleyre, Frank Stevens, the single tax advocate; Harry Kelly, of New York, and Mr. Ben Hellman, of Chicago, Emma Goldman's advance agent, who was to be the chairman.

Clay Issued Orders.

Director Clay held one of these cards in his hand as he made the announcement to his office. He said that he had received positive information that the building had been leased for the purpose, and had issued orders that it must not be so used. He directed that a number of detectives and patrolmen be detailed to see that his order was carried out.

Mr. Clay said that he based his action upon Judge Willson's ruling. "The announcement of the meeting," he declared, "coming so closely upon the Court's decision, looks to me like a defiance of the Court and the law as laid down by the Court, that anarchists have no standing in this community. They cannot become citizens and be naturalized under the United States laws, and consequently they can have no status here. I shall use all the police power at my command to enforce the law and prevent the holding of this meeting."

Emma Goldman sighed wearily when told in her room, at 1502 Arch street, of this latest action of Director Clay. "I am not surprised," she said, as she leaned her head in her hands. "Judge Willson has now made the police omnipotent. I shall not now be surprised to see them stop every meeting advertised, whether it concerns astronomy, the drama or the North Pole, if only they can find an anarchistic looking name among the speakers. Director Clay can now back his empty head on the grounds that Judge Willson gave him. As a matter of fact, one of the speakers, Mr. Stevens, is not an anarchist at all, but a single taxer."

Not to Blame for Violence.

Miss Goldman declared that the anarchists would now not be to blame if the people of Philadelphia took to violence. "Judge Willson will drive the people to secret meetings," she said. "If they want to bring Russian methods into America we are satisfied. They are doing exactly what the Russian Government is doing. It stops free speech and thereby forces the people to secrecy and violence. There are other methods than open public discussion, and if the police drive the people to despair they will have to use those other methods. I am not responsible. It is certainly significant that it is only in a republic that a Ferrer memorial is prohibited when they have been held in the monarchical countries of Europe."

Miss Goldman herself will leave Philadelphia this morning to address a Ferrer memorial meeting in Clinton Hall, New York, tonight.

Doctor Reitman was present, and at this point he said:

"I am immensely pleased at the action of the police. Let them club the people and send them to jail. It will awaken a voice in Philadelphia greater than ours, a voice that even Director Clay will hear."

Miss Goldman deprecated this outburst and requested that care be taken not to print the words as hers.

"We will go to the hall tonight to hold the meeting," continued Doctor Reitman, "and if the police do not let us in we will go to another hall. If some of us are arrested as will get the case into the courts again."

"But, Ben, you know that will be of no use," interrupted Miss Goldman in a despairing voice as she again laid her head in her hands.

"The action of the police," she resumed, "will only antagonize the very people they are afraid of—the people who do not reason coldly and may break into violence."

An Anarchist a Minute.

"It is making an anarchist a minute," declared the Rev. Dr. George Hooper Ferris, pastor of the First Baptist Church, when asked last night for his opinion of this latest move of Director Clay. "It seems to me an unwarranted assumption for the police to determine beforehand what the nature of the meeting is to be. It seems to me, like the prevention of Emma Goldman from speaking, to be a violation of our American principles. The example of Russia before our eyes is sufficient to teach us that that is not the way to grapple with the problem. Any action of a tyrannical nature only increases the very thing Director Clay is trying to suppress. I think the stand that the PUBLIC LEDGER has taken on this matter is admirable.

"I know what I am talking about, because I take pains to keep in close touch with the Socialists. It is unquestionably true that this move by the police will make more anarchists in Philadelphia than Emma Goldman and her associates could in years of talking. It will drive into anarchy that large class of Socialists who are Socialists for emotional and not for academic reasons. It will catch the kind of people that a dead-sure Cook catches with his tales of the North Pole."

Former Director of Public Safety Sheldon Potter said that he would not condemn Director Clay in his effort to uphold the law without knowing what his reasons for taking action be did. "I think," said Colonel Potter, "that in this country we lean possibly at times too much toward free speech on the part of those who declaim against government. The people of this country believe in law—in constitutional law.

"I do not understand that the revolution in Spain was an anarchistic one. It was an attempt against one dynasty and not against all government. It seems to be much the same as if a body of men had wanted to hold memorial services for a leader who died in the American Revolution. But maybe Director Clay had reason to know that this meeting was merely to be made the pretense for an opportunity to proclaim anarchy. I think that in this country we cannot be too careful in Miss Goldman said that she would give her version of [illegible] before the publication [illegible] and would like to be [illegible] in public print.

Plain clothes men [illegible] Miss Goldman's residence in both [illegible] last night.

NAVIGATION CONFERENCE

Plan to Increase Authority of Commissioners Discussed.

United States Shipping Commissioner Augustin B. Smith returned yesterday from New York, where he attended a conference of Federal officers who hold the same office as himself. The meeting was presided over by E. T. Chamberlain, the United States Commissioner of Navigation, with whose bureau the commissioners are connected. Many subjects were discussed, but the principal topic was in regard to giving more authority to the commissioners in settling disputes. The proposition, which was introduced by Mr. Smith, was favorably regarded by the other commissioners, though it would mean more work for them and no increase in salary if it should become effective.

"The plan," Mr. Smith said yesterday, "would expedite the settling of all differences between masters, seamen, agents or owners of vessels and the crews, and it would prevent needless litigation. Where cases are now taken to the United States Courts for adjudication, running on for months without settlement, the commissioners, like police magistrates, could pass judgment, from which, of course, there would be a right of appeal. The principal matters with which the commissioners have to deal are those of wages, discreting, provisions and fines for dereliction of duty.

"Being more familiar with the technical questions involved, and frequently with the record and character of the disputants, the commissioners could settle the differences in such cases more equitably and quickly than is now done. The suggestion meets with the approval of nearly every person in this city connected with the shipping business to whom I have spoken in reference to it."

The matter will be presented by Commissioner Chamberlain to Secretary Nagel, of the Department of Commerce and Labor, and, if it has his indorsement, a bill embodying the plan will be introduced at the next session of Congress.

SHIPS DELAYED BY STORM

Merion, Overdue, Not Sighted. Lassel Arrives Two Days Late.

The American Line steamship Merion, which was scheduled to arrive here from Liverpool today, is not expected to reach her dock at Washington avenue until tomorrow, owing to the stormy weather she has encountered in her voyage across the ocean. Until a late hour last night the vessel was not reported by any of the Atlantic coast stations. It is unusual for the Merion to get by the Nantucket station without being sighted.

Not since 1907 has the Merion crossed the ocean from Liverpool so heavily laden with passengers and cargo as she is on this trip. At the office of the line it was reported that she was bringing 150 cabin and 675 steerage passengers and a general cargo of 4400 tons.

The Philadelphia and Gulf Line steamship Lassel, two days overdue, arrived here yesterday from New Orleans. The delay was due to the recent storm, which overtook her when two days out. Though the steamship was tossed about severely by the hurricane, she was not damaged, and the only loss sustained was that of a lifeboat. Captain George MacDonald said that the Lassel was driven more than 100 miles out of her regular course, and that, though the tempest raged furiously at times, he never felt any alarm regarding the safety of his vessel.

ADAMS EXPECTED TOMORROW

No Anxiety Over Schoolship Felt by Nautical Officers.

The schoolship Adams, sailing under her own canvas, though she is equipped with steam, is expected to reach the Delaware Breakwater tomorrow or Tuesday. The vessel left Funchal, Madeira Islands, on September 11.

Though she was scheduled to reach this port yesterday or today, no anxiety is felt by the officers of the Pennsylvania Nautical School, under whose auspices the Adams is conducted, because she did not appear at the Breakwater yesterday. Several of the relatives of the 90 cadets on board manifested some alarm yesterday on account of her failure to arrive, thinking that perhaps she was caught in the recent Southern hurricane.

In shipping circles it was said that the Adams was not in the zone of the storm, her course being at least 500 miles distant from the center of the hurricane. The vessel is rated as one of the staunchest of its class, and had she been subjected to stormy weather she could have used her sails, but in the absence of [illegible] the ship slowly to her destination under sail, giving the cadets the full benefit of the trip.

Negro Women Held for Robbing Man

Two negro women were arrested last night by Reserve Policeman Conner and Policeman Franta, of the Fifteenth and Vine streets station, charged with having assaulted and robbed James J. Archer, of 25 North Peach street. Archer told the policemen that he was standing at Fifteenth and Ranstead streets when he was knocked down and $17 was taken from his pockets. The policemen hurried to the scene of the robbery and arrested Mabel Williams, of 1301 Waverly street, and Anna Ball, 1430 Bainbridge street. They had $8. Archer was held as a witness.

[illegible]

890513007

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] N.Y. Socialists Protest / Emma Goldman.— p. 2 ; 43 cm. In Public Ledger [Philadelphia]. —(Oct. 18, 1909).

Obtained from the Pennsylvania State University Libraries, University Park, PA.

BERLIN, Oct 17 Three mee[illegible] here today to protest against [illegible] tion of Prof Francisco Ferrer [illegible] auspices of the Social Democratic [illegible] so largely attended that thousands could not gain [illegible] were made and resolutions [illegible] denouncing the [illegible] hideous of a [illegible]

After the [illegible] a street process[illegible] police [illegible] and many [illegible] rested.

DISORDERS IN AMSTERDAM

Crowds Attempt Demonstration Before Spanish Consulate

AMSTERDAM [illegible] test meeting [illegible] an attempt at a demonstration before the Spanish [illegible] held in the Dam Square

RIOTING IN GENOA

Crowds in Piaa Hiss Cardinal and Bishops

GENOA, Oct 17 A pro-Ferrer [illegible] sion in which many of the [illegible] ried flags draped with crepe one of which having a [illegible] of King Victor with the inscription "Assassin" [illegible] ator" caused a fight with the police today

The police succeeded in capturing the offending flag but after it was [illegible] on either side The [illegible] vented from approaching the Spanish Consulate

RIGA, Italy Oct 17 Archbishop [illegible] Maffi Archbishops while attending [illegible] Sacred Music here today were hissed by the crowds, with cries for Ferrer

MASONS ATTACK VATICAN

Grandmaster in Italy Issues Manifesto Against Church

ROME Oct 17 An international subscription has been opened for the purpose of collecting funds to erect a statue in the Piazza of St Peters to Francisco Ferrer's Modern School which was suppressed at Barcelona

All indications point to the fact that the extremists in Italy are determined to undertake an anti-Clerical campaign more vigorous even than that in France This is being directed by the Free Masons, whose grand master has issued a most violent manifesto in behalf of Ferrer, recently executed, and against the Church.

The manifesto says

"Sacerdotal tyranny of Loyola [illegible] Italian blood impeaches [illegible] the fright of a boy and the cowardice of the Government the slaughter of an innocent man who was [illegible] murdered Italy which has seen [illegible] reddened, fire and [illegible] the slaughter even of unarmed women and children ordered by the [illegible] understand its duty

"Rome, which has inside its walls the Vatican that for centuries has supported a tyranny from which to [illegible] the slaughter of Barcelona [illegible] decree that the last crime [illegible] unpunished

PRIEST ATTACKED IN PARIS

Anti-Spanish Meetings and Processions Throughout France

PARIS Oct 17 [illegible] demonstrations culminated [illegible] meetings and processions in the larger cities [illegible] France, organized by the Socialists and workmen's organizations The organizers laid emphasis on the peaceful character of these demonstrations, and although violent speeches were made [illegible] disorder is reported

In Paris after the procession had [illegible] rowdies attacked a priest in the Tuileries Gardens and attempted to throw him into the lake, but the police rescued the priest [illegible] of the rioters were arrested

This was practically the [illegible] of violence here The Government had taken elaborate precautions to prevent the recurrence of [illegible] The procession passed through a double line of police and troops but the leaders succeeded in furnishing a line of pickets who assisted in preserving order and [illegible] in this city The Socialist deputies and municipal councillors headed the procession, which was composed largely of persons who sang the Internationale

While passing the Spanish Embassy and several churches there were cries of "Down with the clergy! Down with Spain!" but the majority of the paraders refrained from disorder of any kind obedient to the instructions of the leaders

In several cities the Socialist Senators and Deputies headed the processions M. Jaures leader of the Socialists in the Chamber of Deputies spoke at Lyons and delegates of the General Federation of Labor at other places

SMASH CHURCH WINDOWS

meetings were held in [illegible] towns

POLICE CHARGE MOB

Crowds in Havana Lift Red Flag and Stone Church

HAVANA Oct 17 A mob of several thousand [illegible] a majority of the [illegible] many Spaniards [illegible] demonstration this afternoon in honor of Francisco Ferrer They marched [illegible] through the principal streets [illegible] carrying red flags and cheering for Ferrer

Two [illegible] meetings were held at which [illegible] were made by Mayor [illegible] Enrique Lagnas [illegible] Castillo, who presided was appointed Envoy Extraordinary to the Second American Republic [illegible] and to exert [illegible] these were passed to boycott all Spanish goods and to accept the offer of the striking sea [illegible] union to refuse to unload Spanish [illegible] vessels [illegible] Ferrer's estate

The mob attempted to approach the Spanish [illegible] late and the Bishop's palace but was driven back by the police The [illegible] was then taken up to the church of the Angel Guardian, which was [illegible] with showers of stones and [illegible] the police charged the rioters A [illegible] fought [illegible] and several on both sides were hurt The mob then started [illegible] the office of the Diario de la Marina [illegible] was again driven back and [illegible] with the police and mounted [illegible] Guards There were many arrests

N. Y. SOCIALISTS PROTEST

Fiery Speech by Emma Goldman—Unmolested by Police

NEW YORK Oct 17 One thousand [illegible] Spanish anarchists [illegible] paraded an East Side [illegible] to the fiery [illegible] of Emma Goldman [illegible] Spanish [illegible] have called for her the [illegible] Queen of the Reds and [illegible] [illegible] and other speakers [illegible] the execution of Prof [illegible] Spain revolutionary

After the Anarchists [illegible] in Union Square Spanish and [illegible] speakers attacked the Spanish [illegible] and hoped that revenge was yet to come

Emma Goldman, who was the chief speaker, sought to draw a parallel between the case of Ferrer and those of Moyer Haywood and Pettibone of the Western Federation of Miners

"I am not here to mourn but to celebrate Ferrer's death" she cried "In this age of greed, avarice and indifference we must realize that there was a man like Ferrer who had rather die than live like a dog If I believed that the American people [illegible] I would ask them to follow the examples of France and Italy, go on a general strike, and die or live to their losses their liberty It [illegible] Ferrer"

Miss Goldman was the last speaker Among others who addressed the crowd were Alexander Berkman her associate who served time for shooting H C Frick and Adolph Hungard who knew Ferrer in France

[illegible] adopted [illegible] are in part

The murder of Ferrer was committed by the [illegible] church money and [illegible] Ferrer [illegible] free anti-clerical [illegible] where the results of independent [illegible] were taught

"The world [illegible] the murder as [illegible] one of the most cowardly crimes ever committed under the disguise of the law and expresses its sincerest sympathy and [illegible] with the thousands of fighters for free [illegible] who are struggle in the [illegible] of the Bourbonic imputation

At the conclusion of the meeting it was announced that a more comprehensive gathering would be held Tuesday night at Cooper Union

Forty [illegible] police were on duty in the hall but no arrests were made

20,000 PROTEST IN TAMPA

Spanish-Americans Denounce Execution of Ferrer.

TAMPA Fla Oct 17 At a mass-meeting today of the Centro Asturiano, a Spanish organization here, representing [illegible] persons a resolution was passed [illegible] against the execution of Francisco Ferrer

Professor Ferrer had many personal friends here some of whom spoke this afternoon, [illegible]

ROBBER CAUGHT UNDER BED

Tries to Shoot Camden Detective When Arrested.

After a desperate struggle Robert Burns, 19 years old, was arrested by City Detective Moffett, of Camden, at National Park yesterday, on a charge of breaking and entering and was locked up in the Camden City Jail for a hearing in the Camden Police Court this morning The young man was caught under a bed in his brother's house, and threatened to shoot

Miller's body was covered with bruises

Upon investigating the case, the police were astounded to find that the events of the night could be explained only on the supposition that Mrs Miller had killed Harper after a violent quarrel had quieted down and then, after the policemen had gone and all was quiet, had lain down on the bed and shot herself sometime during the early hours of the morning

The woman was a character in the neighborhood and was known as "Bloody" Harper had been away from the house for a month but returned Saturday evening Neighbors saw large quantities of beer carried into the house and heard loud disputes At 9 30 o'clock Mrs Frank Burrell, who lives next door, No 3446, met Policeman Ulmar, of the Nineteenth station at Germantown avenue and Ontario street, four blocks away

"I heard a shot in Harper's," she said, "and I think Bloody has killed her finally"

Ulmer at once went to investigate He met Willmuter the policeman on the beat and Alonzo Klein, night watchman at Brotherton's lumber yard just across the street from Harper's house They rang the doorbell The house was lighted throughout but there was no response They went around the house seeking an opening and kicked at the back door Still there was no answer but the blinds in the second story front room, the room in which the two bodies were found ten hours later were lowered Then some one turned out the lights on the first floor Finally the watchers in the street saw the lights go out on the second floor

"We had no right to enter the house on the word of a neighbor, unless we heard a cry of murder or heard a shot inside" said Ulmer yesterday afternoon "Besides Mrs Burrell told me that she was looking for her husband We thought that she had had a fight with the Miller woman, and had just got us over there as a protection to herself When we were [illegible] Mrs Burrell's husband and little girl came He and the girl went into their room, and she went away

So the police went away thinking that all was right At 8 o'clock yesterday morning Mrs Bagnell was at the house of Mrs Miller's son-in-law, Charles [illegible] Madger 3324 North Hickory street "I think that your mother has killed Harper" she said to Mrs Madger Madger and the house took an axe in the yard and broke open the back door The gas fumes which poured out nearly overpowered him [illegible] opening windows as he went [illegible] through the house

Every room was in disorder In the kitchen pots kettles and dishes were lying all over the floor In the dining room the carpet was torn from the floor, beer bottles were all over the room, newspapers were scattered as if by a whirlwind, and fragments of china were everywhere On the parlor floor was a claw hammer and pieces of a cut glass dish, while the rugs were rolled up into little heaps Everywhere the gas jets were turned on full

After he had closed the gas jets and opened the windows on the first floor Madger went upstairs Here, too, everything was disarranged When he opened the door of the front room he saw Harper lying on his back on the floor, at the foot of the bed There were bullet wounds in his right and left breasts and the blood formed a pool about him Beside him lay a long butcher knife, and a steel such as is used for sharpening a carving knife His shoes and coat were off On the bed, lengthwise, with her head on the pillow, lay Mrs Miller There was just one wound in her breast and a revolver was near her right hand It had three cartridges in it and three empty shells

Madger notified the police station, and Policeman Weiss and Deputy Coroner Braun went to the house After investigating the facts, they concluded that Mrs Miller must have shot Harper in a desperate quarrel in which he had beaten her, that he had got the knife and steel and she had obtained the revolver with which she drove him into the front room after they had fought all over the house, that she had shot him twice as he was about to attack her with the knife, and that hearing the police at the door she had [illegible] the gas jets to make sure of it As no one heard a shot it is supposed that Mrs. Miller waited until the police had gone and then shot herself while a train was passing on the Reading Railway, which runs near the house. Both bodies were cold.

Harper was a son of Sergeant Harper, of the Germantown Police Station. He was 25 years old, while Mrs. Miller was 42. He worked irregularly as the driver of a butcher wagon. It is not known where he went during the month he was away.

Mrs. Miller's husband, Edward, died 12 [illegible] has [illegible] daughter, Mrs was the matter, ran with the rest [illegible] body in the cabin was frightened, and many were thrown to the floor in the turmoil, but the two women were the only ones who were injured seriously enough to be removed to a hospital.

It was with considerable difficulty that the deck hands preserved order and assured the passengers that nothing serious was the matter The mouse escaped, much to the dismay of its fair owner, who wanted it back for future sport.

HER ROMANCE SHATTERED

Overbrook Girl Wants Her Marriage to Hawaiian Annulled.

A dispatch from Reno, Nev., says that a young woman who still calls herself Miss Florence G. Batterson, and whose father lives at 6351 Woodbine avenue, Overbrook, is in Reno seeking a divorce

Ambitious for an educational career after her graduation from Smith College in 1908, Miss Batterson went to Honolulu as instructor in the Government Normal School There she fell in love with a native, David Dowsett, a real estate and insurance broker, a member of the University Club and a favorite in society. He was also the husband of a native dancer, but he got a divorce, and the day after Christmas last year married the American

The wedded bliss of the couple was short lived According to reports, Dowsett's actions were such that within three months his bride resigned her position in the Normal School, where she was teaching 40 women older than herself, and left for Nevada, determined to sever as quickly and quietly as possible the ties that bound her to the man.

Mr Batterson refused yesterday to discuss the case

CASPAR WISTAR HACKER ILL

Marriage to Miss Annette Page May Have to Be Postponed.

Caspar Wistar Hacker is seriously ill with typhoid fever at his home in Wister street Germantown, and it is likely that his marriage to Miss Annette Page, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Louis Rodman Page, will have to be postponed. The ceremony had been planned to occur in Holy Trinity Church on November 16, but it is said by friends of the family that it is hardly likely that Mr. Hacker will be sufficiently recovered by that time for the wedding to take place.

Yesterday was the 12th day of his illness, and the crisis is not due until late this week. Miss Page has already had most of her trousseau completed in anticipation of her wedding, and she is said to be much affected over the possibility of its postponement.

HER WEDDING DATE FIXED

Miss Stewart and Former Senator Dietrich to Wed October 27.

The marriage of Miss Margaretta Shaw Stewart, daughter of Mrs William Shaw Stewart, of 1725 Pine street, and former Senator Charles H Dietrich, of Nebraska will take place quietly at the home of the bride, on Wednesday, October 27. Only members of the immediate families will be present

While Miss Stewart was attending a New England college, her closest chum was a daughter of the former Senator, and it was through her that the young Philadelphia girl met the man who is to become her husband. He is immensely wealthy, owns many acres of land in Nebraska, and is interested in many manufacturing enterprises

BLACK HAND WAS SUSPECTED

Dynamite Found in Murdered Man's Trunk Had Been Sent by Friend.

There was a suspicion, for a brief period yesterday, that murder of Enrico Ricci, who was shot at 511 Montrose street, on Saturday night, by his roommate, Antonio Paccitto, was a new instance of Black Hand activity

When the police went to the house where the man boarded, to take charge of the body, they were surprised upon opening the trunk of the murdered man to find in it eight sticks of dynamite, with fuses for exploding them The sticks were such as are used by railroad contractors. The man did not work on a railroad, while the murderer was known to have been a railroad laborer.

Investigation showed that a friend of Ricci's, who is said to work at Malvern, sent the dynamite to him The police say that it is not unusual for the men who [illegible] explosive, which they in some manner succeed in selling; whether or not to Black Hand agents, they do not know.

FLAMES MENACE CLUBHOUSE

Members Form Volunteer Fire Brigade and Subdue Blaze.

The prompt action of several members of the Merion Cricket Club yesterday morning saved from loss by fire the beautiful golf house of that organization, when sparks from a chimney set fire to the shingle roof and, fanned by a high wind, threatened for a time to destroy the structure.

671

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

890222014

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Emma Goldman, Raconteur / Emma Goldman. – p. 8 ; 28 cm. In The New York Times. – (Oct. 23, 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

...her American campaign at ... Temple to-night. Before an ... of more than 2,000 she spoke ... hours on the "civil war" in ... country.

...ated the cause of women from ... standpoint of a wife and moth... with emphatic arguments claimed ... suffrage was based upon the ... Rights and that women as well ... always had the right of petition. ...scribed the recent hunger strike ... most terrible weapon which had ...ed in the contest, and went into ... the methods pursued by the au... in attempting to combat that ... phase of the movement.

...Pankhurst said that the suffra... were in politics as an appeal as ... shield for women, and predicted ... would prove a betterment for men... ...tion was necessary for the educa... ...children, and in that legislation ...should have an equal voice with ... The last question which was asked ... speakers in England was "Why ... not give women a chance to vote ... ...tions which so vitally con... ...es and their children?"

...made an effort to urge her audience ... America the methods of ... ...tactics, but showed how ... were received in her own ... ...ason she said that the ... which could come to a ... England was to be dragged ... ...e meeting and to suffer ... ...that 700 women had ...

FOR INDUSTRIAL PEACE.

Of Canadian Senate Talks to Chicago Business Men.

... 22.—Rabbi Dandurand ... Speaker of the Canadian ... ...ial leaders plea for indus... ...international peace in an ... the Chicago Association of ...

...arred" he said, speaking ... since 1815 to live side by ... and harmony and we have ... ...al confidence by disarm... ... simply as against each ... the other side of the At... ...impossible even to bring ...ation of armaments.

...peace yet a wall remains ... ...er which is not guarded ... erected by human beings, ... as an investment in the ... ...ar joint work, but for ... ...that you are the rich... ...t is doubly the height of ...

...remained your haughty ... ...e have continued to ... ...The fever ceased ... ...seemed ... ...dence with us. We ... ...comprehen... ...seem to take the ... ...a war existence, but as ... ...been freely ... ...for [illegible] ... ...to pay ... ...heavily. We [illegible] ... ...Canada is ... ...if ... ...for ... ...for [illegible] ... ...England ... ...and the ... ...

New York State Association, in Session at Troy, Renews Demand for Ballot.

THE REV. ANNA SHAW TALKS

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont Sends Letter in Which She Tells Why She Believes in the Cause.

TROY, N. Y., Oct. 22.—The Rev. Anna Howard Shaw of New York, President of the National Woman Suffrage Association, arrived here to-day to take part in the convention of the New York State Woman Suffrage Association in progress at Y. M. C. A. Hall. At the afternoon session she spoke briefly on "Our Progress as Indicated by the Press," and in the evening on "National Suffrage."

The following officers were elected:

President—Mrs. Ella Hawley Crossett of Warsaw; Vice President—Miss Harriet Mary Mills of New York City; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Frank Shuler, of Buffalo; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Nicholas Shaw Fraser of Geneseo; Treasurer—Mrs. William M. Ivins of New York City; Auditors—Mrs. Eliza Wright Osborne of Auburn and Mrs. Fanny Garrison Villard of New York City.

Resolutions were adopted as follows:

Resolved, That we call upon the enfranchised half of the State to grant the ballot to women in order that they may be enabled to perform the duties of citizenship.

Resolved, That we ask the Senators and Assemblymen of this State to unite in passing in the coming Legislature a concurrent resolution to strike out the word "male" from Article 1, Section 2, of the Constitution, thereby conferring on the women full citizenship.

In connection with these resolutions it was affirmed that women are afforded equal opportunities for education with men and that from one-third to one-half of the property of the State is owned by intelligent women, who are taxed without representation; also that 70 per cent. of the instruction of the youth of the country in the duties of citizenship is in the hands of disfranchised women. Several of the women slated for addresses in the afternoon were unable to be present and they sent letters of regret. These included Mrs. Clarence Mackay, of New York, President of the Equal Franchise Society, and Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont, of New York.

Mrs. Belmont, in her letter, which was addressed to Mrs. Crossett, said that she had been strongly advised by her physicians not to attempt the trip to Troy. She inclosed the address which she had hoped to deliver. It is as follows:

I believe in woman suffrage because I have a logical mind and because I believe in justice.

Long years ago men modeled a figure of a cultured woman; they placed scales in her hands and a bandage over her eyes and even now this figure is emblematic of Justice.

I ask you women, and I ask you men, to realize that the hour is at hand all over the world, and especially here in this land of boasted liberty—I ask you to understand that this blind deity must be replaced by the woman of the twentieth century. For [illegible] ... [illegible] ... [illegible] ...

890222015

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Anarchist–Socialist Parade for Ferrer / Emma Goldman. – p. 8 ; 43 cm. In The New York Times. –(Oct. 24, 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

ANARCHIST-SOCIALIST PARADE FOR FERRER

Led by Emma Goldman, Marchers Cry "Down with the Pope!" Before St. Patrick's.

THEN LOWER THEIR FLAGS

As They Pass the Cathedral—Goldman and Berkman Denounce Ferrer Execution In Carnegie Hall.

With cries of "Down with the Church; down with Alphonso," and "Long live Ferrer," as they passed each church along the line, a parade of some 600 Socialists, mainly members of Italian societies, marched up Fifth Avenue last night from Madison Square to Fifty-seventh Street, with red banners draped in black. In the centre of [illegible] marched the anarchist, Emma Goldman.

This was a preliminary to a meeting of protest in Carnegie Hall against the execution of Ferrer in Spain on a charge, [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

[

840514071

The Emma Goldman Papers

Francisco Ferrer / Emma Goldman. — pp. 275-277 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. — Vol. 4, no. 9 (Nov. 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

the child with the greatest attention, and we shall eagerly seek for means of applying their experience to the education we wish to build up, in the direction of an ever fuller liberation of the individual. But how can we attain our end? Shall it not be by putting ourselves directly to the work favoring the foundation of new schools, which shall be ruled as much as possible by this spirit of liberty, which we forefeel will dominate the entire work of education in the future.

A trial has been made which, for the present, has already given excellent results. We can destroy all which in the present school answers to the organization of constraint, the artificial surroundings by which the children are separated from nature and life, the intellectual and moral discipline made use of to impose ready-made ideas upon them, beliefs which deprave and annihilate natural bent. Without fear of deceiving ourselves, we can restore the child to the environment which entices it, the environment of nature in which he will be in contact with all that he loves, and in which impressions of life will replace fastidious book-learning. If we did no more than that, we should already have prepared in great part the deliverance of the child.

In such conditions we might already freely apply the data of science, and labor most fruitfully.

I know very well that we could not thus realize all our hopes, that we should often be forced, for lack of knowledge, to employ undesirable methods; but a certitude would sustain us in our effort, namely, that even without reaching our aim completely we should do more and better in our still imperfect work than the present school accomplishes. I like the free spontaneity of a child who knows nothing, better than the word knowledge and intellectual deformity of a child who has been subjected to our present education.

What we have attempted at Barcelona, others have attempted elsewhere, and we have all seen that the work is possible. And I think it should be begun without delay. We should not wait until the study of the child has been completed before undertaking the renovation of the school; if we must wait for that, we shall never do anything. We will apply what we do know, and, progressively, all that we shall learn. Already, a complete plan of rational education is possible, and, in such schools as we conceive, children may develop, happy and free, according to their natural tendencies. We shall labor to perfect and extend it.

It is with this object in view that this Review has been founded, that the International League for the rational education of children has been founded. We ask the aid of all those who desire, with us, the liberation of the child, who desire through it to contribute to the coming of a more beautiful, a stronger humanity. In this Review we shall confine ourselves to the discussion of a plan of rational education, such as it is possible to carry out in these days.

Moreover, as soon as circumstances permit, we shall take up again the work begun in Barcelona, we shall rebuild the schools destroyed by our adversaries. In the meantime, we shall labor to found a normal school in Barcelona, for the training of teachers destined to second us later; we shall create a library of the modern school, in which such books will be published as will serve for the education of the educators, as well as for that of the children. We shall also found a pedagogic museum, containing a collection of all the necessary materials for a renovated school.

Such are our plans. We are aware that their realization will be difficult. But we want to begin, convinced that we shall be aided in our task by those who are everywhere struggling for human liberation from dogmas and conventions which assure the support of the present iniquitous social organization.

* * *

FRANCISCO FERRER

By EMMA GOLDMAN.

NEVER before in the history of the world has one man's death so thoroughly united struggling mankind.

Never before has one man's death called forth such a universal cry of indignation.

Never before has one man's death so completely torn the veil from the sinister face of the hydra-headed monster, the Catholic Church.

674

840514071

The Emma Goldman Papers

Francisco Ferrer / Emma Goldman. – pp. 275-277 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 4, no. 9 (Nov. 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

Never before in the history of the world has one man's death so shaken the thrones of the golden calf, and spread ghastly fear among its worshippers.

One solitary death, yet more powerful than a million cringing lives. More powerful even than that black spectre which, for almost two thousand years, has tortured man's soul and poisoned his mind.

Francisco Ferrer stretched in the ditch at Montjuich, his tender, all-too-loving heart silenced by twelve bullets —yet speaking, speaking in a voice so loud, so clear, so deep. . . . Wherein lies the secret of this wonderful phenomenon?

Francisco Ferrer, the Anarchist and teacher? Yes, but there were other Anarchists and teachers: Louise Michel and Elisée Reclus, for instance, beloved by many. Yet why has their death not proved such a tremendous force?

Francisco Ferrer, the founder of the Modern School? But, then, the Modern School did not originate with Francisco Ferrer, though it was he who carried it to Spain. The father of the Modern School is Paul Robin, the latter-day Dr. Pascal,—old in years, with the spirit of Spring, tender and loving, he taught modern methods of education long before Ferrer. He organized the first Modern School at Cempuis, near Paris, wherein children found a home, a warm, beautiful atmosphere.

Again, there is Sebastian Faure and his Beehive. He, too, has founded a Modern School, a free, happy, and harmonious place for children. There are scores of modern schools in France, yet no other man's death will act as a fertilizing force as that of Francisco Ferrer.

Was Ferrer's influence so great because of a lifetime of devoted effort? During eight years his heroic spirit strove to spread the light in the dark land of his birth. For eight years he toiled, ceaselessly, to rescue the child from the destructive influence of superstition. One hundred and nine schools with seventy thousand pupils crowned the gigantic efforts of our murdered comrade, while three hundred and eight liberal schools sprang into being, thanks to his beneficial influence. Yet all this and more fails to account for the tremendous volcano that swept the civilized world at Francisco Ferrer's death.

His trial was a farce. The evidence against him perjured. But was there ever a time when the State hesitated to resort to perjury when dealing with opponents? Was there ever a time when it exercised justice toward those who endangered its stronghold? The State is the very embodiment of injustice and perjury. Some make a pretence at fairness: Spain was brazen; that is all.

What, then, is the secret of the phenomenon?

* * *

Driven from its omnipotent position of open crime by the world's progress, the Catholic Church had not ceased to be a virulent poison within the social body. Its Borgia methods merely became more hidden, more secret, yet none the less malignant and perfidious. Cowed into apparent submission, it had not dared since the days of Huss and Bruno to openly demand a noble victim's blood. But at last, blinded by arrogance and conceit and the insatiable thirst for martyrs' blood, the Catholic Church forgot the progress of the world, forgot the spirit of our age, forgot the growth of free ideas. As of old, it was the Jesuit hand that stretched forth its bloody fingers to snatch its victim. It was the Archbishop of Barcelona who, in a statement signed by the prelates of the Church, first denounced Ferrer and demanded his life. As of old, Inquisition methods were used in the incarceration and mock trial of Ferrer. No time was to be given the progressive world to check the premeditated murder. Hastily and secretly was the martyr assassinated. Full well the Church knew that the dead cannot be saved.

In vain the frantic efforts of Church and State to connect Francisco Ferrer with the uprising at Barcelona. In vain their delirious cries defaming the character of the dead. In vain the scurrilous attacks of their harlots upon the ideas and comrades of Ferrer—attacks which have now reached even the American press.

Before the awakened consciousness of mankind the world over the Catholic Church stands condemned as the instigator and perpetrator of the foul crime committed at Montjuich. It is this awakened human consciousness which has resurrected Francisco Ferrer.

Therein lies the secret of the force of one man's death, of one solitary man in the ditch of Montjuich.

675

840514072

The Emma Goldman Papers

Adventures in the Desert of American Liberty / E[mma] G[oldman]. – pp. 292-297 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 4, no. 9 (Nov. 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

ADVENTURES IN THE DESERT OF AMERICAN LIBERTY

By E. G.

IN selecting this title for my traveling notes I little realized how significant it would prove.

"Adventures in the Desert of American Liberty"! Its barrenness and utter desolation were not new to me. Yet never did that desert seem more real, more deadening than when I reached Philadelphia.

There it was that American liberty was born; there, too, it has been stabbed to death; what is left of it, is but a hideous nightmare that benumbs the mind and weakens the spirit of the erstwhile liberty-loving Philadelphians.

Mindful of the petty police persecution in that city in 1901 and 1903, the Free Speech Committee wrote to Henry Clay, Director of Public Safety, informing him of our intention to test free speech. "Of course, he would not interfere with the right of free speech; he, the guardian of the City of Independence."

When I saw Henry Clay I realized how much he must have enjoyed the credulity of the Free Speech Committee. Credulity, indeed, to suppose that Henry Clay knows anything of Philadelphia's traditions in regard to liberty.

When Dr. Reitman presented himself before the watchdog at the City Hall, he found him suffering from hydrophobia. Such must have been the nature of the poor man's affliction. Else one could hardly account for his mad ravings against "that woman who will never speak in Philadelphia."

Some good friends have severely censured Dr. Reitman for his militant methods in dealing with the police. As a physician he probably knows that mad dogs, if not muzzled, are highly dangerous.

On the day of the meeting hallucinations set in at City Hall. The Director of Public Safety imagined himself the Russian Tsar. He despatched two Cossacks to my hotel, demanding that I submit my manuscript for the consideration and approval of His Majesty. That

I refused to do, of course. (I shall show later that what was self-evident to me, seemed "imprudent" and undiplomatic to some who call themselves liberals.)

In the evening the neighborhood of our hall had the appearance of being under martial law. When, in company with Mr. John H. Nelson (our attorney), I reached within half a block of the hall, we were charged by the brave two hundred and forced to go,—not where we chose (no such rights in the Independence City), but by the route mapped out for us by Henry Clay. The meeting, however, was "graciously" permitted to proceed.

The day after the memorable event, and for nearly four weeks, the real Philadelphia liberty reigned. I was shadowed by those most contemptible of all human professionals—detectives. Hotelkeepers were annoyed and harassed until they ordered us to leave. When I finally found shelter, the house was constantly watched, and the servant offered a bribe if only she would tell of the terrible conspiracies that were being hatched in my rooms.

The awe of authority is deeply rooted in the average American; even the liberal man and woman have implicit faith in it. This is no doubt the reason why American liberty has long since departed. The worship of law has taken its place.

During years of public activity I have often been reproached by many good people for attacking the machinery of government from the standpoint of theory rather than from experience. "There is nothing the matter with the law," they would say; "it's the abuse thereof. The police are arbitrary and despotic; they break the law; why not appeal to the courts? They surely will stand by constitutional rights."

Strangly and possibly inconsistent as it may seem to my comrades, I finally consented to appeal to the courts. Not because I believed that justice could possibly prevail; but because I wanted the court itself to substantiate the Anarchist contention so powerfully set forth by Ralph Waldo Emerson: "All governments, in essence, stand for tyranny."

As expected, the apeal was refused; but the grounds on which it was refused brand the court and govern-

676

840514072

The Emma Goldman Papers

Adventures in the Desert of American Liberty / E[mma] G[oldman]. – pp. 292-297 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 4, no. 9 (Nov. 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

ment more forcibly than the bitterest attacks of the wildest fanatic.

For the benefit of MOTHER EARTH readers I quote the major portion of the argument, as set forth by Judge Wilson:

> The question which the plaintiff would have us determine is, whether or not public officers, entrusted with the preservation of the peace, acting, as we ought to presume the defendants would, in the honest exercise of their judgment, should be restrained from prohibiting the delivery of lectures which would be likely to excite public disturbances and to result in a breach of the public peace. If such public officers should attempt to interfere in such a case, their interference would be justified, not upon the ground that the person to be affected by their action was an alien or a citizen, but by the knowledge that of dangerous and disturbing sentiments tending to disturb the peace would be uttered. We do not mean to say that an alien has the same or as full a right to attack the institutions of our country and to advocate the abolition of the constituted and constitutional government of the land that a citizen might have, but, so far as the case which is before us is concerned, we should regard the right of a citizen as no higher than that of an alien. The Constitution of Pennsylvania, in giving the right to citizens to speak freely, confers the right subject to their being held "responsible for the abuse of that liberty." The plaintiff is an avowed anarchist. However honest or able she may be, she does not hesitate to declare that, in her belief, all government should be abolished and that every citizen should regulate his or her own conduct according to his own views of what is right and wrong, and that force may be resorted to for the purpose of destroying government and establishing the right of individual independence from governmental control. It necessarily follows from the holding of such views that it would be considered as the right of any individual to determine, according to his own judgment, when the time arrives for the exercise of force to accomplish the destruction of government. That the utterance of such views in the community would be likely to excite such feelings and antagonism as would result in a breach of the peace, is by no means unlikely. It is not unreasonable to hold that such speech is an abuse of the liberty to speak freely on any subject. Whether it be a citizen or an alien who desires to advocate ideas which, if carried out, would naturally lead to the destruction of government, whose protection that person seeks, it would seem that, in the exercise of that right of self-preservation which belongs as well to governments as to individuals, such abuse of the right of free speech might, not unreasonably nor unlawfully, be prevented.
>
> That the plaintiff intended to advocate such destructive views as have been before mentioned, was admitted by her when examined before us. If she avowed a purpose of delivering a lecture advocating wholesale assassination of any class of public officers or persons, we think it would hardly be questioned that the peace officers of the city would be justified in preventing the utterances of such views. We are unable to perceive that there will be any well defined line of discrimination in such a case, one in which the views would be destructive of the life of the nation.
>
> By the laws of the United States there is a discrimination against those who are known as Anarchists. The right of naturalization is forbidden to them and, when known, they are excluded from admission into the country. If when entering the country they are not known to belong to the class of disturbers and are afterwards discovered to belong to it, within a prescribed time they may be deported from the country. The ban of governmental disapproval is thus placed upon the utterance of sentiments such as the plaintiff holds and desires to advocate in public. We are asked to afford an opportunity for the poor Anarchist and advocates of the destructive and dangerous sentiments and to compel officers of the peace, notwithstanding they may be of the opinion that breaches of the peace would result therefrom, to abstain from interfering with the holding of public meetings for the expression of such ideas. This we do not feel called upon to do. It is a familiar principle of equity that plaintiffs cannot ask relief if they do not come into court with hands that are clean. We cannot avoid reaching the conclusion that one who openly and in advance announces the purpose of advocating such doctrines and sentiments as the plaintiff avows, is not within the class that can claim protection and relief from a court of equity.

It requires but little wisdom to see that Judge Wilson has made frantic efforts to get out of a dilemma. He failed, however. True, the decision has increased the arroganee of the police; but the decision also stands as the greatest indictment against the absurdity and cowardice of the law.

As I said before, I expected nothing better; I am, therefore, not disappointed.

The disappointing and discouraging feature of the Philadelphia experience is the utter lack of interest in the issue of free speech,—or if not indifference, it is certainly lack of spirit, absolute lack of backbone. The handful of liberals who were at first inclined to make a stand for free speech, because I was not "diplomatic" enough to let Henry Clay act as censor, withdrew their assistanee. The party Socialists played the usual sorry part, as in all questions of liberty. As to the public at large, no other city represents such a white-livered specimen. To put red blood in its veins it will have to be

677

840514072

The Emma Goldman Papers

Adventures in the Desert of American Liberty / E[mma] G[oldman]. – pp. 292-297 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 4, no. 9 (Nov. 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

clubbed still more, and starved and kicked about. And even then it may never give birth to the spirit of revolt.

It is hardly credible, but nevertheless true, that the Philadelphians will stand more bullying than any European people I know. When, after four weeks of a complete despotic reign, of the stopping of a Ferrer memorial,—though held in all monarchical countries,—after four weeks of petty persecution and torture the police of Philadelphia broke up a private meeting in a private house, a few meek voices were heard to protest. Not against the reign of terror. Oh, no; but against the invasion of the sacred rights of property. Oh, yes, the Philadelphians, like all Americans, are sensitive in that respect.

Yet, even Philadelphia deserves to be saved, because of her two wonders: Mrs. Weda Addicks, a Socialist bigger than her party, and—a thrice blessed wonder, a Baptist minister, Rev. Cooper Ferris. Weda Addicks, outside of our own immediate comrades, was a friend indeed. She helped in every way possible to interest people, but soon found herself facing an iron wall. Rev. Ferris protested very loudly, delivered a sermon on Anarchism which, I hear, was very good. He also tried to get his congregation to take a stand, but out of eight hundred only thirty-eight had the courage to go on record.

A few contributed small sums to aid the fight, but were so fearful of public opinion that they did not dare to allow their names to be used.

Under such impossible circumstances why throw pearls before swine? Why exert energy on free speech for people who have neither ideas to express nor rights to exercise? Such is the reasoning of my practical, utilitarian friends.

Fortunately, I am neither. Nor am I particularly concerned whether or not the Philadelphians want free speech. I want it, and having learned that unless one is willing to take his rights, they will never be given to him, I do not yet consider the Philadelphia chapter closed.

Judge Wilson "kindly" informs us, that as "avowed Anarchists" we are not entitled to protection. That absolves us from any consideration or recognition of the position of Judge Wilson and the institution he represents. Anarchists need no protection. But a government that will put a ban on any set of people, for their ideas, must protect itself, for it is indeed in danger.

* * *

OUR POLICE CENSORSHIP*

By VOLTAIRINE DE CLEYRE

FELLOW-MEN:

I have written my speech; I generally write my speech. We have a censor, and the censor may call me to account. He has some reporters here; and in their anxiety to earn their money, and their shortage of intelligence, they are likely to report me as uttering a lot of idiocy which the censorship wishes me to utter, in order to excuse its illegal, unconstitutional, and tyrannical action. To illustrate the mental caliber of the servants of the law, who are set to judge what you, the people, ought to be allowed to hear, I will relate a little incident of last week. A policeman, straying into a cigar store for a rest, remarked to the young lady at the counter, "Think of a woman like Emma Goldman wanting to speak!"

"Well," said the lady, "why shouldn't she speak if she wants to? How do you know that what she was going to say was bad when you didn't let her even open her mouth?"

"Oh," replied Sapience, "everybody knows what she's going to say. Why, she carries a red flag with her; everybody knows red means danger."

Now, this person has doubtless been trained to know that a red lantern over a break in the curbstone signifies danger; or a little red flag put up in the middle of the street means a place to be walked around; and he probably conceives that Emma Goldman has appropriated one of these little flags and runs around waving it, notifying all the people that she is dangerous. Upon sources of information like these, the censorship depends for its knowl-

* Address delivered October 8, 1909, in Philadelphia, at a public meeting of protest against the police suppression of Emma Goldman's lectures.

678

840514075

The Emma Goldman Papers

A Tribute / Emma Goldman. — pp. 323-325 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 4, no. 10 (Dec. 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

ment with hard labor, and is patted on the back by a Roman Catholic judge. "The community must uphold Espindola," says this precious specimen of the judiciary, Judge Malone, "for the confidence he placed in American courts and in the American sense of honor and justice by bringing his case to us."

Verily the spirit of liberty is dead in America when so outrageous a decision awakens hardly a ripple of interest, and hardly a word of protest, outside the radical movement.

It is all a disgraceful business, and three of the Tafts have had a hand in it. President Taft set the seal of official approval upon the barbarities of Diaz when he met him and shook hands with him at El Paso, Texas, on October 16. Charles Taft, one of the President's brothers, is helping to perpetuate Mexican peonage on his estate. Henry Taft, another brother, helped to crush Fornaro, as already related.

Under Judge Malone's ruling, any minion of any tyrant who does not like what is said about him in the press can come to New York and have authors and journalists sentenced to one year's imprisonment and hard labor, with a judicial homily thrown in. Lieut. Colonel Lacalle, for instance—may his name be accursed!—the president of the military cabal that sentenced Francisco Ferrer to death, could come to America, hale the editor of MOTHER EARTH into court, and have him sent to prison for calling Lacalle by his real name, "murderer." Premier Stolypin, of Russia, might have Herman Bernstein punished because, in a recent letter to the New York Times he expressed his detestation of Stolypin's bloody methods. In practically every instance, so long as reactionary lawyers could be hired and a reactionary judge was at the helm, the foreigner would win his case, since it is almost impossible to obtain public evidence against despotism in a country ruled by despotic methods. A Mexican is hardly likely to testify against his government if he knows that the price of his testimony may be his life. And so almost any denunciatory statement becomes a "libel."

Fornaro's conviction shows all this and more, but Fornaro, fortunately, is a philosopher and is willing to suffer in behalf of the cause he has taken up. Fornaro in jail, moreover, is a living and dramatic example of the very injustice against which his book is aimed.

It may be that even before he has served his full sentence the American people will begin to understand something of what he has tried to tell them. The Mexican issue already looms large, and will soon loom larger. "Conditions in Mexico," says Mother Jones, who knows of what she speaks, "are even worse than portrayed in Fornaro's book. Under the rule of Diaz and the ring of American capitalists he serves, no man's life is safe. The people are exploited to an incredible degree. Elementary civil rights are denied, and whoever dares to protest is shot or imprisoned. Thousands of Americans, railroad men, miners and others, who have worked in Mexico, know that this is true." John Kenneth Turner's articles on "Barbarous Mexico," now running in the American Magazine, confirm Mother Jones's statements.

Unnumbered Mexican patriots have tried to change these horrible conditions, and been killed or imprisoned for their pains. Ten Mexican revolutionists at the present moment are languishing in American jails. Fornaro joins this noble company in the full consciousness of what such action means. "Martyrdom," he reminds us in his book, "is never barren, because every man sees on the martyr's brow a line of his own duty."

* * *

A TRIBUTE

BY EMMA GOLDMAN.

THE MOST cruel and disgusting aspect of the Ferrer tragedy is the hypocrisy of his enemies as well as of his friends.

While the former are using every means to make Francisco Ferrer appear as a moral monster, the latter strain every effort to paint him as an angel of purity.

Between the two, the man Ferrer is being emasculated, and his life mutilated. Yet, more than anyone else, Francisco Ferrer worked for life in all its manifestations, the fullest and deepest expression of man's nature.

In a barren, desolate Spanish village, Teruel, in the province of l'Aragon, a woman is kept in exile—Saledad Villafranca, the one woman in Francisco Ferrer's life and

679

840514075
The Emma Goldman Papers
A Tribute / Emma Goldman. — pp. 323-325 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 4, no. 10 (Dec. 1909).
Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

work. Had this woman a legal claim on the murdered man, friend and foe would pay her tribute and lament her loss. A marriage certificate covers a multitude of sins. Hatred, disgust, friction, prostitution, nay even rape, are quite the usual thing, so long as "God hath joined together."

But Saledad Villafranca and Ferrer have met in another realm, the realm of love and freedom, comradeship and harmony; a realm that has no place for the vulgarity of Church and State. Saledad Villafranca shared Ferrer's ideas and worked with him in the Modern School; she was probably the greatest factor in the man's life, yet with all that his friends have ignored the woman if only to save Ferrer from the "terrible calumny" of being considered a free lover. Oh, for the hypocrisy and pettiness of respectability!

Soon after Francisco Ferrer's arrest, Saledad Villafranca, Ferrer's brother, and several teachers of the Modern School were placed under arrest and exiled to Teruel, where they are being kept under strict police surveillance. There she spent thirty-two days of waiting, of terrible anxiety, not knowing what had become of Ferrer. Those of us who have ever been in a similar situation will appreciate the fortitude, the courage, and character of Saledad Villafranca.

On October 2nd she received the first sign of life from Ferrer, followed by three more letters, the only fragment left of a life that began in love, in joy and comradeship.

Le Journal, a French paper of Catholic tendencies, interviewed Saledad at Teruel. How pathetic and impressive her life must be that the reporter of such a paper even should pay her tribute.

"Saledad Villafranca is not only very beautiful," he writes, "but she is of extraordinary kindness and simplicity. But more than anything else, I was overawed by her serene and sombre demeanor. Not a word of her own great loss; Ferrer's innocence is all she cared to talk about." Saledad Villafranca gave the reporter a minute account of Ferrer's movements between July 26th and August 31st, the day of his arrest. "And why did you not send this account to the prosecuting attorney?" asked the reporter of Le Journal. "Send it?" replied Saledad. "I had my mother take it. She was not even received. I sent it through the mail; it was returned. There was no desire to exonerate Ferrer, you see." Until September 27th Saledad could not even learn when Ferrer's case would come up. On the 30th she received news from his judge that no further testimony would be considered.

Yet with all that, Ferrer himself believed in his accusers until the last. As late as October 8th, five days before that bloody October 13th, he assured Saledad in a letter that he would surely be set at liberty. Francisco Ferrer shared the fate of all idealists: absolute inability to comprehend the gravity of reality.

His childlike faith and hope may have helped Saledad during those terrible days of uncertainty. And yet, the final blow would surely have been less fierce had she not been lulled by Ferrer's trust in the judges that finally slew him.

"No reason to worry," he wrote in his first letter of October 2nd, "you know I am absolutely innocent. Today I am particularly hopeful and joyous; it is the first time I can write to you, and the first time since my arrest that I can bathe in the rays of the sun streaming generously through my cell window. You, too, must be joyous: I will be free." No doubt Saledad was joyous, joyous in the vain hope that life which gave her a great love, could not be so cruel and take that gift from her.

Saledad Villafranca to Francisco Ferrer was, no doubt, like that sun streaming in his cell window,—warmth, light, freedom. That she could be all that, makes Francisco Ferrer very human and therefore dearer to all free spirits.

⁂ ⁂ ⁂

THE WAY TO FREEDOM

They never die who fall
In a great cause. The block may soak their gore,
Their heads may rotten in the sun, their limbs
Be strung to city gates and castle walls.
But still their spirit walks abroad. Though years
Elapse and others share as dark a doom,
They but augment the deep and sweeping thought
Which overpowers all others and turns the world
At last to freedom. —BYRON.

680

880809001

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] The Suffrage Quest a Wild Goose Chase / Emma Goldman. – p. 16 ; 43 cm. In The New York Times. –(Dec. 13, 1909).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

THE SUFFRAGE QUEST A WILD GOOSE CHASE

And Woman Ever a Fetich Worshipper, Emma Goldman Tells an Audience of Suffragettes.

VOTE HER LATEST FETICH

She'll Suffer for It as for Its Predecessors—Shocks and Thrills Frequent in Anarchist's Lecture.

Emma Goldman underwent, without a scar, the acid test for reckless courage yesterday afternoon at Lyric Hall, in Sixth Avenue. Faced by Maud Malone, commander of the Flying Squad of Street Suffragettes, and by 800 other women, most of whom were strong for equal rights with men, she told them that women have always been and still are fetich worshippers; that they are narrow minded and puritanical, and that in their hunt for the vote they are on what is often called a wild-goose chase.

A veiled woman with a mad, liquid voice was so imprudent as to ask a question about Miss Goldman's intimate opinions, and then the lecturer turned on the full stream of her raw, double-strength Anarchism. Some 200 women gasped, turned pale, sat back in their chairs, and listened. By advertising that she would lecture on woman suffrage, Emma Goldman filled Lyric Hall. After it was over she hurried out to help several lieutenants sell Anarchist literature at the door.

"Woman has always been an idolater, a fetich worshipper," began Miss Goldman. "Her gods change, but still she is upon her knees. She doesn't even change her vocabulary. She either loves or hates; to her, things are all good or all bad. See her in relation to religion.

"Her latest fetich is the vote. That is her new idol. Her religious feeling is poured out for that, and she will suffer ridicule, imprisonment, the most exquisite pain, for the new idol, just as she has suffered for fetiches down the ages. It is such a pity that all her wonderful zeal is wasted on idols, which are always of clay.

"Mind you, I'm not opposed to the women having the vote. There is no reason why she shouldn't have just as much chance to make a fool of herself with it as men have made of themselves in the last hundred years. I am here to express my sympathy for the women who are suffering heroic things in England for something they believe in. But the vote is not worth living, that's all.

"I don't believe women could do even as well with the vote as men, who have done only harm to themselves. The man is not all bound around with morals; he is more or less out of that. But the woman is a Puritan. She is always wanting to clean up something. In her narrowness and puritanism she would pass all sorts of prohibitive laws which would only make things worse than they are. The country would be ridden to death with cranks who are a danger to society. Just look at Connecticut. Are that kind. Would you want a country governed by cranks?"

A collection was taken up for Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, who has just been sentenced to prison for three months in Spokane, Wash., for talking in the street against the orders of the police. The collection netted $16.

The collectors had hardly started when a tall figure rose quickly in the middle of the house. One hand held a red hat with green feathers; the other a rolled-up yellow banner with lettering on it that read, from the under side, suspiciously like Votes for Women."

"Isn't there going to be a discussion?" asked.

"Ah, Miss Malone," commented Miss Goldman acidly, "I thought I'd hear from you. Go ahead, let's have it altogether."

Miss Malone spoke for some time. Afterward Miss Goldman, in response to a request for her opinion of Carrie Nation, said: "I wouldn't waste five minutes talking of her. She is narrow-minded, superficial, a fanatic. She wants to stop people drinking when they want a drink. Let her stop herself drinking if she does that, and wants to do, but let her stop at that point."

A woman with a sad voice, much [illegible]

"Then you don't you believe [illegible]

[illegible] Miss Goldman, which [illegible] Let Bellingdale pass on [illegible] themselves, and all [illegible] and the child I believe in teach [illegible] and that I mean [illegible] by educating to mean [illegible] they've [illegible] that's where they're [illegible]

[illegible] the conversation [illegible]

BOXING LESSONS SAVED HIM.

Jostled Hustler Knocks Down Highway [illegible] Who Attacked Him.

PRAISE CONGREGATION'S ACT.

Washington Heights Wardens a Synagogue, Say Rabbis at Its Dedication.

The first synagogue to be established on Washington Heights was dedicated yesterday. A number of prominent rabbis of the city took part in the ceremonies. The synagogue is that of the Congregation Peni-El, in 187th Street, between Amsterdam Avenue and Broadway. Its minister is the Rev. Elias Margolis, a graduate of the Hebrew Union College of Cincinnati.

As explained by Rabbi Margolis, the congregation is conservative-orthodox. It will use an orthodox Jewish ritual, but there will be several departures from what is practiced in the majority orthodox synagogue. For instance, men and women will not sit in separate pews, and the services, except the sermon, will be in the Hebrew language.

The need of a synagogue upon the Heights was emphasized by almost all of the speakers. On festivals and holidays the small synagogues in the Jewish institutions in the neighborhood have had to turn away hundreds.

After the keys of the synagogue had been turned over to the President, Joseph Schindler, by Louis Ehrenberg, Chairman of the Building Committee, the Rev. Dr. F. de Sola Mendes spoke on behalf of the Board of Jewish Ministers of the city.

"It is particularly noteworthy," said he, "that you have gone out to this somewhat remote portion of the city to pitch your tents. This is the very thing the Jews of the city ought to do. It will not do to congest in one location; we must get out among our neighbors and there unfurl what banner we may have. To a certain extent we still have a Maccabean war on our hands, against ignorance and prejudice among ourselves as well as misunderstanding and ignorance outside of us. This idea of going out to the confines of the city to establish a standard of Judaism is a good one, for it becomes a centre from which misunderstanding and prejudice may be combated."

Max S. Gufenhagen, Register-elect, said in part:

"Twenty-five years ago when I came out to this section as a sort of pioneer, I was one of three Jewish men—the only Jews on the Heights. There was then a population of 25,000 people from 162d Street to Spuyten Duyvil Creek. To-day there are 80,000 people, 15 per cent. of them Jews, conservatively estimated."

The Rev. Dr. J. L. Magnes preached the dedication sermon. He congratulated the congregation upon being conservative and said they should rejoice that they were not among those who had cut themselves off from the roots of Judaism.

Rabbi Margolis said that the ambitions for the new pulpit were modest, and "we won't attempt to make it a Jewish cathedral of Washington Heights."

The officers of the congregation are: Joseph Schindler, President; Adolph M. Engel, Vice President; Elias Gussaroff, Treasurer; Henry Salmsky, Financial Secretary, and Emanuel Friedman, Recording Secretary. The cantor is Hirsch Kleinert.

The synagogue was erected at a cost of $40,000, which was practically contributed by a dozen members.

THE JEWS' PART IN FREEDOM.

The Story of Their Struggle, Says Dr. Wise, the Greatest Incentive to Liberty

"What the Jew Has Done For Freedom" was the subject discussed by Dr. Stephen S. Wise yesterday in his lecture in the Free Synagogue, Eighty-first Street and Amsterdam Avenue.

"The story of what the Jew has done for freedom is contained in this book," declared Dr. Wise, holding up the Bible. "The greatest service of the Jew is that he survives to tell that story of the struggle for freedom. Within the covers of this volume, the Hebrew Bible, is perhaps to be found the most potent influence throughout the ages to move people to the struggle for freedom."

Of the inscription on the old liberty bell in Philadelphia, words from the third book of the covenant of Moses, "And he shall proclaim liberty throughout the land," Dr. Wise said, "I have often thought that this was prophetic of the part the Jew was to play in upbuilding the commonwealth and preserving her liberties."

Asserting that "the other great churches are not generally found on the side of liberty," Dr. Wise continued: "Not a Christian church in this city commemorated, as we did last Sunday, the anniversary of the execution of John Brown—just as if he had been a common thief and murderer. Freedom is the very essence of the religious heritage of the Jew. I have scandalized some good friends by exclaiming, 'Better freedom without Judaism than Judaism without freedom.' Fortunately we do not have to choose such an alternative. We are loyal to Israel and free in Israel."

At the risk of causing "resignations to-morrow from the Free Synagogue," [illegible] shirtwaist makers and condemned the employers' refusal to arbitrate the strike because the workers demanded recognition of their union.

DENIES BIG COPPER MERGER.

Untermyer Says There's No Truth in a Report of a Great Consolidation.

Samuel Untermyer, who has been generally understood to be conducting the negotiations for the Copper merger as counsel for the Boston Consolidated Copper Company and on behalf of other interests concerned, when asked [illegible] told about the negotiations of syndicates in a PROPHECY!

SOUTH BROOKLYN is to experience a marvelous rise in land values.

On the completion of the Fourth Avenue Subway the history of the Bronx will be repeated.

Buy land now, while prices are reasonable.

We have several plots right near stations

Realty Trust

Wm. C. Demorest
President

60-62-64 LIBERTY STREET
NEW YORK CITY

BOY ARTIST BEACHED ON BOWERY'S SHOALS

Arthur Corson's New-Found Friends Get His Money and He Quickly Lands in Jail.

BACK TO QUIET PORTLAND

Paid to Get a Job with a "Famous Painter" Whom He Has Not Yet Met.

In his first venture on a career as an artist Arthur J. Corson, Jr., 17 years old, found plenty of contrasts and striking color schemes between his home in Portland, Me., and a hotel at 1 Chatham Square, Manhattan, and he spent last night in a cell in the Queens County Jail contemplating impressions in black and white. Far from being a culprit young Corson was a victim of his own innocence, and he is convinced now that they do things differently on the Bowery than in his native Prohibition State.

In his story to Magistrate Fitch in the Far Rockaway Court yesterday, where he was arraigned on a charge of vagrancy, young Corson said that in his ambition to be an artist he packed his belongings in the family traveling bag and with $15 safely tucked away in an inside pocket took a train for this city. He found New York quite a town.

He went to 1 Chatham Square, where two chance acquaintances of the place learned that he had $10 left of the money he had brought with him from Portland. His new acquaintances invited him out to Jamaica, L. I., to place him with a famous artist. They found it necessary to have $5 each before they would produce their friend the artist. Young Corson parted with his money and then sat down to wait for the return of his friends. He was still waiting after midnight when he was apprehended by a policeman and taken to the station. A telegram was sent to young Corson's father, who sent a money order by telegraph, and the young artist will be shipped back to Portland to-day.

SPENT 50 YEARS IN PRISON.

Wife Murderer Hopes to be Set Free Before Christmas.

WINSTED, Conn., Dec. 12.—John J. Warren, aged 71, who will have rounded out a half century in the Wethersfield State Penitentiary on Tuesday and who is said to have been longer behind prison bars than any other criminal in the world, is expecting his freedom as a Christmas gift to-morrow. He murdered his 18-year-old wife by holding her head in a brook. What prompted him to kill her is a secret he has never divulged. He is still strong, physically and mentally.

To-morrow, when his appeal for freedom is heard by the State Board of Pardons, assurance will be given that Warren's two younger brothers in Winchendon will take care of him if he is released.

681

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

890222016

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Doesn't Like New Theatre / Emma Goldman.— p. 2 ; 28 cm.
In The New York Times. —(Dec. 20, 1909).
Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

the public it may help us a great deal in getting a new building for School 125.

MRS. GERINO,
MRS. GARBARINI,
Committee.

Inquiry at the Building Department of the Board of Education led to the statement there that the structure is not only very old, but dark, damp, and probably unsafe. It developed that the Board of Education does not wish to shoulder responsibility for the further use of such a building.

According to a statement from the School Building Superintendent's office, as early as last April a definite demand for $427,000 was made by the Board of Education to the Board of Estimate for a new building in Wooster Street or thereabout. All the appropriations asked for at that time except this one were granted. The Research Bureau, it was said, asked a postponement on the matter. Nothing more has been heard of it by the school authorities.

Church Thinks Milk Too High.

The Manhattan Church has had a committee investigating the milk question. The committee reported last night that as a result of its investigation it believed a uniform price of 9 cents a quart for milk the year around would be unwarranted, and that during a large part of the year, when milk production is large and the price paid to the farmer is low, that 8 cents a quart would give the dealer an ample margin of profit.

DOESN'T LIKE NEW THEATRE.

Emma Goldman Sees a Labor Play There and Objects to Its Environment.

Emma Goldman went to The New Theatre the other day and saw "Strife," the labor drama by John Galsworthy. Last night she told an audience in the Woman's Trades Union Hall in East Twenty-second Street what she thought of the play, which was complimentary, and what she thought of The New Theatre, which was not.

"That 'Strife' should be produced at The New Theatre is as much an insult to labor as the shirtwaist workers being entertained at the Colony Club," she said. "To put a strike meeting of shivering workmen in the setting of The New Theatre only shows the poor taste of The New Theatre management. If the management had set about discrediting Mr. Galsworthy's ideas it could not have succeeded better. It's a crime against art to put 'Strife' on that stage.

"The interpretation of the play is an insult to labor," continued Miss Goldman. "The character of David Roberts, as played by Albert Bruning, is an insult to labor. David Roberts is a man of ideals. Mr. Bruning makes him a ruffian. I don't mean to say that the management intentionally gave the part to a man who would portray the way Mr. Bruning does, but in giving it to him they showed their poor taste and poor judgment again.

"That theatre, it is here shown, is not the place it was intended for. John Galsworthy is an artist, and the work of an artist is to portray things as they are. He has portrayed the psychology of the workingmen as he saw it. It's a great labor play, though, and I hope it will be given in another theatre, where it will not be an insult to labor."

Hobart Family Physician Stricken.

PATTERSON, N. J., Dec. 19.—Dr. William K. Newton, one of the most prominent medical specialists in this section and family physician to the late Vice President Hobart, was suddenly stricken to-day with an intestinal disease. Physicians who were called to him say he cannot recover.

REID WILL RETAIN LONDON EMBASSY

Continued from Page 1.

public which makes it desirable to have an accomplished diplomat on duty.

Garret Hillington's attorneys, for Frost. It is stated that the property rights were not settled, and that there may be a fight in the New York courts over the division of the community property.

Mrs. Mabel L. Shellabarger has filed a suit for divorce against Lucien Shellabarger of Decatur, Ill. She is a daughter of A. W. Lord of New York. Shellabarger is a wealthy real estate man of Decatur, Ill. Incompatibility is said to be the ground of the complaint.

BURNS NOW BANKERS' SLEUTH

Heney's Man Gets American Association Job Away from the Pinkertons.

William J. Burns, former secret service agent, who figured prominently in the San Francisco graft prosecutions, has established the William J. Burns National Detective Agency in this city, with headquarters in the Park Row Building.

The Burns Agency has been in business now three weeks, and it has, among other things, captured the contract for detective work for the American Bankers' Association, which the Pinkerton Agency had for fourteen years. The American Bankers' Association is the largest single client in the country employing detectives. The Pinkertons collected a large assortment of photographs of bank robbers in their work for the association, but Burns says he can get along without them. Most of the robbers are either dead or in jail, he says, and he feels capable of dealing with the new generation.

Burns was connected with the Government's secret service for twenty-three years, and made a record hunting down counterfeiters. One of his achievements was in fixing guilt upon two exceptionally resourceful engravers, Taylor and Bredell, who had flooded the country with bogus $100 bills so perfectly executed that it was almost impossible to distinguish them from the real certificates. They confessed, involving twelve other men.

In 1901 Burns worked in the Washington safely out. No one knows how the fire started. It did about $700 damage.

Somehow or other a fire started yesterday in the attic of the old Connolly mansion, at 1826 Street and Northern Avenue, now unoccupied, but once the home of Richard Connolly and his brother, Charles, both of them powers in politics in the days of the Tweed ring. A passerby saw the blaze and turned in an alarm which started Truck 34 from its building in 161st Street, near Amsterdam Avenue.

Driver John Garrid was guiding his team up Broadway at full speed when he had to turn into Depot Lane. Just then the chalkbit on one of the horses broke, and the animal ran upon the sidewalk, dragging his mate after him. The truck kept on its wheels, but the horse smashed through the window of a store on the corner, was cut badly, and finally shot. The fire was put out with $2,000 damage, after the firemen had torn off the roof of the house to reach the flames.

Jacob Weinberg, who makes paper boxes on the fourth floor of the six-story factory building at 432 and 434 Broome Street, was called downtown early yesterday morning to find that a fire which had started on Saturday night had broken out again at 8 o'clock yesterday morning and done $50,000 more damage. The blaze Saturday night did $2,000 damage.

After Saturday's fire James Bennett, an insurance company's watchman, remained in the building. He made one last round of the building before his relief came, when he discovered the second blaze. High-pressure lines were run into the building and only one alarm was turned in. Mr. Weinberg declared that he believed the fire on Saturday night had not been attended to thoroughly. The first blaze started in a pile of paper, and the manufacturer said he believed this had smoldered all night.

Fire Marshal Kelly is investigating a fire which did little damage to the confectionery store of Moses Silverman, in the basement of the five-story tenement at 428 East Ninth Street yesterday. Neighbors had the fire almost out before the firemen arrived.

Kelly found two men who told him that they had seen a man throwing packing cases into the blaze instead of trying to put it out. Kelly summoned Silverman and his daughter Bessie to Fire Headquarters for an investigation this morning. The Marshal says he knows the name of the man who threw packing cases on the blaze, and will question him if he can locate him.

MORE NAVY YARD THIEVES.

Arrests of Other Marines Suspected of Selling Uniforms.

It is believed that other men besides the seven marines taken into custody on Saturday will be arrested by the Federal authorities in Brooklyn in connection with the investigation of the selling of uniforms by marines and sailors at the Brooklyn Navy Yard. The seven marines under arrest have been held by United States Commissioner Morle for the action of the Federal Grand Jury. Four of the men whom they are accused of having sold the goods are also being held.

It is believed that thousands of dollars' worth of uniforms that accounts at the Navy Yard have been short in the last six months. A timekeeper, theatrical costumer is accused of having purchased two khaki uniforms from one of the Marines under arrest.

A BIG PRIVATE AUDITORIUM.

Stoeckel Does Not Believe in Opera and Aids Choral Union.

Special to The New York Times.

WINSTED, Conn., Dec. 19.—Carl Stoeckel, patron of Litchfield County choral union, comprising five societies with a membership of 600 is having the largest private auditorium in America built on his premises in Norfolk. His hobby is to give the people of Litchfield County a fine musical education. It is said he expends about $10,000 annually in the work. Mr. Stoeckel says:

"The nearest gateway to divinity is by the road of truth to art. We must find truth. If we look about the pasteboard scenery, the tinsel and the trapdoors of the operatic stage, so freely exploited by commercial managers as educational and even consecrational. We must look for it rather in the great choral and orchestral works which are standing the test of the ages and which appeal to the poetry and imagination of every normal nature. To such end our organization is committed. It is blazing a narrow path which succeeding generations of workers until all can enter the Olympian heights by the toll-road highway of truth to art."

The union will begin rehearsals early next month preparatory to singing Verdi's "Requiem Mass" and Coleridge Taylor's Indian music in Mr. Stoeckel's festival June 1 and 2. Coleridge Taylor has accepted an invitation to come to Europe to conduct his own compositions.

RICE PLAY FOR CHILDREN.

Man Who Staged "Evangeline" to Produce "Cinderella."

Edward E. Rice, who put on "Evangeline" and "1492," will produce a [illegible] play for children. He has been out of the producing business for several years, but he is returning to it in a version of Santa Claus's life with the [illegible] of "Cinderella" as the offering and the Hippodrome as the place. The date of the first performance is Christmas Eve, and two performances a day will be given for the next two weeks at the [illegible]

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

682

830131003

The Emma Goldman Papers

Anarchism and Other Essays / Emma Goldman.— 2nd. rev. ed. —New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., [between 1910 and 1919, advertisement].— 4 p. ; 22 × 14 cm.
Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the University of California, Santa Barbara. Institutional Location: Goldman-Holzwarth Collection, Department of Special Collections.

ANARCHISM

AND OTHER ESSAYS

By EMMA GOLDMAN

PUBLISHER OF MOTHER EARTH MAGAZINE

Including a biographic SKETCH of the author's interesting career, a splendid PORTRAIT, and twelve of her most important lectures, some of which have been suppressed by the police authorities of various cities. This book expresses the most advanced ideas on social questions—economics, politics, education and sex.

Second Revised Edition.

Sachs & Steinfeld, Union Printers, 12 Jefferson St.

683

830131003

The Emma Goldman Papers

Anarchism and Other Essays / Emma Goldman.— 2nd. rev. ed. —New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., [between 1910 and 1919, advertisement]. — 4 p. ; 22 × 14 cm.
Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the University of California, Santa Barbara. Institutional Location: Goldman-Holzwarth Collection, Department of Special Collections.

CONTENTS.

BIOGRAPHIC SKETCH.
PREFACE.
ANARCHISM: What it really stands for.
MINORITIES VERSUS MAJORITIES.
THE PSYCHOLOGY OF POLITICAL VIOLENCE.
PRISONS: A Social Crime and Failure.
PATRIOTISM: A Menace to Liberty.
FRANCISCO FERRER AND THE MODERN SCHOOL.
THE HYPOCRISY OF PURITANISM.
THE TRAFFIC IN WOMEN.
WOMAN SUFFRAGE.
THE TRAGEDY OF WOMAN'S EMANCIPATION.
MARRIAGE AND LOVE.
THE DRAMA: A Powerful Disseminator of Radical Thought.

WHAT THE REVIEWS SAY OF THIS BOOK.

Emma Goldman's book on "Anarchism and Other Essays" ought to be read by all so-called respectable women, and adopted as a text-book by women's cluhs throughout the country. . . . . For courage, persistency, self-effacement, self-sacrifice in the pursuit of her object, she has hitherto been unsurpassed among the world's women. . . . . Repudiating as she does practically every tenet of what the modern State holds good, she stands for some of the noblest traits in human nature.—Life.

* * * *

Few people in this country outside democratic politics would recognize the name of Emma Goldman, or be able to give an application if it were mentioned to them. Yet for good or ill, Emma Goldman is likely to influence the future of the United States a great deal more than noisy Mr. Roosevelt or stout Mr. Taft. . . . . For twenty years she has been the prophetess of revolt throughout the United States.—London (Eng.) Chronicle.

* * * *

Emma Goldman—the notorious, insistent, rebellious, enigmatical Emma Goldman—has published her first book, "Anarchism and Other Essays." In it she records "the mental and soul struggles of twenty-one years," and recites all the articles of that strange and subversive creed in behalf of which she has suffered imprisonment, contumely and every kind of persecution. The book is a vivid revelation of a unique personality. It appears at a time when Anarchistic ideas are undoubtedly in the ascendant throughout the world.—Current Literature.

* * * *

This may be regarded as an authoritative work on anarchism, one that speaks clearly and definitely. More scholarly works have appeared in defense of anarchism, but none more vital, none more popular in statement and appeal.—New York Call.

* * * *

No, it is not a nice book. It is radical, revolutionary. It shocks all conventionality and tears respectability to tatters. It is not the kind of book you leave on your library table, nor do you pass it around among your friends indiscriminately. It handles dangerous themes with boldness and customs and institutions, hoary with the centuries, are viciously attacked. This book isn't bad or immoral or treasonable; it is simply unusual and quite original. With her little hammer she knocks upon our rock-ribbed prejudices and with her scalpel she neatly and cleverly lays bare some of our social sores: and while we shall not accept her heroic remedies she gives us some interesting ideas to think about.—Los Angeles Herald.

684

830131003

The Emma Goldman Papers

Anarchism and Other Essays / Emma Goldman.— 2nd. rev. ed. —New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., [between 1910 and 1919, advertisement].— 4 p. ; 22 × 14 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the University of California, Santa Barbara. Institutional Location: Goldman-Holzwarth Collection, Department of Special Collections.

Every thoughtful person ought to read this volume of papers by the foremost American anarchist. In whatever way the book may modify or strengthen the opinion already held by its readers, there is no doubt that a careful reading of it will tend to bring about greater social sympathy. It will help the public to understand a group of serious-minded and morally strenuous individuals, and also to feel the spirit that underlies the most radical tendencies of the great labor movement of our day.—Hutchins Hapgood in The Bookman.

* * * *

The open-minded reader who devotes an hour or two to a perusal of "Anarchism and Other Essays," by Emma Goldman, will put down the book with a new respect for the author and perhaps also with some measure of respect for certain of her doctrines.—Baltimore Sun.

* * * *

Those who are not acquainted with the early life of Emma Goldman and the persecution she has had to endure for the CRIME UNDER CAPITALISM of telling the TRUTH, cannot afford to be without this wonderful history of one human being, and the 200 pages of TRUTH which follow.

The book deals fully with those subjects so much sought after by students everywhere who are at all interested in the revolutionary movement.—Industrial Worker.

* * * *

"Anarchism and Other Essays," discloses its author as a student of general literature, especially of a radical sort, and an experienced and effective writer. Her style is by no means of the perfervid sort that might be expected. Her views are sufficiently extreme, not to say startling, but she does not preach violence and she disclaims participation in any plotting to that end. Readers who seek a clear exposition of anarchism unadorned—not including the "propaganda of the deed," which the author does not approve, though she has befriended many who have followed it—will find it in Emma Goldman's essays. And aside from the exposition of her views, there will be especial interest in the chapters in which she reviews the famous political assassination of recent years and the case of Francisco Ferrer in Spain. A chapter on the drama discloses a considerable acquaintance with modern dramatists, and her brief sketches and analysis of a number of important plays by the iconoclasts show appreciation of their art as well as a shrewd readiness to draw lessons from them in support of the theories which she upholds. But the main interest in the book, of course, is in Miss Goldman's direct exposition of the theory and practice of anarchism. "Anarchism," as she interprets it, "stands for the liberation of the human mind from the dominion of religion; the liberation of the human body from the dominion of property; liberation from the shackles and restraint of government. Anarchism stands for a social order based on the free grouping of individuals for the purpose of producing real social wealth; an order that will guarantee to every human being free access to the earth and full enjoyment of the necessities of life, according to individdal desires, tastes and inclinations. . . . . Methods must grow out of the economic needs of each place and clime, and of the intellectual and temperamental requirements of the individual."—Springfield Republican.

* * * *

The volume contains an interesting biographical sketch by Hippolyte Havel, which throws new light on the character of this remarkable woman. It is a book well worth reading from start to finish, if only to change the ideas which the majority of people have on the subject.—San Francisco Call.

Price $1.00 By mail $1.10

ORDER THROUGH YOUR BOOK DEALER OR SEND TO

Mother Earth Publishing Association

55 West 28th Street, New York

685

830131003

The Emma Goldman Papers

Anarchism and Other Essays / Emma Goldman.— 2nd. rev. ed. —New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., [between 1910 and 1919, advertisement]. — 4 p. ; 22 × 14 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the University of California, Santa Barbara. Institutional Location: Goldman-Holzwarth Collection, Department of Special Collections.

ANARCHIST LITERATURE

The literature of Anarchism is very extensive. Numerous books and pamphlets have been written, treating of the various phases of Anarchist thought, and various publications, both here and abroad, are devoted to this philosophy of life. No well-informed man or woman can afford to ignore this vital subject. Your library is not complete unless it includes works on Anarchism.

* * * *

Our office is the headquarters for all kinds of anarchist literature; we have on sale more than 100 different books and pamphlets. We can furnish you with anarchist publications in any language.

Prepare for the social revolution by reading Peter Kropotkin's "Great French Revolution." Our price, $2.00, by mail 15c extra.

AN UNUSUAL OPPORTUNITY.

We offer a small library on Anarchism consisting of the following books:

ANARCHISM, by Eltzbacher. An able and impartial exposition of Anarchism $1.50

WHAT IS PROPERTY? by Proudhon. A brilliant arraignment of property and the state..... 2.00

CONQUEST OF BREAD, by Peter Kropotkin. The economic basis of Anarchism..... 1.00

ANARCHISM AND OTHER ESSAYS, by Emma Goldman..... 1.00

MOTHER EARTH, a monthly magazine devoted to literary and revolutionary topics 1.00

Total $6.50

This set every social student should own. Send your order at once and get these books for $5.00.

Ready soon. "The Autobiography of an Anarchist," by Alexander Berkman. $1.25 in advance.

Other standard books on Anarchism.

THE LIFE OF ALBERT PARSONS $1.50

MUTUAL AID. By Peter Kropotkin..... 2.00

MEMOIRS OF A REVOLUTIONIST. By Peter Kropotkin..... 2.00

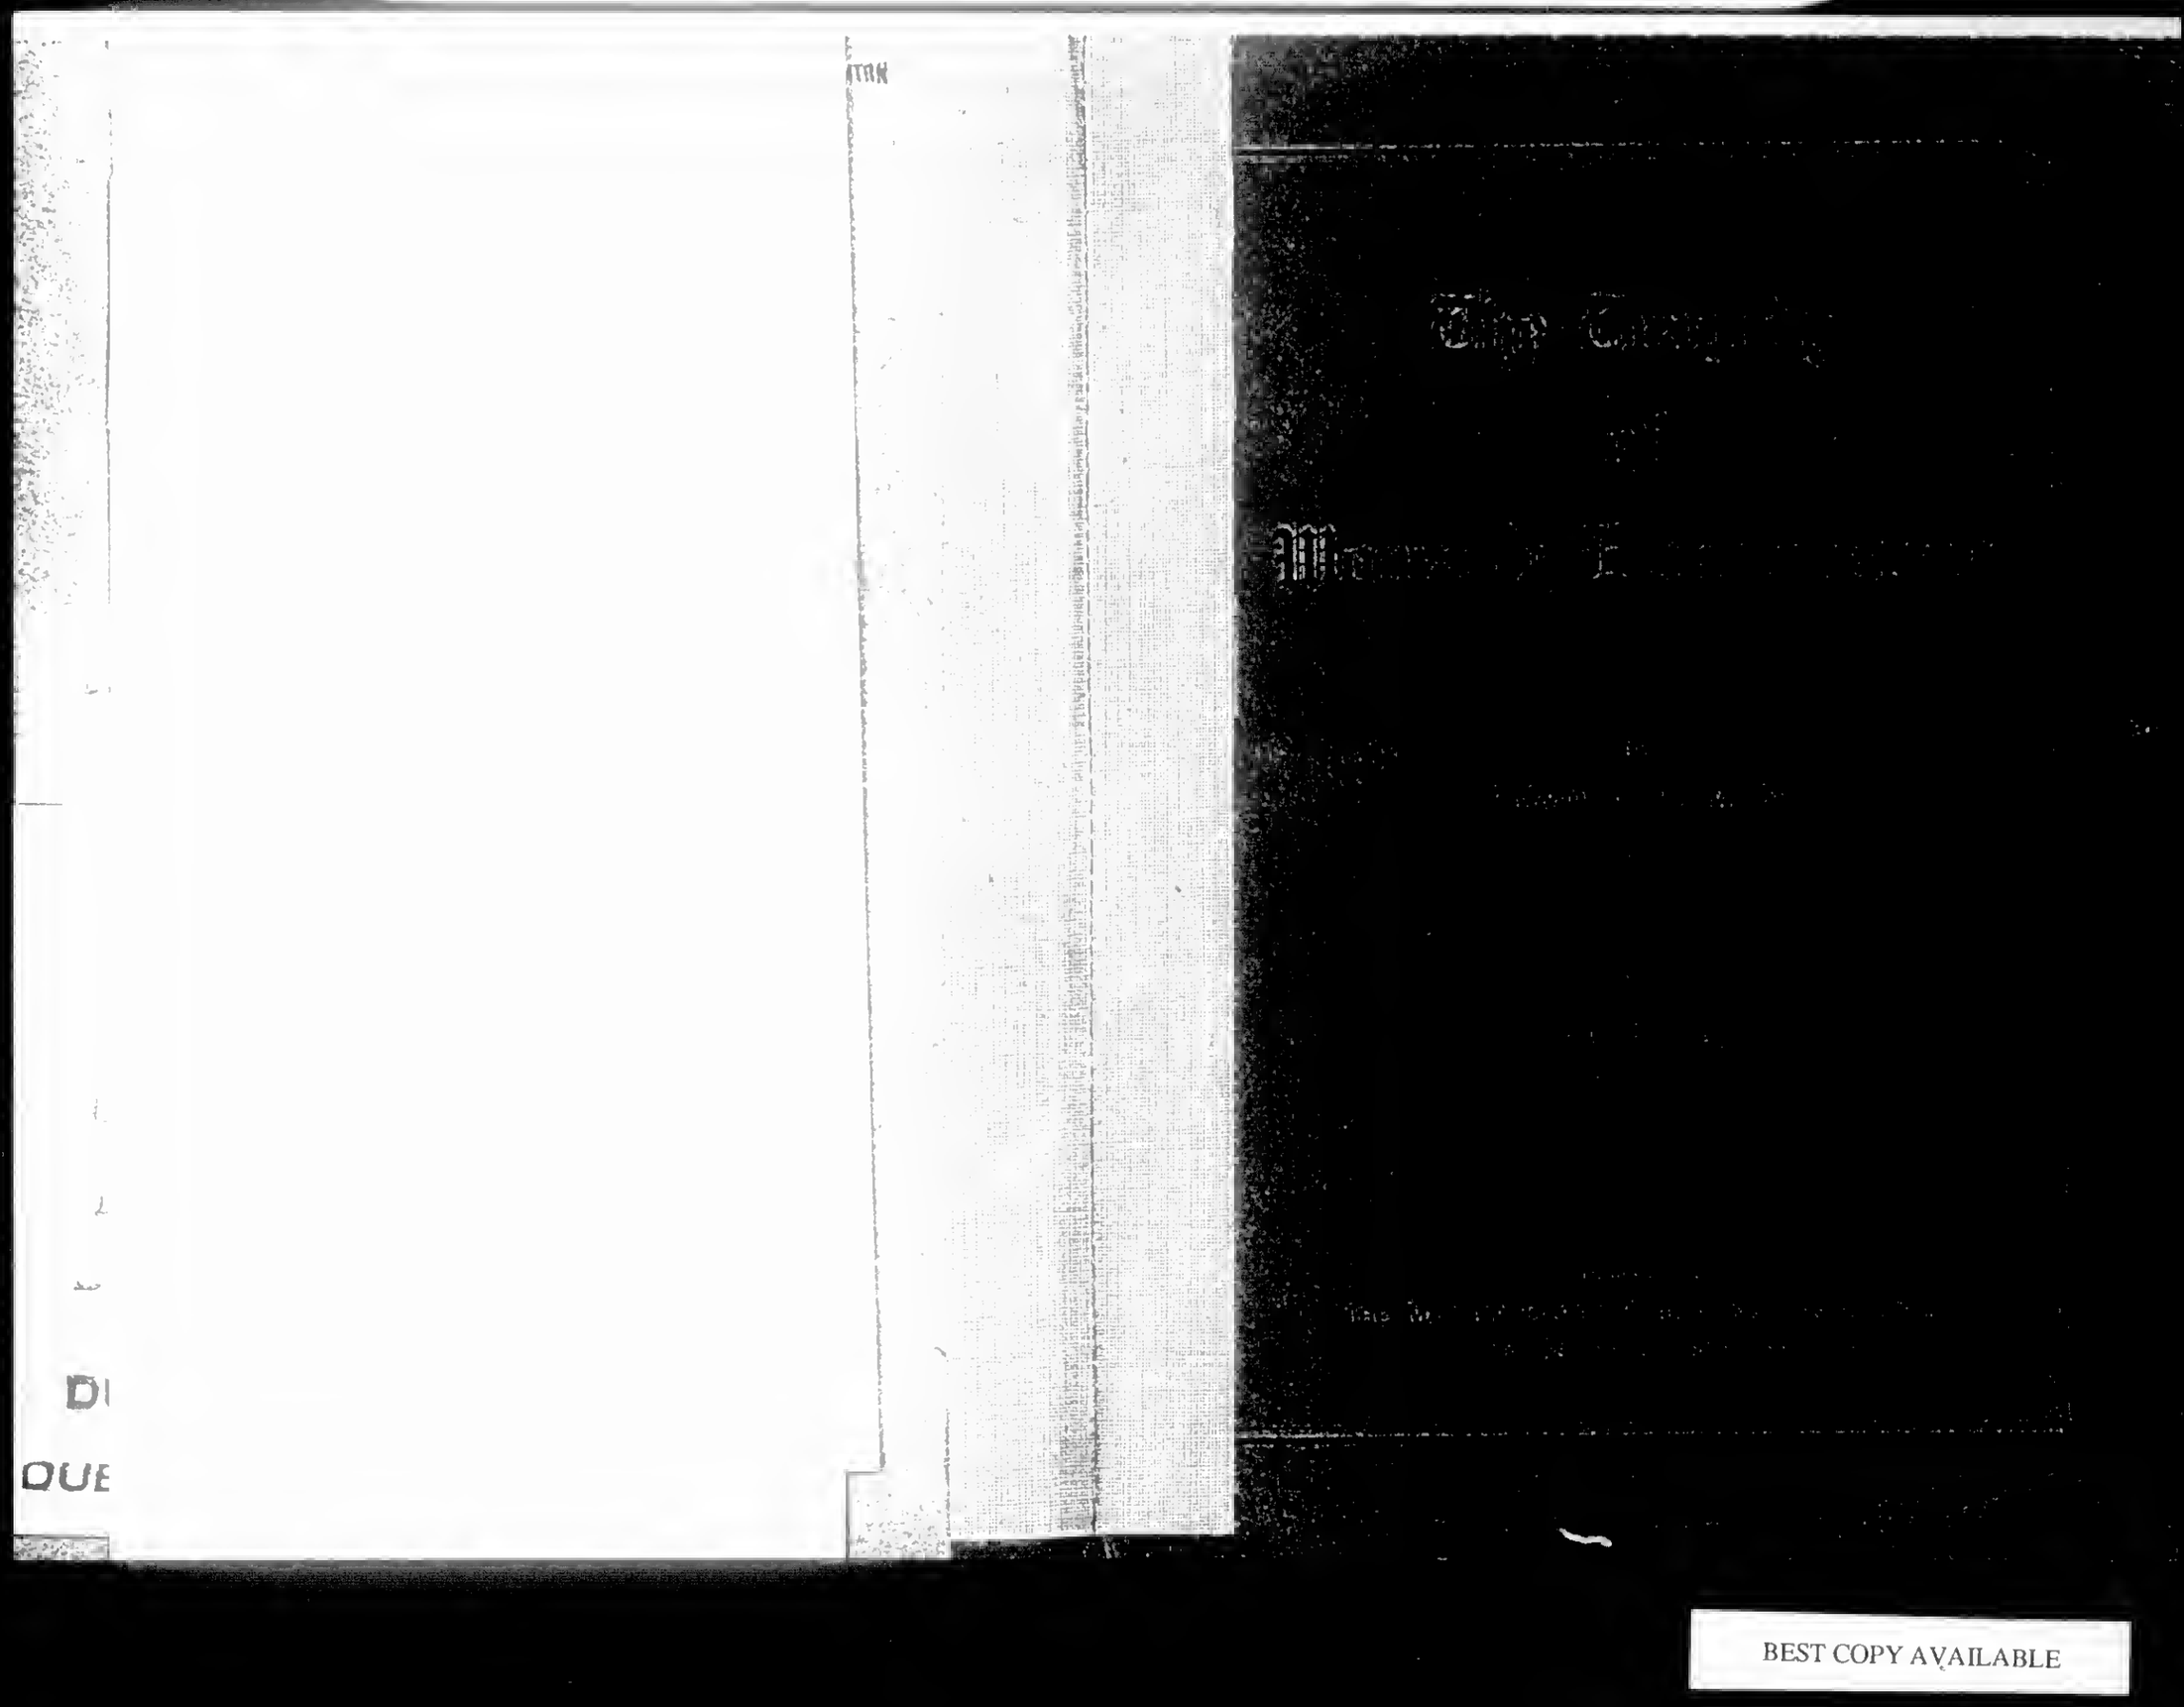
THE BOMB. By Frank Harris..... 1.00

NEWS FROM NOWHERE. By William Morris..... 75c.

SPEECHES OF CHICAGO ANARCHISTS, bound..... 75c.

BOOKS ON FREE SPEECH.

FREE PRESS ANTHOLOGY. By Theodore Schroeder..... 2.00



"OBSCENE" Literature and Constitutional Law.
By Theodore Schroeder..... 5.00

Mother Earth Publishing Association, 55 West 28th Street, New York.

890322059

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Tragedy of Woman's Emancipation / Emma Goldman.— New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., [1910?].— 8 p. ; 20 × 28 cm.
Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

890322059

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Tragedy of Woman's Emancipation / Emma Goldman.— New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., [1910?].— 8 p. ; 20 × 28 cm.

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

The Tragedy of Woman's Emancipation

BY

EMMA GOLDMAN

PUBLISHED BY

THE MOTHER EARTH PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION

210 EAST 13th ST., NEW YORK

688

890322059

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Tragedy of Woman's Emancipation / Emma Goldman.— New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., [1910?].— 8 p. ; 20 × 28 cm.
Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

HQ
1426
G5'1

3 9091 00172977 5

The Tragedy of Woman's Emancipation

I BEGIN with an admission: Regardless of all political and economic theories, treating of the fundamental differences between the various groups within the human race, regardless of class and race distinctions, regardless of all artificial boundary lines between woman's rights and man's rights, I hold that there is a point where these differentiations may meet and grow into one perfect whole.

With this I do not mean to propose a peace treaty. The general social antagonism which has taken hold of our entire public life to-day, brought about through the force of opposing and contradictory interests, will crumble to pieces when the reorganization of our social life, based upon the principles of economic justice, shall have become a reality.

Peace and harmony between the sexes and individuals does not necessarily depend on a superficial equalization of human beings; nor does it call for the elimination of individual traits or peculiarities. The problem that confronts us to-day, and which the nearest future is to solve, is how to be one's self, and yet in oneness with others, to feel deeply with all human beings and still retain one's own innate qualities. This seems to me the basis upon which the mass and the individual, the true democrat and the true individuality, man and woman, can meet without antagonism and opposition. The motto should not be: forgive one another; rather, understand one another. The oft-quoted sentence of Mme. de Stael: "To understand everything means to forgive everything," has never particularly appealed to me; it has the odor of the confessional; to forgive one's fellow-being conveys the idea of pharisaical superiority. To understand one's fellow-being suffices. The admission partly represents the fundamental aspect of my views on

704683

689

890322059

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Tragedy of Woman's Emancipation / Emma Goldman.— New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., [1910?].— 8 p. ; 20 × 28 cm.
Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

the emancipation of woman and its effect upon the entire sex.

Emancipation should make it possible for woman to be human in the truest sense. Everything within her that craves assertion and activity should reach its fullest expression; all artificial barriers should be broken and the road towards greater freedom cleared of every trace of centuries of submission and slavery.

This was the original aim of the movement for woman's emancipation. But the results so far achieved have isolated woman and have robbed her of the fountain springs of that happiness which is so essential to her. Merely external emancipation has made of the modern woman an artificial being, who reminds one of the products of French arboriculture with its arabesque trees and shrubs—pyramids, wheels and wreaths; anything, except the forms which would be reached by the expression of her own inner qualities. Such artificially grown plants of the female sex are to be found in large numbers, especially in the so-called intellectual sphere of our life.

Liberty and equality for woman! What hopes and aspirations these words awakened when they were first uttered by some of the noblest and bravest souls of those days. The sun in all his light and glory was to rise upon a new world; in this world woman was to be free to direct her own destiny, an aim certainly worthy of the great enthusiasm, courage, perseverance and ceaseless effort of the tremendous host of pioneer men and women, who staked everything against a world of prejudice and ignorance.

My hopes also move towards that goal, but I insist that the emancipation of woman, as interpreted and practically applied to-day, has failed to reach that great end. Now, woman is confronted with the necessity of emancipating herself from emancipation, if she really desires to be free. This may sound paradoxical, but is, nevertheless, only too true.

What has she achieved through her emancipation? Equal suffrage in a few states. Has that purified our political life, as many well-meaning advocates have predicted? Certainly not. Incidentally, it is really time that persons with plain, sound judgment should cease to talk about corruption in politics in a boarding-school tone. Corruption of politics has nothing to do with the morals or the laxity of morals of various political personalities. Its cause is altogether a material one. Politics is the reflex of the business and industrial world, the mottoes of which are: "to take is more blessed than to give"; "buy cheap and sell dear"; "one soiled hand washes the other." There is no hope even that woman, with her right to vote, will ever purify politics.

Emancipation has brought woman economic equality with man; that is, she can choose her own profession and trade, but as her past and present physical training has not equipped her with the necessary strength to compete with man, she is often compelled to exhaust all her energy, use up her vitality and strain every nerve in order to reach the market value. Very few ever succeed, for it is a fact that women doctors, lawyers, architects and engineers are neither met with the same confidence as their male colleagues, nor do they receive equal remuneration. And those that do reach that enticing equality generally do so at the expense of their physical and psychical well-being. As to the great mass of working girls and women, how much independence is gained if the narrowness and lack of freedom of the home are exchanged for the narrowness and lack of freedom of the factory, sweat-shop, department store, or office? In addition is the burden which is laid on many women of looking after a "home, sweet home"—cold, dreary, disorderly, uninviting—after a day's hard work. Glorious independence! No wonder that hundreds of girls are so willing to accept the first offer of marriage, sick and tired of their independence behind the counter, or at the sewing or typewriting machine. They are just as ready to marry as girls of the middle class, who long to throw off the yoke of parental dependence. A so-called independence which leads only to earning the merest subsistence is not so enticing, not so ideal that one could expect woman to sacrifice everything for it. Our highly praised independence is, after all, but a slow process of dulling and stifling woman's nature, her love instinct and her mother instinct.

Nevertheless, the position of the working girl is far more natural and human than that of her seemingly

690

890322059

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Tragedy of Woman's Emancipation / Emma Goldman.— New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., [1910?].— 8 p. ; 20 × 28 cm.

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

more fortunate sister in the more cultured professional walk of life—teachers, physicians, lawyers, engineers, etc., who have to make a dignified, straightened and proper appearance, while the inner life is growing empty and dead.

The narrowness of the existing conception of woman's independence and emancipation; the dread of love for a man who is not her social equal; the fear that love will rob her of her freedom and independence; the horror that love or the joy of motherhood will only hinder her in the full exercise of her profession—all these together make of the emancipated modern woman a compulsory vestal, before whom life, with its great clarifying sorrows and its deep, entrancing joys, rolls on without touching or gripping her soul.

Emancipation, as understood by the majority of its adherents and exponents, is of too narrow a scope to permit the boundless joy and ecstasy contained in the deep emotion of the true woman, sweetheart, mother, in freedom.

The tragedy of the self-supporting or economically free woman does not lie in too many, but in too few experiences. True, she surpasses her sister of past generations in knowledge of the world and human nature; it is just because of that that she feels deeply the lack of life's essence, which alone can enrich the human soul and without which the majority of women have become mere professional automatons.

That such a state of affairs was bound to come was foreseen by those who realized that, in the domain of ethics, there still remained many decaying ruins of the time of the undisputed superiority of man; ruins that are still considered useful. And, which is more important, a goodly number of the emancipated are unable to get along without them. Every movement that aims at the destrucion of exising institutions and the replacement thereof with such as are more advanced, more perfect, has followers who in theory stand for the most extreme radical ideas, but who, nevertheless, in their everyday practice, are like the next best Philistine, feigning respectability and clamoring for the good opinion of their opponents. There are, for example, Socialists, and even Anarchists, who stand for the idea that property is robbery, yet who will grow indignant if anyone owe them the value of a half-dozen pins.

The same Philistine can be found in the movement for woman's emancipation. Yellow journalists and milk and water literateurs have painted pictures of the emancipated woman that make the hair of the good citizen and his dull companion stand up on end. Every member of the woman's rights movement was pictured as a George Sand in her absolute disregard of morality. Nothing was sacred to her. She had no respect for the ideal relation between man and woman. In short, emancipation stood only for a reckless life of lust and sin; regardless of society, religion and morality. The exponents of woman's rights were highly indignant at such misrepresenttation, and, lacking humor, they exerted all their energy to prove that they were not at all as bad as they were painted, but the very reverse. Of course, as long as woman was the slave of man, she could not be good and pure, but now that she was free and independent she would prove how good she could be and how her influence would have a purifying effect on all institutions in society. True, the movement for woman's rights has broken many old fetters, but it has also established new ones. The great movement of true emancipation has not met with a great race of women, who could look liberty in the face. Their narrow puritanical vision banished man, as a disturber and doubtful character, out of their emotional life. Man was not to be tolerated at any price, except perhaps as the father of a child, since a child could not very well come to life without a father. Fortunately, the most rigid puritanism never will be strong enough to kill the innate craving for motherhood. But woman's freedom is closely allied with man's freedom, and many of my so-called emancipated sisters seem to overlook the fact that a child born in freedom needs the love and devotion of each human being about him, man as well as woman. Unfortunately, it is this narrow conception of human relations that has brought about a great tragedy in the lives of the modern man and woman.

About fifteen years ago appeared a work from the pen of the brilliant Norwegian writer, Laura Marholm, called "Woman, a Character Study." She was one of 890322059

691

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Tragedy of Woman's Emancipation / Emma Goldman.— New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., [1910?].— 8 p. ; 20 × 28 cm.

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

the first to call attention to the emptiness and narrowness of the existing conception of woman's emancipation and its tragic effect upon the inner life of woman. In her work she speaks of the fate of several gifted women of international fame: the genius, Eleonora Duse; the great mathematician and writer, Sonya Kovalevskaia; the artist and poet-nature, Marie Bashkirzeff, who died so young. Through each description of the lives of these women of such extraordinary mentality runs a marked trail of unsatisfied craving for a full, rounded, complete and beautiful life, and the unrest and loneliness resulting from the lack of it. Through these masterly psychological sketches, one cannot help but see that the higher the mental development of woman, the less possible it is for her to meet a congenial mate, who will see in her, not only sex, but also the human being, the friend, the comrade and strong individuality, who cannot and ought not lose a single trait of her character.

The average man with his self-sufficiency, his ridiculously superior airs of patronage towards the female sex, is an impossibility for woman as depicted in the "Character Study" by Laura Marholm. Equally impossible for her is the man who can see in her nothing more than her mentality and genius, and who fails to awaken her woman nature.

A rich intellect and a fine soul are usually considered necessary attributes of a deep and beautiful personality. In the case of the modern woman, these attributes serve as a hindrance to the complete assertion of her being. For over a hundred years, the old form of marriage, based on the Bible, "till death us do part," has been denounced as an institution that stands for the sovereignty of the man over the woman, of her complete submission to his whims and commands and the absolute dependence on his name and support. Time and again it has been conclusively proven that the old matrimonial relation restricted woman to the function of man's servant and the bearer of his children. And yet we find many emancipated women who prefer marriage with all its deficiencies to the narrowness of an unmarried life; narrow and unendurable because of the chains of moral and social prejudice that cramp and blind her nature.

The cause for such inconsistency on the part of many advanced women is to be found in the fact that they never truly understood the meaning of emancipation. They thought that all that was needed was independence from external tyrannies; the internal tyrants, far more harmful to life and growth—ethical and social conventions—were left to take care of themselves; and they have taken care of themselves. They seem to get along beautifully in the heads and hearts of the most active exponents of woman's emancipation, as in the heads and hearts of our grandmothers.

These internal tyrants, whether they be in the form of public opinion or what will mother say, or brother, father, aunt or relative of any sort; what will Mrs. Grundy, Mr. Comstock, the employer, the Board of Education say? All these busybodies, moral detectives, jailers of the human spirit, what will they say? Until woman has learned to defy them all, to stand firmly on her own ground and to insist upon her own unrestricted freedom, to listen to the voice of her nature, whether it call for life's greatest treasure, love for a man, or her most glorious privilege, the right to give birth to a child, she cannot call herself emancipated. How many emancipated women are brave enough to acknowledge that the voice of love is calling, wildly beating against their breasts demanding to be heard, to be satisfied?

defiance and [illegible] awareness

The French novelist, Jean Reibrach, in one of his novels, "New Beauty," attempts to picture the ideal, beautiful, emancipated woman. This ideal is embodied in a young girl, a physician. She talks very clearly and wisely of how to feed infants, she is kind and administers medicines free to poor mothers. She converses with a young man of her acquaintance about the sanitary conditions of the future and how various bacilli and germs shall be exterminated by the use of stone walls and floors, and the doing away of rugs and hangings. She is, of course, very plainly and practically dressed, mostly in black. The young man, who, at their first meeting, was overawed by the wisdom of his emancipated friend, gradually learns to understand her, and recognizes one fine day that he loves her. They are young and she is kind and beautiful, and though always in rigid attire, her appearance is softened by

692

890322059

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Tragedy of Woman's Emancipation / Emma Goldman.— New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., [1910?].— 8 p. ; 20 × 28 cm.

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

a spotlessly clean white collar and cuffs. One would expect that he would tell her of his love, but he is not one to commit romantic absurdities. Poetry and the enthusiasm of love cover their blushing faces before the pure beauty of the lady. He silences the voice of his nature and remains correct. She, too, is always exact, always rational, always well behaved. I fear if they had formed a union, the young man would have risked freezing to death. I must confess that I can see nothing beautiful in this new beauty, who is as cold as the stone walls and floors she dreams of. Rather would I have the love songs of romantic ages, rather Don Juan and Madame Venus, rather an elopement by ladder and rope on a moonlight night, followed by a father's curse, mother's moans, and the moral comments of neighbors, than correctness and propriety measured by yardsticks. If love does not know how to give and take without restriction, it is not love, but a transaction that never fails to lay stress on a plus and a minus.

The greatest shortcoming of the emancipation of the present day lies in its artificial stiffness and its narrow respectabilities, which produce an emptiness in woman's soul that will not let her drink from the fountain of life. I once remarked that there seemed to be a deeper relationship between the old-fashioned mother and hostess, ever on the alert for the happiness of her little ones and the comfort of those she loved, and the truly new woman, than between the latter and her average emancipated sister. The disciples of emancipation pure and simple declared me a heathen, fit only for the stake. Their blind zeal did not let them see that my comparison between the old and the new was merely to prove that a goodly number of our grandmothers had more blood in their veins, far more humor and wit, and certainly a greater amount of naturalness, kind-heartedness and simplicity than the majority of our emancipated professional women who fill our colleges, halls of learning, and various offices. This does not mean a wish to return to the past, nor does it condemn woman to her old sphere, the kitchen and the nursery.

Salvation lies in an energetic march onward towards a brighter and clearer future. We are in need of unhampered growth out of old traditions and habits. The movement for woman's emancipation has so far made but the first step in that direction. It is to be hoped that it will gather strength to make another. The right to vote, equal civil rights, are all very good demands, but true emancipation begins neither at the polls nor in courts. It begins in woman's soul. History tells us that every oppressed class gained its true liberation from its masters through its own efforts. It is necessary that woman learn that lesson, that she realize that her freedom will reach as far as her power to achieve her freedom reaches. It is therefore far more important for her to begin with her inner regeneration, to cut loose from the weight of prejudices, traditions, and customs. The demand for various equal rights in every vocation in life is just and fair, but, after all, the most vital right is the right to love and be loved. Indeed, if the partial emancipation is to become a complete and true emancipation of woman, it will have to do away with the ridiculous notion that to be loved, to be sweetheart and mother, is synonymous with being slave or subordinate. It will have to do away with the absurd notion of the dualism of the sexes, or that man and woman represent two antagonistic worlds.

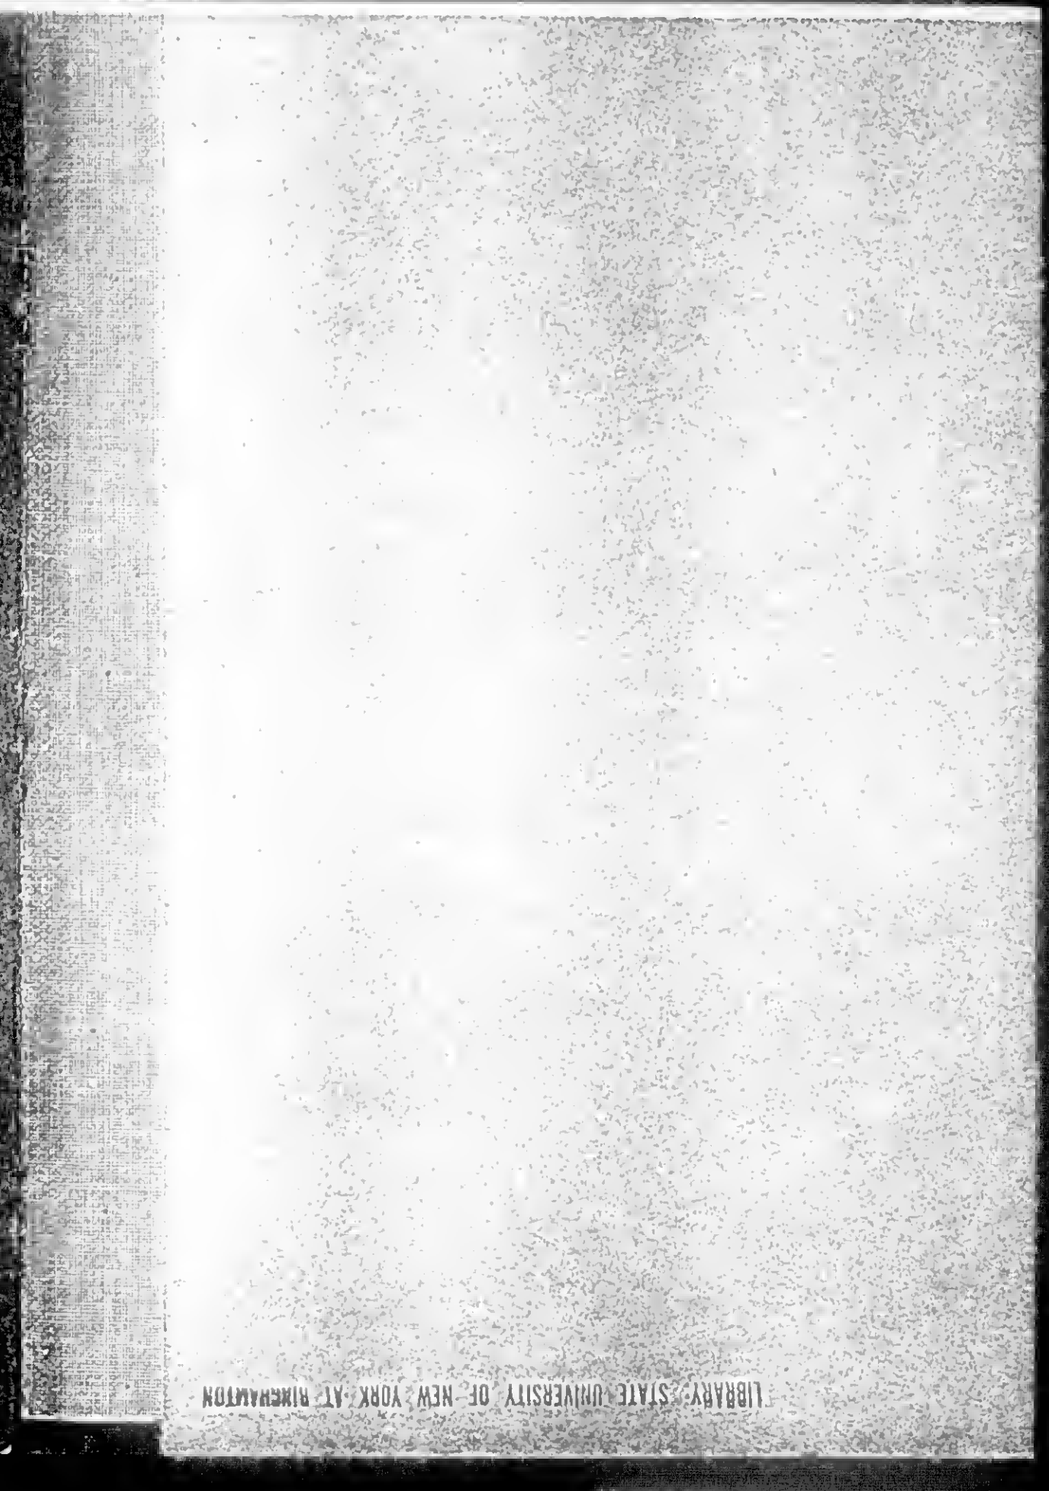
Pettiness separates, breadth unites. Let us be broad and big. Let us not overlook vital things because of the bulk of trifles confronting us. A true conception of the relation of the sexes will not admit of conqueror and conquered; it knows of but one great thing: to give of one's self boundlessly, in order to find oneself richer, deeper, better. That alone can fill the emptiness and replace the tragedy of woman's emancipation with joy, limitless joy.

693



890322059

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Tragedy of Woman's Emancipation / Emma Goldman.– New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., [1910?].– 8 p. ; 20 × 28 cm.

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

820407000

The Emma Goldman Papers

Appeal / Emma Goldman, et al.— New York : [Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n?, 1910, leaflet].— 1 p. ; 28 × 22 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from The Huntington Library, San Marino, CA. Institutional Location: Jack London Collection.

APPEAL

Dear Friend—In the name of humanity and international brotherhood, we earnestly beg of you to protest energetically to the Japanese ambassador in Washington against the unjust and barbarous penalty of death pronounced upon Dr. Denjiro Kotoku, his wife and twenty-four other Socialists and anarchists.

Dr. Kotoku, his wife, and their friends were brought before a court specially appointed for the purpose, judged guilty of plotting against the imperial family, and sentenced to death. The fact that it was an unusual judicial procedure shows that the proof of the alleged crime was weak.

Denjiro Kotoku is a man who has devoted himself to intellectual pursuits and has tried to popularize "Western" ideas in Japan. His "crime" consists in spreading radical ideas and in translating the works of Karl Marx, Leo Tolstoy, Peter Kropotkin and Michael Bakunin. As a leader of the "Left" in the social revolutionary movement in Japan, he was called the "head of the Kropotkinists." We are convinced that the charge of conspiracy against the emperor is false.

Kotoku's condemnation marks the climax of the reaction against liberal ideas, which has taken place in Japan during the last few years. Mr. Takayama, the leader of the Socialist party in Japan, has recently protested to western civilization against the persecutions of the Liberals in Japan.

We, the international soldiers of freedom, are not willing to have our friends in Japan fall victims to the reactionary forces. Shall the Japanese government imitate the barbarous methods of Spain and Russia, and do to death their scholars and thinkers? We must act vigorously in the cause of humanity and civilization, and we hope you will not fail to send an urgent protest to the Japanese ambassador.

HUTCHINS HAPGOOD,
LEONARD ABBOTT,
EMMA GOLDMAN,
HIPPOLYTE HAVEL,
SADAKICHI HARTMANN,
ALEXANDER BERKMAN,
DR. BEN L. REITMAN,
ROSE STRUNSKY.

It is our purpose to launch a widespread protest in the form of large public meetings. If you are willing to assist, communicate with, or call at, MOTHER EARTH, 210 East 13th Street, New York City.

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

840514076

The Emma Goldman Papers

The White Slave Traffic / Emma Goldman. – pp. 344-351 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 4, no. 11 (Jan. 1910).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

THE WHITE SLAVE TRAFFIC

By EMMA GOLDMAN.

OUR reformers have suddenly made a great discovery: the white slave traffic. The papers are full of these "unheard of conditions" in our midst, and the lawmakers are already planning a new set of laws to check the horror.

How is it that an institution, known almost to every child, should have been discovered so suddenly? How is it that this evil, known to all sociologists, should now be made such an important issue?

It is significant that whenever the public mind is to diverted from a great social wrong, a crusade is inaugurated against indecency, gambling, saloons, etc. And what is the result of such crusades? Gambling is increasing, saloons are doing a lively business through back entrances, prostitution is at its height, and the system of pimps and cadets is but aggravated.

To assume that the recent investigation of the white slave traffic by George Kibbe Turner and others (and by the way, a very superficial investigation), has discovered anything new is, to say the least, very foolish. Prostitution was and is a widespread evil, yet mankind goes on its business, perfectly indifferent to the sufferings and distress of the victims of prostitution. As indifferent, indeed, as mankind has so far remained to our industrial system, or to economic prostitution.

Only when human sorrows are turned into a toy with glaring colors will baby people become interested,—for a while at least. The people are a very fickle baby that must have new toys every day. The "righteous" cry against the white slave traffic is such a toy. It serves to amuse the people for a little while, and it will help to create a few more fat political jobs—parasites who stalk about the world as inspectors, investigators, detectives, etc.

What really is the cause of the trade in women? Not merely white women, but yellow and black women as well. Exploitation, of course: the merciless Moloch of capitalism that fattens on underpaid labor, thus driving thousands of women and girls into prostitution. With Mrs. Warren these girls feel, "Why waste your life working for a few shillings a week in a scullery, eighteen hours a day?"

Naturally, our reformers say nothing about this cause. George Kibbe Turner and all other scribblers know the cause well enough, but it doesn't pay to say anything about it. It is so much more profitable to play the Pharisee, to pretend an outraged morality, than to go to the bottom of things. Yet no less an authority than Dr. Sanger, the author of "The History of Prostitution,"* although not a radical, has this to say:

"A prolific cause of female depravity can be found in the several tables, showing the description of the employment pursued and the wages received by the women previous to their fall, and it will be a question for the political economist to decide how far mere business consideration should be an apology on the part of employers for a reduction in their rates of remuneration, and whether the savings of a small percentage on wages is not more than counterbalanced by the enormous amount of taxation enforced on the public at large to defray the expenses incurred on account of a system of vice, which is the direct result in many cases of insufficient compensation of honest labor."

The economic reason given for prostitution in the above quotation can be found in all works of any consequence dealing with the question. Nor is it necessary to seek information in books; one has but to observe everyday life to realize that there are thousands of girls working for two or three dollars a week, withering away in factories and shops, while life passes by in all its joy and glory, leaving them behind. What else are they to do? However, our present-day reformers would do well to look into Dr. Sanger's book. There they will find that out of 2,000 cases under his observation, but few came from the middle classes, from well-ordered conditions, or pleasant homes. By far the largest majority were working girls and working women. Some driven into prostitution through sheer want, others be-

* It is a significant fact that Dr. Sanger's book has been excluded from the U. S. mails. Evidently the authorities are not anxious that the public be informed as to the true cause of prostitution.

696

840514076

The Emma Goldman Papers

The White Slave Traffic / Emma Goldman. – pp. 344-351 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. –Vol. 4, no. 11 (Jan. 1910).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

cause of a cruel, wretched life at home, others again because of thwarted and crippled physical natures (which I will speak of again later on). Also it will do the maintainers of purity and morality good to learn that out of 2,000 cases 490 were married women, women who lived with their husbands. Evidently there was not much of a guarantee for their safety and purity in the sanctity of marriage.

The very last to cry out against prostitution is our "respectable" class, since it was that class that ushered in prostitution, from Moses to Trinity Church. Dr. H. Bloss, Dr. Alfred Blaschko, Dr. W. W. Sanger, and other eminent writers on this subject convincingly prove that prostitution originated with the so-called upper classes. I quote Dr. Sanger:

"Our most ancient and historical records are believed to be the books of Moses; according to them it must be admitted that prostitutes were common among the Jews, many centuries before Christ. Moses appears to have connived at the intercourse of Jewish young men with foreign prostitutes. He took an Ethiopian woman himself. Assyrian women, Moabites, Midianites, and other neighbors of the Jews established themselves as prostitutes in the land of Israel. Jephtha, the son of a prostitute, became none the less Chief of Israel." Moses evidently believed that therein lay the greatest safeguard for the daughters of his own people. We shall see presently that the Christians were not so considerate of their own daughters, since they did not employ foreigners for that purpose.

The history of the Christian Church will also serve as a history of prostitution, since the two always went hand in hand and furnished thereby great revenues for the Church.

Dr. Sanger cites the case of Pope Clement II., who issued a bull that all prostitutes were to pay a certain amount of their earnings, or that those living on prostitution were compelled to give half their income to the Church. Pope Sixtus IV. received 20,000 ducats from a single brothel, which, incidentally, he himself had built. Nor is it unknown that a great many cloisters and nunneries were in reality nothing else than brothels.

In modern times the Church is a little more careful in that direction. At least, it does not openly demand tribute from prostitutes. It finds it much more profitable to go in for real estate, like Trinity Church, for instance, to rent out death traps at an exorbitant price to those who live off and on prostitution.

Much as I should like to, my space will not admit speaking of prostitution in Egypt, Greece, Rome, and during the Middle Ages. The conditions in the latter period are particularly interesting, inasmuch as prostitution was organized into guilds, presided over by a Brothel Queen. These guilds employed strikes as a medium of improving their condition and keeping a standard price. Certainly that is more practical a method than the one used by the modern wage slave in society.

Never, however, did prostitution reach its present depraved and criminal position, because at no time in past ages was prostitution persecuted and hounded as it is to-day, especially in Anglo-Saxon countries, where Phariseeism is at its height, where each one is busy hiding the skeletons in his own home by pointing to the sore of the other fellow.

But I must not lose sight of the present issue, the white slave traffic. I have already spoken of the economic cause, but I think a cause much deeper and by far of greater importance is the complete ignorance on sex matters. It is a conceded fact that woman has been reared as a sex commodity, and yet she is kept in absolute ignorance of the meaning and importance of sex. Everything dealing with that subject is suppressed, and people who attempt to bring light into this terrible darkness are persecuted and thrown into prison. Yet it is nevertheless true that so long as a girl is not to know how to take care of herself, not to know the function of the most important part of her life, we need not be surprised if she becomes an easy prey to prostitution or any other form of a relationship which degrades her to the position of an object for mere sex gratification.

It is due to this ignorance that the entire life and nature of the girl is thwarted and crippled. We have long ago taken it as a self-evident fact that the boy may follow the call of the wild, that is to say that the boy may, as soon as his sex nature asserts itself, satisfy that nature, but our moralists are scandalized at the very thought

697

840514076

The Emma Goldman Papers

The White Slave Traffic / Emma Goldman. -- pp. 344-351 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. -Vol. 4, no. 11 (Jan. 1910).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

that the nature of a girl should assert itself. To the moralist prostitution does not consist so much in the fact that the woman sells her body, but rather that she sells it to many.

Having been looked upon as a mere sex-commodity, the woman's honor, decency, morality, and usefulness have become a part of her sex life. Thus society considers the sex experiences of a man as attributes of his general development, while similar experiences in the life of a woman are looked upon as a terrible calamity, a loss of honor and of all that is good and noble in a human being. This double standard of morality has played no little part in the creation and perpetuation of prostitution. It involves the keeping of the young in absolute ignorance on sex matters, which alleged "innocence," together with an overwrought and stifled sex nature, helps to bring about a state of affairs that our Puritans are so anxious to avoid or prevent. This state of affairs finds a masterly portrayal in Zolá's "Fecundity."

Girls, mere children, work in crowded, overheated rooms ten to twelve hours daily at a machine, which tends to keep them in a constant over-excited sex state. Many of these girls haven't any home or comforts of any kind; therefore the street or some place of cheap amusement is the only means of forgetting their daily routine. This naturally brings them into close proximity with the other sex. It is hard to say which of the two factors brings the girl's over-sexed condition to a climax, but it certainly is the most natural thing that a climax should follow. That is the first step toward prostitution. Nor is the girl to be held responsible for it. On the contrary, it is altogether the fault of society, the fault of our lack of understanding, of lack of appreciation of life in the making; especially is it the criminal fault of our moralists, who condemn a girl for all eternity because she has gone from "the path of virtue"; that is, because her first sex experience has taken place without the sanction of the Church or State.

The girl finds herself a complete outcast, with the doors of home and society closed in her face. Her entire training and tradition are such that the girl herself feels depraved and fallen, and therefore has no ground to stand upon, or any hold that will lift her up, instead of throwing her down. Thus society creates the victims that it afterwards vainly attempts to get rid of.

Much stress is laid on white slaves being imported into America. How would America ever retain her virtue if she didn't have Europe to help her out? I will not deny that this may be the case in some instances, any more than I will deny that there are emissaries of Germany and other countries luring economic slaves into America, but I absolutely deny that prostitution is recruited, to any appreciable extent, from Europe. It may be true that the majority of prostitutes of New York City are foreigners, but that is only because the majority of the population is foreign. The moment we go to any other American city, to Chicago or the middle West, we shall find that the number of foreign prostitutes is by far a minority.

Equally exaggerated is the belief that the majority of street girls in this city were engaged in this business before they came to America. Most of the girls speak excellent English, they are Americanized in habits and appearance,—a thing absolutely impossible unless they have lived in this country many years. That is, they were driven into prostitution by American conditions, by the thoroughly American custom for excessive display of finery and clothes, which, of course, necessitates money, money that can not be earned in shops or factories. The equanimity of the moralists is not disturbed by the respectable woman gratifying her clothesophobia by marrying for money; why are they so outraged if the poor girl sells herself for the same reason? The only difference lies in the amount received, and of course in the seal society either gives or withholds.

I am sure that no one will accuse me of nationalist tendencies. I am glad to say that I have developed out of that, as out of many other prejudices. If, therefore, I resent the statement that Jewish prostitutes are imported, it is not because of any Judaistic sympathies, but because of the fact inherent in the lives of these people. No one but the most superficial will claim that the Jewish girls migrate to strange lands unless they have some tie or relation that brings them there. The Jewish girl is not adventurous. Until recent years, she had never left home, not even so far as the next village or town, unless it were to visit some relative. Is it then

698

840514076

The Emma Goldman Papers

The White Slave Traffic / Emma Goldman. — pp. 344-351 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. — Vol. 4, no. 11 (Jan. 1910).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

credible that Jewish girls would leave their parents or families, travel thousands of miles to strange lands, through the influence and promises of strange forces? Go to any of the large incoming steamers and see for yourself if these girls do not come either with their parents, brothers, aunts, or other kinsfolk. There may be exceptions, of course, but to state that a large number of Jewish girls are imported for prostitution, or any other purpose, is simply not to know the Jewish psychology.

On the other hand, it speaks of very little business ability on the part of importers of the white slaves, if they assume that the girls from the peasant regions of Poland, Bohemia, or Hungary in their native peasant crude state and attire would make a profitable business investment. These poor ignorant girls, in their undeveloped state, with their shawls about their heads, look much too unattractive to even the most stupid man. It therefore follows that before they can be made fit for business, they, too, must be Americanized, which would require not merely a week or a month, but considerable time. They must at least learn the rudiments of English, but more than anything else they must learn American shrewdness, in order to protect themselves against the many uniformed cadets, who prey on them and fleece them at every step.

To ascribe the increase of prostitution to alleged importation, to the growth of the cadet system, or similar causes, is highly superficial. I have already referred to the former. As to the cadet system, abhorrent as it is, we must not ignore the fact that it is essentially a phase of modern prostitution,—a phase accentuated by suppression and graft, resulting from sporadic crusades against the social evil.

The origin of the cadets, as an institution, can be traced to the Lexow investigation in New York City, in 1894. Thanks to that moral spasm, keepers of brothels, as well as unfortunate victims of the street, were turned over to the tender mercies of the police. The inevitable consequence of exorbitant bribes and the penitentiary followed.

While comparatively protected in the brothels, where they represented a certain value, the unfortunate girls now found themselves on the street, absolutely at the mercy of the graft-greedy police. Desperate, needing protection and longing for affection, these girls naturally proved an easy prey to cadets, themselves the result of the spirit of our commercial age. Thus the cadet system was the direct outgrowth of police persecution, graft, and attempted suppression of prostitution. It were sheer folly to confute this modern phase of the social evil with the causes of the latter.

The serious student of this problem realizes that legislative enactments, stringent laws, and similar methods can not possibly eradicate, nor even ameliorate this evil. Those best familiar with the subject agree on this vital point. Dr. Alfred Blaschko, an eminent authority, convincingly proves in his "Prostitution im 19. Jahrhundert" that governmental suppression and moral crusades accomplish nothing save driving the evil into secret channels, multiplying its dangers to the community. In this claim he is supported by such thorough students as Havelock Ellis, Dr. H. Bloss, and others.

Mere suppression and barbaric enactment can serve but to embitter and further degrade the unfortunate victims of ignorance and stupidity. The latter has reached its highest expression in the proposed law to make humane treatment of prostitutes a crime, punishing anyone sheltering a prostitute with five years imprisonment and $10,000 fine. Such an attitude merely exposes the terrible lack of understanding of the true causes of prostitution, as a social factor, as well as manifesting the Puritanic spirit of the Scarlet Letter days.

An educated public opinion, freed from the legal and moral hounding of the prostitute, can alone help to ameliorate present conditions. Wilful shutting of eyes and ignoring of the evil, as an actual social factor of modern life, can but aggravate matters. We must rise above our foolish notions of "better than thou," and learn to recognize in the prostitute a product of social conditions. Such a realization will sweep away the attitude of hypocrisy and insure a greater understanding and more humane treatment. As to a thorough eradication of prostitution, nothing can accomplish that save a complete transvaluation of all accepted values—especially the moral ones—coupled with the abolition of industrial slavery.

699

890611042

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Interview] Emma Goldman to Talk on the White Slave Traffic / Emma Goldman.—27 cm. In The Milwaukee Daily News. —(Jan. 22, 1910).

Obtained from the Milwaukee Public Library, Milwaukee, WI.

...ore, ten miles from Oshkosh, was threatened with a famine Friday. The heavy snow and the drifts put the Oshkosh-Omro interurban cars out of commission from Thursday night until this morning and the people there suffered considerably on account of being unable to get supplies. Today, however the line is opened and every car to Omro is laden with supplies, bread being one of the principal items.

...inton house this afternoon of the University Alumni association.

At the meeting new officers will be elected for the association and there will be a general discussion of affairs of interest to the University of Wisconsin.

Fur bags are the latest thing. In almost every kind of fur, too, to match one's coat or muff. Some of them are finished with heads and tails and mounted on gold, silver or gunmetal.

EMMA GOLDMAN TO TALK ON THE WHITE SLAVE TRAFFIC

Emma Goldman, advocate of anarchism, and Dr. Ben Reitman, champion of free speech, are guests in the Plankinton house. Tomorrow afternoon and night they will lecture in the Freie Germeindo hall, 284 Fourth street. Francisco Ferrer and the modern school will be Miss Goldman's subject. Dr. Reitman will confine himself to free speech. At night Miss Goldman will talk on the drama and on Monday night on the white slave traffic.

Today she chatted freely concerning Ferrer, the execution of whom called forth a protest from the world. She said she wanted Americans to know him as he was and not as he has been painted. The modern school she intends to discuss as it concerns the development of the child, leaving him free to accept an idea without prejudice and without fear.

"The drama is the greatest disseminator of radical ideas," she said. "It is more powerful in this respect than all the lectures, books and periodicals. It is greater than all other means of expression that come before intelligent people.

"Take the corruption of the press. Paterson portrays it powerfully in his 'Fourth Estate.' Kline's 'Third Degree' has been the means of sending home the high-handed, unconstitutional practices of the police in their dealings with persons accused of crime.

"Eugene Walter's 'Paid in Full' exemplifies the low economic condition of a class of people that lives beyond its means, members of which will sin to keep afloat."

When someone mentioned the difference between Socialism and Anarchism, the little woman who has a fund of information on every subject and who speaks English correctly with a slight German accent, quickly replied:

"Please don't mention Socialism to me. Socialists as a class are too narrow and despotic. If they were in power we would have a helarchy beyond conception. You know the American Socialists are not Socialists at all. They are politicians. The real ones live in Europe."

Miss Goldman asserted that although the United States boasts of being a free country, its people are muzzled and far behind the English. She cited Hyde Park in London as a place where one may free his mind and she complimented Judge Gaynor on his promise to provide a similar forum.

...this morning a jury returned ... verdict in favor of John Loos ... ton against the Walter Brewing ... of that city. The jury, answ... questions favorable to the pl... decided he was entitled to d... the total extent of $1,731.42.

Mr. Loos had been employ... Miller Brewing company fo... years and he was induced ... agent for the Walter Brewing ... signing a five-year contract.

Upon the charge that compl... being made, officers of the co... deavored to relegate Mr. L... bottling department and he r... quit his job.

Democratic Committee M...

The Democratic city comm... hold another meeting in the ... of the Plankinton house tonig... The meeting is for a further ... of campaign plans, candidates ... tion work and the circulation ... tion papers.

LIVE HA...
CLEAR S...

Assured by the ...
CUTICU...

ELLISON D. SMITH

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

700

840514078

The Emma Goldman Papers

Light and Shadows in the Life of Avant-Guard / Emma Goldman. – pp. 383-391 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. –Vol. 4, no. 12 (Feb. 1910).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

but I cannot altogether withhold them. Finally, I say, it is entirely contrary to the usage of other governments."

Can anyone claim that the agitation of the suffragettes springs from base motives, or that its character is not political? Why, then, the discrimination against these women? Is it because of their sex? Not at all. They are persecuted so cruelly because they are the first political party in Great Britain who have resorted to the most powerful and effective weapon in the whole arsenal of life: direct action.

No other political group has ever used such tactics, except the Anarchists. And with what ingenuity and effect the suffragettes have employed this method! This the politicians and diplomats will never forget nor forgive.

Since the suffragettes have initiated direct action tactics, they have defeated their opponents at every point. They have created the strongest organization in England, collected a fund of £50,000, organized demonstrations which in point of numbers, enthusiasm, and beauty have never been equaled in the history of the country. What artistic joy, not to speak of the revolutionary spirit, the tremendous Hyde Park demonstration would have afforded William Morris.

Since the fifth of July of last year till the dissolution of the Parliament the latter was besieged day and night, without intermission, by the epical watch. Hundreds of meetings, to be addressed by Cabinet Ministers, were broken up; banquets, private and official receptions disturbed, and life made a nightmare for officialdom.

What a spectacle! Never before had England witnessed such a humiliating sight.

The dissolution of Parliament and the following elections form a turning point.

Such a propaganda cannot possibly stop at mere suffrage. Already there are among the suffragettes certain elements whose demands go much further. They are awakening to the realization that the fight for the feminine mess of pottage is but the prelude to a greater and more tremendous struggle of social proportions. They will gradually join that movement, and the experiences they have thus far gathered will prove of great value for the general emancipation of mankind. Their self-sacrifice and heroism can serve as an example deserving the respect and sympathy of every revolutionist. The seed they have sown will not fail of a rich harvest.

The words of Mary Neal, one of the participants in the hunger strike, will come true:

"Nearer to the Earth Mother than man, wiser in the wisdom learnt at the gates of death, through which enters each new-born life, in the depths of her being untouched by the sophistries of a masculine interpretation of her place in life, woman has committed the seed of her liberty to the earth. Ploughed in by suffering as it has been, ruthlessly cut down again and again, condemned to death by the Kings of Prejudice, Tyranny, and Lust, it has risen triumphant, and the harvest is near at hand."

O, Barleycorn is the choicest grain
That e'er was sown on land;
It will do more than any grain
By the turning of your hand.

* * *

LIGHT AND SHADOWS IN THE LIFE OF AN AVANT-GUARD

AN avant-guard of many years of public activity? How discouraging. Yet if we consider that Anarchism is the only social theory that has undertaken to transvalue all values, we will see at once that the position of its exponents must needs remain that of the avant-guard, for some time to come.

Traditions and habits cling with great tenacity, both to man and institutions. Not merely because every effort of to-day is being bent on perpetuating the past, but because the past has a most marvelous capacity of not letting go.

Thus we see that the most radical, aye, the most advanced, rarely outgrow the old.

It is but a comparatively short period, considered in the light of historic events, that Anarchism, the reconstructor of social life, the transvaluator of all values, has made its advent on the intellectual horizon of the world.

Its task was stupendous, indeed. The Rock of Ages, huge and immovable, blocked its way. Yet unafraid, serene and proud, Anarchism began its onslaught. To-

701

840514078

The Emma Goldman Papers

Light and Shadows in the Life of Avant–Guard / Emma Goldman. — pp. 383-391 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 4, no. 12 (Feb. 1910).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

day it is a living, working force, most hated and most beloved of all theories that have come to rebuild the world.

The wonder is not that it has accomplished so little; the wonder is that it has done so much. Therefore the life of the avant-guard, with all its shadows, can never lose its light, its rich warm light.

Of the shadows, I have talked on more than one occasion. In fact, during the last two years MOTHER EARTH has reported nothing but gloom.

In 1908 my tour was affected by the crisis and its inevitable result: outraged humanity manifesting itself in the acts of Averbuch and Silverstein.

The police, like the forest beasts, at the sight of blood became mad for more. Who but the avant-guard of Anarchism could be better prey? Anarchist meetings were closed, and Anarchist speakers suppressed. My tour, though strong enough to withstand every obstacle, has rendered MOTHER EARTH very little financial assistance.

The avant-guard, like the wicked, finds no rest. In the early Fall of 1908 another tramp was undertaken. By that time the crisis had thoroughly whipped people into submission, completely breaking their will; poverty and despair have no interest in life and life's problems. Then, too, it was the period of the presidential election, which in this "free land" has become a greater national calamity than the coronation of the Russian Tsar. This tour, too, was a failure.

I had almost despaired of a change. Everything seemed to conspire to turn the shadows of life into black clouds, shutting out faith and hope.

It seemed useless to begin a tour again, and without visible means of maintaining MOTHER EARTH, I had almost decided to give up the struggle.

But the power of perseverance overcomes all difficulties.

When the indefatigable Ben Reitman wired me from Chicago: "Police consent to let you speak in this city. Telegraph dates," all disappointments of the past two years were forgotten. The future once more held out new possibilities.

That one should have to depend on police permission in a country where liberty is an every-day slogan, is not a cheering aspect. Still, it is better to meet the enemy in the open than to be overtaken by him unawares. Time and again labor, energy, and money were spent on the arrangements of meetings, only to see it all wasted through police interference. Experience has taught us this lesson: Since freedom of speech is no longer everyone's right without fear or favor, it is best to ascertain beforehand where it will meet with the least interference.

We had barely begun our tour when Detroit placed itself on record against free speech.

Oh, spirit of Robert Reitzel, where art thou?—and you who gloried in the song of that lark of liberty, you who worshipped at the shrine, has the last note of his song died away that you submit to the Russianization of your city? Has your love of freedom been a mere reflection of Reitzel's genius, leaving you poor and empty now that he is no more. You will soon have the opportunity to prove whether the work of the Der Arme Teufel has been a strong factor or a mere passing fancy. We are coming to Detroit to assert our right of free expression.

In Buffalo the police are evidently still peril-stricken by the shadow of that lone boy whom they had done to death before Christian justice placed him in the electric chair. Else it is hard to account for their dread of the free voice. The energetic effort of a true friend of liberty, Mr. Fred Schulder, has been in vain. And yet not altogether, as his own letter will prove.

DEAR EMMA:—

Yours of the 9th, with clipping, reached me yesterday.

After having seen the mayor twice, his secretary three times, and the Chief of Police three times, I have not succeeded in getting a promise that you will be allowed to speak in Buffalo.

Yesterday Chief Regan told me that he would have to be compelled by the courts before he would consent to your speaking, but I pressed the matter so hard that he finally asked me to see him again to-day and get a definite reply. Told the clerk of my engagement, and he went to see the Lord at once. Coming back he informed me that the Chief could not see me this morning, as he had been subpoenaed to court and would have to leave at once; but that at any rate "She can't speak"; I should come in at 2 P. M. if I wanted to see him. I went to see a friend whom I know to be in thorough sympathy with Free Speech. I told him of the result of my various interviews, and that I would like to have someone with me as a witness if I saw the Chief again. I thought as a last resort I would ask him if he would permit you to recite the Lord's Prayer in Buffalo. His answer being either yes or no, he would have placed himself in a position to be made the laughing stock of my friend. My friend felt sure that the Chief would only quibble; as there is no

702

840514078

The Emma Goldman Papers

Light and Shadows in the Life of Avant-Guard / Emma Goldman. — pp. 383-391 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 4, no. 12 (Feb. 1910).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

paper here that would dare to say anything derogatory of the police department, he thought it would be useless. Furthermore, he said that if he should come out in this matter, the police would find a way to injure his business. Partly owing to Mr. B's advice, and partly owing to the fact that for several days I have had a severe cold which seems to amount to a slight attack of grippe, and the weather alternating snow and rain, with slush ankle deep, I decided to stay indoors this afternoon and nurse my cold. I may write to the mayor, but it will probably be of no avail.

I never before appreciated the corrupting influence of the political machinery—what cowards it makes of persons! Why, one sleek eel-like politician told me that he was not sure but what he was a philosophical Anarchist himself. But of course in his position, etc. I never call myself a "philosophical," and when someone else describes me thus, I usually laugh at it; but after seeing cringing and scheming politicians, persons without a backbone, applying this term to themselves, I shall feel a shiver whenever I hear that combination of words.

My friend has learned the truth of what I have maintained for many years, namely, that the term "Philosophic Anarchist" is really an apology for cowardice that craves to appear interesting.

Columbus, O., can boast of an intelligent mayor; at least he is intelligent enough to know the difference between Socialism and Anarchism.

"If Emma Goldman were a Socialist I would let her speak. But she is an Anarchist." Like Gen. Funston, the mayor knows that Socialism perpetuates government, that it is therefore not so dangerous to the position of an army officer or a mayor as Anarchism, that contains no place for either.

Those who live in New York and count among their friends Socialists like Leonard D. Abbott, Annie and Rose Strunsky, English Walling, etc., have no idea of the material that goes to make up the party Socialists in the Middle West. Certainly a more conservative, retrogressive, bigoted set of people is hardly conceivable.

In Chicago the editor of the Daily Socialist would not endanger the opportunity of vote getting by announcing the fact that Free Speech was again to assert itself in that city; yet he is quite willing to charge double rates for E. G.'s ads. Naturally, saloons, banks, and other crooked business are more important to the Socialists of Chicago than the right of a human voice to be heard.

In Milwaukee the Socialist ward heeler Berger would not take our ads. How could he soil his clean, pure, white political soul by such a thing? In his righteous indignation he urges "that some one ought to get after the Chicago Daily Socialist for accepting and printing a big advertisement of an Emma Goldman meeting."

When two thieves quarrel the honest man comes to his own. Possibly when autocrat Berger will get after autocrat Simons, the poor, deluded party subjects will learn to value their independence.

In Hannibal, Mo., a Socialist judge, Abner S. Smith, whose Socialist activities consist in ordering people dispossessed if they fail to feed the landlord, hastens to assure the people of that city that Socialists are above all law abiding citizens. "We believe in laws and in obeying them, but of course we believe the people should have part in framing them." How is this for a follower of Karl Marx, who died in hopes that his theory would revolutionize the world.

And with all this compromise, with all this cowardice, with all this cringing servility to public opinion—defeat, nothing but defeat. Too bad. Too bad.

If human beings were not beter than parties, one would have to despair of the future. But the consciousness that there are Socialists with character and personality often makes up for all the sins of the party politician. Several of such precious rarities we have met in Madison, Wis. I will speak of them later.

The first ray of light made itself felt in Cleveland. English meetings in that city have always been mediocre, but when January 9th came, three days after Ben Reitman had reached Cleveland, the meeting surpassed the highest expectations. Two large audiences came, not out of curiosity, but interested to learn the truth about the greatest crime of the 20th century committed by the Catholic Church. The subject was Francisco Ferrer and the Modern School.

That the heroic death of that tragic figure at Montjuich continues to arouse widespread indignation is

703

840514078

The Emma Goldman Papers

Light and Shadows in the Life of Avant–Guard / Emma Goldman. – pp. 383-391 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. –Vol. 4, no. 12 (Feb. 1910).

Obtained from the University of Califomia, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

proved by the multitudes that come to hear about the life and work of that man.

By dispelling the lies and calumnies which continue to appear in the Catholic press of America about Ferrer, I hope to make his name and work a living, working force in our midst, thus paying my tribute in a small measure to the memory of our dead comrade.

A large Yiddish meeting closed our successful visit in Cleveland.

In Toledo the gloom of the city and the mirror-like polish of the icy sidewalks could not obscure the light that followed. A meeting arranged within twenty-four hours again attracted a large audience, and everything moved smoothly. Even I, on my way from the hall to the hotel; so smoothly, indeed, that I landed on one of the mirrors, leaving its icy glass intact, but nearly breaking my back. How little reform does reform the broken arms, legs, and backs of the people, Toledo bears witness.

Chicago has been thoroughly swept by that hurricane, Ben L. Reitman. During three weeks, single handed, with friends and foes against him, with a conspiracy of silence on the part of the Chicago press, Reitman proved to the satisfaction of all that one determined individual can move mountains.

The success of the meeting in Chicago meant a great deal to our doctor friend. This is the city in the streets of which he spent his childhood. It was here, too, that he became part of our so-called underworld. It was in Chicago that he obtained a pass to respectable society, in the form of a doctor's certificate. In Chicago, too, he learned the glory of American citizenship by receiving his first baptism of police clubs during the unemployed parade. It was there he was made to appreciate the true meaning of Free Speech, dependent on the police department. Yes, the success of the meetings meant more to him than many people can realize. So he worked as only a man with a great purpose can work, with the result that never in years, not even on the occasion of Peter Kropotkin's visit, was there such marvelous success.

Six English and three Yiddish meetings, crowded every night regardless of the wretched Chicago weather. Over four thousand people paid admission, and a tremendous amount of literature sold, thanks to the energy and skill of Dr. Reitman. But the most valuable feature of the campaign is the reorganization of the old Social Science Club into a young, lusty fighter with new workers and systematic English weekly meetings. No wonder our comrades, the most timid even, became rejuvenated. Inspired by the zeal of one, all worked faithfully. Little Dr. Yampolsky, Wm. Nathanson, B. Weinninger, Anna and Jake Livshis, Edith Adams, F. Weber, and other comrades whose names I cannot remember.

Milwaukee was the next stopping-place. The same fine results. Three excellent meetings, arranged in a few days. Added to that was the joy of decent accounts in several daily papers, conservative papers, mark you, not the Socialist one.

Madison, Wis., has had a great charm for me the last few years because of its historical library. But what I really found there is extraordinary indeed. Certainly a better equipped and better managed institution I have never seen in any other city in America. No other library has such a collection of books, papers, and magazines on the labor question, trade unionism, Socialism, and Anarchism. Yes, even Anarchism, that most hated, most tabooed and misunderstood theory.

During the few hours that I could spend in the library, thanks to the generous assistance of Mr. Andrews, the chief research worker, I saw collections of the earliest Anarchist papers, books, and pamphlets in America. Complete files of the Alarm, Fackel, Vorbote, Chicago Arbeiter Zeitung, Free Society, Liberty, Freiheit, Mother Earth, and scores of others. Also numerous pamphlets dating almost half a century back. In fact, a perfect mint for the earnest student. If the liberal endeavor of this historical library will continue, it bids fair to become for America—in a small measure —what the British Museum is for England.

In all my travels through the length and breadth of this land I found its university cities the most bigoted, arrogant, and conservative. Madison, Wis., is

704

840514078

The Emma Goldman Papers

Light and Shadows in the Life of Avant–Guard / Emma Goldman. – pp. 383-391 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. –Vol. 4, no. 12 (Feb. 1910).

Obtained from the University of Califomia, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

undoubtedly a happy exception. The progressive spirit among professors and students is unusual indeed. Profs. Ross, Commons, Yastrow, and others are making history in America. Thanks to them the American student is becoming humanized and socialized. He feels an interest in other things besides baseball, football, and scabbing. That university men should turn out in large numbers to hear Emma Goldman was more than some citizens of Madison could stand. Since we left that city the Democrat, a yellow sheet, has been attacking the university most venomously. I am convinced, however, that its barking will not intimidate the progressive element. Nor will it hamper it in its commendable desire to learn the truth from right sources. Surely Prof. Ross, who has withstood the various attacks upon his right to think independently and to interpret modern sociology, both in Stanford and the Nebraska University, is not likely to be disturbed in his march by anything the Democrat may say. It was a great treat to meet Prof. Ross. His wonderful physique with its large, generous lines, his broadminded views of social events, and his great humanism, were refreshing after meeting so many pygmies who are infesting the American colleges.

The inspiration of our short stay in Milwaukee was the Socialist Students' Club, whose members tower mountain-high above their political leader. Both Dr. Reitman and myself were invited to their round table at the Y. M. C. A. (holy horrors!), where we were asked to address the Club. The doctor spoke of the relation between the educator and agitator, and I made a few remarks on the difference between the students of Russia and America. One member of the Club helped faithfully at our own meetings, in a true fraternal spirit. Thus our visit to Madison was not only very interesting and profitable, but it was also a very delightful one. A sleigh ride in that very beautiful country, with all the glory of a white winter, bore me back to the never-to-be-forgotten joys of the Russian troika, dashing along through the cold, the music of its bells re-echoing through forest and field. For this childhood day in Madison I am indebted to a friend of former days, who is now professor at the University and a respectable citizen of the place.

The light continues in its bright colors, even while I write this in the city of St. Louis, the success of which I will describe at another time.

The life of the avant-guard,—how rich, how full, how all absorbing. The only life worth living.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

* * *

ANARCHIST SYMPOSIUM

JOSIAH WARREN.

NOTHING is more common than the remarks that "no two persons are alike," that "circumstances alter cases," that "we must agree to disagree," etc.; and yet we are constantly forming institutions which require us to be alike, which make no allowance for the individuality of persons or of circumstances, and which render it necessary for us to agree, and leave us no liberty to differ from each other, nor to modify our conduct according to circumstances.

On what, then, rest all customs and institutions which demand conformity? They are all directly opposed to the individuality, and therefore false. Every one is by nature constituted to be his or her own government, his own law, his own church—each individual is a system within himself; and the great problem must be solved with the broadest admission of the inalienable right of supreme individuality, which forbids any attempt to govern each other, and confines all our legislation to the adjustment and regulations of our intercourse or commerce with each other.

To require uniformity in thought, feeling, or action, is a fundamental error in human legislation—a madness which would be equaled only by requiring all to possess the same countenance, the same voice, or the same stature.

Each individual should be at all times free to differ from every other in thought, feeling, word, and deed; and free to differ from himself, or to change from time to time; in other words, that every one is constituted by nature to be, at all times, sovereign of himself, or herself, and of everything that constitutes a part of his or her individuality. That society, to be harmonious and suc-

705

8901178028

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Interview] Emma Goldman in St. Louis to Attack Clergy / Emma Goldman.— p. 1 ; 43 cm. In St. Louis-Post Dispatch. —(Feb. 1, 1910).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

Only Evening Paper in St. Louis With the Associated Press News Service.

VOL. 62, NO. 165. ST. LOUIS, TUESDAY EVENING, FEBRUARY 1, 1910. PRICE ONE CENT.

MISS MARY LUCAS IS TO BE MARRIED TO J. A. HART

MISS MARY LUCAS.

Announcement of the Engagement at Reception Held in the Woman's Club — Both Are of Old St. Louis Families.

Miss Mary Lucas, daughter of Mrs. J. B. C. Lucas of 4486 West Pine boulevard, and one of this season's most beautiful and popular debutantes, is to become the bride of John A. Hart, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. August B. Hart of Portland place. Formal announcement of the engagement will be made at a reception to be tendered Miss Lucas at the Woman's Club Tuesday afternoon.

Miss Lucas was recently graduated from an Eastern school and made her debut at the Veiled Prophet's ball, serving as one of the maids of honor.

The coming wedding will be of unusual interest to St. Louis society, as it will unite two of the first families of St. Louis.

Miss Lucas is of rare beauty and poise.

Father an Aristocrat.

Her father, the late J. B. C. Lucas, was prominent in business in St. Louis and was one of the leaders of the aristocracy of his time. At the time of his death 14 months ago, he was president of the Wellston Bank; president and treasurer of the Lucas Mutual Fire Insurance Co., vice-president of the St. Louis Dairy Co., and a director of the American Exchange National Bank, the Mechanics'-American National Bank and the Missouri State Mutual and Marine Fire Insurance Co.

The early members of the Lucas families owned a large part of what is now the downtown section of the city. On the old Lucas farm now stand the Courthouse and Federal Building, the Planters Hotel, the Globe-Democrat Building, the Missouri Trust, Chemical, Wainwright, Century and other buildings. The property is now estimated to be worth $20,000,000.

J. B. C. Lucas was the grandson of Judge Jean Baptiste Charles Lucas, the founder of the Lucas family in St. Louis. Since the days of Judge Lucas in the early period of St. Louis' history, the name of the Lucas family has been intimately identified with the history and development of the city.

Kept Secret Well.

Miss Lucas has been liberally entertained by St. Louis friends during the past week, but she had managed to keep her secret well guarded.

Among other affairs planned in her honor, she will be the guest at dinner of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Barret of West Pine boulevard next Monday evening, to which a number of her young friends have been invited.

EMMA GOLDMAN IN ST. LOUIS TO ATTACK CLERGY

Noted Woman "Red" Says She Expects to Raise Cain With Ministers.

IS READY FOR JAIL

Incarceration Possible as Result of Clash With Anthony Comstock.

CAME FROM HANNIBAL

Police There Took Names of All Persons Who Attended Her Lecture.

W[illegible] and I [illegible] here to raise Cain with the ministers.

That was the slogan sounded by Emma Goldman, who got into town at 1 o'clock p. m. Tuesday. She is accompanied by Ben Reitman, one of the lights of the Chicago world of unfettered thought and action, and self-styled "King of the Hobos," who was rescued from the coal chute by Lizzie Lade Blow, who is now addressed as the queen of the rods.

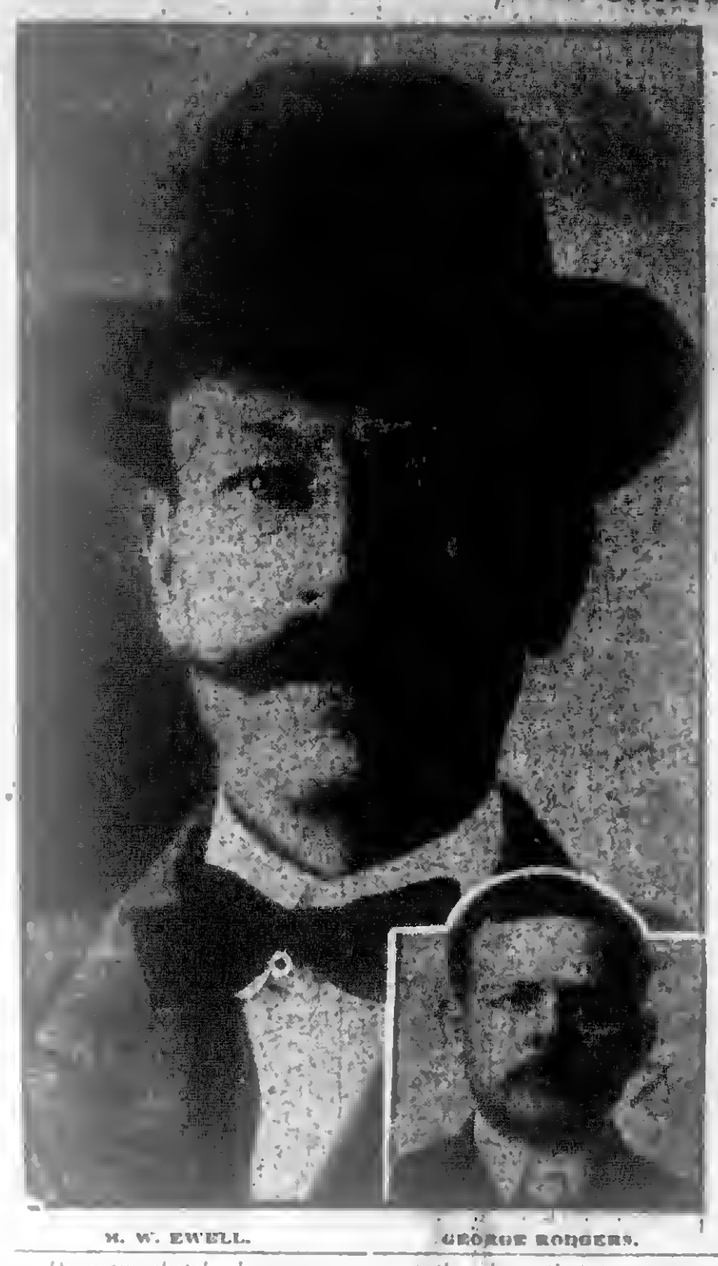
She is [illegible] and [illegible] and will [illegible] the [illegible] of a hall. In fact, [illegible] Emma declares. She rather [illegible] thought of a [illegible] Behind the bars every now and then, but now she is [illegible] and [illegible] as the result of an [illegible] with Anthony Comstock [illegible] for an article recently published on "The White Slave Traffic."

Willing to Rest in Jail.

"A little rest at the expense of the government will not hurt me a bit," she says. "But I'll give Comstock a 'run' for, run. He'll find he's not dealing with an inexperienced girl."

When she stepped into the parlor at the Maryland Hotel Emma Goldman looked a little bored. In fact she said she had been bored the night before with Hannibal, Mo. The police of that city had insisted on taking the names of everyone who went in to hear her talk and as there were [illegible] who did not care to be on Emma's calling list her audience was not as big as it might have been.

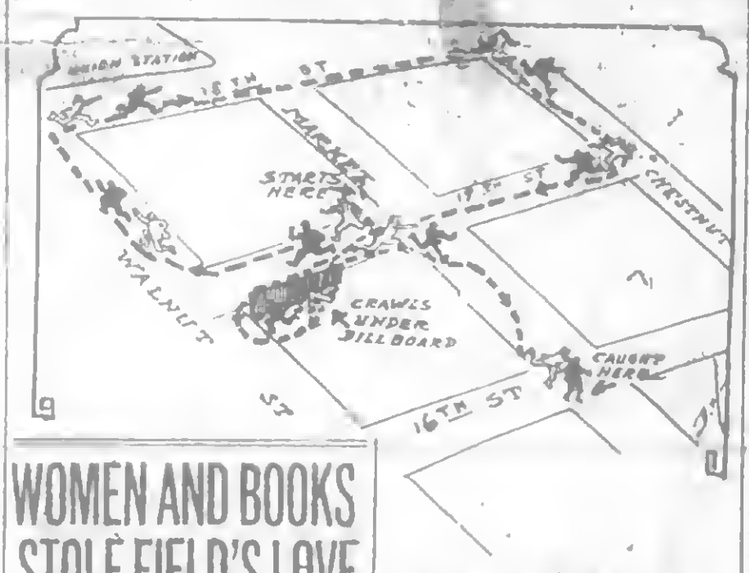
"I'm going to have a little fun in St. Louis," said Emma. "I'm here to raise Cain with your ministers. You know it's an old truth that 'the more ministers, the less human development and St. Louis seems to be suffering keenly with the affliction.



"Whether it knows it itself or not this city is becoming the laughing stock of civilized Europe through the ministers' crusade for a censor for the stage, particularly in England where they have such a thing established and where every thinking man and woman is raising a rumpus about it. The state can't teach genius any more than it can teach flowers to grow beautiful. It's just another breaking out of what Emerson termed 'the state ever in a conspiracy against the individual.'

"But to come back to the ministers and the dance. What are clothes, anyhow, but artificial devices to cover men's deficiencies? It is because people are so vulgar and coarse that we have adopted this puritanical folly and hidden the body so long that it has become disfigured.

"The high cost of living today is merely the natural outcome of trusts and centralized industry. It is the result of our hothouse training. Everything in the present system is artificial and it will have to be torn down from top to bottom. Clothes are the first artifice. You can put evening dress on a ninny and get him into the 'best society.' But let a genius go to a reception, sensibly attired, and he couldn't get into the house."



Miss Goldman had intended to remain in St. Louis only until Friday night. But she says if there is any chance of participating in a debate with one of the local ministers, she will stay until after Sunday. She will lecture Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at Druid's Hall, Ninth and Market streets.

TENNESSEE MAYOR AND MAN HE CAUGHT IN MARATHON THIEF CHASE

M. W. EWELL. GEORGE RODGERS.

Diagram sketch showing course of the chase that pursuer and pursued went before it ended

WOMEN AND BOOKS STOLE FIELD'S LOVE WIFE'S SUIT AVERS

Poet's Son Read All Night in His Bed, Is Her Complaint.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Feb. 1.—A fondness for adventures with other women and his passion for books lured Eugene Field Jr., son of the late poet, Eugene Field, away from his wife. Three weeks ago they agreed to disagree and he departed for the West. She has filed suit for divorce in the Superior Court.

The last previous appearance of Mrs. Field's name in public was in connection with that of George W. Peavey, a Minneapolis millionaire, about two years ago. At that time an elopement was asserted and denied. A trip to Europe figured in the gossip of the time.

At their home, 667 Pemberton avenue, last night, Mrs. Field, who was Mrs. Elinor Brooks previous to her marriage to Field, said she and her husband were still friendly, but were not [illegible] that he [illegible] was in the West and probably would go to Seattle, Wash., to live.

"We had differences which could not be adjusted, so we just decided to quit," said Mrs. Field.

"Mr. Field had an abnormal passion for books. He would sit up and read till broad daylight, and then I could not get him up for reasonable hour.

"A [illegible]

TENNESSEE MAYOR CAPTURES THIEF IN A LONG CHASE

Six-Foot Southerner Pursues Pickpocket Around Block for 20 Minutes.

M. W. Ewell, a six-foot Tennessean, Mayor of Dyersburg in "Old Hickory's" State, pursued for 20 minutes Tuesday and without a policeman's aid, caught George Rodgers, street car pickpocket, with a criminal record of 20 years. Among Rodgers' victims is Andrew M. Finley, vice-president of the Wallace-Pierce Oil Co.

The chase began just after Rodgers' hand in his pocket on a crowded Market car. [illegible]

'Round and 'round the blocks to the east of Union Station, through alleys, under billboards and in and out of back [illegible] visitor, who had arrived in St. Louis only a few minutes before, started his coat. Once the man [illegible] with a knife, but the Tennessean flashed a knife of his own and the almost-spent fugitive surrendered his booty.

At Sixteenth and [illegible] ing the thumb. The [illegible] handed over to [illegible]

YOUNG ALDRICH, DIVORCED IN JULY, WEDS MILLINER

By Wire from the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

UNSETTLED WEATHER AND COLDER, IS PREDICTION FOR NEXT TWENTY-FOUR HOURS

FOUR KILLED IN WRECK OF FAST MORNING PASSENGER

Flyer Collides With Freight in Early Morning at Wilson, Ind.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 1.—The fast [illegible] train on the Monon road which [illegible] at Wilson this morning collided with a freight [illegible] 35 miles above New [illegible]

706

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

890117031

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Emma Goldman's Talk As Heard by Miss Martyn / Emma Goldman. – p. 4 ; 28 cm. In St. Louis Post-Dispatch. –(Feb. 3, 1910).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

EMMA GOLDMAN'S TALK AS HEARD BY MISS MARTYN

Teachers Listen to Woman Anarchist's Attack on Modern Public Schools.

REPLIES TO QUERIES

Speaker Tells Audience That American Educators Aim at Quantity Only.

By MARGUERITE MARTYN.

THOSE ministers who have likened the attacks of Emma Goldman upon organized society to such ailments of childhood as measles and whooping cough, would have been surprised no doubt at the general maturity, the intensity and the high-browed appearance of the audience who so quietly submitted to such inoculation Wednesday night.

The occasion was Emma Goldman's anarchistic lecture on "Francisco Ferrer and the Modern School." The subject no doubt accounted for the predominance of public school teachers and other educators in the audience. The speaker's eulogy of Ferrer, her comparison of his work with that of Froebel, Pestalozzi and Tolstoi was accepted with the bitter denunciation of the Roman Catholic Church, responsible, in her opinion, for the death of Ferrer.

The declaration of her belief that from the moment of Ferrer's death his work became universally alive, was applauded enthusiastically. Another period in Miss Goldman's address which brought forth applause was when she declared France to be the cradle of liberty and a woman, Louisa Michel, the originator of the modern school.

Answers Questions Asked by Auditors.

SHE was asked, "What is the difference between the modern school and the public school of America?

What effect has the modern school anarchy upon the child?

Are the accusations of the Catholic church that the Masons instigated the fe occasioned by the death of Ferrer in any way justifiable?"

Miss Goldman answered the questions at great length. The teachers heard the American system reviled from first to last.

"American schools ignore quality while they exploit quantity," she said. "Their method of education consists of two things, discipline and restraint, which is all right for creating little slaves.

"It is necessary to educate the educators that they must respect the personality and physical needs of the child. At present the idea prevails that children are created for the convenience of the teachers only. They provide them only with what Goethe called predigested food, which the parent and grandparent has chewed over for generations. They seem to think that teaching is the greatest art in the world, where in the training, coloring, outlining of character [illegible] with live material, real [illegible] human, ideas."

[illegible] of Use of Pencils Is Insisted.

One [illegible] hour after another was exploded—sufficient if they had taken effect to annihi-late the entire system of school in this country, but the stolidity of the two policemen on guard at the door was not disturbed until an individual of huge physique arose while a collection was being made to further the cause of free speech, and demanded that Emma Goldman and her associate, Dr. Reitman, be made to show proof of their good faith in the appropriation of this fund.

Police interference, which is always a part of the conventional report of Emma Goldman's meetings, was imminent until the big man, who of course was a Socialist, was assured that the contributions of his neighbors were protected by the proper credentials.

Miss Goldman lectures on "Woman's Suffrage" Thursday, and Sunday afternoon upon "The Drama." This last subject she will treat with particular reference to a situation which now is peculiar to this community. She believes she will show the drama to be the greatest disseminator of radicalism and the most formidable enemy of the clergy, and she proudly says she will do her utmost to make her doctrines dangerous to organized society and the church as it exists today.

Rich in Cod Liver Oil

WOMAN ANARCHIST SKETCHED AT LECTURE AND SOME OF THOSE WHO SURROUNDED HER

Ward Club to Give Dance.

With William L. Igo, member of the House of Delegates from the ward, acting as musical director, the annual dance of the Twenty-first Ward Democratic Club will be held at Hibernian Hall, 3619 Finney avenue, Thursday evening. A vaudeville program has been arranged.

The Post-Dispatch is the only evening newspaper in St. Louis that receives or publishes news gathered by the Associated Press.

Stabbed by One-Armed Highwayman.

Two highwaymen, one of them minus an arm, accosted Anton Saake in the doorway of his home at 1204 South Third street Wednesday night. One of the robbers choked him while the one-armed man took $5 cents from his pockets. A roll of bills in Saake's inner vest pocket was overlooked.

Busy Bee Bargain Day Tomorrow
Bag Assorted Caramels and Nougat 5c lb

7 1-2 CENT FARE IS OPPOSED

Belleville Merchants Ask Council Reject Street Railway Offer.

ADAM HAD NEGRO BROTHER, BELIEF OF A MISSIONARY

Dr. E. H. Richards Believes Eden's Tenant Had Several Fraternal Kinsmen.

NOT DUE TO CLIMATE

Preacher Repudiates Theory That Sun and Condition Produced Ethiopian.

That the negro did not get his color from Ham and that he is not even a member of the race of Adam, but a descendent of some four or five brothers that he thinks Adam must have had, is the theory advanced by the Rev. Dr. Edwin H. Richards, one of the African missionaries here for the Laymen's Evangelical Convention which opens Thursday in the Armory, Grand and Menchester avenues.

Dr. Richards has spent 30 years with the black men in Africa. He is stationed in Uganda, in deepest Africa. He thinks ex-President Roosevelt is one of the greatest teachers of the age.

"I am glad Roosevelt is in Africa," said Dr. Richards to a Post-Dispatch reporter at the Marquette Hotel. "There are those who criticise him for shooting wild animals, but he need not spare them. We have great fields with tens of thousands of them there and if he places a few in the Smithsonian Institute's where our children can enjoy them forever, I don't think he is to be censured.

From his 30 years of observation and study of the negro in his native Ethiopia Dr. Richards has reached the following conclusions:

"The negro never came from Ham. You cannot get a black man from a white one either by time or conditions. There is no verse of Scripture that maintains any such idea. The notion that the negro came from Ham is from the commentaries and not from the Bible.

PREACHER WHO ADVANCES NEW THEORIES OF RACE

DR. EDWIN H. RICHARDS

"The Boer has been in Africa 400 years and you can't stand in the same 10-acre lot with him and tell him that he's getting black. There'd be only one of you left and it would be the Boer. The Boer and his woman are as fair as ours and fairer and there is no tendancy to darkness in them. Our Arab friend has been there 3000 years that we know of and his hair is as straight, his nose as aquiline, and his complexion as Asiatic as those of his brothers who remained in Asia.

"The black man is co-Adamic with Adam. Adam probably had about four brothers that the Bible doesn't mention.

Negro Created for Africa.

"The black man is altogether different from a son of Adam. The nose, the growth on his head where we have hair, and his lips, these are things that time and sun will not change.

"God Almighty knew what he was doing when he made the black man and he made him for Ethiopia. On a cold morning in Uganda when I would arise well clothed and run up and down to get warm, rows of negroes would just stand and absorb the heat through their backs and then face around take it in on the other side of the body. My body was fashioned to accept heat when it caught it, the negro's to absorb and repel it as the circumstance required.

"The growth on the top of the black man's head is not hair. It does not even feel like hair. It is a fibrous kind of grass. If you examine it, you will see that a thread of it is triangular where yours is round. The nose is not flattened as was Adam's. It was made to breathe in Ethiopia."

Busy Bee Bargain Day Tomorrow.
Bag Assorted Caramels and Nougat 5c lb.

Japan Increasing Naval Strength.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Feb. 2.—Twenty-one warships, to be added to the Japanese navy before 1917, are included in the new Japanese naval program. Four dreadnoughts, five cruisers and two dispatch boats are nearing completion and other vessels will be laid down soon.

Bailey Market

Central 6282

Bring your basket and let us fill it and see if it's worth while. Hundreds of children come daily and get what they are sent for.

With This Ad and $2.00 Purchase, $5.00 in Stamps Free.
With This Ad and $3.50 Purchase, $10.00 in Stamps Free.

$10.00 in Stamps with 50c Tea.
$5.00 in Stamps with 30c Coffee.
$3.00 in Stamps with 25c Coffee.
$4.00 in Stamps with 25c Pepper.
$1.00 in Stamps with 10c Bottle Vanilla.
$4.00 in Stamps with 80c can Baking Powder.
$1.00 in Stamps with 30c Bitter Chocolate.
$3.00 in Stamps with 25c Scouring.
$4.00 in Stamps with 30c Scouring Powder.
$5.00 in Stamps with 35c Washing Powder.

Best Lard, Guaranteed Pure, 2 pounds 25c

Bologna Sausage, 8 lbs. 25c
Frankfurter Sausage, 3 lbs. 25c
Wieners, 3 lbs. 25c
Smoked Meat Sausage, 3 lbs. 25c
Corned Sausage, 3 lbs. 25c
Boiled Ham, lb. 25c
Smoked Shoulder, lb. 20c
Smoked Meat of Pork, lb. 15c
Dry Salt Pork, lb. 12½c
Pickled Pork, lb. 12½c
7 bars Pearl Soap 25c
3 cans Salmon 25c
3 cans 2-3 Peas or Corn 25c

Post-Toasties, Pancake Flour, Buckwheat Flour, 3 Packages 25c

Crackers—
Oil Sardines—
Sack Salt—
Ammonia—Bluing—Mustard—
3 FOR 10c

4 lbs. Prunes 15c
Seedless Raisins, pkg., 5c
2 lbs. Apricots (fine), 25c
Dried Apples, lb . . . 10c
4 cans Apples 25c
Sweet Relish, bottle, 5c
Pickle Relish, 2 jars, 15c
2 bottles Catsup . . . 15c
2 jars Mustard . . . 15c
2 cans Red Salmon, 15c
4 lbs. Barley . . . 15c

5 Cans Best TOMATOES for 35c

Kidney Beans, lb. . . . 5c
4 lbs. Good Rice . . . 15c
2 cans Salmon . . . 15c
8 cans Hominy . . . 25c
Fine Prunes, lb. . . . 6c
2 cans Syrup . . . 15c
2 cans Peas . . . 15c
2 cans Corn . . . 15c
3 pkgs. Jell-O . . . 25c
2 pkgs. Mother's Oats, 15c
2 pkgs. Corn Flakes, 15c
2 pkgs. Graham Crackers . . . 15c
6 lbs. Fine Rice . . . 25c
2 lbs. Whole Rice . . . 15c
2 lbs. Butter Beans, 15c
6 lbs. Navy Beans, 25c

Table Peaches, Pears, and Egg Plums, Reduced from 12½c to 10c per can

Corn Sweet Peas, per can 10c
Large Cans Blueberries 10c
6 boxes Excelsior Matches 25c
6 cans Pumpkin 25c
Spaghetti or Macaroni, lb. 5c
Imported Olive Oil, bottle 25c
3 lbs. Starch 25c
5 lbs. Wash Blue 25c

Special Prices on Large Sheets of Pure Ice

Fine Apple Pie 5c
Fine Cranberry Pie 5c
Pumpkin Pie 5c
Washington Pie 5c
Prune Pie 5c
Apricot Pie 5c
Raisin Pie 5c
2 large Loaves Bread 5c
2 dozen Rolls 15c
2 Layer Cakes 30c
Pound Cake 30c
Cream Puffs, 2 for 5c
Round Roast, lb. 8c
Sirloin Roast, lb. 8c
Leg Veal, lb 8c
Loin Veal Roast, lb 10c
Veal Cutlets, lb. 12½c
Boneless Beef Stew, lb. 6⅔c

Kline's

A Remarkable Sale of Coats

350 Tailored Coats, Values From $18.50 to $39.75, at $9.75 and $14.75

This is the final sale of our Winter Coats. It includes practically every fine Coat in our stock, and the reductions are truly remarkable. Not a Coat in the entire lot but has been cut to a price considerably less than manufacturers' cost.

350 Tailored Coats

In 2 Great Lots as Follows:

$18.50, $22.50 and $25.00 Coats on Sale Friday

$9.75

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

890125008

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Interview] Drama Is Aid to Anarchy Emma Goldman Asserts... / Emma Goldman. – p. III: 7 ; 43 cm. In St. Louis Post-Dispatch. – (Feb. 6, 1910).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH SUNDAY MOR

DRAMA IS AID TO ANARCHY EMMA GOLDMAN ASSERTS IN A TALK WITH MISS MARTYN

Woman Who Exploits Propaganda of Radicalism Declares That Stage Is Teaching a Lesson in Its Own Way—Personality Off the Lecture Platform Is Analyzed.

By MARGUERITE MARTYN.

PERHAPS it is time our preachers and moralists would busy themselves about censoring the theater, for the drama has come within the pale of anarchism. Emma Goldman has decided to take up its defense.

Not that the theater as a whole pleases Emma Goldman. Far be it from her rebellious soul to be pleased with any existing institution or condition.

But she asserts that America has produced one play to her liking, namely, "The Easiest Way." And she rejoices that the drama shows signs of a sweeping revolution in Europe.

"The drama is the most powerful and liberal disseminator of radicalism and the propaganda of anarchism, in its own way, today," to use her own words.

Emma Goldman, individualist, arrayed against all our cherished institutions, surmounting somehow, the strenuous surveillance, threats and imprisonment by so mighty an institution as our Government, withstanding the almost national condemnation of our independent press, remains as steadfastly unyielding in her convictions and continues to express them as vigorously as ever.

Moreover, many superficial observations indicate that Emma Goldman is prospering. Her meetings in the past week in St. Louis have been attended by four or five hundred men and women nightly and the appearance of the audiences have been surprising—white collared, kid gloved and high browed—considering the shabby obscurity and inaccessibility of Druids Hall, where she has spoken.

Interruption Is Resented By an Interested Audience

To be sure these meetings have not been altogether free from disturbance. On one occasion a group of representatives of various nationalities arose and asked questions which were quite beside the subject. Emma Goldman herself complained of his demand for free speech, but the interruption was so disturbing to the logical spell into which the artist's fascinating eulogy of Peary and Perry had thrown her audience as to be shocking indeed.

Other indications of her prosperity may be social favors. At any rate Miss Goldman has been feted by various literary lights and persons of social prominence in St. Louis.

Last night she was the guest of honor of the Artists' Guild.

However, it probably is in her personality that the greatest danger to her opponents lurks. It requires constant assertion and reassertion of her personality to obliterate the traditional idea that the anarchist, Queen of the Reds must be dark visaged, red-mouthed, flaming tongued, dagger fingered, slow eyed and terrible.

Consumed with her subject, tragically sensible of the responsibility of the cause resting heavily upon her gifted pen when not on platform, Emma Goldman's natural appearance, I have said, is entirely submerged.

EMMA GOLDMAN

In [illegible] she is quite an ordinary looking woman. The moment her lecture is [illegible] she becomes extremely gracious and delightfully pleasant conversationalist and notwithstanding in native coquetry. The lines of her face relax, [illegible] with the freshness of [illegible] and her eyes apart from [illegible] are the most [illegible]

Yesterday [illegible] rooms at the Mayfair, [illegible] little bundle [illegible] forty. And when [illegible] advance agent, [illegible] Tramp" kept [illegible] her and [illegible] only to [illegible] Emma Goldman [illegible] contending [illegible] who [illegible]

Personality Is Attractive When She Is Off Platform

[illegible] Goldman is [illegible] personality [illegible] described. [illegible] several persons [illegible] the platform, [illegible] of [illegible] make her [illegible] with [illegible] Sunday [illegible]

[illegible] point [illegible] there. [illegible] which does not be [illegible] like [illegible] worship has not advanced further than to employ the young [illegible] to replace it.

Famous Authors Are to Be Cited In Coming Address

"[illegible] Power of Darkness" [illegible] organized to [illegible] keep the world in darkness. I shall talk of Ibsen to show Ibsen's conception of religion, dealing with [illegible] Before Sunrise, Lonely Lives and [illegible] which I shall [illegible] Ibsen's [illegible] like [illegible] worship has not advanced further than to employ the young [illegible] to replace it.

"77"

Hunphreys' [illegible]

CHILDREN COLLECT $27 FOR THE FAMILY OF SICK PRINTER

Give Entertainment at Third Baptist Mission and Others Help With Cash.

Twenty-seven dollars was collected at the entertainment given by children at the Third Baptist Mission, 3124 Laclede avenue, for the benefit of Alphonse Camp, 4470 Easton avenue.

Camp and his family were in a destitute condition until friends read of their plight in the Post-Dispatch and hastened to relieve them. Camp, a job printer, had been attempting to support his family by working in bed, to which he is confined with rheumatism. His wife [illegible] fonts to him and he set [illegible] and corrected the type. The woman ran the hand bills off on a press which she operated with her foot.

The children who gave the entertainment Friday night were former customers of Camp when he had a candy store on Laclede avenue. The idea of the entertainment was originated by Helen [illegible] daughter of W. G. Bess, [illegible] Laclede avenue. Little Miss Bess has figured prominently in [illegible] entertainments for several years.

Others who took part in the children's drama benefit for Camp were Gertrude Doris, Virginia and Helen Mandeger, Allie and Hawes Davis, Margaret and Bartlette Stone, Esther and Willie Taylor, Leona and Jeanette Silvey, Mattie Hall, Hester Bess, Inez Roberts and the Misses Mary M. Madden and Laura Bolles.

The children send [illegible] for the entertainment.

The St. Louis Provident Association has made arrangements to have Camp and his family removed to the country. To help the family temporarily [illegible] sums of money have been given by office employes of the Sawyer Med Iron [illegible] Chestnut street, and by the employes of the St. Louis Law Printing [illegible] where Camp formerly was employed.

Give Your Stomach A Vacation

By Using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Which Digest Food Without Any Aid.

A Trial Package Sent Free.

The stomach should have a rest when it is tired out and irritated from dyspepsia and indigestion. One should not call upon the stomach in this condition to do its full and complete duty. What the stomach needs is natural assistance and when this is given it the stomach responds quickly to the needed rest and comes back to its duties refreshed and invigorated.

When you feel as though your stomach were a piece of lead, when gases or foul odor issue from your throat, when your tongue is coated and your appetite gone, it is high time to send your stomach on a vacation.

The stomach is constantly coming in contact with foreign substances, which it must reduce in form to give strength and health to the other organs of the body. It is the commissary department of the human system and must furnish from such supplies as come to it all that such a system demands.

If the stomach becomes deranged and cannot furnish all that is necessary, it weakens the entire machinery of man and is itself placed out of commission. It cannot cure itself because the curative powers of Nature receive their force from the stomach so that if the stomach issues imperfect nourishment it cannot receive perfect curative means for its own benefit.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets impart all the power, vigor and strength necessary to the stomach. They do the stomach's work and without call on this organ for assistance.

If you would put your meal in a glass jar and with it place the correct amount of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets you could sit down and watch these little tablets digest the meal as perfectly as the most healthy stomach. This demonstration has

Sale

Of Furn
With E

Sever tomor purch of all which servic tionat ing o is nov

Mahoga

$42.50 3-Piece Leath
$48.75 3-Piece Leath
$50.00 3-Piece Leath
$62.00 3-Piece Leath
$69.00 3-Piece Leath
$78.00 3-Piece Leath
$80.00 3-Piece Silk
$98.00 8-Piece Pann
$115.00 3-Piece Silk

Din

$ 3 50 Golden Oak,
$ 4 00 Golden Oak,
$ 4 25 Golden Oak,
$ 4 50 Golden Oak,
$ 5 00 Golden Oak,
$ 5 50 Mahogany, L
$ 6 75 Solid Mahog
$ 7 85 Solid Mahog
$ 8 50 Solid Mhg., L
$ 9 50 Solid Mahog
$10 50 Solid Mhg., L
$13 85 Solid Mhg., L

Exter

$12.00 E. E. or G. O
$14.50 E. E. or G. O
$18.00 E. E. or G. O
$15.00 E. E. or G. O
$20.00 E. E. or G. O
$24.75 E. E. or G. O
$30.00 E. E. or G. O
$37.50 E. E. or G. O
$40.00 E. E. or G. O
$55.00 Mahogany S
$67.50 Mahogany S

Parlor and

$23 Mhg. Arm Cha
$25 Mhg. Rocker
$35 Mhg. Wing Ar
$36 Mhg. Wing Ro
$39 Mhg. Wing Ar
$40 Mhg. Wing Ar
$40 Mhg. Rocker

708

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

890125008

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Interview] Drama Is Aid to Anarchy Emma Goldman Asserts... / Emma Goldman. – p. III: 7 ; 43 cm. In St. Louis Post-Dispatch. – (Feb. 6, 1910).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

Interruption Is Resented By an Interested Audience

Personality Is Attractive When She Is Off Platform

Famous Authors Are to Be Cited In Coming Address

Christianity's Teaching of Sacrifice Hotly Denounced

"ART, like all that is right proves itself. Time is the test. And the classic decree goes all the way back to ancient Greece for its authority.

"And if right survives do you think the Christian religion will prevail?"

"No, because Christianity teaches the great lie which is sacrifice. Submission, self denial, self abnegation, make a slave morality. Life was never intended as a penance.

"Yet no man can develop all his senses equally and be thoroughly well balanced as Nature intended within the scope of the organized church. You become a faintist to yourself when you live up to the teachings of the church."

Give Your Stomach A Vacation

By Using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Which Digest Food Without Any Aid

A Trial Package Sent Free

The stomach should have a rest when it is tired out and irritated from dyspepsia and indigestion. One should not call upon the stomach in this condition to do its full and complete duty. What the stomach needs is natural assistance and when this is given it the stomach responds quickly to the needed rest and comes back to its duties refreshed and invigorated.

When you feel as though your stomach were a piece of lead, when gases or foul odor issue from your throat, when your tongue is coated and your appetite gone it is high time to send your stomach on a vacation.

The stomach is constantly coming in contact with foreign substances, which it must reduce in form to give strength and health to the other organs of the body. It is the commissary department of the human system and must furnish from such supplies as come to it all that such a system demands.

If the stomach becomes deranged and cannot furnish all that is necessary it weakens the entire machinery of man and is itself placed out of commission. It cannot cure itself because the curative powers of Nature receive their force from the stomach so that if the stomach issues imperfect nourishment it cannot receive perfect curative means for its own benefit.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets impart all the power, vigor and strength necessary to the stomach. They do the stomach's work and without calling on this organ for assistance.

If you would put your meal in a glass jar and with it place the correct amount of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets you could sit down and watch those little tablets digest the meal as perfectly as the most healthy stomach. This demonstration has been made in almost every state in the Union by these tablets, one grain of a single ingredient being capable of digesting 3000 grains of food.

If you have the slightest doubt about your stomach, go to the nearest drug store and buy a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, price 50c, or send us your name and address and we will immediately send you by mail a trial package free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

"77"

Humphreys' Seventy-Seven Famous Remedy for Colds & GRIP

LA GRIPPE, INFLUENZA is known by a general sense of illness, pains or soreness over the entire system or in the Head, Back or Limbs, Sore Throat or Cough, sometimes very obstinate, hoarseness, and often pain in the breast or side, sneezing, running from the nose, or weeping, itching, and redness of the eyelids. In some cases the sense of general soreness at some particular part, in others, the cough and hoarseness or the sore throat, or, again, the profuse catarrh or flowing from the eyes and nose are most prominent. The appetite is impaired, the whole nervous system involved, and much depressed and run down, recovery is slow, and after effects continue, in many cases, to show themselves for a considerable time. It is, therefore, desirable that the disease should be promptly taken in hand. "Everything is Grippe while Grippe prevails."

TREATMENT: "Seventy seven" is the remedy and cure. It meets the epidemic condition and is the cure for all its manifestations. Taken early it cuts it short promptly, taken during its prevalence, prevents its invasion; taken while suffering from it, a relief is speedily realized, which may be continued up to entire cure. Six pellets, every two hours, or in extreme cases every hour, is the rule. "Seventy seven" breaks up hard stubborn colds that cling.

Handy to carry, fits the vest pocket. All Drug Stores, 25 cents.

Humphreys Homeo Medicine Co. Cor. William and Ann Streets, New York.

REMINGTON, $18.75

One machine only in new local office to secure desirable agent. Special Agents' prices supplied on all makes of typewriters.

Standard Typewriter Exchange, 23 Park Row, New York.

FUN AND MONEY IN HYPNOTISM

YOU MAY BECOME A HYPNOTIST

Not a Natural Gift—Anyone of Ordinary Intelligence Can Master This Wonder-Science.

It takes but a few hours time. The study is both easy and fascinating. Hypnotism is an endless source of fun and wonder. If you know how to hypnotize you can perform the most marvelous feats imaginable. You can do a thousand amazing things that other people cannot do. You can surprise all your friends and make yourself famous. You can place others under this strange and magic spell and compel them to think, act and feel just as you wish. You can study the minds of others and create fun and amusement for hours at a time. Through hypnotism you can reform the vicious and cure diseases and bad habits. It will open to you a new and wonderful path to the attainment of your fondest ambitions in life. If you want to MAKE MONEY you can do it by giving entertainments, curing diseases or teaching the art to others. These are three sure and easy ways to win a fortune. Why be poor? Why work for others when you can master this money-making profession so easily? Investigate NOW. For full free particulars write to M. D. Hotta, Station 44, Peekskill, Michigan.

Dini

$ 3 50 Golden Oak, L
$ 4 00 Golden Oak L
$ 4 25 Golden Oak L
$ 4 50 Golden Oak L
$ 5 00 Golden Oak L
$ 5 50 Mahogany Le
$ 6 75 Solid Mahoga
$ 7 85 Solid Mahoga
$ 8 50 Solid Mhg., Le
$ 9 50 Solid Mahoga
$10 50 Solid Mhg., Le
$13 85 Solid Mhg., Le

Extens

$12.00 E. E. or G. O.
$14.50 E. E. or G. O.
$16.00 E. E. or G. O.
$18.00 E. E. or G. O.
$20.00 E. E. or G. O.
$24.75 E. E. or G. O.
$30.00 E. E. or G. O.
$37.50 E. E. or G. O.
$40.00 E. E. or G. O.
$55.00 Mahogany 8-ft
$67.50 Mahogany 8-ft

Parlor and L

$23 Mhg. Arm Chair
$25 Mhg. Rocker—Ar
$35 Mhg. Wing Arm
$36 Mhg. Wing Rock
$39 Mhg. Wing Arm
$40 Mhg. Wing Arm
$40 Mhg. Rocker—Ta
$45 Mhg. Wing Chair
$59 Mhg. Arm Chair
$63 Mhg. Arm Chair
$67 Mhg. Arm Chair

Sample

$45 Haviland China D
$60 Haviland China D
$33 Austrian China D
$28.75 Austrian China
$20 Austrian China D
$20.00 American Por
pieces
$16.50 American Por
pieces
$15.00 American Por pieces
$12.00 American Porc pieces

Sample Din

20, 22 and 24 inch size
– art glass.
$49.00 Dor
$45.00 Dor
$32.50 Dor
$16.50 Dor
$15.00 Dor

Bedding

Silkoline Comfor
white cotton, fil
this week $1
$2.50 Wool Nap Blan
—gray, white or t
11-4 size, this w pair $1
$3.00 Feather Pillo pounds to pair week . $1

709

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

890125006

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Elite Peek at "Red" Emma, She Peeks at Them / Emma Goldman. – pp. III: 1, 5 ; 43 cm. In St. Louis Post-Dispatch. –(Feb. 6, 1910).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

FLITTING STORK KEEPS HARGADINE WEALTH IN COURT

Girl Babies Born to Heirs So Fast Estate Can't Be Divided.

ANOTHER IS IMMINENT

For Three Years Cooes From Crib Have Balked Best Legal Talent.

Babies are arriving so fast in the homes of heirs of the late William A. Hargadine, one of the millionaire founders of the Hargadine McKittrick Dry Goods Co., that lawyers and the courts are wondering whether the estate ever will be settled.

Several hundred thousand dollars worth of real estate is being held in trust by Cashier William H. Thompson of the Boatmen's Bank to be turned into cash for the beneficiaries. But babies have persistently interposed legal obstacles.

These cherubs have not only defied the courts and lawyers in their advent they have thwarted the plans of their grandfather, Mr. Thompson, who has been striving for three years to get a court settling. Each time a petition has been filed, however, a new increment of birth in the family has necessitated legal process to a halt, for under the law no estate can be settled while children of the appearance of every babe.

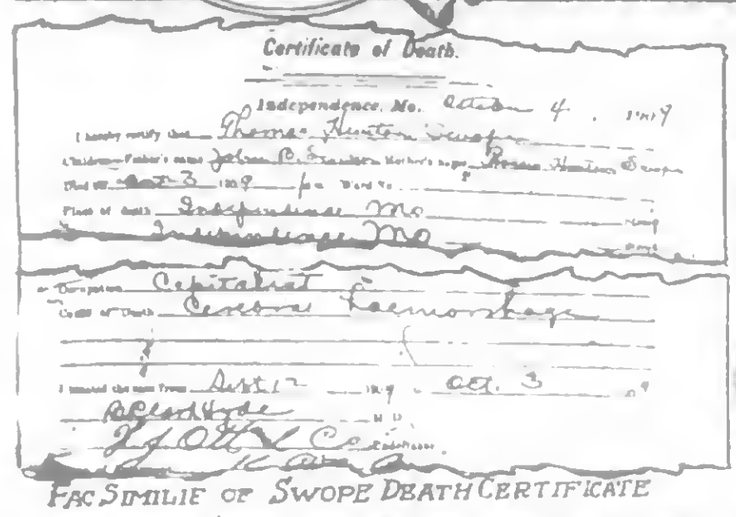
Amending petitions has caused delays and no end of trouble for William T. Jones, attorney, who is handling the case for his firm.

Girls Are the Cause.

And all the tumult has been caused by dancing, gladsome baby girls. They are the Misses Ann Thomson, three years old, daughter of Lieut. and Mrs. Shuma Thomson, three of Hitchcock, Ariz.; Virginia Holmes Tracy, 6 months, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Tracy of 4127 Westminster place, and Elizabeth Meredith Collins, 2 months, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Collins at 30 Lenox place.

While Grandpa Thomson has been called to hold several times by the purring lisps of infant voices, these interruptions have not ruffled him. On the contrary, they have stirred his risibilities. He has had several good laughs at the learned attorneys and staid benchmen who have been forced to check their legal machinery at the behest of his progeny.

And then, too, we can ridicule the charge that the stork shuns the homes of West Enders.



William H. Hargadine, great grandfather of the little girls who have successively and successfully stumped the courts, died Jan. 2, 1892. His fortune consisted of money and real estate, much of the latter being ogas Fifteenth street and Washington avenue, heart of the new wholesale district. This property has been enhanced in value, and the heirs have discussed the advisability of disposing of it. Under the terms of the Hargadine will there is a question as to whether the trustees could sell and give good title. The right of conveyance in deed will be the main point at issue.

To determine this, according to At-

Continued on Page 8, Col 5.

SWOPE HEIRESS, HER HUSBAND, EXECUTOR AND FACSIMILE OF DEATH CERTIFICATE

Certificate of Death.

Independence, Mo. March 4, 1909

I hereby certify that Thomas Hunton Swope

Father's name John C. Swope Mother's maiden name Susan Hunton Swope

Died on March 3 1909 [illegible] Ward

Place of death Independence Mo [illegible]

Usual residence Independence Mo [illegible]

Occupation Capitalist Length of time [illegible]

Cause of death General Hemorrhage [illegible]

I attended the deceased from March 1 1909 to March 3 1909

Address Austin Texas [illegible]

Dr. B.C. Hyde M.D.

Date March 4 1909 [illegible]

FAC SIMILIE OF SWOPE DEATH CERTIFICATE

JOHN G. PAXTON

SWOPES' SECRETS WILL BE BARED A CORONER'S INQUE

Members of Family, Who Have Voluntary Prisoners in Man sion, to Testify.

TEMPORARY TRUCE STOP TAKING OF DEPOSIT

Evidence Submitted by Nurses and the of Chemists Who Examined Bodies Poison to Play Important Part in the Hearing.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 5.—When Coroner B. begins taking testimony Monday morning at 10 o'clo Independence Courthouse in the inquest into the dea Thomas H. Swope, the Swope mansion at Independence to give up the secrets which have been locked within its ing the weeks that an investigation into the deaths of and his nephew, Chrisman Swope, has been in progress.

The doors of the great house in Swope place will Mrs. Logan H. Swope and her daughters, who have been prisoners for nearly a month, will come forth and tell about the circumstances of the philanthropist's death circumstances which have made the Swope mansion a nation-wide interest.

With them will come the nurses whose revolt started the investigation which led up to the exhumation of the bodies of Col. Swope and Chrisman Swope and the inquest. Their lips, doubly sealed by the wishes of the family and the ethics of their profession, will open at the Coroner's behest and they will tell what their trained eyes saw in the wrecks that they cared for Col. Swope and Chrisman Swope and the other sufferers from the epidemic which made the Swope mansion a place of mystery and death.

Dr. Hyde to Subpoenaed.

Dr. B. Clark Hyde, one of the physicians who attended Col. Swope and Chrisman Swope and other members of the family, will be called upon to testify. He was subpoenaed by Coroner Zwart today. And Dr. Frank J. Hall and Dr. William L. Stewart, who made investigations after the deaths, will tell the result of those inquiries. Dr. O. T. Twyman, the family physician, will break the silence he has felt obligated to maintain.

Dr. Ludwig Hektoen of Rush Medical College in Chicago will tell of his examination of the stomachs of Col. Swope and Chrisman Swope and give the result of his pathological research, partial reports of which already have been made public.

John G. Paxton, attorney of Mrs. Logan Swope and one of the executors of the Swope estate, who has directed the investigation, will add to the information made when his deposition was taken last Thursday, and Coroner Zwart will testify.

And when all these pieces of the much of mystery which has surrounded the house of Swope will have faded away before the light of their testimony.

Further Taking of Depositions Is Deferred Until After the I

Defeat of Dr. Hyde's attorneys today in the battle for priority in the taking of depositions in damage suits he has instituted renders it unlikely that further attempts will be made to take depositions until after the inquest. The hearing held here by Judge Powell of Independence on the application of Hyde's attorneys, Frank P. Walsh and J. M. Cleary, for an injunction against Reed, Atwood, Yates, Mastin and Herzog and John F. Green, to restrain them from taking depositions developed the fact that Walsh and Cleary had forfeited their right to ask for an injunction, because they had failed to keep their deposition process alive by adjourning from day to day, as required by Judge Brumbach's order when he granted a temporary restraining order against the Reed firm Thursday.

Right for Deposition Lapses.

The injunction was asked on the ground that Walsh and Cleary had a prior right to take depositions. The discovery that their prior rights had been allowed to lapse took the ground from under them. Judge Powell, however, deferred final action to give Walsh and Cleary a chance to ask Judge Brumbach to reinstate the language of his entry, which it is not expected he will do.

Unless he does so, the Reed firm and Mr. Green will have their say in Dr. Hyde's suit for his deposition only with leave to adjourn from day to day as [illegible]

Many surprises are sprung by each side [illegible] That the full report of chemists, when it is presented to the coroner's jury by Dr. Hektoen, will contain a number of these surprises was attributed today to [illegible] the cage.

Await Inquest Di

"We have not made demand for the results of analysis made by Dr. Hektoen," the attorneys [illegible] opportunity to demand. We simply ask Dr. Hektoen makes his Coroner's jury. Then it is necessary we may Court to appoint a to investigate the and make a new analysis of the viscera. That the first tests as to such analysis."

Importance to [illegible] analysis of the elixir, Spangler, the valet Swope, testified [illegible] ing the several days died. This is [illegible] taining [illegible] could be obtained [illegible]

YOUTH IN WEST VIR WRITES 'TEAR ME OF COL. THOMAS

KANSAS CITY, M

ELMER C. SWOP burg, W. Va., in ceived this aft Prosecuting Attorney W ling, says he is the Thomas H. Swope. reads:

I see by the ne my father, Col. Th Swope, died under circumstances. I woul their particulars.

The writer gives h himself, Col. Swope married, so for as a knows. Mrs. Logan sister-in-law, says he

FORD JURY HELD ALL NIGHT IN BLACKMAIL CASE

Judge's Instructions Favor Woman Accused by Warriner, Railway Embezzler.

By Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 5. After many hours consideration the jury in the case of Mrs. Jeanette Stewart Ford accused of blackmail, was unable to reach a verdict and was locked [illegible] this a.m.

Mrs. Ford is charged with having extorted large sums of money from Charles L. Warriner, defaulting treasurer of the Big Four Railroad, who was convicted on his confession that he had embezzled $[illegible].

When court convened this morning counsel for the defense rested the case and the jury began its deliberations. Mrs. Ford was depicted as a [illegible] who had been seized by a maniacal desire of Edgar Stuart Cooke of Chicago and Warriner.

The State rested its case and Judge Swing then charged the jury. He defined the law of blackmail and instructed them that the mere fact that Mrs. Ford knew of the Big Four shortage would not prove her guilt. The charge was accepted as favorable to the defendant.

Her Child in Court.

All day long Mrs. Ford sat in the courtroom, crying bitterly and watching the antics of her little girl, Jeannette Ford. She came to the court at 9 o'clock this morning fully an hour before the session began. She heard the pleas of her attorneys, William Thorndyke, heard the instructions to the jury and then burst out crying as they filed in the jury room. She refused to be comforted either by Mrs. Mellermott, who sat beside her, or her maid, Susie.

Thorndyke left the room shortly after the jury had been instructed and did not return until in the afternoon. In his plea for his client he said the prosecution had proved nothing against her, that she was not a criminal, that she had taken money from Edgar Street Cooke and Charles L. Warriner, but that it had been taken from Cooke as a partial reparation for the wrongs he had done her and from Warriner purely as a friend and as one who stood forth to help her when the Cookes had treated her badly.

Prosecutor Cash that Warriner was as "white as the driven snow in comparison to the others in this mess of scoundrels," adding the Court if it were possible to be pleas as snow and still steal nearly a million dollars from one's employers.

He pleaded with the jury to end the injustice being done this woman, of [illegible] in the case had thrown [illegible] but said both the [illegible] and the [illegible]

SLAYER'S LAWYER OBJECTS TO 20-YEAR VERDICT, SO JUDGE GIVES HIM A CHANCE TO DIE

Attorney Asks New Trial, as Matter of Course, and Plea Is Unexpectedly Granted.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—If [illegible] killed a man and been tried for murder, the penalty for which is death, and the jury, after finding it guilty, spends [illegible] hours, [illegible] in a verdict of second degree murder, which at worst is only 20 years in prison, and your prisoner [illegible] and stands [illegible] the request and [illegible] a judge's good [illegible] of being [illegible] what would you be mad?

That is what occurred in Judge Goff's court today. Edward Metire was tried and convicted [illegible] Lawyer Hubbard [illegible] and who had been assigned to defend Metire made the usual motion for a new trial and the setting aside of the verdict. [illegible] the room [illegible] Hubbard [illegible] Metire [illegible] Nothing [illegible] Assistant District Attorney Morse.

Motion granted. [illegible] Lawyer Hubbard arose and [illegible] I take an exception to [illegible] ruling," said Lawyer Hubbard.

"How so you," asked Judge Goff, "when I have granted your motion?"

"I didn't think [illegible] that was I wanted [illegible] insisted Lawyer Hubbard.

Judge Goff shook his head and discharged the jurors.

McIlrath was wild with rage. Judge Goff instructed Mr. Morse to put the McIlrath case on trial again forthwith.

IT IS BOUND TO BE COLD AND FAIR UNTIL MONDAY, THE WEATHER MAN THINKS

THE TEMPERATURES.

12 (noon)	43	8 p. m.	36
2 p. m.	44	10 p. m.	33
4 p. m.	45	Midnight	30
6 p. m.	40

Oh, three of a kind make a strong combination, and flushes, both straight and royal, win, but our lid clubs have given the best demonstration of a clean there as a sure and strong as a [illegible] charter—the deals with case—then seek an injunction against the police.

And the policeman has trouble past understanding when he's dealt a lid club to make a raid; if he believes his orders [illegible] contempt of court that the [illegible]

ELITE PEEK AT "RED" EMMA, SHE PEEKS AT THEM

Anarchy's High Priestess is Guest of the Artists' Guild.

Early Saturday evening a thin line of [illegible] queued silently against the Ninth street side of the Druids' Building at Ninth and Market streets. They were soft hatted and soft shirted and some of them seemed in any way ill fed to talk. But after some time one of them stepped out from the line and facing his companions asked in a startled sort of way.

Where's Emma?

In answer to the query a second stepped out from the line and asked:

Where's Ben? The three referred to were Emma Goldman. The Ben was Ben Reitman.

While the [illegible] questions were being asked Ben was standing in a [illegible] carpeted corridor of the Mary [illegible] Hotel trying to answer as many questions as possible of an interviewer and at the same time not lose any strokes of the file and brush with which he was deftly manicuring his nails. Yes Ben Reitman, King of the Hobos was manicuring his nails.

Where was Emma? Emma Goldman, Queen of the Reds, was standing before the mirror in her room at the hotel, trying a chemise to see if all the powder was worn.

And stranger still! Down on the curb, bareheaded and hand ready to dip his cap at a moment's notice, waited a chauffeur at the side of a taxicab. And the taxicab was in waiting for "Queen Emma and King" Ben.

The dark stairways of Druids' Hall did not feel the tread of Emma's little feet or Ben's big ones Saturday night. That's not what the taxicab was there for. The taxi was waiting to whisk Emma and Ben out to Union boulevard to the Club of the Artists' Guild.

Wanted Close Look at Her.

Coldly stated, the fact was that Emma had been extended and had accepted an invitation to be the guest of the St. Louis Artists' Guild for the evening. They wanted to get a near-to view of her and hear her ideas of art and morality.

Emma and Ben started all right, and so did the taxi. And before the night was over they got there. The trouble was that chauffeurs are not esthetic. Neither do Emma and Ben usually [illegible] St. Louis. The chauffeur said the name sounded to him like something west of Grand avenue, and he was game to take a chance and shoot for it, if Emma and Ben were.

Away after wandering around the West End until the drivers that had been prepared in their homes had been left alone by the passage of the clock [illegible] hours, in [illegible] they [illegible] they do it!

men decrease their adverspapers that do not pay,
e their advertising in that do pay. This s why the St. Louis ants bought more y space in the t-Dispatch day, Thursday and last week than these hants bought in the ocrat, Republic and d on each of these days

CH EXCESS over our three near-papers combined on last week was 10 cols.
week was 1 col.
week that counts
ATION is 710

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

8901250106

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Elite Peek at "Red" Emma, She Peeks at Them / Emma Goldman. – pp. III: 1, 5 ; 43 cm. In St. Louis Post-Dispatch. –(Feb. 6, 1910).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley, Institutional Location: Doe Library.

HIM CHIVALROUS

Dorothy Hesler Reported Engaged to Doctor Who Aided in Defending Her.

CHAMPION CONVICTED

Navy Paymaster's Sentence Probably Will Be Reduction In Rank.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, Feb. 5.—"Every real true American man resents any freedom taken with a woman's name. I believe that American chivalry is just as active and real as was the old time chivalry of centuries ago," said Miss Dorothy Hesler today.

Miss Hesler is just 18 years old, and yet it is on her account that Paymaster George Percival Auld was tried by courtmartial this week and Past Assistant Surgeon A. H. Robnett will be courtmartialed next week.

Auld, it was reported from Washington today, has been convicted on two charges, conduct unbecoming an officer and assault.

"Surely American men are chivalrous," Miss Hesler said, "and the service is where the ideal side of life is most emphasized. Consequently things which are not according to the code stand out all the more conspicuously."

"A man cannot honorably stand by and hear another man use a woman's name lightly or know that she is being annoyed, without resenting it. Surely American men are like that.

"The court martial has been awfully unpleasant, but our great anxiety was to see Mr Auld and Dr Robnett vindicated. I can't see how they can find them guilty, and I am sure that as men and officers of the navy the judges cannot blame Mr Auld and Dr Robnett. I look for a complete vindication."

The relationship between Mrs Hesler and Dr. Robnett and his brother make it evident that the young navy doctor and the attractive little Chicago girl are engaged to be married. Mrs Hesler, while too young and charming to seem motherly toward two grown men is yet called "Mother" by both of them.

COURTMARTIAL CONVICTS AULD

Navy Paymaster Found Guilty of Assault at Naval Hop.

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The plea of chivalry as a defense for Paymaster George Percival Auld in the naval courtmartial at Boston failed to save the young officer from conviction.

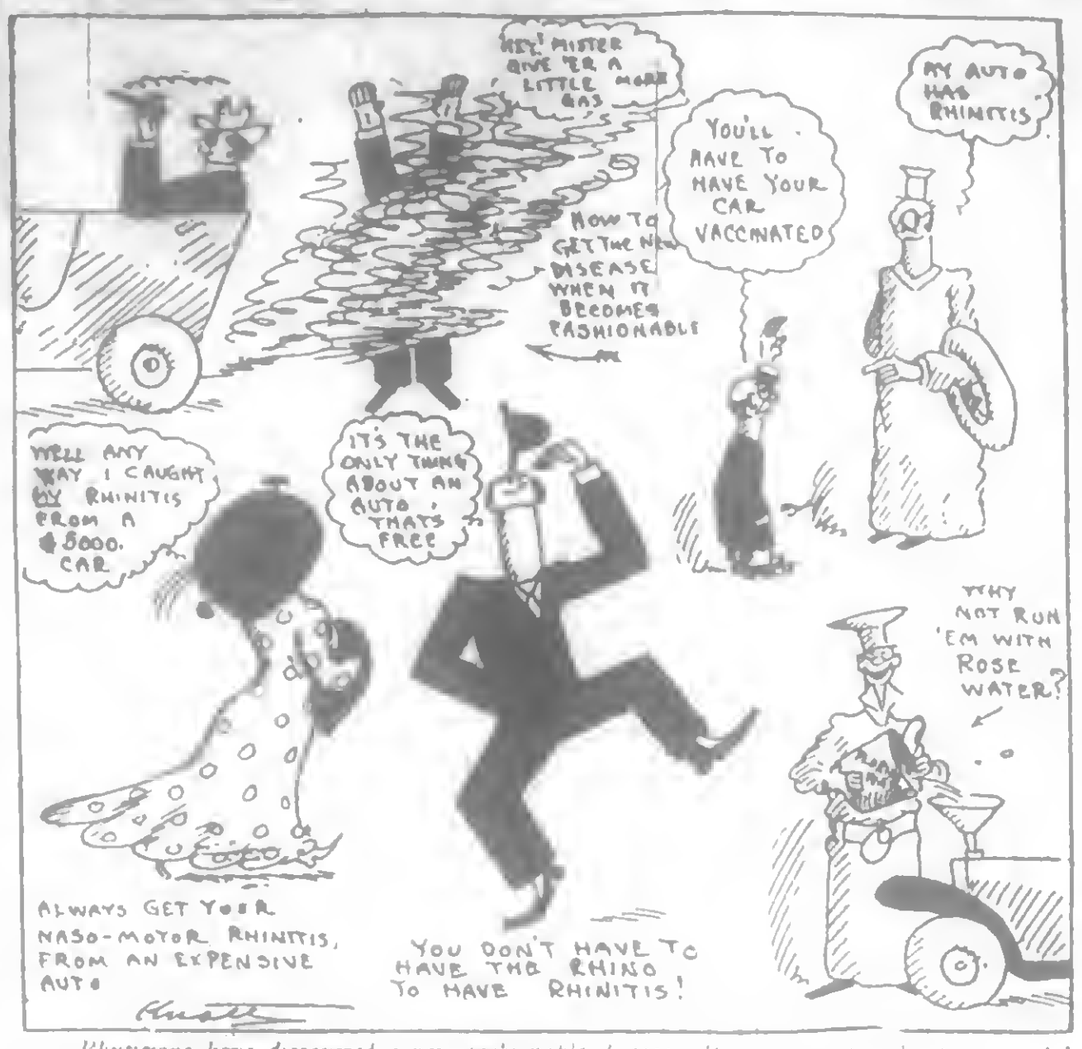
The testimony of Miss Dorothy Hesler, the young Chicago girl about whom the fight between Dr. Edward Spencer Cowles, of Boston and Auld started, did not deter the courtmartial from sentencing Auld to punishment.

The papers in the Auld case reached the Navy Department today. They were kept secret, but it was learned by the Post-Dispatch, from an indisputable source, that Auld has been convicted on two of the charges preferred against him by Dr. R. B. Ames, Inspector at the Charleston Navy Yard.

The accusation of falsehood, which practically dropped during the trial, was held to be groundless, but the charges of conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman and maltreating an inhabitant were sustained.

The degree of punishment has not been made public. It is believed that it is severe and that the Secretary of the Navy will mitigate it to a reduction of a few numbers in rank. The fight occurred at a naval hop given by Dr Ames and his daughter.

Verdict No Surprise to Auld.



BOSTON, Feb. 5.—Paymaster Auld expressed no surprise when informed of the probability that he had been convicted on two of the three counts brought against him in the court martial. Beyond expressing satisfaction "that the whole story" had come out of the court martial proceedings, Paymaster Auld declined to make any comment. Joseph Auld, the paymaster's father, is understood to have gone to Washington.

VIRGINIA BILL SETS DOWN DIVORCE BARS, MAKING THE EAST MECCA OF MISMATES

Lawyer's Measure Merely Liberalizes, But Shall Be Separated Three Years.

[illegible], Va., Feb. 5.—An [illegible] makes a change of the divorce laws of Virginia. A large number of persons [illegible]

Vogue Now, It's Rhinitis

Physicians have discovered a new fashionable disease. It is naso-motor rhinitis, caused by inhaling the vapors discharged from the engines of automobiles.—Cartoon Item.

NO longer is it de rigueur
To have had appendicitis
To be elite you now must catch
The naso-motor rhinitis.

To get it buy an auto car
And as the engine wheezes
Its fumes from your new motor car
Stoop near and catch the sneezes.

The [illegible] are quite immune—
They get rhinitis' Norse.
The have an ailment just the same
It [illegible] hay-fever.

'Red' Emma Shatters Ideals of Home in Artists' Guild Talk

Continued From Page One.

their hearings about the same time that the guild lost hope of their pulling in an appearance.

All Were Starched Shirts.

A strange crowd was that which Emma saw herself call it upon to address. Every man in the hall had on a starched shirt and there was white shirts. There wasn't a torch in the place but lights, lights all around. Everyone there and his lady was what is known to Emma's usual followers as "high brow," the real kind that make pictures and form men and women out of clay.

Emma beat them all to the recovery with the possible exception of Chairman William Chanvenet who called on her for a few remarks.

Then she started in to smash things. Not the pairglass in the walls or the pieces of sculpture but art in the abstract.

"American art," she told the guild, "is not in spirit with the social movement of the times. It is artificial and commercial, always appealing to the rich and never in sympathy with the struggles of the poor against oppression."

When she had properly demolished American art, Miss Goldman broke up the Ten Commandments. She wanted to know why a Christian nation should go to war when the commandments said "Thou shalt not kill," and a number of other things. [illegible] received and her remarks were frequently applauded.

Ridicules Home Ideals.

Just [illegible] the "Queen of the Redskins" [illegible] could be hard to please. Mr. [illegible] man and burst several migraine [illegible] made her female auditors [illegible] Her instance [illegible] sanity of the [illegible] was under. The there was [illegible] on Sunday in the home and [illegible] shouldn't be any homes.

[illegible] were [illegible] children to be true to [illegible] [illegible] How to [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

881021005

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Summary of Lecture] Anarchist Leader Waves Red Flag / Emma Goldman. – p. 1 ; 29 cm. In The Michigan Daily [Ann Arbor]. –(Feb. 20, 1910).

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the University of Michigan. Institutional Location: Michigan Historical Collection, Bentley Library.

The Michigan Daily

ANN ARBOR, MICHIGAN, SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1910 No. 96

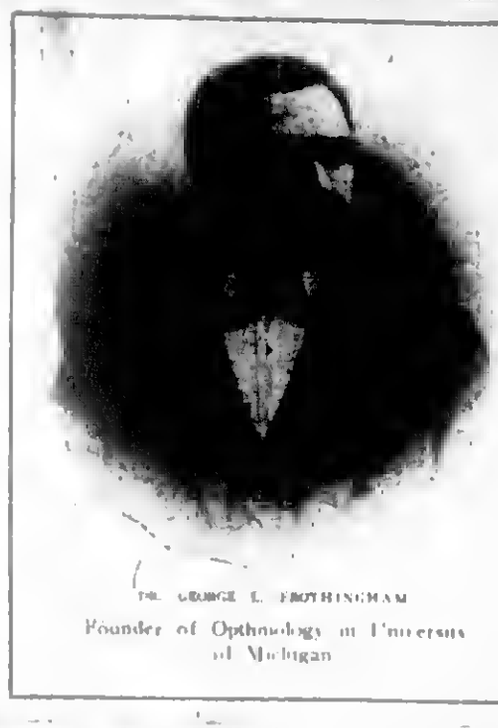
FOUNDERS' DAY TO BE COMMEMORATED

Medical Faculty and Students to Celebrate Birth of their Department Tuesday Night.

[illegible] Tuesday evening [illegible] a department [illegible] interest [illegible] The exercises [illegible] the auspices of the Medical Society. The principal address will be made by Dr. W [illegible] of the medical faculty and Dr. George E. Frothingham, Boston [illegible] University of [illegible]

Dr. Frothingham also lived in Ann Arbor, graduating with degree of M. D. in 1870. In this university. Returning to New England he practiced his profession for a year. At this time he accepted a call to return to Michigan and made Detroit his field. Surgery and [illegible] of Anatomy [illegible] Frothingham gave special attention to the diseases of the eye and ear and established the clinic of [illegible] Aural Surgery. He [illegible] position for [illegible] year.

[illegible] Dr. Frothingham resigned [illegible] his chair as to the removal of [illegible] to Detroit. Until [illegible] of the willful policy of the Board of [illegible] who headed against the idea [illegible] After his resignation he [illegible] Detroit where he practiced until [illegible]



The program was a prominent [illegible] the medical society of the [illegible] Many [illegible] receptions and [illegible] will be given [illegible] published. Among the guests at the banquet will be Dr. Frothingham's [illegible] and former colleagues [illegible] A. Vaughn will speak on "The Ethics of Medical Profession." H. H. Cumming, president of the Students' Medical Society, will give a short talk. Dancing in dance followed the exercises but only near faculty reception will be held in the parlors of Barbour gymnasium the committee believing that in this way the students and faculty will be brought in closer contact.

NINE GIRLS STILL KEEP NAME OF PLAY A SECRET

In spite of the eagerly expectant public around the senior lit girls still refuse to make known the name of the play which they are at present preparing. A meeting of the cast was held Friday afternoon in Barbour gymnasium but owing to the inability of Mrs. Bird to attend very little was done, besides distributing parts of the book. Another meeting will be held Monday night. Regular rehearsals will begin after this.

DR. ANGELL HAS IMPROVED

Reports from Florida are to the effect that Dr. Angell who went south last week for his health, stood the trip well and is now rapidly recovering from his recent illness.

DR. GEORGE E. FROTHINGHAM

Founder of Opthalology in University of Michigan

NEW SUBJECTS DISCUSSED

Second Day Of Religious Conference Has Varied Program.

Yesterday morning's program of the conference being held under the auspices of the Ann Arbor School of Religion, was opened by Prof. George A. Coe, president of the Religious Education Association. Though not expressly stated as such, the title of his discussion was, What Would Jesus do if He Were a Professor?" He depicted the results to our educational institutions of the will if Jesus could be carried out.

He expressed the belief that boys and girls should make the will of God the principal consideration in their whole lives, and that the adoption of this principle would radicalize the spirit of modern education. He further stated that the social worker is beginning to realize the short comings of social service which stopped short of religion.

Prof. Coe was followed by Orrin S. Davis, president of Chicago Theological Seminary. Pres. Davis made a plea for the study of theology. He received much merriment by showing the absurdity of trying to teach astronomy or botany without any regard at all to the science of it. He emphasized the importance of scientific training for the teacher of religion.

Dean Shailer Matthews closed the morning's program with a short address on the difference between the immature and men in other realms.

Shailer Mathews, Dean of the University of Chicago Divinity School opened in the afternoon with a paper entitled "The Stories school as an educational institution, not for the mere giving of information, but to bring out a child's ability into full expression." The belief is that the Bible itself should be taught and not the mere theories of it. The individuality of the child should be developed.

Mr. Cope, secretary of the association followed Dean Mathews on "Bible Study in the Sunday School."

In the evening Prof. R. M. Wenley presided. The principle speakers were Prof. Coe, President Davis and Henry F. Cope. The subject under discussion was "Present Need for Religious Leadership." This subject involved the difficult question of how to make sure of thorough training for our religious leaders.

GUNZAULUS HERE TUESDAY

Chicago Orator to Speak on Americanism of Washington.

According to established precedent the law department will hold their customary Washington birthday exercises in University hall next Tuesday evening. Dr. Frank W. Gunsaulus, president of the Armour Institute of Chicago, will deliver the address. The subject which he has chosen for this occasion is, "The Americanism of Washington." Besides the address of the evening, the University musical clubs will render several numbers.

The three classes of the law department will meet at appointed places in the law building before marching to University hall, where seats will be reserved for them. Guests of the various societies for the members of the law department of the hall will be opened to all those who care to attend.

[illegible] across street.

The Monday evening Debaters of the Junior Law orders will contest in room B of the Law building. J. B. Peters will preside. Mr. Brunson, Mr. Leidal and Dr. Ernest Brewster will act as judges. The following students have entered the meet: J. E. Black, S. Blanchard, J. Dow, L. Gutknecht, L. Patterson, H. L. Nichols and M. B. Riggel.

FIRST UNITARIAN CHURCH

[illegible] STATE AND HURON STREETS

HENRY WILDER FOOTE, Minister

[illegible] Morning service.

[illegible] Universal Brotherhood." [illegible] by Rev. H. M. Foote.

[illegible] meeting of A. P. R. U.

7:30 Evening service, with an address by Rev. Henry F. Cope, secretary of the Religious Education Association, on "The Human Christ."

ANARCHIST LEADER WAVES RED FLAG

Emma Goldman Speaks to Full Houses but Fails to Arouse Student Sympathy.

Before two crowded houses Emma Goldman, anarchist, delivered her lectures on "Anarchism and The Influence of the Drama on Anarchy" Saturday afternoon and evening in the Johnson Lyon hall. In the afternoon Miss Goldman confined herself to telling of the wonderful power of drama over all other forms of literary productions and incidentally scoring the present economical system. In the evening she analyzed anarchy, discussed its advantages over the present system of "thievery and robbery." Her reception was not particularly cordial. The hall was packed with students who greeted every economically doubtful statement with cheers and laughter. Miss Goldman was equal to the occasion and repaid them each time with some horn of repartee which cast serious reflections on their intelligence.

In delineating the influence of the drama as a disseminator of radical ideas, Miss Goldman chose Tolston, Ibsen, Hauptman, Suderman, and others, taking their principal plays and showing the underlying tendency in them towards social reform and radicalism. As an exponent of radicalism she did not advance many new arguments and failed to establish some of his principal assertions.

Her discussion of anarchy on the evening was clear and concise so far as it went but soon she turned to matters which she failed to prove eventually tying herself a few minutes later. Her chief attack was against government. She pictured a society in which there would be no government no private ownership of land no capitalistic oppression and no law whatever. Each one would be free to do as he wished. A few minutes later she declared that under the new regime the capitalists would be forced to work if they wanted food, as they little idea of organized anarchy was manifest with each other and that there would be no laws or regulations this machine could not function even a day.

She declared society to be in a condition which does not require much work. In this respect she was plainly different from most men who believe in the centralization of power, while anarchists believe only in decentralization or elimination of it.

After the lectures she opened questions. For this the audience was ready and a call was asked which Emma Goldman evidently could not answer. She resolved, of course, but turned a deaf ear to all argument on the plea of lack of time.

The success of a hoaxed was met this by a number of the undergraduates who, for diversion, organized an anarchist club and exploited the principles of anarchist. Red neckties and beards were the insignia and flag sold as buttons and ticket takers. Their press also attracted not a few.

At dinner Miss Goldman was entertained at one of the fraternity houses.

(Continued on Page 2.)

FRITZ KREISLER WILL PLAY HERE

Famous Violinist Scheduled for March First.—Engagements Made for May Festival.

As the last of the exceptionally attractive concerts which have comprised this year's Choral Union Concert series there is scheduled a violin recital by an artist whose name and rank are familiar to every one interested in the affairs and people of the musical world—Fritz Kreisler. With the exception of Schumann Heinck and Campanini, the name of Kreisler is one that, of all the artists who come to Ann Arbor this year, probably stands for most in the minds of those who have the average knowledge of musicians and music.

Fritz Kreisler plays in Ann Arbor March the first. Without relying upon the tricks which so many of the violinists consider an indispensible adjunct of their art, through the simplicity and naturalness of his playing, Mr. Kreisler has attained a position at the top of his profession. He is a man of the highest sincerity, courtesy, seriousness, and modesty. There is nothing of the sham star, qualities not always found in one but never sleeps to the level of commonplace secrets for the sake of effect. Unlike so many players he does not resist changes in temperature and minute variations in the qualities of strings and bows as the cause of an imperfection in his performance. If a note is not faultless, but have his fingers whatever he may happen to read them and it goes unalterably at such. It is no particular loss or even [illegible] and imperfections are sometimes rare I could in his work.

His ideas in regard to what is generally accepted in regard to the medium through which he expresses his art were well shown when he sold his Stradivarius some time ago. It was reported at the time that he got up his playing [illegible] and declared. It is said that he [illegible] retained the possession of Kreisler as a memento and had parted with the best he could find. But rare [illegible] is divided to dispose of the [illegible] instrument and now uses those which he previously possessed. With an [illegible] the value of the instrument [illegible] the great violin maker, [illegible] considers that possession a fad and [illegible] but [illegible] Joseph [illegible] Another characteristic [illegible] is his pleasure which he derives from playing in and violin when [illegible] has the opportunity deriving [illegible] from the possibilities which a real artist can introduce into ensemble playing.

Fritz Kreisler's recital is the last of the concerts which precede the May Festival. The recital is still three months away, but the artists are engaged, the program practically completed, and in the last two weeks many have been coming their seats for the festival. The [illegible] sale began Janu-

(Continued on Page 2.)

MARTHA WASHINGTON CANDY FRESH DAILY AT TICE'S BOOK STORE, 117 S. MAIN ST.

3:30 P. M. 6:30 P. M.

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

712

881021006

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Students Jeer Anarchy / Emma Goldman. – p. 1 ; 28 cm. In The Michigan Daily [Ann Arbor]. – (Feb. 22, 1910).

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the University of Michigan, Harlan Hatcher Graduate Library. Institutional Location: Labadie Collection, Department of Rare Books and Special Collections.

The Michigan Daily

VOL. XX ANN ARBOR MICHIGAN, TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1910 No. 97

LAWS AND MEDICS CELEBRATE TODAY

Simultaneous Addresses Jurists at University Hall—Medics Meet in Angell Hall.

Washington's birthday anniversary [illegible] a [illegible] celebration in [illegible] of the university [illegible] Law and Medical departments [illegible] up all exercises to take [illegible] morning. The laws will [illegible] at the tabernacle of our [illegible] building in which [illegible] special seats [illegible] announce the [illegible] the chairs in their [illegible] President Harry A. Sutherland of [illegible] Chicago will deliver [illegible] before the laws in University [illegible] His subject will be the Constitution of Washington. Prest [illegible] Butterworth has international fame as an after-dinner and it was with feeling of great satisfaction that the law students obtained Mr Cannaulis for [illegible] as it. The president declares that [illegible] rather opportunity to hear one [illegible] orators of national fame [illegible] treat. I hope that many of the [illegible] students will take advantage of it.

The three law classes will meet in [illegible] building at 5 p.m. the seniors in [illegible] the second year men in room [illegible] and the freshmen in room 11. From [illegible] on building they will march to [illegible] the University hall where [illegible] be given. will begin at 8 o'clock [illegible] at the main floor of the hall will be reserved for the law students but [illegible] there are seated the remaining seats will be open to the public admission [illegible] The glee club will give a short [illegible] program.

At the same hour as the law celebration in University hall the medics will assemble in Angell Lawell Angell hall. The short address of their program will be given by Dr W R Parker who will speak on George L Frothingham, founder of Frothingham at Michigan. Dr Parker occupies the chair which Dr Frothingham founded in 1891. Prest [illegible] addresses of the Senior Medical [illegible] under whose auspices the program is to be given, will make a few introductory remarks. Dean Vaughn will close the program of speeches with a talk on the Future of the Medical Profession." An orchestra will furnish music for the occasion.

After the exercises there will be a faculty reception in Barbour gymnasium along with out of town guests are expected, but among whom are the wife and family of the late Dr Frothingham.

BATES CUT ON SUBSCRIPTION ADDRESS.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Woman's League Saturday it was decided to charge only ten cents admission to the lecture to be given by Miss Grenfell in Newberry hall, Feb 4th. The advisory committee recommended that Miss White be employed as solicitor for the coming year and that she carry on her work in New York, Chicago and other western cities (This recommendation was accepted

STUDENTS JEER ANARCHY

Notorious Emma Goldman Plays her University Audiences.

Emma Goldman has her own private opinion of the students of the University of Michigan, and it isn't a flattering one either. At a meeting in Detroit Sunday evening, where she had as fine audience everything from the social elect to the social riff-raff, she unburdened herself after the following manner:

"I was surprised indeed to find that the library of that great institution is woefully lacking in literature upon anarchism, but my surprise in the attitude of the student body was greater.

Never in my entire career as a speaker upon radical subjects, have I been accorded a more hostile or discourteous reception. To tell the truth I am glad that it happened as it did, for it gives me just so much more respect for the quality of manhood that is to be found in the working classes where advanced ideas are respected, and lecturers given courteous attention.

"I would be violating my own principles if I felt in the least angered by the unseemly conduct of the students at by the mob spirit that manifested itself afterward. I had them simply represented the evil effects of the economic system under which they have been reared. But I am surprised that students, who in all Europe represent the advance thought and advance action, should in this country, and especially at Ann Arbor, be so slow to realize and appreciate the significance of this great reform movement."

The youthful Emma has departed the state for Buffalo where she has won her long fight for free speech. She intends to deliver a number of lectures there, but threatens to come back to Ann Arbor "some day." Before departing from this city she uttered thanks that at least she had found "one or two radical spirits to carry on the work." Members of the student body who assisted in the handling of the student speaker's state that these spirits didn't evidence their presence while the tables were flying and shoes falling over after the lecture. In fact even the redoubtable Dr Ben would admit had it been a product of the bad economic system that saved his shaggy cranium from assault.

CLASS RELAY RUN AND TUG-OF-WAR.

Interclass relays will be begun next Saturday night at the preliminary track meet. Many classes have not as yet had any practice on the track and the managers of these teams are urged to interclass Manager Lawton to get the men out immediately in order that the may have some practice. Every class team that competes will run next Saturday night

THE SUNDAY MEETING.

Rudolph Tombo, Jr., Professor of German at Columbia university will lecture under the auspices of the Deutscher Verein in Tappan hall Saturday room Thursday at four o'clock. His subject will be Hauptmann's "Die Sunkenen Bell." Mr Tombo is an interesting talker and as the lecture will be in English it is possible for everyone to enjoy it.

WRNLEY LAUDS THE CHRISTIAN LIFE

Philosopher Pays Highest Tribute to Religion—Conference Today and Tomorrow.

An audience which packed McMillan hall heard Prof R M Wenley express in a simple and direct way his belief in Christianity, when he spoke on Christianity, the way to [illegible] Sunday. "No man requires an [illegible] development or intellectuality in order to become a real Christian," remarked the professor of philosophy. "If that were the case, heaven would be occupied solely by lecturers on philosophy. I [illegible] that small of a heaven as man of his [illegible] ought to desire to enter."

The fact that seem to be supreme Professor Wenley in getting the heart of the matter was that found in the fifth verse of the first chapter of John. "Jesus and truth came by Jesus Christ." Jesus said he is a way of life, a matter of life, and all men are compelled to agree that Jesus' way of living has never been equalled or surpassed. Therefore if you want the truth, seek to prove the wisdom of some [illegible] other than Jesus' way of living as your way of living and you will lose the grace that was his. Emphatically we have known truth only as we know it in men. Truth that has never been incarnated is a truth that is of no service.

In closing Professor Wenley quoted that familiar passage—"Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." "I hope you don't believe this statement, said Professor Wenley, "try it. You have no right to disbelieve it until you have actually given it a trial. Those of us who have tried it are under the greatest obligation imaginable to testify of its truth."

President Otota S Davis was the speaker on Sunday evening. State universities are barren fields as to production of ministers [illegible] said. While formerly these institutions [illegible] out [illegible] to preach and [illegible] missionaries in large [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

840514080

The Emma Goldman Papers

Light and Shadows in the Life of an Avant-Guard / Emma Goldman. — pp. 16-23 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. — Vol. 5, no. 1 (March 1910).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

LIGHT AND SHADOWS IN THE LIFE OF AN AVANT-GUARD

By EMMA GOLDMAN.

AFTER the joyous ring in my last report my friends will think the tone of this epistle rather depressed, and yet my tour continues good, with a few trifling disappointments unavoidable in the work of an avant-guard.

If one has not known the sensation of passing through the rich, fragrant scenery of California and then through the deserts of Nevada, he will not appreciate my state of mind when I suddenly woke up in Hannibal, Mo. A stretch of mud along the Mississippi.

What a curious imagination must have been his, who named that dead, barren town Hannibal. There is not enough energy or spirit there to fight a chicken, let alone to deserve the name of an historic warrior. Yet this dull, gray speck of earth has a ray of gold to give it color and relieve the eye from its monotony—Comrade A. H. Garner.

Since Ibsen gave the world the giant figure of Dr. Stockmann, we have learned to appreciate the true hero in him who can stand alone, maintaining a truth against all odds. But Stockmann was never so alone as our brave comrade in Hannibal. Stockmann had the woman of his love, who, while she could not understand his spirit, yet went with him. He had his children, his Petra, herself a rebel and fighter. Last, but not least, he had Hausten, the weather-worn and rugged friend, who betrayed him not. But what must be the fortitude and courage of a man who really stands all alone in a community of densest ignorance and darkness.

Six years Comrade Garner has lived in Hannibal, an open and avowed Anarchist, holding his banner high against all odds. Verily, his is a greater heroism than that of martyrs who died for the truth.

The very idea of a meeting in that city seemed ridiculous. But who could refuse the genuine enthusiasm and zeal which prompted our comrade to shun no expense and labor to get me there?

The meeting was a fizzle, of course; still, I should not have missed the experience for anything. To know that in this great land there is one American Anarchist brave enough to defy a whole community, is an inspiration worth even the trip to Hannibal.

The patron saint of the avant-guard dwells in the lower regions. The saint of St. Louis has not yet been admitted there. That may account for his grace with the fairies. Certainly none but kind fairies could arrange a visit so cloudless and smooth as mine has been in St. Louis.

"Social functions" are rather a novelty in the life of the avant-guard; but the dear captain who steered the forlorn ship through the shoals of a middle-class luncheon and of a would-be bohemian dinner, was the brilliant editor of the St. Louis Mirror. His suave, jovial, kindly spirit could smuggle the most dangerous contraband into the enemy's camp. No wonder Emma Goldman, the fire spitter, was dined and watered by so many "nice people." Surely, people who let others work must be nice. As for themselves? Oh, they have a greater mission. That's why they came to hear how the Anarchist proposes to manage society, where a "thrifty, saving man would not be safe from his shiftless brother, if there be no law to stay him."

Such was the gist of the hundred and one questions hurled at the sinful head of the avant-guard. A luncheon served on idle questions, plenty of water and little spirit. The inspiring element was Billy Reedy, sparkling wine after a prayer meeting.

My second "debut" was at the Artists' Guild, a society composed of "respectable bohemians"—a bohemianism that compares favorably with Jack London's exploits in the East End of London as portrayed in his "Children of the Abyss." "He stood in the bread line, waited hours to be given a chance to shovel coals, had himself locked up in the workhouse," in the blissful consciousness that he can at any time go back to his lodgings, take a bath, change his linen, and eat a hearty dinner. Poverty under such circumstances is not so bad, after all.

No doubt there are among the Guilders a few who know the stress and agony of a real bohemian life; but the majority of the people who were present took their

714

840514080

The Emma Goldman Papers

Light and Shadows in the Life of an Avant–Guard / Emma Goldman. – pp. 16-23 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 5, no. 1 (March 1910).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

bohemianism as the flavor of life without which a middle class existence must be barren indeed.

It was, however, to the former that I addressed my remarks on "Art in relation to Life." To the few who are themselves that part of humanity who eke out a drab existence, to whom art must remain terra incognita, so long as life is forbidden them.

Life in all its variety of color, in all its fulness and wealth is art, the highest art. He who does not help to bring about such a life is not an artist, no matter if he can paint sunsets or compose nocturnes. All the truly great artists of the world have realized that: Millet, in taking the struggle of his people for his themes; Meunier, in showing the world the power of labor; Rodin, in representing the pathos and tragedy of blighted youth; Charpentier, in singing love unchained and unfettered, in Louise. Artists, the world over, have gone to the life of the people, have become one with their struggles, their hopes and dreams. Only in America the artists are commodities like everything else that has been debased by money. Is not the Artists' Guild thriving on the patronage of those whose art criterion is the dollar?

I hope that the few who are still artists in the making (I have met a few at the dinner), will learn to appreciate their real sphere, the true relation between art and life.

My meetings in St. Louis were well attended, especially the Ferrer lecture. Genuine enthusiasm and interest in the life and works of that great man are manifested at every meeting dedicated to him.

The lecture on "The Drama" was very much apropos in St. Louis, owing to the frantic efforts of some ministers to "purify the stage." Christian purity, a deceased lady, clothed in hypocritical rags. Altogether St. Louis proved both interesting and profitable, thanks to Wm. Marion Reedy's good graces in fairyland. But I must also not forget the untiring devotion of Ada and Ben Capes, two staunch friends and comrades.

Springfield, Ill., is the seat of law-manufacture and the scene of one of the most brutal race feuds in recent years. How stupid to carry an idea of liberty and brotherhood there! But this, too, is the privilege of the avant-guard, to do stupid things sometimes.

The Chief of Police, who attempted to stop the meetings, may have been prompted by good motives. Why throw pearls before swine? Law-making and man-hunting are not likely to develop a better human breed. As to the foreign element, it is too exploited and worn-out to go to meetings or pay admission. I never wished more to be able to stay over Sunday and have free meetings, since "them ignorant foreigners" are the only material worth while in Springfield.

Detroit, Mich., was conquered after all. Alas, it was not the spirit of Robert Reitzel that helped. Of that there is no more. An erstwhile lickspittle of Reitzel, who in a foolish moment was induced to join the committee for free speech, took to his heels when he learned that we actually came to test the situation. Another whose claim to radicalism consists of silly stunts, was still more "liberal": he kept in the background. Only one remained true to the spirit of Der arme Teufel—Conrad Pfeifer; but even he was worried lest the "mighty be offended."

The saviors of free speech in Detroit were, as usual, the single taxers, urged on by Mr. Ingram, the most spirited of them all.

Ridicule is a tremendous weapon against authority; thus Tsar Croul of Detroit may have come down from his throne for fear of appearing ridiculous. At any rate, our meetings did take place. Yet not without great loss of time and considerable expense. However, it was worth it all, not merely because of the material and moral success, but for the sake of our comrades there.

Carolus Nold, the erstwhile stormer, wastes his life in the mental atrophy of German Vereinsmeierei (club life). Too bad for the boy who could still do much in a healthier atmosphere. My visit to Detroit bears me out. Carl became rejuvenated. He threw himself with the old fire in the work, as in the days when his spirit was as young as his years.

Dear old, romantic Emma Clausen, now Dr. Clausen, s'il vous plaît, needs but half a chance; her spirit is ever ready to break the bars of convention. What a pity a woman like Emma must live in Detroit. Such a rich nature, such abilities, withering in the desert of philistinism. Life to-day is indeed a terrible mess.

715

840514080

The Emma Goldman Papers

Light and Shadows in the Life of an Avant–Guard / Emma Goldman. – pp. 16-23 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 5, no. 1 (March 1910).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

Ann Arbor! Brain producer of Michigan, hide thy face in shame!

Five hundred university rowdies in a hall, whistling, howling, pushing, yelling like escaped lunaties. How infinitely superior is the roughest element of workers, longshoremen, sailors, miners, street-cleaners. I have addressed them all, been with them all. Men with not enough knowledge to write their name, men who have been hardened and brutalized by drudgery and poverty. Yet all of them are as boarding-school girls in behavior and demeanor compared with the university rowdies of Ann Arbor, who packed the hall to create a riot. That the latter was averted is altogether due to my recollection of Ibsen's estimate of mob psychology, so wonderfully expressed in the lines of Dr. Stockmann: "Not two decent stones in the whole lot, the rest are pebbles. And yet they stood down there and yelled and swore they'd slay me—but for deeds, for deeds, there is not much for that in this town."

These pampered parasites, not one of them with enough backbone to fight a flea; yet there they were yelling and screaming in true American demoeratie fashion.

My subject being Anarchism, I needed no better argument against government than that living mass nurtured and bred on law and authority, yet the first to break not only man-made law, but every human law of tolerance, kindness, and respect for the rights of others. These famous American chevaliers, who revere woman so much that their wild pushing and shoving practically endangered the lives of the women present, these defenders of property rights, who demolished everything in the hall, fell over each other to steal literature, and forced their way into the hall, although an admission was charged. The quality of these would-be students certainly speaks poorly for the professors. A course on behavior and decency would not be amiss at the University of Ann Arbor.

If not for a few students who were our hosts at a fraternity dinner and those that felt deeply the disgraceful conduct of their colleagues at the meeting, one might despair of a country whose intellectual training creates such a breed. As it is, the maniacs at my meeting may represent but a small part of that student body. Let us hope so, at least.

The encouraging feature of the Ann Arbor experience was furnished by a group of Socialists, also students, their instructor, Wm. Boehn, and his wife, Maud Thompson.

How wonderful is the spirit of solidarity, if it can sweep away all theoretic differences in a moment of need. Staunch friends it has never been my fortune to meet, at such a critical moment. Dear Maud Thompson. I never shall forget her terror-stricken face, when I made my way through that mad mob. Terror-stricken, not out of anxiety for herself, but for me, in that awful, trying hour at the meeting. And Wm. Boehn, no longer the cold theoretician of "scientific Socialism," as he was during luncheon, when Dr. Reitman and I were his guests, but all aglow with comradely love and sympathy, ready to fight, if necessary, for one who was but a stranger to him. And Lee White, too, stood his ground to the very end, although he was in no small danger to be swept away by those Ann Arbor maniacs. Yes, when theoretic barriers and differences are swept away, comradeship can assert itself to the fullest.

In Buffalo, N. Y., happened the miracle of all miracles. Anarchism has been heard there again. Two meetings, and "without an order of the court." Our friends will recollect the reply given to Fred Schulder when he tried to make my speaking possible. Poor Chief Regan, it must have outraged his sensitive soul, when Emma Goldman could lecture in Buffalo, after he had decreed that it must not be.

Here we found ourselves in a house divided against itself. Chief Regan using every open and underhanded way to stop the meeting; the Mayor, through his secretary, adhering to non-interference. That Secretary! What peculiar human compounds America does create. Liberal, radical, non-believer, yet bound to the spook of a New England conscience. Dreamer of great dreams, but doer of small things. A politician and opportunist, afraid of public opinion, yet recklessly waving the public aside. Certainly he had nothing to gain and much to lose in taking sides for free speech for Emma Goldman. But he stood his ground with puritan tenacity.

716

840514080

The Emma Goldman Papers

Light and Shadows in the Life of an Avant-Guard / Emma Goldman. – pp. 16-23 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 5, no. 1 (March 1910).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

After the Ferrer lecture the Chief was even more frantic. His beloved holy Mary was attacked, the Catholic Church. The Mayor would listen to no entreaties. What difference which of the religious impostors is in the seat of heaven. As a last resort Catholic priests were sent to the hall keeper.

Two hours before the meeting our hall was refused. But Ben Reitman quickly found another hall, and the second meeting, too, was thus saved. The third had to be abandoned, all halls, barns, and stables being taken for that night. The fourth and fifth meetings were the least eventful, poor Regan having grown weary of the wild chase.

Our victory in Buffalo will be appreciated only by those who know that during the last nine years not a known Anarchist was allowed to speak in that city. During nine years Anarchism was vilified and Anarchists held up as the blackest criminals, yet not a word could be raised in protest. During nine years the memory of Czolgosz was besmirched as that of a traitor, liar, and informer. Yet no one dared to cry out against that outrage, to show that it was the police and the press who were the liars and informers, and not that boy. That I should have been able to speak in Buffalo makes the victory even greater. What if it cost us no end of anxiety; what if Reitman was made ill from the strain; what of the money even that the Buffalo campaign consumed? It was worth it all.

The most tangible result, however, is the formation of a free speech league, which will never again submit to the censorship of the last nine years.

Rochester, N. Y., the city of my inauguration into the beauties of American factory life; the place where I first learned the brazeness of American liberty. Rochester where I was made to suffer the narrow American provincialism, with its busy-body guardianship of every soul unlike its own. Here, too, it was that I understood the mockery of the legalized sanctity of the home. Rochester also, where I first beheld the light of liberty, of independence. We held three meetings. Although arranged in one day and in a wretched hall, the English meetings were exceptionally good. During my visit, I heard and met for the first time one other American contradiction—Brand Whitlock, the Mayor of Toledo.

How strange that the author of that terrible arraignment of government, "The Turn of the Balance," a truly human document, should himself participate in the exercise of authority. How strange that this poet and dreamer should be a party to the ugliness of politics and political life. Yet is not all life strange? And is not the life of the avant-guard strangest of all?

Hope and joy, pain and despair! The sublime and the ridiculous, separated by one step.

* * *

THE FREE SPEECH FIGHT

By Dr. Ben L. Reitman.*

FRIENDS:—

Two years have passed, and sometimes two years make a difference. Let us look back two years, and see a man by the name of George Shippy at his height. "Shippy was an ideal Chief of Police." The newspapers praised him, and he had the confidence of the people of Chicago.

Two years have gone: Shippy is down and out. The newspapers have bitterly attacked him; they have unmercilessly condemned him, he has no longer the confidence of the people of Chicago.

Two years ago Emma Goldman was hounded and persecuted. Two years ago she went to the Anthropological Society, and a hundred policemen followed to prevent her from speaking. To-night, Emma Goldman addresses a Chicago audience without a uniformed policeman in the hall.

I don't know whether Emma Goldman has the confidence and respect of the people of Chicago, but I am sure that she has the confidence of a small number of people in Chicago who know that the persecution and hounding she was subjected to was unjustifiable.

Let us look back again, and see the changes which have taken place; let us see the steps that were responsible for the former Chief of Police Shippy being down and out, and Emma Goldman being able to speak.

Two years ago to-morrow the unemployed had a parade

* Police stenographic report of an address delivered by Dr. Reitman at Chicago, Jan. 19th, 1910.

717

840514082

The Emma Goldman Papers

Light and Shadows in the Life of an Avant–Guard / Emma Goldman. – pp. 45-50 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 5, no. 2 (April 1910).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

it was rather to be expected; they are, after all, hangers-on of the bourgeoisie; but the brewers and typos have disgraced themselves.

Well, Philadelphia has set the first example,—a feeble example, lacking in purpose, wasting itself by reason thereof, and by reason of lack of organization and delay. However, it forced the company to the semblance of compromise; it made the Mayor and the City representative on the Board of the P. R. T. do what they had loudly proclaimed they would not do, confer with the officers of the car men; and while the terms were not accepted by the car men, as being deceptive and a mockery, and they are still out, there is no doubt that the enemy recognizes that the weapon of industrial warfare in the future will be the general strike,—and dreads it.

Do they perceive, do the workers perceive, that it must be the strike which will stay in the factory, not go out? which will guard the machines, and allow no scab to touch them? which will organize, not to inflict deprivation on itself, but on the enemy? which will take over industry and operate it for the workers, not for franchise holders, stockholders, and office-holders? Do they? Or will it take a few thousand more clubbings to knock it into their heads?

Philadelphia began a certain other fight one hundred and thirty-four years ago; she didn't win it on that 4th of July either. She was held by the British after that. But the fight went on, as this one will. What transportation company will be the next to precipitate the battle? Six different companies in as many cities have raised the trolleymen's wages since this strike began. Evidently they decline the battle, and are more after immediate profits than crushing unions. But in a year or two some other city will have the fight. Let them profit by our mistakes.

LIGHT AND SHADOWS IN THE LIFE OF AN AVANT-GUARD

BY EMMA GOLDMAN.

THE Jews believe that continual success tends to make one forget the omnipotence of God. Evidently they know that the Lord is not a very generous gentleman. He allows them just so much success as would never make them forget their dependence upon him. Gods are petty creatures, anyway.

The avant-guard has no such easy consolation as the infantile mind of the religious man, who places all the responsibility on the broad shoulders of Jehovah. He knows that his success or failure depends on the conspiracy, not of the things in heaven, but on earth; far more inexorable, much harder to overcome, than the wrath of the God of Israel.

The majority of people in America are mentally so lazy that nothing short of an explosion can wake them up from their apathy. Thus, anything that is not sensational and loud has no interest to the average, self-satisfied, sluggish philistine. To overcome this difficulty is something that will tax the patience and hardihood of the staunchest avant-guard, yet this is only one of the ninety-nine other hardships one has to fight against and struggle with, which allows but little light in the life of the avant-guard.

PITTSBURG, PA. Eighteen years ago, on Thanksgiving Day of 1892, I made my first pilgrimage to that city of smoke and fire—that hell compared with which Dante's Inferno was but a milk and honey affair.

Thanksgiving! What a mockery in American life. The giving of thanks at the order of Washington for the right to be duped, to be fleeced and robbed; for the right to be consumed by the horrible, insatiable flames of the Carnegie Smelter; to be killed, burned, and maimed.

Never before was I so conscious of this huge American lie, as on the 2th of November, 1892, on my first visit to Pittsburg.

I came to tramp the road to Golgotha, to the shame of 718

840514082

The Emma Goldman Papers

Light and Shadows in the Life of an Avant-Guard / Emma Goldman. — pp. 45-50 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 5, no. 2 (April 1910).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

civilization—the Western Penitentiary. Ah, yes! I had all reasons to celebrate Thanksgiving. Two months prior, an American court of "justice" had bestowed a "mere trifle" on my Comrade and friend, Alexander Berkman, —a twenty-two years' imprisonment.

Twenty-two years' prison for a "crime" which even the corrupt State of Pennsylvania held punishable with only seven years. Twenty-two years' confinement in an American prison, and in that worst hell of all hells—the Western Penitentiary. Legal justice is a cold and cruel thing. So terribly cruel, that of late it has aroused the timid even to the barbarous, inhuman, and blood-curdling conditions behind American prison walls.

"This, too, I know—and wise it were
If each could know the same—
That every prison that man builds
Is built with bricks of shame,
And bound with bars, lest Christ should see
How men their brothers maim."

In 1892 the world had not yet been stirred by the inimitable cry of an agonized soul, Oscar Wilde's "Ballad of Reading Jail," and I had never before seen the hideous prison walls. But when the horrible dream of a mock visit was over,—a visit as hideous as everything else in prison life, a visit in the presence of a human beast in the form of a keeper, degrading every manifestation of feeling,—when the nightmare was lifted from my chest, and I breathed the pure air of nature again, my whole soul felt then, what has since been described by Oscar Wilde in these lines:

"The vilest deeds, like poisoned weeds,
Bloom well in prison air;
It is only what is good in man
That wastes and withers there.
Pale anguish keeps the heavy gate,
And the Warder is Despair."

The "good" Christians, who had the power to watch over my Comrade, among them Warden Wright, assured me that I need never come again, as Alexander Berkman will not live very long. "We will see to it that he never comes out alive."

That he did, is surely not the fault of those monsters who thrive on the blood and pain of their helpless victims. Nine years later, in 1901, I came again to see my friend. The shrewd vigilance of prison authorities is no check for friendship and love. I found our Comrade strong in body and spirit, a living proof of what perseverance, courage, and determination can accomplish, in spite of all odds.

Every little incident of the terrible years between 1892 and 1906 stood before me in all their horror, when I made my recent pilgrimage to that awful hell on the banks of the Ohio River.

It was no longer Golgotha to me, for my youth's companion was there no longer. Yet when I placed my hand on that hideous grey prison wall, I felt the heart of all that human mass within, chained and fettered, beaten, flogged, and outraged, victims of a wretched, cruel world, and as of yore I promised myself to continue with greater zeal, with intenser devotion, the labor of making man conscious of the brutality and inhumanity of our Christian civilization.

* * *

Two meetings, one English and one Jewish, were fairly successful. The difficulties in finding halls, and the fear of the newspapers to mention my subject, "The General Strike," failed to bring the usual large attendance of previous meetings in Pittsburg.

I came to this tremendous industrial center at the very beginning of the general strike in Philadelphia. No doubt the press realized the danger of such a subject, at such a time. In fact, one of the newspaper men expressed himself thus: "Well, Miss Goldman, don't you think you are taking too much responsibility in advocating a general strike now? Fancy if the workers of Pittsburg should become conscious of that weapon! Why, it would tie up not only the State but the entire country; it would mean a revolution. Indeed, we could not let the people know at this moment that you are to speak on such a dangerous topic."

Ah, if the workers would only become conscious of this dangerous weapon. Indeed, they will, they must, some day, even though the truth be suppressed now. What

719

840514082

The Emma Goldman Papers

Light and Shadows in the Life of an Avant-Guard / Emma Goldman. – pp. 45-50 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 5, no. 2 (April 1910).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

then? The authorities, the legalized pilferers, and highway robbers know; the press knows; the workers, too, will know.

Apropos of the American press. It has so thoroughly fettered the American mind, that the most advanced, the radicals even, are under its sway. They, too, believe every silly, ridiculous statement they see in the papers, although experience must have taught them how utterly false, inaccurate, deliberately dishonest, the papers are.

"E. G. advises the extermination of children in every family that has more than two." Evidently the newspapers in this country have exhausted their supply of "degrees" they have been bestowing on Emma Goldman. "Exponent of violence, bombs, and dynamite, the propagator of general chaos and disorder," are epithets out of date. Nobody believes in them any more. "The believer in a liberal supply of husbands and the destruction of the sanctity of the home," are also rather stale. Something new must be found to discredit the woman and her work, else people will begin to believe in her sincerity. We have got it brand new, straight from Pittsburg: Emma Goldman proposes to kill poor, innocent infants, to exterminate the race of idiots, cripples, policemen, jailers, soldiers, newspaper liars and vilifiers.

Isn't it pathetic that even some thinking people actually believe such rot? I hear that some of my own comrades have grown alarmed; they even asked me to make a public declaration denying the story. Yes, the press is a poisonous germ. I am almost inclined to believe with our friend Reitman, that if any blowing-up is ever to take place, the American press will have to get the first dose of explosives.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN. How little the success of our meetings depends on the newspapers was manifested in Minneapolis. On previous occasions they wrote columns upon columns of interviews. This time they maintained a conspiracy of silence. Yet we had four English lectures, two of which were tremendously attended, although the meetings had been arranged in three days. The Sunday afternoon audience was particularly large and intensely interested in the general strike. A collection for the Philadelphia carmen, which unfortunately was taken up after many people had left the hall, netted $5.50. Minneapolis continues to remain a splendid field for propaganda.

SIOUX CITY, IOWA. My first visit here, though only with twenty-four hours to arrange meetings, proved a moral success. The material end of it was frustrated by none other than the managers of the hall, the Labor Temple. Friend Reitman rented the hall for $4, but on the evening of the meeting he was informed that if he "charged admission, the committee of the Labor Temple will insist on $25 rent." A fair example of how much justice may be looked for from the millennium of our friends, the Socialists, when the working man will be in power. As the demand of the Labor Temple people was a regular hold-up, we decided to have free admission.

The next evening our meeting was held in the City Hall. Yes, there is actually one city in America that still maintains the old tradition of using the town hall for all public purposes. That no exception was made with Anarchists was much to the credit of the liberal spirit of Sioux City. However, I confess I did not enjoy the hospitality of the city hall, probably because I was too conscious of the graft and fraud that are going on within the walls of every public building. In Sioux City the town hall is also used for a court room. Remembering the many victims who are brought up daily in the same place to receive their doom at the hands of some kind judge, I felt too depressed in that atmosphere. I was glad when the ordeal was over. I shall never again attempt to plead for liberty on the same floor where it is being outraged every hour in the year.

The most pleasant experience of my visit in Sioux City was the meeting of the group of Jewish men and women, mostly Socialists, who are carrying on effective educational work through the Hebrew Progressive Library. They have a beautiful little hall of their own, with quite a variety of books, and the members are most eager to read and learn.

OMAHA, NEB. When I came to this city the first time—eighteen months ago—my good friend Herman Michailovitch had worked hard for six weeks to organize the meeting. This time everything had to be done in two days. Of course, the audiences were not very large, but Omaha makes up in quality what it lacks in quantity.

720

840514082

The Emma Goldman Papers

Light and Shadows in the Life of an Avant-Guard / Emma Goldman. – pp. 45-50 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 5, no. 2 (April 1910).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

This is particularly true of the women who come to the meetings. In no other city have I had such a large percentage of women, so thoroughly wide-awake and interested in all progressive subjects. Thus it is always a pleasure for me to visit Omaha, even though I never need an express wagon to help me carry away the filthy lucre.

I have just completed my work in Denver, but space will not permit me to report the many pleasant and unpleasant incidents. I leave that for the next issue of our magazine.

Spring is in the air, and Golden California before us. Shall it be light or shadow for the avant-guard? Who cares—to the reckless belongs the world.

* * *

ANARCHIST SYMPOSIUM

TOLSTOY.

LYOFF NIKOLAIEVITCH TOLSTOY, born in 1828 at Yasnaya Polyana, Russia, is known throughout the world for his writings, which have dealt with all the principal phases of the social question. He has written so much that it is difficult to select from the mass, but "My Confession," "What I Believe," "My Religion," "On Life," "What Shall We Do Then," "The Kingdom of God is within You," "Patriotism," and "Thou Shalt Not Kill" contain the pith of his philosophy. His style is singularly clear and easy of comprehension, in accordance with his repeatedly avowed conviction that all that is necessary for the solution of social questions is to speak plain truths in the most absolutely plain manner. Despite this extreme outspokenness, he is probably one of the most generally misunderstood of modern authors, thanks to his profound admiration for the teachings of, or attributed to, Christ. Instead of being, as some appear to think, an upholder of religion and the church, he is unquestionably one of the most formidable and unrelenting foes that the church and religion, as the term is usually understood, have ever had, for the essential fact regarding Tolstoy is that he is entirely free from mysticism, his criticism of life being based, solely and exclusively, on reason. The following passage from his work entitled "On Life" shows this clearly:

"Human life, from getting up in the morning to going to bed at night, is an unbroken series of actions; man must daily choose, from hundreds of actions possible to him, those actions which he will perform; therefore, man cannot live without something to guide the choice of his actions." * * * "Reason is that law, recognized by man, according to which his life is to be accomplished." * * * "If there is no higher reason—and such there is not, nor can anything prove its existence—then my reason is the supreme judge of my life."

This passage gives clue to Tolstoy's method of approaching social problems; accounts for his extreme individualism and shows, apart from his repeated express declarations on the point, that he has no conception of an external God, the sole arbiter being within each one of us, and each acting according to the dictates of his reason. Tolstoy's appeal, therefore, is always to reason, the "still, small voice." He has expressed himself as having no great liking for Herbert Spencer, but in this matter, which is basic with him, he entirely agrees with the demonstration that Herbert Spencer gives of the fact that whether we recognize it or not, we invariably act as at the moment we consider best; that is, according to the dictates of our reason. In the work just quoted from, Tolstoy further states that "the ever increasing subjugation of the bestial personality to the rational consciousness is the true life; is life, as opposed to mere existence." In all this Tolstoy is in complete accord with his fellow-Russian, the Anarchist Bakunin, who, viewing the social question as a part of the evolutionary law of the progress of mankind from a less perfect to a more perfect existence, says: "History consists in the progressive negation of man's original bestiality by the evolution of his humanity."

Tolstoy, therefore, admires Christ solely because Christ seems to him to have been the most reasonable of teachers. So far is he from regarding that teaching as supernatural that he expressly declares that he hopes it may be true that such a man as Christ never existed, since, if the doctrines attributed to him were really a part of the general philosophy of the age in which Christ is said to have lived, they would have far more weight than if coming from one man.

721

830907109

The Emma Goldman Papers

Goldman's Own Narrative of Her Visit and Reception in Madison / Emma Goldman.— 19 cm. In The State Journal [Madison]. —(April 1, 1910).

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the University of Wisconsin Madison Archives. Institutional Location: Charles R. Van Hise Presidential Papers, General Correspondence, Series 4/10/1,Box 18.

GOLDMAN'S OWN NARRATIVE OF HER VISIT AND RECEPTION IN MADISON

State Journal April 1, 1910

Emma Goldman and her traveling mate, Dr. Ben Reitman, publish a New York magazine known as "Mother Earth." In the issue of February, over her own signature, Emma tells of her visit to Madison.

"Madison, Wis., has had a great charm for me the last few years because of its historical library. But what I realy found there is extraordinary indeed. Certainly a better equipped and better managed institution I have never seen in any other city in America. No other library has such a collection of books, papers, and magazines on the labor question, trade unionism, socialism and anarchism. Yes, even anarchism, that most hated, most tabooed and misunderstood theory.

"During the few hours that I could spend in the library, thanks to the generous assistance of Mr. Andrews, the chief research worker, I saw collections of the earliest anarchist papers, books, and pamphlets in America. Complete files of the Alarm, Fackel, Vorbote, Chicago Arbeiter Zeitung, Free Society, Liberty, Freiheit, Mother Earth, and scores of others. Also numerous pamphlets dating almost a century back. In fact, a perfect mint for the earnest student. If the liberal endeavor of this historical library will continue, it bids fair to become for American—in a small measure—what the British museum is for England.

In all my travels through the length and breadth of this land I found its university cities the most bigoted, arrogant, and conservative. Madison, Wis., is undoubtedly a happy exception. The progressive spirit among professors and students is unusual indeed. Professors Ross, Commons (sic) Jastrow, and others are making history in America. Thanks to them the American student is becoming humanized and socialized. He feels an interest in other things besides baseball, football, and scabbing. That university men should turn out in large numbers to hear Emma Goldman was more than some citizens of Madison could stand. Since we left that city the Democrat, a yellow sheet, has been attacking the university most venomously. I am convinced, however, that its barking will not intimidate the progressive element. Nor will it hamper it in its commendable desire to learn the truth from right sources. Surely Professor Ross, who has withstood the various attacks upon his right to think independently and to interpret modern sociology, both in Stanford and the Nebraska university, is not likely to be disturbed in his march by anything the Democrat may say. It was a great treat to meet Professor Ross. His wonderful physique with its large, generous lines, his broad-minded views of social events, and his great humanism, were refreshing after meeting so many pigmies who are infesting the American colleges.

"The inspiration of our short stay in Madison was the socialist students' club, whose members tower mountain high above their political leader. Both Dr. Reitman and myself were invited to their round table at the Y. M. C. A., where we were asked to address the club. The doctor spoke of the relation between the educator and agitator, and I made a few remarks on the difference between students in Russia and America. One member of the club helped faithfully at our own meetings, in a true fraternal spirit. Thus our visit to Madison was not only very interesting and profitable, but it was also a delightful one. A sleighride in that beautiful country, with all the glory of a white winter, bore me back to the never-to-be-forgotten joys of the Russian troika, dashing along through the cold, the music of its bells re-echoing through forest and field. For this childhood day in Madison I am indebted to a friend of former days, who is now professor at the university, and a respectable citizen of the place.

"The light continues in its bright colors, even while I write this in the city of St. Louis, the success of which I will describe at another time.

"The life of the avant-guard,—how rich, how full, how all absorbing. The only life worth living.

"Emma Goldman."

840514084

The Emma Goldman Papers

Light and Shadows in the Life of an Avant-Guard / Emma Goldman. – pp. 87-90 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 5, no. 3 (May 1910).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

may trample and flee; to be smitten by these gods that have as little of the idea of stone in them as a dragon-fly, one instant poised upon a wind-swayed petal edge. I think no one can look upon them without realizing at once that those figures came out of the boil of life; they seem like rising bubbles about to float into the air, but beneath them other bubbles rising, and others, and others,—there will be no end of it. When one's eyes are upon one group, one feels that behind one, perhaps, a figure is uptoeing to seize the darts of the air and hurl them on one's head; one must keep whirling to face the miracle that appears about to be wrought—stone leaping! And this though nearly every one is minus some of the glory the old Greek wrought into it so long ago; even the broken stumps of arms and legs live. And the dominant idea is Activity, and the beauty and strength of it. Change, swift, ever-circling Change! The making of things and the casting of them away, as children cast away their toys, not interested that these shall endure, so that they themselves realize incessant activity. Full of creative power, what matter if the creature perished. So there was an endless procession of changing shapes in their schools, their philosophies, their dramas, their poems, till at last it wore itself to death. And the marvel passed away from the world. But still their marbles live to show what manner of thoughts dominated them.

And if we wish to know what master-thought ruled the lives of men when the mediæval period had had time to ripen it, one has only at this day to stray into some quaint, out-of-the-way English village, where a strong old towered Church yet stands in the midst of little straw-thatched cottages, like a brooding mother-hen surrounded by her chickens. Everywhere the greatening of God, and the lessening of Man: the Church so looming, the home so little. The search for the spirit, for the enduring thing (not the poor endurance of granite which in the ages crumbles, but the eternal), the etenal,—and contempt for the body which perishes, manifest in studied uncleanliness, in mortifications of the flesh, as if the spirit should have spat its scorn upon it.

Such was the dominant idea of that middle age which has been too much cursed by modernists. For the men who built the castles and the cathedrals, were men of mighty works, though they made no books, and though their souls spread crippled wings, because of their very endeavors to soar too high. The spirit of voluntary subordination for the accomplishment of a great work, which proclaimed the aspiration of the common soul, that was the spirit wrought into the cathedral stones; and it is not wholly to be condemned.

In waking dream, when the shadow-shapes of world-ideas swim before the vision, one sees the Middle-Age Soul an ill-contorted, half-formless thing, with dragon wings and a great, dark, tense face, strained sunward with blind eyes.

(To be continued.)

* * *

LIGHT AND SHADOWS IN THE LIFE OF AN AVANT-GUARD

By EMMA GOLDMAN.

DENVER is not unlike a prison. Its inhabitants, too, have been sent there "to do time." That which makes the position of the prisoner preferable, is the consolation that the State will feed him and that some day his time will expire. The majority of Denverites have no such cheerful outlook. Although arriving there with hopes of a speedy return, it's usually imprisonment for life.

We all know the paralizing effect of the daily grind for existence, even for most of us who can boast an average physique. How much more paralizing must it be for those who go to Denver as a last resort to rescue life from its downward path?

Under such conditions and in such an atmosphere people are not interested in abstract ideas. "To hell with Bebel's speech," said the consumptive in "Sanin," in reply to the query of his companion enthused over the latest word-battle in the Reichstag. "I am interested in one thing—Life, and how long I may still see the sky, the stars."

723

840514084

The Emma Goldman Papers

Light and Shadows in the Life of an Avant-Guard / Emma Goldman. – pp. 87-90 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 5, no. 3 (May 1910).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

Artzibasheff, himself a victim of tuberculosis, understands the psychology of these people only too well.

And yet, those who attended our meetings in Denver must have been interested. Else they would not have come, night after night. Or was it merely to get away from the grim reality? If so, I am happy to have furnished that opportunity, even though it was but for the moment.

The Ferrer lecture and the one on "Marriage and Love" brought the largest audience. Particularly the latter. Sex is a vital factor, after all; few people realize how very vital it must be for the exiles of Denver.

Fair newspaper treatment of an Anarchist is as scarce as light in the life of the avant-guard. One must therefore consider it an event if three papers in one city, during almost a week, devoted columns to verbatim reports of Anarchistic lectures, not to forget the extraordinary discovery of the dramatic critic of the Denver Times, to wit: "Emma Goldman is being treated as an enemy of society because, with Dr. Stockman, she is pointing out the ills and defects of society." O, for the naivety of an American dramatic critic! As if that was not the crime of all crimes, to point to the swamps of society.

CHEYENNE.—Even woman's votes have failed to affect the grey matter of the police. Yet my sisters still believe in the miraculous power of woman suffrage. Wyoming can boast women politicians, but the police are just as stupid as in other States, and a little more, as our dear editor has already described in a delightfully humorous comment in the April issue. I shall, therefore, only add that the danger signal was hoisted in Cheyenne by the Acting Mayor. The poor fellow was quite a nonentity in his town. To make himself conspicuous, he set the town afire, and when the smoke was over, he found he had only burned his own fingers. By noon of the day after our arrest the "hero" came slinking into our lawyer's office, whining, "Please, sir, I'll be good. I'll never do it again." As for the majesty of the law, four meetings instead of the original two, and the sale of a quantity of literature, helped to make her majesty appear pretty flat and silly.

I cannot close this very important chapter without expressing our thanks to the faithful few in Denver, who came to the rescue the moment they heard of our arrest. The money they sent helped us to reimburse, in a small measure, the attorney who was instrumental in setting the dislocated funny bone of the Acting Mayor.

SALT LAKE CITY.—The Mormon husband may be as agreeable around the house as the Christian dears, but as builder of cities the Mormons are certainly superior.

I have traveled through the length and breadth of this very Christian country, but I know of no city that can compare with the stronghold of the Mormons. Nothing mean about these people, whatever else they may be. They could not indulge in many wives if they were small or miserly. No wonder they are so generous with their city.

Spacious, beautifully laid out, and spotlessly clean, Salt Lake City has much more the appearance of an European than an American city, where every inch of ground is mutilated for business purposes. As regards public buildings, the Mormons are almost as extravagant as in the number of wives. Quite a variety of them, each one a joy to the eye.

My dear old friend Thurston Brown (who lost a fat church because he dared, as few did, give reasons for Czolgosz's act), together with Comrade Cline, of Salt Lake City, arranged two meetings, which proved the most successful of the second part of our tour. The audiences were large and remarkably appreciative, which was best proved by the quantity of literature purchased.

A drive into the glorious country surrounding Salt Lake City, with Comrade and Mrs. Cline, added to our short but delightful visit to the Mormons.

RENO, NEV.—The divorce mill of America. What a farce the marriage institution is, anyway. Here are thousands of women flocking to Reno, to buy their freedom from one owner in order to sell it more profitably to another. Thus a well known lady married the second man four hours after she was divorced from the first. These respectable women do have it easy. No heartache, no soul agony of the free woman, who suffers a thousand torments in the transitory period between an old and new experience. Just a piece of paper bought for so many dollars, and all is proper. What shallowness, what terrible hypocrisy. Yet these same respectable ladies of

724

840514084

The Emma Goldman Papers

Light and Shadows in the Life of an Avant-Guard / Emma Goldman. – pp. 87-90 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 5, no. 3 (May 1910).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

Reno hold up their hands in holy horror when they hear of a free relationship of the free woman, who would never think of giving herself to any man, except when she loves. Some of these good women were perfectly scandalized when Emma Goldman registered in the same hotel. No, they could not stand for that. Either they or Emma Goldman must go. And the hotel keeper, poor lackey. The ladies have money; never mind their lack of character, or provincialism. Emma Goldman was told to get out. It would have been surprising if she hadn't. Respectability is indeed a shallow thing.

The greatest farce of Reno, however, is that in democratic America divorce is but an exclusively aristocratic privilege. The poor women, thousands of them, abused, insulted, and outraged by their precious husbands, must continue a life of degradation. They have no money to join the colony in Reno. No relief for them. The poor women, the slaves of the slaves, must go on prostituting themselves. They must continue to bear children in hate, in conflict, in physical horror. The marriage institution and the "sanctity of the home" are only for those who have not the money to buy themselves free from both, even as the chattel slave from his master.

Reno, the divorce mill of America, needed more than any other place to learn the cause of the failure of marriage and the meaning of love. Not the kind that is bought and sold, but the kind that is free as the elements to give itself in abundance or to deny itself in the same measure.

The beginning was made in Reno. I spoke on Anarchism, and on Marriage and Love. What I said may have been Greek to some. But that a few did understand, their faces betrayed. Theirs was the expression of the blind beholding the light of day for the first time.

To accomplish this much it was worth going even to Reno. The supreme effort of the avant-guard is onward, ever onward.

ANARCHIST SYMPOSIUM

TOLSTOY.

TOLSTOY asks how it is that the people submit to oppressive governments, and answers that it is owing to "a highly artificial organization, created with the help of scientific progress, in which all men are bewitched into a circle of violence from which they cannot free themselves. At present this circle consists of four means of influence; they are all connected and hold each other, like the links of a chain."

The first means is the "hypnotization of the people," leading them to the erroneous opinion that the existing order is unchangeable and must be upheld, while in reality it is unchangeable only by its being upheld." It is accomplished by "fomenting the two forces of superstition called religion and patriotism."

The second means that the State employs is the bribery of a small class, to which it gives official positions and special privileges.

The third means is intimidation, which "consists in setting down the present State order—of whatever sort, be it a free republican order or be it the most grossly despotic—as something sacred and unchangeable, and imposing the most frightful penalties upon every attempt to change it.

The fourth means is to "separate a certain part of all the men, whom they have stupefied and bewitched by the three first means, and subject these men to special, stronger forms of stupefaction and bestialization, so that they become will-less tools of every brutality and cruelty that the government sees fit to resolve upon." "Intimidation, bribery, hypnosis, bring men to enlist as soldiers. The soldiers, in turn, afford the possibility of punishing men, plundering them in order to bribe officials with the money; hypnotizing them, and thus bringing them into the ranks of the very soldiers on whom the power for all this is based."

Tolstoy is positive that the conditions that he describes so graphically cannot endure much longer, for he says: "To-day every man who thinks, however little, sees the impossibility of keeping on with the life hitherto lived, and the necessity of determining new forms of life."

725

840514086

The Emma Goldman Papers

Light and Shadows in the Life of an Avant-Guard / Emma Goldman. – pp. 124-130 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 5, no. 4 (June, 1910).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

find our own child pointing the finger of scorn at us and crying, "You hypocrite!"

As to our economic life, the student of labor conditions is well aware of the disorganizing and enslaving effect of compromise. Here in America, especially, are the relations of capital and labor still based on the treacherous sands of weak-kneed surrender, with evident results. In no land is the workingman so mercilessly exploited as here; yet in no land is he such a willing slave, so bigotted, narrow-minded and patriotic, thoroughly persuaded by the long practice of compromise that this is a free country, that it is his country, and that his masters are his real benefactors.

Conditions, indeed, force us all to compromise, to some extent, and especially on the economic field. But compromise under protest and the glorification of compromise as a noble ideal, are two entirely different things. As long as the workers believe in compromise—under whatever euphonism it may express itself: arbitration, identity of interests, legislative regulation, reform of labor conditions within the confines of wage slavery; as long as the workingmen are trained by their misleaders to cheerfully relinquish their right to the entire product of their labor, and taught to consider every surrender a victory; as long as their power of resistance is thus paralyzed more and more while their gaze is directed to piously contemplate some divine or governmental Messiah—as long, in short, as labor regards the economic arena as a fraternal compromise banquet instead of a battle-field, just so long will the workingman remain the abject wage slave that he is, without hope of emancipation.

* * *

LIGHT AND SHADOWS IN THE LIFE OF AN AVANT-GUARD

By EMMA GOLDMAN.

MANY years ago, when I first learned to know America's most human writer, Bret Harte, I was told by a friend: "You will never be able to fully appreciate Bret Harte until you have been in California."

Since then it has been my fortune to see that golden stretch of soil five times, and with every new pilgrimage I realize more keenly how truthfully my friend had spoken.

The California of to-day has not the primitiveness, the savage beauty, the daring recklessness of Bret Harte's time. Like everything else in our life- and soul-destroying commercialism, California is fast becoming ordinary and commonplace. Yet, with all that, it is still so gloriously beautiful, so rich and fragrant, so thrilling and yet so soothing as to remain forever the enchantress of all those who first followed her lure.

Thirteen years ago I made my first trip to the West, and still I feel the same breathless awe, the same exaltation the moment California is before me. Possibly this is due to the contrast between the endless stretch of desert-like Nevada, with its bareness and deathlike gray, and the rich, soft green that suddenly greets the weary wanderer. A magic hand that turns death to life, ugliness into beauty, and imbues one's drowsy, listless body with intense alertness and expectancy.

We reached California the 18th of April, after fourteen weeks of constant motion through rain and cold, with the winter's chill in body and soul. But California was all Spring, Mother Earth reborn, holding out warmth, hope, and cheer to all her children, the avant-guard not excepted. And who is more in need of Earth's bounteous gifts than the avant-guard, the forerunner of a new life?

Thanks to the gracious hospitality of Dr. George Pyburn, the old young banner bearer of Sacramento, I could make a halt in our restless march. Not so our "Hobo"; he had to go on to San Francisco to pay his usual toll as manager of our meetings. If anyone has envied Dr. Reitman his "lucrative position," he is welcome to try it for a while; the manager will be glad to take a rest.

Dear Doctor Pyburn—Daddy Pyburn, as I best like to call him—is one of the oldest, if not the oldest Anarchist on the coast; yet his interest and enthusiasm in the cause of liberty would put many a younger comrade to shame. He is truly an inspiration to all who have lost faith in the truth and in themselves. At 78 he is as strong in body as in mind, lives in free-

726

840514086
The Emma Goldman Papers
Light and Shadows in the Life of an Avant-Guard / Emma Goldman. – pp. 124-130 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 5, no. 4 (June, 1910).
Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

dom, attends his house and garden, and keeps his door and purse always open to those who work for human emancipation.

A few days under Daddy Pyburn's roof and within the fragrance of his roses, and I felt rejuvenated to begin the battle anew.

SAN FRANCISCO has gone back on her record, or perhaps some of those who profess to be radicals have. At any rate, our meetings were not up to the usual mark.

The preliminary arrangements were made by a friend who was too much burdened with other affairs, and San Francisco is too large a city to be thoroughly canvassed in a few days. Still, the faithful few, together with Dr. Reitman, succeeded in saving the situation. Five meetings and a debate furnished the opportunity to dispose of quite a quantity of literature. The debate as to whether collective regulation or free love will guarantee a healthy race was really nothing else than the question whether the State or the individual shall control human affairs. My opponent was a Socialist. That's the reason.

GLEN ELLEN, Jack London's ranch.

Among the people I notified of my lectures in San Francisco was Jack London. As I much wanted to meet him, I asked him to come to San Francisco. He replied in this caustic manner:

"Dear Emma Goldman.—I have your note, but would not go to a meeting even if God Almighty were to lecture. The only time I attend a lecture is when I am to speak. (Poor Jack!) But we want you here. Will you not come to Glen Ellen and bring whomever you have with you?"

Who could resist such a unique yet straight-from-the-heart invitation? And so we went to Glen Ellen. Fortunately for Jack and Charmian London, I had only two friends with me, Ben Reitman and E. E. Kirk; no cats, dogs, or canary birds. But if I had to bring a caravan the trouble would have been worth while.

What a beautiful, jovial, hearty man, this Jack London. So altogether different from the cold, mechanical, bell-button Socialist of the "Crampton and Vace Letters," the man to whom love, romance, sympathy, and beauty were nothing but machine results. How silly are theories, after all, if they fail to have the human, the red blood in them. Jack London is so much bigger than his matter-of-fact, mechanical attitude toward the million complexities of life. One who can bring us so close to the soul struggle, the mental agony of a "Martin Eden" is not only a great artist, but must also have in him the precious element of life, warm, red blood that beats in unison with every soul in pain.

Everything about Glen Ellen, the glory of the country which showed me California as I had never seen it before; the truly great hospitality of Charmian and Jack London, a hospitality that relieves and soothes and does not bind; above all, the free spirit of the whole atmosphere made our two days' visit a memorable event, a truly great experience.

LOS ANGELES remains one of the faithful. Comrade W. C. Owen was the patron saint this time. Although far from being well, and with an enormous amount of daily grind in behalf of the Prison Reform work, he nevertheless managed to do a great deal for our meetings. Other friends also helped. Failure was therefore out of the question. As I have repeatedly said, if our meetings are poor it is not because of indifference on the part of the people, but rather owing to poor advertising. We have so few willing to do work, and still fewer who know how to do it. A couple of days are usually enough to arrange meetings in a small city. Dr. Reitman has done it in twenty-four hours. But large cities require a thorough canvass. Where that has been done our work was crowned with success.

Los Angeles has surpassed all our expectations. We had large gatherings every night, including a meeting in Yiddish (the first in that city, by the way). The debate on "Woman Suffrage," with the same gentleman who stood for Colleetive Regulation, Mr. Edward Adam Cantrell, brought a crowded house. Still the Los Angelites, like Oliver Twist, wanted more. We added another meeting to the list of eight, and that one, too, was literally jammed.

727

840514086

The Emma Goldman Papers

Light and Shadows in the Life of an Avant–Guard / Emma Goldman. – pp. 124-130 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 5, no. 4 (June, 1910).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

I know Comrade Owen was happy; in fact, everybody was, not only because of the moral and material results, but because of the good will, the harmony, and solidarity among those who helped so faithfully in the work.

The Los Angeles visit, aside from the pleasure of meeting my many dear friends there, proved particularly interesting to me this time. I met there that rare man who, released from prison, had not forgotten the unfortunate victims behind the bars: Colonel Griffith J. Griffith, who, together with that tireless worker, Comrade W. C. Owen, has started the disclosures of the horrors in American prisons by the publication of "Crime and Criminals," a book every social student ought to read—the most scathing indictment against our entire penal system ever published. The extensive correspondence carried on by the Prison Reform Association has further helped to awaken an interest in the life of our social outcasts. The whole work has been financed entirely by Colonel Griffith J. Griffith.

If I thought that a great wrong is sure to awaken social consciousness and fellow-feeling, I should wish for all men the experience of Mr. G. J. Griffith. Especially would I wish that people of wealth should get a dose of American prisons. Perhaps they would follow the good example of the man in Los Angeles. But that is expecting almost the superhuman. Colonel Griffith is still a believer in legislative enactment, as a measure of reform. 'Tis the political germ. But if Mr. Griffith could learn the injustice practiced within the prison, he will also learn the greater injustice of the thing that makes prison abuses inevitable—that is, government.

SAN DIEGO. The rarest of all rarities in America is to find a German proletarian who has interested himself in the life struggle of his people rather than in pinochle and singing-vereins. Such a curiosity is Comrade Ernest Besselman, as saturated with the spirit of revolt, as completely devoted to the cause of liberty, as if he had just stepped out of the early revolutionary movement of Germany. I mean the proletarian Germany of twenty-five or thirty years ago, not of the sleek and polished political demagoguerie of to-day. Although our comrade earns an American fortune of nine dollars per week, I am confident that at least six of them go every week to the revolutionary cause, which to him is the very breath of life.

He is no mean artist, this proletarian. A skilled decorator, he would, in a sane world, beautify public halls for the festivals of the people. But in this stupid society of ours he decorates the palaces of the parasites who fatten on the sweat of the disinherited. Among his "patrons" was Mrs. Suffragist Belmont, whose great "generosity" to the shirtwaist makers brought the newspaper lackeys to her feet.

For this lady our comrade worked. He decorated a smoking room for ladies in a wonderful damask red, as red as the blood of the countless millions that are being devoured by the Moloch of Greed. Ernest Besselman forgot that lives like his are cheap in this Christian world. He fell off the scaffold, dislocated his left arm, and broke his shoulder blade. What did Sister Belmont do? Nothing, since there was no chance for newspaper notoriety and vote-getting. Oh, I forgot: She immediately stopped Ernest Besselman's pay. Not enough, you say. Too much for a working man. However, our comrade has humor He told me that a minister visited him in the hospital and asked him whether he had ever worked on Sundays. Our friend naively told him that he did. "Well, my friend," said the minister, "bear your accident like a Christian, for it is God's punishment for your sin of working on the Sabbath." Two years later our comrade was again sent to work on the Belmont estate. At that time he had affiliated himself with the I. W. W. He wore the emblem of that organization. Mrs. Belmont, who wants the vote because her gardener has it, upbraided poor Besselman for being a Russian revolutionist, because of the innocent red button. Pity the constituents who will place Mrs. Belmont in power.

This bit of history must prove especially interesting to my friends who were carried away last winter by the hysteria of Mrs. Belmont and Miss Anna Morgan, in connection with the shirtwaist makers' strike.

728

840514086

The Emma Goldman Papers

Light and Shadows in the Life of an Avant-Guard / Emma Goldman. – pp. 124-130 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 5, no. 4 (June, 1910).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

Ernest Besselman can no longer follow his art for a living. But his love of the beautiful is too deep to be smothered. So he decorates the I. W. W. hall, his own little bachelor room, and whatever else he may. How many Besselmans die for want even of that much!

With infinite devotion and care he arranged my meetings, pasted the town in the early morning hours, and proved a veritable inspiration in that lethargic, dead San Diego.

I am sure our comrade was as happy as a lark over the results, though they were not very great. But if the meetings had actually been a failure, it would have been worth the effort, if only to meet such a rare and refreshing specimen of humanity. Dear, brave Comrade, if not for such as you the shadows in the life of the avant-guard would shut out the light completely.

* * *

CHILD LABOR

By H. KELLY.

THE N. Y. Sun has long been noted for its brutal and sinister defense of the present form of wage slavery. With a staff of writers trained in the Dana school, they often make the most outrageous abuse of human rights look plausible. It requires skill to make child labor seem defensible; it takes genius to make it appear beneficial and humane, for even the most callous bourgeois has qualms of conscience on this subject—unless he is a direct beneficiary.

In an editorial published in a recent issue, the Sun attempts to prove that child labor in Southern mills is both beneficial and humane; the writer, however, not being a genius, the attempt is a stupid failure. Thus runs his argument:

"Some time ago, perhaps three weeks, we took occasion to say that the women and children taken from the smaller Southern farms and employed in the cotton mills were vastly benefited by the transplantation; improved physically and morally, transformed from forlorn and anæmic conditions into conditions of health and activity and vigor, and elevated to higher planes of enlightened well being. Of course we did not refer to the exceptional mills where searchers after hardship and neglect can find almost any deplorable circumstance they happen to be looking for. We had in view the normal mill towns, representing six-tenths if not more of the now progressive industry.

"There are mills all over North and South Carolina where so-called 'child labor' has been most beneficent, where the mill owners build schools and churches and for the most part pay the salaries of the teachers and the ministers, where they establish clubhouses and libraries and kindergartens for the training and development of the youth within their influence, and where the objects of these ministrations emerge from the pallid and unwholesome products of the isolated farms into rosy, happy, and perfectly natural children. Some have established bands and military companies, playgrounds, halls for light theatrical entertainments, and behind it all are the sanitary homes, the cooking schools, the system of picnics and other social reunions which illumine life and bring health and knowledge and high spirits to the individual."

All things are possible in this world. It may even be that the luxuries purchased with the thirty-five to fifty cents a week, paid some of these children, have brought roses to their cheeks and increased the vitality of their bodies. Likewise the clubhouses, libraries, churches, schools, etc., have improved their minds, and the music developed their culture and added a poetic touch to their imagination. When, however, our writer talks about the "exceptional mills where searchers after hardship and neglect can find almost any deplorable circumstance they happen to be looking for," and having "in view the normal mill towns, representing six-tenths if not more of the now progressive industry," we must draw the veil. Six-tenths is, if we are not mistaken, three-fifths; and if three-fifths is the normal and two-fifths the exceptional, words have lost their meaning. On the face of it, deplorable conditions exist in two-fifths of the cotton mills of the South, for even our apologist admits that. It would seem as if there is still plenty of work left the "muckraker" to do. In our glad childhood

729

840514088

The Emma Goldman Papers

The End of the Odyssey / Emma Goldman. — pp. 159-163 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 5, no. 5 (July 1910).

Obtained from the University of Califomia, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

the child. Is it not courage which will in a great measure decide the battles which are coming, and which our children will see if we do not ourselves see them?

It is to the militant members of all advanced parties, to the workers grouped in their unions that we turn, to ask that they shall give life to a work which is essentially their work, to help us accomplish a task which is essentially their task.

It will, perhaps, be objected that to realize our ideal of education completely, a social transformation must first be accomplished. We know it. But we also know that even within the narrow framework of present constraints and difficulties, we can do much. Our domain, because it is that of education, escapes to a certain extent the iron laws which elsewhere hem us in.

No human force, for example, can exempt a wage-worker from the material consequences of his wage-slavery. Certain educators on the contrary, more enlightened, more courageous, and more alert than the rest, are already giving instruction in conformity with our ideal, at any rate superior to that suggested by the bourgeois State. Be sure that the number of these valiant souls will rapidly increase if they feel themselves aided, guided, and sustained by an active and powerful organization.

Such is the aim of our League; it will attain that aim, if you but will it so.

For the Committee,
Officers: ANATOLE FRANCE, Honorary Pres.;
SOLEDAD VILLAFRANCA, President;
C. A. LAISANT, Vice-President;
CHAS. ALBERT, Secretary;
AUGUSTE BERTRAND, Treasurer.

⁂ ⁂ ⁂

ANARCHIST—A believer in Anarchism; one opposed to all forms of coercive government and invasive authority; an advocate of Anarchy, or absence of government, as the ideal of political liberty and social harmony.

THE END OF THE ODYSSEY

HERE is July, and I am still writing of "Light and Shadows." But six months' touring as an Anarchist lecturer furnishes enough material for a whole volume, were one to relate every incident. The latter may not look important in cold print, but in the life of the avant-guard each little event plays a part in the great struggle.

In Portland our Comrade Agnes Fair proved true to her name. Some day I shall acquaint our readers with Agnes. For the present it will suffice to mention that she is a most typical American woman "hobo," a true child of the Open Road, with the naturalness and simplicity of one who has never lived the cramped city life. Agnes is a proletarian, devoted to the workers with every fiber of her being. Untiring and with boundless zeal she goes like her Russian sisters among the people, into factory, shop, and mine, into the lumber regions, fisheries, and on the street, always knocking at the dull minds and indifferent hearts of the oppressed, urging them to think, to feel, and to rebel.

In co-operation with Comrade Sivin, she arranged five lectures, canvassed every labor gathering and meeting, distributing cards; nor did she overlook any detail that might help to make my visit in Portland a real holiday. Thus, thanks to her efforts, our work was crowned with the greatest success we had ever had in that city.

SEATTLE did not look promising. Though there is a considerable coterie of Anarchists in the Mecca on the Pugent Sound, only one was sufficiently interested to take the preliminary arrangements in hand. The others, I understand, had no end of grievances, which on closer inspection proved, what Nietzsche called, mental laziness. Friend Cassius Cook, however, went about in his highly methodical manner, doing the best he knew to make my coming known. Owing to the difficulty of procuring halls in Seattle, only two English meetings were arranged. But they made up in quality.

At the lecture on white slavery the audience was given a treat which it will long remember. During the discussion I was attacked bitterly by an Englishman, who was terribly shocked at my frank handling of the sub-

730

840514088

The Emma Goldman Papers

The End of the Odyssey / Emma Goldman. — pp. 159-163 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 5, no. 5 (July 1910).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

ject. With usual Anglo-Saxon cant he protested against the preposterous idea that respectable women should at all consider the prostitute. After the King's subject had closed his plea for "goodness and virtue," a young Hindu student of the University of Washington followed, and in a brief but eloquent discourse he drew a vivid picture of British "goodness and virtue" in India, which kept the audience spellbound. Nothing but intenseness of purpose, great human sympathy, and a deeply outraged soul could speak as that Hindu did.

How little we know in America of the horrors in India, of the robbery, outrages, and pilfering under English rule. How great must be the suffering of the Hindu people if, with their serene attitude towards life, her sons are driven to violent resistance.

Curiosity may sometimes lead to real interest, but those who suffer much from the disagreeable invasion of the curious must needs become impatient and inaccessible. The penalty thereof is that, because of the mass, one rarely comes in closer contact with the individual man and woman. Yet it is only the individual who is of consequence, who adds to one's experience, and deepens one's view of life.

While in Seattle it was my good fortune to meet two women—not the ordinary middle class sort, who out of ennui and lack of stability dabble in all kinds of reform issues, but rather women eager for their own development, and deeply interested in the great social unrest. They have helped to strengthen my conviction that in America women, and not men, will prove the most ardent workers for social reconstruction. Already we find in all radical movements women as the most zealous workers. I say this not because I am partial to my sex, but because the middle class and even the professional man has been made an almost complete automaton by our commercial life; he lacks red blood, without which active interest in an ideal is impossible.

Last year, when the Industrial Workers of SPOKANE began their free speech fight, I was strongly tempted to go to the scene of action. But knowing the antecedents of the majority of the Industrial Workers—De Leon as parent, and the Daily People for their baby food—I realized that my presence would have been a hindrance instead of a help. But with the free speech fight lost, and all the boys out of prison, I decided to visit Spokane, if only to pay my respects to Chief Sullivan, the Terrible.

Comrade Dickinson was the one who prepared the battlefield; the "manager" preceded me by one day, yet we found Spokane to be the red-letter town of our entire itinerary. Our success was extraordinary. Though hot as in Gehenna, every meeting, afternoon and evening, brought large audiences, and the demand for literature exhausted our supply long before the campaign was over.

The only incident that clouded the otherwise sunny sky of Spokane, and nearly proved our Waterloo, was an automobile accident. For the peace of mind of some of my "friends," I might say that the accident happened not as was reported, in Emma Goldman's car, but in that of the hallkeeper, who, like most well-meaning people, possessed more generosity than experience—as a chauffeur. Also the railroad company, with usual American recklessness, had neither bears nor flagman at the dangerous crossing.

Twenty years of tramping has, like the outdoor life of the savage, helped to sharpen the senses of our "Hobo." Certainly he must have felt the train approach before he could see it. It was he who gave the danger signal while jumping off the car, a fraction of a second before the locomotive struck the wheel. As for myself, like the infesters of the air, I went up in an aeroplane and down again to mother earth,—fortunately not on my head. . . I was considerably bruised, but otherwise fate seems to have reserved me for a more useful ending. I hope so, at least.

BUTTE is still owned, spiritually, by the Catholic Church, and bodily by the Copper kings. What chance, then, for Truth?

Of the many States we visited, North Dakota is, for its size, the most wide-awake and eager for new ideas. In both BISMARCK and FARGO the meetings were splendidly attended. Particularly interesting was the audience in Bismarck, consisting chiefly of firemen, delegates to the Firemen's Convention. They were greatly pleased when, in discussing Anarchism, I cited the fire department as

731

840514088

The Emma Goldman Papers

The End of the Odyssey / Emma Goldman. — pp. 159-163 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 5, no. 5 (July 1910).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

one of the original voluntary organizations, and, though now under government control, it still retains the spirit of solidarity and helpfulness. Indeed, the firemen are the only useful uniformed men, rendering the hardest and most perilous social service, yet they have neither as much recognition nor remuneration as policemen; certainly not as much chance for graft, which probably accounts for the sturdiness and decency of the average fire fighter.

The Socialist Arcadia of MILWAUKEE had to be inspected on our way to Chicago. It would have been almost criminal to miss the revolutionary upheaval that was to consist in reformed street sprinkling and three-cent fares. Of course, without bloodshed. To be sure, we found that no blood had been spilt, nor much water, either. The car company still charges five cents, and the police look just as stupid, but a little bit more—class-conscious.

However, some important reconstruction has taken place: the wretched condition of the girls in the beer-bottling department will hereafter be examined by lady inspectors, instead of mere men. Prostitution is to be wiped out by a very drastic measure: the dance halls, which furnished some forgetfulness to the victims of Pabst and Schlitz, are to be taxed by a higher license, or entirely abolished. Thus, Milwaukee will be purified by the old maid, Berger, and the virtue of Socialist morality. But what of economic determinism, which alone is responsible for the social and other evils? Ah, well, so long as it is not responsible for the stupidity of Socialist politicians, all is well.

* * *

And now to the resumé. The tour began January 5, closing June 18th. We visited 37 different cities in 25 States, delivering 120 lectures, before a total audience of 40,000, 25,000 of which paid admission,* the balance—being unemployed—were, as usual, admitted free. Nearly 10,000 pieces of literature were sold, and five thousand distributed free. In five cities a successful free speech campaign was made, the expense thereof having been raised at our own meetings. Also, eighty dollars were collected for the Ferrer fund, and a small sum for the striking car men of Philadelphia.

* See financial report.

During fifteen years I had been lecturing, depending entirely on the good-will of my comrades at large. Every tour brought the same result: small audiences, mostly of a foreign element, with absolutely no opportunity to dispose of literature. Consequently, my work left nothing of lasting effect.

With the birth of MOTHER EARTH and its dependence on meetings, and the necessity of reaching an American public, the lectures arranged by my comrades, much as I appreciated their solidarity, were absolutely inadequate. Two years ago Dr. Reitman offered to do advance work. Though doubting the practicability of the scheme, I accepted his offer. For that I was roundly condemned. What! An Anarchist to travel with a manager, an ex-tramp, a man of unsettled habits, one who wasn't even a comrade. Surely E. G. is going straight to perdition. Too bad Anarchists have no centralized authority, or we would have to excommunicate her.

I think I am not exaggerating when I say that during the last two years I have done better work, have reached more people, certainly more English-speaking people, have disposed of a larger amount of literature, and have helped to make Anarchism more widely known than in many previous tours. The credit for the difference is due chiefly to the zeal, the devotion, and skill of Ben Reitman. I believe in giving even the devil his due.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

* * *

FINANCIAL REPORT

RECEIPTS.

Box receipts, $4,213.00; Literature sold, $1,019.00; M. E. subscriptions and renewals, $300.00. Total—$5,532.00.

EXPENDITURES.

Railroad fares, $515.00; hall rent, $1,175.00; printing, $455.00; signs and posters, $173.00; advertising, $180.00; invested in literature, $150.00; telegrams, postage, expressage, freight, excess baggage, $100.00; to M. E. printer and office expenses, $1,120.00; repayment debts, $250.00; hotel expenses for 5½ months, $914.00. Total—$5,032.00.

Balance on hand, $500.00.

732

880819009

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Comstock Heckled at Labor Temple / Emma Goldman.— 28 cm. In The New York Times. —(Nov. 2, 1910).

Obtained from the University of Califomia, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

COMSTOCK HECKLED AT LABOR TEMPLE

Vice Crusader Is Made the Storm Centre for Anarchists' Questions.

JUSTIFIES HIS WORK

Emma Goldman, Dr. Reitman, and Others Try in Vain to Get Him to Admit Himself a Persecutor.

Anthony Comstock stood up yesterday before an audience at the Labor Temple, Fourteenth Street and Second Avenue, and replied to a volley of questions fired at him by Emma Goldman, Dr. Reitman, and their sympathisers. The debate got so hot and Reitman was so negligent of the rules of the meeting that Mr Comstock threatened as a peace officer of the county to take him off to jail, and a young Brotohman demanded if there were not men enough in the church to punish the "millionaire bqbo" for his irreverence, but in the end the meeting closed with no worse effects than Mr. Comstock's loss of his train to Summit.

Mr Comstock told the story of his fight for the adoption of the laws against the use of the mails for nbsceno literature and pictures and spoke especially of the convention of "so-called liberals, free thinkers, and free lovers" which had met to obtain their repeal. As soon as he had finished the Rev. Charles Stelzle, the Chairman, invited questions, the rule of the debate being that no man might ask a second question while there was any one else wishing the floor.

"Is it true that you have sent 1,000 people to jail," demanded Dr. Reitman at once, "for spreading necessary information about sex?"

"No," replied Mr Comstock shortly.

"Yes," shouted Emma Goldman.

"And drove as many to suicide?" Reitman went on.

"I have acted only according to the rules of law," retorted Comstock.

"Who furnished you the perjured testimony?" demanded Emma Goldman.

"I have not used perjured testimony," said Mr. Comstock. "Your remarks are indecent and uncalled for."

A burst of applause followed this retort, but Miss Goldman was on her feet in a minute armed with a lengthy list of questions on a sheet of paper.

"Do you believe it honest for you to assume, in your investigations, the fictitious name of Max Jansen?" she asked.

"As a Post Office Inspector I am entitled to any name I please," said Comstock. "I am not so stupid as to write to a publisher and say I am a Post Office Inspector and will you please forward to me any obscene books you may be selling out?"

Says She Represents the Truth.

He then explained that in his opinion no one should acquaint a child with the facts of life but his mother.

"How far ought school children go in the Metropolitan Art Gallery?"

"I do not know," replied Mr. Comstock. In the next minute he was roused to anger by a questioner, who wanted to know if it was right to place in the hands of a child the Bible.

"I will not consider, I will not listen to such remarks on the Word of God," said Mr. Comstock. "There is nothing in it that cannot be taken in the right spirit."

"He has avoided the question," came a voice amid shouts of indignation. Miss Goldman was signaling the Chairman wildly, but he passed her over for some one who asked:

Is the opera 'Salome' a moral play for children?"

A general laugh drowned whatever Mr. Comstock may have said, and as Miss Goldman was still waving her paper at Mr Stelzle he closed the meeting in spite of her protests.

"We may all have our views on art," said the Chairman, "but as we walk down Fourteenth Street and see Hell open before our eyes we want some one to hit somebody square between the eyes. I believe Mr. Comstock is the man who is doing that."

"Well, I've missed my train now," said Mr. Comstock as a vote of thanks to him was passed. "I might as well have stopped and fought it out."

$1,000 A MAN FOR FOOTBALL.

Expense of Harvard Team During Season Is Close to $35,000.

One thousand dollars per player for an eight-week season is what it costs Harvard to turn out a high-class football team. This does not mean $11,000 for an eleven, but nearer $35,000 for a squad of about thirty-five men.

The high cost of living is blamed for the big price of gridiron gladiators, for the $1,000-mark per man was never reached until last season. This year, with the cost of living still growing, it is expected to come nearer the $1,200 mark for a gridiron player.

In commenting upon the criticism over the expenditure of $127,945.99 for Harvard athletics during the year 1909-10, the Harvard Bulletin says:

"The sum is large, no doubt, and it represents an increase of several thousand dollars over the expenses of the year preceding. But the high cost of living seems to be a spear that knows no brother, and it costs a good deal more to put through any schedule of games to-day than it did a few years ago.

"Football costs nearly one-quarter of the whole outlay, and if the permanent squad be reckoned as containing thirty or thirty-five men, it took about $1,000 per player to put the team through its season of seven or eight weeks."

The Bulletin comments upon the gap existing between the requirements of admission to Harvard and the ordinary curriculum of the New England public high school.

"Of this rather unfortunate fact there can be no serious question, and it is a situation which no college can permanently afford to tolerate. If the schools will not come to the college, (and there is no reasonable ground for expecting that they will,) then the college had better go to the schools.

"Otherwise it will pay the penalty for its lack of adjustment by a steadily relaxing hold upon what ought to be the chief feeders of the freshmen class, the public high schools of New England."

'TWAS A BEERY TAXICAB.

Chauffeur Named Bear and His Passenger Took It.

DEAD MAN CARRIED ON QUEENS PAY ROLL

Chief Clerk in Highway Department Unable to Explain Additions to List of Workers.

CONTRACT GRAFT CHARGED

Ex-Inspector Said Court House Architect Told Him He Was to Get $1,000 Added to Heating Estimate.

Padded payrolls on which it is alleged the name of P. Welsh, who has been dead three years, was carried, and the testimony of Robert J Boverin that Peter M Coco, architect of the new Queens County Court House, expected to get $1,000 out of an extra $1,800 added to the heating contract, were features of the hearing of the charges against Borough President Gresser of Queens before Commissioner Ordway yesterday.

Herman Ringe, Chief Clerk of the Highway Department, who has been employed in Queens Borough since 1897, was called as a witness. He testified that just before the primaries in 1909 more horses and carts were obtained for borough work. Orders assigning horses and carts to work were made out in his department, he said. He did not remember giving assignment slips to Michael Mayer, Anton Novotney, Daniel Marscheuser, George Seigel, James Dermody, Thomas F. Loughlin, Fred S. Otego, James Cosgrove, Max Charles Ulrich, Maurice Paladino, James F. Burns, William G Horner, or William Broom. These names were read to him by counsel for the Taxpayers' Committee. He said he did not know it was reported in his department that many of the horses and carts listed did not exist. When asked why he signed the payroll of his department as "mathematically correct," witness said he did so to protect himself. He said he had no means of knowing personally if the work given him on the time sheets had all been performed.

"Did you ever give an assignment slip to P. Welsh or Pat Welsh?" counsel for the taxpayers asked.

Mr. Ringe said he did not remember.

"Well, would it surprise you," continued Mr. Caldwell, "to learn that P. Welsh died three years ago?"

Mr. Ringe said the Welsh he knew was very much alive. Commissioner Ordway then directed him to find Welsh's address in order that he might be subpœnaed. Counsel for the committee said he had found from Welsh a brother he had been dead for three years.

The witness's attention was then called to a name that appeared at the bottom of the pay roll in different colored ink and different handwriting from the rest of the document, and in answer to the question as to whether he would have certified to the pay roll had he noticed this peculiarity, he replied that if it had been called to his attention he would have

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

880819009

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Comstock Heckled at Labor Temple / Emma Goldman. – 28 cm. In The New York Times. –(Nov. 2, 1910).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

A roar of laughter greeted Mr. Comstock's retort, but through it Miss Goldman shouted: "Do you realize that purity is truth?"

"Who do you represent?" cried some one in the hall.

"I represent the truth," replied Miss Goldman, who wanted to know how it could be if Mr. Comstock had for forty years been inspecting obscene literature that his mind remained pure.

"A man can remain pure," said the vice hunter, "if he keeps his will under subjection, and obeys always the laws of God and morality."

The name of Robert Ingersoll then came up, and Mr Comstock declared that he could prove that his was the first name on the petition asking the repeal of the laws against the use of the mails for obscene literature.

"Do you say that Mr. Ingersoll was in favor of obscene literature?" demanded his interrogator.

"I say that his name was first on the petition. I am not running from loud-mouthed infidels and back-biters," said Mr. Comstock.

He declined to be led into a discussion as to how much knowledge should be disseminated without knowing what he was speaking about, and pointed out that matters fit for a medical work would cause the arrest of a man who displayed them in his shop window.

"Well, what harm would they do?" called some one. A shout from the audience went up, and the question was disregarded. Another man from the back of the hall demanded:

"Isn't prudery the chief cause of immorality?"

"Such a question is too absurd to be answered," said Mr Comstock. He went on to speak of the decisions of the English courts in some cases and declared that unnecessary details that would tend to degrade the morals of those who read them might render a book illegal.

"Do you consider Boccaccio's 'Decameron' obscene?" said some one.

"It has been so held by the courts for years," said Mr. Comstock.

"Well, you can buy it on the bookstalls on the Bowery. I saw three there today."

Willing to Buy Them at $5 Each.

"I beg your pardon. You can't find it in this city. I'll give you $5 for every copy you bring me," said Mr. Comstock.

"You can make $15 easy money there," put in Mr. Stetsle.

"What about Leo Tolstoy's 'Resurrection'?" came from another earnest inquirer.

"I don't pass on what I haven't seen," responded Mr. Comstock.

Then a man declared that a director of physical culture had been fined in New Jersey as the result of having extracts from his magazine read to the jury, and asked whether thousands of dollars in fines could not be obtained by reading to an equally unintelligent jury extracts from the Bible.

Mr. Comstock sidestepped by entering on a defense of New Jersey juries. They were, he declared, composed of farmers of a highly intelligent type, well read and well informed.

To the suggestion that after forty years of fighting vice it was strange that he found still so much to do, Comstock retorted that his task to-day is hard because of the license that prevailed before he began his agitation, and that there is less than half the obscene literature for sale in New York to-day than in many of the small cities of the country.

Reitman now began to be anxious to ask another question, and the Chair would not recognize him. He persisted, and Mr Comstock burst out:

"I am a peace officer of this county. I will take you into custody and charge you with disorderly conduct."

"Go ahead," cried Reitman.

"To 165th Street and the Bronx River!" shouted Edgar V. Nelson, a lawyer of Cold Spring, N. Y., who has been stopping for several days at the Hotel Belmont, as he jumped into a taxicab in front of Churchill's at 7 o'clock last night. Charles Beer, the chauffeur, started up the machine. He says beer was both inside and outside the machine.

After roaming for four hours through the Bronx in a vain search for 165th Street and the Bronx River, which happens to be one of the few localities in the Bronx which do not exist, Beer stopped the taxicab, jumped down and said:

"I'm tired of hunting that there 165th Street and Bronx River! You pay this here bill of $4.20!"

But the Cold Spring lawyer was fast asleep within. When Beer woke him, he merely asked, according to the chauffeur:

"Is this Buffalo? My friend Henry Stimson will pay the fare, conductor."

Thereupon Beer conducted him in rage to the Morrisania police station, where, in default of the wherewithal to pay the taxicab bill, Nelson was locked up on charges of intoxication and disorderly conduct.

DIES OF SHOT FIRED BY WIFE.

Pistol Accidentally Discharged While Examining It, Boston Woman Says.

BOSTON, Nov. 1.—William H. Davidson, an inventor, died at the City Hospital early to-day from the effects of a bullet wound inflicted yesterday at his home, 89 Barry Street, Dorchester. His wife is said to have admitted that she shot him.

Mrs. Davidson said that her husband had laid the weapon on a table preparatory to cleaning it. Not knowing that it was loaded she picked it up and it was discharged, the bullet piercing her husband's right temple.

"Throughou
Franz, Jaco and Anton horses and of the mec partment u
These nam sheet in dif ferent color lime sheet the other na was a secon had been ad
the Commis could not id might know sheets were foreman, Pe
fied to by:
possible th
omitted by ward forem the ward f take of le day. The whether th on the time and finally claimed:
"It is all tampered w is responsi out these a added the happen?"
The witne question.
In the m erin, who d tions for in the new C an extra a made to ins paratus wi particular k in the ori the contrac fied that h vise the wo he found t according t had called President the informa tractors we he said, pro held up for the witness

A Quick Brea

Better than the average

Post T

This food has won its way ular favor by its distinctive qu

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

734

880819009

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Comstock Heckled at Labor Temple / Emma Goldman. – 28 cm. In The New York Times. – (Nov. 2, 1910).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

on the Bowery. I saw three there to-day."

Willing to Buy Them at $5 Each.

"I beg your pardon. You can't find it in this city. I'll give you $5 for every copy you bring me," said Mr. Comstock.

"You can make $15 easy money there," put in Mr. Stetzle.

"What about Leo Tolstoy's 'Resurrection'?" came from another earnest inquirer.

"I don't pass on what I haven't seen," responded Mr. Comstock.

Then a man declared that a director of physical culture had been fined in New Jersey as the result of having extracts from his magazine read to the jury, and asked whether thousands of dollars in fines could not be obtained by reading to an equally unintelligent jury extracts from the Bible.

Mr. Comstock sidestepped by entering on a defense of New Jersey juries. They were, he declared, composed of farmers of a highly intelligent type, well read and well informed.

To the suggestion that after forty years of fighting vice it was strange that he found still so much to do, Comstock retorted that his task to-day is hard because of the license that prevailed before he began his agitation, and that there is less than half the obscene literature for sale in New York to-day than in many of the small cities of the country.

Reitman now began to be anxious to ask another question, and the Chair would not recognise him. He persisted, and Mr. Comstock burst out:

"I am a peace officer of this county. I will take you into custody and charge you with disorderly conduct."

"Go ahead," cried Reitman.

Impossible to Describe Them.

"And you call this an open forum," shouted Emma Goldman. A shout went up from the audience, but Mr. Stetzle managed to restore order. Then a young girl said simply:

"I don't quite understand. Will you kindly tell us what these obscene books are?"

"It would be impossible," declared Mr. Comstock hurriedly. "It would be shameful for me or any one else to try to describe them publicly."

John D. Denton, the social secretary of the temple, rushed up the aisle. He shook a paper toward the platform and cried:

"Mr. Comstock, Mr. Comstock, please stop. A point of order. Never have I seen such rebellion, such disorder. I call on you as a peace officer to place these people under arrest."

It looked for a moment as if there might be real trouble, and many women rose and ran to the door. When the excitement subsided a serious young German near the front asked earnestly:

"Do you think that Bernard Shaw's works are all right for me to read?"

Mr. Comstock had not read them and was not ready to pass on them offhand.

A Quick Brea

at

Better than the average m

Post T

This food has won its way ular favor by its distinctive qual winning flavour.

Post Toasties is made of Corn, cooked, sweetened, rolled and to a crisp, appetizing brown—retain delicate relish of corn at its best.

"The Memory Linge

POSTUM CEREAL COMPANY, Battle Creek, Michigan

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

735

890727002

The Emma Goldman Papers

Japanese Radicals Condemned to Die / Emma Goldman, et al. — 28 cm. In The New York Call. —(Nov. 12, 1910).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

THE NEW YORK CALL—SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 12, 1910.

JAPANESE RADICALS CONDEMNED TO DIE

Protests Pour In Against Barbarous Treatment of Modern Scholars and Thinkers.

Recent news from Japan states that a number of Socialists and anarchists have been sentenced to death, and are to be executed, for conspiracy against the Imperial family of Japan. The following telegram has been sent to the Japanese Ambassador at Washington in the hope of intervening in their behalf before the day of execution:

Ambassador of Japan, Washington, D. C.:

In the name of humanity and international solidarity, we protest most energetically against the outrageous and unjust sentence upon our friend, Denjiro Kotoku, and his comrades. Are you trying to imitate Spain and Russia, that barbarous method against intellectuals?

EMMA GOLDMAN.
HIPPOLYTE HAVEL.
ALEXANDER BERKMAN.
DR. BEN L. REITMAN.
SADAKICHI HARTMANN.

The subjoined letter, protesting against Japan's summary method of proceeding against her radical scholars and thinkers, is being circulated among labor unions, political, literary and radical groups through the United States:

Dear Friend—In the name of humanity and international brotherhood, we earnestly beg of you to protest energetically to the Japanese ambassador in Washington against the unjust and barbarous penalty of death pronounced upon Dr. Denjiro Kotoku, his wife, and twenty-four other Socialists and anarchists.

Dr. Kotoku, his wife, and their friends were brought before a court specially appointed for the purpose, judged guilty of plotting against the imperial family, and sentenced to death. The fact that it was an unusual judicial procedure shows that the proof of the alleged crime was weak.

Denjiro Kotoku is a man who has devoted himself to intellectual pursuits and has tried to popularize "Western" ideas in Japan. His "crime" consists in spreading radical ideas and in translating the works of Karl Marx, Leo Tolstoy, Peter Kropotkin and Michael Bakunin. As a leader of the "Left" in the social revolutionary movement in Japan, he was called the "head of the Kropotkinists." We are convinced that the charge of conspiracy against the emperor is false.

Kotoku's condemnation marks the climax of the reaction against liberal and radical ideas which has taken place in Japan during the last few years. Mr. Taka-

Election Claims Cashed.
No Discount. No D...

Men's $20 Suits and Overcoats
At $14.95

Suits—Worsteds, tweeds, cheviots, fancy stripes and browns, neat dark mixtures, clear herrs and black thibets.
Overcoats—Fall and Winter weights, box and form-fitting, from 42 to 46 inches long, in oxford black and shawl-collar weave effects.

HENRY HELLER
Fashionable Tailor and Clothier
271 Hamburg Ave., cor. Spencer Ave., Brooklyn

ANOTHER SOCIALIST LEGISLATOR ELECTED

(Continued from Page 1.)

have been subjected and the constant shifting of Socialist workingmen from one locality to another on account of strikes and lockouts will account for the decrease. If such it proves to be. However, all reports coming direct from Pennsylvania Comrades have most encouraging and it may yet be proven that the news agencies are off the track, as they are notoriously unmindful of Socialist votes. Conditions in Illinois have been somewhat similar.

The miners there are strong Socialists, but it was feared that many of them would lose their votes through enforced moving. It was thought at first that Carl Stroker, of the 25th Senatorial district; Adolph Germer, of the 49th, and Grove Lawrence, of the 50th, had all been elected, but late returns showed a count against them. Stroker is now gaining on a recount, and Germer and Lawrence will both begin contests.

With the thirteen Socialist members of the state legislature in Wisconsin, there will be one in Minnesota, one in Pennsylvania, one in Massachusetts, and, perhaps three in California, though the election of the last named is not absolutely certain.

city, whose thousands of ... readers would naturally know best, was trimming as compared with huge increases in the working towns upstate, most of whose ... Hanna hardly knew his name, ... less his reputation as a writer ... student.

Nor do such trifling excuses ... the enormous Socialist gains ... many other states, where ... dates had been inconspicuous, ... even unknown, to Socialists ... selves. The reason lies elsewhere ... the capitalist papers, even if ... it will never acknowledge it.

DECREASE IN TENNESSEE

Vote for Governor in Knoxville Three in 1908.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 11.—The vote for Seth McCallen, Socialist candidate for governor, was 39, a decrease of 16 per cent from the election. W. A. Weatherull, for railroad commissioner, received 51, a gain of 26 per cent, and Thomas Rowland, candidate for Congress in the 3d district, received 233, a gain of 53 per cent.

GAIN IN MOUNT PLEASANT

Voters in This Town Are Beginning to Get Wise.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Pa., Nov. 11.—The vote here for Slayton in the first ward was 43, in the second ward and in the third, 24. The Democrats received 8 in the first ward, 20 in the second, and 30 in the third.

PROGRESS IN YORK.

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

736

890727002

The Emma Goldman Papers

Japanese Radicals Condemned to Die / Emma Goldman, et al. — 28 cm. In The New York Call. —(Nov. 12, 1910).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

Overcoats—Fall and Winter weights, 6, and semi-fox, fly front or button through, ...ford, black and ...elt, heavy effects.

HENRY HELLER

Fashionable Tailor and Clothier,

271 Hamburg Ave., cor. Greene Ave, Brooklyn

a number of Socialists and anarchists have been condemned to death, and are to be executed for conspiracy against the Imperial family of Japan.

The following telegram has been sent to the Japanese Ambassador at Washington in the hope of intervention in their behalf before the day of execution.

Ambassador of Japan, Washington, D. C.

In the name of humanity and international solidarity, we protest most energetically against the outrageous and unjust sentence upon our friend, Dr. Kotoku, and his comrades, for trying to imitate Spain and Russia by their barbarous method of intellectual

EMMA GOLDMAN
HIPPOLYTE HAVEL
ALEXANDER BERKMAN
DR. BEN L. REITMAN
SADAKICHI HARTMANN.

The subjoined letter, protesting against Japan's summary method of procedure against her radical scholars and thinkers, is being circulated among labor unions, political, literary and radical groups through the United States:

Dear Friend—In the name of humanity and international brotherhood, we earnestly beg of you to protest energetically to the Japanese ambassador in Washington against the unjust and barbarous penalty of death pronounced upon Dr. Denjiro Kotoku, his wife and twenty-four other Socialists and anarchists.

Dr. Kotoku, his wife and their friends were brought before a court specially appointed for the purpose, judged guilty of plotting against the Imperial family, and sentenced to death. The fact that it was an unusual judicial procedure shows that the proof of the alleged crime was weak.

Denjiro Kotoku is a man who has devoted himself to intellectual pursuits and has tried to popularize Western ideas in Japan. His crime consists in spreading radical ideas and in translating the works of Karl Marx, Leo Tolstoy, Peter Kropotkin and Michael Bakunin. As a leader of the "left" in the social revolutionary movement in Japan, he was called the "head of the Kropotkins." We are convinced that the charge of conspiracy against the emperor is false.

Kotoku's condemnation marks the climax of the reaction against liberal ideas which has taken place in Japan during the last few years. Mr. Takayama, the leader of the Socialist party in Japan, has recently protested to Western civilization against the persecutions of the Liberals in Japan. We, the international soldiers of freedom, are not willing to have our friends in Japan fall victims to the reactionary forces. Shall the [illegible] governments imitate the barbarous methods of Spain and Russia, and do to death their scholars and thinkers? We must act vigorously in the cause of humanity and civilization, and we believe that with our call to send an urgent protest to the Japanese ambassador

HUTCHINS HAPGOOD
LEONARD ABBOTT.
EMMA GOLDMAN.
HIPPOLYTE HAVEL.
SADAKICHI HARTMANN.
ALEXANDER BERKMAN.
DR. BEN L. REITMAN.

GARMENT STRIKE IS

ANOTHER SOCIALIST LEGISLATOR ELECTED

(Continued from Page 1.)

have been subjected and the constant shifting of Socialist workingmen from one locality to another on account of strikes and lockouts will account for the decrease. If such it proves to be. However, all reports coming direct from Pennsylvania Comrades have most encouraging and it may yet be proven that the news agencies are on the track, as they are notoriously unmindful of Socialist votes. Conditions in Illinois have been somewhat similar.

The miners there are strong Socialists, but it was feared that many of them would lose their votes through enforced moving. It was thought at first that Carl Strotter, of the 35th Senatorial district; Adolph Germer, of the 47th, and Grose Lawrence, of the 50th, had all been elected, but late returns showed a count against them. Strotter is now gaining on a recount, and Germer and Lawrence will both begin contests.

With the thirteen Socialist members of the state legislature in Wisconsin, there will be one in Minnesota, one in Pennsylvania, one in Massachusetts, and perhaps three in California, though the election of the last named is not absolutely certain.

Despite the disappointing nature of the latest returns, however, there is not yet reason to believe that the national Socialist vote will not be doubled.

Only when one recalls the very small increase in the national Socialist vote from 1904 till 1908, does one realize the tremendous significance and size of the countrywide vote just recorded. In the four years between 1900 and 1904 the gain for the entire country amounted to only 3.8 per cent. In the two years just past the increase is very likely to be somewhere between 75 and 100 per cent, and certainly not lower than 50 per cent.

In New York state nine gains continue to be recorded. Here are some returns from upstate that have not city, whose thousands of readers would naturally be best, was crying as compared huge increases in the vote towns upstate, most of which Atlanta hardly knew his name less his reputation as a [illegible] student.

Nor do such trifling exceptions the enormous Socialist gains many other states, where the dates, had been inconsequential even unknown, to Socialists themselves. The reason lies elsewhere the capitalist papers, even if they will never acknowledge it.

DECREASE IN TENNESSEE

Vote for Governor in Knoxville Than in 1906.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 11. The vote for Seth McCallie, Socialist candidate for governor, was an increase of 16 per cent [run] the election. W. A. Weatherall, for road commissioner, received 121, a gain of 26 per cent, and Thomas Rowland, candidate for Congress the 3d district, received 233, a [illegible] 53 per cent.

GAIN IN MOUNT PLEASANT

Voters in That Town Are Beginning to Get Wise.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Pa., Nov. 11.—The vote here for Slayton in the first ward was 43, in the second and in the third, 24. The Debs vote received 8 in the first ward, 21 in the second, and 29 in the third.

PROGRESS IN YORK.

Socialist Vote Increases 26% Since Election of 1908.

YORK, Pa., Nov. 11.—The Daily Dispatch, of this city, announces that the Socialist vote in the city and county is 741. This is a gain of 24% over the vote for Debs in 1908.

TORRINGTON WAKES UP

Vote in Connecticut Town Quadruples in Two Years.

TORRINGTON, Conn., Nov. 11. Four hundred and seventy-three votes were cast for Robert Hunter here. In 1908 the vote was 112.

MARYLANDERS AWAKE.

In Frederick a Gain of Over 200 Per Cent Is Made.

FREDERICK, Md., Nov. 11.

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

840514090
The Emma Goldman Papers
A Rejoinder / Emma Goldman. – pp. 325-328 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 5, no. 10 (Dec. 1910).
Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

service. I must say, as a teacher, that I have been extremely dissatisfied with the vagueness of the pamphlets issued by the Ferrer Association, and am anxiously awaiting something much more definite. I believe the best move will be the publication in English of the primary books used by Ferrer in the Modern Schools of Spain; for the evils of our own system lie principally in the elementary schools, in my opinion.

Several teachers have expressed to me their agreement with the criticisms and suggestions in my lecture. I think perhaps a practical move might be for the Ferrer Groups to obtain the list of the teachers in the various cities, and send the pamphlet "The Rational Education of Children" to them by mail (though postage makes it costly). While the pamphlet is inadequate, it might stimulate thought and inquiry.

One gentleman, a Socialist, assured me that if he could obtain a definite idea of how to work, could get the proper books, etc., he would now open a school of the kind in Buffalo; he is quite positive of the demand for it. The same demand exists in Philadelphia and Chicago. Numerous inquiries are beginning to come from the far west. I expect to meet it everywhere I go. The great need is for teachers who will know what they want to do.

Aside from this interest, while I cannot now express a fixed opinion on so short experience, my impression is that our present propaganda (if there is any) is a woeful mistake. I am more than ever convinced that our work should be with the workers, not with the bourgeoisie. If these latter choose to come, very well, let them. But I should never approve of this seeking after "respectable halls," "respectable neighborhoods," "respectable people," etc., etc., into which it appears we have somehow degenerated. The chief result seems to be a lot of shallow flattery dealt to the speaker at the close of the meeting, by people who have no interest and no intent ever to take the speaker's words as serious things to be acted upon.

Comrades, we have gone upon a wrong road. Let us get back to the point that our work should be chiefly among the poor, the ignorant, the brutal, the disinherited, the men and women who do the hard and brutalizing work of the world. If we cannot do this, if our gospel has come to be a gospel for the "respectable," then I, for one, shall renounce it. But I do not think it has; the fault is in us, not in Anarchism.

The Socialists have thus much advantage over us; they have not forgotten that their teaching is primarily a teaching for the common man. Let us remember that ours is also.*

Greetings,

VOLTAIRINE DE CLEYRE.

* * *

A REJOINDER

IT is not often that I take issue with my friend Voltairine de Cleyre. But there are a few points in her report which I cannot permit to pass unchallenged.

Comrade Voltairine states that she speaks of the propaganda ("if there be any") "from short experience and impression." Yet she finds it necessary to emphasize the "seeking of respectable halls, respectable neighborhoods, etc." I have always known her to be cautious in passing opinions, and I am therefore surprised that a mere impression should warrant her in suggesting that we are seeking for "respectable halls, respectable people," etc.

The fact that the man who arranged a meeting for her in Rochester (by the way, not an Anarchist) has tried to sandwich her between bourgeois speakers, or that she was advertised in Buffalo as a Tolstoian Anarchist, is by no means proof that we are all following the same lines, or that "we have gone woefully wrong."

I have traveled the length and breadth of this country for many years; have been to the Coast four times within a short period, and I can assure Comrade Voltairine that no one connected with my work has sought for "respectable" patronage. Of course, if by "respectable halls" is meant clean halls, I plead guilty to the charge. I confess that I prefer such places, partly for sanitary reasons, but mainly because the workers themselves—the American workers—will not go to a dilapidated, dirty hall in an

* For lack of space, the second part of this report will appear in the next issue.

738

840514090
The Emma Goldman Papers
A Rejoinder / Emma Goldman. — pp. 325-328 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. — Vol. 5, no. 10 (Dec. 1910).
Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

obscure quarter of the city. In that respect the people Voltairine wants to reach are probably the most bourgeois in America. I have again convinced myself of it the other day in Baltimore, where the American workers would not attend my meetings because the hall was in the "nigger" district. Strange as it may seem, the people who came were, what Voltairine would call, respectables.

I agree with our Comrade that our work should be among "the poor, the ignorant, the brutal, the disinherited men and women." I for one have worked with them and among them for twenty-one years. I therefore feel better qualified than Voltairine to say what may be accomplished in their ranks. After all, my friend knows the masses mainly from theory. I know them from years of contact in and out of the factory. Just because of that knowledge I do not believe that our work should be only with them. And that for the following reasons:

The pioneers of every new thought rarely come from the ranks of the workers. Possibly because the economic whip gives the latter little opportunity to easily grasp a truth. Besides, it is an undisputed fact that those who have but their chains to lose cling tenaciously to them.

The men and women who first take up the banner of a new, liberating idea generally emanate from the so-called respectable classes. Russia, Germany, England, and even America bear me out in this. The first conspiracy against the Russian despot originated in his own palace, with the Decembrists representing the nobility of Russia. The intellectual pioneers of revolutionary and Anarchist ideas in Germany came from the "respectables." The women who are to-day enduring the hunger strike for their ideas, in England, are also not from the ranks of the workers. The same holds good in regard to almost every country and every epoch.

Far be it from me to belittle the poor, the ignorant, the disinherited. Certainly they are the greatest force, if only they could be awakened from their lethargy. But I maintain that to limit one's activities to them is not only a mistake, but also contrary to the spirit of Anarchism. Unlike other social theories, Anarchism builds not on classes, but on men and women. I may be mistaken, but I have always been of the opinion that Anarchism calls to battle all libertarian elements as against authority.

That to limit oneself to propaganda exclusively among the oppressed does not always bring desired results, is borne out by more than one historical proof. Our Chicago comrades propagated only among the workers; in fact, cheerfully gave their lives for the oppressed. Where were the latter during the eighteen terrible months of the judicial farce? Were not the Chicago Anarchists shamefully betrayed by the very organization which Parsons and Spies helped to build up—the Knights of Labor? And has not the spirit of that time drifted into conservative channels, as represented by the American Federation of Labor? The majority of its members, I am sure, would hesitate not a moment to relegate Voltairine or myself to the fate of our martyred comrades.

John Most worked for twenty-five years exclusively among the workers. He certainly never sought for "respectables." Indeed, the poorer and more wretched the atmosphere, the more eloquently Most spoke. Where are the results of his propaganda? Why was the man so utterly forsaken in the last years of his activities? Why cannot the Freiheit, in spite of all desperate efforts, be maintained?

I think the answer to these questions can easily be found in the very thing Voltairine so fervently advocates—the propaganda exclusively among the workers. Yes, that is, in my opinion, the reason why we have in the past made so little headway. The economic factor is, I am sure, very vital. Possibly that accounts for the fact that a great many radicals lose their ideals the moment they succeed economically. Voltairine surely knows as well as I that hundreds of Anarchists, Socialists, and rabid revolutionists who were ardent workers twenty years ago are now very respectable, indeed much more respectable than the very people to whom Voltairine objects. That, however, should not discourage the true propagandist from working among the disinherited, but it should teach him the vital lesson that spiritual hunger and unrest are often the most lasting incentives.

Anarchism excludes no one and gives no one a mortgage on truth and beauty. Above all, Anarchism, as I understand it, leaves the propagandist free to choose his

739

840514090
The Emma Goldman Papers
A Rejoinder / Emma Goldman. – pp. 325-328 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 5, no. 10 (Dec. 1910).
Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

or her own manner of activity. The criterion must at all times be his or her individual judgment, experience, and mental leanings. In the Anarchist movement there is room for every one who earnestly desires to work for the overthrow of authority, physical as well as mental.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

* * *

WHAT IS WORTH WHILE?

By ADELINE CHAMPNEY.

(Continuation.)

When God vanishes from the skies he takes a great many things with him, some of which are not commonly recognized as pertaining to the God-idea. Not only does this departure into the limbo of past superstition remove the authority of bibles and churches and temples, and the divine authorities of priests and rulers, but it also removes all ultimate authorities whatever, and takes the sanctity from all principles of conduct. The departure of God places man face to face with the material universe, and men face to face with each other. With the abolition of the law-giver, all laws disappear. The term "laws of nature" shows how our very language is so tinctured with the teleological conception that we have difficulty in choosing exact terms for our knowledge. The so-called "laws of nature" are merely the undeviating principles in accordance with which the universe of substance in motion continues its unceasing and eternal change. Forms appear and disappear, phenomena come and go, but in all the universe is found neither beginning nor end, neither first nor last; neither good nor evil, right nor wrong, virtue nor sin, justice nor injustice. To none of these terms is there any absolute meaning whatever. All are man-made distinctions, varying with time and place, differing among races and among individuals. To the history of the human race, then, the Man Awake must go in his search for the meaning of Duty. For development proceeds ever from the simple to the complex, and the basis of sane thinking is found in the study of development. To gain an adequate comprehension of anything one must understand its development. And nothing will so aid in clearing away superstition and traditional prejudice in matters social and ethical as a survey of human history; not merely recorded history but that great story of the prehistoric man which science resurrects for us. What does this history say to us of Duty? Just this: bereft of all theological and metaphysicial sanctities, all the human institutions which have demanded obedience from men are seen to rest ultimately on the power to impose themselves on individuals. Religion, government, all property privilege, the marriage institution—all originated in force, and are maintained by force. Back of every "duty" stands a club. Does one "owe" anything to compulsion? Can a "duty" be imposed on one, without one's own consent? Brought into this world by no act of one's own, does one inherit the obligations assumed by one's ancestors, much less those forced upon them? The sole justification of every authority is its power to enforce obedience; and therein lies the justification of every rebellion. Whatever obedience may be exacted, whatever allegiance may be voluntarily rendered, there is no obligation whatsoever. Duty is but a metaphysical cobweb. It has no foundation in fact. "But conscience? Surely I cannot deny the admonition of conscience!" Have you studied the conscience of a savage? Have you made a comparative analysis of conscience among varying peoples and at various periods of history? Have you ever observed the conscience of a very little child? The dictates of conscience are purely and simply a matter of education. Conscience itself is neither more nor less than one's satisfaction in himself. A clear conscience is the pleasureable sense of self-approval; a guilty conscience, the disquieting sense of self-censur This is the reality of conscience; the grounds for the satisfaction or dissatisfaction lie in our beliefs and principles, and are, largely, a product of our social heredity. They may be well or ill founded. One has only to review the many deeds that have been done "for conscience' sake" to perceive how utterly unreliable it is as a "moral" guide. Of the fetish,

740

900515002

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Marriage and Love. In Yiddish] Harat un Freie Liba / Emma Goldman. — translated by A.B.C.D. — New York : Isidor Schwartz, [between 1911 and 1940]. — 15 p. ; 3 × 27 cm.

Obtained from the American Jewish Historical Society, Waltham, MA.

עממא גאָלדמאן.

הייראט און
פרייע ליעבע

שיבערזעצט פון
א ב ג ד

ארויסגעגעבן פון
ISIDOR SCHWARTZ
NEW YORK, N. Y.
49

741 900515002

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Marriage and Love. In Yiddish] Harat un Freie Liba / Emma Goldman. – translated by A.B.C.D. – New York : Isidor Schwartz, [between 1911 and 1940].– 15 p. ; 3 × 27 cm.

Obtained from the American Jewish Historical Society, Waltham, MA.

היראט און פרייע ליעבע.

היראט און ליעבע ווערען בעטראכט פון די מעהרסטע מענ־שען אלס צוויי ווערטער מיט דערזעלבינער בעריימטונג. מ׳מיינט, אז זיי קומען ארויס פון ריזעלבע מאטיוון און זיי בעפרירינען רי־זעלבע פערלאנגען. אט די מיינונג איז ניט בעגרינדעט אויף ווירק־ליבע פאקטען, נאר ראם פאלק האט זיך אזוי איינגעוועדט.

היראט און ליעבע זיינען צוויי בעזונדערע זאכען: זיי זיינען אזוי ווייט פונאנדער ווי רער נארד־פאל פון רעם זיר פאל. נאך מעהר, אייגע איז נאר ענטנענעזעצט דער אנדערער. ס׳איז קיין צווייפעל ניט, אז מאנבע חתונות זיינען געווען רער רעזולטאט פון ליעבע. אבער ניט וויל רי ליעבע האט ניט געקענט האבען קיין קיום אויסער רער היראט, נור ניבער וויל לייט קענען זיך אין נאנצען ניט בעפרייען פון אננענומענע זיטען. עס זיינען פאראן היינט א סך מענער און פרויען וואס היראט איז ביי זיי ניט מעהר ווי א קאמעריע, דאך ווארפען זיי זיך אונטער איהר אונטער צוליעב רער עפענטליבער מיינונג. יערענפאלס בעהויפט איך, אז באטש עס איז אמת, אז מאנבע חתונות זיינען בענרינדעט אויף ליעבע, און באטש עס איז אויך אמת, אז אין מאנבע פעלע ווערט די ליעבע ניט אבנעקיהלט אין פערהיראטען לעבען, איז ראס אבער ניט וויל זיי זיינען פערהיראט, נור טראטץ רעם וואס זיי זיינען פער־היראט.

פון רער אנרער זייט ווירער איז עס לחלוטען פאלש, אז פון היי־ראט קומט ארויס ליעבע. עס טרעפט אמאל אין א יובל, אז א פער־היראטע פאאר פערליעבען זיך נאך רער חתונה: אבער וועו מיר קוקען זיך צו נעהנטער, זעהען מיר ראו, אז ראס איז ניט מעהר ווי זיך צו פאסען צו ראס וואס איז אונפערמיידליך. דאס וואס מען נע־וואוינט זיך צו אייגע צו רי אנרערע איז נאך נאנץ וויט פון רער

90051 5002

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Marriage and Love. In Yiddish] Harat un Freie Liba / Emma Goldman. – translated by A.B.C.D. – New York : Isidor Schwartz, [between 1911 and 1940]. – 15 p. ; 3 × 27 cm.

Obtained from the American Jewish Historical Society, Waltham, MA.

שטארקיים פון געפיהל וואם הערשט אין א ליעבע און וואם אהן רעם ערגירערינען זיך מאן און פרוי ווען זיי פיהרען א פערהייראטען לעבען.

הייראט איז הויפזעכטליך אן עקאנאמישער אפמאך, א פערזיכערונגס-פערבינדונג. דער חלוק איז נור וואם דאס איז פיעל כיכ־דערנער און שטרענגער ווי א אפמאך מיט אן אינשורענס קאמפאניע. די ריוחים וואם קומען נאכהער זיינען אונבעדייטענר ווען מען פער־גלייבט זיי מיט'ן קרן וואם מען אינוועסטעט. ווען איינער נעהמט ארוים אן אינשורענס פאליסי, צאהלט ער רערפאר אין ראלשרם און זיין סענטען, און האט די פרייהיים אויפצוהערען צאהלען. אבער ווען רער פרעמיום פון א פרוי איז א מאן, צאהלט זי רערפאר מיט איהר נאמען, מיט איהר זעלבסט־רעספעקט, מיט איהר סאמע לעבען, „ביז רער טויט שיירט פונאנרער". נאך מעהר, מיט רער הייראטס־אינשורענס פערפליכטעט זי זיך צו זיין לעבענסלענגליך אפהענגיג, צו זיין א פארזיס, צו זיין נוצלאז אינריוורעל אזוי ווי נעזעל־שאפטליך. רער מאן בעצאהלט אויך טייער, אבער זיין קריין איז פיעל ווייטער, און דערפאר ווערט ער ניט אזוי בענרענצט רורך רער הייראט ווי רי פרוי. ער פיהלט זיינע קייטען מעהר אין אן עקא־נאמישען זין.

ראנטעם מאטא צו זיין שילרערונג פון ניהינום קען זעהר גוט אננעווענרט ווערען פאר רי הייראט: „איהר ווילכע קוטט רא אריין לאזט אלע האפנונגען הינטער אייך".

אז הייראט איז א רורכפאל ווען קיינער ניט לייקענען, סיירען נאר א נאר. מ'דארף נור א בליק טאן אין רער סטאטיסטיק פון נט'ן אום צו זעהן וואם פאר א כיטערער רורכפאל רי הייראט איז. דער דורכשניטליכער פלאכער מענש קען רא ניט ארגומענטירען, אז רי גרויסע צאהל גט'ן קומט רשרפון וואם ס'איז צו לייכט ארויסצקרי־נען א גט און וואם פרויען זיינען איצטער צופיעל אויסנעלאסען. וואריים ערשטענס, ענרינט זיך איינע פון יערע צוועלף חתונות מיט א גט; צווייטענס, איז זינט 1870 רי צאהל גט'ן נעשטיגען פון 28 אויף 73 פאר יערע הונרערט טויזענר בעפעלקערונג; רריטענס, איז רי אונמרייהיים אלס גרונר פאר א גט נעשטיגען 270.8 פראצענט: פיערטענס, איז „רעזערשאן" נעשטיגען 369.8 פראצענט.

מ'קען נאך צולענגען צו אט רי ערשטוינליבע ציפער א נוואלרינ רייכען מאטעריאל אין דראמע און ליטעראטור וואם מאכט נאך קלערער רעם ענין. ראבערט הערריק אין „מאגעטהער": פינערא אין „מיר־טשענעל"; יורזשען וואלטער אין „פעיר אין פול"; און א צאהל אנרערע שרייבער בעווייזען ווי טרוקען, ווי מאנאטאן, ווי גע־מיין רי הייראט איז, און ווי זי קען ניט רינען אלם פאקטאר פאר הארמאניע און פערשטענרינונג.

רער נאכרענקענדער סטורענט פון רעם נעזעלשאפטליכען לעכען זועט זיך ניט בעפרירינען מיט רער אויבערפלעכליבער ענטשולרינונג פאר אט רער ערשיינונג. ער וועט מוזען ארייננעהן אביסעל מיפער אין ראם סאמע נעשלעכטליכע לעבען אום צו ווייסען פארוואם רא פערהייראטע לעכען איז אזוי אומגליקליך.

ערואר קארפענטער זאנט, אז הינטער יערער הייראט שטעהט רי אומגעבונג, אין וועלכער רי ביירע נעשלעכטעד האבען פערבראכט זייער נאנצען לעכען: אן אומגעכונג אזוי פערשירען איינע פון רי אנרערע אז מאן און פרוי מוזען זיך בלייבען פרעמר. רעד מאן און רי פרוי זיינען פונאנדערנעשיירט רורך א הויכע וואנד פון אבערגלוי־בען,זיטע און נעוואוינהייט, און רי הייראט קען דערפאר ניט האבען רי קראפט צו ענטוויקלען פערשטענרנים און רעספעקט פון איינעם צום אנדערען, וואם אהן רעם מון יערע פערבינדונג זיין א רורכפאל.

הענריק איבסען, וועלכער האט נעהאסט אלע נעזעלשאפטליבע לינענם, איז פיליכט נעווען דער ערשטער וואם האט בענריפען אט רעם גרויסען אמת. נארא פערלאזט איהר מאן, ניט — ווי רער רומער קריטיקער וויל עם האבען — ווייל זי איז מיר פון איהרע פע־נאטוארליכקייטען ארער זי פיהלט רי נויטינקייט פון רער פרוי'ס רעכטען, נור ווייל זי האט איינגעזעהן, אז זי האט אבגעלעבט אכט יאהר מיט א פרעמדען און איהם נעבוירען קינרער. קען נאך זיין נירערינער און נעמיינער ווי א לעבענם־לענגליכע נאהנטקייט צוויישען צוויי פרעמרע? רי פרוי ראדף נארניט ניט ווייסען פון רעם מאן א חוץ וויפיעל ער פעררינט. וואם אנבעלאנגט קענען רי פרוי — וואם איז רא פארהאן צו ווייסען א חוץ רעם, אז זי זעהט אוים שען? מיר זיינען נאך ניט אויסגעוואקסען פון רעם גלויבען פון די נייסט־

900515002

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Marriage and Love. In Yiddish] Harat un Freie Liba / Emma Goldman. – translated by A.B.C.D. – New York : Isidor Schwartz, [between 1911 and 1940]. – 15 p. ; 3 × 27 cm.

Obtained from the American Jewish Historical Society, Waltham, MA.

ליכע, אז די פרוי האט ניט קיין נשמה, אז זי איז ניט מעהר ווי א „פריכאוויק" צום מאן, נעמאכט פון זיין ריפ כלויז פאר דער בעקוועמ־ליכקייט פון דעם דזשענטעלמאן, וועלכער איז נעווען אזוי שטארק אז ער האט זיך נעשראקען פאר זיין אייגענעם שאטען.

פילייכט איז די פרוי נידעריגער פאר'ן מאן צוליעב דעם וואס זי איז כשאפען נעוואדען פון א שוואכען מאטעריאל. יעדענפאלס קיין נשמה האט ניט די פרוי, טא וואס איז דא פארהאן צו ווייסען וועגען איהר? דערצו איז וואס ווענינער נשמה א פרוי האט, אלץ כע־סער איז זי פאר א ווייב, אלץ גדייטער איז זי זיך צו לאזען פערשלינ־גען פון איהר מאן. אט די שקלאפישע אונטערווארפונג אונטערהאנדלט דעם מאן'ס איכערלעגענהייט האט אויפגעהאלטען אונכעריהרט אזוי לאנג די אינסטיטוציע פון היידאט. איצטער ווען די פרוי קומט צום שכל, ווען זי וועדט כעוואוסט, אז אהן דעם חסד פון איהר האר איז זי אויך עפעס וואס, וועדט טאקע כיסלעכווייז אונטערגענראכען די הייליגע אינסטיטוציע פון דער היידאט, און קיין סענטימענטאליטעטען קענען דאס ניט פערהאלטען.

כמעט פון איהר קינדהייט אן זאגט מען רער דורכשניטליכער מיידעל אז די היידאט איז איהר לעצטער ציעל; איהר נאנצע ער־ציהונג מוז דערויכער זיין נעריכטעט צו אט דעם ענד־ציעל. אזוי ווי די שטומע כהמה ווערט נעפאשעט פאר דער שחיטה, אזוי וועדט זי צוגענדייט פאר דעם. דאך איז עס זאנרעדכאר, אז ס'איז איהר שר־לויכט צו וויסען א סך וועניגער איהרע פונקציעס אלס ווייב און מוטער אייריר דער נעוועהנליכער האנדווערקער וויים וועגען זיין האנדווערק. ס'איז ניט אנשטענדיג און ניט זויכער פאר א מיידעל צו וויסען עפעס וועגען די פערהעלטניסע פון פערהיידאטען לעכען. אה, ווי אונאויסנעהאלטען איז די אנשטענדיגקייט וואס כעדארף די שבועה פון דער היידאט אוס צו פערוואנדלען א זאך וואס איז אוס־זויכער אין דעם ריינסמען און הייליגסטען אפמאך. וואס קיינער וואנט ניט צו קריטיזירען. אט דאס איז נעווי די שטעלונג פון דעם דודכשניטליכען פערטיידיגער פון דער היידאט. די צוקינפטיגע ווייב און מוטער וועדט נעהאלטען אין פאלשטענריגער אונוויסענהייט וועגען דאס איינציגע וואס זי פעדמאגט אויפ'ן פעלד פון קאנקור־

רענץ — איהר נעשלעכט. אט אזוי טרעט זי אריין אין א לעכענס־לענגליכען פערהעלמנים מיט א מאן נור אוס זיך צו נעפינען אפנע־שטויסען און כעליידינט איכער יערער מאס דורך בעם נאטידליכסטען און נעזונדסטען אינסטינקט, דעם נעשלעכט. מ'קען זיכער זאנען אז א גרויסער פראצענט פון דער אומגליקליכקייט, עלענד און פיוישען ליידען פון היידאטס־לעכען קומט פון דער פערכדעכערישער אונווי־סענהייט וועגען סעקסועלע זאכען, וואס ווערט נעריהמט אלס א גדוי־סע מעלה. ס'איז נאר ניט קיין איכערדרייכונג וועז איך זאג, אז מעהר ווי איין הוין איז צוכראכען נעוואָרען צוליעב אט דעם כעדוי־ערענסווערטען פאקט

דאך אויך די פרוי איז נענוג פריי און נרויס צו לערנען דאס סעקסועלע מיסטעריום אהן דעם הכשר פון דעם שטאט אדער פון דער קירך. וועט זי שטעהן פעראורטיילט אלס ניט פאסענד צו וועדן די פרוי פון א „גוטען" מאן, וועמעס גוטסקייט עס כעשטעהט אין האכען א פוסטען קאפ און א סך נעלד. קען עס נאך זיין א שרעקליכעדע זאך ווי דער נעדאנק אז א דעדוואקסענע, נעזונדע פרוי, פול מיט לעכען און ליידענשאפט, מוז זיך אכזאנען פון דער נאטור'ס פער־לאנג, מוז אונטערדריקען איהרע שטארקסטע נעפיהלען. אונטער־נראכען איהר נעזונד און כרעכען איהר נייסט, מוז זיך צודיקהאלטען פון דער טיפקייט פון סעקסועלער ערלעכונג כיז עס קומט א „גוטער" מאן זי צוצונעהמען צו זיך פאר א ווייב? דאס איז נענוי וואס היי־ראט איז. ווי קען אזא פערכינדונג זיך ענדיגען אין עפעס אנדערש ווי איז א דודכפאל? דאס איז איין פאקטאר, כאטש ניט דער אונ־בעדייטענדסטער, וואס אונטערשיידט היידאט פון ליעכע.

מיר לעכען אין א פראקטישער צייט. די צייט וועז שעקספיר'ס ראמעא און דזשוליעט האכען צוליעב זייער ליעכע דיזיקידט מיט'ן צאדן פון זיישרע פאטערס, וועז נעטהע'ס נרעטכען האט ניט נעקוקט וואס זי איז צוליעב איהר ליעכע אדיינגעפאלען אין די בייזע מיילער פון איהרע שכנים — יענע צייט איז שוין פערכיי. אויך יוננע מענ־שען ערלויכען זיך כיי א זעלטענער נעלענהייט צו נעניסען פון ראמאנטישער ליעכע, פאסען שוין די עלטערע אויף זיי אויף און קנע־לען מיט זיי אזוי לאנג כיז זיי קומען צום שכל.

744

900515002

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Marriage and Love. In Yiddish] Harat un Freie Liba / Emma Goldman. — translated by A.B.C.D. — New York : Isidor Schwartz, [between 1911 and 1940].— 15 p. ; 3 × 27 cm.

Obtained from the American Jewish Historical Society, Waltham, MA.

די מאראלישע לעהרע וואס די מיידעל קריגט איז ניט אויב רער מאן האט רערוועקט איהר ליעבע, גור ניבער בעשטעהט דאס אין „ווי־פיעל?" די אייניזינע זאך וואס בעדעבטינט הייראט איז אויב רער מאן קען מאבען א לעבען, אויב ער קען אויסהאלטען א ווייב. ביס־לעבוויין דריגנט דאס דורך יערען נעדאנק פון דער מיידעל: איהרע הלומות זיינען ניט מעהר פון לבנה־נעבט און קושען, פון שמייכלען און טרערען: זי טרוימט ניבער פון קויפען מציאות אין דעפארט־מענט־סטאדס. אט די נייסטינע ארימקייט און נעוואוינהייט זיינען עלעמענטען וואס מ'קען ניט אבשיידען פון רער אינסטיטוציע פון הייראט. רער שטאט און די קירך ניבען קיין הבשר ניט אויף קיין אנדער אידעאל, מחמת ראס איז פאר זיי רער איינזיינער וועג צו בעהערשען די מענער און די פרויען.

עס זיינען אהן א צווייפעל פארען מענשען, ביי וועמען לעבע שטעהט העבער ווי דאללארס און סענטען. בעזונדערס איז ראס אמת פון יענעם קלאס וואס איז נעצוואונגען דורך די עקאנאטישע נויט־וועגרינקייט זיך זעלבסט אויסצוהאלטען. די נעוואלדינע ענדערונג איז רער שטעלונג פון רער פרוי וואס איז נעקומטען רורך יענעם מעכ־טינען עקאנאמישען פאקטאר, איז ווירקליך וואונרערבאר וועז מיר בעטראבטען ווי קורץ די צייט איז זינט זי האט בעטראטען די איג־רוסטריעלע ארענא. זעקס מיליאן פרויען, וועלבע לעבען פון זייערע ווירזשעס: זעקס מיליאן פרויען, וועלבע האבען ראס זעלבע רעבט ווי די מענער צו ווארן עקספלואטירט, בערויבט ראס רעבט צו סטרייי־קען, אפילו ראס רעבט אויסצוגעהן פון הונגער. קען מען נאך פערלאנגען מעהר? יא, זעקס מיליאן לוין־ארבייטער איז יערען צוויי־נייג פון לעבען. פון רער העבסטער קאפ־ארבייט ביז רער שווער־סטער האנדארבייט איז די נרעבערייען און ביי די אייזענבאהנען: יא, אפילו דעטעקטיוום און פאליסלייט, זיינען פרויען. נעווים, די עמאנציפאציע איז פאלשטענדיג.

דאך טראץ אלעם רעם קוקען נאנץ וועניג פון רער נרויסער צאהל פרויען לוין־ארבייטער אויף זייער ארבייט אלס אויף א בעשטענדינע אישו, אזוי ווי די מענער קוקען אויף זייער ארבייט: ווי נוצלאז רער מאן זאל ניט זיין, ראס ער זיך אבער אויסנעלערענט זיין אונ־

אבהעננינג. אה, איך וויים, אז קיינער איז ניט ריבטיג אונאבהענינ אין אונזער עקאנאמישער טרעט־מיל; דאך, רער נידערינסטער זארט מאן האט פיינט צו זיין א פאראזיט; ער וויל יערענפאלס ניט, אז מ'זאל וויסען אז ער איז א פאראזיט.

די פרוי בעטראבט איהר לאנג אלס ארבייטארין פאר א דער־וויילינג זאך. וואס זי וועט אוועקווארפען וועז רער ערשטער בעסטער וועט זיך כור אנבאטען צו איהר. ראס איז רער גרונר פאר־וואס עס איז טויזענר מאל שווערער צו ארנאניזירען פרויען איידער מענער. „צו וואס זאל איך זיך אנשליסען אן א יוניאן? איך נעה ראך באלר הייראטען אוו האבען א היים". האט מען זי ניט נעלע־רענט פון רער קינדהייט אן, אז פערהייראט זיין איז רי לעצטע פרא־פעסיאן איהרע, ביי וועלבער זי מוז בלייבען? זי נעפינט אבער באלר אויס, אז רי היים, כאטש ניט אזא נרויסע טורמע וויי רי פעק־טארי, האט אבער שטארקערע טירזען אוו ריגלעז. זי איז א טורמע וואס האט אזא גוטען, טרייען היטער, אז קיינער קען פון דארטען ניט אנטלויפען. ראס טרויערינסטע רערבי איז נאך, וואס די היים בע־פרייט זי ניט מעהר פון לוין־שקלאפערי: עס מאבט נאך שווערער איהרע אויפנאבען אוו איהר ארבייט.

לויט רי לעצטע סטאטיסטיק פון רער קאטיטע „וועגען ארבייט. לוין אוו נערבטקייט פון בעפעלקערונג" איז בלויז צעהן פראצענט פון די ארבייטערינען פון רער שטאדט ניו יארק פערהייראט. אוו אפילו אט די צעהן פראצענט מוזען ארבייטען נאך רער חתונה פאר רעם נידערינסטען לוין. וועז מ'לענט נאך צו די שווערע הויז ארבייט, טא וואס בלייבט ראן פון רער נאנצער בעשיצונג אוו רעם נאנצען נלאנץ פון רער היים נאך רער חתונה? ס'איז א פאקט, אז אפילו די מיטעל־קלאס מיירעל קען ניט ריידרן וועגען איהר היים, וויל רער מאן, ניט זי, שאפט איהר קריין. ס'איז ניט קיין נרויסער אונטערשיער אויב רער מאן איז א דעפאט אדער זעהר א נוטער. וואס איך וויל בעווייזען איז בלויז, אז הייראט ניט רער פרוי א חיים בלויז רורך רעם הסר פון איהר מאן. אזוי בעווענט זי זיך אין ז יי ן היים, א יאהר נאך א יאהר, ביז איהר קוק אויפ'ן לעבען אוו אויף מענשליבע פערהעלטניסע ווערט אזוי פלאך אוו ענג ווי איהר אומ־

745

900515002

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Marriage and Love. In Yiddish] Harat un Freie Liba / Emma Goldman. – translated by A.B.C.D. – New York : Isidor Schwartz, [between 1911 and 1940]. – 15 p. ; 3 × 27 cm.

Obtained from the American Jewish Historical Society, Waltham, MA.

נעבונג. קיין וואונדער ניט וואס זי וועלט א קליינליכע רכילות־טרייבערקע, וואס האלט אין איין זיך קרינען כיז זי פערטרייבט רעם מאן פון הויז. זי קען ניט נעהן, אויב זי וואלט וועלען, ווייל ס'איז ניטא קיין פלאץ וואוהין צו נעהן. דערצו איז נענוג א קורצע צייט פון פערהייראטען לעבען, פון אין נאנצען זיך אכזאנען פון אלע פע־הינקייטען, צו מאבען די רוכשניטליכע פדוי פאלשטענדיג אונפעהיג פאר די אויסערע וועלט. זי וועדט אבנעלאזט אין איהר אויסער־ליכער ערשיינונג, אונעשיקט אין איהרע בעזעהונגען, אבהענגיג אין איהרע בעשלוסען, פיינ אין איהר אורטייל, א לאסט וואס די מעהרסטע מענער הייבען אן פייגר צו האבען און צו פערהאבטען. א וואונדערליך בעגייסטערענדע אטמאספערע צו דערטראגען דאס לע־כען, ניט?

אבער דאס קינד, ווי וועט עס בעשיצט ווערען אויב ניט דורך דער הייראט? איז דען דאס ניט די ערשטע וויכטיגסטע זאך וואס דארף דא בעריקזיכטיגט ווערען? די פאלשקייט, די היפאקריטסטווע דערפון! די הייראט בעשיצט דאס קינד, דאך נעהען ארום טויזענדע קינדער אהן שטיצע און אהן א היים. הייראט בעשיצט דאס קינד, דאך הייזער פאר יתומים און רעפארם־אנשטאלטען איבערנעפאקט מיט קינדער, א נעזעלשאפט צו פערמיידען נרויזאמקייט צו קינדער שטענדיג בעשעפטיגט צו ראטעווען די קליינע אפפער פון די „ליע־כענדע" עלטערן, זיי צו ברענגען אונמער דער זיבערער און ליעבענ־דער בעשיצונג פון דער נערדי סאסייעטי. אה, ווי ליעבליך דאס איז!

הייראט טעג האבען די קראפט „צו בריינגען דאס פערד צום וואסער", אבער קען זי איהם מאבען צו טרינקען? דאס נעזעץ וועט שטעלען דעם פאטער אונטער ארעסט, און איהם אנטאן ארעסטאנמ־סקע קליידער: אבער האט דאס וועט נעשטילט דעם הונגער פון א קינד? אויב דער פאטער האט ניט קיין ארכייט, ארבער אויב ער בע־האלט זיך, קען דען די הייראט וואס אויפטאן? זי קען ארויסרופען דאס נעזעץ צו ברענגען דעם טאן פאר א משפט, איהם אוועקצוזע־צען הינטער נעשלאסענע טירען: זיין ארכייט אבער נעהט ניט דאן פאך'ן קינד נור פאר דעם שטאט. דעם קינד כלייבט נור א שוואכע שראינערונג פון דעם פאטער'ס לויידען.

וואס אנבעלאנגט רער כעשיצונג פון רער פרוי, — אט דא ליענט דער פלוך פון רער הייראט. פון כעשיצען איהר אין ראך שוין אכ־נערערט, נור די אידעע אליין איז אזוי ווילד, אזא בעשימפונג פון לעכען, אזוי נירשרינ פון דער מענשליבער ווירדע, אז מ'דארף אויך אויבינ פערואורטיילען אט די פראזויטישע אינסטיטוציע.

ס'אין ווי יענע אנרערע פאטערליכע אינסטיטוציע — קאפיטא־ליזם. עס כערויבט דעם מענשען פון זיין נעבורטס־רעכט, פערהאלט זיין וואוקס, פערניפטעט זיין קערפער, האלט איהם אין אונווויסענ־הייט, אין ארימקייט און אין אכהענגינקייט און שאפט צרקה־אנ־שטאלטען וואס פערניבטען די לעצטע שפור פון דעם מענשען'ס זעלבסט־רעספעקט.

די אינסטיטוציע פון דער הייראט מאכט פון דער פרוי א פא־ראויט, א פאלשטענריגע אבהענינע בעשעפענים. עס מאבט זי אונ־פעהיג פאר'ן קאמפף פון לעבען, פערניכטעט איהר נעזעלשאפטליכעס בעווווסטזיין, פראליזירט איהר פאנטאזיע, און דאן וועדט די אינ־סטיטוציע פון דער הייראט דער פרוי'ס ננערינע בעשיצערין.

אויב מוטערשאפט איז די העכסטע עדפילונג פון דער פרוי'ס נאטור, דאן וואס פאר אן אנרער כעשיצונג דארף זי אויסער ליעבע און פרייהייט? די הייראט פערואמריינינט און פערדאבט נור איהר ערפילונג. זאנט ניט הייראט צו דער פרוי, נור וועז דו פאלנסט מיר מענסטו ארויסכריינגען לעבען? פערואורטיילט די הייראט ניט די פרוי צו ערנידעריגונג און פאלשקייט וועז זי ווייל ניט קויפען איהר רעבט אויף מוטערשאפט רורב'ן פערקויפען זיך נופא? בע־דעבטינט די הייראט ניט מוטערשאפט אפילו וועז דאס קומט דורך האס און צוואנג? דאך זועז מוטערשאפט קומט פון פרייער וואהל, פון ליעבע, פון עקסטאז, פון ברענענדער ליידנשאפט, לענט עס ניט ארויף א קרויז פון דערנער אויף אן אונשולדיגען קאפ און קריצט עס ניט איין מיט בלוטינע בוכשטאבען די שרעקליבע אויפשריפט, ממזר? אויב אפילו די הייראט וואלט נעהאט אלע מעלות וואס מ'שרייבט איהר צו, וואלט זי דען ניט פערדינט, כלויז איהר איהר פערבראכען נע־נען מוטערשאפט, אויסנעשלאסען צו ווערן אויף אימער פון דער טלוכה פון ליעבע.

746

900515002

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Marriage and Love. In Yiddish] Harat un Freie Liba / Emma Goldman. – translated by A.B.C.D. – New York : Isidor Schwartz, [between 1911 and 1940].– 15 p. ; 3 × 27 cm.

Obtained from the American Jewish Historical Society, Waltham, MA.

ליעבע, דער שטארקסטער און טיפסטער עלעמענט אין מאנצען לעבען, דער אנזאנגער פון האפנונג, פון פרייד, פון עקסטאז ; ליעבע, וועלבע איז שטארקער פאר אלע נעזעצען, פאר אלע אננענומענע זיטען ; ליעבע, דער פרייעסטער, דער מעבטינסטער פארמירער פון מענשליבען שיקזאל ; ווי קען אזא'ן אל־צווינגענרע קראפט בעטראבט ווערן אלס ראס זעלבינע ווי יענע פערזעהעניש, נעבאהרען פון שטאס און קירך, היראט?

פרייע ליעבע? עפעס ווי ליעבע וואלט איבערהויפט נעקענט זיין אנדערש ווי פרייע! דער מענש קויפט קאפּ־פעהינקייט, אבער אלע מיליאנען אין דער וועלט זיינען נאך ניט אימשטאנד נעווען צו קויפען ליעבע. דער מענש אונטערוואדפט קערפערס, אבער די נאנצע מאבט פון דער וועלט איז נאך ניט אימשטאנד נעווען צו אונטערוואדפען ליעבע. דער מענש האט ערפאבערט נאנצע נאציאנען, אבער אלע זיינע ארמייען האבען ניט נעקאנט ערפאבערן ליעבע. דער מענש האט נעכונדען אין קייטען רעס נייסט, אבער ער איז אין נאנצע צען נעווען הילפלאז נענען ליעבע. הויך אויף א טראן, מיט נלאנץ און פראבט קען זיין נאלד בעפעהלען און הערשען, אבער ארים און ווייסט בלייבט דער מענש ווען זיין לעבען נעהט פערבייַ אהן ליעבע. און וואו די ליעבע קומט ווערט דאס אריסטע הייזעל פול מיט ליבטינקייט, מיט וואריפקייט, מיט לעבען און פאדב. ליעבע האט אל־זא די צויבער־קראפט צו מאבען פון א בעטלער א קענג. אבער ליעבע איז פרייַ : זי קען ניט וואוינען אין קיין אנדערער ווי א פרייער אט־מאספערע. אין פרייהייט ניט זי זיך איבער פאלשטענדיג, ניט בע־האלטענדיג נאתישט צוריק. אלע נעזעצען פון די נעזעצבינדע, אלע נעריבטסהייזער אין דער וועלט קענען ניט אויסרייסען די ליע־בע, ווען זי האט נור איינמאל נעשלאנען טיפע וואדצלען. אבער, ווען דער בארען איז טרוקען און אונפרובטבאר, ווי קען די הייראט איהם מאבען פרובטכארער? ס'איז ווי דער לעצטער פערצווייפעלטער קאמף נענען טויט פון א לעבען וואס האלט אין אויסנעהן.

די ליעבע דארף ניט קיין בעשיצונג : זי איז איהר איינענע בע־שיצונג. אזוי לאנג ווי ליעבע ברענגט ארוים לעבענס, ווען קיין קינד ניט זיין פערלאזען אדער הונגערינ. איך ווייס, אז דאס איז אטת.

איך ווייס פרויען וועלבע זיינען נאך ארען פרייַ טוטערס פון מענער ווען זיי האבען נעליעבט. זעה ווענינ קינדער פון פערהיראטע פאמיליעס נענישען אזא בעשיצונג. אזא'ן איבערנעבענהייט ווי די קינדער פון פרייער טוטערשאפט.

די בעשיצער פון דער מאבט האבען מודא פאר פרייער טוטער־שאפט, עס זאל ניט צווענקענטען פון זיי זייער רויב. ווער ווען נעהן אין מלחמות? ווער ווען בעשאפען רייבטהום? ווער ווען טאבען דעם פאליסמאן, דעם היטער פון טורמע, אויב די פרוי ווען ניט ווילען נלאט אזוי אנפלאדען קינדער? די ראסע, די ראסע! שרייט דער קענינ, דער פרעזירענט, דער קאפיטאליסט, דער נייסטליבער. די ראסע מוז אויפשהאלטען ווערען, מעג אפילו די פרוי ערנידערינט ווערן צו א בלויזער מאשין, — און די הייראטס־אינסטיטוציע איז אונזער איינציגע זיבערקייט נענען די שרעקליבע סעקסועלע ערווא־בונג פון דער פרוי. אבער אומזיסט זיינען אט די אלע בעטיהונגען אויפצוהאלטען א צושטאנד פון קנעבטשאפט. אומזיסט די בעפעה־לען פון דער קירך, די ווילדע אטאקעס פון הערשער, אומזיסט אפילו די האנד פון נעזעץ. די פרוי ווייל ניט מעהר זיין קיין שותפ'טע ארויסצובריננען א ראסע פון קרענקליבע, שוואכע, עלענדע מענשען, ווען האבען ניט די קראפט, דעם מאראלישען מוט אראפצואוועדפען פון זיך דעם יאך פון אדימקייט און שקלאפערי. אנשטאט דעם ווייל זי ווענינער און בעסערע קינדער, נעבאהרען און ערצוינען אין ליעבע און פרייע וואהל, ניט דורך בעצווינגונג ווי די הייראטס־אינסטיטוציע פאדערט. אונזערע פאלשע מאראליסטען מוזען זיך נאך אויסלער־נען דעם טיפען זין פון פעראנטוואדטליבקייט נענען א קינד וואס די ליעבע און פרייהייט האט ערווארבט אין דער ברוסט פון דער פרוי. ניבער וואלט זי זיך אויף אימער ענטזאנען פון דער עהדע פון מוטער־שאפט איידער ארויסבריננען לעבענס אין אן אטמאספערע וואס אטמעט מיט צושטערונג און טויט. און אויב זי ווערט א מוטער, איז

747

900515002

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Marriage and Love. In Yiddish] Harat un Freie Liba / Emma Goldman. – translated by A.B.C.D. – New York : Isidor Schwartz, [between 1911 and 1940].– 15 p. ; 3 × 27 cm.

Obtained from the American Jewish Historical Society, Waltham, MA.

דאָס אום צו געבען דעם קינד דאָס טיפסטע און בעסטע וואָס זיי פאר־מאַנט אין זיך. איהר מאַמע איז צו וואַסען מיט'ן קינד; זי ווייס, אז גור אויף דיזען וועג קען זי העלפען אויפבויען אמת'ע וויבליכקייט און מענליכקייט.

איבסען האָט געמוזט האָבען רעם חוש־הראיה פון א פרייער מר־טער, וי:ען ער האָט מיט זיין מייסטעדהאגר געמאַלען פרוי אלוויגג. זי איז נעוויש די אידעאלע מוטער, ווייל זי איז אדיכענעוואקסען די היראָט און אלע איהדע שדעקען. ווייל זי האָט געבראָכען איהרע קיי־טען און האָט בעפריים איהר נייסט און איהם נעלאָזט ארומשוועבען בין ער איז צוריקגעקומען א פערזענליכקייט. נייגעכאָרען און שטארק. צום בעדויערען איז עס שוין צו שפעט נעווען צו דאָטעווען די פדיה פון איהר לעבען, איהר אסוואלד; אבער ניט צו שפעט אייגצוזעהן, אז ליעבע און פרייהייט איז די איינציגע בערינגונג פון א שענעם לעבען. יענע וואָס, אזוי ווי פרוי אלוויגג, האָבען זיי בעצאָהלט מיט בלוט און טרערן פאר זייער נייסטיגע ערוואָכונג, פערוואַרפען די היראָט אלס א בעטרוג, אלס א פלאָבע, פוסטע לעבערליכקייט. זיי ווייסען, אז אויב ליעבע רויערט א קודצע צייט אדער צוביג, איז זי אבער דאָס איינציגע בעשאפענדע, כעזייסטערענדע, ערהייבענדע פונדאמענט פאר א נייער דאָסע א נייער וועלט.

אין אונזער איצטיגע בערינגונגען איז ליעבע א פרעמדע זאך פאר די מעהרסטע לייט. מיספערשטאנדען און אויסגעמידען, פאסט זי זעלטען וואו טיפע וואַרצלען; און וואו זי טוט עס שוין יא, ווערט זי באלד פעדוועלקט און שטארבט אב. די צערמקייט פון רער ליעבע קען ניט פערטראגען די שטרענגקייט און די שארפקייט פון רעם טעג־ליכען לעבען. איהר נשמה איז צו פיין אוס זיך צוצופאסען צו אונזער נעזעלשאפטליכען פאבריק. זי, די ליעבע, וויינט און זיפצט און ליידט מיט יענע וואָס בעדארפען זי, אבער האָבען ניט די פעהינקייט

890327015

The Emma Goldman Papers

Anarchism : What It Really Stands For / Emma Goldman. — [1st. ed.] — New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. — 15 p. ; 19 × 24 cm.

Obtained from the Dartmouth College Library.

ANARCHISM

WHAT IT REALLY STANDS FOR

BY

EMMA GOLDMAN

PRICE TEN CENTS

MOTHER EARTH PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION

210 EAST 13th STREET, NEW YORK

1911

749

890327015

The Emma Goldman Papers

Anarchism : What It Really Stands For / Emma Goldman. — [1st. ed.] — New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. — 15 p. ; 19 × 24 cm.
Obtained from the Dartmouth College Library.

NOW READY!

Anarchism and Other Essays

EMMA GOLDMAN'S BOOK

A SERIES of essays comprising a thorough critique of existing social institutions and conditions, and giving a comprehensive view of the author's opinions on matters educational, sexual, economic, political, and social.

CONTENTS

1. Anarchism: What It Really Stands For.
2. Minorities versus Majorities.
3. The Psychology of Political Violence.
4. Prisons: A Social Crime and Failure.
5. Patriotism: A Menace to Liberty.
6. Francisco Ferrer and The Modern School.
7. The Hypocrisy of Puritanism.
8. The Traffic in Women.
9. Woman Suffrage.
10. The Tragedy of Woman's Emancipation.
11. Marriage and Love.
12. The Modern Drama: A Powerful Disseminator of Radical Thought.

A BIOGRAPHIC SKETCH of Emma Goldman's interesting career, with splendid portrait, is included in the book.

Orders are to be sent, with cash, to

MOTHER EARTH, 210 E. 13th St., New York, N. Y.

Price, $1.00. By Mail, $1.10

ANARCHISM

WHAT IT REALLY STANDS FOR ∴ ∴

BY

EMMA GOLDMAN

MOTHER EARTH PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION

210 EAST 13th STREET, NEW YORK

1911

750

890327015

The Emma Goldman Papers

Anarchism : What It Really Stands For / Emma Goldman. – [1st. ed.] – New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. – 15 p. ; 19 × 24 cm.
Obtained from the Dartmouth College Library.

Val.
335 G569a

Nov. 7, 1944
Gen.

ANARCHISM

WHAT IT REALLY STANDS FOR ANARCHY.

Ever reviled, accursed, ne'er understood,
  Thou art the grisly terror of our age.
"Wreck of all order," cry the multitude,
  "Art thou, and war and murder's endless rage."
O, let them cry. To them that ne'er have striven
  The truth that lies behind a word to find,
To them the word's right meaning was not given.
  They shall continue blind among the blind.
But thou, O word, so clear, so strong, so pure,
  Thou sayest all which I for goal have taken.
I give thee to the future! Thine secure
  When each at least unto himself shall waken.
Comes it in sunshine? In the tempest's thrill?
  I cannot tell—but it the earth shall see!
I am an Anarchist! Wherefore I will Not rule, and also ruled I will not be!

JOHN HENRY MACKAY.

THE history of human growth and development is at the same time the history of the terrible struggle of every new idea heralding the approach of a brighter dawn. In its tenacious hold on tradition, the Old

751

890327015

The Emma Goldman Papers

Anarchism : What It Really Stands For / Emma Goldman.— [1st. ed.] — New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911.— 15 p. ; 19 × 24 cm.
Obtained from the Dartmouth College Library.

has never hesitated to make use of the foulest and cruelest means to stay the advent of the New, in whatever form or period the latter may have asserted itself. Nor need we retrace our steps into the distant past to realize the enormity of opposition, difficulties, and hardships placed in the path of every progressive idea. The rack, the thumbscrew, and the knout are still with us; so are the convict's garb and the social wrath, all conspiring against the spirit that is serenely marching on.

Anarchism could not hope to escape the fate of all other ideas of innovation. Indeed, as the most revolutionary and uncompromising innovator, Anarchism must needs meet with the combined ignorance and venom of the world it aims to reconstruct.

To deal even remotely with all that is being said and done against Anarchism would necessitate the writing of a whole volume. I shall therefore meet only two of the principal objections. In so doing, I shall attempt to elucidate what Anarchism really stands for.

The strange phenomenon of the opposition to Anarchism is that it brings to light the relation between so-called intelligence and ignorance. And yet this is not so very strange when we consider the relativity of all things. The ignorant mass has in its favor that it makes no pretense of knowledge or tolerance. Acting, as it always does, by mere impulse, its reasons are like those of a child. "Why?" "Because." Yet the opposition of the uneducated to Anarchism deserves the same consideration as that of the intelligent man.

What, then, are the objections? First, Anarchism is impractical, though a beautiful ideal. Second, Anarchism stands for violence and destruction, hence it must be repudiated as vile and dangerous. Both the intelligent man and the ignorant mass judge not from a thorough knowledge of the subject, but either from hearsay or false interpretation.

A practical scheme, says Oscar Wilde, is either one already in existence, or a scheme that could be carried out under the existing conditions; but it is exactly the existing conditions that one objects to, and any scheme that could accept these conditions is wrong and foolish. The true criterion of the practical, therefore, is not whether the latter can keep intact the wrong or foolish; rather is it whether the scheme has vitality enough to leave the stagnant waters of the old, and build, as well as sustain, new life. In the light of this conception, Anarchism is indeed practical. More than any other idea, it is helping to do away with the wrong and foolish; more than any other idea, it is building and sustaining new life.

The emotions of the ignorant man are continuously kept at a pitch by the most blood-curdling stories about Anarchism. Not a thing too outrageous to be employed against this philosophy and its exponents. Therefore Anarchism represents to the unthinking what the proverbial bad man does to the child,— a black monster bent on swallowing everything; in short, destruction and violence.

Destruction and violence! How is the ordinary man to know that the most violent element in society

752

890327015

The Emma Goldman Papers

Anarchism : What It Really Stands For / Emma Goldman.— [1st. ed.] — New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911.— 15 p. ; 19 × 24 cm.
Obtained from the Dartmouth College Library.

is ignorance; that its power of destruction is the very thing Anarchism is combating? Nor is he aware that Anarchism, whose roots, as it were, are part of nature's forces, destroys, not healthful tissue, but parasitic growths that feed on the life's essence of society. It is merely clearing the soil from weeds and sagebrush, that it may eventually bear healthy fruit.

Someone has said that it requires less mental effort to condemn than to think. The widespread mental indolence, so prevalent in society, proves this to be only too true. Rather than to go to the bottom of any given idea, to examine into its origin and meaning, most people will either condemn it altogether, or rely on some superficial or prejudicial definition of non-essentials.

Anarchism urges man to think, to investigate, to analyze every proposition; but that the brain capacity of the average reader be not taxed too much, I also shall begin with a definition, and then elaborate on the latter.

> ANARCHISM:—The philosophy of a new social order based on liberty unrestricted by man-made law; the theory that all forms of government rest on violence, and are therefore wrong and harmful, as well as unnecessary.

The new social order rests, of course, on the materialistic basis of life; but while all Anarchists agree that the main evil today is an economic one, they maintain that the solution of that evil can be brought about only through the consideration of every phase of life,—individual, as well as the collective; the internal, as well as the external phases.

A thorough perusal of the history of human development will disclose two elements in bitter conflict with each other; elements that are only now beginning to be understood, not as foreign to each other, but as closely related and truly harmonious, if only placed in proper environment: the individual and social instincts. The individual and society have waged a relentless and bloody battle for ages, each striving for supremacy, because each was blind to the value and importance of the other. The individual and social instincts,—the one a most potent factor for individual endeavor, for growth, aspiration, self-realization; the other an equally potent factor for mutual helpfulness and social well-being.

The explanation of the storm raging within the individual, and between him and his surroundings, is not far to seek. The primitive man, unable to understand his being, much less the unity of all life, felt himself absolutely dependent on blind, hidden forces ever ready to mock and taunt him. Out of that attitude grew the religious concepts of man as a mere speck of dust dependent on superior powers on high, who can only be appeased by complete surrender. All the early sagas rest on that idea, which continues to be the leit-motif of the biblical tales dealing with the relation of man to God, to the State, to society. Again and again the same motif, man is nothing, the powers are everything. Thus Jehovah would only endure man on condition of complete surrender. Man can have all the glories of the earth, but he must not become conscious of himself. The State, society, and moral laws all sing the same re-

753

890327015

The Emma Goldman Papers

Anarchism : What It Really Stands For / Emma Goldman. – [1st. ed.] – New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. – 15 p. ; 19 × 24 cm.
Obtained from the Dartmouth College Library.

frain: Man can have all the glories of the earth, but he must not become conscious of himself.

Anarchism is the only philosophy which brings to man the consciousness of himself; which maintains that God, the State, and society are non-existent, that their promises are null and void, since they can be fulfilled only through man's subordination. Anarchism is therefore the teacher of the unity of life; not merely in nature, but in man. There is no conflict between the individual and the social instincts, any more than there is between the heart and the lungs: the one the receptacle of a precious life essence, the other the repository of the element that keeps the essence pure and strong. The individual is the heart of society, conserving the essence of social life; society is the lungs which are distributing the element to keep the life essence—that is, the individual—pure and strong.

"The one thing of value in the world," says Emerson, "is the active soul; this every man contains within him. The soul active sees absolute truth and utters truth and creates." In other words, the individual instinct is the thing of value in the world. It is the true soul that sees and creates the truth alive, out of which is to come a still greater truth, the re-born social soul.

Anarchism is the great liberator of man from the phantoms that have held him captive; it is the arbiter and pacifier of the two forces for individual and social harmony. To accomplish that unity, Anarchism has declared war on the pernicious influences which have so far prevented the harmonious blending of individual and social instincts, the individual and society.

Religion, the dominion of the human mind; Property, the dominion of human needs; and Government, the dominion of human conduct, represent the stronghold of man's enslavement and all the horrors it entails. Religion! How it dominates man's mind, how it humiliates and degrades his soul. God is everything, man is nothing, says religion. But out of that nothing God has created a kingdom so despotic, so tyrannical, so cruel, so terribly exacting that naught but gloom and tears and blood have ruled the world since gods began. Anarchism rouses man to rebellion against this black monster. Break your mental fetters, says Anarchism to man, for not until you think and judge for yourself will you get rid of the dominion of darkness, the greatest obstacle to all progress.

Property, the dominion of man's needs, the denial of the right to satisfy his needs. Time was when property claimed a divine right, when it came to man with the same refrain, even as religion, "Sacrifice! Abnegate! Submit!" The spirit of Anarchism has lifted man from his prostrate position. He now stands erect, with his face toward the light. He has learned to see the insatiable, devouring, devastating nature of property, and he is preparing to strike the monster dead.

"Property is robbery," said the great French Anarchist, Proudhon. Yes, but without risk and danger to the robber. Monopolizing the accumulated efforts of man, property has robbed him of his birth-

754

890327015

The Emma Goldman Papers

Anarchism : What It Really Stands For / Emma Goldman. – [1st. ed.] – New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. – 15 p. ; 19 × 24 cm.
Obtained from the Dartmouth College Library.

right, and has turned him loose a pauper and an outcast. Property has not even the time-worn excuse that man does not create enough to satisfy all needs. The A B C student of economics knows that the productivity of labor within the last few decades far exceeds normal demand a hundredfold. But what are normal demands to an abnormal institution? The only demand that property recognizes is its own gluttonous appetite for greater wealth, because wealth means power: the power to subdue, to crush, to exploit, the power to enslave, to outrage, to degrade. America is particularly boastful of her great power, her enormous national wealth. Poor America, of what avail is all her wealth, if the individuals comprising the nation are wretchedly poor? If they live in squalor, in filth, in crime, with hope and joy gone, a homeless, soilless army of human prey.

It is generally conceded that unless the returns of any business venture exceed the cost, bankruptcy is inevitable. But those engaged in the business of producing wealth have not yet learned even this simple lesson. Every year the cost of production in human life is growing larger (50,000 killed, 100,000 wounded in America last year); the returns to the masses, who help to create wealth, are ever getting smaller. Yet America continues to be blind to the inevitable bankruptcy of our business of production. Nor is this the only crime of the latter. Still more fatal is the crime of turning the producer into a mere particle of a machine, with less will and decision than his master of steel and iron. Man is being robbed not merely of the products of his labor, but of the power of free initiative, of originality, and the interest in, or desire for, the things he is making.

Real wealth consists in things of utility and beauty, in things that help to create strong, beautiful bodies and surroundings inspiring to live in. But if man is doomed to wind cotton around a spool, or dig coal, or build roads for thirty years of his life, there can be no talk of wealth. What he gives to the world is only gray and hideous things, reflecting a dull and hideous existence,—too weak to live, too cowardly to die. Strange to say, there are people who extol this deadening method of centralized production as the proudest achievement of our age. They fail utterly to realize that if we are to continue in machine subserviency, our slavery is more complete than was our bondage to the King. They do not want to know that centralization is not only the death knell of liberty, but also of health and beauty, of art and science, all these being impossible in a clock-like, mechanical atmosphere.

Anarchism cannot but repudiate such a method of production: its goal is the freest possible expression of all the latent powers of the individual. Oscar Wilde defines a perfect personality as "one who develops under perfect conditions, who is not wounded, maimed, or in danger." A perfect personality, then, is only possible in a state of society where man is free to choose the mode of work, the conditions of work, and the freedom to work. One to whom the making of a table, the building of a house, or the tilling of the soil, is what the painting is to the artist and the discovery to the scientist,—the

755

890327015

The Emma Goldman Papers

Anarchism : What It Really Stands For / Emma Goldman. — [1st. ed.] — New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. — 15 p. ; 19 × 24 cm.
Obtained from the Dartmouth College Library.

result of inspiration, of intense longing, and deep interest in work as a ereative force. That being the ideal of Anarehism, its economic arrangements must consist of voluntary produetive and distributive associations, gradually developing into free eommunism, as the best means of producing with the least waste of human energy. Anarchism, however, also recognizes the right of the individual, or numbers of individuals, to arrange at all times for othcr forms of work, in harmony with their tastes and desires.

Such free display of human energy being possible only under complete individual and social freedom, Anarehism directs its forees against the third and greatest foe of all social equality; namely, the State, organized authority, or statutory law,—the dominion of human eonduct.

Just as religion has fettered the human mind, and as property, or the monopoly of things, has subdued and stifled man's needs, so has the State enslaved his spirit, dictating every phase of conduct. "All government in essenee," says Emerson, "is tyranny." It matters not whether it is government by divine right or majority rule. In every instance its aim is the absolute subordination of the individual.

Referring to the Ameriean government, the greatest Ameriean Anarehist, David Thoreau, said: "Government, what is it but a tradition, though a recent one, endeavoring to transmit itself unimpaired to posterity, but eaeh instance losing its integrity; it has not the vitality and foree of a single living man. Law never made man a whit more just; and by means of their respect for it, even the well disposed are daily made agents of injustice."

Indeed, the keynote of government is injustiee. With thc arroganee and self-suffieiency of thc King who could do no wrong, govcrnments ordain, judge, condemn, and punish the most insignificant offenses, whilc maintaining themselves by the greatest of all offenses, the annihilation of individual liberty. Thus Ouida is right when she maintains that "the State only aims at instilling those qualities in its public by whieh its demands are obeyed, and its exchequer is filled. Its highest attainment is thc reduction of mankind to clockwork. In its atmosphere all those finer and more delicate liberties, which require treatment and spacious expansion, inevitably dry up and perish. The State requires a taxpaying machine in which there is no hitch, an exchequer in whieh there is never a deficit, and a public, monotonous, obedient, colorless, spiritless, moving humbly like a flock of sheep along a straight high road between two walls."

Yet even a flock of sheep would resist the chicanery of the State, if it were not for the corruptive, tyrannical, and oppressive methods it employs to serve its purposes. Therefore Bakunin repudiates the State as synonymous with the surrender of the liberty of the individual or small minorities,—the destruction of social relationship, the curtailment, or eomplete denial even, of life itself, for its own aggrandizement. The State is the altar of political freedom and, like the religious altar, it is maintained for the purpose of human saerifice.

In fact, there is hardly a modern thinker who 756

890327015

The Emma Goldman Papers

Anarchism : What It Really Stands For / Emma Goldman. – [1st. ed.] – New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. – 15 p. ; 19 × 24 cm.

Obtained from the Dartmouth College Library.

does not agree that government, organized authority, or the State, is necessary only to maintain or protect property and monopoly. It has proven efficient in that function only.

Even George Bernard Shaw, who hopes for the miraculous from the State under Fabianism, nevertheless admits that "it is at present a huge machine for robbing and slave-driving of the poor by brute force." This being the case, it is hard to see why the clever prefacer wishes to uphold the State after poverty shall have ceased to exist.

Unfortunately there are still a number of people who continue in the fatal belief that government rests on natural laws, that it maintains social order and harmony, that it diminishes crime, and that it prevents the lazy man from fleecing his fellows. I shall therefore examine these contentions.

A natural law is that factor in man which asserts itself freely and spontaneously without any external force, in harmony with the requirements of nature. For instance, the demand for nutrition, for sex gratification, for light, air, and exercise, is a natural law. But its expression needs not the machinery of government, needs not the club, the gun, the handcuff, or the prison. To obey such laws, if we may call it obedience, requires only spontaneity and free opportunity. That governments do not maintain themselves through such harmonious factors is proven by the terrible array of violence, force, and coercion all governments use in order to live. Thus Blackstone is right when he says, "Human laws are invalid, because they are contrary to the laws of nature."

Unless it be the order of Warsaw after the slaughter of thousands of people, it is difficult to ascribe to governments any capacity for order or social harmony. Order derived through submission and maintained by terror is not much of a safe guaranty; yet that is the only "order" that governments have ever maintained. True social harmony grows naturally out of solidarity of interests. In a society where those who always work never have anything, while those who never work enjoy everything, solidarity of interests is non-existent; hence social harmony is but a myth. The only way organized authority meets this grave situation is by extending still greater privileges to those who have already monopolized the earth, and by still further enslaving the disinherited masses. Thus the entire arsenal of government—laws, police, soldiers, the courts, legislatures, prisons,—is strenuously engaged in "harmonizing" the most antagonistic elements in society.

The most absurd apology for authority and law is that they serve to diminish crime. Aside from the fact that the State is itself the greatest criminal, breaking every written and natural law, stealing in the form of taxes, killing in the form of war and capital punishment, it has come to an absolute standstill in coping with crime. It has failed utterly to destroy or even minimize the horrible scourge of its own creation.

Crime is naught but misdirected energy. So long as every institution of today, economic, political, social, and moral, conspires to misdirect human energy into wrong channels; so long as most people

890327015

The Emma Goldman Papers

Anarchism : What It Really Stands For / Emma Goldman. – [1st. ed.] – New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. – 15 p. ; 19 × 24 cm.
Obtained from the Dartmouth College Library.

are out of place doing the things they hate to do, living a life they loathe to live, crime will be inevitable, and all the laws on the statutes can only increase, but never do away with, crime. What does society, as it exists today, know of the process of despair, the poverty, the horrors, the fearful struggle the human soul must pass on its way to crime and degradation. Who that knows this terrible process can fail to see the truth in these words of Peter Kropotkin:

"Those who will hold the balance between the benefits thus attributed to law and punishment and the degrading effect of the latter on humanity; those who will estimate the torrent of depravity poured abroad in human society by the informer, favored by the Judge even, and paid for in clinking cash by governments, under the pretext of aiding to unmask crime; those who will go within prison walls and there see what human beings become when deprived of liberty, when subjected to the care of brutal keepers, to coarse, cruel words, to a thousand stinging, piercing humiliations, will agree with us that the entire apparatus of prison and punishment is an abomination which ought to be brought to an end."

The deterrent influence of law on the lazy man is too absurd to merit consideration. If society were only relieved of the waste and expense of keeping a lazy class, and the equally great expense of the paraphernalia of protection this lazy class requires, the social tables would contain an abundance for all, including even the occasional lazy individual. Besides, it is well to consider that laziness results either from special privileges, or physical and mental abnormalities. Our present insane system of production fosters both, and the most astounding phenomenon is that people should want to work at all now. Anarchism aims to strip labor of its deadening, dulling aspect, of its gloom and compulsion. It aims to make work an instrument of joy, of strength, of color, of real harmony, so that the poorest sort of a man should find in work both recreation and hope.

To achieve such an arrangement of life, government, with its unjust, arbitrary, repressive measures, must be done away with. At best it has but imposed one single mode of life upon all, without regard to individual and social variations and needs. In destroying government and statutory laws, Anarchism proposes to rescue the self-respect and independence of the individual from all restraint and invasion by authority. Only in freedom can man grow to his full stature. Only in freedom will he learn to think and move, and give the very best in him. Only in freedom will he realize the true force of the social bonds which knit men together, and which are the true foundation of a normal social life.

But what about human nature? Can it be changed? And if not, will it endure under Anarchism?

Poor human nature, what horrible crimes have been committed in thy name! Every fool, from king to policeman, from the flatheaded par-

890327015

The Emma Goldman Papers

Anarchism : What It Really Stands For / Emma Goldman.— [1st. ed.] — New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911.— 15 p. ; 19 × 24 cm.
Obtained from the Dartmouth College Library.

son to the visionless dabbler in science, presumes to speak authoritatively of human nature. The greater the mental charlatan, the more definite his insistence on the wickedness and weaknesses of human nature. Yet, how can any one speak of it today, with every soul in a prison, with every heart fettered, wounded, and maimed?

John Burroughs has stated that experimental study of animals in captivity is absolutely useless. Their character, their habits, their appetites undergo a complete transformation when torn from their soil in field and forest. With human nature caged in a narrow space, whipped daily into submission, how can we speak of its potentialities?

Freedom, expansion, opportunity, and, above all, peace and repose, alone can teach us the real dominant factors of human nature and all its wonderful possibilities.

Anarchism, then, really stands for the liberation of the human mind from the dominion of religion; the liberation of the human body from the dominion of property; liberation from the shackles and restraint of government. Anarchism stands for a social order based on the free grouping of individuals for the purpose of producing real social wealth; an order that will guarantee to every human being free access to the earth and full enjoyment of the necessities of life, according to individual desires, tastes, and inclinations.

This is not a wild fancy or an aberration of the mind. It is the conclusion arrived at by hosts of intellectual men and women the world over; a conclusion resulting from the close and studious observation of the tendencies of modern society: individual liberty and economic equality, the twin forces for the birth of what is fine and true in man.

As to methods. Anarchism is not, as some may suppose, a theory of the future to be realized through divine inspiration. It is a living force in the affairs of our life, constantly creating new conditions. The methods of Anarchism therefore do not comprise an iron-clad program to be carried out under all circumstances. Methods must grow out of the economic needs of each place and clime, and of the intellectual and temperamental requirements of the individual. The serene, calm character of a Tolstoy will wish different methods for social reconstruction than the intense, overflowing personality of a Michael Bakunin or a Peter Kropotkin. Equally so it must be apparent that the economic and political needs of Russia will dictate more drastic measures than would England or America. Anarchism does not stand for military drill and uniformity; it does, however, stand for the spirit of revolt, in whatever form, against everything that hinders human growth. All Anarchists agree in that, as they also agree in their opposition to the political machinery as a means of bringing about the great social change.

"All voting," says Thoreau, "is a sort of gaming, like checkers, or backgammon, a playing with right and wrong; its obligation never exceeds that of expediency. Even voting for the right thing is doing nothing for it. A wise man will not leave

759

890327015

The Emma Goldman Papers

Anarchism : What It Really Stands For / Emma Goldman. — [1st. ed.] — New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. — 15 p. ; 19 × 24 cm.
Obtained from the Dartmouth College Library.

the right to the mercy of chance, nor wish it to prevail through the power of the majority." A close examination of the machinery of politics and its achievements will bear out the logic of Thoreau.

What does the history of parliamentarism show? Nothing but failure and defeat, not even a single reform to ameliorate the economic and social stress of the people. Laws have been passed and enactments made for the improvement and protection of labor. Thus it was proven only last year that Illinois, with the most rigid laws for mine protection, had the greatest mine disasters. In States where child labor laws prevail, child exploitation is at its highest, and though with us the workers enjoy full political opportunities, capitalism has reached the most brazen zenith.

Even were the workers able to have their own reprcscntatives, for which our good Socialist politicians are clamoring, what chances are there for their honesty and good faith? One has but to bear in mind the process of politics to realize that its path of good intentions is full of pitfalls: wire-pulling, intriguing, flattering, lying, cheating; in fact, chicanery of every description, whereby the political aspirant can achieve success. Added to that is a complete demoralization of character and conviction, until nothing is left that would make one hope for anything from such a human derelict. Time and time again the people were foolish enough to trust, believe, and support with their last farthing aspiring politicians, only to find themselves betrayed and cheated.

It may be claimed that men of integrity would not become corrupt in the political grinding mill. Perhaps not; but such men would be absolutely helpless to exert the slightest influence in behalf of labor, as indeed has been shown in numerous instances. The State is the economic master of its servants. Good men, if such there be, would either remain true to their political faith and lose their economic support, or they would cling to their economic master and be utterly unable to do the slightest good. The political arena leaves one no alternative, one must either be a duncc or a rogue.

The political superstition is still holding sway over the hearts and minds of the masses, but the true lovers of liberty will have no more to do with it. Instead, they believe with Stirner that man has as much liberty as he is willing to take. Anarchism therefore stands for direct action, the open defiance of, and resistance to, all laws and restrictions, economic, social, and moral. But defiance and rcsistance are illegal. Therein lies the salvation of man. Everything illegal nccessitates integrity, self-reliance, and courage. In short, it calls for free, independent spirits, for "men who are men, and who have a bone in their backs which you cannot pass your hand through."

Universal suffrage itself owes its existence to direct action. If not for the spirit of rebellion, of the defiance on the part of the American revolutionary fathers, their posterity would still wear the King's coat. If not for the direct action of a John

760

890327015

The Emma Goldman Papers

Anarchism : What It Really Stands For / Emma Goldman. – [1st. ed.] – New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. – 15 p. ; 19 × 24 cm.
Obtained from the Dartmouth College Library.

Brown and his comrades, America would still trade in the flesh of the black man. True, the trade in white flesh is still going on; but that, too, will have to be abolished by direct action. Trade unionism, the economic arena of the modern gladiator, owes its existence to direct action. It is but recently that law and government have attempted to crush the trade union movement, and condemned thc exponents of man's right to organize to prison as conspirators. Had they sought to assert their cause through begging, pleading, and compromise, trade unionism would today be a negligible quantity. In Francc, in Spain, in Italy, in Russia, nay even in England (witness the growing rebellion of English labor unions) direct, revolutionary, economic action has become so strong a force in the battle for industrial liberty as to make the world realize the tremendous importance of labor's power. The General Strike, the supreme expression of the economic consciousness of the workers, was ridiculed in America but a short time ago. Today every great strike, in order to win, must realize the importance of the solidaric general protest.

Direct action, having proved effective along economic lines, is equally potent in the environment of the individual. There a hundred forces encroach upon his being, and only persistent resistance to them will finally set him free. Direct action against the authority in the shop, direct action against the authority of the law, direct action against the invasive, meddlesome authority of our moral code, is the logical, consistent method of Anarchism.

Will it not lead to a rcvolution? Indeed, it will. No real social change has ever come about without a revolution. People are either not familiar with their history, or they have not yet learned that revolution is but thought carried into action.

Anarchism, thc great lcaven of thought, is today pcrmeating cvery phase of human endcavor. Science, art, literature, the drama, the effort for economic betterment, in fact every individual and social opposition to the existing disorder of things, is illumined by the spiritual light of Anarchism. It is the philosophy of the sovereignty of the individual. It is the theory of social harmony. It is the great, surging, living truth that is reconstructing the world, and that will usher in the Dawn.

761

890327015

The Emma Goldman Papers

Anarchism : What It Really Stands For / Emma Goldman.— [1st. ed.] — New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911.— 15 p. ; 19 × 24 cm.
Obtained from the Dartmouth College Library.

THE ONLY ANARCHIST MONTHLY
IN AMERICA

MOTHER
EARTH

¶ A revolutionary literary magazine devoted to Anarchist thought in sociology, economics, education, and life.

¶ Articles by leading Anarchists and radical thinkers.—International Notes giving a summary of the revolutionary activities in various countries.—Reviews of modern books and the drama.

TEN CENTS A COPY
ONE DOLLAR A YEAR

EMMA GOLDMAN - - Publisher
ALEXANDER BERKMAN - Editor

210 EAST THIRTEENTH STREET
NEW YORK

Bound Volumes 1906-1911, Two Dollars per Volume

MOTHER EARTH
LIBRARY
OF ANARCHISM

¶ The literature of Anarchism is very extensive. Numerous books and pamphlets have been written, treating of the various phases of Anarchist thought, and various publications, both here and abroad, are devoted to this philosophy of life. No well-informed man or woman can afford to ignore this vital subject. Your library is not complete unless it includes works on Anarchism.

Mother Earth Publishing Association
210 East Thirteenth Street
New York

¶ Ordera for literature should be accompanied by check or money order. For bound volumes ten cents extra for postage.

762

890327015

The Emma Goldman Papers

Anarchism : What It Really Stands For / Emma Goldman. – [1st. ed.] – New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. – 15 p. ; 19 × 24 cm.
Obtained from the Dartmouth College Library.

AUTOBIOGRAPHY

OF

ALEXANDER BERKMAN

A Unique Contribution to Socio-Psychological Literature

THE AUTOBIOGRAPHY REPRESENTS THREE PHASES:

I) The Revolutionary Awakening and its Toll—The Attentat

II) The Allegheny Penitentiary: Fourteen Years in Purgatory

III) The Resurrection and After

Price One Dollar Fifty

Send Advance Subscriptions to

MOTHER EARTH PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION

210 EAST THIRTEENTH STREET

NEW YORK

THE BOOK IS NEARING COMPLETION AND WILL BE ISSUED IN THE EARLY SPRING

763

900116011

The Emma Goldman Papers

Marriage and Love / Emma Goldman. – [1st. ed.] – New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. – 18 p. ; 23 × 16 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the United States Library of Congress. Institutional Location: Radical Pamphlet Collection, Rare Book and Special Collections Division.

Marriage and Love

BY

EMMA GOLDMAN

Price Ten Cents

MOTHER EARTH PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION
210 EAST 13th STREET, NEW YORK
1911

764

900116011

The Emma Goldman Papers

Marriage and Love / Emma Goldman. – [1st. ed.] – New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. – 18 p. ; 23 × 16 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the United States Library of Congress. Institutional Location: Radical Pamphlet Collection, Rare Book and Special Collections Division.

AUTOBIOGRAPHY

OF

ALEXANDER BERKMAN

A Unique Contribution to

Socio-Psychological Literature

THE AUTOBIOGRAPHY REPRESENTS THREE PHASES:

I) The Revolutionary Awakening and its Toll—The Attentat

II) The Allegheny Penitentiary: Fourteen Years in Purgatory

III) The Resurrection and After

Price One Dollar Fifty

Send Advance Subscriptions to

MOTHER EARTH PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION

210 EAST THIRTEENTH STREET

NEW YORK

THE BOOK IS NEARING COMPLETION AND WILL BE ISSUED IN THE EARLY SPRING

765

900116011

The Emma Goldman Papers

Marriage and Love / Emma Goldman. – [1st. ed.] – New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. – 18 p. ; 23 × 16 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the United States Library of Congress.
Institutional Location: Radical Pamphlet Collection, Rare Book and Special Collections Division.

Marriage and Love

BY

EMMA GOLDMAN

Price Ten Cents

MOTHER EARTH PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION
210 EAST 13th STREET, NEW YORK
1911

766

900116011

The Emma Goldman Papers

Marriage and Love / Emma Goldman. – [1st. ed.] – New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. – 18 p. ; 23 × 16 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the United States Library of Congress.
Institutional Location: Radical Pamphlet Collection, Rare Book and Special Collections Division.

MARRIAGE AND LOVE

THE popular notion about marriage and love is that they are synonymous, that they spring from the same motives, and cover the same human needs. Like most popular notions this also rests not on actual facts, but on superstitition.

Marriage and love have nothing in common; they are as far apart as the poles; are, in fact, antagonistic to each other. No doubt some marriages have been the result of love. Not, however, because love could assert itself only in marriage; much rather is it because few people can completely outgrow a convention. There are today large numbers of men and women to whom marriage is naught but a farce, but who submit to it for the sake of public opinion. At any rate, while it is true that some marriages are based on love, and while it is equally true that in some cases love continues in married life, I maintain that it does so regardless of marriage, and not because of it.

On the other hand, it is utterly false that love results from marriage. On rare occasions one does hear of a miraculous case of a married couple falling in love after marriage, but on close examination it

767

900116011

The Emma Goldman Papers

Marriage and Love / Emma Goldman. – [1st. ed.] – New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. – 18 p. ; 23 × 16 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the United States Library of Congress.
Institutional Location: Radical Pamphlet Collection, Rare Book and Special Collections Division.

will be found that it is a mere adjustment to the inevitable. Certainly the growing-used to each other is far away from the spontaneity, the intensity, and beauty of love, without which the intimacy of marriage must prove degrading to both the woman and the man.

Marriage is primarily an economic arrangement, an insurance pact. It differs from the ordinary life insurance agreement only in that it is more binding, more exacting. Its returns are insignificantly small compared with the investments. In taking out an insurance policy one pays for it in dollars and cents, always at liberty to discontinue payments. If, however, woman's premium is a husband, she pays for it with her name, her privacy, her self-respect, her very life, "until death doth part." Moreover, the marriage insurance condemns her to life-long dependency, to parasitism, to complete uselessness, individual as well as social. Man, too, pays his toll, but as his sphere is wider, marriage does not limit him as much as woman. He feels his chains more in an economic sense.

Thus Dante's motto over Inferno applies with equal force to marriage. "Ye who enter here leave all hope behind."

That marriage is a failure none but the very stupid will deny. One has but to glance over the statistics of divorce to realize how bitter a failure marriage really is. Nor will the stereotyped Philistine argument that the laxity of divorce laws and the growing looseness of woman account for the fact that: first, every twelfth marriage ends in divorce; second, that since 1870 divorces have increased from 28 to 73

768

900116011

The Emma Goldman Papers

Marriage and Love / Emma Goldman. – [1st. ed.] – New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. – 18 p. ; 23 × 16 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the United States Library of Congress.
Institutional Location: Radical Pamphlet Collection, Rare Book and Special Collections Division.

for every hundred thousand population; third, that adultery, since 1867, as ground for divorce, has increased 270.8 per cent.; fourth, that desertion increased 369.8 per cent.

Added to these startling figures is a vast amount of material, dramatic and literary, further elucidating this subject. Robert Herrick, in Together; Pinero, in Mid-Channel; Eugene Walter, in Paid in Full, and scores of other writers are discussing the barrenness, the monotony, the sordidness, the inadequacy of marriage as a factor for harmony and understanding.

The thoughtful social student will not content himself with the popular superficial excuse for this phenomenon. He will have to dig down deeper into the very life of the sexes to know why marriage proves so disastrous.

Edward Carpenter says that behind every marriage stands the life-long environment of the two sexes; an environment so different from each other that man and woman must remain strangers. Separated by an insurmountable wall of superstition, custom, and habit, marriage has not the potentiality of developing knowledge of, and respect for, each other, without which every union is doomed to failure.

Henrik Ibsen, the hater of all social shams, was probably the first to realize this great truth. Nora leaves her husband, not—as the stupid critic would have it—because she is tired of her responsibilities or feels the need of woman's rights, but because she has come to know that for eight years she had lived with a stranger and borne him children. Can there be anything more humiliating, more degrading than a life-

769

900116011

The Emma Goldman Papers

Marriage and Love / Emma Goldman. – [1st. ed.] – New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. – 18 p. ; 23 × 16 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the United States Library of Congress. Institutional Location: Radical Pamphlet Collection, Rare Book and Special Collections Division.

long proximity between two strangers? No need for the woman to know anything of the man, save his income. As to the knowledge of the woman—what is there to know except that she has a pleasing appearance? We have not yet outgrown the theologic myth that woman has no soul, that she is a mere appendix to man, made out of his rib just for the convenience of the gentleman who was so strong that he was afraid of his own shadow.

Perchance the poor quality of the material whence woman comes is responsible for her inferiority. At any rate, woman has no soul—what is there to know about her? Besides, the less soul a woman has the greater her asset as a wife, the more readily will she absorb herself in her husband. It is this slavish acquiescence to man's superiority that has kept the marriage institution seemingly intact for so long a period. Now that woman is coming into her own, now that she is actually growing aware of herself as a being outside of the master's grace, the sacred institution of marriage is gradually being undermined, and no amount of sentimental lamentation can stay it.

From infancy, almost, the average girl is told that marriage is her ultimate goal; therefore her training and education must be directed towards that end. Like the mute beast fattened for slaughter, she is prepared for that. Yet, strange to say, she is allowed to know much less about her function as wife and mother than the ordinary artisan of his trade. It is indecent and filthy for a respectable girl to know anything of the marital relation. Oh, for the inconsistency of respectability, that needs the marriage vow to turn

770

900116011

The Emma Goldman Papers

Marriage and Love / Emma Goldman.— [1st. ed.] — New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911.— 18 p. ; 23 × 16 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the United States Library of Congress.
Institutional Location: Radical Pamphlet Collection, Rare Book and Special Collections Division.

something which is filthy into the purest and most sacred arrangement that none dare question or criticize. Yet that is exactly the attitude of the average upholder of marriage. The prospective wife and mother is kept in complete ignorance of her only asset in the competitive field—sex. Thus she enters into life-long relations with a man only to find herself shocked, repelled, outraged beyond measure by the most natural and healthy instinct, sex. It is safe to say that a large percentage of the unhappiness, misery, distress, and physical suffering of matrimony is due to the criminal ignorance in sex matters that is being extolled as a great virtue. Nor is it at all an exaggeration when I say that more than one home has been broken up because of this deplorable fact.

If, however, woman is free and big enough to learn the mystery of sex without the sanction of State or Church, she will stand condemned as utterly unfit to become the wife of a "good" man, his goodness consisting of an empty brain and plenty of money. Can there be anything more outrageous than the idea that a healthy, grown woman, full of life and passion, must deny nature's demand, must subdue her most intense craving, undermine her health and break her spirit, must stunt her vision, abstain from the depth and glory of sex experience until a "good" man comes along to take her unto himself as a wife? That is precisely what marriage means. How can such an arrangement end except in failure? This is one, though not the least important, factor of marriage, which differentiates it from love.

771

900116011

The Emma Goldman Papers

Marriage and Love / Emma Goldman. – [1st. ed.] – New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. – 18 p. ; 23 × 16 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the United States Library of Congress.
Institutional Location: Radical Pamphlet Collection, Rare Book and Special Collections Division.

Ours is a practical age. The time when Romeo and Juliet risked the wrath of their fathers for love, when Gretchen exposed herself to the gossip of her neighbors for love, is no more. If, on rare occasions, young people allow themselves the luxury of romance, they are taken in care by the elders, drilled and pounded until they become "sensible."

The moral lesson instilled in the girl is not whether the man has aroused her love, but rather is it, "How much?" The important and only God of practical American life: Can the man make a living? can he support a wife? That is the only thing that justifies marriage. Gradually this saturates every thought of the girl; her dreams are not of moonlight and kisses, of laughter and tears; she dreams of shopping tours and bargain counters. This soul poverty and sordidness are the elements inherent in the marriage institution. The State and the Church approve of no other ideal, simply because it is the one that necessitates the State and Church control of men and women.

Doubtless there are people who continue to consider love above dollars and cents. Particularly is this true of that class whom economic necessity has forced to become self-supporting. The tremendous change in woman's position, wrought by that mighty factor, is indeed phenomenal when we reflect that it is but a short time since she has entered the industrial arena. Six million women wage workers; six million women, who have the equal right with men to be exploited, to be robbed, to go on strike; aye, to starve even. Anything more, my lord? Yes, six million wage workers in every walk of life, from the highest brain work to

772

900116011

The Emma Goldman Papers

Marriage and Love / Emma Goldman. – [1st. ed.] – New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. – 18 p. ; 23 × 16 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the United States Library of Congress.
Institutional Location: Radical Pamphlet Collection, Rare Book and Special Collections Division.

the mines and railroad tracks; yes, even detectives and policemen. Surely the emancipation is complete.

Yet with all that, but a very small number of the vast army of women wage workers look upon work as a permanent issue, in the same light as does man. No matter how decrepit the latter, he has been taught to be independent, self-supporting. Oh, I know that no one is really independent in our economic treadmill; still, the poorest specimen of a man hates to be a parasite; to be known as such, at any rate.

The woman considers her position as worker transitory, to be thrown aside for the first bidder. That is why it is infinitely harder to organize women than men. "Why should I join a union? I am going to get married, to have a home." Has she not been taught from infancy to look upon that as her ultimate calling? She learns soon enough that the home, though not so large a prison as the factory, has more solid doors and bars. It has a keeper so faithful that naught can escape him. The most tragic part, however, is that the home no longer frees her from wage slavery; it only increases her task.

According to the latest statistics submitted before a Committee "on labor and wages, and congestion of population," ten per cent. of the wage workers in New York City alone are married, yet they must continue to work at the most poorly paid labor in the world. Add to this horrible aspect the drudgery of housework, and what remains of the protection and glory of the home? As a matter of fact, even the middle-class girl in marriage can not speak of her home, since it is the man who creates her sphere. It is not important

773

900116011

The Emma Goldman Papers

Marriage and Love / Emma Goldman. – [1st. ed.] – New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. – 18 p. ; 23 × 16 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the United States Library of Congress. Institutional Location: Radical Pamphlet Collection, Rare Book and Special Collections Division.

whether the husband is a brute or a darling. What I wish to prove is that marriage guarantees woman a home only by the grace of her husband. There she moves about in his home, year after year, until her aspect of life and human affairs becomes as flat, narrow, and drab as her surroundings. Small wonder if she becomes a nag, petty, quarrelsome, gossipy, unbearable, thus driving the man from the house. She could not go, if she wanted to; there is no place to go. Besides, a short period of married life, of complete surrender of all faculties, absolutely incapacitates the average woman for the outside world. She becomes reckless in appearance, clumsy in her movements, dependent in her decisions, cowardly in her judgment, a weight and a bore, which most men grow to hate and despise. Wonderfully inspiring atmosphere for the bearing of life, is it not?

But the child, how is it to be protected, if not for marriage? After all, is not that the most important consideration? The sham, the hypocrisy of it! Marriage protecting the child, yet thousands of children destitute and homeless. Marriage protecting the child, yet orphan asylums and reformatories overcrowded, the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children keeping busy in rescuing the little victims from "loving" parents, to place them under more loving care, the Gerry Society. Oh, the mockery of it!

Marriage may have the power to bring the horse to water, but has it ever made him drink? The law will place the father under arrest, and put him in convict's clothes; but has that ever stilled the hunger of the child? If the parent has no work, or if he hides

774

900116011

The Emma Goldman Papers

Marriage and Love / Emma Goldman. — [1st. ed.] — New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. — 18 p. ; 23 × 16 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the United States Library of Congress. Institutional Location: Radical Pamphlet Collection, Rare Book and Special Collections Division.

his identity, what does marriage do then? It invokes the law to bring the man to "justice," to put him safely behind closed doors; his labor, however, goes not to the child, but to the State. The child receives but a blighted memory of its father's stripes.

As to the protection of the woman,—therein lies the curse of marriage. Not that it really protects her, but the very idea is so revolting, such an outrage and insult on life, so degrading to human dignity, as to forever condemn this parasitic institution.

It is like that other paternal arrangement—capitalism. It robs man of his birthright, stunts his growth, poisons his body, keeps him in ignorance, in poverty, and dependence, and then institutes charities that thrive on the last vestige of man's self-respect.

The institution of marriage makes a parasite of woman, an absolute dependent. It incapacitates her for life's struggle, annihilates her social consciousness, paralyzes her imagination, and then imposes its gracious protection, which is in reality a snare, a travesty on human character.

If motherhood is the highest fulfillment of woman's nature, what other protection does it need, save love and freedom? Marriage but defiles, outrages, and corrupts her fulfillment. Does it not say to woman, Only when you follow me shall you bring forth life? Does it not condemn her to the block, does it not degrade and shame her if she refuses to buy her right to motherhood by selling herself? Does not marriage only sanction motherhood, even though conceived in hatred, in compulsion? Yet, if motherhood be of free choice, of love, of ecstasy, of defiant passion, does it

775

900116011

The Emma Goldman Papers

Marriage and Love / Emma Goldman. – [1st. ed.] – New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. – 18 p. ; 23 × 16 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the United States Library of Congress. Institutional Location: Radical Pamphlet Collection, Rare Book and Special Collections Division.

not place a crown of thorns upon an innocent head and carve in letters of blood the hideous epithet, Bastard? Were marriage to contain all the virtues claimed for it, its crimes against motherhood would exclude it forever from the realm of love.

Love, the strongest and deepest element in all life, the harbinger of hope, of joy, of ecstasy; love, the defier of all laws, of all conventions; love, the freest, the most powerful moulder of human destiny; how can such an all-compelling force be synonymous with that poor little State and Church-begotten weed, marriage?

Free love? As if love is anything but free! Man has bought brains, but all the millions in the world have failed to buy love. Man has subdued bodies, but all the power on earth has been unable to subdue love. Man has conquered whole nations, but all his armies could not conquer love. Man has chained and fettered the spirit, but he has been utterly helpless before love. High on a throne, with all the splendor and pomp his gold can command, man is yet poor and desolate, if love passes him by. And if it stays, the poorest hovel is radiant with warmth, with life and color. Thus love has the magic power to make of a beggar a king. Yes, love is free; it can dwell in no other atmosphere. In freedom it gives itself unreservedly, abundantly, completely. All the laws on the statutes, all the courts in the universe, cannot tear it from the soil, once love has taken root. If, however, the soil is sterile, how can marriage make it bear fruit? It is like the last desperate struggle of fleeting life against death.

776

900116011

The Emma Goldman Papers

Marriage and Love / Emma Goldman. – [1st. ed.] – New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. – 18 p. ; 23 × 16 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the United States Library of Congress.
Institutional Location: Radical Pamphlet Collection, Rare Book and Special Collections Division.

Love needs no protection; it is its own protection. So long as love begets life no child is deserted, or hungry, or famished for the want of affection. I know this to be true. I know women who became mothers in freedom by the men they loved. Few children in wedlock enjoy the care, the protection, the devotion free motherhood is capable of bestowing.

The defenders of authority dread the advent of a free motherhood, lest it will rob them of their prey. Who would fight wars? Who would create wealth? Who would make the policeman, the jailer, if woman were to refuse the indiscriminate breeding of children? The race, the race! shouts the king, the president, the capitalist, the priest. The race must be preserved, though woman be degraded to a mere machine,—and the marriage institution is our only safety valve against the pernicious sex awakening of woman. But in vain these frantic efforts to maintain a state of bondage. In vain, too, the edicts of the Church, the mad attacks of rulers, in vain even the arm of the law. Woman no longer wants to be a party to the production of a race of sickly, feeble, decrepit, wretched human beings, who have neither the strength nor moral courage to throw off the yoke of poverty and slavery. Instead she desires fewer and better children, begotten and reared in love and through free choice; not by compulsion, as marriage imposes. Our pseudo-moralists have yet to learn the deep sense of responsibility toward the child, that love in freedom has awakened in the breast of woman. Rather would she forego forever the

777

900116011

The Emma Goldman Papers

Marriage and Love / Emma Goldman. – [1st. ed.] – New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. – 18 p. ; 23 × 16 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the United States Library of Congress. Institutional Location: Radical Pamphlet Collection, Rare Book and Special Collections Division.

glory of motherhood than bring forth life in an atmosphere that breathes only destruction and death. And if she does become a mother, it is to give to the child the deepest and best her being can yield. To grow with the child is her motto; she knows that in that manner alone can she help build true manhood and womanhood.

Ibsen must have had a vision of a free mother, when, with a master stroke, he portrayed Mrs. Alving. She was the ideal mother because she had outgrown marriage and all its horrors, because she had broken her chains, and set her spirit free to soar until it returned a personality, regenerated and strong. Alas, it was too late to rescue her life's joy, her Oswald; but not too late to realize that love in freedom is the only condition of a beautiful life. Those who, like Mrs. Alving, have paid with blood and tears for their spiritual awakening, repudiate marriage as an imposition, a shallow, empty mockery. They know, whether love last but one brief span of time or for eternity, it is the only creative, inspiring, elevating basis for a new race, a new world.

In our present pygmy state love is indeed a stranger to most people. Misunderstood and shunned, it rarely takes root; or if it does, it soon withers and dies. Its delicate fiber can not endure the stress and strain of the daily grind. Its soul is too complex to adjust itself to the slimy woof of our social fabric. It weeps and moans and suffers with those who have need of it, yet lack the capacity to rise to love's summit.

778

900116011

The Emma Goldman Papers

Marriage and Love / Emma Goldman. – [1st. ed.] – New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. – 18 p. ; 23 × 16 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the United States Library of Congress. Institutional Location: Radical Pamphlet Collection, Rare Book and Special Collections Division.

Some day, some day men and women will rise, they will reach the mountain peak, they will meet big and strong and free, ready to receive, to partake, and to bask in the golden rays of love. What fancy, what imagination, what poetic genius can foresee even approximately the potentialities of such a force in the life of men and women. If the world is ever to give birth to true companionship and oneness, not marriage, but love will be the parent.

779

900116011

The Emma Goldman Papers

Marriage and Love / Emma Goldman. – [1st. ed.] – New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. – 18 p. ; 23 × 16 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the United States Library of Congress. Institutional Location: Radical Pamphlet Collection, Rare Book and Special Collections Division.

THE ONLY ANARCHIST MONTHLY
IN AMERICA

MOTHER
EARTH

¶ A revolutionary literary magazine devoted to Anarchist thought in sociology, economics, education, and life.

¶ Articles by leading Anarchists and radical thinkers.—International Notes giving a summary of the revolutionary activities in various countries.—Reviews of modern books and the drama.

TEN CENTS A COPY
ONE DOLLAR A YEAR

EMMA GOLDMAN - - Publisher
ALEXANDER BERKMAN - Editor

210 EAST THIRTEENTH STREET

NEW YORK

Bound Volumes 1906-1911, Two Dollars per Volume

780

900116011

The Emma Goldman Papers

Marriage and Love / Emma Goldman. – [1st. ed.] – New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. – 18 p. ; 23 × 16 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the United States Library of Congress. Institutional Location: Radical Pamphlet Collection, Rare Book and Special Collections Division.

MOTHER EARTH SERIES

Patriotism	Emma Goldman	5c.
What I Believe	Emma Goldman	5c.
Psychology of Political Violence	Emma Goldman	10c.
Anarchism: What It Really Stands For.	Emma Goldman	10c.
Marriage and Love	Emma Goldman	10c.
Anarchy Versus Socialism	William C. Owen	5c.
What Is Worth While?	Adeline Champney	5c.
The Right to Disbelieve	Edwin Kuh	5c.
Anarchism and American Traditions	Voltairine de Cleyre	5c.
The Dominant Idea	Voltairine de Cleyre	5c.
Anarchism and Malthus	C. L. James	5c.
The Modern School	Francisco Ferrer	5c.

781

900116011

The Emma Goldman Papers

Marriage and Love / Emma Goldman. — [1st. ed.] — New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. — 18 p. ; 23 × 16 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the United States Library of Congress. Institutional Location: Radical Pamphlet Collection, Rare Book and Special Collections Division.

NOW READY!

Anarchism and Other Essays

EMMA GOLDMAN'S BOOK

A SERIES of essays comprising a thorough critique of existing social institutions and conditions, and giving a comprehensive view of the author's opinions on matters educational, sexual, economic, political, and social.

CONTENTS

1. Anarchism: What It Really Stands For.
2. Minorities versus Majorities.
3. The Psychology of Political Violence.
4. Prisons: A Social Crime and Failure.
5. Patriotism: A Menace to Liberty.
6. Francisco Ferrer and The Modern School.
7. The Hypocrisy of Puritanism.
8. The Traffic in Women.
9. Woman Suffrage.
10. The Tragedy of Woman's Emancipation.
11. Marriage and Love.
12. The Modern Drama: A Powerful Disseminator of Radical Thought.

A BIOGRAPHIC SKETCH of Emma Goldman's interesting career, with splendid portrait, is included in the book.

Orders are to be sent, with cash, to

MOTHER EARTH, 210 E. 13th St., New York, N. Y.

Price, $1.00. By Mail, $1.10

830420007

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Psychology of Political Violence / Emma Goldman. – New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. – 18 p. ; 18 × 25 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the University of Illinois Library. Institutional Location: Baskette, Sherwood Anderson, Sutton Collections., Rare Book Room.

AUTOBIOGRAPHY

OF

ALEXANDER BERKMAN

A Unique Contribution to Socio-Psychological Literature

THE AUTOBIOGRAPHY REPRESENTS THREE PHASES:

I) The Revolutionary Awakening and its Toll—The Attentat

II) The Allegheny Penitentiary: Fourteen Years in Purgatory

III) The Resurrection and After

Price One Dollar Fifty

Send Advance Subscriptions to

MOTHER EARTH PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION

210 EAST THIRTEENTH STREET

NEW YORK

THE BOOK IS NEARING COMPLETION AND WILL BE ISSUED IN THE EARLY SPRING

THE Psychology

OF Political Violence

BY

EMMA GOLDMAN

Price Ten Cents

[redacted]

MO[illegible] ART[illegible] BLISHING ASSOCIATION

[illegible]AST [illegible] STREE[illegible] NEW YORK

783

8304200007

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Psychology of Political Violence / Emma Goldman. – New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. – 18 p. , 18 × 25 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the University of Illinois Library. Institution of Location: Baskette, Sherwood Anderson, Sutton Collections., Rare Book Room

NOW READY!

Anarchism and Other Essays

EMMA GOLDMAN'S BOOK

A SERIES of essays comprising a thorough critique of existing social institutions and conditions, giving a comprehensive view of the author's philosophy on matters educational, sexual, economic, political, and social

CONTENTS

1. Anarchism: What It Really Stands For.
2. Minorities versus Majorities.
3. The Psychology of Political Violence.
4. Prisons: A Social Crime and Failure.
5. Patriotism: A Menace to Liberty.
6. Francisco Ferrer and The Modern School.
7. The Hypocrisy of Puritanism.
8. The Traffic in Women.
9. Woman Suffrage.
10. The Tragedy of Woman's Emancipation.
11. Marriage and Love.
12. The Modern Drama: A Powerful Dissemination of Radical Thought.

A BIOGRAPHIC SKETCH of Emma Goldman's career, with splendid portrait, is included in the book.

Orders are to be sent, with cash, to

MOTHER EARTH, 210 E. 13th St., New York, N. Y.

Price, $1.00. By Mail, $1.10

THE

Psychology

OF

Political Violence

BY

EMMA GOLDMAN

Price Ten Cents

MOTHER EARTH PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION

210 EAST 13th STREET, NEW YORK

1911

784

830420007

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Psychology of Political Violence / Emma Goldman. – New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. – 18 p. ; 18 × 25 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any fonn must be obtained from the University of Illinois Library. Institutional Location: Baskette, Sherwood Anderson, Sutton Collections., Rare Book Room.

THE PSYCHOLOGY OF POLITICAL VIOLENCE

TO ANALYZE the psychology of political violence is not only extremely difficult, but also very dangerous. If such acts are treated with understanding, one is immediately accused of eulogizing them. If, on the other hand, human sympathy is expressed for the Attentäter,* one risks being considered a possible accomplice. Yet it is only intelligence and sympathy that can bring us closer to the source of human suffering, and teach us the ultimate way out of it.

The primitive man, ignorant of natural forces, dreaded their approach, hiding from the perils they threatened. As man learned to understand Nature's phenomena, he realized that though these may destroy life and cause great loss, they also bring relief. To the earnest student it must be apparent that the accumulated forces in our social and economic life, culminating in a political act of violence, are similar to the terrors of the atmosphere, manifested in storm and lightning.

* A revolutionist committing an act of political violence.

785

830420007

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Psychology of Political Violence / Emma Goldman. — New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. — 18 p. ; 18 × 25 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the University of Illinois Library. Institutional Location: Baskette, Sherwood Anderson, Sutton Collections., Rare Book Room.

To thoroughly appreciate the truth of this view, one must feel intensely the indignity of our social wrongs; one's very being must throb with the pain, the sorrow, the despair millions of people are daily made to endure. Indeed, unless we have become a part of humanity, we cannot even faintly understand the just indignation that accumulates in a human soul, the burning, surging passion that makes the storm inevitable.

The ignorant mass looks upon the man who makes a violent protest against our social and economic iniquities as upon a wild beast, a cruel, heartless monster, whose joy it is to destroy life and bathe in blood; or at best, as upon an irresponsible lunatic. Yet nothing is further from the truth. As a matter of fact, those who have studied the character and personality of these men, or who have come in close contact with them, are agreed that it is their supersensitiveness to the wrong and injustice surrounding them which compels them to pay the toll of our social crimes. The most noted writers and poets, discussing the psychology of political offenders, have paid them the highest tribute. Could anyone assume that these men had advised violence, or even approved of the acts?* Certainly not. Theirs was the attitude of the social student, of the man who knows that beyond every violent act there is a vital cause.

Björnstjerne Björnson, in the second part of Beyond Human Power, emphasizes the fact that it is among the Anarchists that we must look for the modern martyrs who pay for their faith with their blood, and who welcome death with a smile, because they believe, as truly as Christ did, that their martyrdom will redeem humanity.

François Coppée, the French novelist, thus expresses himself regarding the psychology of the Attentäter:

"The reading of the details of Vaillant's execution left me in a thoughtful mood. I imagined him expanding his chest under the ropes, marching with firm step, stiffening his will, concentrating all his energy, and, with eyes fixed upon the knife, hurling finally at society his cry of malediction. And, in spite of me, another spectacle rose suddenly before my mind. I saw a group of men and women pressing against each other in the middle of the oblong arena of the circus, under the gaze of thousands of eyes, while from all the steps of the immense amphitheater went up the terrible cry, Ad leones! and, below, the opening cages of the wild beasts.

I did not believe the execution would take place. In the first place, no victim had been struck with death, and it had long been the custom not to punish an abortive crime with the last degree of severity. Then, this crime, however terrible in intention, was disinterested, born of an abstract idea. The man's past, his abandoned childhood, his life of hardship, pleaded also in his favor. In the independent press generous voices were raised in his behalf, very loud and eloquent. 'A purely literary current of opinion' some have said, with no little scorn. It is, on the contrary, an honor to the men of art and thought to have expressed once more their disgust at the scaffold."

786

830420007

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Psychology of Political Violence / Emma Goldman.— New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911.— 18 p. ; 18 × 25 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the University of Illinois Library. Institutional Location: Baskette, Sherwood Anderson, Sutton Collections., Rare Book Room.

Again Zola, in Germinal and Paris, describes the tenderness and kindness, the deep sympathy with human suffering, of these men who close the chapter of their lives with a violent outbreak against our system.

Last, but not least, the man who probably better than anyone else understands the psychology of the Attentäter is M. Hamon, the author of the brilliant work, Une Psychologie du Militaire Professionel, who has arrived at these suggestive conclusions:

"The positive method confirmed by the rational method enables us to establish an ideal type of Anarchist, whose mentality is the aggregate of common psychic characteristics. Every Anarchist partakes sufficiently of this ideal type to make it possible to differentiate him from other men. The typical Anarchist, then, may be defined as follows: A man perceptible by the spirit of revolt under one or more of its forms,—opposition, investigation, criticism, innovation,—endowed with a strong love of liberty, egoistic or individualistic, and possessed of great curiosity, a keen desire to know. These traits are supplemented by an ardent love of others, a highly developed moral sensitiveness, a profound sentiment of justice, and imbued with missionary zeal."

To the above characteristics, says Alvin F. Sanborn, must be added these sterling qualities: a rare love of animals, surpassing sweetness in all the ordinary relations of life, exceptional sobriety of demeanor, frugality and regularity, austerity, even, of living, and courage beyond compare.*

* Poris and the Social Revolution.

"There is a truism that the man in the street seems always to forget, when he is abusing the Anarchists, or whatever party happens to be his bête noire for the moment, as the cause of some outrage just perpetrated. This indisputable fact is that homicidal outrages have, from time immemorial, been the reply of goaded and desperate classes, and goaded and desperate individuals, to wrongs from their fellow-men, which they felt to be intolerable. Such acts are the violent recoil from violence, whether aggressive or repressive; they are the last desperate struggle of outraged and exasperated human nature for breathing space and life. And their cause lies not in any special conviction, but in the depths of that human nature itself. The whole course of history, political and social, is strewn with evidence of this fact. To go no further, take the three most notorious examples of political parties goaded into violence during the last fifty years: the Mazzinians in Italy, the Fenians in Ireland, and the Terrorists in Russia. Were these people Anarchists? No. Did they all three even hold the same political opinions? No. The Mazzinians were Republicans, the Fenians political separatists, the Russians Social Democrats or Constitutionalists. But all were driven by desperate circumstances into this terrible form of revolt. And when we turn from parties to individuals who have acted in like månner, we stand appalled by the number of human beings goaded and driven by sheer desperation into conduct obviously violently opposed to their social instincts.

Now that Anarchism has become a living force in society, such deeds have been sometimes committed

787

830420007

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Psychology of Political Violence / Emma Goldman.— New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911.— 18 p. ; 18 × 25 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the University of Illinois Library. Institutional Location: Baskette, Sherwood Anderson, Sutton Collections., Rare Book Room.

by Anarchists, as well as by others. For no new faith, even the most essentially peaceable and humane the mind of man has yet accepted, but at its first coming has brought upon earth not peace, but a sword; not because of anything violent or anti-social in the doctrine itself; simply because of the ferment any new and creative idea excites in men's minds, whether they accept or reject it. And a conception of Anarchism, which, on one hand, threatens every vested interest, and, on the other, holds out a vision of a free and noble life to be won by a struggle against existing wrongs, is certain to rouse the fiercest opposition, and bring the whole repressive force of ancient evil into violent contact with the tumultuous outburst of a new hope.

Under miserable conditions of life, any vision of the possibility of better things makes the present misery more intolerable, and spurs those who suffer to the most energetic struggles to improve their lot, and if these struggles only immediately result in sharper misery, the outcome is sheer desperation. In our present society, for instance, an exploited wage worker, who catches a glimpse of what work and life might and ought to be, finds the toilsome routine and the squalor of his existence almost intolerable; and even when he has the resolution and courage to continue steadily working his best, and waiting until new ideas have so permeated society as to pave the way for better times, the mere fact that he has such ideas and tries to spread them, brings him into difficulties with his employers. How many thousands of Socialists, and above all Anarchists, have lost work and even the chance of work, solely on the ground of their opinions. It is only the specially gifted craftsman, who, if he be a zealous propagandist, can hope to retain permanent employment. And what happens to a man with his brain working actively with a ferment of new ideas, with a vision before his eyes of a new hope dawning for toiling and agonizing men, with the knowledge that his suffering and that of his fellows in misery is not caused by the cruelty of fate, but by the injustice of other human beings,—what happens to such a man when he sees those dear to him starving, when he himself is starved? Some natures in such a plight, and those by no means the least social or the least sensitive, will become violent, and will even feel that their violence is social and not anti-social, that in striking when and how they can, they are striking, not for themselves, but for human nature, outraged and despoiled in their persons and in those of their fellow sufferers. And are we, who ourselves are not in this horrible predicament, to stand by and coldly condemn these piteous victims of the Furies and Fates? Are we to decry as miscreants these human beings who act with heroic self-devotion, sacrificing their lives in protest, where less social and less energetic natures would lie down and grovel in abject submission to injustice and wrong? Are we to join the ignorant and brutal outcry which stigmatizes such men as monsters of wickedness, gratuitously running amuck in a harmonious and innocently peaceful society? No! We hate murder with a hatred that may seem absurdly exaggerated to apologists for Matabele massacres, to callous acquiescers in hangings

788

830420007

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Psychology of Political Violence / Emma Goldman. — New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. — 18 p. ; 18 × 25 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the University of Illinois Library. Institutional Location: Baskette, Sherwood Anderson, Sutton Collections., Rare Book Room.

and bombardments, but we decline in such cases of homicide, or attempted homicide, as those of which we are treating, to be guilty of the cruel injustice of flinging the whole responsibility of the deed upon the immediate perpetrator. The guilt of these homicides lies upon every man and woman who, intentionally or by cold indifference, helps to keep up social conditions that drive human beings to despair. The man who flings his whole life into the attempt, at the cost of his own life, to protest against the wrongs of his fellow-men, is a saint compared to the active and passive upholders of cruelty and injustice, even if his protest destroy other lives besides his own. Let him who is without sin in society cast the first stone at such an one."*

That every act of political violence should nowadays be attributed to Anarchists is not at all surprising. Yet it is a fact known to almost everyone familiar with the Anarchist movement that a great number of acts, for which Anarchists had to suffer, either originated with the capitalist press or were instigated, if not directly perpetrated, by the police.

For a number of years acts of violence had been committed in Spain, for which the Anarchists were held responsible, hounded like wild beasts, and thrown into prison. Later it was disclosed that the perpetrators of these acts were not Anarchists, but members of the police department. The scandal became so widespread that the conservative Spanish papers demanded the apprehension and punishment of the gang-leader, Juan Rull, who was subsequently condemned to death and executed. The sensational evidence, brought to light during the trial, forced Police Inspector Momento to exonerate completely the Anarchists from any connection with the acts committed during a long period. This resulted in the dismissal of a number of police officials, among them Inspector Tressols, who, in revenge, disclosed the fact that behind the gang of police bomb-throwers were others of far higher position, who provided them with funds and protected them.

*From a pamphlet issued by the Freedom Group of London.

This is one of the many striking examples of how Anarchist conspiracies are manufactured.

That the American police can perjure themselves with the same ease, that they are just as merciless, just as brutal and cunning as their European colleagues, has been proved on more than one occasion. We need only recall the tragedy of the eleventh of November, 1887, known as the Haymarket Riot.

No one who is at all familiar with the case can possibly doubt that the Anarchists, judicially murdered in Chicago, died as victims of a lying, bloodthirsty press and of a cruel police conspiracy. Has not Judge Gary himself said: "Not because you have caused the Haymarket bomb, but because you are Anarchists, you are on trial."

The impartial and thorough analysis by Governor Altgeld of that blotch on the American escutcheon verified the brutal frankness of Judge Gary. It was this that induced Altgeld to pardon the three Anarchists, thereby earning the lasting esteem of every liberty-loving man and woman in the world.

789

830420007

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Psychology of Political Violence / Emma Goldman. – New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. – 18 p. ; 18 × 25 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the University of Illinois Library. Institutional Location: Baskette, Sherwood Anderson, Sutton Collections., Rare Book Room.

When we approach the tragedy of September sixth, 1901, we are confronted by one of the most striking examples of how little social theories are responsible for an act of political violence. "Leon Czolgosz, an Anarchist, incited to commit the act by Emma Goldman." To be sure, has she not incited violence even before her birth, and will she not continue to do so beyond death? Everything is possible with the Anarchists.

Today, even, nine years after the tragedy, after it was proved a hundred times that Emma Goldman had nothing to do with the event, that no evidence whatsoever exists to indicate that Czolgosz ever called himself an Anarchist, we are confronted with the same lie, fabricated by the police and perpetuated by the press. No living soul ever heard Czolgosz make that statement, nor is there a single written word to prove that the boy ever breathed the accusation. Nothing but ignorance and insane hysteria, which have never yet been able to solve the simplest problem of cause and effect.

The President of a free Republic killed! What else can be the cause, except that the Attentäter must have been insane, or that he was incited to the act.

A free Republic! How a myth will maintain itself, how it will continue to deceive, to dupe, and blind even the comparatively intelligent to its monstrous absurdities. A free Republic! And yet within a little over thirty years a small band of parasites have successfully robbed the American people, and trampled upon the fundamental principles, laid down by the fathers of this country, guaranteeing to every man, woman, and child "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness." For thirty years they have been increasing their wealth and power at the expense of the vast mass of workers, thereby enlarging the army of the unemployed, the hungry, homeless, and friendless portion of humanity, who are tramping the country from east to west, from north to south, in a vain search for work. For many years the home has been left to the care of the little ones, while the parents are exhausting their life and strength for a mere pittance. For thirty years the sturdy sons of America have been sacrificed on the battlefield of industrial war, and the daughters outraged in corrupt factory surroundings. For long and weary years this process of undermining the nation's health, vigor, and pride, without much protest from the disinherited and oppressed, has been going on. Maddened by success and victory, the money powers of this "free land of ours" became more and more audacious in their heartless, cruel efforts to compete with the rotten and decayed European tyrannies for supremacy of power.

In vain did a lying press repudiate Leon Czolgosz as a foreigner. The boy was a product of our own free American soil, that lulled him to sleep with,

> My country, 'tis of thee,
> Sweet land of liberty.

Who can tell how many times this American child had gloried in the celebration of the Fourth of July, or of Decoration Day, when he faithfully honored the Nation's dead? Who knows but that he, too, was willing to "fight for his country and die for her

790

830420007

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Psychology of Political Violence / Emma Goldman. — New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. — 18 p. ; 18 × 25 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the University of Illinois Library. Institutional Location: Baskette, Sherwood Anderson, Sutton Collections., Rare Book Room.

liberty," until it dawned upon him that those he belonged to have no country, because they have been robbed of all that they have produced; until he realized that the liberty and independence of his youthful dreams was but a farce. Poor Leon Czolgosz, your crime consisted of too sensitive a social consciousness. Unlike your idealless and brainless American brothers, your ideals soared above the belly and the bank account. No wonder you impressed the one human being among all the infuriated mob at your trial—a newspaper woman—as a visionary, totally oblivious to your surroundings. Your large, dreamy eyes must have beheld a new and glorious dawn.

Now, to a recent instance of police-manufactured Anarchist plots. In that bloodstained city, Chicago, the life of Chief of Police Shippy was attempted by a young man named Averbuch. Immediately the cry was sent to the four corners of the world that Averbuch was an Anarchist, and that the Anarchists were responsible for the act. Everyone who was at all known to entertain Anarchist ideas was closely watched, a number of people arrested, the library of an Anarchist group confiscated, and all meetings made impossible. It goes without saying that, as on various previous occasions, I must needs be held responsible for the act. Evidently the American police credit me with occult powers. I did not know Averbuch; in fact, had never before heard his name, and the only way I could have possibly "conspired" with him was in my astral body. But, then, the police are not concerned with logic or justice. What they seek is a target, to mask their absolute ignorance of the cause, of the psychology of a political act. Was Averbuch an Anarchist? There is no positive proof of it. He had been but three months in the country, did not know the language, and, as far as I could ascertain, was quite unknown to the Anarchists of Chicago.

What led to his act? Averbuch, like most young Russian immigrants, undoubtedly believed in the mythical liberty of America. He received his first baptism by the policeman's club during the brutal dispersement of the unemployed parade. He further experienced American equality and opportunity in the vain efforts to find an economic master. In short, a three months' sojourn in the glorious land brought him face to face with the fact that the disinherited are in the same position the world over. In his native land he probably learned that necessity knows no law—there was no difference between a Russian and an American policeman.

The question to the intelligent social student is not whether the acts of Czolgosz or Averbuch were practical, any more than whether the thunderstorm is practical. The thing that will inevitably impress itself on the thinking and feeling man and woman is that the sight of brutal clubbing of innocent victims in a so-called free Republic, and the degrading, soul-destroying economic struggle, furnish the spark that kindles the dynamic force in the overwrought, outraged souls of men like Czolgosz or Averbuch. No amount of persecution, of hounding, of repression, can stay this social phenomenon.

But, it is often asked, have not acknowledged Anarchists committed acts of violence? Certainly they

791

830420007

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Psychology of Political Violence / Emma Goldman. – New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. – 18 p. ; 18 × 25 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the University of Illinois Library. Institutional Location: Baskette, Sherwood Anderson, Sutton Collections., Rare Book Room.

have, always however ready to shoulder the responsibility. My contention is that they were impelled, not by the teachings of Anarchism, but by the tremendous pressure of conditions, making life unbearable to their sensitive natures. Obviously, Anarchism, or any other social theory, making man a conscious social unit, will act as a leaven for rebellion. This is not a mere assertion, but a fact verified by all experience. A close examination of the circumstances bearing upon this question will further clarify my position.

Let us consider some of the most important Anarchist acts within the last two decades. Strange as it may seem, one of the most significant deeds of political violence occurred here in America, in connection with the Homestead strike of 1892.

During that memorable time the Carnegie Steel Company organized a conspiracy to crush the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers. Henry Clay Frick, then Chairman of the Company, was intrusted with that democratic task. He lost no time in carrying out the policy of breaking the Union, the policy which he had so successfully practiced during his reign of terror in the coke regions. Secretly, and while peace negotiations were being purposely prolonged, Frick supervised the military preparations, the fortification of the Homestead Steel Works, the erection of a high board fence, capped with barbed wire and provided with loopholes for sharpshooters. And then, in the dead of night, he attempted to smuggle his army of hired Pinkerton thugs into Homestead, which act precipitated the terrible carnage of the steel workers. Not content with the death of eleven victims, killed in the Pinkerton skirmish, Henry Clay Frick, good Christian and free American, straightway began the hounding down of the helpless wives and orphans, by ordering them out of the wretched Company houses.

The whole country was aroused over these inhuman outrages. Hundreds of voices were raised in protest, calling on Frick to desist, not to go too far. Yes, hundreds of people protested,—as one objects to annoying flies. Only one there was who actively responded to the outrage at Homestead,—Alexander Berkman. Yes, he was an Anarchist. He gloried in that fact, because it was the only force that made the discord between his spiritual longing and the world without at all bearable. Yet not Anarchism, as such, but the brutal slaughter of the eleven steel workers was the urge for Alexander Berkman's act, his attempt on the life of Henry Clay Frick.

The record of European acts of political violence affords numerous and striking instances of the influence of environment upon sensitive human beings.

The court speech of Vaillant, who, in 1894, exploded a bomb in the Paris Chamber of Deputies, strikes the true keynote of the psychology of such acts:

"Gentlemen, in a few minutes you are to deal your blow, but in receiving your verdict I shall have at least the satisfaction of having wounded the existing society, that cursed society in which one may see a single man spending, uselessly, enough to feed thousands of families; an infamous society which permits a few individuals to monopolize all the social wealth,

792

830420007

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Psychology of Political Violence / Emma Goldman. – New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. – 18 p. ; 18 × 25 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the University of Illinois Library. Institutional Location: Baskette, Sherwood Anderson, Sutton Collections., Rare Book Room.

while there are hundreds of thousands of unfortunates who have not even the bread that is not refused to dogs, and while entire families are committing suicide for want of the necessities of life.

Ah, gentlemen, if the governing classes could go down among the unfortunates! But no, they prefer to remain deaf to their appeals. It seems that a fatality impels them, like the royalty of the eighteenth century, toward the precipice which will engulf them; for woe be to those who remain deaf to the cries of the starving, woe to those who, believing themselves of superior essence, assume the right to exploit those beneath them! There comes a time when the people no longer reason; they rise like a hurricane, and pass away like a torrent. Then we see bleeding heads impaled on pikes.

Among the exploited, gentlemen, there are two classes of individuals: Those of one class, not realizing what they are and what they might be, take life as it comes, believe that they are born to be slaves, and content themselves with the little that is given them in exchange for their labor. But there are others, on the contrary, who think, who study, and who, looking about them, discover social iniquities. Is it their fault if they see clearly and suffer at seeing others suffer? Then they throw themselves into the struggle, and make themselves the bearers of the popular claims.

Gentlemen, I am one of these last. Wherever I have gone, I have seen unfortunates bent beneath the yoke of capital. Everywhere I have seen the same wounds causing tears of blood to flow, even in the remoter parts of the inhabited districts of South America, where I had the right to believe that he who was weary of the pains of civilization might rest in the shade of the palm trees and there study nature. Well, there even, more than elsewhere, I have seen capital come, like a vampire, to suck the last drop of blood of the unfortunate pariahs.

Then I came back to France, where it was reserved for me to see my family suffer atrociously. This was the last drop in the cup of my sorrow. Tired of leading this life of suffering and cowardice, I carried this bomb to those who are primarily responsible for social sufferings.

I am reproached with the wounds of those who were hit by my projectiles. Permit me to point out in passing that, if the bourgeois had not massacred or caused massacres during the Revolution, it is probable that they would still be under the yoke of the nobility. On the other hand, figure up the dead and wounded of Tonquin, Madagascar, Dahomey, adding thereto the thousands, yes, millions of unfortunates who die in the factories, the mines, and wherever the grinding power of capital is felt. Add also those who die of hunger, and all this with the assent of our Deputies. Besides all this, of how little weight are the reproaches now brought against me!

It is true that one does not efface the other; but, after all, are we not acting on the defensive when we respond to the blows which we receive from above? I know very well that I shall be told that I ought to have confined myself to speech for the vindication of the people's claims. But what

793

830420007

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Psychology of Political Violence / Emma Goldman.— New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911.— 18 p. ; 18 × 25 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the University of Illinois Library. Institutional Location: Baskette, Sherwood Anderson, Sutton Collections., Rare Book Room.

can you expect! It takes a loud voice to make the deaf hear. Too long have they answered our voices by imprisonment, the rope, rifle volleys. Make no mistake; the explosion of my bomb is not only the cry of the rebel Vaillant, but the cry of an entire class which vindicates its rights, and which will soon add acts to words. For, be sure of it, in vain will they pass laws. The ideas of the thinkers will not halt; just as, in the last century, all the governmental forces could not prevent the Diderots and the Voltaires from spreading emancipating ideas among the people, so all the existing governmental forces will not prevent the Reclus, the Darwins, the Spencers, the Ibsens, the Mirabeaus, from spreading the ideas of justice and liberty which will annihilate the prejudices that hold the mass in ignorance. And these ideas, welcomed by the unfortunate, will flower in acts of revolt as they have done in me, until the day when the disappearance of authority shall permit all men to organize freely according to their choice, when we shall each be able to enjoy the product of his labor, and when those moral maladies called prejudices shall vanish, permitting human beings to live in harmony, having no other desire than to study the sciences and love their fellows.

I conclude, gentlemen, by saying that a society in which one sees such social inequalities as we see all about us, in which we see every day suicides caused by poverty, prostitution flaring at every street corner, —a society whose principal monuments are barracks and prisons,—such a society must be transformed as soon as possible, on pain of being eliminated, and that speedily, from the human race. Hail to him who labors, by no matter what means, for this transformation! It is this idea that has guided me in my duel with authority, but as in this duel I have only wounded my adversary, it is now its turn to strike me.

Now, gentlemen, to me it matters little what penalty you may inflict, for, looking at this assembly with the eyes of reason, I can not help smiling to see you, atoms lost in matter, and reasoning only because you possess a prolongation of the spinal marrow, assume the right to judge one of your fellows.

Ah! gentlemen, how little a thing is your assembly and your verdict in the history of humanity; and human history, in its turn, is likewise a very little thing in the whirlwind which bears it through immensity, and which is destined to disappear, or at least to be transformed, in order to begin again the same history and the same facts, a veritably perpetual play of cosmic forces renewing and transferring themselves forever."

Will anyone say that Vaillant was an ignorant, vicious man, or a lunatic? Was not his mind singularly clear, analytic? No wonder that the best intellectual forces of France spoke in his behalf, and signed the petition to President Carnot, asking him to commute Vaillant's death sentence.

Carnot would listen to no entreaty; he insisted on more than a pound of flesh, he wanted Vaillant's life, and then—the inevitable happened: President

794

830420007

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Psychology of Political Violence / Emma Goldman.— New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911.— 18 p. ; 18 × 25 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the University of Illinois Library. Institutional Location: Baskette, Sherwood Anderson, Sutton Collections., Rare Book Room.

Carnot was killed. On the handle of the stiletto used by the Attentäter was engraved, significantly,

VAILLANT!

Santa Caserio was an Anarchist. He could have gotten away, saved himself; but he remained, he stood the consequences.

His reasons for the act are set forth in so simple, dignified, and childlike manner that one is reminded of the touching tribute paid Caserio by his teacher of the little village school, Ada Negri, the Italian poet, who spoke of him as a sweet, tender plant, of too fine and sensitive texture to stand the cruel strain of the world.

"Gentlemen of the Jury! I do not propose to make a defense, but only an explanation of my deed.

Since my early youth I began to learn that present society is badly organized, so badly that every day many wretched men commit suicide, leaving women and children in the most terrible distress. Workers, by thousands, seek for work and cannot find it. Poor families beg for food and shiver with cold; they suffer the greatest misery; the little ones ask their miserable mothers for food, and the mothers cannot give them, because they have nothing. The few things which the home contained have already been sold or pawned. All they can do is beg alms; often they are arrested as vagabonds.

I went away from my native place because I was frequently moved to tears at seeing little girls of eight or ten years obliged to work fifteen hours a day for the paltry pay of twenty centimes. Young women of eighteen or twenty also work fifteen hours daily, for a mockery of remuneration. And that happens not only to my fellow countrymen, but to all the workers, who sweat the whole day long for a crust of bread, while their labor produces wealth in abundance. The workers are obliged to live under the most wretched conditions, and their food consists of a little bread, a few spoonfuls of rice, and water; so by the time they are thirty or forty years old, they are exhausted, and go to die in the hospitals. Besides, in consequence of bad food and overwork, these unhappy creatures are, by hundreds, devoured by pellagra—a disease that, in my country, attacks, as the physicians say, those who are badly fed and lead a life of toil and privation.

I have observed that there are a great many people who are hungry, and many children who suffer, whilst bread and clothes abound in the towns. I saw many and large shops full of clothing and woolen stuffs, and I also saw warehouses full of wheat and Indian corn, suitable for those who are in want. And, on the other hand, I saw thousands of people who do not work, who produce nothing and live on the labor of others; who spend every day thousands of francs for their amusement; who debauch the daughters of the workers; who own dwellings of forty or fifty rooms; twenty or thirty horses, many servants; in a word, all the pleasures of life.

I believed in God; but when I saw so great an inequality between men, I acknowledged that it was not God who created man, but man who created God. And I discovered that those who want their

795

830420007

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Psychology of Political Violence / Emma Goldman. — New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. — 18 p. ; 18 × 25 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the University of Illinois Library. Institutional Location: Baskette, Sherwood Anderson, Sutton Collections., Rare Book Room.

property to be respected, have an interest in preaching the existence of paradise and hell, and in keeping the people in ignorance.

Not long ago, Vaillant threw a bomb in the Chamber of Deputies, to protest against the present system of society. He killed no one, only wounded some persons; yet bourgeois justice sentenced him to death. And not satisfied with the condemnation of the guilty man, they began to pursue the Anarchists, and arrest not only those who had known Vaillant, but even those who had merely been present at any Anarchist lecture.

The government did not think of their wives and children. It did not consider that the men kept in prison were not the only ones who suffered, and that their little ones cried for bread. Bourgeois justice did not trouble itself about these innocent ones, who do not yet know what society is. It is no fault of theirs that their fathers are in prison; they only want to eat.

The government went on searching private houses, opening private letters, forbidding lectures and meetings, and practicing the most infamous oppressions against us. Even now, hundreds of Anarchists are arrested for having written an article in a newspaper, or for having expressed an opinion in public.

Gentlemen of the Jury, you are representatives of bourgeois society. If you want my head, take it; but do not believe that in so doing you will stop the Anarchist propaganda. Take care, for men reap what they have sown."

During a religious procession in 1896, at Barcelona, a bomb was thrown. Immediately three hundred men and women were arrested. Some were Anarchists, but the majority were trade unionists and Socialists. They were thrown into that terrible bastille, Montjuich, and subjected to most horrible tortures. After a number had been killed, or had gone insane, their cases were taken up by the liberal press of Europe, resulting in the release of a few survivors.

The man primarily responsible for this revival of the Inquisition was Canovas del Castillo, Prime Minister of Spain. It was he who ordered the torturing of the victims, their flesh burned, their bones crushed, their tongues cut out. Practiced in the art of brutality during his régime in Cuba, Canovas remained absolutely deaf to the appeals and protests of the awakened civilized conscience.

In 1897 Canovas del Castillo was shot to death by a young Italian, Angiolillo. The latter was an editor in his native land, and his bold utterances soon attracted the attention of the authorities. Persecution began, and Angiolillo fled from Italy to Spain, thence to France and Belgium, finally settling in England. While there he found employment as a compositor, and immediately became the friend of all his colleagues. One of the latter thus described Angiolillo: "His appearance suggested the journalist, rather than the disciple of Guttenberg. His delicate hands, moreover, betrayed the fact that he had not grown up at the 'case.' With his handsome frank face, his soft dark hair, his alert expression, he looked the very type of the vivacious Southerner. Angiolillo spoke Italian, Spanish, and French, but no English;

796

830420007

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Psychology of Political Violence / Emma Goldman.— New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911.— 18 p. ; 18 × 25 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the University of Illinois Library. Institutional Location: Baskette, Sherwood Anderson, Sutton Collections., Rare Book Room.

the little French I knew was not sufficient to carry on a prolonged conversation. However, Angiolillo soon began to acquire the English idiom; he learned rapidly, playfully, and it was not long until he became very popular with his fellow compositors. His distinguished and yet modest manner, and his consideration towards his colleagues, won him the hearts of all the boys."

Angiolillo soon became familiar with the detailed accounts in the press. He read of the great wave of human sympathy with the helpless victims at Montjuich. On Trafalgar Square he saw with his own eyes the results of those atrocities, when the few Spaniards, who escaped Castillo's clutches, came to seek asylum in England. There, at the great meeting, these men opened their shirts and showed the horrible scars of burned flesh. Angiolillo saw, and the effect surpassed a thousand theories; the impetus was beyond words, beyond arguments, beyond himself even.

Señor Antonio Canovas del Castillo, Prime Minister of Spain, sojourned at Santa Agueda. As usual in such cases, all strangers were kept away from his exalted presence. One exception was made, however, in the case of a distinguished looking, elegantly dressed Italian—the representative, it was understood, of an important journal. The distinguished gentleman was—Angiolillo.

Señor Canovas, about to leave his house, stepped on the veranda. Suddenly Angiolillo confronted him. A shot rang out, and Canovas was a corpse.

The wife of the Prime Minister rushed upon the scene. "Murderer! Murderer!" she cried, pointing at Angiolillo. The latter bowed. "Pardon, Madame," he said, "I respect you as a lady, but I regret that you were the wife of that man."

Calmly Angiolillo faced death. Death in its most terrible form—for the man whose soul was as a child's.

He was garrotted. His body lay, sun-kissed, till the day hid in twilight. And the people came, and pointing the finger of terror and fear, they said: "There—the criminal—the cruel murderer."

How stupid, how cruel is ignorance! It misunderstands always, condemns always.

A remarkable parallel to the case of Angiolillo is to be found in the act of Gaetano Bresci, whose Attentat upon King Umberto made an American city famous.

Bresci came to this country, this land of opportunity, where one has but to try to meet with golden success. Yes, he too would try to succeed. He would work hard and faithfully. Work had no terrors for him, if it would only help him to independence, manhood, self-respect.

Thus full of hope and enthusiasm he settled in Paterson, New Jersey, and there found a lucrative job at six dollars per week in one of the weaving mills of the town. Six whole dollars per week was, no doubt, a fortune for Italy, but not enough to breathe on in the new country. He loved his little home. He was a good husband and devoted father to his bambina, Bianca, whom he adored. He worked and worked for a number of years. He actually managed to save one hundred dollars out of his six dollars per week.

797

830420007

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Psychology of Political Violence / Emma Goldman. — New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. — 18 p. ; 18 × 25 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the University of Illinois Library. Institutional Location: Baskette, Sherwood Anderson, Sutton Collections., Rare Book Room.

Bresci had an ideal. Foolish, I know, for a workingman to have an ideal—the Anarchist paper published in Paterson, La Questione Sociale.

Every week, though tired from work, he would help to set up the paper. Until late hours he would assist, and when the little pioneer had exhausted all resources and his comrades were in despair, Bresci brought cheer and hope, one hundred dollars, the entire savings of years. That would keep the paper afloat.

In his native land people were starving. The crops had been poor, and the peasants saw themselves face to face with famine. They appealed to their good King Umberto; he would help. And he did. The wives of the peasants who had gone to the palace of the King, held up in mute silence their emaciated infants. Surely that would move him. And then the soldiers fired and killed those poor fools.

Bresci, at work in the weaving mill at Paterson, read of the horrible massacre. His mental eye beheld the defenceless women and innocent infants of his native land, slaughtered right before the good King. His soul recoiled in horror. At night he heard the groans of the wounded. Some may have been his comrades, his own flesh. Why, why these foul murders?

The little meeting of the Italian Anarchist group in Paterson ended almost in a fight. Bresci had demanded his hundred dollars. His comrades begged, implored him to give them a respite. The paper would go down if they were to return him his loan. But Bresci insisted on its return.

How cruel and stupid is ignorance. Bresci got the money, but lost the good will, the confidence of his comrades. They would have nothing more to do with one whose greed was greater than his ideals.

On the twenty-ninth of July, 1900, King Umberto was shot at Monzo. The young Italian weaver of Paterson, Gaetano Bresci, had taken the life of the good King.

Paterson was placed under police surveillance, everyone known as an Anarchist hounded and persecuted, and the act of Bresci ascribed to the teachings of Anarchism. As if the teachings of Anarchism in its extremest form could equal the force of those slain women and infants, who had pilgrimed to the King for aid. As if any spoken word, ever so eloquent, could burn into a human soul with such white heat as the life blood trickling drop by drop from those dying forms. The ordinary man is rarely moved either by word or deed; and those whose social kinship is the greatest living force need no appeal to respond—even as does steel to the magnet—to the wrongs and horrors of society.

If a social theory is a strong factor inducing acts of political violence, how are we to account for the recent violent outbreaks in India, where Anarchism has hardly been born. More than any other old philosophy, Hindu teachings have exalted passive resistance, the drifting of life, the Nirvana, as the highest spiritual ideal. Yet the social unrest in India is daily growing, and has only recently resulted in an act of political violence, the killing of Sir Curzon Wyllie by the Hindu, Madar Sol Dhingra.

798

830420007

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Psychology of Political Violence / Emma Goldman.— New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911.— 18 p. ; 18 × 25 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the University of Illinois Library. Institutional Location: Baskette, Sherwood Anderson, Sutton Collections., Rare Book Room.

If such a phenomenon can occur in a country socially and individually permeated for centuries with the spirit of passivity, can one question the tremendous, revolutionizing effect on human character exerted by great social iniquities? Can one doubt the logic, the justice of these words:

"Repression, tyranny, and indiscriminate punishment of innocent men have been the watchwords of the government of the alien domination in India ever since we began the commercial boycott of English goods. The tiger qualities of the British are much in evidence now in India. They think that by the strength of the sword they will keep down India! It is this arrogance that has brought about the bomb, and the more they tyrannize over a helpless and unarmed people, the more terrorism will grow. We may deprecate terrorism as outlandish and foreign to our culture, but it is inevitable as long as this tyranny continues, for it is not the terrorists that are to be blamed, but the tyrants who are responsible for it. It is the only resource for a helpless and unarmed people when brought to the verge of despair. It is never criminal on their part. The crime lies with the tyrant." *

Even conservative scientists are beginning to realize that heredity is not the sole factor moulding human character. Climate, food, occupation; nay, color, light, and sound must be considered in the study of human psychology.

If that be true, how much more correct is the contention that great social abuses will and must influence different minds and temperaments in a different way. And how utterly fallacious the stereotyped notion that the teachings of Anarchism, or certain exponents of these teachings, are responsible for the acts of political violence.

* The Free Hindusthan.

Anarchism, more than any other social theory, values human life above things. All Anarchists agree with Tolstoy in this fundamental truth: if the production of any commodity necessitates the sacrifice of human life, society should do without that commodity, but it cannot do without that life. That, however, nowise indicates that Anarchism teaches submission. How can it, when it knows that all suffering, all misery, all ills, result from the evil of submission?

Has not some American ancestor said, many years ago, that resistance to tyranny is obedience to God? And he was not an Anarchist even. I would say that resistance to tyranny is man's highest ideal. So long as tyranny exists, in whatever form, man's deepest aspiration must resist it as inevitably as man must breathe.

Compared with the wholesale violence of capital and government, political acts of violence are but a drop in the ocean. That so few resist is the strongest proof how terribe must be the conflict between their souls and unbearable social iniquities.

High strung, like a violin string, they weep and moan for life, so relentless, so cruel, so terribly inhuman. In a desperate moment the string breaks.

799

830420007

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Psychology of Political Violence / Emma Goldman. – New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911. – 18 p. ; 18 × 25 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the University of Illinois Library. Institutional Location: Baskette, Sherwood Anderson, Sutton Collections., Rare Book Room.

Untuned ears hear nothing but discord. But those who feel the agonized cry understand its harmony; they hear in it the fulfillment of the most compelling moment of human nature.

Such is the psychology of political violence.

THE ONLY ANARCHIST MONTHLY IN AMERICA

MOTHER EARTH

¶ A revolutionary literary magazine devoted to Anarchist thought in sociology, economics, education, and life.

¶ Articles by leading Anarchists and radical thinkers.—International Notes giving a summary of the revolutionary activities in various countries.—Reviews of modern books and the drama.

TEN CENTS A COPY
ONE DOLLAR A YEAR

EMMA GOLDMAN - - Publisher
ALEXANDER BERKMAN - Editor

210 EAST THIRTEENTH STREET
NEW YORK

Bound Volumes 1906-1911, Two Dollars per Volume

800

840514091

The Emma Goldman Papers

On the Trail / Emma Goldman. – pp. 352-354 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 5, no. 11 (Jan. 1911).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

The Certificates can be procured from the Treasurer, Mr. Bolton Hall, 29 Broadway, New York City.

In putting our Prospectus before the public, we appeal to all thinking men and women. We appeal especially to radicals,—to Socialists, Anarchists, Single Taxers, Free Thinkers. We believe that all agitators, all radicals of whatsoever belief, can and should combine in affording to children the opportunity to develop into free men and women, capable of facing life in all its problems and complications and of giving bountifully of their efforts to the world. At least, those who work with us can be sure that we are not like the Public Schools, flattening, shaping, and hammering children into mere screws to hold firm the capitalistic machine.

Give us your help and let us start a FERRER DAY SCHOOL in September, 1911.

THE FRANCISCO FERRER ASSOCIATION, BAYARD BOYESEN,
Secretary.

* * *

ON THE TRAIL

AGAIN on the Trail. Whatever obstacles and hardships it may offer, it is never monotonous. Each day brings new experiences, which after all are the only spice of life.

Racing with Twentieth Century madness during the last two months in New York, in order to bring out "Anarchism and Other Essays" and to assist in the inauguration of the Ferrer Center, I kept busy every minute, leaving New York directly from the Francisco Ferrer meeting of January 5th, without even an opportunity to take leave from my dear coworkers.

Our annual tour opened in Rochester the following night. The meeting left much to be desired in point of numbers, but the audience was good and serious-minded, which was evident both from the intense interest in the lecture on Tolstoy and the eagerness for literature, of which a considerable amount was sold. The most valuable result, however, was the unusually splendid reports in the papers of January 7th. The struggle of twenty years to clear away the misconceptions regarding Anarchism has not been in vain if it has helped to gain respectful, serious treatment at the hands of some newspapers. Buffalo is still held in awe by the McKinley spook, which is specially invoked by the Catholic Church and the press whenever I come to the city. Certainly, there are few towns in the State of New York so absolutely reactionary as Buffalo, which accounts for the lack of interest in radical ideas of any sort.

The meetings were poor, but the liberality and generosity of a small group of friends helped to make the chill less penetrating. Especially do I cherish the visit with Dr. Gustav and Jean Pohl, as one of the few joys of my propaganda life. Their fine hospitality, their splendid simplicity and freedom from all cant quite made me forget the poverty of numbers at our meetings.

But the Trail is before me, and I must not halt. We go from here to:

Pittsburg, Pa., January 11—14.
Cleveland, O., January 15, English lectures afternoon and evening in Pythian Temple.
Cleveland, O., January 16, Jewish meeting.
Columbus, O., January 17 and 18, meetings at Red Lion Hall, 335½ S. High St.
Cincinnati, O., January 20, 21 and 22, at Odd Fellows Temple; January 22 two lectures, afternoon and evening.
Indianapolis, Ind., January 23, 24 and 25, to begin a free speech campaign.

The poice still think that a tour without interference would lack charm. Therefore His August Highness, the Chief of Police of Indianapolis, decided not to let me speak.

January 27th I shall be at Dayton, O., my first visit in that city. January 29th at Toledo; two meetings, afternoon and evening, at Meredith Hall. January 31st, February 1st, 2d, 3d and 5th in Detroit. Three meetings will take place at Stabbler Hall, 257 Beaubien St. February 3d (in German) and February 5th, afternoon and evening (English) at Freeman's Hall, 292 Hastings St. February 4th we will again face the wrath of the students at Ann Arbor. Our friends in Detroit, who value propaganda above personal grievances, will aid the meetings materially by the distribution of cards. The latter can be called for at the printer's, Mr. Dreier, 149 Monroe

801

840514091

The Emma Goldman Papers

On the Trail / Emma Goldman. – pp. 352-354 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 5, no. 11 (Jan. 1911).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

Ave. February 6th and 7th we mean to visit Jackson, February 8th and 9th Grand Rapids, both new cities on our list. February 12th—19th we will be in Chicago, holding meetings at Hodcarriers Hall, Harrison and Halsted Sts. February 12th, lectures in the afternoon and evening; also February 13th, 14th, 15th and 16th. February 17th I will speak in Jewish, February 19th two meetings in English, halls to be announced later. Our Chicago friends desirous of making my lectures known, can get cards by mail or in person from Dr. J. Greer, 52 Dearborn St.

The Trail is long, and urgently calling. There is hard and earnest work to do for those who are willing. I shall be happy to co-operate with friends everywhere.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

P. S.—Mail will reach me in all cities per General Delivery.

* * *

JUSTICE IN JAPAN

By HIPPOLYTE HAVEL.

THE fate of our Japanese comrades is still in the balance. The Supreme Court of Tokio is at present deliberating upon the case and a decision is to be expected soon. Will our friends fall victims to reaction? Will they suffer a sacrificial death?

It will not happen if we energetically continue the protests which have already assumed an international character. The government of Japan at first thought to ignore this protest movement; it had no conception to what dimensions it would grow. The appeal to international solidarity has found a mighty echo. The revolutionists of all countries instinctively felt that it was their cause which was being decided at Tokio, and that the condemnation of Denjiro Kotoku and comrades was a direct challenge to modern thought.

Will the government of Japan consider the international protest? It has at last been forced to break its silence and to issue an official statement, published by the leading papers of America and Europe. The government of the Mikado has evidently played what it thought a trump card by characterizing the condemned as Communist Anarchists. But it has merely succeeded in proving itself barbaric and brutal; nay, more—very stupid. We have never asserted the contrary regarding our condemned comrades; indeed, in our original appeal we clearly stated that Denjiro Kotoku was an Anarchist, known in Japan as the leader of the "Kropotkinists." Every intelligent man who is conversant with modern social thought is aware of the fact that Kropotkin is not a monarchist. We are proud to count among our comrades a writer like Kotoku, a physician like Dr. Oishi, an artist like Takeda, or a translator like Miss Sugano-Kano. The twenty-six condemned represent the intellectual element of Japan, among them being workingmen, farmers, artists, physicians, and three Budhist priests.

The whole statement of the Japanese government is quite one-sided. It has purposely omitted to mention the fact that not only Anarchists, but also over two hundred Socialists are languishing in Japanese prisons since June of last year. The French Socialist daily, L'Humanité, publishes a letter received by Jean Longuet from S. Katayama, the leading Socialist of Japan, in which he relates the series of terrible persecutions and oppressions to which the Japanese Socialists are being subjected. Katayama implores Longuet to lift up his voice against the brutal treatment of the Japanese Socialists, and to assist them in their terrible struggle. He begs him to give it the utmost publicity all over the world.

In the face of these facts the spokesmen of the Japanese government, Messrs. Masujiro Honda and Tsunego Baba, of the Oriental Information Bureau, declare in the Oriental Economic Review (Vol. I, Number 3) that "a political persecution is impossible in Japan." But other prominent Japanese quite disagree with Messrs. Honda and Baba. Count Hayashi, former Minister of Foreign Affairs, is one of seven scholars and publicists who contribute a group of strong articles to the Taiyo on Socialism. Count Hayashi goes so far as to assert that the policy of the Minister of Education, aimed at the suppression of Socialist publications, is narrow-minded,

802

840514094

The Emma Goldman Papers

On the Trail / Emma Goldman. – pp. 386-391 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 5, no. 12 (Feb. 1911).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

by circulating his works, and let us point him out to the present and the future generations as a resplendent mirror in which to see themselves.

* * *

ON THE TRAIL

WHOEVER fashioned Pittsburg must have used hell as his model. But there is one consolation for the inhabitants of that woe-begotten place. If they survive they will have grown immune to anything hell may have in store for them.

Black and hideous as the clouds of smoke that gush forth from the thousand-mouthed American melting pot, Pittsburg is indeed a place where things are done that neither Son of God nor son of man may look upon. The entry into this modern Inferno is never a particular joy; but on the morning of our arrival everything seemed grayer and dirtier than usual, owing to the penetrating drizzling rain which lasted during our entire stay.

My faithful friend, Mrs. Nunia Seldes, had spared no efforts to advertize the meetings by the distribution of our cards. But the bad weather and the announcement of a debate between a Socialist and myself had an unsatisfactory effect upon our meetings.

The Jewish lecture, which usually attracts a large audience, was partly frustrated by petty jealousies of certain Pittsburgers who pose as Socialists. In their eagerness to rob "the devil of his prey," they invited a speaker for the same night and circulated the rumor that I would not lecture.

The most significant part of the debate, was the cowardice of the Labor Temple people who had rented their hall to the Allegheny Local only to back out at the last minute. Instead of insisting upon their right to the hall, our Socialistic friends acquiesced, as behooves true revolutionists. Fortunately, another hall was secured and was filled to the limit of its capacity on the evening of the debate.

My opponent, Mr. Ruppel, was recommended as "the best informed member of the Local," which merely goes to prove that among the blind the one-eyed is king. I fear Mr. Ruppel has read too much for his mental digestion. But he is young yet, so may the kind fairies forgive him his sins, even if he knows not what conclusions to draw from the books he has read. In one thing, however, Mr. Ruppel is quite like his elders in the Socialist party; namely in the repetition of the hackneyed ghost stories about Anarchists and Anarchism. "Bakunin organized riots and manufactured bombs. * * * Louise Michel advocated the necessity of throwing the workers in front of the guns. * * * Kropotkin,—well, he is but a dreamer who doesn't count at all. * * * Berkman attempted the life of Frick out of fun, to strengthen plutocracy," and so forth.

In justice to a large number of Mr. Ruppel's comrades, present in the audience, it must be said that they were quite disgusted with Mr. Ruppel. Thus ended the debate with "the best informed member" of the Allegheny Local. Its redeeming feature was the chairman, also young, but very fair-minded and evidently far abler than my opponent in the debate.

I was glad to leave Pittsburg, although it is always hard for me to part with my dear friends, Nunia and George Seldes.

Cleveland is like a faithful friend: it never fails. This time the success was considerably increased through the aid of Fred Schulder, Adeline Champney, John Jacobs, and some of our Jewish comrades. Two large and splendid audiences filled the meetings, affording our champion literature-man a golden opportunity to dispose of his wares.

The crowning effect in Cleveland, though, was the Jewish meeting. Though the latter was arranged by only one comrade, and for a Monday, a large crowd received me with the usual intense Semitic warmth, which always makes the Trail less difficult.

Columbus is one more city where, within the last three years, police interference has been overcome. Four years ago I was gagged in the usual, senseless police manner: the halls were closed, no meetings could take place, and that was the end, except for a friend I had gained in Mr. Linton, a true rebel and fighter, who has repeatedly tried to get me a hearing,—always in vain.

It remained for the energetic Ben Reitman to tame the shrew with the result that for the first time, since

803

840514094

The Emma Goldman Papers

On the Trail / Emma Goldman. — pp. 386-391 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. — Vol. 5, no. 12 (Feb. 1911).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

Albert Parsons' death, the voice of an Anarchist was again heard in Columbus.

The important event in that city, however, was not the free speech victory, nor the large attendance, nor even the fact that forty-one female University students, beside many of their co-eds and Professors, attended. The real event was the marching of nearly a thousand miners from the Convention of the United Mine Workers to our hall, in protest against the stupidity of some of their leaders and of the authorities. The city was crowded with delegates to the Convention, among them being quite a large number of men who had met me years before, during my tour through the mining districts. They were eager to have me speak from the Convention floor.

The proposition was, however, defeated when first introduced by the conservative element. It was again brought up in the afternoon session, and carried. In the evening I received the following letter from the Secretary of the U. M. W.:

DEAR MADAM:

Pursuant to the action of our Convention you are hereby cordially invited to address the delegates of the United Mine Workers of America at 10 o'clock a. m. tomorrow, January 19th, in session at Memorial Hall.

Subsequent to this action of our Convention, notice was served on us by the custodian that before addressing the delegation it will be necessary to get permission from the County Commissioners; otherwise you would not be allowed. I would suggest that you have Mr. Reitman take this matter up with the Commissioners and avoid any complications or unpleasantness which might ensue if you undertook to deliver an address without permission of the Commissioners.

However, I assure you that as far as our Convention is concerned there would be no objection.

Very truly yours,
EDWIN PERRY,
Secretary-Treasurer, U. M. W. of A.

P. S.—Have just been advised by the Custodian that the Commissioners refuse to allow you to speak under any circumstances to-morrow morning at the Memorial Hall.

When our staunch friends were informed of the ruse to prevent my speaking, they decided unanimously to march to the hall which we had secured; but first they would go to Memorial Hall, where the Convention was holding its sessions.

And then the most ingenious thing happened. The custodians of Memorial Hall shut their doors, not only to me, but to all the delegates, which action had a more rousing effect than anything I might have said. Even those who had been opposed to me felt outraged and joined the march to our place.

I was introduced by one of the delegates, E. S. McCullough, himself a most wonderful speaker, and received by the workers with great enthusiasm. But to me the most gratifying aspect was the genuine response of the delegates to the necessity of the General Strike as the only effective weapon at labor's command.

The curse of American unionism is not the indifference of the workers, but the reactionary leadership. O for a Pelloutier, a Pouget, or an Yvetôt in America—those Samsons of the syndicalist movement: the ranks of the workers would soon be cleared from the poisonous elements.

I shall forever cherish the experience with the miners in Columbus as one of the great moments in my public life.

Indianapolis was another red letter town. Police arrogance and brutal intimidation was turned into victory for free speech and Anarchism. After one Chief, two years ago, had set the precedent, the new Tsar of the Indianapolis police department hoped to sail in smooth waters. The ukase went forth that Emma Goldman must not speak. Thereupon a free speech campaign was started by the irrepressible Ben with the aid of a few splendid spirits in Indianapolis, the main workers being Thomas F. Snyder, Katherine Snyder, and Evangeline Bessenberg, the latter doing most of the correspondence to arouse people. And they were aroused, in quarters least expected. Thus Mr. Meredith Nicholson, the author, William Hapgood, and a great many others came to the rescue of free speech. Rev. Weaks, of the Unitarian Church, made a strong plea, but subsequently proved that he was not ready to substantiate words by deeds.

The Dictator of Indianapolis was forced to withdraw the order, but the policeman's soul was not at rest, and Chief Hyland got after the hall keepers. "No, he does not order them not to rent their halls, but he'd rather they would not." What hall keeper would not oblige

804

840514094

The Emma Goldman Papers

On the Trail / Emma Goldman. – pp. 386-391 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 5, no. 12 (Feb. 1911).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

the Chief? At any rate, not a hall for any consideration. We had almost given up in despair, when the great miracle happened. An orthodox preacher, Rev. Nelson of the Pentecost Tabernacle, offered his church, and the first meeting was held. I cannot say that it was a pleasant experience, but that was not the fault of Mr. Nelson. Although he gave a thousand explanations as to why Emma Goldman could speak in his church, it was nevertheless very brave of him to open his pulpit to such a heathen; much braver than the liberal Christian gentlemen who feared to face adverse public comment. But as Ibsen so aptly said, "the Liberals are the worst foes of free men."

The Pentecost Tabernacle meeting had its good effect. Rev. Adams, of the Universalist Church, followed suit. The place was packed with a most interesting audience, such as Indianapolis has probably rarely gathered in one place. Mr. Adams impressed me as by far the superior of the two Reverends. Simple, bold, and very human, he showed splendid taste in leaving God to his throne. Instead, he spoke in a very eloquent manner on the pressing issues amongst men, and especially upon the very vital issue of free speech and the growing tendency of the police to establish a reign of terror, which he repudiated with all the strength of his being. His remarks, as well as the atmosphere of the occasion, were refreshing indeed.

The Trail to Indianapolis seemed hard and uphill, but it has helped us to the broad open road that holds out the promise of future conquests.

I cannot close this chapter of my Odyssey without mentioning a few minor, but by no means unimportant, experiences. A good meeting in Elyria, O., arranged by Comrade Reinbach; a small meeting in Dayton, not quite successfully managed by our well-intentioned friend, Ernest Marks; compartively small but satisfactory gatherings at Cincinnati, and two meetings in our old stand-by, Toledo. Thus closed three eventful weeks on the Trail.

Now comes Detroit, and then Chicago, with lectures February 12th-20th, at Hod Carriers' Hall. Thence to St. Louis, for the week beginning February 26th. In the early part of March we are due in the Socialist strongholds: Madison, Wis., and Minneapolis, Minn.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

* * *

DISCUSSION AT MEETINGS

By BOLTON HALL.

IN reply to Voltairine de Cleyre's question as to whether questions and discussion after our meetings are a blessing or not, I may say that my own rather extensive experience convinces me that a meeting of fifty with the "free forum" is better worth while than a meeting of two hundred and fifty without it.

The questions are often pointless and the discussions irrelevant or silly: but the audience, or at least the best part of the audience, the part that we really aim at, sizes them up pretty well.

Questions are asked in bad faith and "discussion" used to ring in ill-balanced views; but those arouse antagonism to the speakers and to their twaddle that would otherwise be directed against us. The propagandist questioner is not often convinced, but if the speaker asks frequently, "Is that answer satisfactory?" it brings out good feeling and real questions, and those who listen to questions they would have liked to ask but for timidity or reticence are often converted.

Beecher said that "the real meeting is around the stove after the benediction," and the open forum is our best substitute. Certainly it is the most interesting part of most meetings. Many a meeting gets newspaper notice through the buffoon speaker from the audience, whom we regarded as a nuisance, which would otherwise be passed over in silence.

The papers which seize upon such speeches for misrepresentation would probably find something else to misrepresent were it not for the buffoon. Anyhow, almost anything is better than silence.

805

840514096

The Emma Goldman Papers

Our Sixth Birthday / Emma Goldman and Alexander Berkman. — pp. 2-4 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 6, no. 1 (March 1911).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

OUR SIXTH BIRTHDAY

WITH this issue MOTHER EARTH begins her sixth journey through life.

Five years! What an infinitesimal drop in the ocean of eternity; yet how terribly long a time when travelled on a hard, thorny road. With a world of ignorance and prejudice to battle against, a thousand obstacles to overcome, hosts of enemies to face, and with but few friends, MOTHER EARTH has withstood, for five years, the storm and stress of the firing line, and has wavered not.

More than once was she stabbed by the enemy, and hurt by the thrusts of the well-meaning; more than once was her body bruised, her flesh torn by conflicting forces; yet never has she fallen by the wayside, nor her ardor been subdued.

Now that MOTHER EARTH begins her sixth journey, it behooves us to halt a moment and to ponder the question: Was the struggle and pain worth while? has the magazine justified the expectations that gave it life?

Not long ago a friend wrote to us: Why don't you give up? Why waste your time and energy in a lost cause? MOTHER EARTH has not reached the people you had hoped to reach, nor does the magazine satisfy even some of our own comrades, because—as they say—more reading matter than is contained in MOTHER EARTH can be had in the ordinary magazines, for ten cents.

Viewed from the dominant standpoint of success, our friend is right. In that sense MOTHER EARTH has failed. Our circulation is still far from the fifty-thousand mark; our subscribers, too, do not represent the multitudes. Nor is our financial rating such that we need feel any anxiety lest a Wall Street panic break our bank. Again, MOTHER EARTH has lost in averdupois; it began as a heavyweight of sixty-four pages, but is now reduced to the lightweight class.

But since when do Anarchists measure success by quantity? Are numbers, weight, or following the true criterion of success? Should not the latter consist, first of all, in adherence to the chosen purpose, no matter at what cost? Indeed, the only success of any value has been the failure of men and women who struggled, suffered, and bled for an ideal, rather than give up, or be silenced.

MOTHER EARTH is such a success. Without a party to back her, with little or no support from her own ranks, and consistently refusing to be gagged by a profitable advertising department, she has bravely weathered the strain of five years, stormy enough to have broken many a strong spirit. She has created an atmosphere for herself which few Anarchist publications in America have been able to equal. She has gathered around her a coterie of men and women who are among the best in the country, and, finally, she has acted as a leaven of thought in quarters least expected by those who are ready with advice, yet unable to help.

Many an editor of our better-class dailies has found in MOTHER EARTH a source of information and inspiration, and though they would be loth to admit it, it is nevertheless true that they have used our magazine for copy on numerous occasions. That, among other things, may help to account for the decided change in the tone of the press towards Anarchism and Anarchists.

But for want of space many instances could be cited, showing how well and widely MOTHER EARTH is read by journalists and writers, and what is thought of her merits by those who value quality above quantity.

As to the original raison d'être of MOTHER EARTH, it was, first of all, to create a medium for the free expression of our ideas, a medium bold, defiant, and unafraid. That she has proved to the fullest, for neither friend nor foe has been able to gag her.

Secondly, MOTHER EARTH was to serve as a gathering point, as it were, for those, who, struggling to free themselves from the absurdities of the Old, had not yet reached firm footing. Suspended between heaven and hell, they have found in MOTHER EARTH the anchor of life.

Thirdly, to infuse new blood into Anarchism, which —in America—had then been running at low ebb for quite some time.

All these purposes, it may be said impartially, the magazine has served faithfully and well.

We cannot claim for MOTHER EARTH hosts of follow-

806

840514096

The Emma Goldman Papers

Our Sixth Birthday / Emma Goldman and Alexander Berkman. — pp. 2-4 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 6, no. 1 (March 1911).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

ers, but she has made some friends whose steadfast devotion and generosity has accomplished greater results than would have been possible with a large income. Besides, our magazine would have long ere this been self-supporting, were it not for the many other issues drawing upon its resources.

We have created an American Anarchist propaganda literature, which has consumed the largest part of the magazine's income; indeed, it is this, more than anything else, which has been such a drain on our funds.

On the whole, we feel that our fighter has more than justified its existence. True, MOTHER EARTH is far from perfect; but, after all, it is the striving for, rather than the attainment of, perfection which is the essence of all effort, of life itself.

The struggle is ever before us. With increased determination and greater enthusiasm MOTHER EARTH enters upon the sixth year, confident that her friends need no other assurance than that the magazine will continue on the great Open Road, with face ever turned toward the Dawn.

EMMA GOLDMAN,
ALEXANDER BERKMAN.

* * *

OBSERVATIONS AND COMMENTS

TWO intellectuals—American exchange Professors Münsterberg and Smith—recently fell upon each other regarding the question which of them had the better right to be invited to the annual exhibition of naked busts and shoulders at the Berlin court.

Professor Smith claimed priority because the Kaiser had conversed with him thirteen minutes longer than with his learned colleague. Smith asserted that His Majesty even deigned to grin at him once. But Professor Münsterberg angrily retorted that though it was true that the Kaiser had talked with him only a couple of minutes, the royal manner was so gracious as to entirely discount the thirteen minutes of Smith. The matter threatened to cause international complications, when it was finally settled by inviting both sycophants to the court ball.

A couple of country schoolmasters from Darkest Pomerania could not have demeaned themselves worse than these representatives of American science. Of such professional intellectuals Schopenhauer was wont to say, "They don't live for, but off, science." There is another well-known adage which fitly characterizes such worthies: Professors and prostitutes are for sale.

* * *

THE people of the United States are to be blessed by President Taft with an extra session of Congress. Is it for the purpose of "filling the empty market basket," as the phrase runs? Far from it. The special Danai gift has the sole purpose of obscuring, by superficial legal phraseology, the real causes of the empty market basket. Expropriation of the monopolistic lords of land and industry by the dear, victimized patriots is the best and only way to terminate the usury in the necessaries of life. This, it's dead sure, will never be decided by Congress.

* * *

THERE are strong indications that Washington is mobilizing troops against the revolution in Mexico, to protect the property interests of the Morgans, Gugenheims, Hearsts, et al. A beautiful prospect for the American soldier, to be maimed or killed for the sake of protecting the dividends of the multi-millionaires, and then be persuaded that he had helped to enhance the honor and glory of his country.

It is high time that anti-militarist arguments begin to be studied in America.

* * *

THE greatest triumph of the reigning morality manifestly consists in trials for breach of promise. It seems hardly possible for our merchant order of buying and selling to go much further than counting romance, affection, kisses, and embraces in dollars and cents.

All poets of love songs, dead or living, should be indicted and brought before the American courts. It would be easy to prove against them that they have aroused, a thousandfold, sweet yearnings, emotions, and tender hopes in female hearts, without giving further satisfaction. Surely these sinners should be punished.

807

840514097

The Emma Goldman Papers

On the Trail / Emma Goldman. — pp. 17-22 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 6, no. 3 (March 1911).

Obtained from the University of Califomia, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

THE PIONEER

To love to live—I choose this as my life,
The world is full of chatter, cheap and vain,
And painted sights and foolish paven lanes where people moil at pleasure,
Getting none, returning yet again for naught and less than naught—
And o'er-plussed emptiness of heart and soul
Which makes a mock of life and turns it sour.
All this I pass; not prudishly, as one who fears to mix with men,
Nor scorning human things,
Nor in a cloister mood, seeking aloofness and some mystic spell—
But rather in a thirst for redder wine,
A crave for passions that are ne'er outworn,
A lust for one good hack at old Convention statued in the Square.
To those who love the groove, the patterned task, the vested rights,
I say, adieu.
Give me the thing to do that's not been done,
That helps my kind, and yields my spirit wide egress,
The ax upon the beech to mark my way,
A golden sunset from behind the rugged hills,
And, then, should the gods allow,
A white arm round my neck entwined
And on my lips the kiss of Her who understood and shared.

—Selected.

ON THE TRAIL

THE Trail of Life is like a beautiful woman, full of caprice and contradictions. Now it carries you to the sublime heights of expectation, now it hurls you to the very depths of despair, according to momentary whim. Yet like the heartless beauty, the Trail stands in all its radiance, ever luring one to new exploits.

Since we started on this journey the oscillations between hope and despair have repeatedly made us want to give up; but who can resist the Trail? Good or bad, success or failure—the tempteress calls, and poor mortals must follow.

DETROIT proved too weak for the large dose we had prepared for it. Six English meetings were more than the city could stand, its energies being sapped up by the Lady of Rome. Detroit is strongly Catholic; how can one expect to penetrate her tightly sealed mental channels. Yet there were a few faithful, cager for life, who attended every meeting and procured a liberal supply of intellectual ammunition. We realized only too late that four of the six evenings might have been employed to better advantage in nearby towns. We mean to make good on some other occasion.

ANN ARBOR again brought out a large array of students, less vicious than last year, but still very boisterous, especially on the evening of the lecture on Tolstoy. The sage of Yasnaya Poliana knew the emptiness of what passes for education to-day. His serenity would therefore not have been disturbed by the Ann Arbor demonstration of "learning." Not being quite so passive as our great Russian, it required much effort to keep sane in Bedlam; nor am I quite sure that I did. But, with lunatic luck, I succeeded in making the students think me the only sane person in the crowd. They toned down considerably at the end, asked a number of good questions, and—what is more—they did not break the chairs, nor raid the literature table, which was a decided improvement on our last year's experience.

The Keystone fraternity, keenly conscious of the shameful outrage on free speech in the City of Brotherly Love, invited us to break bread with them, as a sign of

808

840514097

The Emma Goldman Papers

On the Trail / Emma Goldman. – pp. 17-22 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 6, no. 3 (March 1911).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

sisterly good-will. The wideawake spirit among these Pennsylvania boys has almost made me feel kindlier toward that Clay and Reyburn hunchbacked city, Philadelphia. Our last year's visit has helped to fertilize the soil. Prof. R. M. Wenley announced a course on Anarchism, of which the first lecture has already been delivered before a large audience. I am not conceited enough to assume that I induced the course, but that we have helped to arouse interest and to prepare the students for the "shock," is no doubt true.

GRAND RAPIDS furnished a new experience, doubly pleasant because of the opportunity it offered to meet once more our ex-soldier, William Buwalda. Our readers have probably been wondering what has become of our friend after his release from the tender arms of the government.

William Buwalda has exchanged the iron bands of mental deception for a free and broader outlook upon life, while his soul, dwarfed for fifteen years by the soldier's coat, has since expanded and blossomed out like a flower in the fresh and unrestricted air of mother earth. Our comrade has been left with an old mother to look after, his father having died last year. He often longs to go back to the world and to more vital activity, but with his usual simplicity he said, "What right have I, as a free man, to inflict burdens upon others that I am unwilling to carry?" Therefore he remains to take care of the old lady; yet he has not become rusticated. On the contrary, William Buwalda has used his time well, not merely for extensive reading, but for the absorption and assimilation of our ideals. The old Dutch mother, the kindly hostess moving about in her quaint Dutch surroundings, was like a study of Rembrandt. It made one feel far removed from the mad rush of American life.

Buwalda's efforts for the Grand Rapids meeting proved a great success. It was one of the few splendid affairs of this tour.

CHICAGO, with her thousand sinister memories clutching at one's soul, is anything but an Eldorado. The gloom was increased by miserable weather, truly Chicagoan—wind, rain, and mud. The press, including that yellow sheet, the Daily Socialist, maintained a conspiracy of silence, and most of the preparatory work being done by one comrade, Sam Sivin, a stranger in the city, the prospects, too, looked muddy. Worst of all was the thought of having to go back to Hod Carriers' Hall, a place that would have affected the vocal chords of the trumpets of Jerico. It seemed to make the Chicago visit almost unbearable. But perseverance and lungs carried the day.

Our six English meetings brought out an average of two hundred people, which was very remarkable, considering the obstacles. Brother Reitman, with his usual mesmeric methods, disposed of a phenomenal quantity of literature. The Jewish meetings were, as usual, very large. Last, but not least, was a small but interesting meeting arranged by a group of Lithuanians, whom I addressed on the "Social Importance of the Modern School."

Credit for the hardest work is due chiefly to the indefatigable efforts of Sam Sivin and his friend Bessie; but there were also others who helped most faithfully: Edith Adams, our motherly Dr. "Becky" Yampolsky, our future Medicus Stein, and Comrade Lankis. Dr. J. H. Greer was the guardian angel. He turned his office into an E. G. headquarters, constituted himself ticket and book seller, and acted as knightly host to drive away the spooks, thus helping one to forget the sins of the Jungletown.

My greatest regret regarding Chicago is that I failed to interest our friends in the Kotoku Memorial. There was a lack of speakers; besides, Japan is far away; even Anarchists do not easily overcome distance.

URBANA, the seat of Illinois learning, is like unto the city of the German proverb, where people neither sing nor drink. It is a prohibition town; no wonder the mental lid is down tightly. Only a few students and professors turned out, but they, too, were as dry as Urbana.

The PEORIA meeting had been arranged in one day, in a hall on the outskirts of the city. We were therefore not disappointed in the size of the meeting. Yet while Urbana and Peoria gave small returns in proportion to our efforts, we are glad that we went there. We have driven in the wedge and are sure to meet with greater success next time.

809

840514097

The Emma Goldman Papers

On the Trail / Emma Goldman. — pp. 17-22 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 6, no. 3 (March 1911).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

ST. LOUIS. It seems almost like an idyl to come to the city after the desert of Sahara through which the Trail has led us for nearly two months. But, then, why should not St. Louis prove a rare spot, with Anheuser-Busch and William Marion Reedy as the great attractions. I do not know whether the city could do without Anheuser-Busch, but I am sure it would never be the same without Reedy, who is indeed a fountainhead of wisdom, rare humor, and good fellowship. To realize his importance for the intellectual life of St. Louis, one must have been here and followed his work. Thus with our "Hobo" I must say, "Reedy has put St. Louis on the map." With such a staunch sponsor and with the assistance of other friends, gained through Reedy's efforts, the work in St. Louis proved smooth sailing.

Three meetings at the Odeon Recital Hall were the very best so far, especially the meeting of March 1st, on "Victims of Morality," which brought out the largest American audience we have ever had outside of California. The literature sale represented a regular bargain counter, with Ben Reitman and several assistants strenuously busy supplying the demand.

The venture to arouse the ladies who think they are thinking was less successful. It was an unusual venture, to begin with, and as some of our comrades will no doubt say, apostatic on my part to consent. Two lectures in the most exclusive club hall of St. Louis, the Women's Wednesday Club, which resembles the Sorosis of New York:—a parasitic class of women who do not know what to do with their time. I was not at all in doubt as to the numbers that might come to such an affair. I consented to the proposition by our good friends, quaint little Alice Martin and William Marion Reedy, because of the chance it offered to tell those ladies what I thought of them.

"Tolstoy" and "Justice" were chosen as "fit" subjects for the occasion: themes that contain enough revolutionary material to make the dear auditors anything but comfortable, and with E. G. as the speaker, they certainly "got their money's worth," the price of admission being one dollar. I should not care to make a practice of speaking before the Wednesday Club audiences. Not that I fear to be contaminated. I feel, with Gorki, that ours is a puny age, full of puny people who have not even the vitality to commit great sins. It is the mental apathy of the audience at that place which is so disagreeable, like the sight of dry old bones. I could forgive the rich Americans their money; but their dullness, never. The latter will save me at all times from "breaking" into society. Much rather should I prefer to break into jail. It is a much more interesting pastime. Yet the experience at the Wednesday Club had also its humorous side, and I wouldn't have missed it for anything.

Our dear old Comrade Harry Kelly, who left for the Coast after my Sunday lectures, gave the preparatory work the old revolutionary flavor. Ada Capes, Kapicinell, and other friends made me feel, by their devotion, as in olden days when there were fewer personal quibbles and greater zeal for our cause, so sublime and all-absorbing.

What a tremendous power one great individuality may exert is best proved by the new tone of the St. Louis press, created entirely by Mr. Reedy. Not a single paper has indulged in the old-time sensational methods. The reports have been accurate and the editorials unusually analytical. A complete revolution, one might say, judging from the following editorial in the Times:

> Miss Emma Goldman, who made addresses in St. Louis yesterday, succeeded in voicing her sentiments without shocking any one very much, apparently, and without necessitating any calls for the trouble wagon.
>
> It becomes apparent that Miss Goldman has a good many ideas which are sound, even though she may have others which are shocking enough; and it may be that those who disapprove most of her and her teachings are those who know least about her and what she has to teach.
>
> There are a good many articles in the Goldman creed which might be given serious thought, and nobody would be any the worse for it. When she maintains that education of the stereotyped kind is not the right kind of education, she only affirms what many highly reputable thinkers have pointed out in a gentler fashion.
>
> When she states her belief in the theory that there are no bad boys and girls, she is in line with the convictions of many a highly praised philanthropist. What is Judge Ben Lindsay's creed, except that there are no bad boys and girls?
>
> The trouble with this extraordinary woman is that she is a revolutionist, instead of an evolutionist. She is in a hurry; whereas the wisest men and women know that haste makes waste.
>
> Not one of the points made by Miss Goldman in her speeches

810

840514097

The Emma Goldman Papers

On the Trail / Emma Goldman. – pp. 17-22 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. –Vol. 6, no. 3 (March 1911).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

yesterday but is being put forth in gentler terms by good people everywhere. But others are encouraged when they realize what growth has been recorded in twenty years—in ten years. Miss Goldman is impatient because she cannot see great advancement since yesterday.

Perhaps it is a matter of temperament, rather than of philosophy. Perhaps Miss Goldman is unfortunate only in respect to her temperament.

If our work had accomplished nothing else, this change of sentiment would justify all the hardships and bitterness most of us have and are still passing through. The Trail may have a thousand whims and caprices, but it also has great charms. It is so alluring, one must follow it up to the very end.

I still have two Jewish meetings to address in this city; two lectures in Staunton, Ill., before the miners, to which I look forward with great interest; also a meeting at Belleville, Ill., where our martyred Chicago comrades had fought more than one battle.

While MOTHER EARTH will be in the making, we shall have visited the Socialist citadel, Milwaukee. Will it survive us? Also Madison, Wis., where our last visit aroused so much discussion, especially among the students. March 15, 16 and 17 we will be in St. Paul; March 19-22 in Minneapolis. All information can be obtained through F. Kraemer, 1023 Marshall St., N. E., Minneapolis, Minn. March 24th, Sioux City; March 26th and 27th, Omaha, Neb. After that, Des Moines and Kansas City, for ten days.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

DISCUSSION AT MEETINGS

By VOLTAIRINE DE CLEYRE.

I HAVE read, in the last issue of MOTHER EARTH, Bolton Hall's opinion on the mixed blessing of discussion after meetings with interest, and—disagreement; mixed also.

I agree that a meeting of fifty with a good discussion is better than one of two hundred and fifty with none; but with a bad discussion—nine times in ten it is a bad discussion—meeting of two hundred and fifty and silence is preferable.

For I do not agree that "almost anything is better than silence"; sometimes silence is better than almost anything; particularly the silence of a "buffoon." Nor do I consider newspaper notice such a desirable thing as to be thankful for it at the cost of misrepresentation. If a meeting of fifty people enlightened by a discussion is better than one of two hundred and fifty without it, it is also better than two hundred thousand giving a cursory glance at a misrepresentation.

Also I would like to know what evidence Bolton Hall has that the best part of the audience sizes up the discussion well. It may be true, quite likely it is, but how does he know?

So far as I see, the real substitute for the after-benediction gathering is not the public discussion, but what we in Philadelphia used to dub "the adjourned meeting." That is the time when the timid and the reticent forget their timidity, and say their say. And it is really always far more interesting than the chairmanized discussion. For all that, I still think the evil of shutting off discussion is probably greater than the evil of "hot air."

One comrade has suggested that the lecture committee, expressing itself through the Chairman, reserve the right to have discussion or not; that a good lecture be left for "the gathering around the stove"; but an inadequate lecture, or a poor one, be completed or rectified through a select discussion, such speakers being called upon by the Chairman as he knows are able to make good the deficiency.

The trouble is, this gives too much discretion to the Chairman (though as every one knows who has had ex-

811

840514101

The Emma Goldman Papers

Are Kotoku Protests Justified? / Emma Goldman. – pp. 57-60 ; 19 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 6, no. 1 (March 1911).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

TO THE SUBSCRIBERS TO "THE AMERICAN JOURNAL OF EUGENICS"

MORE than a year has gone by since Moses Harman saw the last number of his much-loved magazine come from the press, and sank to his well-earned rest. That number was dated Jan.-Feb., 1910. In it he said:

"If the readers of Eugenics would know more of the exceptionally courageous and wonderfully persistent battle for free speech in New York and other eastern cities, that has been fought by Emma Goldman and her few steadfast friends, they should send stamps, dimes, or dollars for copies of MOTHER EARTH. The friends of truth and justice everywhere should do what they can to make Miss Goldman's next annual tour a triumphant success."

Now MOTHER EARTH is to fill out the unexpired subscriptions to Eugenics. Those whose subscriptions have expired will receive sample copies of MOTHER EARTH. I am sure that this arrangement would be satisfactory to my father, and I hope it will please his friends. He always said that he expected to continue to publish his message to the world as long as he lived, and though he hoped his magazine might continue after his death, he wanted me to feel perfectly free to make any disposition of it which might seem to me best.

It has been very hard for me to definitely give up the publication of Eugenics. My father's life and work—his publications, Lucifer and Eugenics—have been so closely interwoven with my life ever since my childhood, that it is with a mental and physical wrench that the parting is made. Yet Moses Harman was unique. His work was unique. Neither I nor anyone else could fill his place. But his work lives; he lives in the hearts, the lives of unknown numbers. Not only his children (as is promised to the "righteous") but many, many more "rise up and call him blessed."

But I did not start to write a panegyric of my father. I wanted to make a business statement. It will readily be understood that the addition of the subscription list of Eugenics entails a very heavy extra expense on MOTHER EARTH. I trust that prompt subscriptions will balance this increased expenditure. If any subscribers are dissatisfied with this arrangement, I will endeavor to "square accounts" in some other way, if informed of the fact.

I hope to publish one or more volumes of my father's writings, but cannot say when the work will be done. In the mean time, I hope to keep in touch with his friends and mine. The "latch-string" still hangs out at his old home (1532 Fulton St., Chicago). Volumes of Lucifer, Eugenics, The Right to Be Born Well, Institutional Marriage and other works of Moses Harman may be ordered through MOTHER EARTH.

LILLIAN HARMAN.

⁂ ⁂ ⁂

ARE KOTOKU PROTESTS JUSTIFIED?

New York, Feb. 3, 1911.

MY DEAR MISS GOLDMAN.

I have just received notice of the "Kotoku Protest Conference Defense Committee." It begins: "The judicial murder by the Japanese government of twelve Anarchists and Socialists"—I have seen no evidence that they are anything but what some people here would call Philospohical Anarchists and very little that they are Socialists; it is certainly unfair to them and confusing to others to lump them all as "Anarchists and Socialists." Anarchy and Socialism seem to me (as to Tucker) to be opposite poles of thought, and I think it should be remembered that twelve of them are still in jail awaiting the arbitrary disposal of the Japanese authorities. It appears to me that for Anarchists to meet as such, and protest as such,* and to dub them Anarchists with the meaning Terrorist that is ordinarily, though erroneously, understood by the word "An-

* Mr. Hall is in error. The protest meeting was not held by "Anarchists, as such." The call to organize the Kotoku Protest Conference was issued by Local New York, S. L. P. The participants and speakers at the protest meeting represented all shades of radicalism.—Ed.

812

840514101

The Emma Goldman Papers

Are Kotoku Protests Justified? / Emma Goldman. – pp. 57-60 ; 19 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 6, no. 1 (March 1911).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

archist," is practically to stab them in the back. The threat in this resolution is particularly ill advised.

I have no doubt whatever that the Anarchistic expressions of sympathy, with the threat of violence that is sent out under that name, would only prejudice the Japanese officials against the prisoners, and there is no question that those are reported.

I joined in these protests because I saw clearly that they would be made anyhow by the Anarchists and, if they were to refrain, probably by hardly anybody else; and as my name is known in connection with some conservative matters, I hoped that it might have a palliative effect. If it had been a question, however, of whether the withholding of my name would have tended to stifle the protest under the much misunderstood name of "Anarchist," I should certainly have withheld it—not from any lack of sympathy, but because it seems to me a means ill-adapted to the end that we wish to attain, or at least proposed, namely—to save those persons who under pretext of conspiracy are being punished for the expression of their opinions.

For the same reason I think that the appeal of the Protest Conference will injure those who remain alive, more than any money we can raise will help them.

Yours very truly,
BOLTON HALL.

February 11, 1911.

MY DEAR MR. HALL.

As your letter could not go in the March issue of MOTHER EARTH, and also because I was very busy, I delayed answering yours of the 3rd instant.

To say that I was surprised at the contents of your letter is to express it mildly. I had hoped from you, of all people, that, after knowing me for something like ten years and a great many others who hold the same ideas as I, you would have developed out of the notion that the Anarchists are divided into philosophics and terrorists. But I see that you are still in the thralldom of the superstition so common among a great many people.

Now, as a matter of fact, there is not an Anarchist in the whole world who propagates violence, except that all agree—even such ultra respectables as Mr. Tucker—that we have the right to resist oppression.

The term "Philosophie Anarchist," as Fred Schulder justly said, is merely a cloak for a great many who hate to be considered fools, and yet haven't the courage to admit that they are opposed to present society. It is not used in any other country except America, and was adopted largely for the very reason that Schulder refers to. It is quite true that there are Anarchists, Individualists and Communists, but these terms only differentiate the particular economic arrangements of society under Anarchism. But to class them into philosophie and terrorist Anarchists is, to my mind, very absurd. Surely you cannot accept that classification merely because of the popular notion of it. Would you, because the popular notion were that Single Tax meant taking away the land from the people, accept this meanin? As a free man, you must be interested in what you stand for. Of course you would try to dissuade the public from its misconception. But you would not give yourself another name merely to satisfy public opinion. Would you? I think that the term "Anarchist" is quite broad enough to cover whatever concept we may have of a society based on individual freedom and collective opportunity. If the public does not understand it, it is my business to educate it, but it cannot be my business to give myself another name merely because the public is ignorant.

Now, as to why the Anarchists have combined in an active protest against the terrible murder in Japan. The Japanese who were recently killed proclaimed themselves as Anarchists without any extra qualification to it. As a matter of fact they were known as "Kropotkinists," because they have translated Kropotkin's works. They were and still are bitterly attacked by the Marxian Socialists, just as we are attacked by them in this country. It certainly would have been downright betrayal to the Japanese victims if their only comrades, the Anarchists, had not taken an active part in their behalf. The very fact that they stood quite isolated in Japan is more reason why we here and in Europe should have expressed as loudly as possible our sympathy with them; at least it

813

840514101
The Emma Goldman Papers
Are Kotoku Protests Justified? / Emma Goldman. — pp. 57-60 ; 19 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 6, no. 1 (March 1911).
Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

must have been something inspiring to know that their comrades all over the world were with them.

I should, of course, be very sorry to hurt those who are still alive and in the hands of the Japanese authorities; but I am quite confident that they would not want me to keep silent simply because I could buy their release by denying them. I am quite sure that were I in their place I should utterly repudiate the sympathy and assistance of any set of so-called "liberals," if they gave it to me on the condition that they would deny my Anarchism.

You may lend your name to the protest if you wish, or not—that, of course, is for you to decide. But I cannot believe that you will be like many others who claim to be liberals or radicals; namely, that you would withdraw your name because the people there are Anarchists, or because the Anarchists here have joined their brothers in a protest. If liberalism means anything at all, it means faith in the ideal of liberty, especially in the right of the individual to entertain an ideal of liberty, no matter how little understood by the public at large. At any rate it seems to me that whatever we have accomplished in the past in the way of liberty has been thanks to the staunch and faithful adherence of the pioneers of an idea to their principles.

You know that as well as I, Mr. Hall, and I hope that you will not expect us to betray our principles, or our comrades, because of some petty gain we might accomplish from the conservative element.

This may seem a little harsh to you. I am sure I do not mean to be, especially with you; but, to tell the truth, I am tired of the compromise that seems to be the fundamental effort of every man and woman in this country. I repudiate any such means of gaining recognition for myself, or of buying redress for those whom I call my comrades. I assure you if the people in Japan would have denied their ideas I should have been very grieved, but I would not have claimed them, because then it would have meant going directly against their desires; but so long as they are brave enough to stand up for the truth, why should I, or my comrades here, be expected to join in the popular howl against them?

Yours very truly, EMMA GOLDMAN.

February 13, 1911.

MY DEAR MISS GOLDMAN.

I thought that I had made my letter clear, but yours makes it clearer—that I had not. I have added a few words in the further, though probably futile, effort to make it plain to the careless reader.

You can do whatever you like as to publishing my letter, as revised, and your answer, modified as it will be to accord with the changes in mine.

I have also made some notes on yours. My objection was and is to methods; your letter seems to assume that it is to principles (on which there is no disagreement between us).

Language seems to me to be merely one method of communication and the best language that which best conveys our thought and feeling.

If I could find another name that would avoid the misunderstanding of the words "Single Tax" I would certainly substitute that. In England our movement is called "Taxation of Land Values," or "Ground Rent Taxation."

But as we already have taxation of land values here, though only a little of it, the change would create a new difficulty while removing a part of the old one.

Still we often debate changing.

Yours cordially,
BOLTON HALL.

* * *

I ASK you to think with me that the worst that can happen to us is to endure tamely the evils that we see; that no trouble or turmoil is so bad as that; that the necessary destruction which reconstruction bears with it must be taken calmly; that everywhere—in State, in church, in the household—we must be resolute to endure no tyranny, accept no lie, quail before no fear, although they may come before us disguised as piety, duty or affection, as useful opportunity and good nature, as prudence or kindness.

WILLIAM MORRIS.

814

890308013

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Against a one-sided class-propaganda. In German] Gegen einseitige Klassen-Propaganda / Emma Goldman. – 28 cm. In Der Sozialist [Berlin]. – (March 1, 1911).

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the Zentrales Staatsarchiv (DDR), Merseburg, Germany.

Der Sozialist.

Nr. 5. Berlin, den 1. März 1911.

Gegen einseitige Klassen-Propaganda

wendet sich Emma Goldman in ihrer Zeitschrift »Mother Earth« in treffenden Worten, die auch unsern Lesern bekannt werden sollen. Sie schreibt:

GANZ gewiß ist es richtig, daß unsere Aufgabe ist, unter den Armen, den Unwissenden, den Rohen, den enterbten Männern und Frauen zu wirken. Ich für mein Teil habe mit ihnen und unter ihnen seit einundzwanzig Jahren gewirkt. Ich kenne die sogenannten Massen aus unmittelbarer Berührung mit ihnen in und außerhalb der Werkstatt. Und gerade aus dieser Kenntnis heraus glaube ich nicht, daß wir unsere Wirksamkeit ausschließlich auf diese Kreise zu beschränken haben. Und zwar aus folgenden Gründen:

Die Pioniere jeglichen neuen Gedankens kommen selten aus den Reihen der Arbeiter. Wahrscheinlich, weil die Peitsche ihrer wirtschaftlichen Not ihnen selten Gelegenheit gibt, eine Wahrheit leicht zu fassen. Außerdem ist es eine unbestrittene Tatsache, daß die, die nichts zu verlieren haben als ihre Ketten, sich mit große Hartnäckigkeit an sie klammern.

Die Männer und Frauen, die sich zuerst einer neuen, befreienden Idee anschließen, gehen im allgemeinen aus den sogenannten oberen Gesellschaftsklassen hervor. Rußland, Deutschland, England und selbst Amerika bestätigen diese Behauptung. Die erste Verschwörung gegen den russischen Despoten, der Bund der Dekabristen, die den russischen Adel repräsentierten, entstand in einem eigenen Palaste. Die geistigen Vorkämpfer der revolutionären und anarchistischen Ideen in Deutschland kamen aus den »oberen« Klassen. Die Frauen, die heutzutage in England den Hungerstreik für ihre Ideen auf sich nehmen, stammen ebenfalls nicht aus den Reihen der Arbeiter. Das Entsprechende gilt für fast jedes Land und jede Epoche.

Es liegt mir ganz fern, die Armen, die Unwissenden und Enterbten herabzusetzen. Ohne Frage sind sie die gewaltigste Macht, wenn sie nur aus ihrer Trägheit erweckt werden könnten. Aber ich behaupte, wenn man seine Tätigkeit auf sie beschränken will, so ist das nicht nur ein Fehler, sondern ein Widerspruch gegen den Geist des Anarchismus. Im Gegensatz zu andern sozialen Theorien stützt sich der Anarchismus nicht auf Klassen, sondern auf Menschen. Vielleicht bin ich im Irrtum, aber meine Meinung ist von jeher gewesen, daß der Anarchismus alle freiheitlichen Kräfte zum Kampf gegen die Autorität aufruft.

Daß die Beschränkung auf eine Propaganda lediglich unter den Unterdrückten nicht immer die gewünschten Ergebnisse zeitigt, das wird durch mehr als eine geschichtliche Tatsache bewiesen. Unsere Kameraden in Chicago agitierten nur unter den Arbeitern; sie gaben für Wahrheit freudig ihr Leben für die Unterdrückten. Wo waren die während der furchtbaren achtzehn Monate der Justizkomödie? Sind nicht die Anarchisten von Chicago gerade von der Organisation, die Parsons und Spieß mitgegründet hatten, den Rittern der Arbeit schändlich verraten worden? Und ist nicht der Geist jener Zeit in die Kanäle des Konservatismus geflossen, wie ihn die amerikanische Föderation der Arbeit vertritt?

Johann Most wirkte fünfundzwanzig Jahre lang ausschließlich unter den Arbeitern. Er war ganz gewiß nie auf der Suche nach den »Gebildeten«. In der Tat, je ärmer und erbärmlicher die Zuhörerschaft war, um so prachtvoller war Mosts Beredsamkeit. Wo sind die Ergebnisse seiner Propaganda? Warum war der Mann in den letzten Jahren seiner Tätigkeit so maßlos vereinsamt? Warum kann die »Freiheit« trotz allen verzweifelten Anstrengungen nicht am Leben gehalten werden?

Ich meine, die Antwort ist nicht schwer. Der Grund liegt gerade in der Beschränkung auf eine ausschließlich proletarische Propaganda. Jawohl, das ist nach meiner Ueberzeugung die Ursache, warum wir in der Vergangenheit so wenig vorwärts gekommen sind. Der wirtschaftliche Faktor kommt ohne Frage sehr in Betracht. Er bewirkt es sicherlich, daß viele Radikale in dem Augenblick, wo es ihnen besser geht, ihre Ideale verlieren. Hunderte von Anarchisten, Sozialisten und wütenden Revolutionären, die vor 20 Jahren glühende Kämpfer waren, sind jetzt echte und rechte Philister geworden, viel schlimmere als viele unter den Angehörigen der »oberen« Klassen, an die wir uns wenden sollen. Das sollte jedoch den echten Propagandisten nicht entmutigen, unter den Enterbten zu wirken, nur sollte es ihnen die entscheidende Lehre beibringen, daß geistiger Hunger und geistige Ruhelosigkeit oft die dauerhaftesten Vorwärtsbeweger sind.

Der Anarchismus schließt keinen aus und gibt keinem Brief und Siegel oder Privileg auf Wahrheit und Schönheit. Vor allem ist zu sagen, daß der Anarchismus, wie ich ihn verstehe, es jedem freistellt, für welche Art der Tätigkeit er sich entscheiden will. Die Entscheidung kann jederzeit nur von dem individuellen Urteil, der Erfahrung und den geistigen Neigungen des Einzelnen getroffen werden. In der anarchistischen Bewegung ist für jeden Platz, der ernsthaft am Sturz der autoritären Gewalt, der physischen wie der geistigen, zu arbeiten begehrt

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

815

890221002

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Gracious! We're All Immoral, in Emma's Opinion / Emma Goldman.– p. 22 ; 43 cm. In St. Louis Post-Dispatch. –(March 2, 1911).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

kicked down the hill to the Missouri Pacific station. Phelps made his campaign on the platform that the railroads were discriminating against noncompetitive points and soon after he reached the Legislature he introduced a bill to prohibit the railroads from charging a greater rate between noncompetitive points than between competitive points.

Promised Action in 60 Days.

In his campaign Phelps told an audience at Jasper, a small town in his district, that he would have this bill passed by both houses within 60 days after the session opened.

"If I don't," Phelps told his audience, I will consent to be kicked from the top step of the Capitol down to the railroad station and out of Jefferson City. I will even agree to hire a darky to do the kicking."

Phelps' bill was passed by both houses in 54 days.

"Senators told me they did not think I would look well after I reached the bottom of the hill," Phelps said today, "and decided to pass it without opposition. It was a personal favor to me and I am saved the humiliation of a quick exit from the Capitol."

GRACIOUS! WE'RE ALL IMMORAL, IN EMMA'S OPINION

Women Blush a Bit at Goldman Free Love Lecture, but Manage to Stay Through.

Emma Goldman, in her lecture before a large audience of men and women in Recital Hall at the Odeon, Wednesday night, told her hearers what love is.

Here is her definition:

"Love is the strongest and deepest element in life, the harbinger of hope, of joy, of ecstasy, the defier of all laws, of all conventions, the freest and most powerful molder of human destiny, with power to transform the beggar into a king and the king into a beggar."

Some of Miss Goldman's expressions of her opinion of matrimony and so-called morality were calculated to startle a mixed audience. She took pains to explain this particular lecture, "Victims of Morality," has never been printed, because it would not be permitted to go through the mails.

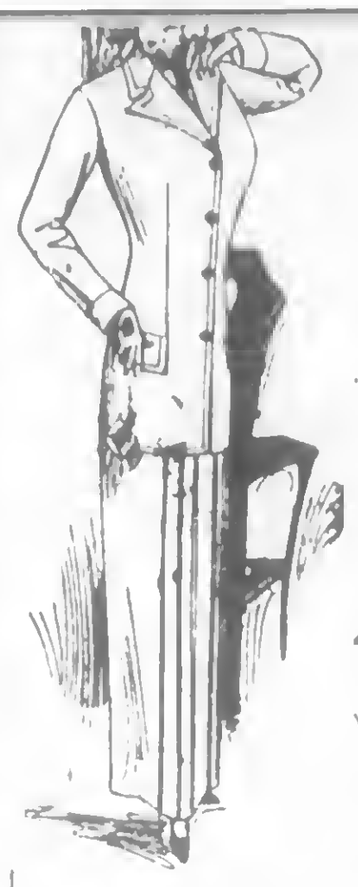
Miss Goldman told her hearers that matriage and love may have nothing in common. Matrimony, she said, is not needed to sanctify love, and it is love alone that can sanctify matrimony. Absolute morality, she said, does not exist, and there are as many moralities as there are privileged interests.

She compared men and women who are forced to remain single to the monks and nuns of old. She said those who have never loved have never lived, and that lack of money on which to marry should be no bar to love.

Some of the women in the audience were visibly embarrassed while the high priestess of anarchy was voicing her well-known free-love theories, but they all stayed.

Miss Goldman will speak Thursday night at the Wednesday Club on Galsworthy's prison drama, "Justice."

Busy Bee Bargain Day Tomorrow. Assorted Caramels and Nougats, 20c lb.



WANTS TO STOP PAYING ALIMONY

Wife Reconciled Will Not Consent Unless She Gets a House.

Carnot S. Williamson filed a motion in Judge Fisher's court Thursday to compel his wife, Mrs. Ida L. Williamson, to dismiss her maintenance suit against him. He wishes also to be released from paying $100 a month alimony.

Williamson's petition says that he and his wife are reconciled and living together at 5159 Fairmount avenue. He says he is supporting her and providing for all her needs, and that he had paid to her $50 alimony, in accordance with a court's order, $30 of which he had to borrow.

He represented to the court that Mrs. Williamson is entirely satisfied, but upon the advice of her lawyer, George S.

Miss 9t. $18 Values Tomorrow, $8.95

These are positively the best Dresses ever offered at the price, they are made from exceptional quality taffetas in plain checked or striped patterns, also messalines, Peau de Cygne, broadcloth, etc.; also an assortment of fine lingeries, every Dress stylishly made and just the thing for spring wear; there are all shades and all sizes; you can't afford to miss this opportunity; at only $5.95

Suits—Regular $22.50 Values, $18.00

Just as a starter for the new season we are going to offer an assortment of beautiful new Spring Suits in several smart styles and in fabric materials such as plain or hard line serges, new Scotch novelties and mannish mixtures; every new spring shade is represented, the Coats are in the newest spring lengths and lined with Peau de Cygne; it will mean an actual saving to you of $7.50 by selecting your Suit now; $22.50 value $15.00

Another Lot of Those Skirts at $2.90, and This Will Positively Be the Last at This Price.

Made up in the best spring styles in all-wool Panamas, plain or basket serges, new mannish mixtures; each Skirt beautifully tailored; 6, 7 and 8-gored effects; we have just a limited quantity of these to offer at this price; you can find any color you desire, and while the lot lasts tomorrow the price will be $2.90

Suspenders

Friday we will sell the well-known Police and Firemen's Suspenders at the unheard of price (Main Floor, Aisle 14) 15c

50c Ladies Petticoats

Made of splendid washable seersucker gingham; we have them in neat blue and white stripes; all lengths; made extra full, with good tailored flounce; special (Second Floor) only 34c

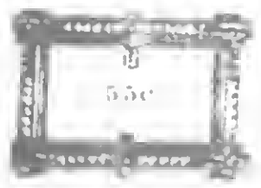
$1.00 Allover Lace

Allover Lace and Embroidery Remnants in lengths from ½ to ¾ yard. These sold from 98c to $2.49 per yard. Friday's sale price (Main Floor, Aisle 5), each 25c

29c Corset Covering

18-in. Embroidered Flouncing and Corset Covering, deep floral and eyelet patterns on Swiss, nainsook and cambric centers, short lengths and slightly soiled; special for Friday's selling, per yard 15c

$1.69 Cotton Marquisette

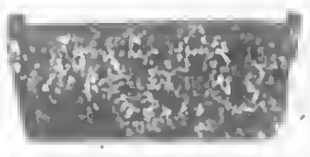


Fine quality of cotton Marquisette, in white, cream, black and pink, full 42-in. wide, the most desirable spring and summer fabric for waists and dresses, regular $1.69 values, per yard 59c

$3 and $3.50 L

Ladies' Sample Shoes, Oxfords and Pumps from the Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co., in patent colt, gunmetal, vici kid and Russia tan, in a great variety of styles; both lace and button. It will be economy to purchase two and three pairs at this price; remember the values are $3 and $3.50; on sale (Main Floor, Shoe Dept.)

$1 Children's Shoes—Children's patent colt and vici kid Shoes, lace and button; black, red or white tops; regular $1.00 values, at ..



Poultry Wire: 200 feet, 4 feet high, per roll 98c

$3.00 Adjustable Pin Curtain Stretcher, nickel pins; 6x12 size. Monday 98c

Clothes Poles, metal ends 9c

Wash Boards, good sizes 12c

Again we will place on sale 5 dozen of our large size Clothes Baskets 75c value 39c

Special, 8:30 to 10:30 a. m.—15 bars Laundry Soap, no phone orders 25c

Parlor Brooms; positively a 35c 4-sew Parlor Broom 21c

$30 Value $9.9

Friday we will continue to sell these high grade Axminster our regular $20, $25 and $30 lines; come in all the latest ental and medallions; these Rugs are slightly mismatched teed first class; only one Rug to a customer; special, while (No mail orders filled at this price.)

Seamless Brussels Rugs; all wool face; come in bright, cheerful patterns; worth and sold for $15.00 and up special, Friday $6.98

$25.00 Wilton Velvet Rugs; 9x12 ft.; rich floral, Oriental and medallion designs, also two-tone red and green; special, Friday $12.50

$35.00 Axminster, Parl 9x12 feet; rich floral, and medallion de signs, guaranteed perfect, special .... $

$40.00 Smith's Seamless Rugs, 9x12 feet, late patterns Oriental, m also two tone red and greens, special Friday $

More Lace Curtain Opportunities

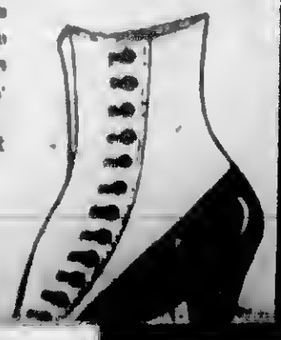
Beautiful Cable Nets, Nottinghams and madras, in a large variety of designs, in both centers and borders; full 60 inches by 3½ yards; in colors of Arabian, ivory, ecru and white; Friday, per pair $1.98

Extra bargains in Rops Portieres of velvet chenille, for single doors; long and short 98c

Mission designs in Rops and Banded Portieres, for single or double doorways; red and green or combination; wonderful bargains $1.49

Large assortment of Framed Pictures; less window) ..... 10c Up

Solid Metal Photo Frames, while they last 10c



85c Linoleum, 4 Yards Wide 39c

This Linoleum is extra heavy quality and is special for Friday only, per yard

Fruit of the Loom, 6½c Frida

$2.50 and $3 Ladies' Shoes

One of the largest factories of the East closed out to us about the largest quantity of Ladies' Shoes and Oxfords purchased by any concern; never since our existence have we offered values at such prices; nice, clean, perfect stock, strictly up to date styles; not a Shoe in the lot worth less than $2.50; in patent tip, patent leather, vici

5c Val. and Torchon Laces, Friday at half price (Basement) ..

25c Corset Covering and Embroidery Flouncing, up to 18 inches wide (Basement), yard .. 15c

8½c Unbleached Sheeting, good, round thread; yard .. 5c

5c Sateen Remnants, all colors; Friday (Basement), yd. 5c

25c Silk Remnants; a good assortment of Silk Remnants; yard 15c

3 O'Clock Spe

(No Phone or Mail orders filled.)

816

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

890529007

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Interview] Anarchism and Socialism Defined / Emma Goldman.– p. 18 ; 44 cm. In The Herald of Revolt [London]. –Vol. 1, no. 5 (April 1911).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

authority. In Germany there is much more State Socialism than here. What you must demand is not less Socialism but more, so Grayson is your choice."

So that Grayson, State Socialism, and Imperial Militarism go hand-in-hand. Hyndmania, therefore, is only an expression of British jingoism. Yet this "Grand Old Man" poses as "the friend of India." He cares as much for India as he does for the Balkan war and the British proletariat. Nor is this mere rhetoric, mere abstract logic. Have we not witnessed Blatchford becoming the third person in this delightful trinity, tragically crying for "a man—a Lord Kitchener—a military despot." We respectfully commend this fact to the attention of persons who claim that Social Democrats and their "Socialist" allies of the Blatchford type "are acting in accordance with the principles laid down by Marx." We suggest that Social Democrats who are so engrossed as to ignore the class struggle, as to ignore the progressive aggrandisement of the working class, as to ignore the identity of interests of workers and capitalists, as to ignore the antagonistic interests of workers and capitalists, as to ignore the class war, as to believe in the mutual interests of all classes, as to believe in political action, as to believe in Socialism by Act of Parliament, are what, as students of Marx, they must be described as—absolutely nothing.

In Germany the Socialists are organised in a political party, and there are individual members in the Reichstag. But Germany is a strong Social Democratic party, but because the workers are sweated and are overworked, because they are subject to military tyranny. And Germany, in spite of Bebel notwithstanding, cannot by any stretch of the imagination be the menace of Europe.

In France Socialists organise as Socialists, Anarchists as Anarchists, Industrial unionists as Industrialists, Parliamentarians as Parliamentarians, Militarism is the workers' gospel as against the Prussian idea. Conscription exists here as in Germany. But France is not a menace to Europe. Why? Because the French workers are not law bound, and the German are.

The Social Democratic movement is a political movement in Germany, and it has striven to secure political power. It has done nothing to benefit the condition of the workers. Its ultimate object is the perpetuation of capitalist society. As to this we have the declaration contained in the article of many years ago, published in Justice for December 24th, 1910, page 4. Here we are told that the Social Democratic voter has to kill off Liberal and Labour parties one at a time, and the Liberal first. "It is the interests of the Tories that for some time to come we shall have to look after," says the editorial scribe. "At present our interests are the interests of the Socialist movement." Yet in Battersea, Social Democrats split the Tory vote at Battersea, and returned Jones with a bigger majority than ever. Only eleven years ago the Social Democrats voted for Burns although they were not Socialists. Their class five years previously. Social Democracy, therefore, seems to be a slow tune. When the workers understand it the farce will cease, and the funeral march of Capitalism will be played at a jog-trot.

Anarchism and Socialism Defined.

BY EMMA GOLDMAN.

"While it is true that I am an Anarchist, I am also a Socialist," said our comrade Emma Goldman recently to a representative of the Belleville News Democrat. "All Anarchists," she continued, "are Socialists, but not all Socialists are Anarchists. Anarchism is the higher form of Socialism. All Socialists who think and grow will be forced to the Anarchist conclusion. Anarchism is the inevitable goal of Socialism. We Anarchists believe in the socialisation of wealth, land, and the means of production. . . . We believe in the revolution. The founders of Socialism believed in it. Karl Marx believed in it. All thinking Socialists of to-day believe in it.".

Continuing, Emma Goldman said that "all true Socialism stands for the abolition of Government, whether it be in Monarchies or Republics, as well as for the abolition of the marriage ceremony, and a complete revolution of the present family relation and life."

She also pointed out that "in the true Socialist regime there is no place for the church, nor yet for any form of religious dogma based on the Jewish Bible, the New Testament, or other ancient book."

"Parliamentarians," she added, "are not Socialists at all, but politicians. Their only purpose in the world is to get the old politicians out, in order that they might work themselves into their places. In their mad effort to get office, they deny their birthright for a mess of pottage, and sacrifice their true principles and real convictions on the political altar of politics."

An Incident and an Inspiration.

The Homestead strike of July, 1892, was caused by the direct reductions of the Amalgamated Steel and Ironworkers, whose wages were literally owned by Carnegie and controlled by Frick, his chief superintendent. The barracks the workers lived in, the stores they purchased food, tools, and clothing at, were Carnegie's. When the strike came Frick engaged a number of Pinkerton's men, at two dollars a day, smuggled them into Homestead, and gave them orders to shoot to kill. On the 6th of July these armed hirelings charged upon a crowd of men and women, killing several and wounding many more. The strikers bravely rallied, and succeeded in driving them, however. Frick then called upon the Governor [illegible] to protect his property. [illegible] complied with [illegible] the latter was being sent down [illegible] the Pinkertons. This represented [illegible] for their services [illegible] Frick [illegible] strikers on [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

840514099

The Emma Goldman Papers

On the Trail / Emma Goldman. — pp. 50-55 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 6, no. 2 (April 1, 1911).

Obtained from the University of Califomia, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

ON THE TRAIL

LEST our friends fear that I am in danger of becoming respectable, I wish to inform them that I am still under the protective wing of the police.

STAUNTON, Ill., has proved that police interference may occasionally be deferred, but that it has ceased—never.

At the station in Staunton I was met in a manner befitting a queen, a detachment of police on hand to pay me homage. A few comrades were also there to bring the tidings that the meetings had been suppressed, but that another hall was hastely secured where I might try to speak.

Onward we marched like Tennyson's six hundred, police in front of us, back of us, and on the side of us. The hall was quickly filled, but as the guardians of disorder were bent on stopping the meeting, they arrested Comrade Kobcinell who had come with me from St. Louis, our champion literature man having preceded me to Milwaukee. The crime of Kobcinell consisted in selling books without a license,—a wretched police pretext to create a disturbance; but these stupids made their calculation without taking into account Anarchist determination. Of course, our comrade had to be escorted to the police station, but on learning his fate ($200 bond), I raced back to the hall where the audience had been waiting patiently. The police made all kinds of threats, but I spoke on that most reviled of all ideas, Anarchism. I then called for volunteers to go on the bond, and the response came without much ado.

After the usual red tape Kobcinell was released to appear for trial later on. We then held a German gathering in a private house, attended by quite a crowd, regardless of a two-mile tramp through Staunton mud. A collection was taken to cover the loss of the meeting, to which everyone present contributed.

Comrade Kobcinell was dragged back and forth from St. Louis to Staunton, and finally condemned to pay $17.50 fine, although $5 is the legal fine for the offense. Considering that the purchaser of the prohibited article was a detective, our friends will realize that the punishment was not in excess of the crime. Besides, what is the law if not a most contemptible trap for innocent victims, to feed hungry parasites? If not for the disappointment of Comrade Kurnik, who worked faithfully for the success of the meetings, and the great number of miners who had come from afar, I should have enjoyed the experience. Not that I need proof for the devotion of the police. I know only too well that there will always be a chance to exchange the hotel for the station house; therefore there is no danger of being spoiled.

Too bad Diogenes lived in the long ago; else he might have discovered a man in BELLVILLE, Ill. Unfortunately, the man happens to be the mayor of the town—a most unique specimen in American political life. Though, perhaps, not so brilliant as Brand Whitlock, Mayor Kern is none the less unusually well-informed and progressive. His library would make the mouth water of every literary gourmant. But above all, this strange man is remarkably courageous and liberal. I wonder why such people will continue in the political swamp? It must be that the American, like the Schwab, cuts his wisdom teeth at a late age. The truth is, most Americans are sadly deficient in the political wisdom teeth.

MILWAUKEE! Hurrah! The millennium has come. Red flags waving; bands playing the inspiring strains of the Marseillaise; men, women, and children in festive attire; no policeman, no patrol-wagon, no prison, nothing but clas-conscious Comrade Seidel-Berger to look after their flock.

Behüt' dich Gott,
Es wär' so schön gewesen;
Behüt' dich Gott,
Es hatt' nicht sollen sein.

Seriously, has anything been changed with the ascendency of the Socialist régime? Yes, Mayor Seidel has declared that the only way the 25,000 unemployed in Milwaukee can be helped now, is to cut the salaries of all the city employees. Really, now? All city employees, including also Mayor Seidel, Congressman Berger and the rest of the official staff? Nixie. No such class-consciousness for theirs. By city employees

818

840514099

The Emma Goldman Papers

On the Trail / Emma Goldman. — pp. 50-55 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. — Vol. 6, no. 2 (April 1, 1911).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

only the two-dollar-a-day wretches are meant. Surely the Seidels and Genossen are not expected to share their hard-earned thousands with slum proletarians. The latter must starve until economic determinism will determine the entire machinery of government into the hands of Socialist politicians.

Poor stupid voter! If you will believe in heaven before election, don't complain if you get hell afterwards.

However, so long as Milwaukee is being purified, nothing else matters. Listen, ye abused wives! Flock to Milwaukee, the beautiful paradise. Here your wayward husbands will be brought back to you from any part of the State or country; here they will be forced to love and feed you, and—if they balk, to jail with them, and don't you forget it.

And you, mothers, desirous to protect your daughters from temptation, the Municipal Dance Hall is waiting for them, with Grannie Berger to watch over them. As to the Hoboes of the land, Milwaukee is their salvation. Ninety days for vagrancy. Come all ye that are heavily laden and poor in spirit. The Kingdom of Heaven is here, in Milwaukee. Amen.

Our meetings were not very large, but who would expect much in the land of the proletarian's heart's desire. Our Comrades Kopczynski and German must have mustered up the inhabitants of hell, the only place where people still interest themselves in revolutionary ideas; for the rest, all is castor oil with honey.

MADISON, Wis. Last year our visit caused quite a rumpus, a would-be newspaper, the Democrat, suddenly having discovered no end of "Anarchist explosives" among the professors. And all because the most progressive of them all, Prof. Ross, dared to announce my lecture from his rostrum. The idea of an American professor owning his soul is too awful.

Whether it was in consequence of the attack of last year, or the fact that the legislature was to be coaxed into an appropriation for the university, the professorial gentlemen "behaved" this time. Our ad was refused by the college paper. After all, professors too must eat, and the State being the employer of these good men, they must submit.

The students were not deterred; they came in much larger numbers than last year. Altogether at least a thousand students attended our three lectures. I do not think I am exaggerating when I say that if ever solidarity between the workers and the American intelligenzia is established, Madison will furnish the largest share.

DULUTH, Minn., was new territory, but it proved worth the effort. Two good meetings and a large quantity of literature will, no doubt, help to prepare the path for future activities.

ST. PAUL, Minn., was an unlucky number on our itinerary, everything going wrong in that city. Meeting dates mixed, the hall refused at the last moment, and a sudden spell of cold to accentuate the frost of the situation. But the North Pole itself could not paralyze Benjamin's ardor. One meeting was arranged, and survived.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., proved the usual standpatter, only more so, owing to the zeal of our Comrades Kraemer, Axelson, and Ruth Olsen. They canvassed the city so carefully that naught but success was possible. We had six meetings, the last for the students of the University of Minnesota, and every lecture was well attended. Out of our week's work resulted the Social Alliance Club, which is to carry on regular propaganda work in Minneapolis. Nearly a hundred friends joined, some money was collected, and a series of lectures arranged which will be held at McElcroy's Hall, Nicollet and 7th Streets. MOTHER EARTH and other Anarchist literature will be on sale at these meetings.

That there is need for such a club in Minneapolis can be seen from the fact that a number of Socialists, tired of the party discipline and despotism, lost no time in joining our group. The Socialist party is fast drawing its lines closer against individual effort, so that anyone daring to breathe freely is made to go.

One of their ablest men, the editor of The New Time, a little Socialist sheet, was severely censured for bringing the announcement of our meetings, and when the same man, Caspar Richman, dared to suggest that the monsters who had flogged and tortured the victims

819

840514099

The Emma Goldman Papers

On the Trail / Emma Goldman. – pp. 50-55 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 6, no. 2 (April 1, 1911).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

of the Red Wing Reform School should be chased into eternity, the brave party held up the entire number and declared war on the editor.

One need not have a prophetic eye to see that the discontent brewing in the party ranks will one of these days cause quite an explosion.

Groups of young artists, living a careless Bohemian life, with ideals for breakfast, paints and brushes for luncheon, and sunsets for supper, are the usual thing in Europe. But to find such a circle in America, living their ideals and caring naught for dollars and cents, is indeed a great event.

The spirit of this extraordinary little band in the Studio of Minneapolis is an American girl, though of foreign parentage, Ruth Olsen. At her age the average American girl dreams only of a good match and nice clothes. Not so our young artist. Breezy and free as the western plains, she is yet deeply absorbed in the most serious problems of life. She is on familiar terms with the best literature of the world and passionately devoted to art.

With her are two other girls and several young men, the insurgents of the Minneapolis Art School, which they have left in protest against its lack of freedom. As Ruth justly says, all great art is Anarchism, the freedom of expression. These young rebels have their own studio where they paint, dream, plan, and live on sandwiches and spaghetti in the most exquisite spirit of mutual helpfulness and solidarity. With more of this idealism, the youth of America, too, may some day, even like the heroes of Russia, give life a different meaning than what it has with us to-day.

OMAHA, Neb., has never been a stormer. But our small group of friends have remained staunch. Among them, Fred Tomson was more than usually helpful in arranging three meetings in the theatre of which he is the lessee.

The treat of Omaha is dear Mother Fageberg with her five daughters—so full of harmony and good comradship as only true freedom can inspire. The Fagebergs are old radicals who were counted among the many that mourned the death of our martyrs of '87. But unlike so many others, Mother Fageberg has remained true and free. How wonderful old age can be if surounded by harmony, Mother Fageberg is demonstrating. At seventy her spirit is as strong and undaunted as if she were a young rebel. With it goes so much sweetness and humanity that captivates everyone's heart.

LINCOLN, Neb., Bryan's town. Judging by the mess this erstwhile American savior has made of himself, Lincoln has nothing to boast of. To us the city was virgin soil, but with usual insistence her maidenly shyness was soon overcome. Our two meetings attracted all sorts and conditions of men and women, mainly students, however.

The miracle of miracles happened there. The law students, usually among the most conservative, invited me to speak before them, and showed genuine interest in the question of law, crime, punishment, etc. I am not optimistic enough to believe that any of the men will give up the carcer of lawyer. It's too good a business, this juggling with legal phrases. But that law students will stand for Anarchistic ideas, is a significant sign of the times.

Altogether, the Trail is discovering to us a great many vistas, all ready to be explored.

After Kansas we go to Denver, 14th—19th of April; Salt Lake City, 22nd—26th.

Beginning May 1st for 10 days at Los Angeles, then San Diego; Fresno, between 11th—15th of May. After that San Francisco.

On then, ever onward.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

⁂ ⁂ ⁂

ANARCHISM—The philosophy of a new social order based on liberty unrestricted by man-made law; the theory that all forms of government rest on violence, and are therefore wrong and harmful, as well as unnecessary.

ANARCHIST—A believer in Anarchism; one opposed to all forms of coercive government and invasive authority; an advocate of Anarchy, or absence of government, as the ideal of political liberty and social harmony.

820

840803000

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Mexican Revolution / Emma Goldman.— p. 4 ; 22 cm. In The Agitator [Home, Wa.]. —Vol. 1, no. 11 (April 15, 1911).

Obtained from from the private collection of Dr. Pietro Ferrua, Portland, Oregon.

11:3334821

THE MEXICAN REVOLUTION.

The following letters speak for themselves, and should make special appeal to all workers and opponents of slavery:

Office of the Junta of the Mexican Liberal Party, 519½ East Fourth Street.

Los Angeles, Cal., U. S. A., March 13, 1911.

Emma Goldman, 210 E. 13th St., New York City, N. Y.:

Dear Friend and Fellow-Fighter in the Cause of Human Liberty—I write urging you to exercise on behalf of my countrymen in Mexico the influence you wield over a large section of the American public. Need I spend my breath in telling you that we are fighting the world-wide battle of human emancipation; that our cause is your cause; that we are struggling for what every intelligent man and woman knows as being absolutely indispensible for human happiness and development? I think I need not.

It is well known—has been proved beyond all peradventure of doubt—that, at the behest of the money power, hundreds of thousands of my countrymen have been driven from the lands on and by which they and their forefathers had lived since our history began. Thus they have been forced into such hells as the rubber plantations of the Valle Nacional and the hemp plantations of Yucatan, or driven into exile across the American border, where they struggle desperately for a starvation wage. Somehow or other men and women must live; or, at least, try to live.

What will become of these millions of men, women and children if the money power has its way? What will be the result if it succeeds not; indeed I know you cannot be.

Yours for human emancipation,

R. FLORES MAGON.

---

210 East Thirteenth Street, New York City.
March 19, 1911.

Dear Friend—Enclosed is copy of letter received from Ricardo Flores Magon, president of the "Junta" of the Mexican Liberty Party. It speaks for itself and makes, to me at least, irresistible appeal.

The leading facts connected with the Mexican revolution are well known, thanks largely to the measures taken recently by the government of the United States, at the behest of Wall Street. Through countless articles and such well-authenticated books as Turner's "Barbarous Mexico," it has been proved beyond all doubt that slavery of an inconceivably brutal type is rampant in Mexico, and is supported mainly by American dollars. Thus this country has become once more a partner in that very chattel slavery which, less than two generations ago, it shed blood and treasure freely to overthrow, once and forever.

The American public would not tolerate for one moment that partnership if it understood the situation clearly; but it is being duped and misled daily by a press owned body and soul by the money power. Our struggle is against this terribly powerful combination, and, Herculean though the task may be, the education of the public is one imperative duty of the hour. Accordingly I urge you, above all things, to devote all the time and money you can spare to the education of the public on this Mexican

Editor The Agitator:

A copy of The Agitator reached me se ago, and I was glad to note that you ar things. I like your "Passing Show" and general contents of the paper, and I sincer that you will be able to reach a vast audi your work so well deserves. Herein is encl subscription for one year, and with best w remain, yours fraternally, J.

Chicago.

Editor The Agitator:

My Dear Fox—The real news value
Agitator was most forcibly brought to tention while reading the "biggest pa
the west" last Sunday.

To make sure that The Agitator wou before the editors of the "Times," I marked copy by one of their reporter sult: a verbatim reprint of the Madero ex article.

When I called the attention of this r to the fact that The Agitator received no for an item of news worth reprinting in spicuous a part of the "Times," he s

"You can hardly expect a great d give credit for a scoop to a weekly pap an Anarchist publication at that. So we the heading as a dispatch from Los An

You are giving us a real newspape and more grease to your elbow.

S. T

Seattle, April 6th.

RECEIPTS

Wassilevsky, Silverburg, Colish, each $2; Co

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

821

840803000

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Mexican Revolution / Emma Goldman.— p. 4 ; 22 cm. In The Agitator [Home, Wa.]. —Vol. 1, no. 11 (April 15, 1911).

Obtained from from the private collection of Dr. Pietro Ferrua, Portland, Oregon.

What will become of these millions of men, women and children if the money power has its way? What will be the result if it succeeds in trampling them beneath the heel of militarism? And what will be the effect on the character and standing of the American nation if it suffers itself to be the obedient tool of the money power, and stands before the world the avowed defender of chattel slavery of the most atrocious type? Surely, to ask these questions is to answer them.

The American public does not understand; it cannot see the picture in its awful reality, for it is misled by the wilful misrepresentations of those who, having gigantic money interests at stake, are sparing no effort to delude it.

So long as the money power thought the struggle in Mexico was merely to displace one dictator with another it looked on indifferently; for such struggles have been frequent in the history of Latin peoples, and they alter nothing. But today it understands quite clearly that its own selfish interests are in the balance; that we are fighting for the restoration of millions and millions of acres of land, given away to foreign syndicates by the fraudulent connivance of Diaz' unspeakable government, and entirely without the consent of the rightful owners. It knows that the very thing anarchism is combating. Nor is he aware that anarchism destroys, not healthful tissue, but parasitic growths that feed on life's essence of society; that it is merely clearing the soil of weeds that it may eventually bear fruit.

Anarchism urges men to think, to investigate, to analyze every proposition, but that the brain capacity of the average man be not taxed too severely, the people; that we are determined that the poor shall come once more into what justly their own. Therefore today the money powers in America, backed by the money pow-hour. Accordingly I urge you, above all things, to devote all the time and money you can spare to the education of the public on this Mexican question, doing so without delay, for time is precious.

Write to your friends; send letters and articles to the papers; use your own brains and think out for yourself the various ways in which you can be of service. And DO IT NOW.

MONEY MUST BE CONTRIBUTED, and for this we must look to an awakened public conscience. You will awaken that conscience best by yourself making sacrifices for this, which is our common cause.

Send all money and communications to "Regeneracion" (organ of the Mexican Liberal Party), 519½ E. 4th St., Los Angeles, Cal. You may rest assured that every cent will be expended honestly and judiciously, for these people thoroughly understand the situation and have proved their sincerity by years of exile, imprisonment and heroic labor.

FROM THE MAIL BAG.

Editor The Agitator:

Dear Comrade—At our last meeting we decided to assist The Agitator by sending you two dollars each quarter. I enclose herewith our first instalment of $2.00. With best wishes.

Fraternally,

M. GOODMAN,

Sec. Branch 160 Workmen's Circle.

Paterson, N. J.

Editor The Agitator:

Fellow Worker—Your letter to hand. In regard to The Agitator, there ain't any of our members left here to hold a meeting. They are all across the line with guns, thinking that the best way. Fellow worker Wm. Stanley has a commission as ca[p]tain in command. Enclosed

RECEIPTS

Wassilevsky, Silverburg, Colish, each $2; Cool Lazzar, Corona, Rosselmann, I. W. W. 437, Bro Soger, Skulick, Brothers, Kinley, Wishnar, Cane $1 Block, Parker, 50 cents Wood, 40 cents, Atzen Gentry, I. W. W. 68, I. W. W. 173, I.W. W. 31 25 cents Sounders, $1.

SOME VERY WORTHY PERIODICALS.

"SOLIDARITY."
A weekly revolutionary, working class paper.
Published by
P. O. Box 622, I. W. W.
NEWCASTLE, PA.

"MOTHER EAR"
Monthly Magazine D to Social Science and ature. 10c a copy. $1
EMMA GOLDMAN, Pu 210 E. 13th. S New York.

"FREEDOM"
A Monthly Journal of Anarchist Communism.
36c per year.
127 Ossulton Street, London, N. W., England

"INDUSTRIAL WORKER"
A Weekly A For Revolution dustrial Union
Published by I. W. 236 Main st. Spoka $1 a year. Foreign

For Sale—At Home—a two story frame house o rooms, bathroom, pantry and cellar, with two land, partially cleared. Well situated, commanc excellent view of bay and mountains. Full par may be had of THE AGITATOR.

For Sale—near Home! seventeen acres unclear front timber land, will divide. Apply to THE AGI

HENDERSON BAY ROUTE—Steamer Tyconda Commercial Dock, Tacoma, for all points on H son Bay, including Home, week days at 2:30 returning next morning. Sunday, at 8 a. m., ing same day.

NORTH BAY ROUTE—Steamer Tyee leaves mercial Dock, Tacoma, for all points on every Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 10 a. turning next morning.

LORENZ BROS., Own

Agents for THE AGITATOR.
Seattle: Jarrett's stand, 601 3rd Ave.; Eastm book store, 1522 First Ave.

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

822

840803000

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Mexican Revolution / Emma Goldman.— p. 4 ; 22 cm. In The Agitator [Home, Wa.]. —Vol. 1, no. 11 (April 15, 1911).

Obtained from from the private collection of Dr. Pietro Ferrua, Portland, Oregon.

dictator with another it looked on indifferently; for such struggles have been frequent in the history of Latin peoples, and they alter nothing. But today it understands quite clearly that its own selfish interests are in the balance; that we are fighting for the restoration of millions and millions of acres of land, given away to foreign syndicates by the fraudulent connivance of Diaz' unspeakable government, and entirely without the consent of the rightful owners, the people; that we are determined that the poor shall come once more into what is justly their own. Therefore today the money powers in America, backed by the money powers of the world, are calling the American nation to arms.

Anarchism urges man to think, to investigate, to analyze every proposition, but that the brain capacity of the average man be not taxed too much it has condensed its conclusions into a few general principles. Anarchism is merely the result of the close study of the evolution of human society. It is the diagnosis of the political, economic and social ills that afflict humanity. It is the prognosis of the remedy. It is the therapeutic treatment. Anarchism is the philosophy of liberty. Anarchism is the philosophy of the future.

In such a crisis will you be silent? I think may rest assured that every cent will be expended honestly and judiciously, for these people thoroughly understand the situation and have proved their sincerity by years of exile, imprisonment and heroic labor.

FROM THE MAIL BAG.

Editor The Agitator:

Dear Comrade—At our last meeting we decided to assist The Agitator by sending you two dollars each quarter. I enclose herewith our first instalment of $2.00. With best wishes.

Fraternally,

M. GOODMAN,

Sec. Branch 160 Workmen's Circle.

Paterson, N. J.

Editor The Agitator:

Fellow Worker—Your letter to hand. In regard to The Agitator, there ain't any of our members left here to hold a meeting. They are all across the line with guns, thinking that the best way. Fellow worker Wm. Stanley has a commission as captain in command. Enclosed find $1.00 for a year's subscription.

Yours for freedom,

THOMAS RYAN,

Hydesville, Calif.

"FREEDOM"

A Monthly Journal of Anarchist Communism.

36c per year.

127 Ossulton Street, London, N. W., England

INDUSTRIAL WORKER"

A Weekly A For Revolution dustrial Union Published by I. W. 236 Main st. Spoka $1 a year, Foreign

For Sale—In Home—a two story frame house o rooms, bathroom, pantry and cellar, with two l land, partially cleared. Well situated, commans excellent view of bay and mountains. Full par may be had of THE AGITATOR.

For Sale—near Home: seventeen acres uncleared front timber land; will divide. Apply to THE AG

HENDERSON BAY ROUTE—Steamer Tycondo Commercial Dock, Tacoma, for all points on H son Bay, including Home, week days at 2:30 returning next morning. Sunday, at 8 a. m., ing same day.

NORTH BAY ROUTE—Steamer Tyee leaves mercial Dock, Tacoma, for all points on No every Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 10 a. turning next morning.

LORENZ BROS., Own

Agents for THE AGITATOR.

Seattle: Lovell's Hand, 604 2nd Ave.; Searle book store, 1512 First Ave.

Lynn, Mass.: S. Cutler, 233 Union Street.

New York City: B. Vanderveer, 212 Henry St. Near the Grand Street

Winnipeg, Manitoba: [illegible] Ltd., 705 M

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

823

860506002

The Emma Goldman Papers

Emma Goldman in Hearty Sympathy / Emma Goldman. – 35 cm. In Regeneracion [Los Angeles]. – (April 22, 1911).

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the Library, California State University, Northridge.

are being distributed at all meetings held by Emma Goldman on her present western tour. The letter sent her runs as follows:

Dear Friend and Fellow-Fighter in the Cause of Human Liberty:—I write urging you to exercise on behalf of my countrymen in Mexico the influence you wield over a large section of the American public. Need I spend my breath in telling you that we are fighting the world-wide battle of human emancipation; that our cause is your cause; that we are struggling for what every intelligent man and woman knows as being absolutely indispensable for human happiness and development? I think I need not.

It is well known has been proved beyond all peradventure of doubt that, at the behest of the money power, hundreds of thousands of my countrymen have been driven from the lands on and by which they and their forefathers had lived since our history began. Thus they have been forced into such Hells as the tobacco plantations of the Valle Nacional and the hemp (plantations of Yucatan, or driven into exile across the American border, where they struggle desperately for a starvation wage. Somehow or other men and women must live—or, at least, try to live.

What will become of these millions of men and children if the money power has its way? What will be the result if it succeeds in trampling them beneath the heel of militarism? And what will be the effect on the character and standing of the American nation if it suffers itself to be the obedient tool of the money power, and stands before the world the avowed defender of chattel slavery of the most atrocious type? Surely, to ask those questions is to answer them.

The American public does not understand—it cannot see the picture in its awful reality, for it is misled by the wilful misrepresentations of those who, having gigantic money interests at stake, are sparing no effort to do [illegible] it.

So far as the money power thought the struggle in Mexico was merely to displace one dictator with another it looked on indifferently; for such struggles have been frequent in the history of Latin peoples, and they alter nothing. But today it understands quite clearly that its own selfish interests are in the balance; that we are fighting for the restoration of millions and millions of acres of land, given away to foreign syndicates by the fraudulent connivance of Diaz' unspeakable

Emma Goldman in hearty sympathy

We wage a campaign of education, not only through "Regeneracion" but by unremitting correspondence, especially with recognized leaders of radical thought. Recently we published the letters that have passed between Samuel Gompers and Ricardo Flores Magon, and that sent to Eugene V. Debs. This week we reproduce one written last month to Emma Goldman, and the whole-souled reply it immediately evoked. Copies of the correspondence, published in leaflet form,

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

824

860506002

The Emma Goldman Papers

Emma Goldman in Hearty Sympathy / Emma Goldman.– 35 cm. In Regeneracion [Los Angeles]. –(April 22, 1911).

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the Library, California State University, Northridge.

WILLIAM C. OWEN

government, and entirely without the consent of the rightful owners, the people; that we are determined that the poor shall come once more into what is justly their own. Therefore today the money powers in America, backed by the money powers of the world, are calling the American nation to arms.

In such a crisis will you be silent? I think not, indeed I know you can not be.

Yours for human emancipation,

R. FLORES MAGON

In reply we received the following being a copy of a mimeographed letter Emma Goldman is mailing to all her correspondents. Jack London and other noted writers on the social question are pursuing a similar course. The letter follows:

Dear Friend: Enclosed is copy of letter received from Ricardo Flores Magon, president of the "Junta" of the Mexican Liberal Party. It speaks for itself and makes, to me at least, irresistible appeal.

The leading facts connected with the Mexican revolution are well known, thanks largely to the measures taken recently by the government of the United States, at the behest of Wall Street. Through countless articles and such well authenticated books as Turner's "Barbarous Mexico," it has been proved beyond all doubt that slavery of an unconceivably brutal type is rampant in Mexico, and is supported mainly by American dollars. Thus this country has become once more a partner in that very chattel slavery which, less than two generations ago, it shed blood and treasure freely to overthrow, once and forever.

forever.

The American public would not tolerate for one moment that partnership if it understood the situation clearly; but it is being duped and misled daily by a press owned body and soul by the money power. Our struggle is against this terribly powerful combination, and, Herculean though the task may be, the education of the public is the one imperative duty of the hour. Accordingly I urge you, above all things, to devote all the time and money you can spare to the education of the public on this Mexican question; doing so without delay, for time is precious.

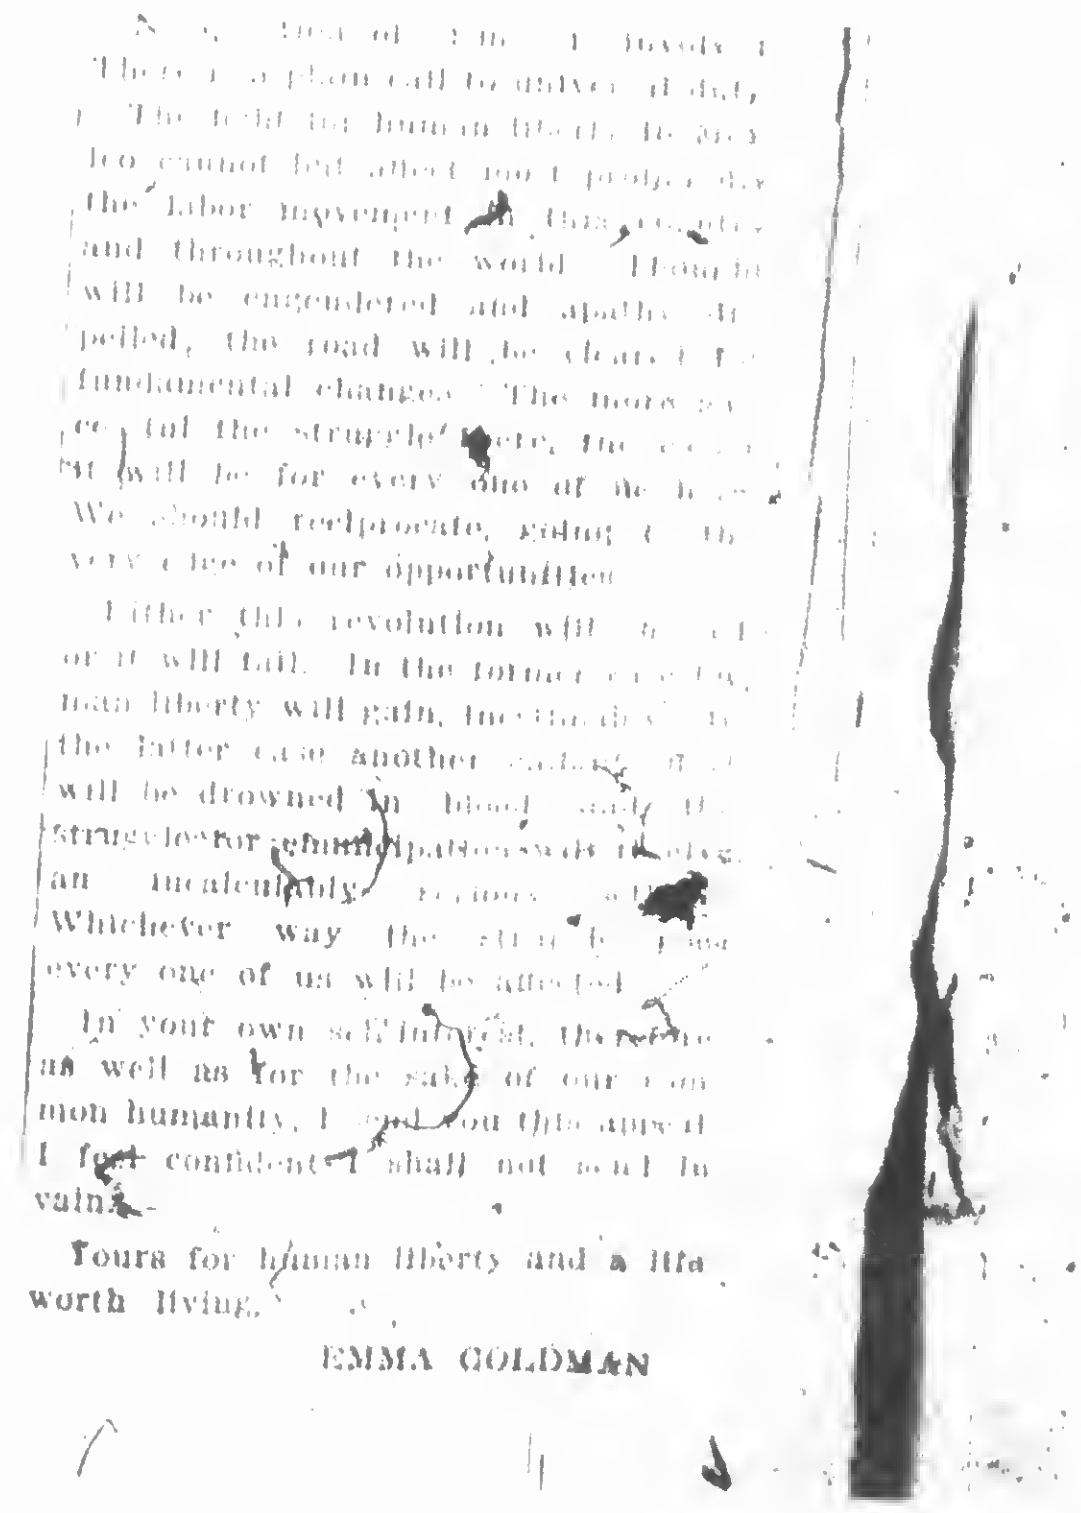
Write to your friends; send letters and articles to the papers; use your own brains and think out for yourself the various ways in which you can be of service. And DO IT NOW.

MONEY MUST BE CONTRIBUTED and for this we must look to our awakened public conscience. You will awaken that conscience best by yourself making sacrifices for this, which is our common cause.

Send all money and communications to "Regeneracion," (organ of the Mexican Liberal Party), 519½ E. 4th St., Los Angeles, Cal. You may rest assured that every cent will be expended honestly and judiciously for these people thoroughly understand the situation and have proved their sincerity by years of exile, imprisonment and heroic labor.

This is not the special cause of Socialists, Anarchists, Single Taxers, Trades Unionists, or other individual wings of the great army of discontent. It is a straight case of millions of our fellow creatures having been driven from the lands on which they and their forefathers had lived for generations, in order that absentee syndicates may reap colossal fortunes by indescribable revolting slavery. I believe it to be the most brutal instance on record of absolutely heartless appropriation by that money power which worships the dollar alone, and is deaf, dumb and blind to the claims of human [illegible]

BEST COPY AVAILABLE



825

860506002

The Emma Goldman Papers

Emma Goldman in Hearty Sympathy / Emma Goldman.– 35 cm. In Regeneracion [Los Angeles]. –(April 22, 1911).

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the Library, California State University, Northridge.

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

826

840514104

The Emma Goldman Papers

On the Trail / Emma Goldman. — p. 84 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 6, no. 3 (May, 1911).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

kindly requested to turn them over, with money collected, to the treasurer of the Defence Committee.

A. B.

* * *

ON THE TRAIL

The present tour of Comrade Emma Goldman has been more than ordinarily strenuous, full of obstacles and trouble. For various reasons she could not prepare her monthly Odyssey for this issue of the magazine. Just before going to press we received the following telegram from our Comrade:

San Diego, Cal., May 9th, 1911.

The trail has been unusually difficult this month. Will therefore only convey the wonderful spirit in Los Angeles which is preparing to meet the dastardly conspiracy of capitalism. Verily the prophecy of August Spies that "Our silence will speak louder than the voices strangled to-day" is coming true. The voices speak loud and powerful in protest against the renewed attempt to throttle labor. To-day neither money nor power will succeed in repeating the crime of Eighteen Eighty-seven. The workers represent a mighty wall of splendid human solidarity. The Eternal Spirit of Revolution is at work everywhere, shaping the future as never before. Of the heroism now manifested in Mexico, of our own little hardships, I will write next month.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

* * *

THREE YEARS

Report of the Manager

By BEN L. REITMAN.

IT is now three years since I joined "Our Lady of Sorrow" in her work. When I first attempted to arrange a meeting for Emma Goldman in Chicago, I did not know what the Anarchist propaganda was like. I only knew that whomever the police hounded, persecuted, and attempted to suppress, was my friend. But after three years in the movement I sign with Kipling, "Oh God, what things are there, we have not done."

There are so many things of interest to our readers, that it is difficult to know where to begin. Whatever else Emma Goldman's life may be, it is never dull or monotonous, and any one who labors with her will have a choice variety of experiences.

The last three years found me at about five hundred of Emma Goldman's meetings, and there were no two alike. It is the exception and not the rule, that meetings are arranged in advance for us. I usually get to a town 48 to 60 hours in advance of the lecture. Many of our successful meetings have been arranged in 24 hours, but all of them are attended by much worry and excitement.

Emma Goldman is one of the few lecturers in the radical movement who can draw a fair-sized crowd, with a small notice in the daily paper, and a hand bill "Emma Goldman lectures to-night."

We have had all kinds of meeting places, some of her lectures were held in leading theatres, such as the El Paso Opera House, the Spokane Theatre, and the Illinois Theatre. It may be news to many to know that it is possible to book Emma Goldman at some of the leading theatres on a percentage basis, but it was only occasionally that we had the theatre; we usually spoke in one of the 57 varieties of lodge-halls. The Eagles Hall, the Owls Hall, the Elks, Odd Fellows, Masons, and most of the fraternal bodies with the exception of the Knights of Columbus, a Catholic organization, have sheltered us. We have frequently had the armory and the G. A. R. halls, now and then the voice of Anarchy has been heard in the church, and E. G. has had several audiences in Court Houses, sometimes as a prisoner and at other times as a lecturer. We have had barns, vacant lots, back rooms of saloons, and houses of the comrades for meeting places.

It is interesting to note that we have seldom had labor halls—there are not a half dozen of them in America that can be rented for Anarchist meetings, and yet many of the comrades complain that we are getting away from the working element.

Recently in St. Paul we rented the Federation of Labor hall. The secretary of that organization is a liberal man, but when the various unions which hold their

827

890331004

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Interview] Emma Goldman Comes to Preach "Anarchism" to I.W.W.'S / Emma Goldman.– p. 11 ; 28 cm. In The Fresno Morning Republican. –(May 14, 1911).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

ENCH COMEDY, WITH MISS AUDA DUE, LL OPEN AT EMPIRE TOMORROW NIGHT

a Due, the new leading lady of the Ed Redmond Company, who will make her debut at the Empire tomorrow night.

dia Due, the new leading lady of the company that will play with the Raymond company, will make [illegible] at the Empire tomorrow night in the strong [illegible] at the Empire theater. [illegible] the past house [illegible] is coming to Fresno with a reputation [illegible] engagement [illegible] with a stock company [illegible] Fresno with much success.

Her debut here will be in a leading [illegible] g role of "Let's Get a Divorce," a [illegible] an enjoyable [illegible] medy. James [illegible] triumph in "The [illegible] Candles," which [illegible] Miss Due will [illegible]

y leading lady will [illegible] pport by Ed Redmond [illegible] vorites. "Let's Get a Divorce" [illegible] the best comedies of the [illegible]

REEDLEY Y. M. C. A. ELECTS DIRECTORS

REEDLEY, May 13—At the meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association last night, the following were named as the directors of the local organization: Frank Frane, Carson Hied, Ernest Eymann, E. W. Crosby, A. H. Kellogg, A. E. McClanahan and C. F. Mueller. The board will meet in the near future and name a president, vice president, treasurer and secretary, who shall be the officers of the association for the ensuing year.

The annual picnic will be held in Reedley on next Tuesday afternoon and evening. The program, consisting of various athletic features, will begin at 2:30 in the afternoon. In the evening a campfire will be held, and a supper, consisting of beans and bread will be served. After the meal a literary program will be rendered, representatives of the Fowler, Kingsburg, Selma, Sanger and Reedley associations participating in the exercises.

Next Tuesday evening at the Methodist Episcopal church Rev. Oren R. Waite, D. D., conference superintendent of Sunday schools of the Southern California conference of the M. E. church, will deliver an address in keeping with his work and conduct a round table. Mr. Waite lives in Los Angeles and has as his field of labor all the territory from San Diego on the south to Madera on the north.

Deputy Sheriff Bottorff is confined to his home with an attack of ptomaine poisoning. The officer was seized with severe cramps last night while at the jail. He hurried home and summoned a physician. At a late hour Bottorff was resting easy and pronounced out of danger.

EMMA GOLDMAN COMES TO PREACH "ANARCHISM" TO I. W. W.'S

Female Agitator Full of Sympathy for Mexican Insurrectos.

Takes Contradictory Stand on Dynamiting Cases; Supports McNamara.

Emma Goldman arrived in Fresno yesterday afternoon to give a couple of lectures under the auspices of the I. W. W.'s. Miss Goldman was accompanied by her manager, Ben Reitman, who carries the big stick in business matters. Miss Goldman received several visitors at the Fulton hotel during the afternoon, but reserved the evening for her private labors. These consisted largely of keeping up with her correspondence, about which she seemed greatly concerned.

"I am glad to be in Fresno just now," she said. "The I. W. W. boys have made a good fight here, and have demonstrated the effectiveness of fall, stuffing as a method of waging such fights." Miss Goldman appeared somewhat worn by travel, although she hurried about and walked to the postoffice for her mail.

Her short almost slight figure was clothed in a plain traveling dress, and had her hair plainly combed back, showing her strong Balto-Slavic features with heavy brows, and large mouth and jaws. It was a face masculine rather than coarse, of the stern type of the battled against heavy odds.

She spoke part of th time in the technical language of semi-scientific books on sociology, and then in a lecture room; manner spoke of the "Mexican insurrectos and their American brothers," as she had met them at Tia Juana. "All the people of Mexico are against the dictator, they will win, and a free republic will be established. They are not well enough educated for anything more yet," she said.

Miss Goldman denied any design on her part to arrive in Los Angeles at the same time as the McNamara brothers. "We arrived there on the same afternoon, but it was just a coincident," she said. "I did not try to communicate with them. I never saw such concentrated solidarity on the part of the union men of the country to stand behind an accused member. I have heard many say they were for the accused men, right or wrong."

Miss Goldman talked with apparent pleasure of her girlhood, saying she was born in Russia, though of German parentage. At 3 she went with her parents to Germany, where she received a high school education. "I've knocked about this country a good bit," she said, "and I've learned what many a working man has learned—that the boasted freedom is a myth." There was a certain affability in her manner, when she warmed up to the subjects of human rights and wrongs. On the other hand, she said she could excuse a man for blowing up his fellow workers, while destroying a bitter opponent's property.

Miss Goldman will talk on "Anarchism at I. W. W. hall at 3 o'clock this afternoon. At 8 o'clock she will give her views on "Marriage and Love."

BICYCLE and MOTOCYCLE SUPPLIES

The goods you ought to have at the prices you ought to pay

We are headquarters for everything in the line of bicycle and motocycle accessories.

Diamond Bicycle Tires Guaranteed $1.70 Each, put on

Don't be skeptical in buying these tires because the price is low, as they are of standard construction.

Prest-O-Lite Tank for motorcycles	$8.00—regular	$10.00
Motocycle Lamps	$4.45—regular	$7.00
Ammeters	$1.50—regular	$2.00
Automobile Jacks	$1.50—regular	$2.50
10 lb. Can Carbide	75c—regular	$1.25
Nay Best Metal Polish	50c—regular	75c
Motocycle Oil, per gallon		60c
Skat, 10c can, 2 cans for		15c
Dry Batteries, each		25c

SEE OUR WINDOW.

DONAHOO-EMMONS & CO.
HARDWARE AND SPORTING GOODS,
1118 TO 1124 I STREET.

KEARNEY BOULEVARD HEIGHTS

$750 FREE $750

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

828

890331002

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Emma Goldman Talks at the I.W.W. Hall / Emma Goldman. – p. 10 ; 28 cm. In The Fresno Morning Republican. – (May 15, 1911).
Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

MANY FRESNANS LEAVING FOR THE EAST AND EUROPE SOON

Large Exodus to Follow Opening of the Tourist Season Tomorrow.

Visitors Bound Out for Europe Expect to See the Coronation.

The "back East" tourist season, to open tomorrow, will usher in a long period of travel for many Fresno people. The continuance of the season for five months, will make it possible for many persons to go to visit relatives and friends in "the native state, take in the sights of Washington and New York, spend a few months in Canada, on the cool St. Lawrence, and even go to Europe.

If those who have not read Mark Twain wish to take time to kneel at the tomb of Eloise and Abelard, they will have time, for the old 90-day rail limit is swept away. The open season for tourists will extend to October 1st.

The United States is still popular, however, for where a dozen may go to Europe, a hundred will go to Eastern states. Some are going to spend a few months telling Bill Jones in Missouri or Illinois, how they have found the West. Others are going to motor about among Eastern cities, and many will visit the old homestead, to take a tender look at it and wish they could remove it to sunny California. The advance sale of round trip tickets and reservations of berths has been heavier this year than ever before in the history of the West. Many more will go on the first or second day than on other days in this month. June, however, is usually the banner month, having a greater total number of departures than any other.

Among Fresnans bound for Europe leaving this week will be Frank H. Short and Mrs. Short, Mrs. Frank Rohnis, Mrs. Dr. J. D. Davidson, B. F. Shepherd and Mrs. Shepherd and daughter, George H. Smith and Mrs. Smith, T. W. Patterson, C. A. Paulden, Fred Northrup and Mrs. Northrup of Selma, Mrs. J. S. Jones and P. A. Borg. Most of the visitors to Europe expect to be present at the coronation of King George V in London.

OTHER WAYFARERS.

W. J. Dinkey will go to Chicago, taking his automobile with him. From there he will motor to New York with his wife. Later they will return by a northern route to Portland. George M. [illegible]

EMMA GOLDMAN TALKS AT THE I. W. W. HALL

Anarchist Leader Opposes Religion, Capitalism and Government.

"Anarchism and What It Stands For," was the subject of an address delivered by Emma Goldman, the American anarchist leader at the I. W. W. hall yesterday afternoon.

In opening her remarks, Miss Goldman made answer to two accusations that have been made against anarchism, one that it is right in the theory but is not practical, and the other that it resorts to violence to accomplish its ends. She denied that anarchists favored violence to put an end to governments but declared that the governments of today and capitalists have done violence and have killed hundreds of thousands in order to succeed.

Anarchism, she said, was opposed to religion, capitalism and government. She declared that religion was a cloak under which wealth protected itself and was permitted to do wrong. She declared that the capitalists rob and kill to acquire their ends and that they are assisted by government.

She declared that the way to abolish government was not to take the office holders out but to get rid of the office. She further declared that when religion, capitalism and government seek to tear down and destroy, anarchism seeks to build up and preserve human lives.

"Our dynamite for blowing up governments, is our literature and our books," asserted Miss Goldman. "We propose to seek, by means of education, to show the working classes where they are wrong and how they may right these wrongs."

In the course of her remarks on religion, she said anarchists were opposed to the religion of today because it is upon this religion that the present government are founded and until this religion is destroyed, she asserted the governments cannot be destroyed.

Miss Goldman was very vehement toward existing conditions and even went so far as to predict a revolution similar to that now going on in Mexico, in the United States. She urged a general strike of workingmen throughout the country to break the power of capital.

In the evening Miss Goldman delivered an address on "Love and Marriage," discussing matrimony from the point of view of an anarchist. She leaves today for Oakland and San Francisco, where she will remain for about ten days, when she expects to return to Fresno.

BELIEVE $400 MADE BY SCHOOL PLAYFEST

DELUGE OF ADDRESSES OPENS ANTI-SALOON CONVENTION

Local Committees to Carry on Fight Will Be Appointed Today.

Meetings Close Tonight With Talk on Liquor Traffic.

The Anti-Saloon League convention of the central counties of the San Joaquin valley, began here today with a series of meetings in charge of the churches of the city. The only reason why the league superintendents did not offer to deliver an address at all the churches, said one of the superintendents last night, was because there did not have enough men to go around. In the morning, Rev. D. M. Gardner, the league's superintendent, spoke at the First Baptist church; Rev. A. C. Barnes, district superintendent, spoke at the First Presbyterian church; Rev. T. H. Lawson, district superintendent of the Northwest district, at the North Side Christian church; Rev. I. B. Bristol of the Central district, spoke at the United Presbyterian church. An afternoon meeting at which all spoke, was held at the Star theater. About 300 persons were present.

The evening services were conducted at the First Christian church by Rev. Lawson; at St. Paul's by Rev. Bristol; at Calvary Presbyterian by D. M. Gardner, at Belmont Avenue Presbyterian by I. B. Bristol.

COME FROM MERCED.

Two automobile loads of men came from Merced last night to be present at the convention today. Part of them are business men. They are here to gain ideas for keeping up a fight on saloons. A few delegates from other towns have arrived, and more are coming today. The territory covered by the central district embraces Madera, Merced, Fresno, Kings and Tulare counties. Excursion rates are in effect on the railways.

The date for beginning the anti-saloon fight in this district will be decided upon this afternoon. One man from the West Side yesterday wanted the campaign to begin at once. It is almost certain not to begin before June 3, and there is a possibility that the summer months may be allowed to pass by first. There are many delegates who will advocate putting off the fight until September. The state officials are willing to accede to this, if it is the will of the local delegates.

This morning [illegible] superintendent will meet to [illegible]

CRY OF FIRE RAISED IN PICTURE THEATER

Audience Rushes for Exits; Smoke From Gas Works Causes Scare.

Patrons of a [illegible] in the Ryan building on the corner of F and Tulare streets were thrown into a panic last night [illegible] o'clock when a cry of fire was raised. A man in the audience saw smoke pouring into the main portion of the theater from the [illegible] thinking the place was afire, gave the alarm. The audience arose in a wild dash for the exits and [illegible] excitedly pulled the street box at the corner of F and Tulare streets.

When the engines arrived, it was found that the smoke was in the theater had come from the gas works near by. The [illegible] of the theater had been left open and the smoke came in through that entrance. There was no sign of fire in the playhouse.

Although members of the audience made a wild scramble to get out of the theater, no one was injured and after calm had once more been restored, the show was resumed.

MRS. H. A. M'DOWELL PASSES AWAY AT 68

Mrs. Mary C. McDowell, 68 years old, died at her home, 128 Howard street yesterday morning. She is survived by a son, Hugh A. McDowell. Her husband, Hugh A. McDowell, died several years ago. Mrs. McDowell was born in Missouri.

The funeral services will be held from the house at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Burial will be in Mountain View cemetery.

GOLD MEDALS TO BE GIVEN TO ATHLETES

Gold, silver and bronze medals, worth in the aggregate $50, will be given to the winners of the indoor gymnasium tests to be conducted at the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday and Thursday nights. The classes are divided into old members, new members, junior As, Juniors Bs and intermediates. A set of medals is given each. The gold medals go to the best old member gymnast who has not won a gold medal previously, and to the best new member gymnast. The events are high jump, standing broad jump, potato race, rope climb and parallel bar dip. The scoring of the highest number of points in all events will decide the winners.

HARRISON GRAY OTIS

GREEN FRUIT SHIPPERS TO DISCUSS SCHEDULE

New Midnight Train to Be Added to Service for Coming Season.

A special conference of deciduous fruit shippers has been called by the Southern Pacific Company to meet at the Chamber of Commerce at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. The object of the meeting is to discuss the best means of putting into effect the new regulations for handling fruit for the coming season. Certain adjustments are necessary every year. The meeting today will take up the new schedule of green fruit rates, and the running schedule of fruit trains and cars.

A new midnight fruit train is to be put on by the railway company this year, that will add not a little to the accommodations of the service. By loading at night, and starting the train toward its destination by midnight, a saving in storage will result for the shipper, and the fruit will arrive upon the market in better condition. It will also simplify the administration of the railway officials, and will keep the tracks cleared of isolated cars.

F. M. Worthington, division superintendent at Bakersfield, J. D. Brennan, division superintendent at Stockton, J. E. Hixson, general agent of Fresno, yard masters, freight agents and other officials are to be present at the conference. Letters and telephone messages have been sent to the shippers urging them to attend.

A similar meeting is to be held at Turlock today.

TO HOLD FUNERAL OF MISS TROUGHT HERE

Ethel Pearl Trought, 18 years old, died at Sacramento Friday night after a long illness. The funeral will be held from Stephens and Bean's chapel at 2 o'clock this afternoon. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Trought, formerly of Carlisle, now of Santa Cruz. She is survived also by a sister, Mrs. J. L. French of Carlisle.

Burial will be held in Mountain View cemetery.

Bedroom Furnishi

Every One Knows We Spend Third of Our Lives in Be

So, besides the pleasure you from good bedroom furniture, you expect to accomplish much in li less you rest well. There are no ishings in any part of the house which you get so much comfort. bedroom furniture comes in a many beautiful styles, of whic have a great assortment. Our are right, and you can furnish rooms on easy terms, a little and the rest in easy payments.

Wormser Furniture

Fresno's Foremost Furniture

Lowest Prices Easy Terms Public

Room For Ten More Board

AT THE NEW CITY STA

Fireproof— Sanitary Hygienic
W. L. AUBERY

1820 Merced Street Phon

Do You Want a Hon

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

890722010

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Emma Goldman in Kansas / Emma Goldman.– p. 3 ; 28 cm.
In The Industrial Worker [Spokane]. –(May 18, 1911).
Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

MAN
AVES

LARGE FAMILIES. ES A CRIME, SAYS ORINSON

Rec ouncil t [illegible] Chicago, says Dr. Wil Moon Marre, A Y and president [illegible] Medical Sociology, who giving of the proper in [illegible] how to keep

He expects to draft a [illegible] legal [illegible] d. [illegible]ays often brings [illegible] household. The first [illegible] second and third less [illegible] poorly nourished, [illegible] have started out with all the comforts of life, [illegible] the lowest depths of [illegible] of too many children [illegible] erty but ignorance, idle[illegible] and death. Dr. Robinson [illegible] the disciples of [illegible] will stop having chil[illegible] raising the race will die [illegible] a senseless fear and [illegible] human race.

[illegible]ce," Dr. Robinson says, [illegible] street. The parents are [illegible] wish to have at least [illegible] Those who have seen the [illegible] who have remained [illegible] of for that when the [illegible] ns of prevention of large [illegible] common property, the [illegible]o. There will be fewer [illegible] will be brought into the [illegible] ful expectations."

TO ORGANIZE.

[illegible] Standard Oil Com[illegible] tanks for oil five miles [illegible] Cal. There are 350 men [illegible]s are $2.50 and a few re[illegible]men can get on here any [illegible] are wanted as there is a [illegible]nize a local.

RUBY, Member of 66.

[illegible]g to the other fellow [illegible] I. W. W. will make on [illegible] the Eight-Hour Day? [illegible]e and thus prepare the [illegible] here for twelve days—the gang got a raise of one shilling per day. The cockroach felt, no yours, etc.

A. D. McKINNON.
P. O. Te Arnha, N. Z.

IGNORANCE IN FRESNO

FRESNO LOCAL ACTIVE—DOING GOOD WORK AMONG THE SLAVES.

Fresno, the home of the dictatnr, has had a patriotic spasms in the last month, which left their evil effects in the minds of the young. First, there was the G. A. R. encampment. When the old blood-living veterans marched in grand parade, exhibiting to the poor school children the chains of servitude with which they were honored, after having murdered hundreds of wage slaves with whom they had no quarrel, the parade being led by dictator Shaw and two companies of the state militia. Ye Gods! What an example for the young! A few days later we had the Raisin Day Carnival. This is the day when all good citizens are supposed to eat and talk nothing but raisins. But alas! The poor slaves who sweat and toil 14 hours daily packing this delicious fruit, did not have the price to purchase a feed of raisins, but had to be satisfied with the regular coffee and—. The slaves had a good time just the same, as the masters allowed them to try their speed "Box making" and "raisin picking" contests were the principal events. Oh! how willingly the slaves bared their brawny arms and went to work. I wonder if it is an honor to be champion box maker of the San Joaquin Empire. This great day came to a close, the slaves singing in beautiful discord, "My Country, 'tis of Thee." All were dressed in the garb of their class—fools' cap and bells. This is the atmosphere in which local No. 66 has been trying to preach the doctrine of discontent. We are holding street meetings every night in all languages. We are making good headway among the Mexicans, Italians and the floating element of the so-called white race; but the Fresno scissorbill! Let him sleep! Disturb him not! It will take a century to get the alfalfa out of his hair. Is it worth while when all we need is fighters? Last week we held two protest meetings and sent the proceeds to the strikers in Prince Rupert, B. C., and the Buccafori defense fund. The work is now opening up in the valley. The wages will be small. The grub on the average rotten.

How many of you rebels will get here and try to make things better? Let us all get on the job and make conditions better or put the boss out of business. Don't holler about the yellow peril, as the Japanese worker receives $2.00 per day; the free born American citizen $1.25. Why the difference? Let me tell you—Europeans out of a job

"S. G."

The Japanese are organized; they are past masters in the art of bringing John Farmer to his knees. My advice is, learn the tactics used by the Japanese. Do thou and do likewise.

Not being about to demonstrate our fighting abilities on May 1st, we held a mass meeting on Sunday, which was well attended. F. W. Wood, Hubbard and T. H. Little were the principal speakers. Both of them were in fine shape. If the doors of the Los Angeles county jail did not fly open, it was not their fault, but yours. What was you doing Sunday night? Local 66 is going to keep on protesting. If other locals will do the same the M. and M. will be forced to turn all the labor agitators from out of their dirty bastiles. If our voices fail to liberate them, let us try more drastic methods! "An eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth." While we are all busy agitating for the overthrow of capitalism, let us remember that we have only one year to agitate and educate for the universal eight-hour day. If this should come to the notice of any member of local 66 or any member who is coming this way, remember that Local 66 has headquarters and office room at 917 I. St., Fresno. Get into communication with the secretary, as it is necessary for the welfare of the organization. Let us know where to reach you.

Let us organize the valley this summer.

JACK WHYTE, Sec'y.
Box 209, Fresno, Cal.

WHO'S A SCAB.

It has often been stated that the European laborers come over to this country and scab on our patriotic American slaves. It is said that they do this by working for such a low wage, etc., etc.

BUT has it ever occurred to these American scissorbills that THEY ARE THE SCABS? But such is actually the case.

It is said that the foreign worker works CHEAP. But it is an actual fact that the American Workingman is the cheapest slave on earth, and that he produces more profits for the boss than any of these despised "furriners." It is also a fact that this cheap American slave actually works SO CHEAP that he scabs this European out of a job, and after the European is scabbed out of a job by the American he must come to America to make a living.

Here are the facts in the case. It costs the European capitalist 5½ cents in wages to produce a dollar's worth of goods, while in America it only costs the capitalist 17 cents to produce a dollar's worth of goods. Get wise you patriotic yankee jackass and get shorter hours and more pay, and quit scabbing the Europeans out of a job.

"S. G."

Clann, Ferry and Bordett, who were as cruelly murdered as were any of the martyrs of 1886. They were sentenced by a Mann, but not a man. This Mann claims to be a union man and was a member of two crafts of the A. F. of L. A member of a LABOR UNION? Spare our anguish and don't insult the name of labor which means misery.

EMMA GOLDMAN IN KANSAS

Extract from speech by Emma Goldman in Kansas City, Mo.:

"Crime is naught except misdirected energy.

"People can vote and vote until the world comes to an end, but their condition won't be any better. A revolution which will overthrow all government is the only means whereby man can be freed and have complete control of himself.

"Voting will accomplish nothing," Miss Goldman said. "The people of the United States have been voting for more than one hundred years and all they have done is to tie the knot of slavery a little tighter around their necks.

"What freedom has the workingman? He works on a salary which hardly is enough to support himself and his wife and children and when he passes the great divide in his life and starts down the other side his employer, a capitalist who has millions and wants more millions before he dies—fires him and gets a younger man to fill his place. That's slavery.

Revolution the Only Remedy.

"A revolution is the only remedy. The laws—hundreds are placed on the statute books every year by the state legislature only make conditions worse. Primitive man had more freedom that the people have today and they didn't have laws.

"The Mexicans have rebelled against the tyranny of Diaz. For years they have voted and voted, but by voting they only made their slavery more complete. There is no power in voting.

"The greatest mistake the United States could make is to step in and help President Diaz and the Mexican government put down the slaves there who are trying for freedom.—Kansas City Times.

and to unite in the places where they are associated with each other; in the mines, mills, factories, etc. FOR ON NO FIELD DO THE WORKERS STAND OUT DISTINCTLY AS A CLASS OTHER THAN THE INDUSTRIAL FIELD.

All social question have an economic base, and therefore in order to remedy the social and economic evil of today, the workers must get right down to the FOUNDATION and work to unite labor on the industrial field. Labor united INDUSTRIALLY in a CLASS UNION will be invincible and capitalism and the profit system will fall.

"S. G."

THE ARMY AND NAVY A MORAL PEST-HOUSE.

It has been said that the Army and Navy was composed of men who are morally "defective," and the fact that venereal diseases were so alarmingly prevalent among the enlisted men has been the subject of many a discussion. And there no grounds for grave fears, too, for it cannot be denied that a large body of men who have acquired dangerous and communicable diseases, constitute a menace to society.

But what has resulted from all this talk? NOTHING. Absolutely nothing, because in order to cope with this alarming situation in a CORRECT manner, it would be necessary to go to the root of the evils and abolish the army and navy, and if that were done the stolen wealth of the capitalist would not be protected.

The Revolutionists are the only class who know how to stem the awful tide of DEGENERATION, which threatens to swallow up the young men of today, and one of our methods is to abolish the army and navy.

It is not the individual young man's fault if after he joins the army or navy he can not keep control of himself, because the environment of military life, and the fact that the man is separated from association with the opposite sex for long periods, can not have a home and wife on the $17 a month which he receives, all serve to break a man down, mentally, morally and physically. Abolish the Army and Navy.

"S. G."

NEW LOCALS ORGANIZED.

Stockton Industrial Union No. 73, Stockton, Cal. April 10, 1911. G. W. Reese, Secretary, 125 E. Main street.

Mount Vernon Industrial Union No. 74, Mount Vernon, Wash., April 15, 1911. S. C. G. Anberg, Secretary.

Garment Workers Industrial Union No. 191, Rochester, N. Y., April 24, 1911. Thomas Volpe, Secretary, 29 Portland avenue.

Public Service Workers Industrial Union No. 384, Brooklyn, N. Y., April 24, 1911. R. Rotolo, Secretary, 127 Troutman street.

Metal and Machinery Workers Industrial Union No. 10, Rock Island, Ill., April 26, 1911; H. I. Shepard, Secretary, 2408 Sixth avenue.

he is getting big wages.

men lined up at the fr[illegible] that a policeman has to l[illegible] men in line so as not to [illegible] the sidewalk. Building contractors are working night and day at present as the wages are low and [illegible] of idle men are on hand to [illegible] for any old wages.

All [illegible] who are satisfied with the [illegible] wages, who are not getting [illegible] more of the same stuff. If you are NOT satisfied and want to see your wages and conditions IMPROVED, [illegible] join the INDUSTRIAL WORKERS OF THE WORLD. AN INJURY TO ONE IS AN INJURY TO ALL. SOLIDARITY.

Workers [illegible] Organize and [illegible] Join the One Big Union and [illegible] Emancipate yourself from [illegible] wage slavery. Change the [illegible] from your stomach, where it belongs.

Yours for the Big Union.

F. GUNTHER.

FROM DULUTH.

Legal workers work[illegible] and men [illegible] camps at $26 a month last summer and fall at $30 and $35 a month. Hours [illegible] from $8 to $26. How do you like it, JACKS? Don't need a union to get the wages; boss will do it. Hope our unfortunate stay with the boss until he raises your wages to $15 a month.

A LUMBERJACK, Local 68, I. W. W.

FROM COLUMBUS, OHIO.

Columbus is dead as a doornail as far as work is concerned. Hundreds of men are tramping the streets. The "work" men as well and also the rotten city person. Drunks are not arrested any more as there is no accommodation for them. Eight hour strikers are making quite a hit with all except a few pure and simplers and the plutes. We would like to hear from all who are interested in industrial unionism around Columbus. Object, to form a union. Will such workers address me at 211 Cleveland avenue, Columbus, Ohio.

MARTIN PHELAN.

BIG MEETING IN TACOMA.

On May 27th all the craft unions of Tacoma, the Socialist Party, Socialist Labor Party, and the Industrial Workers of the World will meet together to protest against the despotic methods of the master class of America for the crimes committed against labor in the past few weeks. Speakers representing the different organizations mentioned will take the platform in defense of the rights of the workers. Fellow Worker Thompson will likely speak for the I. W. W. This meeting will likely be the largest gathering of wage workers ever gathered together in the history of Tacoma. All workers are invited to attend. The meeting will be reported in the "Industrial Worker" by a special correspondent.

CHAS. DOWNEY.
Sec. No. 380, I. W. W., Tacoma, Wash.

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

860506009

The Emma Goldman Papers

No Factional Issue / Emma Goldman.— 28 cm. In Regeneracion [Los Angeles]. — (June 16, 1911).

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the Library, California State University, Northridge.

med by this handful of poverty-icken, ostracised and apparently st helpless men. There is nothing t can compare with it in the his-y of the American labor movement, l Russia alone can furnish a fitting rallel. But in Russia the intellec-al class has been far more numerous an it is in Mexico; there has been ich more available material on ich to draw; the climatic condi-us stimulate energy whereas those tropical and semi-tropical Mexico tend to inertia. Yet the entire xican nation has been aroused to realization of vital economic truths very existence of which the great ss of its northern brothers still cidly ignores. A tremendous feat education; accomplished, as always, a cost of self-sacrifice and suffer-altogether beyond the range of nputation. One forgets how many rs the Magons and their most faith-co-workers have spent in prison, one remembers always that it has n as heroes and not as criminals. s, indeed, the Mexican Liberal Party vement has been and is a most quali-l success. Above all others we can nk of it has produced results.

* * *

The Mexican government, still walk-in the tracks marked out by Diaz, ce more has shown its fear and ha-d of these men by demanding their rest. If it could get them across the rder unquestionably it would shoot m down like dogs, calmly wiping t of existence men who would do dit to any race. The demand ould not be allowed to pass unchal-ged; for such gallant fighters we ould put up an equally gallant fight, ough not so much for them as for e principles they hold far more pre-us than their own lives and liberty. e should put up a fight that will go the bottom of this matter, showing the piratical interests that are pull-g the strings and illuminating the tire situation for the instruction of e world. There is a hideous cess-ol of financial rascality to be un-vered, and the opportunity should Mexican Liberal Party Junta. All arrangements for a thoroughly enjoyable time have been made, and all profits will go to the Mexican Revolution. Admission 15 cents.

It is now that your co-operation is most needed.

NO FACTIONAL ISSUE

This is not the special cause of Socialists, Anarchists, Single Taxers, Trades Unionists, or other individual wings of the great army of discontent. It is a straight case of millions of our fellow creatures having been driven from the lands on which they and their forefathers had lived for generations, in order that absentee syndicates may reap colossal fortunes by indescribably revolting slavery. I believe it to be the most brutal instance on record of absolutely heartless expropriation by that money power which worships the dollar alone, and is deaf, dumb and blind to the claims of human life.

The fight for human liberty in Mexico cannot but affect most profoundly the labor movement in this country and throughout the world. Thought will be engendered and apathy dispelled; the road will be cleared for fundamental changes. The more successful the struggle there, the easier it will be for every one of us here. We should reciprocate, going to the very edge of our opportunities.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

The Mexican revolution is now of world-wide interest. Our sphere of action has increased enormously and with it our expense. We are not beggars but we invite more than your merely sympathetic aid. Our cause is yours.

Don't bicker over trifles or think you know it all. Solidarity is the keynote, and the world's workers are being knit together as they never were before.

had actually occurred, the politicians —through whom special privilege and monopoly always act—having obtained for the moment the upper hand, what course would you have followed? Would you suddenly have changed your mind? Would you suddenly have declared that, after all, this was not an economic but a political question, properly belonging to the politicians; and that, as for economic wrongs, time and the politicians must be trusted to correct them? This is what many, very many, others have done; but not the Magons or the other prominent members of the Mexican Liberal Party.

* * *

How the Magons, Rivera and others have faced the situation has been suggested; and it is precisely because they have so faced it that their movement has become the formidable power it actually is. If you doubt it consult the chapter entitled "American Persecution of Enemies of Diaz" in Turner's "Barbarous Mexico," noting particularly the long list of indicted Liberal refugees given on page 294. It is always the formidable rebel who is attacked.

* * *

The story of the Magons, in particular, is a tremendous story; one that can well hold its own with any that have come to us from Russia. It is now twenty-two years since Ricardo was first thrown into jail in Mexico City for participating in a demonstration against Diaz; it is ten years since "Regeneracion" was first suppressed and Ricardo and Enrique, as editors, incarcerated in the Mexican military prison. No less than six other papers did they start, editing them repeatedly from jail and smuggling the copy out in loaves of bread and by other kindred devices. Nothing could daunt them, and they had even the audacity to sign their names to every article—a step then unheard of in Mexican journalism. Already they had begun the formation of a party, and the public had to be familiarized with their names and be set an example of boldness, at all and every co-

840514106
The Emma Goldman Papers
On the Trail / Emma Goldman. – pp. 151-157 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. –Vol. 6, no. 5 (July, 1911).
Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

widows nor orphans. But some of them left poor old fathers and mothers.

As to the families of the imprisoned Comrades, there are many wives working very hard for their living. Mrs. Komatsu is keeping fowls. Mrs. Takeda is living with her sister (who is a singer), keeping house for the sister. Mrs. Okomoto is working as a factory hand. Mrs. Takagi is being expelled from the Budhist-Temple (Mr. Takagi having been a priest). These are all waiting the return of their husbands, who are imprisoned for life. The case of Mrs. Okabayashi is very tragical. She has been compelled to divorce her husband, much against her will, because her parents forced it. The old father of Mr. Okabayashi is bringing up his grandson, forsaken by the mother.

Many old mothers are weeping for their imprisoned sons, and most of them are struggling hard for a poor sustenance.

There are many other miserable cases which we cannot describe here.

We are very much relieved by your present for helping those widows, mothers, fathers and children. Please send us very soon the money in your hands.

By the way, we sign our two names here because it is all the same to us whether you send the money to one or the other.

Yours fraternally,

TOSHIHIKO SAKAI,
DR. TOKIJIRO KATO.

Address:

Sakai, 6, Minami-Teramachi, Yotsuya, Tokyo.
Kato, 6 Chome, Kobikicho, Kyobashi, Tokyo.

FREE COMMUNISM—Voluntary economic co-operation of all towards the needs of each. A social arrangement based on the principle: To each according to his needs; from each according to his ability.

ON THE TRAIL

AFTER Los Angeles and San Francisco, PORTLAND seemed rather mild in spirit. Yet it is not lack of interest in the vital issues that have turned fair California into a battle ground. It is merely that Oregon climatically and by nature is of more even "temperament."

Portland is not an important industrial center, and though she too has the poor always with her, in appearance at least she looks poised and comfortable. Our meetings were good, regardless of the hot wave that struck the city on our arrival. Perhaps the good Lord wanted to demonstrate just what degree of temperature is awaiting my sinful soul in the hereafter. At any rate, it was real hot, and our hall hotter still. But with all that the attendance did not decrease; on the contrary, the last of the six lectures and the debate with a "brother" Socialist filled the halls to the very limit.

It is really cruelty to animals to debate with some of the western Socialists. They are so hopelessly mediocre, they make the gods weep. But the "fellow-comrade" organizer of the Portland section, a Mr. Ellis, deserves a medal for ignorance and arrogance.

Our dear, faithful comrades—the two ideal Holyworth brothers and Raymond and Agnes Fair—have on this occasion again proven their untiring zeal and devotion in preparing the meetings. For their sake I should have wished the meetings larger. As for myself, I am so fond of dear little Portland and the friends it contains, I rarely feel the lack of great success there. With such staunch champions and friends as C. E. S. Wood, Kathryn Beck, and our own boys, the visit to Portland is always worth while.

SEATTLE has proven that miracles still do happen. The meetings there had been arranged by C. V. Cook in his astral body. Good Cassius himself is in Vancouver. All he could do is to make a special trip to Seattle to secure the hall, order printing, and hang up signs. The rest had to be done by auto-suggestion, since none of our comrades could or would give the work the necessary attention.

832

840514106
The Emma Goldman Papers
On the Trail / Emma Goldman. – pp. 151-157 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 6, no. 5 (July, 1911).
Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

A few did help Jennie Lavroff and Sam Hammersmark to distribute some cards, and Edith De Long Jarmuth lined up the adherents of her 18th Century salon. But the day before the first meeting something like 6,000 cards were still awaiting their doom. Poor Benjamin worked like a beaver, but we went to the meeting with trepidation.

Now comes the miracle. The place was jammed, both afternoon and evening; in fact, every evening to the last. What did it? Cassius Cook's magic manipulation with Jesus Christ. Oh, Cassius is a wise guy. He rented a church and placarded the holy building with red letters, "E. G. will speak," etc. The good Christians who passed the church (and there must have been about 50,000 during the two weeks the signs were up) may have mistaken poor E. G. for a revivalist. They came in large numbers and, what is more, they stayed even though they were not asked to repent. That we had to give up this miraculous opportunity when we might have held forth for several weeks, can only be ascribed to the jealousy of God, who could not endure the trick played upon him by Lucifer. Think of it, E. G. in the house of the Lord before an ever-growing mass of his own children. Anyway, blessed be the ingenuity of Cassius Cook! It was hard to leave Seattle, not only because of our tremendous success, but because of the number of friends, and mainly because of Seattle itself. To me it is the most beautiful city in the West, the most chosen mistress of nature.

SPOKANE was dull and hot. Last year the I. W. W. boys gave Spokane color and importance. Now that most of them have gone to Mexico, the city is dead and uninteresting. Our friend Dickinson did his best, no doubt. But with the revolutionary element lacking, the terrific heat, and the poor ventilation of the hall, it was but inevitable that our meetings should be small.

Those who decry the evils of the city should go through the small towns of America. They would soon realize that the city, with all its misery, represents life, motion, change, and interest, as against the lethargy, stagnation and self-sufficiency of the average American town. America as a whole is still very much in a provincial stage, but the mind of her sons of the soil, and even the average townsman, is so dull that it surpasses every conception. But with the newspaper, the church, and prohibition as its source of wisdom, one can readily understand why the average American town is still such a Sahara.

However, the desert wanderer is only too often famished. Such a one is our Comrade Otto Weik. For over a year he has been living in the great town of Colville, Wash. But for him that place might never have been on the map. His wonderful zeal and perseverance have not only made it possible to arrange a meeting, but the grind of so many months, the ceaseless agitation he has carried on ever since he came to Colville, has established a footing for Anarchism in that town which is truly remarkable. Otto Weik is a shoemaker, but many a college professor could profit by his knowledge. An ardent reader, he invests half of his earnings in books, not for his own aggrandizement alone, but for every one of the village who wants to read. Indeed his shop is the main college and library of Colville; in fact, of the State of Washington. I am sure he has more vital books than the University of Washington.

Thus the efforts of this brave, undaunted worker has helped to dispell a number of spooks in the town and, what is more, he has infused a revolutionary spirit in some of the Socialists there, which is indeed a remarkable feat.

I shall always remember my visit to Colville, the simple hospitality of our Comrade Nellie Langdell, and the devotion of our fine Comrade Otto Weik, not to speak of the others, all so interested and helpful. Last but not least is the owner of the "Debs House," a Socialist and great devotee of his Master Debs, who showed great courage in extending his hospitality to me. I understand he was severely censured by some of his comrades. He certainly deserves credit.

Since the great panorama at BOISE CITY, Idaho, it has been my desire to go there. This trip, neither the distance of 400 miles nor the fact that we had no connection in Boise City, deterred us from carrying out our plans. What are 400 miles to such old hoboes as Ben Reitman and E. G. As to arranging meetings in strange towns, leave that to Benjamin. When I arrived twenty-four hours after my "manager" had reached Boise, I found

833

840514106

The Emma Goldman Papers

On the Trail / Emma Goldman. – pp. 151-157 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. –Vol. 6, no. 5 (July, 1911).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

everything tip top. Even the difficulty of no admission on Sundays had been overcome. Boise people certainly know how to evade the laws. You simply give every one a piece of literature—an equivalent to admission, see. We had two very good meetings, and left a considerable quantity of pamphlets outside of those given away at the door.

The day after we visited the erstwhile famous Idaho Penitentiary. Famous through Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone, now infamous because of Harry Orchard who is, I understand, a model prisoner and very religious. Why not, religion is characteristic of most cringing, servile, treacherous natures. Besides, it pays Harry to be both model and religious. It will win him his freedom in the not too distant future.

Surely there must be something in the inevitability of fate. Harry Orchard, the tool of Pinkertons, the modern Judas of his class, the cowardly yellow dog helping to prepare the trap for his comrades and himself caught in it, as a self-confessed desperado of something like eighteen murders, and the State—much more despicable and criminal than even Harry Orchard. From its viewpoint and that of all statists, Harry Orchard should long ago have faced his maker, as behooves a devoted Christian. Yet not only has the State spared Harry Orchard's life, it would have pardoned him long ago, if it had dared. The irony, the cold-blooded, murderous tendency, the criminal inconsistency of the State.

I thought of this and of the significant similarity in the new blood mania of the State, in Los Angeles. I thought also of the new Judas, or should we say alleged Harry Orchard, and I felt as if some loathsome thing were close to me. I could not breathe the same air with Harry Orchard. For of all the human monstrosities the informer is the most horrible.

A few months ago we visited the Leavenworth prison, the most modern penal institution. It is so modern, so very thorough and exact, that it would meet with the ideal of the most fastidious State Socialist. Not a bit of waste anywhere. The dining hall that seats about 2,500 victims is all of marble. The kitchen and cookery immaculately clean, equipped with all modern labor-saving machinery. The dozen or more shops are by far superior to the average factory. In short, the Leavenworth prison is the very epitome of centralized effort, scientific discovery, clock-like regularity; Socialism in actual operation, but for the guards and keepers. And yet, and yet, what horror! what soul-destroying horror! I could not help contrasting Leavenworth with the Idaho Penitentiary. Terrible as all prisons necessarily must be, the one in Boise City is actually a relief compared with that huge monster of modernity. The Boise penitentiary was built in '64, and is therefore a rickety thing with miserably small cells and hardly any provision for sanitation. But with all that it has a spark of humanity. The prison wall even does not look so cold and terrible as that in Leavenworth. The ground is covered with flowers, some of the cells even have flower pots and vines, the power of life from plant taking away part of the gray monotony of the hideous place. Except for those who are punished and whom visitors cannot see, the prisoners are out in the open or work with the doors wide open, thus the eyes of the poor victims can at least behold nature's bounty. The most touchingly human sight were prisoners playing with the Warden's children. Surely the sweet presence of a child, the fragrance of flowers, and the absence of guns and clubs must need have a better effect on the human soul. Then the cold and chilly institutionalism which is so complicated and centralized, that it necessitates a perfect herd of supervisors and keepers, parasites who thrive on the backs of humanity. Let no one think I plead for prisons. Indeed society, even as it is to-day, would be safer with every prison-door open. I merely plead for the human side which must die under institutionalism, but which may, though in a slight degree, assert itself under simplified conditions.

DENVER once more on our return trip. Three meetings and a debate. We might have spared ourselves the former. The latter was worth while, not so much because of the number attending the debate, but because for the first time it was my good fortune to meet a Socialist opponent whose character and viewpoint far exceeds party lines. Dr. Ward is the man who started the Modern School in Denver. A lovable and broad-minded man. I am therefore glad of the opportunity to have met him in debate. But as usual with the Socialists who have grown

834

840514106
The Emma Goldman Papers
On the Trail / Emma Goldman. – pp. 151-157 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. –Vol. 6, no. 5 (July, 1911).
Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

away from the narrow bigotted lines of their party, Dr. Ward, too, is an Anarchist by nature and intellect, though still a Socialist by habit. The alarm expressed by the servants of the Socialist political bosses, like Mr. Ghent, secretary of Congressman Berger, that there is already too much hobnobbing with Anarchists among Socialists, is not without ground. It is that which will split the Socialist party in twain in the near future. We Anarchists take no credit for that, because we know that despotism creates rebellion. The success of the Denver debate is due to Dr. Ward himself and Julie May Courtney. Both worked very hard and faithfully. Besides that, dear Julie May made it possible for me to enjoy the most restful and comfortable week I have ever had in Denver. With rare tact and understanding she turned over her little apartment to me, which was a treat and joy to a tired traveler.

The ship is swift, the day is done, the Trail is at an end. It was the hardest and most difficult Trail, yet most interesting, full of a thousand intensely valuable experiences. In six months we visited 18 States and 50 cities, exploring a great deal of new territory. During that time we held 150 meetings and debates, and as we traveled about 10,000 miles, we had but few free evenings.

The most remarkable event of this tour was—but few police interferences. An attempt was made by the authorities of Columbus and Indianapolis, but was frustrated by an energetic campaign for free speech. In Staunton, Ill., the meetings were stopped. But I spoke nevertheless.

As usual, Ben Reitman outdid himself in the sale of literature, disposing of about 1,200 copies of "Anarchism and other Essays," and of quite a number of "Conquest of Bread," "Memoirs," "Mutual Aid," "Property," by Proudhon, and Elzbacher's "Anarchism." Besides that, about 6,000 pamphlets were left in the various cities. Lest anyone doubt the usefulness of our meetings, the circulation of such quantities of reading matter must speak for itself. But oral propaganda, too, can not be overlooked. The pity is we have so few who can give their time and ability to this line of agitation.

I hope I am not vain when I say I was never so happy as on this trip, that I could speak. It gave me opportunity to raise my voice in behalf of not only a great and sublime future, but of things so important right now.

I could speak in behalf of the awakened revolutionary consciousness in Japan; in behalf of the great human indignity of Mexico. My appearance was not in vain, the workers everywhere contributing to the needs of their brothers in the East, as well as for their comrades across the border line. I was also able to register my protest against the conspiracy of money against labor. And lastly, new ground, new friends, and new experiences were among the important results of this great tour. But if I could do all that, it is not so much because I am the propagandist, but because I had Ben Reitman to do the drudge work, to prepare the meetings, to look after every detail, to be the real moving, tireless, perseverant spirit that would shrink before no difficulty, nor shirk the hardest responsibilities. In justice to truth I must give credit where it belongs, though it seems personal.

The comrades, too, were helpful and kind, which proved an inspiration in trying moments. Nor must I forget Mickie who, while making his way to the Coast, was untiring and devoted in his assistance at meetings.

The ship is swift, the day is done, but the Trail goes on forever.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

* * *

THE FIRST ANNIVERSARY OF THE FRANCISCO FERRER ASSOCIATION

By H. KELLY.

THE spirit of the martyred Ferrer was abroad on the night of June 30th at the first Anniversary Dinner given by the Francisco Ferrer Association, on which occasion 163 friends gathered to do him honor and further the cause for which he died. Starting a year ago with twenty-two members and an uncertain future, the Association has drawn to itself seemingly irreconcilable elements, triumphed over innumerable obstacles, and shown a healthy growth. Like all such attempts, it has been laughed at by those who profess sympathy with similar ideas, and subjected to misrepresentation and ridicule by those opposed. That it has overcome these obstacles as far as it has, shows a deep and sincere interest in its aims and principles by a large number of thinking people.

835

870502701

The Emma Goldman Papers

[The masses. In German] Die Masse / Emma Goldman.— pp. 113-114 ; 33 cm. In Der Sozialist [Bern]. —Vol. 3, no. 15 (Aug. 1, 1911).

Obtained from the Hoover Institution on War, Revolution and Peace, Stanford, CA.

DER SOZIALIST

ORGAN DES SOZIALISTISCHEN BUNDES

3. JAHRGANG | BERN, DEN 1. AUGUST 1911 | NUMMER 15

Die Masse

WENN ICH DIE Richtung, in der unsre Zeiten sich bewegen, mit einem Wort zusammenfassen soll, so sage ich: Quantität. Die Menge, der Geist der Masse herrscht allenthalben vor und zerstört die Qualität. All unser Leben — Produktion Politik und Erziehung — beruht auf der Quantität, auf der großen Zahl. Der Handwerker, der einst auf die Genauigkeit und Qualität seiner Arbeit stolz war, ist durch gedankenlose und an der Sache nicht interessierte Automaten ersetzt worden; die riesige Mengen von Gegenständen herstellen, die für sie selbst keinen Wert haben und der übrigen Menschheit oft genug von Schaden sind. So hat die Quantität, anstatt die Behaglichkeit und den Frieden des Lebens zu erhöhen, nur die Lasten der Menschen vermehrt.

In der Politik zählt nichts als die Quantität. Prinzipien, Ideale, Gerechtigkeit und Festigkeit sind völlig von der Menge hinweggespült worden. In dem Kampf um Herrschaft übertrumpfen die verschiedenen politischen Parteien einander mit ihren Tricks, Betrügereien, Schlauheiten und schäbigen Machinationen; sie dürfen getrost darauf rechnen, daß die Partei, die Erfolg hat, von der Mehrheit als Sieger bejubelt wird. Das ist der einzige Gott: der Erfolg. Auf welche Kosten, mit welch schrecklichen Schädigung des Charakters kommt nicht in Betracht.

Oft wird in unsrer Zeit von allen Politikern, die Sozialisten einbegriffen, das Sprüchlein wiederholt, wir lebten im Zeitalter des Individualismus oder der Macht der Minorität. Diese Ansicht können nur solche hegen, die nicht unter die Oberfläche dringen. Haben nicht, sagt man, die wenigen allen Reichtum der Welt im Besitz? Sind sie nicht die Herren, die unbeschränkten Könige der Situation? Ihr Erfolg ist nicht dem Individualismus, sondern der Trägheit, der Erbärmlichkeit, der völligen Unterwerfung der Masse zu danken. Diese begehrt nichts anderes als beherrscht, geführt und gezwungen zu werden. Der Individualismus aber hatte zu keiner Zeit in der ganzen Menschengeschichte weniger Aussicht sich zu verwirklichen, weniger Gelegenheit sich in normaler, gesunder Weise zu behaupten.

Der individuelle Erzieher, der einem ernsten Ziele nachstrebt, der Künstler oder Schriftsteller mit originellen Ideen der unabhängige Gelehrte oder Forscher, die unnachgiebigen Pioniere der sozialen Umgestaltung, alle werden sie täglich von Männern zur Seite gedrängt, deren Bildung und Schöpferkraft an Altersschwäche kranken.

... Man braucht nur unsre Parke und öffentlichen Plätze anzusehen, um sich von der Häßlichkeit und Gewöhnlichkeit der Kunstfabrikate zu überzeugen. Die Denkmäler, die unsere Stadte verunzieren, falsch in der Konzeption und barbarisch in der Ausführung, haben nicht mehr Aehnlichkeit mit wirklicher Kunst als der Götze eines Hottentottenstammes mit einem Michel Angelo. Wahrlich, nur ein Mehrheitsgeschmack kann solch eine Verhöhnung der Kunst dulden. Aber das ist die einzige Art Kunst, die jetzt Erfolg hat. Der wahre Künstler, der sich herkömmlichen Anschauungen nicht beugt, der seine Originalität bekundet und dem Leben treu sein will, führt ein unbekanntes und geplagtes Dasein. Sein Werk kann eines Tages der bewunderte Götze der Menge werden, aber erst, wenn er sein Herzblut hingegeben hat; erst, wenn der Pfadfinder nicht mehr lebt und ein Haufe idealloser und unschöpferischer Gesellen das Erbe des Meisters zu Tode gehetzt hat.

Die unverzeihlichste Sünde in der Gesellschaft ist Unabhängigkeit des Denkens. Daß das in einem Lande, dessen Wahrzeichen die Demokratie ist, so schrecklich klar zu Tage/tritt, ist für die überwältigende Macht der Mehrheit sehr bezeichnend.

Wendell Phillips sagte vor fünfzig Jahren: »In unserm Lande der völligen demokratischen Gleichheit ist die öffentliche Meinung nicht nur allmächtig, sie ist allgegenwärtig. Vor ihrer Tyrannei gibt es keine Zufluchtsstätte, vor ihrem Bereich gibt es kein Versteck, und das Resultat ist, daß wenn einer die alte Laterne des Diogenes nimmt und unter die Menge geht, um einen Menschen zu suchen, er nicht einen einzigen Amerikaner findet, der nicht für seinen Ehrgeiz, seine soziale Existenz oder sein Geschäft von der guten Meinung und den Beschlüssen seiner Umgebung etwas zu gewinnen oder zu verlieren hat, und wenn solcher Gewinn oder Verlust nur in seiner Einbildung leben sollte. Und die notwendige Folge ist, daß wir, anstatt eine Masse von Individuen zu sein, von denen jedes furchtlos seine eigene Ueberzeugung durchführt, daß wir als Nation in Vergleich mit andern Nationen eine Masse von Feiglingen sind. Mehr als jedes andere Volk haben wir gegenseitig vor einander Angst.« Es ist klar, daß wir uns von dem Zustand, den Wendell Phillips vor Augen gehabt hat, nicht eben weit entfernt haben ...

Immer, in jeder Periode, waren die wenigen die Bannerträger einer großen Idee, die Vorkämpfer der Befreiung. Nicht so die Masse, deren Bleigewicht sie nicht zur Bewegung kommen läßt. Diese Wahrheit ist am deutlichsten in Rußland sichtbar zu machen. Tausende von Menschenleben sind schon von diesem blutigen Regiment vernichtet worden, aber der Menschenfresser auf dem Throne ist noch nicht satt. Wie ist so etwas möglich, wenn Ideen, Kultur, Litteratur, wenn das tiefste und feinste Leben der Seele unter dem eisernen Joch stöhnt? Die Mehrheit, diese kompakte, unbewegliche, dumpfe Masse, der russische Bauer glaubt nach einem Jahrhundert des Kampfes des Opfers, des unsäglichen Elends immer noch, der Strick, mit dem »der Mann mit den weißen Händen« [der Intellektuelle] gehängt worden sei, bringe Glück.

In dem amerikanischen Freiheitskampf war die Masse genau ebenso ein unbeweglicher Block. Noch bis zum heutigen Tage werden die Ideen von Jefferson, von Patrick Henry, von Thomas Paine von ihren Nachkommen verleugnet und verraten. Die wahren Schirmer

836

870502701

The Emma Goldman Papers

[The masses. In German] Die Masse / Emma Goldman.– pp. 113-114 ; 33 cm. In Der Sozialist [Bern]. –Vol. 3, no. 15 (Aug. 1, 1911).

Obtained from the Hoover Institution on War, Revolution and Peace, Stanford, CA.

der Schwarzen sind eine Handvoll Kämpfer in Boston gewesen, Lloyd Garrison, Wendell Phillips, Thoreau, Margaret Fuller und Theodor Parker, deren große Tapferkeit und Hartnäckigkeit in dem düsteren Riesen John Brown ihren Gipfel fanden. Ihr unermüdlicher Eifer, ihre Beredsamkeit und Zähigkeit untergruben die starke Macht der Herren im Süden. Lincoln und seine Getreuen folgten erst, als die Abschaffung der Sklaverei eine praktische Notwendigkeit geworden war, die als solche von allen anerkannt wurde.

Vor etwa fünfzig Jahren erschien gleich einem Meteor am sozialen Horizont der Welt eine Idee, die so weitreichend, so revolutionär, so allumfassend war, daß sie allerwärts das Entsetzen in die Herzen der Tyrannen tragen mußte. Auf der anderen Seite war diese Idee für die Millionen eine Fackel der Freude, des Jubels, der Hoffnung. Die Pioniere kannten die Schwierigkeiten auf ihrem Weg, sie kannten den Widerstand, die Verfolgung, die Hindernisse, die sich ihnen entgegenstellen mußten, aber stolz und furchtlos schritten sie auf ihrem Weg weiter, immer weiter. Jetzt ist diese Idee ein populäres Schlagwort geworden. Fast jeder ist heutzutage ein Sozialist: der Reiche und ebenso der Arme, den er ausbeutet; die Vertreter von Gesetz und Autorität und ebenso die Unseligen, die vor ihre Schranken kommen; der Freidenker und ebenso der Verewiger religiösen Trugs; die Modedame und ebenso die heruntergekommene Dirne. Warum nicht? Jetzt, wo das, was vor fünfzig Jahren die Wahrheit war, zur Lüge geworden ist, jetzt, wo es all seine phantastische Jugend eingebüßt hat und seiner Kraft, seiner Stärke, seines revolutionären Ideals beraubt worden ist, — warum nicht? Jetzt, da er nicht länger eine zauberisch schöne Vision ist, sondern ein »praktischer, durchführbarer Plan«, der vom Willen der Mehrheit abhängt, warum nicht? Mit der nämlichen politischen Schlauheit und Kaltblütigkeit wird die Masse tagtäglich gekitzelt und vollgestopft. Ihr Lob wird in allen Tonarten gesungen: die arme, die beschimpfte, die betrogene, die riesenhafte Mehrheit, — wenn sie nur uns folgen wollte!

Wer hat diese Litanei nicht schon gehört? Wer kennt nicht diesen stehenden Refrain aller Politiker? Daß die Masse blutet, daß sie beraubt und ausgebeutet wird, weiß ich so gut wie unsere Stimmfänger. Aber ich behaupte, daß nicht die Handvoll Schmarotzer, sondern die Masse selbst für diesen furchtbaren Stand der Dinge verantwortlich ist. Sie hängt an ihren Herren; sie liebt die Peitsche; sie ist der erste, der Kreuzigel ruft, sowie sich eine Stimme der Empörung gegen die geheiligte Autorität des Kapitalismus oder einer anderen Institution erhebt. Wie lange könnten jedoch Autorität und Privateigentum Bestand haben, wenn nicht die Masse wäre, die sich willig zu Soldaten, Polizisten, Kerkermeistern und Henkern hergibt! Die Demagogen des Sozialismus wissen das so gut wie ich, aber sie bleiben bei ihren Märchen von den Tugenden der Mehrheit, weil sie gar nichts anderes im Sinne haben als die Herrschaft zu erlangen. Und wie könnten sie Herrschaft üben ohne die Menge? Jawohl, Macht, Autorität, Zwang und Abhängigkeit ruht auf der Masse, aber nie die Freiheit, nie die freie Entfaltung des Individuums, nie die Geburt einer freien Gesellschaft.

Nicht weil ich mit den Unterdrückten, den Enterbten der Erde nicht mitfühlte; nicht weil ich die Schmach, das Entsetzen, die Würdelosigkeit des Lebens, das das Volk führt, nicht kennte, verwerfe ich die Mehrheit als schöpferische Kraft und Quelle des Guten. O nein, nein! Sondern weil ich so gut weiß, daß das Volk als kompakte Masse niemals für Recht oder Gleichheit eingetreten ist. Es hat die Menschenstimme unterdrückt, den Menschengeist unterjocht, den Menschenleib gefesselt. Als Masse ist sein Ziel immer gewesen, das Leben gleichförmig, grau und eintönig wie die Wüste zu machen. Als Masse wird es immer der Vernichter der Individualität, der freien Initiative, der Ursprünglichkeit sein. Darum glaube ich mit Emerson, daß »die Massen roh, lähmend und verderblich in ihren Forderungen und ihrem Einfluß sind, und daß man ihnen nicht schmeicheln, sondern sie bilden soll. Ich wünsche ihnen nicht das mindeste zuzugestehen, sondern sie zu teilen und zu zertrümmern und Individuen aus ihnen herauszuziehen. Massen! Das Unheil sind die Massen. Ich will überhaupt keine Masse haben, sondern nur ehrbare Männer und liebliche, süße, reife Frauen.«

Mit andern Worten: die lebendige Wahrheit der sozialen und wirtschaftlichen Wohlfahrt wird nur Wirklichkeit werden durch den Eifer, die Tapferkeit, die unnachgibige Festigkeit intelligenter Minoritäten, aber nicht durch die Masse.

Emma Goldman

Aus Proudhons Tagebüchern

III.

10. Mai 1853. — Wiederaufrichtung der Bourgeoisie. — Diese Bewegung ist unausbleiblich. Louis-Philipp hat sie zum Ausdruck gebracht, die Provisorische Regierung mit ihrer Regierrei hat sie hervorgerufen; die »Ehrbaren und Maßvollen« haben sie begünstigt und haben durch sie gesiegt; die Gesetzgebung hat ihre Rache besorgt; und Louis Napoleon ist die Fortsetzung. — — Gestern am 11. Mai erinnerte Herr Chevalier*) in den Débats bei Gelegenheit eines Buches von Baudrillart über Bodiuns usw. daran, daß la Boëtie in seinem Buche von der Freiwilligen Knechtschaft die Anarchie vertreten hätte. Er fügte hinzu, das Leben des Bodinus gäbe der Hoffnung Raum, daß ich schließlich auch noch ruhig umkehren würde.

Es ist recht erstaunlich, daß man in dem Augenblick, wo die französische Regierung darauf ausgeht, sich auf den bürgerlichen Grundlagen Englands und der Vereinigten Staaten zu konstituieren und die Zentralgewalt unterzuordnen, die Gelegenheit für geeignet hält, mein Prinzip zu verdammen! Wie wenn dieses synthetische Prinzip nicht klar genug aufzeigte, daß wenn die kapitalistische Bewegung am Ende ist und die Demokratie den Sieg erlangt, es immer weniger Polizei, Soldaten, Priester, Richter und Beamte geben wird. Aber Herr Chevalier ist nicht im Stande zu begreifen, daß, wenn jedermann in der Regierung ist, die Regierung nichts ist.

— Was die neue Ordnung der Dinge charakterisiert, ist, wie ich gesagt habe, die Tendenz, das Verhältnis der Interessen in der Gesellschaft nach einem Prinzip umzugestalten, das es möglich macht, eine genaue Bilanz aufzustellen . . .

Diese Tendenz setzt es durch, daß sich alles gruppiert, feudalisiert, sodaß die Kleinindustrie mehr und mehr verdrängt, der Kleinhandel ruiniert und an den Bettelstab gebracht, unsicher und zum Bankrott verdammt wird. Vor der Februarrevolution beruhte alles Geschäftsleben auf dem Prinzip des Verkaufs. Jeder arbeitete um zu verkaufen; die Geschäfte richteten sich nach diesem einzigen Prinzip; der Zins regierte alles; alle machten alljährlich Inventur und erwarteten, daß alle einen tatsächlichen Gewinn hätten, der sich in barem Gelde ausdrückte. — Ein Ding, dessen Unmöglichkeit erwiesen ist.

Heutzutage wird die Zirkulation besser verstanden, ist der Austausch wieder in seine Rechte eingesetzt; der Zins ist aufgegeben und die Dividende an seine Stelle getreten: das leitet zu einem neuen System über.

Das Proletariat muß seine Herren bezahlen! darauf läuft es hinaus.

Wird dieser neue Stand der Dinge nun von langer Dauer sein?

Antwort: Zunächst ist kein logischer Widerspruch mehr da, keine mathematische Unmöglichkeit, keine Buchungsfehler. — Von der Seite ist nichts zu fürchten. — Aber das Monopol ist unverkennbar, es springt in die Augen; es schlägt jeder Moral ins Gesicht; es widerspricht der Gerech-*) Der bekannte Nationalökonom Michel Chevalier; siehe Proudhons Brief an ihn vom 14. April 1848; »Sozialist« Jahrgang 1 Seite 147.

837

840514108

The Emma Goldman Papers

Special Offer / Emma Goldman. – p. 193 ; 19 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 6, no. 7 (Sept. 1911).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

In the boat, the sturdy Irishman had not much of a task in overpowering the half-drowned man. He flung him on his back, on the bottom of the boat, knelt on his hips, and thrust the arms under the body. His partner sat on the unfortunate's feet, and rowed slowly to the shore.

Bound so, with human ropes, the conquered man only occasionally moved his shoulders, and fruitlessly fought with his knees when the Irishman kneeling on his hips slackened up. His strength was giving away. There was less and less fight in him, till finally he was only beating his head helplessly on the bottom of the boat.

Not a word had escaped his lips during the whole fight; he did not even respond to the Irishman's occasional oath; he seemed to be mute.

Seeing himself the victor, the Irishman slowly let go the arms of the conquered man, who breathed heavily, streams of water pouring from his mouth. Feeling his hands released, he opened his eyes, and seeing the Irishman wiping the sweat off his face, he leaned to the left side and shot his right arm straight into the air, where it remained, rigid.

The Irishman in a shock of surprise, clinched his fists and bent his shoulders to another attack. But the shoulders remained in the attacking position; his face grew petrified with surprise and understanding; his eyes were riveted to the upright hand in the air; then they turned to those of the unfortunate, who painfully lifted his eyelids again and imploringly looked into the Irishman's eyes. Then all four eyes glanced at the hand, and met again. The Irishman sunk his head.

The Hand stuck in the air. There was not a single finger left on it.

MOTHER EARTH

Monthly Magazine Devoted to Social Science and Literature

Published Every 15th of the Month

EMMA GOLDMAN, Proprietor, 55 West 28th Street, New York, N. Y.
Entered as second-class matter April 9, 1906, at the post office at New York, N. Y., under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

Vol. VI SEPTEMBER, 1911 No. 7

NOTICE

Though we are very reluctant to drop anyone from our lists, MOTHER EARTH cannot carry unpaid subscribers, since, even at best, it is published at a loss. Therefore we strongly urge our readers to send their subscriptions in AT ONCE.

Every renewal received during September and October will earn for the sender a free copy of "The Soul of Man Under Socialism," by Oscar Wilde.

SPECIAL OFFER

Thanks to the generous offer of Companion M. H. Woolman, we succeeded in enlarging our subscription list. But the magazine is still far from the self-sustaining point. In the hope of reaching that goal, we have decided to make this offer:

Anyone sending us three new yearly subscriptions before the expiration of the current M. E. year (closing with the February issue, 1912) will be entitled to a free copy of one of the following books, sent postpaid: (a) "Conquest of Bread," by Peter Kropotkin; (b) an autograph copy of "Anarchism and Other Essays," by Emma Goldman; (c) any dollar book carried by us.

We hope our friends will lose no time in availing themselves of this opportunity.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

838

900615029

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Interview] Labor's Seeress Predicts a Commune If M'Namaras Die / Emma Goldman.– 30 cm. In The Globe and Commerce. –[(Oct.?, 1911?)].

Obtained from the private collection of Heiner Becker. Institutional Location: the International Institute of Social History.

THE GLOBE AND COMMERCE

LABOR'S SEERESS PREDICTS A COMMUNE IF M'NAMARAS DIE

Deaths Quickly Avenged Should Forces of Capitalism Succeed in Executing the Two Brothers, Says Emma Goldman.

ANARCHIST, BUT HAS NO PEER AS AUTHORITY

Working World Has Grown Vastly More Radical, She Finds, and Conviction Spells Another Haymarket, or Worse

Another "Haymarket," born of a workingmen's emeute, will convulse America if the McNamara brothers are found guilty of being dynamitards and their lives forfeited to the law, according to the keenest student of labor evolution in the world.

"Should the forces of capitalism which seem determined to execute these two brothers succeed," says this authority, "their deaths will be quickly avenged."

It detracts not a whit from the value of this opinion to disclose that its author is Emma Goldman, frankly and aggressively an anarchist. Herein, however, lies the reason why the utmost weight attaches to her deliberately formed dictum. She is not welcome in labor circles. Her name is anathema. She is the pariah whenever chance association links the two causes. Despite that, this keen-minded woman knows more about the American labor movement than any disciple in it.

In her own thorough way, preaching her ideal of "Anarchism, the Moving Spirit of the Labor Movement," which is the title to one of her lectures, she has in the twenty years of her stormy petrel experience gained a knowledge of the movement and the value of the personal equations as they are found in its leaders which make her paramount.

NOTHING OF VIRAGO.

Anybody expecting to find a fire-eating virago breathing death and vengeance to rulers and the destruction to all established social orders will never recognize this type in Emma Goldman. Now passing her forty-second year, of moderate blonde type, with the clear, healthy complexion of a girl of fifteen, strong features and wearing glasses, rather short and just a little stout, she looks very much like a school teacher.

Soft-spoken and carefully weighing each question, she gives a deliberate answer, and once she tells you her views she is prepared to stand by them and take the consequences, even if it means the jail.

Just returned from a lecture tour of the middle and far west, including several weeks in and around Los Angeles, where the McNamaras will be prophesies shows that he can also be a fool, but I feel safe in saying that we will have a mighty social upheaval if the MacNamaras are executed. The country had a fair specimen of the aroused working class in the trials of Moyer and Haywood, which trials I believe were conducted in a far fairer spirit than is conceivable in the MacNamara case."

EVERY IRISHMAN'S CAUSE.

"There is another important factor," she continued. "The MacNamaras are Irish, and the Irish of the United States keenly resent the way they have been treated. Now everybody knows that the Irish by nature are fighters, and few realize how solidly they are backing the MacNamaras in this fight. I believe that this fact cannot be too strongly emphasized. If anything happens to the MacNamaras there will be individual Irishmen who will see that they are avenged.

"The majority of the people of Los Angeles are satisfied that the Times building was destroyed by a gas explosion, as gas had been escaping in asphyxiating quantities for days. Dynamite experts brought in by the police have declared that nothing like the results of the explosion could have been caused by dynamite. They said everything went to prove that it was something like gas, which detonates much more slowly."

CHICAGO CELEBRATES 40TH ANNIVERSARY OF BIG FIRE

TO INDICT ALLEGED GIRL BORGIA T

Annie Crawford Is Fo cused of Causing H Death by Poison.

NEW ORLEANS, O
of Miss Annie Craw poisoning her sister form to-day when jury returns an ind
No formal charg
Miss Crawford ca
father, her mothe
all of whom died stances during t
the facts surro be adduced on
The case wi
one of the d
District Cour will probab
November. of the dist sicians who heels in the fused to sp ily, those l
Gertrude C
Mrs. Willia his wife, als
Miss Craw
fusing to s half of each
Each afterno
visit from M
It will be

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

839

900615029

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Interview] Labor's Seeress Predicts a Commune If M'Namaras Die / Emma Goldman.— 30 cm. In The Globe and Commerce. —[(Oct.?, 1911?)].

Obtained from the private collection of Heiner Becker. Institutional Location: the International Institute of Social History.

the middle and far west, including several weeks in and around Los Angeles, where the McNamaras will be placed on trial next Wednesday, Emma Goldman was found to-day in her apartment of three or four rooms five flights up (rear) in the big tenement house at 210 East Thirteenth street, where she has resided for years.

Her tiny suite is both a home and the headquarters of the international propaganda she conducts. There she edits and arranges for the publication of her monthly magazine, Mother Earth, one of the most radical monthlies in the world and which has subscribers in practically every country.

She talks about the labor movement just as she does the drama, art, or problems of maternity, and makes in each instance a thorough analysis. She has made a special study of the McNamara case and has a lecture on it which she calls "The McNamara Case and Burns—Government by Spies."

DOUBTS CONVICTION.

"I do not believe," she said to-day, "that it will be possible to get a jury in California to convict John J. McNamara, the secretary of the Bridge and Structural Ironworkers' Union, and his brother, who were kidnapped from Indiana and are charged with conspiracy and the dynamiting of the Los Angeles Times Building, in which several lives were lost.

"I very much doubt if even the radicals here in the east have more than a faint conception of how thoroughly aroused labor is in the middle and far west on this McNamara case. It is wonderful. You know I am not over popular with the majority of the labor union people, and am opposed to the socialists perhaps more than any others, but I found all grades of unionists united in this fight.

"Gompers has gone further in this fight than any of us supposed he was capable of going. He has gone from one end of California to the other denouncing the kidnapping of the MacNamaras.

"If Burns has a strong case against them, as he has led many to believe, he made a great mistake when he kidnapped these men in violation of all law and rushed them incommunicendo across the country. He had a far better chance to convict them in Indiana, as no man in California is so cordially disliked as Gen. Harrison Grey Otis, the owner of the building they are accused of dynamiting. A very small number of merchants and manufacturers are supporting him for class reasons. He was for years the tool of the Southern Pacific and has opposed the people on every issue.

ADMIRES GAMENESS.

"Personally, I must say that I admire him while hating what he stands for. He is such a superb fighter. In this day of spineless men and general submission to all kinds of abuses it does me good to see a man with a backbone and full of fight even if he is on the other side.

"The country has made wonderful progress on radical lines in twenty years. I am as much of an anarchist as ever, yet I recently spoke in Ann Arbor, Mich., and received a magnificent reception from the students and professors, although but two years ago the same students did all they could to break up my meetings.

"I have just ended a tour including fourteen university towns and cities with a like result. It is not that Emma Goldman is one particle less radical, but that the country has made intellectual progress.

"If they should execute the MacNamaras the capitalists will have a rude awakening. They will find the temper of the people very different from that of the days of the Chicago anarchists. Then the trades unions were absolutely indifferent and their own leaders smothered what resentment was displayed.

"It has been said that anybody who

ANNIVERSARY OF BIG FIRE

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—Chicago to-day celebrated the fortieth anniversary of the great fire of 1871 which destroyed $200,000,000 worth of property and caused the death of 300 persons. In Grant Park the beginning of the fire is to be staged in realistic manner. A replica of Mrs. O'Leary's historical barn is to be fired as a feature of the evening's parade. A cow has been secured to play the part of the famous animal which, according to the generally accepted belief, started the big blaze by kicking over a lamp.

In this connection Michael Ahern, the only living police reporter who "covered" the story, says:

"The fire was not started by a cow kicking over a lamp while Mrs. O'Leary was milking the animal There was a social gathering in the neighborhood that night. Two women of the party went to the O'Leary shed to get some milk for punch. One held a lighted lamp while the other milked the cow. They thought they heard some one coming, and in their haste to escape the lamp was dropped, setting fire to the place."

GLOBE STORY INDUCED HIM TO JOIN CHURCH

Fifteen years without ever having entered a church was the record of this New Yorker. And it was a record that gave the owner much pride. Then about the time of the conviction of Henry Clay Beatty for the murder of his wife, the man read in The Globe an interview with Dr. Christian F. Reisner, pastor of the Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, 131 West 10lth street, on the case. In the interview Dr. Reisner had stated that whether or not Beatty was guilty of the crime he was charged with, if he was capable of treating his wife and baby as he did, he was capable of murder.

The man who scoffed at churches said to himself that he wanted a look at the man who expressed such an opinion. He went to the Grace M. E. Church and heard Dr. Reisner preach. That night he joined the church, telling the pastor the circumstances that had led to his changing his views.

Jewish Colony Planned.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—The Hebrew Farmers Colonization Society has decided to take 450 thrifty Jewish families from Chicago and locate them in the famous Wheatland district in Wyoming. Each will be advanced $1,000 in cash. It is understood that Julius Rosenwald is at the head of the project.

The farmers will be given ten or fifteen years in which to pay back the money, without interest.

Mrs. "Jack" Geraghty Ill.

NEWPORT, Oct. 9.—Mr. and Mrs. John S. Geraghty, the latter formerly Miss Julia S. French, have postponed their trip to New York which was to have been begun to-day, as Mrs. Geraghty is confined to her bed with a cold, caught by wearing low-neck gowns at the theatre.

Going Back to Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Oct. 9.—Dr. Jesse D. Burks, who resigned as director of the Bureau of Municipal Research several months ago to become a member of a commission to investigate the school system of New York, has consented to return to his old post here.

half of each
Each afterno
visit from M
It will be arraignm
Crawford office and the sum of life.
The chiefly able do doubt th or could family
Annie herself b presence Crawfor
"trouble not con hypothe that F took h ped by mitte

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

840

840514110

The Emma Goldman Papers

October Twenty-Ninth, 1901 / Emma Goldman. — pp. 232-235 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. — Vol. 6, no. 8 (Oct. 1911).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

about the existence of free press and speech. There is no such a thing in America. Every day, men and women are arrested and sent to prison for exercising their right of free expression. Would to goodness the workers could realize this fact! They might then, set to work in earnest to re-establish the long-lost article, free press and free speech. They have an excellent opportunity to begin right now. In aiding Jay Fox to score a victory over the provincial busy-bodies, at the Home Colony, they will at the same time serve a great human purpose. All contributions are to be sent to Nathan Levine Home, Lake Bay, Washington.

* * *

A LITTLE girl and boy, brother and sister, have been expelled from the school at Perth Amboy, New Jersey. Being of English parents, they refused to salute the American flag. What really should have been done, was to expel the teachers who artificially create respect for the emblem of war and bloodshed, thus proving themselves utterly unfit to have anything to do with children. It is due entirely to the stupidity of such people, that the minds of the young are being poisoned with the national germs, so fertile to all the evils in society.

* * *

OCTOBER TWENTY-NINTH, 1901

IT was in St. Louis, the 6th of September, 1901. I was just entering a street car, after a day's hard work soliciting orders for a firm. Suddenly my ears caught the sound, "Extra, extra, the President shot!" I was too fatigued and miserable to heed the cry; besides, one is so used to newspaper "extras," one rarely stops to investigate.

At dinner in a friend's house I learned that President McKinley had been shot by a man by the name of Nieman. One of our company remarked jokingly, "I should not be surprised if they will connect you with the act." The man spoke more prophetically than he realized.

The following morning I started on my day's task, which promised to be particularly hard, as I had to employ my skill to induce a business house to close a large order. It took all morning to settle the matter and left me even more dejected than the previous day. I dragged myself to the nearest restaurant and, while waiting to be served, I looked at the papers. There it was, in large black headlines, "President McKinley shot by an Anarchist, Leon Czolgosz—the man confessed to having been incited by Emma Goldman—the house of the publisher of the Anarchist paper Free Society raided—8 Anarchists arrested to be held until Emma Goldman is found—detectives sent to all parts of the country to arrest the dangerous woman."

The whole thing seemed so absolutely preposterous that it took me some time to realize its significance; but after an hour's reflection, while I sat in the restaurant with people discussing E. G. around me, I decided to make for Chicago that very evening. It was not easy to get away, without arousing suspicion. My St. Louis friends had arranged a small dinner party for me on that same date, the 7th. To leave abruptly would have caused an inquiry as to my whereabouts, which under the circumstances had to be avoided. I therefore went through with the affair, and then made the night train for Chicago.

Ten years have passed since that terrible time,—terrible, because it disclosed, as in a flash, the savagery, the blind fury, the yellow human soul. Not only the knavish soul of the newspaper clique, nor yet the brutal soul of the police; nor even the mob soul, so appalling in its massiveness. But more than all else, it was the soul of the so-called radicals, manifesting itself in such contemptible cowardice and moral weakness, that impressed me with never-to-be-forgotten vividness. They, more than the yellow Hearsts, more than the prostitute press, more than the mad public, proved the loudest defamers of the boy who had dared to strike the blow.

But for them Leon Czolgosz would not have been dragged to the block, like a sheep to slaughter. But for them, his last moment would not have been agonized by the consciousness of being deserted, betrayed, forsaken by his own brothers, even like Christ.

"All men are equal before the law," is one of our slogans. What a farce, what hypocrisy! The case of Leon Czolgosz has stamped this American boast as a lie. Indeed, there is no parallel in the annals of this

841

840514110

The Emma Goldman Papers

October Twenty-Ninth, 1901 / Emma Goldman. – pp. 232-235 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 6, no. 8 (Oct. 1911).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

country, where a human being has received less equality, less justice, less fair play, less humanity, than did this truest American child, Leon Czolgosz. From the very moment when he was nearly beaten to death on the Exposition grounds by a fury-drunk mob and the police, until he was dragged to the "trial," this modern Christ was forced to go through a thousand Golgothas. Not a kind word, not a human touch, during all those awful days between September 6th and October 29th, when in the name of a "merciful God" and a "just law" he was done to death.

True, the law was observed,—Leon Czolgosz was assigned two lawyers to "defend" his case. This farce must have made the angels weep. As if even a child did not know that the victim would be denied the simplest human rights. And the lawyers! What a disgrace to the human species, how despicably, how cringingly they acted! A defence, indeed! Ferocious beasts might have shown more humanity. What pigmies these worthy disciples of Justice represent compared with the man who defended Francisco Ferrer!

Spain is an autocracy ruled by the military and clerical rod. In 1909 anti-military uprising ran high, creating the same excitement, the same fury, the same savage craving for victims as with us in September, 1901. More,—there was the blood-thirsty monster of 1,800 years, the Catholic Church, ready to devour its prey. Ferrer's lawyer had everything to lose and nothing to gain. Yet, how daring, how sympathetic was that man!

William Archer in his "Life of Ferrer," tells how the man disliked taking the case, because of his antagonism to his client. But Ferrer had chosen him,—one more example of the superior sense of justice even of an autocracy to our free country. The former grants the privilege to choose your defender, the latter imposes legal aid, which by its very dependency upon the court must be partial and unfair. He came, unprejudiced, big and fine, with the sublime mission of pleading for a human life as the sole consideration. With earnestness and devotion this man pleaded for his client as if for his own life, carrying everyone with him in the soul-stirring appeal.

True, Francisco Ferrer was innocent of the charge for which he was tried; Czolgosz was not. But, as far as the court and his accusers were concerned, Ferrer was as guilty as his American comrade. Then, too, he was before a military court, subject to absolute methods of procedure. Not so the court that tried Leon Czolgosz. It pretends fair play, impartiality, justice, democracy. Yet it remained for this court to sit in judgment over a man morally and physically bound, blindfolded and gagged, a pitifully helpless human prey, turned over to the block. Were America glorious with a thousand noble deeds, her brutal inhumanity to the boy in Buffalo would forever condemn her as the most savage and cruel nation of the world.

* * *

Ten years have passed since the hideous hour of October 29th, but the spirit of Leon Czolgosz is not dead. How could it be, with its roots in the depths of the ever-growing conflict between the disinherited millions and the possessors of the earth?

"I did it for the good of the people," were the last words of the solitary youth in the death-chair of Auburn prison. But the people knew him not, the people passed him by in blind hatred. Yet with all that, he was flesh of their flesh and blood of their blood. He suffered for them, endured humiliation for them, gave his life for them. His tragedy consisted in his great and intense love for the people, but unlike many of his brother slaves he could neither submit nor bow his neck. Thus he had to die.

It is said that I inspired the act. I repudiate the charge. Not because I would not take my stand with this victim of our time, but because I know that he whose hatred of injustice and tyranny burns at white heat is beyond external influences. And Leon Czolgosz must have hated tyranny, else he could never have died such an heroic death. No, he could not have remained so serene, so wonderfully oblivious to all the trivialities of his surroundings.

It is this death, solitary and sublime, that will always stand out as the great symbol in my recollection of that sombre figure of October 29th, 1901.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

842

900615046

The Emma Goldman Papers

Dear Friend / Emma Goldman. — New York : Mother Earth Pub. Ass'n., 1911 Oct. 2, leaflet. — 1 p. ; 23 × 18 cm.

Obtained from the private collection of Heiner Becker. Institutional Location: the International Institute of Social History.

MOTHER EARTH PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION
80 West Twenty-Eighth Street
New York

Oct 2 —
~~September~~ —, 1911.

DEAR FRIEND:

We are at last able to inform you that the "Autobiography of an Anarchist," by Alexander Berkman, is nearing completion.

We do not think it an exaggeration when we state that the book promises to be one of the most valuable and original contributions to the psycho-revolutionary literature of the world.

Its literary merits you will be able to judge for yourself later on. For the present we merely indicate some features of the book, to convey an idea of its character.

PART FIRST.

Early Influences.
Anarchist Circles of New York.
The Homestead Strike.
The Decision.
Looking Backward.
The Iron City.
The Seat of War.
The Act.
The Third Degree.
The County Jail.
Murderers' Row Anxious Days.
The Trial.

PART SECOND.

The Inferno.
Desperate Thoughts.
The Call of Life.
Prison Routine: Workshops, Inquisition, Refined Cruelty.
Craft.
Physical, Mental, and Moral Effects.
Convict Psychology.
The Stress of Sex.
Homosexuality.
The World Without.
The Lure of Liberty.
The Underground Tunnel.
The Solitary.

PART THIRD.

From Purgatory to Hell.
The Resurrection.
The After.

Before we can turn the MSS. over to our printer, we are anxious to ascertain what assistance we may expect from our friends, either in advance subscriptions (which we now offer at $1.25, instead of the regular price of $1.50) or in contributions. We shall credit the donors with copies equivalent to the amount contributed toward the funds needed for the publication of the work.

We shall greatly appreciate an early reply.

Sincerely,

Mother Earth

840514112

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Crime of the 11th of November / Emma Goldman. — pp. 263-266 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 6, no. 9 (Nov. 1911).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

a fight, and a crowd collects. If I get struck with a club, or someone hits me on the head with the butt of a revolver, I know that, according to Tim Sullivan's law, it must be a police officer, and that I am under the protection of law and order.

* * *

JOSEPH PULITZER, proprietor of the New York World died. The newspapers reek with canting eulogy and hollow admiration of the man. All voices join in the vociferous chorus of insipid commonplace and corruption. The burden of the professional plaint is Pulitzer's wonderful success, his marvellous intelligence and exceptional ability, lofty aims, uprightness, fearlessness, and so forth.

A few words to illumine the disgusting salaams.

Pulitzer began his career as a "determined radical,' the sworn enemy of the predatory rich. The accumulation of fabulous fortunes was to be curtailed, and reasonable limits set to individual income and possession; there was great danger of unchecked wealth corrupting public affairs. Within a short time, however, Pulitzer himself became a multi-millionaire of vitiating influence.

There was a time when Pulitzer was proud of his acquaintance with Michael Bakunin. But his "marvellous intelligence" quickly taught him that the path of the rebel against social injustice is thorny with poverty and persecution. His "lofty aims" resolved themselves into efforts of affording the people the luxury of gas kitchens at alleged "cheap" rates.

As journalistic sensation-monger he exerted his "astounding abilities" to pander to the lowest tastes of the "common people," indefatigably catering to popular superstition, prejudices, and fads. He trained his hired writers to "hit off" the events of the time, life with its struggles, as sensational copy, flat and stale, but "interesting" reading. His lofty purpose was to serve spicy sauce instead of meat, pungent chewing gum for bread, vapid soup for wine.

Were a future historian to suffer the misfortune of having to draw upon the pages of the World for his data of contemporary life, he would be forced to conclude that filthy politics, rape, kidnapping, murder, and divorce were the sole interests of our time.

To a greater degree than any other man Pulitzer fostered the degradation of the reporter even below the niveau of the detective. For social movement, for ideas and ideals above the daily curiosity of the good citizen and taxpayer, his newspaper had nothing but sneers. His eulogized "fearlessness" consisted in the shameless effrontery of feeding the public sweetened filth and mire labelled pure, wholesome nourishment.

* * *

SATURDAY, November 18th, MOTHER EARTH will celebrate its annual Fall Gathering (Terrace Lyceum, 206 East Broadway). Our friends will welcome the occasion to combine the festive spirit with comradely exchange of views and impressions.

The affairs of MOTHER EARTH have come to be the rendezvous of libertarian elements. Let each one help in still more emphasizing this year the unique character of our gatherings.

* * *

THE CRIME OF THE 11TH OF NOVEMBER

By EMMA GOLDMAN.

"Right forever on the scaffold, Wrong forever on the throne."
—LOWELL.

LEST we forget: On the 11th of November, 1887, the representatives of government, the interpreters of the law of Chicago, committed a crime that belongs among the most damnable in history.

Eight men, active in the labor movement, eager to organize, to educate and to enlighten the workers, were held responsible for the throwing of a bomb, although the real perpetrator had never been discovered, and remains unknown to this very day. A corrupt police force, a bloodthirsty judge and a misguided jury, incited by a lying press, conspired in this dastardly act.

Four of these victims—Albert Parsons, August Spies, George Engel and Adolf Fischer—were strangled to death on Labor's black Friday, the 11th of November, 1887. Louis Lingg secured a dynamite

844

840514112

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Crime of the 11th of November / Emma Goldman. — pp. 263-266 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 6, no. 9 (Nov. 1911).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

cartridge, which he exploded in his mouth, thus robbing the hangman of his prey.

Samuel Fielden, Michael Schwab and Oscar Neebe were sent to the Joliet Penitentiary. They were pardoned by Governor Altgeld in 1893. His reasons for doing so prove conclusively that the trial of our comrades was a deliberate outrage, a violation of every principle of truth and justice.

It would be well if the jurors who will sit in the McNamara trial could and would read the now famous document of Altgeld. It might help them to see that plutocratic influence, the bribing and terrorizing of witnesses, the perjury of contemptible spies to "fix" the evidence, make it well nigh impossible to get at the facts, and still more impossible to render a fair verdict.

* * * * * * * *

Louis Lingg closed his address before his virtual executioners in court with the following significant words:

"I protest against the conviction, against the decision of the court. I do not recognize your law, jumbled together as it is by the nonentities of by-gone centuries; and I do not recognize the decision of the court. My own counsel have conclusively proven, from the decisions of equally high courts, that a new trial should be granted us. The State's attorney quotes three times as many decisions, from perhaps still higher courts, to prove the opposite; and I am convinced that if in another trial, these decisions should be supported by twenty-five volumes, they will adduce one hundred in support of the contrary, if they shall be Anarchists who are being tried. And not even under such a law, a law that a schoolboy must despise, not even under such methods have they been able to 'legally' convict us. They have suborned perjury to boot."

Our comrades in Chicago knew what to expect in a court whose course was directed by the privileged classes. They knew that the high dignitaries of plutocracy and power clamored for the conviction and death of the Anarchists; and that the police as well as the court were determined to meet the demand for a fair trial with deaf ears and with brutal fists.

In choking our comrades to death, the authorities hoped to nip in the bud the spirit of resistance among the workers, and to eradicate Anarchy. But they erred miserably. Ideas can never be killed.

When the Russian revolutionist, Soloviov, mounted the scaffold, he said: "I die to-day, but our cause will never die." The oppressors of mankind, much against their will, are being forced to recognize this truth as an irrefutable fact.

The memory of the heroic death of Parsons, Spies, Lingg, Engel and Fischer stirs anew our admiration and love for them; filling us with a yearning for a fate equally sublime as theirs. Our souls rise in deep indignation against their executioners; but hideous as their murder was, it yet gives birth to all that is good, strong and beautiful in our beings. Their memory inspires us to raise the torch of rebellion, to spread its glowing light from horizon to horizon, that the people may be gripped to their very depths, and cry out against the wanton crime.

That martyrs of liberty grow in their graves, that they become more dangerous in the stillness of their deaths than as living champions, that they remain immortal, must be a terrible truth to the enemies of freedom. Yet the vital lesson they will never learn.

While the memory of despots and tyrants, of statesmen and warriors is maintained only through artificial and arbitrary means, that of the pioneers and advance guards of humanity, perpetuates itself from generation to generation, serving as an impetus to lofty ideas and efforts, pointing the way to great and daring deeds. The thought of them has inspired the best and bravest of mankind and has urged them on to hold high the banner for which their comrades had given their lives. Not so the cursed memories of the Neros, the Napoleons, the Bismarcks, the Shermans, the Stolypins and their kind. It is productive only of hatred and strife, brutality and greed.

Our great dead, buried at Waldheim, in the Communard grave at Pere Lachaise and at the black wall of Montjuich, are the greatest educators of mankind.

845

840514112

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Crime of the 11th of November / Emma Goldman. — pp. 263-266 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 6, no. 9 (Nov. 1911).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

They need no system; their sublime example helps to awaken enthusiasm, fortitude and zeal.

Our great dead, from the scaffold and the block, the rifle shots and the electric chair, who sent their last greetings to Liberty, are not dead; they live with us always, unto all eternity. Thus the people learn to know the men and women who have perished for the emancipation and liberation of all. Not a single one of the great legion has lost his life in vain. Their thoughts and deeds supply the leaven by means of which will rise a new and beautiful world.

* * *

WENDELL PHILLIPS, THE AGITATOR

By MAX BAGINSKI.

ON the twenty-ninth of November, it will be one hundred years since Wendell Phillips was born. He died the second of December eighteen hundred and eighty-four; and although that is but a short time ago, yet he is already nearly forgotten. Officially the American republic does not honor his memory; for he was neither a statesman in the service of Mammon, nor a general with a famous and a bloody record.

Wendell Phillips was a powerful agitator who sought no other success than the enlightenment and emancipation of the people. Agitation to him was a means by which to counteract the poison of despotism that for its own aggrandizement keeps the masses in ignorance and inertia. Such agitation is still tabooed. The only kind of agitation that meets with the approval of the leaders of the nation is that which keeps alive and active the superstition of the ballot, to the end that they may realize on the spoils of victory.

Barely twenty years of age, Wendell Phillips was on an easy road to a successful career. Endowed with brilliant abilities and having splendid connections, he opened a law office; but the spirit of the time willed it otherwise:

"In the early thirties," says Phillips' biographer, Lorenzo Sears, "a movement was under way which was so unpopular that its promoters might as well have been paroled convicts."

Young Phillips threw his whole soul into this unpopular movement of the Abolitionists. He gave up his profession, "because he could not conscientiously follow it under a constitution which recognized property in human beings, and sanctioned their return to bondage after their escape from it."

It was very dangerous then to be an Abolitionist. William Lloyd Garrison was made the victim of a well-dressed mob and dragged through the streets of Boston. Publishers of Abolitionist papers were threatened and their offices demolished. In 1837 Elijah Parrish Lovejoy fell a victim in Alton, Illinois, to the revolver shots of the defenders of slavery. The printing plant of his paper, the Observer, had been destroyed four times in succession. His assailants were mostly well-to-do citizens, who saw in slavery a sacred and unimpeachable institution. Whoever dared to attack it, was a criminal and an atheist who sinned against the Lord himself. This anti-Abolitionist fury was fostered not a little by the government. President Andrew Jackson issued a proclamation against the "incendiary agitation" of the opponents of slavery. Congress, too, lent its aid to break down the "constitutional rights of petition, the freedom of the press and speech."

As wage slavery is to-day, so was black slavery then considered a God-annointed institution. The language, misrepresentations and calumnies used against the Abolitionists are almost identical with those hurled at the Anarchists in the present day.

Thanks to his intensity, enthusiasm and brillant oratory, Phillips was the most dangerous opponent, and therefore incurred the bitterest hatred of the slave holders. Time and again his meetings were broken up. Fanueil Hall, the scene of many storms, was eventually closed to the friends of the black man. Instead it was turned over to the defenders of slavery. The police willingly closed both eyes in the presence of these wild and savage scenes enacted by the rich mob, by politicians and ministers of the gospel; so that

846

840514114

The Emma Goldman Papers

Observations and Comments / Emma Goldman. — pp. 290-292 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. — Vol. 6, no. 10 (Dec. 1911).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

OBSERVATIONS AND COMMENTS

THE desert of American thought and feeling has never been exposed in all its withered aspects and barren coldness as in the McNamara case.

Not that this cruel monster has not slain its victims before. In 1887 it choked to death five men on the gallows of Chicago. In 1892 it buried alive a real martyr of the people in the hell of the Pennsylvania penitentiary. In 1901 it killed a solitary soul risen from the dim distance of the social conflict, in the electric chair of Auburn prison.

But in all these cases the victims who ventured into the desert of American thought and feeling were Anarchists, dangerous elements to our self-centered interests, pariahs by law and the social ban.

Not so the McNamaras. They aimed not at the reconstruction of society and the overthrow of all its vicious institutions. They themselves would repudiate any connection with the Anarchists, because they believe in law, believe in citizenship, believe in their God.

Why, then, this mad cry against these men? Why this horrible, vicious outbreak against them?

Because America is the desert of thought and feeling. Because it never takes the trouble to know, and lacks the humanity to understand. Because to all motives of human action it continues blind among the blind. Lawmaker and judge, politician and reformer, trade unionist and Socialist, all puddle in the muddy waters of political life, bent on shallow, tinsel success. Never do they look beneath the surface, nor do they want to know that there is anything beneath the surface. The immediate is the thing, and for that they lie and cheat, compromise and barter, all for the shallow, tinsel, immediate success.

When something occurs, tremendous in its sweep, when it digs up the soil, root and all, our puddlers stand aghast, all unanimous in the cry, "We did not know! We have been deceived! To the cross with the criminal!"

O, for the craveness of ignorance! O, for the hypocrisy of cowardice, ever ready to shake its skirts, ever rushing to condemn, ever willing to convict, ever anxious to do the henchman's job!

But yesterday J. J. and J. B. McNamara were the heroes of the mass; but yesterday their path was strewn with roses by a thousand eager hands; but yesterday their brows were crowned with laurel and their names hailed with palm leaves. To-day they are dragged in the mud, reviled and degraded, beaten and bruised by the very people who heard them gladly. O, for the craveness of ignorance, the sham of cowardice!

The McNamaras are not Anarchists, nor would they care for the sympathy of the Anarchists. Nor is it for their sake that the one voice in this wilderness of American life, that of MOTHER EARTH, cries out against the slimy, creepy, cowardly renunciation of these two victims of a bitter, relentless, and inexorable social war.

MOTHER EARTH cries out against the cheap and vulgar excuse: "We were deceived, we thought the men innocent, we did not know." Deceived in what? That there is a war? That there are two forces pitted against each other in a savage combat? Innocent of what? That the McNamaras did not stake their lives in behalf of their class, or that they had any choice between love and hate?

If the excuse of ignorance and deception is really true, then the trade unionists and reformers, the moralists and political Socialists are fools, and utterly unfit to be the teachers and leaders of the people. He who is ignorant of the condition of our present system, thereby becomes responsible for its existence.

But it is not ignorance, nor is it deception, nor yet the question of whether the McNamaras were innocent or guilty, that has dictated the course of the howling mob, in and out of office. It is cowardice—yellow, cringing fear of public opinion, the loss of a job, or the decrease in a few votes—that prompted the dastardly repudiation of the McNamaras. If nothing else, that alone would cleanse those two of all guilt, and throw the entire blame on those who continue blind because they will not see.

No, the McNamaras are not Anarchists, nor do they understand Anarchism. But Anarchism understands them. It understands the terrible struggle of the disinherited, the soul of the worker exploited, harrassed, humiliated, whipped into line, until finally driven to strike back with the only weapon his tormentors have left at hand.

847

840514114

The Emma Goldman Papers

Observations and Comments / Emma Goldman. — pp. 290-292 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. — Vol. 6, no. 10 (Dec. 1911).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

Anarchism knows that if guilt there be, it must be hurled, not at the McNamaras, but at all and every apologist of the system of organized crime and violence; at those who keep up the brazen lie that this system can be reformed, or that anything can be changed in its régime by sentimental compromise or political wire pulling.

Knowing and understanding the power which drove the McNamaras, MOTHER EARTH must go on record against the blood-drunk defenders of law, against the howling chorus, in and out of labor ranks, against the "well-meaning" reformers who attempt to harmonize the insatiable beast, Capital, and its prey, Labor; against the contemptible political leeches who have made campaign material out of the McNamaras, and are now loudest in demanding the severest penalty.

Whatever the consequences, MOTHER EARTH would rather take the stand with the McNamaras than with the cowardly pack. It does so because it is neither ignorant nor cowardly, because it faces facts, terrible as they are, because it hopes that out of the realization of it all will emerge the redeemer, Liberty,—from the strife and pain, from blood and tears, the solidarity and harmony of the human race.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

* * *

APROPOS of the legalized wholesale slaughter when it serves the interests of capitalist and governmental robbery, or of religious hatred, the following item in the Catholic World is characteristic:

> The Turks, whether old or young, deserve—as their whole history has proved and the recent campaign in Albania has exemplified—complete and immediate expulsion from Europe and the destruction of all dominion over Christian races.

The Catholic World is convinced that the murderous persecution of other religions and races is the exclusive monopoly of Christianity.

* * *

LABOR leaders in this country are so busy repudiating the McNamaras and whitewashing themselves that they have neither time nor desire to take an interest in other important labor struggles.

For instance, the Aberdeen free speech fight is surely of sufficient consequence to arouse the so-called labor representatives. The police of that city have terrorized the workers by breaking up protest meetings, raiding the headquarters of the I. W. W., confiscating the books and treasure of that organization, and railroading men to prison by uniformed thugs.

As usual, the real perpetrators of this wanton suppression of the freedom of speech, press, and assembly are the legalized thieves,—the money power of that section of the country. The excerpt below from a letter that reached our office from Aberdeen illuminates the situation:

> The fight is not between the city officials of Aberdeen and the I. W. W., but is in reality between the Lumber Trust and the Loggers. The lumber bosses in the Aberdeen country have been slashing wages in a frightful manner. This has resulted in a great wave of discontent sweeping over the workers. The I. W. W. attempted to direct this spirit of discontent along effective lines. The bosses objected, hence the fight. The bosses are thorough and have a perfect organization. They are making an attempt to wipe out all forms of labor organization, political, industrial or trade union type. They demand what they call industrial freedom. We call it absolute slavery. If we lose this fight, we may as well close all our halls in the west and forget that we ever tried to make a fight for economic freedom. . . . To win this fight we need publicity, funds, and men. We can supply the men. We feel sure that if you can, you will aid us in gathering funds and giving this struggle publicity. This fight is to be carried on along direct action lines: the bosses are determined that there shall not be even a pretense of law and order. Funds will be needed to feed the men while en route to Aberdeen, and as we will need at least 1,000 men, you can see the necessity for money.

We urge our readers to come to the immediate rescue in this great fight. Contributions are to be sent to Ed Gilbert, 110 South [illegible]t., Tacoma, Wash.

* *

THE campaign of [illegible]ution against the Home Colony and the Agitator still continues. The demurrer asked for in behalf of Jay Fox has been refused by the court, and the farce of a trial will therefore take place. Thereby the authorities hope to kill the Agitator and to discourage the men and women of the Colony who have made such a brave fight for freedom. That the authorities may not succeed in this infamous scheme, all liberal-minded people should at once come to the aid of our comrades of the Agitator, Lakebay Post Office, Home, Wash.

848

840514116

The Emma Goldman Papers

The New Year / Emma Goldman. – pp. 322-323 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 6, no. 11 (Jan. 1912).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

Peer beneath the pigment of a vitiated crust;
Delve into the depth of Truth, the foe of Gangrene, Rust;
There, in silent reason, let the Light guide your belief,
And Justice will make known to you your thought has been a Thief!

⁂ ⁂ ⁂

THE NEW YEAR

THE business Christians have just celebrated Christmas. To increase their profits and heighten the glory of God, they have exploited the Savior to good purpose. Splendid success of redemption! Christ gave his blood to enable the churches and department stores to do better business. If, on the right hand of the Heavenly Father, he does not swear and curse over this success to shock the very angels, his heart is a lamb's indeed.

Fortunately, we are atheists, not Christians, and in no wise responsible for the bitter disappointment of the Savior.

However, the hopes of MOTHER EARTH for the new year depend neither on religious nor political calculations. They rest on the awakened consciousness of the people, upon whom depends the great and glorious future,—a new social structure built on freedom and well-being for all.

For five years MOTHER EARTH has continued on its path to arouse the sleepy, strengthen the weak, and to enthuse the courageous, that they may form the advance guard for the coming great struggle. Its task was by no means easy; the hardships were much greater than the success. We had hoped for the assistance of all comrades, since it is well-nigh impossible to maintain a fearless and non-compromising publication in an atmosphere of mental cupidity and speculation. But they have not rallied to the support of MOTHER EARTH,—at least not to the extent one might have expected. Possibly our magazine does not meet with their entire approval; or, still more likely, the comrades fail to understand the difficult position of a paper like MOTHER EARTH, with neither a party machine nor an advertising department to back it. At any rate, the main sustenance of the magazine has come from my lectures. But for that MOTHER EARTH would have long ago ceased to be. Needless to say, Anarchism would not die should the magazine discontinue. Yet Anarchism never needed an exponent so much as it does now. The Anarchist propaganda has passed the stage of ridicule and willful misunderstanding. People are beginning to realize its deep significance and wide import. MOTHER EARTH, as the only Anarchist magazine in America, should utilize to the utmost the social change of attitude, in order to disseminate wider knowledge and information of Anarchist principles. That is its purpose; therein consists its mission.

With this in view, we again appeal to all comrades and friends to rally round the little fighter that has so bravely withstood the stress and storm of five years. We ask, first of all, that our friends renew their subscriptions. Surely that is the least they can do. A copy of "The Soul of Man Under Socialism" will be given with every renewal. Those who are willing to do more should aid us in getting new subscribers. Any friend securing for the magazine three new subscriptions will be presented with a free copy of "Anarchism and Other Essays" or "Conquest of Bread." Comrades desirous to spread our ideas on a larger scale should send for our 5c. propaganda pamphlets, to be had at $3.00 per 100.

Comrades and friends, let us join hands for the new year in the great work before us. The time has never been more ripe. The present is fast nearing its doom. Out of the chaos the future emerges in harmony and beauty.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

P. S.—At the end of this month we begin our yearly tramp through the enemy's camp. We expect to open up with a new series of lectures in Pittsburgh, Pa. Comrades and groups wishing dates will please communicate with me at once. Address: 55 W. 28th street, New York.

⁂ ⁂ ⁂

ANARCHY—Absence of government; disbelief in, and disregard of, invasion and authority based on coercion and force; a condition of society regulated by voluntary agreement instead of government.

849

840514118

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Power of the Ideal / Emma Goldman. – pp. 24-27 ; 19 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 7, no. 1 (March 1912).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

THE POWER OF THE IDEAL

> The man I touch, there awakens in his blood a burning fever, that shall lick his blood as fire. The fever that I will give him shall be cured when his life is cured.—Olive Schreiner, in "A Dream of Wild Bees."

TWENTY years ago the Power of the Ideal touched my soul, and there awakened a burning fever. I thought then that the cure is the most desirable thing in all the world, the thing one must strive for, the thing so close at hand.

Since then I have learned that the inexorable, implacable Power of the Ideal concerns itself not with the cure; that it is itself the cure, that shall lick your blood like fire. This, too, I have come to know, that he who will be cured must forswear the Ideal. Never again shall the fierce, inspiring light lure him to its lofty heights; never again shall he know the longing for the thing that awakened him to life. Such is the fate of him who has forsworn the Ideal.

Twenty years play but a small part in the eternity of time; yet in the face of disheartening, discouraging, and paralizing events, twenty years themselves are an eternity. But once the fever is awakened, time and space become obliterated, blood and tears are wiped out, all pain and sorrow put to naught, by the compelling Power of the Ideal.

For a brief period it seemed almost as if American labor had been touched by the magic hand, as if its soul had been born to life with the burning fever to lick its blood as fire. But it was a false alarm, a mere symptom mistaken for the real thing. The danger is now safely locked away behind the iron bars of St. Quentin prison, and American labor has fallen back into its usual state of mental inertia and spiritual apathy. They saw in the McNamaras merely the cure; but to the force that consumed the two brothers as with the burning fever, the American workers remained blind and indifferent.

Thus the truism has again proven itself that they who aim but for the cure are doomed to die. It matters not of what nature the cure: it is never aught but a drug, never aught but an apology for the dying fires of the ideal, too weak to kindle into life the burning fever that shall lick one's blood as fire.

Nowhere is this truism borne out with greater force than among those who pass as Socialists to-day. Time was when they were awake with a burning fever, when the illuminating light on the mountain top drew them on with impelling force. But that time is no more. Instead, the Socialists are now content with the cure,—the most dangerous of all cures, the politic cure, which has drugged their ideal to sleep, and completely extinguished the fever within them.

In Cleveland and Lorain, in Elyria and Columbus, in Dayton and Indianapolis, in St. Louis and Chicago, the political quacks are busy concocting the pills that are to bring the cure. Woe be to him or her who refuses the proscribed dose! They are anathema, and must be stoned to death. Like the Catholic Church, the Socialist machine has become the relentless, blind foe of the Ideal.

In Cleveland the machine dictates who of its members may be permitted to face the heathen Anarchist in public debate. In Lorain and Elyria, in Columbus, Indianapolis, and St. Louis, the same machine proclaims the ban on those who will not be cured by the political quacks. But the place that has proved most conclusively that the Socialists in their mad clamor for the cure have lost their ideal, is Dayton, O.

Perhaps our readers had better judge for themselves, that they may fully realize what the political zealots are doing in the name of the burning fever that once licked the soul of Socialism as a fire. In Dayton, O., the following resolution and statement were adopted antagonizing the scheduled debate for Sunday between Emma Goldman, the Anarchist, and Frank Midney:

> Resolved, That Local Dayton disapproves of any of its members debating with Miss Emma Goldman at this time, and hereby forbids such action on the part of any member.
>
> Resolved, That we authorize and instruct our recording secretary to secure a competent person or persons to attend the Goldman debate, if it should be held, in order to accurately report the same to the local; but that outside the person or persons so chosen by the recording secretary, Local Dayton requests the Socialists to remain away from the proposed debate

Following is in part the statement prepared for the press:

850

840514118

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Power of the Ideal / Emma Goldman. – pp. 24-27 ; 19 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 7, no. 1 (March 1912).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

The Socialist Party has reached the stage of its constructive work. Our ultimate object is to take over the collectively used means of life and conduct them democratically for all the workers, and so for all the human race. And our method is just as fully determined as our ultimate object. We propose to accomplish our work by patiently and persistently building a political organization of and by the workers, which organization shall at last secure the entire power of government. We work entirely in the open. We are opposed to intrigue and individual action. We seek the intelligent and collective action of all the workers.

We are therefore opposed to Anarchy in all of its forms. But we are especially opposed to the Anarchists who are in power, the Anarchists of corrupt government and corrupt business. These are the opposition to our cause, and we seek to meet them in the open and defeat them.

We would have taken no notice of Miss Goldman's visit to this city if the public had not been imposed upon. The Socialists of Dayton are not debating with Miss Goldman at this time. We ask all Socialists of this city (organized and unorganized) to remain away from the proposed debate if it is held. The Socialists will not be represented should the debate occur.

All members of Local Dayton are expressly forbidden to take any public part in the proposed event.

We warn the puhlic in advance that if any "Socialist" demonstration or opposition is reported to have occurred at the debate, if held, it will be a demonstration of Anarchists masquerading as Socialists. The answer of the Socialists will be to remain away from the proposed occasion. If the general public is interested in knowing the authorized word of the Socialists of Dayton with reference to the alleged dynamiters, they are cordially invited to attend a free meeting at the Auditorium Theatre, Sunday night, where that subject will be discussed.

The sinner has since been excommunicated from the Socialist party, for a period of two years. Luckily this new church lacks the power to erect its scaffolds, or Mr. Midney would meet with the fate of the heretics of the past. It is to be hoped, for his sake, that he may see the terrible danger of this growing inquisition which would, if it could, become the modern Torquemada, yet more cruel, because lacking even the vision of the Spanish predecessor. Such is the penalty for those who mistake the cure for the ideal. A cure indeed, from its own life-dream, its own inspiring purpose, its own idealism, even. A cringing, creeping, nauseating thing, is this cure.

It seems dark just now on the horizon of American life; yet there is a glimmering light in the distance, calling and comforting to him who can but see it. Lawrence, Mass., is that light,—and the burning fever its newly awakened, impelling force. Thus the Ideal is never to be eradicated.

My meetings, though small, have made up the lack of numbers by interest and enthusiasm for the light that streams from Lawrence. Everywhere this light is giving birth to new hopes, to a new chord in the great human struggle. Never once have I appealed in vain in behalf of Lawrence, the battle ground where the great fight is being waged so heroically. If, then, my work had accomplished nothing else, the help for Lawrence would surely justify the pain the tour entails.

"And the burning fever I shall give him shall not be cured until life is cured." But life creates life; it therefore recreates the fever that shall lick the blood as fire. Such is the inexorable, implacable Power of the Ideal.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

P. S. So far the following sums were collected for the benefit of the Lawrence strike.

Fieldman—E. G. debate, Carnegie Hall, N. Y.	$532.00
Fieldman—E. G. debate, Republic Theatre.	143.00
Open-air meeting, Union Square, N. Y.	100.00
Cleveland, O., Ruthenberg—E. G. debate	32.00
Cleveland, O., E. G. Jewish meeting	35.00
Lorain, O., E. G. meeting (Socialist Administration)	3.00
Columbus, O., E. G. meeting	5.48
Dayton, O., Midney—E. G. debate	21.00
Indianapolis, Ind., E. G. meeting	19.72
St. Louis, Mo., E. G. meeting	62.62

The New York amount turned over to Bill Haywood and Elizabeth Gurley Flynn.

All other moneys sent to Joseph Bedard, Lawrence, Mass. The Chicago amount will be accounted for in next issue. E. G.

* * *

ANARCHISM—The philosophy of a new social order based on liberty unrestricted by man-made law; the theory that all forms of government rest on violence, and are therefore wrong and harmful, as well as unnecessary.

851

840514120

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Power of the Ideal / Emma Goldman. — pp. 49-54 ; 19 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 7, no. 2 (April 1912).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

Men beaten up in cells, their screams being heard by the other prisoners.

Police refuse to allow copies of San Francisco Bulletin or San Diego Herald, containing news items on fight, to be sold on streets, and arresting all who attempt sale of same.

Sworn affidavits as to bitter prejudice on part of members of grand jury, who indicted prisoners on felony charge, are held by judge in no way to invalidate indictment. Yet jury was not charged to try men by name, but as members of the I. W. W. The felony charges are based on the action of prisoners who destroyed jail property, as protest against being denied food and water, being compelled by thirst to drink out of the toilet.

Between two and three hundred men, women and children have been arrested, being members of the I. W. W., Socialist Party, and trades unions.

The trades unions on the coast are realizing that this fight is their fight and every effort will be made to march to San Diego the 50,000 unemployed men who will soon be paraded in San Francisco. Officials of the A. F. of L. of Los Angeles state that when this army reaches Los Angeles in its line of march, that city will swell the ranks by 10,000.

Money is needed to conduct the defense of the many who are to be railroaded to the penitentiary on a charge of criminal conspiracy—conspiracy to violate a law aimed at free speech and organized labor. These men, women and children are fighting your fight—a fight that must be fought if the labor and revolutionary movement of the Pacific Coast is to retain any of the so-called inherent rights previously existent. It is quite possible that the war in San Diego will resolve itself into a struggle of national import, and you are strongly urged to do your part in giving the oligarchy's association the greatest fight in its experience.

Trusting that the above will inspire you to put yourselves immediately on record as supporters of the working class in this battle, both by way of appropriate and effective publicity and by financial assistance to the extent of your ability, we are

Collectively yours,

CALIFORNIA FREE SPEECH LEAGUE,
PUBLICITY DEPARTMENT,
335 Union Building, San Diego, Cal.

At the present moment a number of presidential candidates are claiming the public ear. They don't tire assuring us of their tremendous interest in the welfare of the nation. But none of them—nor our loud-mouthed press—has a single word of protest against the outrages upon the elemental rights of the people being perpetrated throughout the country by plutocratic conspirators, aided by irresponsible law maniacs. It is high time—and we want to impress this most forcibly upon the labor organizations of the country, as well as upon the enemy—that this hounding of the workers be stopped, and stopped quickly, with a firm and resolute hand. For this purpose we call upon the workingmen of the country at once to proceed to organize militant self-defence bodies, to assert, aggressively and determinedly, their rights to life and liberty.

⁂ ⁂ ⁂

Unemployed of America! Proletarians, Attention!

March on San Diego. Join the army of ten thousand marching from San Francisco; join the March of the Hungry. Go to San Diego; demand your right of Free Speech; demand bread; demand freedom. You are not wanted where you are, and San Diego needs you. Fall in line. BE MEN.

California Free Speech League.

⁂ ⁂ ⁂

THE POWER OF THE IDEAL

> "For the man I touch there is a path traced out in the sand by a finger which no man sees. That he must follow. Some times it leads almost to the top, and then turns down suddenly into the valley. He must follow it, though none else sees the tracing."
>
> —OLIVE SCHREINER, in
> "A Dream of Wild Bees."

AND who is more ready with advice than those that do not see the tracing? If the struggle is hard, they say, why not give up? why go on? How are they to know that he who is touched by the Ideal, must follow the tracing in the sand, though it never lead but down to the valley? They do not know, hence do not understand.

Since last I wrote, our path never lead but to the valley. More than once it seemed as though we could not continue. But such is the power of the Ideal, that one must go on in spite of himself. At the moment of black despair, of heartrending disappointment, there always appears the mountain top, so temptingly near; and though none else sees the tracing, he whom the ideal has touched must go on.

852

840514120

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Power of the Ideal / Emma Goldman. — pp. 49-54 ; 19 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 7, no. 2 (April 1912).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

CHICAGO, always hideous and depressing, has been made endurable by the faithful few MOTHER EARTH has gathered on its tireless journey. But even they could not infuse life into the monotony of Chicago. And but for the debates, there would be nothing of interest to record. However, the debates helped to disclose the great gap in the world of American intellectual life. They also showed, more than Anarchists ever could, the emptiness and bombast of American Socialism.

A friend of mine nicknamed Chicago "I second the motion," because it has no originality and always apes New York. I do not think I am particularly addicted to local patriotism, yet I am convinced that such limitations as demonstrated by one of my opponents, Dr. Denslow Lewis, and such vulgarity as displayed by the "Prophet of Chicago Socialism," Arthur Morrow Lewis, are entirely Chicagoan, since no one in New York could be guilty of either to such an extent.

Dr. Lewis is a well-known physician, a man who for years has been somewhat of a pioneer in urging sex instruction in schools. One would therefore suppose him to be well posted and broad-minded. But he is woefully lacking in both. His defence of the institution of marriage, as the conserver of the best interests in society, consisted of an eulogy of the new tendency of the State in demanding marriage certificates of health. That, the Doctor urged, would protect woman, and insure greater harmony in the marriage relation. The human mind is indeed a strange compound, if an educated, enlightened man will see in the ever growing invasiveness of the State a cure for our social cancers.

The debate with the Socialist Prophet was, to say the least, funny. It took this man two years to decide whether E. G. was worthy of his "Eminence." I do not know what decided in my favor, except that Mr. Lewis may have recognized that E. G. is a good business investment. At any rate, after much bargaining, the "prize fight" was agreed upon. And though my Socialist opponent proved himself more amateurish than a little street urchin, I am grateful to him for the opportunity he has given his flock to see how barren the man is, when he is called upon to defend his cherished position. Verily, among the blind the one-eyed is the seer; otherwise his adherents would long ere this have seen the shallowness of the man.

I have debated with a great many Socialists, but for bombast and arrogance, Lewis beats them all. These were some of his intellectual gems, "Direct action is unscientific, because the I. W. W. are bums, tramps, and hoboes, easily bought and sold; therefore it is insanity to expect anything vital from them." "Insanity, madness, idiocy, and stupidity" are Mr. Lewis's favorite stock phrases, applied to every one who will not agree with him. Needless to say, the Anarchists—according to Mr. Lewis—are nothing but a pack of lunatics; as to Kropotkin, he is just foolish. However, that is not all. "Direct action means doing things with your bare hands. The direct actionist will raise a car with his bare hands, instead of taking a lever." Of course, the lever is political action. "Because I work within the law," said Mr. Lewis, "I can speak in the finest halls in Chicago. But look at E. G., she is a direct actionist, she must speak in dirty halls. What, then, does she accomplish?"

There was much more of such wisdom, but these quotations will suffice to acquaint our readers with the quality of the man's mind and character. Yet he has been for years the leader and teacher of some people; imagine, if you can, what these people must be. In the way of preparing his congregation, Lewis had the bad taste to announce a lecture on "The Failure of the Anarchist Philosophy," just four days before the debate. But even that stood him to little purpose. His insinuations, his cruel, unjust attacks on the I. W. W. boys, who now fill the jails in San Diego and who fought such a heroic battle in Lawrence, who starve and suffer, while Lewis travels about in his automobile, were more than even his sheep could stand. The debate itself was, of course, a farce. I had to use all of my time to defend the "bums, hoboes, and tramps," not so much because they needed a defence, but because all my sensibilities were outraged by a supposed Socialist using such "arguments" regarding a world-wide economic awakening. Then, too, it has always been an Anarchist tradition to sponsor the victims of political demagogues—the workers, used, betrayed, humiliated, and reviled by their leaders.

The Jewish meetings proved most interesting. Apart

853

840514120
The Emma Goldman Papers
The Power of the Ideal / Emma Goldman. — pp. 49-54 ; 19 cm. In Mother Earth. — Vol. 7, no. 2 (April 1912).
Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

of being the largest, they were also the most worth while, because of their quality. Certainly no other race will furnish from five hundred to a thousand people interested in such subjects as "Art and Revolution" or "Chantecleer," nor will one easily find so much understanding and fine apprcciation among other people. The credit for the success of the Jewish meetings is due entirely to Comrade Wm. Natansohn, his sisters, and our faithful little Dr. Miriam Yampolsky.

Our visit to GRAND RAPIDS, while causing a considerable loss, was made good through the reunion with our splendid Comrade Wm. Buwalda. He and Comrade Bergman certainly left nothing undone to make the meetings successful. But between the Catholic Church to poison the minds of the masses, and the numerous factories to emaciate their bodies, it is difficult to get a large audience. Our ex-soldier boy is as fine as ever. He is a shining example for the power of character that will survive all odds. And one must have a very strong character, to come out unmarred by fifteen years in the U. S. army.

DETROIT, with its memories of Der Arme Teufel, its recollections of roses, wine, and song, can never quite lose its charm, dismal as the present atmosphere is. The faithful Mohican of the old guard, Emma Clausen, acquitted herself admirably as an "advance agent." With Comrade Ben Gordon she worked for weeks to make my coming known, and their efforts resulted in splendid audiences. On the other hand, our friends Mr. McKenney and Dr. Carr, provided the social phase of our visit, which made it both pleasant and restful.

ANN ARBOR has undergone a marvelous transformation since our first experience there. The same students who two years ago nearly caused a riot, were as gentle as lambs, most attentive and respectful, which is a triumph indeed. To a large extent this may be due to Prof. R. M. Wenley, who had delivered a series of lectures on Anarchism, thus dispelling the fog in the student's mind. But on the other hand, it was our first visit and the wild display of the students which no doubt induced the good Professor to deliver his course. Whichever the case, the change has taken place.

MILWAUKEE, the ruins of the erstwhile citadel of Socialism, bears witness to the paralyzing effect of the political hashish. Heine said that to waken the Germans one would have to tickle them with a lamp post between the ribs. Since Socialist politics has entered Milwaukee, nothing short of a torpedo will awaken them. I admire the courage of Comrade Leo Copczynski, if he can retain his devotion and zeal in such a sluggish, deadening atmosphere.

MADISON is still on the map, but the students do not make it a particular credit to the rest of the world. There are exceptions, of course. The average student, however, could learn much from some of our Jewish shop girls and boys. The latter are by far more alert, interested and intelligent, than these pampered American fellows, to whom college life is but a means to more successfully meet the world of greed and power.

MINNEAPOLIS is always a joy, and our friends ever true blue. Alas, the unique little Bohemian studio, which so charmed us last year, is no more. It was raided by the eunuchs of American morals, because the artists had made the unpardonable mistake of imagining that art in America can go about without pants and skirts. Think of such a crime! The "offensive nudes" are now in the safe care of the police, and our group of artists scattered to the winds. Ruth is still here. She it was who arranged the meetings, this being her first experience; and she did fine. With her, Esther Rabinowitch, Ada Wolfe, Axelson, and a few more friends worked hard for the lectures, while our old companions Grethen, Caspar, Richmand, and one or two others, furnished the fellowship part of the visit, which made it both pleasant and useful.

OMAHA, while never overburdening us with worldly success, always retains a warm place in our hearts. No small part of that is due to the sweet and gentle spirit of dear Mother Fageberg. She and her girls are a most remarkable family; their devotion to each other, and their kindness to all who come to them, make one feel far removed from this petty, ugly world of ours.

Our ever young and vigorous Mother Fageberg is certainly an inspiration. I felt it more this time than before, when I listened to her reminiscences of her meeting Bakunin in her native land, Sweden, after his escape

854

840514120
The Emma Goldman Papers
The Power of the Ideal / Emma Goldman. – pp. 49-54 ; 19 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 7, no. 2 (April 1912).
Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

from Russia. The young Swedish girl carried away by the master mind and deep stirring powers of the Father of Anarchism. After fifty years of barren American life, Mother Fageberg is as she must have been then, in Bakunin's presence, idealistic and full of enthusiasm, now carried away by one who, like herself, received her first inspiration through the wisdom of a great teacher. How powerful is the Ideal, sweeping across space and time, knitting people together into one great, sweet comradeship.

Omaha added to our list of friends young Clarence Keelins, so unlike his generation. If only sordid life will not break him, he is sure to prove a valuable addition to our ranks. Also, our friend Sarah Vermehren, who faced the floods rather than miss the meetings. And, of course, our old faithful worker, Agursky.

After the impetus given to all of us by the Lawrence strike (for which, among other sums already acknowledged, $130.00 were contributed in Chicago), comes the battle for free speech in San Diego, which should enlist the cooperation and sympathy of every liberty lover. We have already started a fund, and will continue to hold that brave fight up before the public.

And though none else sees the tracing, he who has been touched by the Ideal must follow it to the very end.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

We mean to spend two weeks in Colorado, taking in Pueblo, Colorado Springs, Cripple Creek, and Boulder; thence to the seat of war, San Diego, Los Angeles, and San Francisco. We can be reached, until April 25th, Gen. Delivery, Denver. After that, until May 12th, Gen. Delivery, Los Angeles.

* * *

ANARCHISM—The philosophy of a new social order based on liberty unrestricted by man-made law; the theory that all forms of government rest on violence, and are therefore wrong and harmful, as well as unnecessary.

BRIEUX'S THREE PLAYS

By M. BAGINSKI.

BERNARD SHAW contributed a long and clever preface to Three Plays, by Brieux, the most daring dramatist of our time. We use "daring" advisedly, because in spite of all our "enlightenment" and "modernity" it requires a good deal of courage openly and frankly to deal with the problems involved in these dramas; problems which, though they have long since revealed to the initiated the shame and incompetence of society, are still tabooed by the institutions that dominate public opinion, by universities and schools. These problems are of the greatest significance to life, to individual as well as to social welfare. They touch the intimate relationship of the family—of men, women, and children. And yet a blindfolded morality and persistent hypocrisy strive their utmost to keep these problems in the swamp of ignorance and silence.

In Three Plays Bricux boldly tears the veil off these forbidden subjects. He treads the path of Balzac, Ibsen, Zola, Maupassant, Tolstoy, Strindberg; but often he differs from them, in so far as the characters in his plays are entirely predetermined by their social conditions and environment; they flutter helplessly, like flies entangled in the spider's web. At every step the reader gets the overpowering impression of the necessity of revolutionizing social, economic, and sexual conditions of life, in order that the individual may breathe more freely. At every step the characters in the plays of Brieux run painfully up against the thick walls of social and moral prejudices that bar their way and hem them in, helplessly, on every side.

In the first play, Maternity, Brieux attacks the advocates of large families, of unlimited procreation. Who thunders loudest against "race suicide"? The capitalists and the generals. With good reason: they require armies of pariahs to fill their factories, they need the youth of the nations for the slaughter-fields of war. The hundreds of thousands of unemployed serve to depress wages, and thus increase the dividends of the wealthy patriots who, on their part, take very good care to limit their own families. In their case, many children would tend to

855

821221002

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Interview] Sex Problem Talks Fill Hall to Doors, Says Emma Goldman / Emma Goldman.— p. 12 ; 25 cm. In The Daily News [Denver]. —(April 17, 1912).

Obtained from the Denver Public Library, Denver, CO. Institutional Location: Western History Department.

CITY HISE 6

ate Den- o High- hool.

ROAD

of Theatre ship on

d in the night to & Inter- tly pur- ompany, a racks from t line near Park addi- ion to the e view of the tracks by Alder- stated that ay with it connection moffat road that both be married the trans- night that tion is to of freight ermountain which are terests.

City.

turn to the ade. Two he company ect either all right to on to made the streets

Alderman opening of very conve- ng the Mc- Mahoney handed him roduce it.

Mrs Effie the passage ening con- ion hashing protest the they desire their ants to her let- cents would many poor compelled in han pay the ranting to he Refining ranchise for name of all West Thir- fifteen street or alley be- ween street Sixteenth e discussion ture of nine NTROL.

It is—The is to be a Democratic ill most here com district ar at large on. Indica- ry to block

SEX PROBLEM TALKS FILL HALL TO DOORS, SAYS EMMA GOLDMAN

Noted "Anarchist" Discusses Modern Day Questions in "Sale and Sane" Interview; Says She Has Preached Ideas Now Being Exploited in Magazines.

BY ALICE ROSE.

"It is really quite interesting to note," said Emma Goldman yesterday afternoon, "that when I come to Denver my lectures upon the great, sweeping, broad subjects of economics are very poorly attended, but when I lecture upon sex subjects the hall is packed. At my last visit I counted fifteen automobiles in front of the dingy, cheap little hall in which I talked."

"And do you regard this as a sign of awakening thought or of minds looking for something they think will be not—also?" I asked. Miss Goldman smiled rather strangely and replied:

"Whatever the motive was that brought these people to that lecture, they appeared extremely interested and expressed a deep interest in the remarks.

"Indeed, I attribute it to the slow but sure awakening. You cannot imagine the changes that have come in the last ten years. Positively, when I talked upon sex subjects ten years ago I was ill for days afterwards. The experience of looking into those leering faces, of talking to people who grasped only what they thought to be a discussion of the lewd, of the immoral, was too much for me. I was only preaching the very things that are being discussed today in literature and in universities.

Alice Rose.

"Yes, indeed, in college," continued Miss Goldman. "My very dear friend, Dr. Ulrich, a woman of great learning and advanced views, is now instructor of eugenics in the University of Minnesota. Do you regard that as a step in advance?"

All in Literature.

The most insistent thought that keeps coming into one's mind when talking to Emma Goldman, called in terror, by the unthinking, a red-handed anarchist, recognized by the dispassionate as one of the greatest intellectual forces of the day, is that these views which she has been preaching for the past twenty years are being served to us with great flourish of mental pyrotechnics in our recent "advanced" literature.

This thought, that when Emma Goldman makes a statement it is regarded as shockingly anarchistic, but when Ellen Keyes or Karin Michaelis express the same view it is regarded as the message of the "emancipated," was so overpowering yesterday afternoon that I asked Miss Goldman what she thought about it.

"The pioneer in any movement is bound to be branded by conventionality," said Miss Goldman, "and the acceptance of ideas which were regarded as anarchistic, as food for discussion in clubs today shows the slow but sure awakening of the feminine mind, at least."

Return to Chastestos.

"Do you, in view of all the things you have endured for the sake of your ideas and beliefs, regard your struggle as worth while? Do you consider the struggle against the dark wall of decent ignorance for the illuminating of the few worth while?"

Miss Goldman smiled. "Do you remember the lines in Chanticleer, where the Cock discovers that he does not cause the sun to rise?" she inquired. He was content to announce the coming of the dawn.

"Mary Wollstonecraft," continued Miss Goldman, "preached what I am preaching years ago. She was the real pioneer, and whenever I have encountered difficulties I look back at this brave woman who lived in convention-bound England at a time when it was far more difficult to gain self-expression than it is even now."

Miss Goldman indeed does not regard suffrage in Colorado as advancing the general status of women particularly, for she holds that here and in other suffrage states the women are afraid to advance on account of their political positions. The ballot, she says, has not developed them mentally.

"Women in states where suffrage does not exist are more fearless in self-expression than in those states where they have the franchise. Those women fighting in England, while they may cease to develop after the battle is won, are making great strides, for they are sacrificing everything for their ideas and their ideals."

Strike of the Sex.

"What do you consider the greatest question, the greatest upheaval of the present day? Is it not the woman movement?" I inquired.

"It is indeed," replied Emma Goldman. "We may call present conditions the strike of the sex.

"The important thing for women to consider, however, is that the economic emancipation of the race is absolutely interwoven with sex enslavement. Economic conditions must be solved along with the woman question. Woman has too long been a commodity instead of a creative force; today, however, she is solving her questions herself and the individual emancipation is the forerunner, of course, of a more universal emancipation."

The recent newspaper articles all over the country in regard to Karin Michaelis' startling assertion that a woman has the right to motherhood when she desires brought to mind the fact that Emma Goldman, "anarchist," accused of immoral teaching, has long accepted this new newspaper admitted contention.

"Why, I think the same as I have always thought," said Emma Goldman. "Karin Michaelis is bringing out no new idea. I assert that until women may bear children when they please the future race will be just that much retarded."

Question of Motherhood.

"Motherhood should be a desired event in a woman's life. She should have the right to bring into the world offspring by a man she loves. She should not be forced to bear children against her will because she wears a gold band on her left hand. All of which merely reverts to the subject of eugenics, a science which may be taught in other universities than Minnesota and which will lead to the betterment of the coming generation."

The teaching of sex hygiene in the schools and the open discussion by the Mothers' congress of Denver Miss Goldman regards as encouraging signs.

"If only these in authority knew how to direct the awakening of sex in adolescence into the right channels we would have art and music and literature, the beautiful expressions of this force, instead of the ugly motifs which ignorance breeds in our convention-bound system," she said.

Tonight at East Turner hall Emma Goldman gives her lecture, "Sex, the Great Element of Creative Work." Concerning this she maintains with scientists it is as tremendous a power that its development into vice through ignorance is a crime of society.

A quiet, bomb-throwingless, bloodless conversation was this interview with Emma Goldman, a woman who has read beyond the belief of the busy workers' ideas, a thinker who has, through her insistence upon telling the truth, expressed her ideas regardless of conventions.

So far as the Nemesis policeman who has pursued the plain-spoken Emma Goldman, he may be found in other scenes where women fearlessly express their ideas, only, of course, he does not always wear a uniform and carry a club.

EMMA GOLDMAN, Famous Expounder of Anarchistic Doctrine, in Denver to Deliver Lectures

FAMOUS FOU WI

James W perado, M

1,000 Pl

Slain Ma Western

VICTO James A notorious man," kn as one of found dead mountain of the For One Frank peeling an walk alon upon Worf bullet hol frozen and several da viewed the perade wa The last was in Cri then gone any inquir of Warfor bruised, a blows fro

Not the as to wh sheriff's to work may lead taken fro caliber, w ability, m hand in t Workm ago. Whe in search from Mi as a depu In Nove killed Ch two unkn constable Warford is agree was disch ward Bail his gun.

Warfor alleged

SLAUGHTER! YES, CASS ALSO RAN!

EVANS-BAILEY ROLLER WINS PRIMARY

The time

Will you secure pleasurable mil "just tires"?

"Goodrich Se GOOD WIL

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

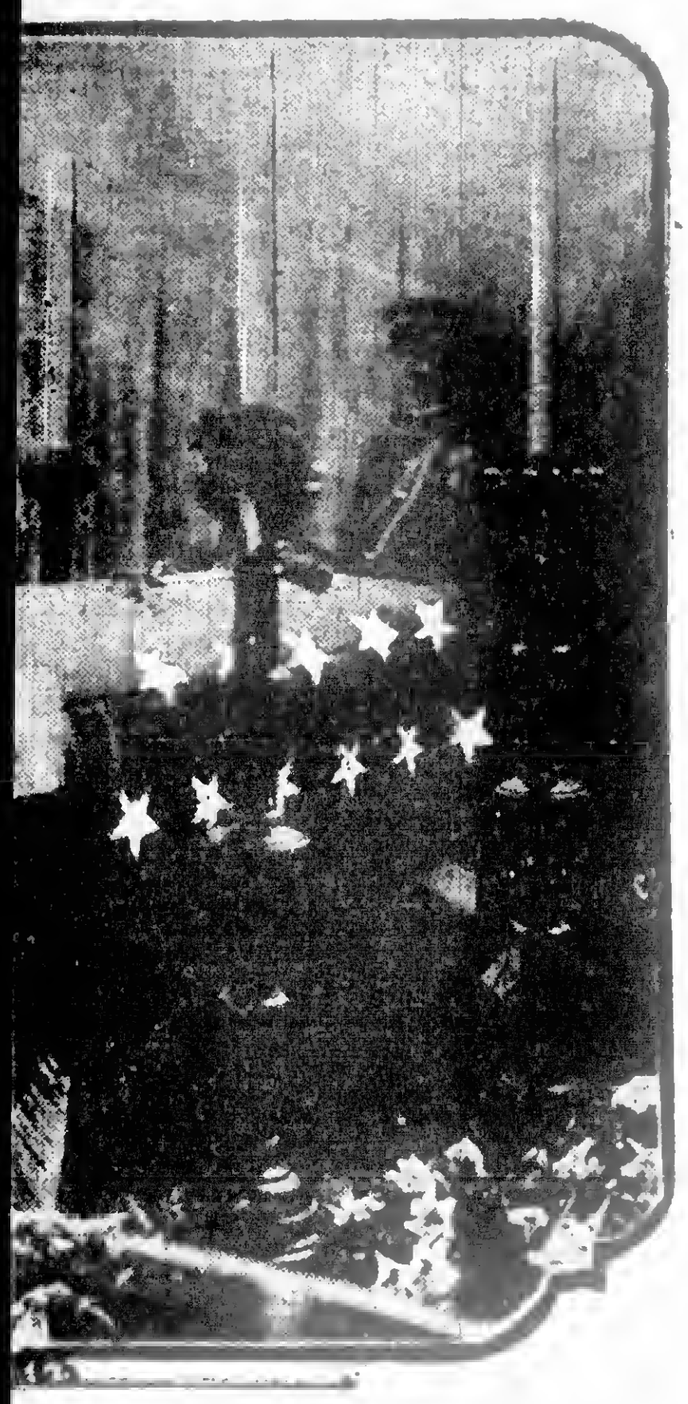
856

890505006

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Pulpitless Preacher Creates Scene at Goldman Meeting / Emma Goldman.— p. 16 ; 43 cm. In The Denver Post. —(April 17, 1912).

Obtained from Butler Library, Columbia University.



. the world is at last going to give it a trial.—Elbert Hubba

NVER POST

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 17, 1912. TWENTIETH YEAR.

GRANT LIES HIMSELF BUILT

apel at Governor's Island—the structure he had built.

AN TO BROWN

archy Will on Ros- cler.

elhoom of the an will deliver ntecler. Miss e of the most merica today, ter from her way to arrive one who has ned to her ar- or withholds ons intellectu-

Palace will be o hold to the ve caught the and since soc- in the speaker will be one of thered together

CARPATHIA SENDS DISTRESS MESSAGE ASKING FOR HELP

Wireless Reported From Cape Cod Causes Fresh Alarm.

Well Fleet, Mass., April 17.—"Carpathia has asked for help."

This message was received here this afternoon through the lighthouse station at North Truro, on Cape Cod. The vessel gave her position as 50 miles east of Cape Cod at noon.

The operator says he is positive that the Carpathia has all the passengers of the Titanic that were rescued, numbering approximately 800. Those on board saw a number of bodies floating about in the debris which strewed the ocean's surface. The wireless operator also stated that

PULPITLESS PREACHER CREATES SCENE AT GOLDMAN MEETING

Anarchist Lecturer Says Pinkham Is Delirious and Needs Nurse; High Society Cheers Radical Theoress.

(By FRANCES WAYNE.)

Merely to prove that an anarchist can't get along without authority and law any more than he can go without clothes and evade being pinched, the Rev. Henry W. Pinkham—always the village cut-up—rough housed the meeting in which Emma Goldman expounded on "Socialism Caught in a Political Trap," to high society and a few of the "rest of us" at East Turner hall last night.

It is in the memory of even the pin-feathered gentry when it was the pleasure and the bounded duty of everything and everybody, from the "cop on the beat" to the hall cat, to mar the tranquility of Miss Goldman's argument. And as for nice people swapping two bits for a seat at her lecture—the thing was unheard of.

But times have changed. The "theories" which Emma Goldman has preached and shouted above the clamor and riot of clanking bottles and the hiss of the frilletine have become the accepted belief of thousands of law-abiding people who have discovered, if such a national shame as the Lawrence strike is to be avoided, men and women must become so humane and so law-abiding that they will need no law, and no authority. Hence Miss Goldman is slowly being absorbed by respectability. She is become de rigeur and other things, as far as ennuied society is concerned.

Society, grown tired of imitating a stuffed, glass-eyed aviary, is searching for thrills. Miss Goldman has 'em in carload lots. As a consequence, much of the smart set went to East Turner hall last night, climbed through the beer fumes to the adultorium and took front seats.

Mrs. Richard Sykes, crisp as a pretzel in tailored togs, with neck bow of shimmering tulle and Lichtenstein hat, accompanied Mrs. Horton Pope, wearing furs and a creation in blue. Mrs. William Ward, always strenuous in the service of the uplift, found out from Emma G. how the maximum result may be attained by the minimum effort and applauded as did the low browed gentleman from Hungnry, who sat adjacent.

Miss Goldmnn had declared that socialism had flown wide of its mark by going into politics and becoming the tool of politicians. She maintained that its dreaming adherents had been caught in a trap laid by wide awake schemers, and if there was to be any hope for the people, that hope lay in anarchism.

Whereupon, in the time of questions, uprose the Rev. Mr. Pinkham and asked why it was that "the barker" had imposed a limit on human speech by announcing that "there would be a few short questions allowed."

"Now no one who is not insane can become an anarchist," declared the pulpitless parson. "And to prove that anarchism is a mere vapory theory, I will venture to prove that authority and rules and laws will be called into force before I finish my remarks."

Whereupon the Reverend Pinky wound up his mouth and seemed to forget where he had left it.

Betimes society grew hectic and enthused. One well-known, scholarly lady listening to a person from Servia declare that he "had gotten two in the hall"—meaning tickets dispensed for an anarchist lecture at a Socialist meeting—shouted at the offender, "Be quiet or you'll get it in the neck!" Which levity and elemental courage brought a genuine laugh from her fellow auditors.

A gentleman perched nigh unto this part rose and asked if he could get his quarter back, since he had come to the hall to hear Miss Goldman and did not care to listen to the chuggings of the vocalizing person.

The voice of Pinkham went on. Miss Goldman, resembling Mrs. Fiske nt Rebecca West, made notes. Anon questions were hot through the Pinkham drone, which elicited the attention of the star, who made more memoranda. By this time Pinkham had become an island entirely surrounded by irate membera of the audience, who declared they wouldn't be short changed and wanted to hear Miss Goldman.

Miss Goldman rose slowly, waved her small hands, and vowed that the human phonograph needed a nurse.

"The man who has taken up most of the evening talking doesn't understand the first principles of anarchism or socialism," exclaimed Miss Goldman. "He says no one but insane people are anarchists. Being n trained nurse by profession, I can tell when a man has a temperature. Also the gentleman, being delirious, is not competent to tell when others are insane. Indeed, though, it is characteristic of the insane to call other people crazy.

"Anarchism means liberty," went on the speaker, "and freedom of the individual, as long as it does not take away the liberty and freedom of another or invade his rights, as this man has done. Why, he isn't even a socialist, he is an elementalist, and under other circumstances would come in here and beat his way to attention by using clubs. Anarchism does not believe in invasion, but it does hold the right to resist a man who attempts invasion. This poor, fevered person is not only an elemaotalist, but a governmentalist and he needs a nurse, and that quickly."

Pinkham subdued—his point proved to his own satisfaction—sat in his chair and smiled blandly backk at the commanding woman on the stage, whose wit is as a keen-edged sword, whose logic flows like clear water.

Society having taken up Miss Goldman, as society finds it profitable to do, Miss Goldman is going to do something for society. Tomorrow night in the hall-[illegible] of the Brown Palace at 8:30 o'clock the great anarchist, who, with William Jennings Bryan, has come into her own on her "theories" which have turned into essential facts, will deliver her lecture on "Chantecler." The lecture will be free and when the speaker has done with the drama poem we shall know the glory of poetry and the blessing of labor. Come early and avoid the rush of the exclusives.

TELEPHONE YOUR WANTS TO THE POST. Largest Circulation.

E. H. MARSH THRO FROM TRAMWAY BY A CONDUC

Had Transfer, Was on Line, but Boarded at Wrong Place.

ANOTHER DAMAGE

He Contemplates Inst Action Against Tram Company.

It behooves the man who wo safely for one nickel on a tram In Denver these days to be su not near-sighted nor suffering other impairment of vision.

E. H. Marsh, manager of the hotel, and incidentally a near-sigh boarded an inbound Stout street morning and asked for a transfe Fourth avenue line. He rode to and there took a Fourth avenue

When the conductor examined h fer he told the hotel man it was because he did not get on at and Stout. Marsh said he knew of any such requirement since duetor on the other car had given transfer without comment of and so far as he had ever been he was at liberty to transfer any chose.

The conductor said that it was business of any conductor to give tions to passengers, but that it w the passengers to read the print mation on the back of each trans

IMPOSSIBLE TO READ RULES

Marsh stated that his near-sig would have made it impossible fo read the finely-printed orders ha tempted to. But his physical aroused no sympathy, and the refused to accept the transfer, that the hotel man pay another the mistake into which his faulty had led him.

Marsh refused to pay, and the forcibly ejected him. He now plates instituting an action aga tramway company for damages.

S. Abrams, a merchant tailo city, and a veteran of the war w tween the people and the tramw pany in Seattle, where he formerl had an altercation with a condu garding a transfer on a Den which recalled the incidents of t city contest.

"Out in Seattle, six months a had just such a contest as is now," said he, "and the people The tramway company gave it rules about transfers as the ones here—you must get on a certain a certain place at a certain tim transfer was no good. If you block out of the way it was pay nickel.

"The mayor and the city offici all on the people's side. The ci passed an ordinance to the ef transfers were good on any and and cancelling that restriction boarding a car at a certain corn company took the case to the court.

PEOPLE WON IN STRUGGLE

"But the people didn't give mayor, the sheriff and all the stood by them. When a conduc tused a passenger's transfer and to throw him off the car, a P was usually on the job with a run the tramway man in if he d out the rough stuff. And it company drew in its horns and people of Seattle can ride the 857

890505003

The Emma Goldman Papers

Suffrage Dealt Blow by Women of Titanic / Emma Goldman. – p. 8 ; 41 cm. In The Denver Post. – (April 21, 1912).

Obtained from Butler Library, Columbia University.

9

10

11

MRS. HONORA MACPHERSON. Citizens' Candidate for County Superintendent of Schools.—Photo by De Lux.

FIREMAN OVERCOME BY STIFLING SMOKE

Michaelson Store Damaged to Extent of $10,000 by Blaze in Basement.

A [illegible] which started in the basement of Michaelson brothers' store, 1758 to Larimer street, at 10 o'clock last night, damaged the stock to the extent of $10,000. The headquarters of the S. & H. Trading Stamp company on the second floor of the building suffered smoke loss of $2,000. Both companies carried but partial insurance on their stocks.

Bradley Harris, pipeman of No. 1 engine company, was overcome by smoke while at work in the basement, and was just able to drag himself to the opening in the rear of the building, where he was taken out by his fellow workers. He was revived and returned to work. Several other firemen were made ill by the smoke which belched forth in great volumes from the basement.

Max and Michael Michaelson, owners of the store, told Chief Owens that they had just closed the door for the night when they first saw the smoke. They stated that there was no combustible matter in the basement and that it had been cleaned out Friday. They had no theory except a defective wire.

Charles Carroll, the 10 year-old son of E. D. Carroll, a clerk at the Arapahoe county court house, and living at 3520 [illegible] street, was severely hurt at the fire. He stumbled over a fire hose and fell, striking his head. The police surgeons think his skull was fractured.

SUFFRAGE DEALT BLOW BY WOMEN OF TITANIC

Emma Goldman Inquires to Know If Equality Is Demanded Only at Ballot Box--Human Nature Came Into Own in Men.

By EMMA GOLDMAN.

Barring all sensational and conflicting reports of the Titanic horrors there are two features which seem to have been overlooked altogether. One is, the part woman has played in the terrible disaster, which to say the least, is in keeping with centuries of her training as a mere female.

With all the claims the present-day woman makes for her equality with man, her great intellectual and emancipatory achievements, she continues to be as weak and dependent, as ready to accept man's tribute in time of safety and his sacrifice in time of danger, as if she were still in her baby age.

"The men stood aside to let the ladies go first." What about the ladies? What about their love superior to that of the men? What about their greater goodness? Their demand to equal rights and privileges? Is this to be found only at the polls, or on the statutes? I fear me very much that the ladies who have so readily accepted the dictations of the men, who stood by when the men were beaten back from the life-boats, have demonstrated their utter unfitness and inferiority, not merely to the title of man's equal, but to her traditionary fame of goodness, love and self sacrifice.

It is to be hoped that some there were among the steerage victims at least, who preferred death with those they loved to life at the expense of the loved ones.

The second feature is this: To die for those we love is no small matter in a world where each is for himself and the devil take the hindmost. But to die for those far removed from us by a cold and cruel social and material gulf—for those who by their very position must needs be our enemies—for those who, a few moments before the disaster probably never gave a thought to the toilers and pariahs of the ship - is so wonderful a feat of human nature as to silence forever the ridiculous argument against the possibilities of human nature. The average philistine forever prates of how human nature must be coerced and beaten; how it must be kept in check and disciplined. How little he knows of the grandeur of human nature has never before been so magnificently demonstrated as by the crew of the Titanic, the sailors, stokers, workers, and drones belonging to the disinherited of the earth!

With neither club or statute to compel them, I wonder what induced these men to go to their death with greater fortitude than do soldiers on the battlefield? Why, it is human nature, stripped of all social artifice, of the deadening and dulling chase for material gains. Human nature, come into its own! into its deep social kinship which so far has only expressed itself in great stress but which points to still greater possibilities for the future, when man shall no longer his brother maim!

made by the interests in control of the road to obtain funds to build the Salt Lake extension. This will consume the greater part of the summer, if, indeed the Ene is begun this year, so that there is no immediate prospect of the culmination of Mr. Moffat's hopes, unless one of the trunk lines should deem the road a necessity to reach into Western territory.

DENVER MAN HONORED BY AMERICAN MAGICIANS

Eugene Greenleaf, a Denver boy, known in the amusement world as "Laurant, the Magician," was the recipient of an unusual honor at the annual meeting of the Society of American Magicians when he was presented publicly with a gold medal for his mystifying tricks.

"Laurant" was educated in local schools, is a member of the Denver Elks and is a brother-in-law of George T. Wells of the Denver National bank.

THREE-DAY CARNIVAL TO BE GIVEN BY WAITERS

One of the most novel entertainments offered the Denver public for some time past will shortly be presented in the form of a three day carnival to be given by the Denver Waiters' association at its clubrooms, 1645 Curtis street, April 24, 25, and 26. Max Wittels, president of the association, has written a one-act playlet entitled "The Nightmare."

Develop Your Bust In 15 Days

A Full Firm Bust is Worth More to a Woman Than Beauty

I don't care how thin you are, how old you are, how fallen and flaccid are the lines of your figure or how flat your chest is, I can give you a full, firm, youthful bust quickly, that will be the envy of your fellow women and will give you the allurements of a perfect womanhood that will be irresistible.

Develop bust New Way

They say there is nothing new under the sun, but I have perfected a treatment that I want to share with my sisters. What it did for me it can and will do for you, and I now offer it to you.

Others offer to build up your figure with drugs, greasy skin foods, creams, dieting, massage and expensive instruments and devices. I have done away with all these injurious methods and have given a legion of women a luxuriant natural development by a treatment never before offered the public. No massaging, nothing to take, nothing to wear.

I was skinny, scrawny, flat and unattractive to men. Now I claim to be the highest priced artist's model in the United States, and what I did for myself I can do for you.

I don't care what your age may be, I ask only that you be at least sixteen and not an invalid, and I will undertake to develop your bust in two weeks. All I ask is five or ten minutes of your time every day.

Write to Me Today for My Treatment

It will only cost you a penny for a post card and I will mail you this wonderful information in a plain cover so that no one will know your secret.

Don't let a false pride and a silly sense of shame keep you from enjoying to the full the charms you should have to be a perfect specimen of womanhood. Let me help you. Your communication shall be held in absolute confidence and [illegible] day.

ELOISE RAE

1326 Michigan Avenue, Suite 214, Chicago, Illinois.

858

880927002

The Emma Goldman Papers

Chantecler Most Talked of Play of Age, as Viewed by F.W.W. and Emma Goldman / Emma Goldman. — p. 5 ; 43 cm. In The Denver Post. —(April 23, 1912).

Obtained from Butler Library, Columbia University.

CHANTECLER, MOST TALKED OF PLAY OF AGE, AS VIEWED BY F. W. W. AND EMMA GOLDMAN

Fair Production Which Mystifies Society--Some Wonder What Its About--More Interested in Themselves Than Symbolism.

WITH the great stride the modern drama has made as an interpreter of social ideas and the portrayal of the human struggle against external and internal obstacles, it is difficult to say what the future may bring in the way of great dramatic acheivements, but so far there is hardly anything to compare in deep, philosophic wisdom and poetic beauty with "Chantecler."

Rostand is by no means the innovator of the feathery or animal world as a medium to symbolize human frailties and defects. All the old poets, including the great Goethe, have availed themselves of that method, in his wonderful fable, "Reineke Fox." But "Chantecler" is superior because it reflects all of life and every phase of our being.

Chantecler is the intense idealist, whose mission is light and truth. His soul is aglow with deep human sympathies and his great purpose in life is to dispel the night. He keeps aloof from mediocrity; indeed, has little knowledge of his immediate surroundings. Like all great visionaries, Chantecler is human, "all too human." Hence, subject to agonizing soul depressions and doubts in himself. Always, however, he regains confidence and strength when he is close to the soil; when he feels the precious sap of the earth surging through his being. At that time he knows the mysterious power that gives him strength to proclaim the truth, to bring on the golden glory of the day.

The hen pheasant is the eternal female. Bewitchingly beautiful, but self-centered and vain. True to her destiny, she must possess the man and is jealous of everything that stands between her and him she loves. She, therefore, employs every device to kill Chantecler's faith in himself, because, as she tells him, "You can be all in all to me, but nothing to the dawn."

The blackbird is the modern man or woman who has become blase, empty, mentally and spiritually. He is a cynic and scoffer of the earnest phases of all, absolutely without principle or sincerity himself, he detects only the small and petty intentions in everybody else.

Patou, true and stanch, is the symbol of honest conviction and simplicity of soul. He loathes the blackbird because he sees in him the embodiment of a shallow, superficial modernity, a modernity which is barren of poetic vision, which aims only at material success and tinseled display without regard for poise, harmony or peace.

The peacock is the overbearing, conceited, intellectual charlatan, the spokesman of our present-day culture; the idle prater of "art for art's sake." As such he sets the style and pace for the idle pursuit of an idle class.

The guinea hen is none other than our most illustrious society lady. Sterile of mind and empty of soul, she flits from one social function to another, taking up every fad, clinging to the coattails of every newcomer, if only he represents station and prestige. She is the slave of fashion, the imitator of ideas, the silly hunter after effect. In short, the parasite upon the labor and efforts of others.

The night birds are the ignorant, stupid maintainers of the old. They hate the light because it exposes their mediocrity and stagnation. They hate Chantecler because, as the old owl remarks, "Simple torture it is to hear a brazen throat forever reminding you of what you know to be only too true." That is, indeed, a crime mediocrity never forgives, hence the conspiracy to kill Chantecler.

The woodpecker is our very learned college professor. Dignified and important, he forever proclaims the prodigested food of his college training as the only source of all wisdom.

The toads represent the cringing slimy hangerson, the flunkies and lick-spittles who toady and lie to everyone for their own petty personal gain.

Chantecler, then, is a scathing arraignment of the emptiness of our so-called rich and cultured. The meanness of our conventional lies, the petty jealousies of the human breed in relation to each other. At the same time Chantecler accentuates the lack of understanding and appreciation of the ideal and the idealists prevalent in society. The mob spirit, whether on top or at the bottom, employs the basest and most contemptible methods to drag the idealist down; stooping to the vilest means even to kill him for the unpardonable sin of [illegible]

In the atmosphere Chantecler continues to hope and to work for his sublime mission of bringing the golden day until even he meets his Waterloo in the [illegible] pheasant hen. It is through her that he grows weak and disclosed his secret. Through her that he goes to the silly 5 o'clock function of the guinea [illegible] her that he consents to the brutal prize fight. Through the [illegible] fate he learned to know life and the frailties of his fellow creatures; and through life that he learned the greatest of all truth, "that it is the struggle [illegible] than the attainment of the ideal, which must forever inspire the singer [illegible] Indeed it is life which has taught Chantecler that if he [illegible] rose he must wake mankind to greet the sun.

[illegible] that Sarah Bernhardt went on her knees before Rostand to [illegible] her to interpret Chantecler, but he would not yield. [illegible] great as the Divine Sarah is, she is yet a woman, therefore [illegible] essential to do justice to the eminently [illegible] The performance at the Broadway, with Maude Adams [illegible] Rostand's abhorrence of a woman in the principal [illegible] Miss Adams is more delicate than the great Sarah might have [illegible] circular fold because she is by far more feminine of physique and [illegible] more tender, artistic temperament than her great French colleague. Miss Adams has simply undertaken a task beyond her powers, and therefore [illegible] the greatest of all plays and herself a grave injury.

Miss Adams fails utterly to even convey the illusion that her frail yielding [illegible] could make the sun [illegible] to greet the sun [illegible] contention that man and woman must forever remain strangers to each other because of the gulf which separates them psychologically, arises it is that so far woman has failed to grasp the male psychology [illegible] the latter's success in whatever task he has set himself to [illegible] his assurance, aggressiveness, his absolute self-possession and [illegible] are the things that have incited man along to the very end. Rostand's "Chantecler" has all these traits to a very marked degree, else he never could remain the master regardless of everything and everybody. Defying the rabble [illegible] every conventional standard, leaving everything behind him, Chantecler cries out to "crack a doodle-doo" and remains true to his absolute determination that [illegible] nothing to stand in the way.

Maude Adams' Chantecler is the ideal male of the boarding school girl; good looking, chivalrous and attentive, the real typical husband the average girl [illegible]

The Cock's Mission Is to Shed Light and Truth--Hen Pheasant Is Eternal Female, Selfcentered and Vain.

"We live in the age of the overworked and the undereducated; the age in which the people are so industrious that they become stupid."

MUCH has been written about Rostand's "Chantecler," and much more in this country, about Maude Adams' interpretation of the prima donna cock. Reams of valuable white paper have been destroyed in the effort to prove that she is finely fitted for the ideal creation—or that she is not.

Excellent critics have grown a trifle hysterical in insisting she gets at the very genesis of the poem; or, on the other hand, that a woman personating the domineering chantecler is a gross absurdity.

And yet after all the pother, what does it matter? It is Maude Adams, a member, and "better to take pleasure in a rose than to put its root under a microscope."

Last night the poem and the women were both presented for our Western consideration.

The theater was crowded. Society, in its best raiment, was in evidence. This is a circumstance never quite fair to the presenting artist, for on Monday night at the Broadway the audience is always much more interested in itself than in the play, not giving the latter the required attention.

Observation—of one another—is more important than imagination, and while an audience forgets to dream it fails to enjoy fairies and fancies, which, after all, are the real things of life.

MAUDE ADAMS IN "CHANTECLER."

I imagine that such of us who were present last evening would have been hotel had it not been for the grotesque features of the presentation, the eternal and unusual picture of the exaggerated farm yard.

The subtleties of the poem were not discovered; the earnest effort, if not desired result of the gentle actress, were scarcely appreciated.

859

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

880927002

The Emma Goldman Papers

Chantecler Most Talked of Play of Age, as Viewed by F.W.W. and Emma Goldman / Emma Goldman. — p. 5 ; 43 cm. In The Denver Post. —(April 23, 1912).

Obtained from Butler Library, Columbia University.

forever reminding you of what you know to be only too true. That is, indeed, a crime mediocrity never forgives, hence the conspiracy to kill Chantecler.

The woodpecker is our very learned college professor. Dignified and important, he forever proclaims the predigested food of his college training as the only source of all wisdom.

The toads represent the cringing, slimy hangerson, the flunkies and lick-spittles who toady and lie to everyone for their own petty personal gain.

Chantecler, then, is a scathing arraignment of the emptiness of our so-called wise and cultured. The meanness of our conventional lies, the petty jealousies of the human breed in relation to each other. At the same time Chantecler characterizes the lack of understanding and appreciation of the ideal and the idealists prevalent in society. The mob spirit, whether on top or at the bottom, stooping to the cruelest and most contemptible methods to drag the idealist down; to revile and persecute him—aye, even to kill him- for the unpardonable sin of possessing the ideal.

In such an atmosphere Chantecler continues to hope and to work for his sublime mission of bringing the golden day until even he meets his Waterloo in his passion for the pheasant hen. It is through her that he grows weak and discloses his secret. Through her that he goes to the silly 5 o'clock function of the guinea hen. Through her that he consents to the brutal prize fight. Through his passion for her he learned to know life and the frailties of his fellow creatures; and through life that he learned the greatest of all truth, "that it is the struggle for, rather than the attainment of the ideal, which must forever inspire the sincere, honest idealist." Indeed, it is life which has taught Chantecler that if he cannot make the sun rise he must wake mankind to greet the sun.

It has been reported that Sarah Bernhardt went on her knees before Rostand, begging him to permit her to interpret Chantecler, but he would not yield. Evidently he felt that great as the Divine Sarah is, she is yet a woman. Therefore lacking in the elements absolutely essential to do justice to the eminently male character of Chantecler. The performance at the Broadway, with Maude Adams as the cock, amply justifies Rostand's abhorrence of a woman in the principal part. Truth is, Miss Adams is more deficient than the great Sarah might have been in that particular role, because she is by far more feminine of physique and voice and much more tender in artistic temperament than her great French colleague. Miss Adams has simply undertaken a task beyond her powers, and therefore is doing this greatest of all plays and herself a grave injury.

Maude Adams fails utterly to even convey the illusion that her frail yielding, sweet cock, could make the sun rise, or even wake mankind to greet the sun.

Whether there be truth in the contention that man and woman must forever remain strangers to each other because of the gulf which separates them psychologically, certain it is that so far woman has failed to grasp the male psychology yet the latter is the secret of his success in whatever task he has set himself to accomplish. It is his arrogance, aggressiveness, his absolute self-possession and doggedness of purpose that have helped him along to the very end. Rostand's "Chantecler" has all these traits to a very marked degree, else he never could remain the master, regardless of everything and everybody. Defying the rabble breaking every conventional standard, leaving everything behind him, Chantecler cries out his "cock-a-doodle-doo" and remains true to his absolute determination that permits nothing to stand in the way.

Maude Adams' Chantecler is the ideal male of the boarding school girl; good sympathetic, chivalrous and attentive, the real typical husband the average girl looks for. But never is he the stormer, the iconoclast, the rebel, the creative genius. This is particularly brought out in the third act after the fighting scene Chantecler, disillusioned, weakened from loss of blood, surrounded by only his faithful friend Patou and his newly born love, the pheasant hen, tries in vain to regain his voice, but instead of the masculine struggle against all odds, against his own weakened self, Maude Adams makes of him a defeated weak, whining female, and thereby destroys the deep, philosophic meaning as well as the poetic purity of his character.

All this may be very pleasant to the sentimental ladies; may be very lovely and entertaining, but it is not Rostand's Chantecler. It is not he who is powerful of lusty clarion of voice, masculine of character. It is a pity Maude Adams does not play the pheasant hen. In that she would be true to herself and her art. She would be as attractive as she is in "What Every Woman Knows" and as charming as in "Peter Pan." But as Chantecler she is woefully lacking both in her grasp of the deep wisdom contained in the play as well as its dramatic and poetic beauty.

Another very deplorable feature from the artistic viewpoint is Miss Adams' prologue. Her appearance before the curtain destroys immediately the entire illusion of herself as Chantecler and detracts considerably from the symbolism of the feather world, with its sorrows and joys usually considered peculiar only to man.

Of the rest of the cast there is very little to be said, with the exception of Mr. George Henry Trader as Patou. His rendering of that difficult part is the only thing worth while in the entire performance, not merely because of his faithful portrayal of the true, staunch friend of man, but because of the artistic continuity which he maintained during the entire performance. Indeed, he is the only one who makes one forget completely that the actor is a human being and not the animal whom he portrays.

Whatever may be the future of "Chantecler" as a work of art and a masterpiece of philosophic depth, it will not continue to live as a stage production with Maude Adams as the cock, because the two are so completely out of keeping that to the intelligent spectator it becomes positively painful to endure Miss Adams' contortions in trying to imitate the clarion call to the sun.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

MAUDE ADAMS IN "CHANTECLER."

MISS GOLDMAN'S DOINGS THIS WEEK.

Emma Goldman will deliver two lectures at Normal hall, 1545 Glenarm street, one tonight, "Women's Inhumanity to Men," and tomorrow night, "The Failure of Christianity." This evening at 5 o'clock, Miss Goldman opens a dramatic class at the Socialist club for a course of dramatic lessons which will continue daily for the rest of the week.

CHAMBER BEGINS 3-DAY CAMPAIGN FOR MEMBERS

[illegible] today the chamber of commerce [illegible] out eighteen teams [illegible] eight members each, to increase the membership of the chamber to [illegible] the object being to increase membership and will [illegible] Algeroine conducted [illegible]

[illegible] team which brings in [illegible] and as a result several well [illegible] Denver business men who are not members of the chamber and with whom membership committee has been [illegible] will either have to join or leave town [illegible] Friday night.

The captains of the various teams are as follows: S. E. Crawford, H. S. Bigtin, W. H. Cranmer, Dr. J. H. East, W. H. Fleshenger, John F. Plummer, A. J. Orr, Douglas A. Boller, Dr. H. G. Garnett, Ralph J. Paddock, William H. White, W. G. Russell, Dr. W. S. Begart, John A. Burnett, C. C. Carpenter and J. H. Hine.

THIEVES LOOT HOUSES; STEAL 500 POUNDS PIPE

Thieves broke into two empty houses, 1016 and 1017 Champa street, belonging to J. F. Torrey, and stole 500 pounds of pipe, Thursday and Saturday nights. They were frightened away from one of the houses Saturday night by a neighbor.

The Proof.

The silver dollar and the one cent got into a heated argument over religion.

"I am more holy than you are," proudly remarked the dollar to the cent.

"How do you make that out?" inquired the cent.

"Well," replied the dollar, "you will always find on my face the inscription, 'In God We Trust.'"

"That may be," admitted the cent, "but I go to church more often than you do."

"What proof have you for that statement?" asked the dollar.

"Just look in the collection baskets on Sundays and you will find out," answered the cent.—New York Sun.

860

an audience forgets to dream it fails to enjoy fairies and fancies, which, after are the real things of life.

I imagine that such of us who were present last evening would have been bit bored had it not been for the grotesque features of the presentation, the eternal and unusual picture of the exaggerated farm yard.

The subtleties of the poem were not discovered; the earnest effort, if not desired result of the gentle actress, were scarcely appreciated.

It was a house of mammon and fashion, not a gathering of dreamers who only find their way by moonlight and "whose punishment is that they see dawn before the rest of the world."

In fact, I met a representative citizen in the foyer after the second act immaculate in attire, but with the rugged honesty of our Rocky mountain inquired, "Say, what the hell is this all about?" So you see—

A primrose by the river's brim
A yellow primrose was to him,
And it was nothing more.

He had evidently not seen the story of "Chantecler" which a wise manager had considerately handed out to the people, and which is so tersely illuminating that I beg to reproduce it herewith for the benefit of those who are unfamiliar with the poem or the stage presentation:

THE STORY OF "CHANTECLER."

ACT I.

Chantecler is renowned far and wide because of his morning song. All the fowls know that there is something strange about it which makes it different from the songs of other cocks, but what that something is he will never tell. He guards the secret faithfully in his heart. And it is so important to him, he is so absorbed in his work, that he never notices the dangers which are gathering about him.

His old friend Patou, the Dog, whose duty it is to see that no harm comes to the people of the farmyard, warns Chantecler that there is danger about. Chantecler sees nothing amiss. Patou insists that two dangerous influences are at work to undermine the decent and honest life of the farmyard. One is the Peacock with his Affectation, the other is the Blackbird with his Mockery. The Blackbird is a cynic and a pessimist, who sees only the bad and the trivial. Nothing is too important for him to make light of. Chantecler, like all idealists, sees only the good. He cannot believe his adventures capable of doing him harm. He disregards Patou's warning.

Suddenly into the narrow, humdrum life of the farmyard comes the Golden Pheasant. She is no domestic fowl, but as she calls herself, a rebel, a Bohemian. Yet she has a heart and is capable of great feeling and self-sacrifice.

The day ends. Night falls and discloses Chantecler's enemies—the Owls, and a number of false friends in the farmyard itself. The Turkey, the Blackbird, the Ducks and even some of the Hens side with the Owls, but their reasons for decrying [illegible] are selfish and contemptible. The Owls take Chantecler because his crowing announced the day and deprives them of their power to destroy and kill.

ACT II.

The Owls meet at night on a hilltop to plot the great Cock's doom. "He is a thief," they cry. "He steals the night, our food. He sings while yet the night is fresh and full. Kill him!" But "how" is only asked by day, and in the day the Owls are blind. The cruel Scops unfolds a plan to which the Owls agree. By the Peacock, who hates Chantecler, they plot to bring a crowd of foreign fancy cocks to the Guinea Hen's 5 o'clock, among them will come a genuine champion Fighting Cock "with spurs bound to his heels for gouging out his adversaries' eyes." Chantecler, as a matter of course, will challenge the Fighting Cock, whose presence is an insult, and the end is sure. While in imaginative joy they gloat over his broken wings, eyeless sockets, the Night Birds hear the voice of their foe. His distant "Cocorico" frightens them away. No one is left but the Blackbird and the Pheasant, who have heard the plot. She thinks Chantecler should be warned, but the Blackbird laughs at her fears. She meets Chantecler before the dawn has broken and persuades him to reveal his secret. He tells her that it is he who brings the day. That it is his mission and high call to wake the Sun each day with his song, and he believes that if he should fail to do this the Sun might fail to rise and the whole valley, if not the whole world might never again see the light of day. * * * * I dare believe that I.
The Cock, am Nature's summons to dawn
I dare to fear that if my voice were silent
The East would sleep and Night would still reign on

He brings the dawn before her eyes, then in a reaction of doubt he confesses that he does not understand how one so weak as he should be able to accomplish so great a work. She reassures him and tells him that he has indeed caused the Sun to rise!

ACT III.

The Guinea Hen is giving her 5 o'clock tea. The foreign fancy Cocks are brought in by the Peacock to humiliate Chantecler. Among them is the Fighting Cock. A quarrel ensues. But before entering the fight in which he believes he will be killed, Chantecler cries out his secret and declares his faith in the face of the believing mob:

It is my Song that sets the Sun in Heaven!
It is my Song that brings you back the Light!

There is a great shout of derision. The signal is given. A circle is formed. For a moment Chantecler seems defenseless. The fickleness of the mob cries out for his death. Suddenly that cry is changed to one of fear at the sight of the common enemy, the Hawk. All the terrified

880927004

The Emma Goldman Papers

Nation Seethes in Social Unrest—Goldman / Emma Goldman. – pp. 1,11 ; 42 cm. In The Denver Post. –(April 26, 1912).

Obtained from Butler Library, Columbia University.

THE HOUN'DAWG: "THEY'LL ALL JINE IN' WHEN TH' PROCESSION GOES BY!"

NATION SEETHES IN SOCIAL UNREST--GOLDMA

COAL

You will need coal up to the first of June for the chilly evenings and mornings. Remember, we must keep our mines open in summer to furnish you cheap coal in winter. Please give us your orders and tell your neighbors and friends to do the same. The price for a full ton of the best coal is $3.95, delivered immediately. Telephone Main 6550 and ask for the coal man.

'Anarchist Queen' Points Out Causes of Great Discontent That Are Undermining Every Citadel of Human Endeavor.

This is the first of a series of articles written by Emma Goldman for The Denver Post on "The Social Unrest." The second will appear Sunday and the third next Tuesday.

(By EMMA GOLDMAN.)

While the people of Paris were starving and needed bread, Marie Antoinette asked them why they did not eat cake. Was it ignorance or willfulness which induced the queen of France to ask such a childish question? No doubt it was both, because the two are so closely related to each other they must forever stand and fall together. At any rate, the fair Marie paid for her ignorance with her head.

A little over a hundred years have passed since that momentous epoch, nor has the human race stood still during these many years, but, strange to say, we still have numerous Marie Antoinettes, who continue as blind to the conditions surrounding them as she did to those of France before the great revolution. That is the more surprising because never before in the history of the world have social wrongs been called to the bar of criticism and condemnation as they are at the present time.

No doubt the intellectual efforts of the encyclopedists and the rebellious activities of the French peasantry have preceded the final cataclysm, but compared with the leaven that is everywhere giving rise to discontent and unrest, the period before the French revolution is but as naught. Lest the present Marie Antoinettes pay the same price for their willfulness and ignorance it is necessary that we face our growing social unrest; that we know its cause, and whither it is drifting.

Time was when the so-called educated and cultured class was lulled to sleep with the idea that discontent is due to trouble-makers, agitators, and foreigners; when the American citizen still had the right to Life, Liberty, and the Pursuit of Happiness, if only he knew how to make use of these great privileges. But that time is gone.

Today we know that discontent is not the whim of agitators, nor yet the characteristics of ignorant foreigners; that it is conditioned in American life; that it is spreading in every stratum of our society, embracing every phase of our life. It is this ever-growing discontent which has destroyed once for all our complacent self-satisfied, narrow outlook on life. It is the same discontent which is seeking an outlet and expression in every line of human endeavor.

Education in a Terrible Ferment.

Take education, for instance. Twenty years ago the educator who repudiated coercion and discipline as methods of bringing educational results, was denounced as a brain-cracked Utopian, a dreamer and impractical being. Today education is in a terrible ferment, rejecting the old methods as absolutely inadequate; in bringing desired results to the child and society. Today we are realizing that stuffing, coercing, imposing things from without, only kill latent qualities and dull the responsivities of the child.

The grave is still intact, of course. The gentlemen at the head of educational institutions still continue to adhere to discipline, but no one who can think at all can remain blind to the growing insurgency, to the hidden and open rebellion, seething among educators. Thus Bayard Boyesen, a brilliant educator at Columbia college, and the son of a college professor, makes it very clear that modern education rests above all "upon the idea that the child has as much right to its self as has the adult, and that the personality of the child, during the sensitive and hazardous years of early youth, must be kept free from the intrusive hands of those who

(Continued on Page 11—Col. 1)

BABY'S TWO-STOR FALL BREAKS HEA CHILD STILL LIV

Infant Pushes Out Screen Plunges From Third-Flo Window.

DOCTOR WILL OPER

Only Chance to Save Life in Trepanning Fracture Skull.

With his skull fractured in three by a fall from a third-story windo year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Slelar is in St. Anthony's hospital scant chance of recovery. Dr. J. A is planning an exceedingly delicate ation in an effort to save the child Trepanning will be resorted to. T font has a fracture at the base brain, another at the temple and a at the occipital bone. He is co part of the time.

Mrs. Slelar is prostrated with gr refuses to leave the child's bedside alelans fear she will collapse unle patient improves before night.

The Slelars live in the third s an apartment house at Fourteen nue and Delaware street. Yes afternoon the baby was playing open window. It was supposed t screen was fastened securely. child pushed it open and fell to th ment.

The mother was busy in anothe and did not know that the chi fallen until she came into the ro called to him. Mrs. Slelar heard on the street below and, looking window, she saw that somethi happened, but did not think of he

She hurried down to the pavem found that it was her own child. few minutes several men were f hold Mrs Slelar to prevent he harming herself. The woman that her child was killed and that she had nothing to live fo baby were taken from her.

The Slelars have been in Denv a short time.

RSON AND STRAUSS E VICTIMS OF TITANIC

Chicago Millionaire and Woman for Killing Husband Were Under Assumed Names.

uss, the protector of Gertrude Gibson Patter- recently for the murder of her husband, drowned aboard the Titanic, is the belief of friends. There is a possibility that Mrs. Patrished.

e days that n drowned.

ver friends. her of Emil ompanied to a'd. "There lost, his life looked for s under an Chicago this morning said that L. Eisendrath, a business partner of Strauss, claimed to have a letter from Carlsbad saying that he was alive and well. The rumor of Strauss' death is, however, generally circulated in Chicago.

Gertrude Patterson may have gone down on the Titanic, but also under an assumed name. In a recent letter to Denver friends she wrote that she shortly intended to return to America and Denver, where she expected to make her home again.

COSTS $8.50 TO MARRY; DIVORCES AVERAGE $35

Topeka, Kan., April 26.—It costs an average of $8.50 to get married and $35 to obtain a divorce in Kansas. This is announced by persons who have gathered statistics relative to the divorce evil and marriage laws of the state.

WIFE GETS BURIAL LOT WITH DIVORCE PA

Neenah, Wis., April 26.—When Mrs. Charles Rusch were divorced circuit court here yesterday, Mrs was given a cemetery lot valued as her share of the property. Th had been married fifty-five ye have ten children. Mrs. Rusch the divorce on grounds of cruelty.

861

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

880927004

The Emma Goldman Papers

Nation Seethes in Social Unrest—Goldman / Emma Goldman. – pp. 1,11 ; 42 cm. In The Denver Post. –(April 26, 1912).

Obtained from Butler Library, Columbia University.

THE GROWING SOCIAL UNREST IN CREATIVE WORK

(Continued From Page One.)

would mold and fashion it according to preconceived models, who would thwart this quality and divert that, in order to fit the child into the ideals of the teacher. Modern education takes the center of gravity, which has lain hitherto in the teacher, and puts it firmly in the child itself, for it is its aim not to lead, but to follow the activities of the child, using its natural interests as points upon which it can be allowed to fasten knowledge, and aid the child always to draw out and to develop its native qualities."

As a result of such heresy, Mr. Boyesen, like many of his colleagues in American colleges, had to resign. But the spirit of unrest is awake in these circles, its course being the reconstruction of the relation between teacher and child as well as the relation between the child and society.

The Spirit of Unrest which is undermining the citadel of learning is equally strong in literary, dramatic and artistic endeavor. We no longer want a novel to represent the heroine in a fluffy gown, and the hero on his knees before his beloved; nor do we care for the drama as a mere idle amusement. We look to both as the mirror of the struggle for greater human expansion. In other words, literature and the drama today are the most fiery exponents of the accumulated forces in men and women trying to find themselves and their true contact with their fellow beings.

Great Novels Show Growing Unrest.

Just as Hawthorne's "Scarlet Letter" was the outcry against the bigotry of his time, so is the modern novel, "The Jungle," by Upton Sinclair; the "Octopus," by Frank Norris; "Martin Eden," by Jack London; "The Turn of the Balance," by Brand Whitlock; "The House of Bondage," by Reginald Wright Kauffman; "The Market of Souls," by Miss Goodnow; the burning sparks of the growing social unrest and the deep felt indignation against the things that make the horrors portrayed by these authors possible. Equally so they reflect the growing kinship and sympathy between the author and his material.

When the mayor of Toledo places the principal character of his work before us he also places the collective crimes of society that made this man "Archie" possible, and whether we want to or not, he compels us to face the fact that in killing Archie, society has also signed its own death warrant.

The same holds true of "The House of Bondage," which brings us face to face with the terrible fact that it isn't the individual procurer who is responsible for the white slave, but the collective procurers who fatten upon the body and soul of the white slave as well as all other slaves.

The drama has long ere this been the portrayer of social unrest, though it is only now beginning to be so with us in America. Alas, our Ibsens and Bernard Shaws are still in the embryo, yet the drama, like education and literature, is bringing home the social unrest in a manner that must arouse even the mentally inert. "The Easiest Way," "Passers By," "Kindling," "A Man's World," "The Servant in the House," and "The Terrible Meek"—what are they but signs of a tremendous change that is taking place in our entire estimate of human life and human worth? What are they but the living proof that men and women everywhere are breaking away from the old cramping, stifling mental and spiritual confines; that they are aiming toward a larger scope, a wider horizon of individual expression and social harmony.

No less marked is the disintegration of the old art ideal. The discontent among true artists with the old art standard. One such rebel and iconoclast is Robert Henri, America's greatest art teacher and foremost creative genius. His battle cry doesn't express itself in powder and guns. It is a demand for freedom, for the recognition of the creative quality in man, which, as he tells us, can never assert itself at the command of the millionaire or the whim of the society matron; neither can it find expression in our cut-and-dried institutionalized art schools. True creative genius, which Mr. Henri believes is inherent in most of us, can be brought out only by the growth of individuality and the fearless assertion of personality, or to be more explicit, in harmony and freedom.

OFFICER OUTRUNS AND CATCHES THIEF

Man Grabbed Greek's $20 Bill and Came Near Being Mobbed.

Patrolman Chimes, who owns to the accomplishment of being able to speak five languages, also established a reputation as a sprinter when he overtook, after a chase of several blocks, a youth giving his name as Herbert Smith, who

DENVER TO HAVE BUNION COLLEGE

Capital $150,000: 200 Pairs of Feet to Be Manicured Free Each Day.

Articles of incorporation for the Colorado Chiropractic college were filed in the office of the secretary of state today. The following practitioners are the incorporators, Abner J. Coob, H. E. Peters, J. H. Jones, A. Savignac and E. Schoite. The company is capitalized at $150,000. Plans have been drawn for a college to

DEMOCRATS OBJECT TO SUNDAY BANQUET

Governor and Other Leaders Propose Monday Breakfast Instead.

At a secret meeting in the office of Governor Shafroth at the capitol today it was decided to take measures to call off the Democratic banquet scheduled in Colorado Springs Sunday night.

Governor Shafroth's proposition that a breakfast be held Monday morning instead of the banquet Sunday night received favorable consideration from those who attended the conference.

Those present at the conference were the governor, Secretary Malone, Acting Chief Justice George W. Musser of the supreme court, Presiding Judge Tully Scott of the court of appeals, former Senator T. M. Patterson, Leo Vincent, W. H. Bryant and C. W. Franklin.

The governor and other Democratic state officials have received numerous protests against the holding of a banquet Sunday night. They see that such a proceeding will give their political enemies ammunition with which to bombard the party and are willing and ready to change the plan.

MONT TONG, MINE MANAGER, IS DEAD

Georgetown, Colo., April 26.—Mont Tong, 48, general manager of the St. Paul Mining, Tunnel and Transportation company, died at his home here yesterday afternoon. Tong was born in Iron county, Missouri, and came to this district 25 years ago. For many years he was manager of the Colorado Central-Ahunde group of mines. He was one of the best posted mining men in Colorado. He made and lost several fortunes in mining leases. He is survived by a widow and 10-year-old son.

W. L. DO SHOES

$3 $3.50 $4 & $5

For MEN, WOMEN and BOYS

THE STANDARD OF QUALITY FOR OVER 30 YEARS

WEAR W. L. DOUGLAS SHOES

You can save money because they are more economical and satisfactory in style, fit and wear than any other makes. W. L. Douglas name and price stamped on the bottom guarantees full value and protects the wearer against high prices and inferior shoes. Insist upon having the genuine W. L. Douglas shoes. Take no substitute.

If your dealer cannot supply W. L. Douglas shoes, write W. L. Douglas, Brockton, Mass., for catalog. Shoes sent everywhere delivery charges prepaid.

CALL AT W. L. DO

935 Sixteenth Street, Corner Curtis

NEW TR

The COLORADO MI

Grand Junction, Salt Lake City, O

EFFECTIVE A

No. 5 will leave Denver 9:00 a. m. p. m ; Salt Lake City 2:35

Corresponding Daylight Tr

Observation Pullman Sleepers

Via Salt Lake City. Sp

Ask us for low round trip rates to dates

W. B. Throckmorton,

862

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

880927005

The Emma Goldman Papers

Woman Center of Social Storm Which Is Sweeping Us Along / Emma Goldman. – p. 6 ; 43 cm. In The Denver Post. –(April 28, 1912).

Obtained from Butler Library, Columbia University.

WOMAN CENTER OF SOCIAL STORM WHICH IS SWEEPING US ALONG

—EMMA GOLDMAN

She Must Find Her True Relation to Rest of Human Family--'Bound by Hideous Chains of Duty, Obligation, Virtue.'

This is the second of the series of articles on "The Social Unrest" written for The Denver Post by Emma Goldman. The third and concluding article will be printed Tuesday.

(By EMMA GOLDMAN.)

"While I was at home with father he used to tell me all his opinions and I held the same opinions. If I had others, I concealed them because he would not have approved. He used to call me his doll child and play with me as I played with my dolls. Then I came to live in your house. You settled everything according to your taste and I got the same taste as you—or I pretended to. When I look back on it now I seem to have been living like a beggar, from hand to mouth. I lived by performing tricks for you, Torvald, but you would have it so. You and father have done me a great wrong."

In these lines of Ibsen lies the key to the growing unrest, indeed to the formidable insurrection of woman against the things which have held her in bondage. And, considering that it is but a little over sixty years ago since she first awoke from the heavy sleep of ages, the revolution woman has wrought in her life is truly phenomenal. But her spirit can find no rest. She lives in the midst of the social storm which is sweeping us all along, and which necessitates the revaluation of all values; therefore, her revaluation of her place as a social being.

Now that she may enter every profession, that she may take up every trade, that every avenue of learning is open to her, that she may even do the foolish things of man, write she has now come to know that the real struggle has only just begun. The real struggle is against the moral bulwarks of society, which crush all women with the same iron hand.

Still Continues to Fetter Woman.

The force which permits man to develop along normal lines—to live in harmony with the calling of his nature—still continues to fetter woman spiritually and maim her physically. Duty, obligation and virtue condemn her to carnal and vulgar intimacies without love in marriage, to the silent martyrdom of a life without the sweet fragrant intimacies of love outside of marriage, or they drive her to the last stage of human indignity to the block of shame. Equally so, it is the same hideous imposition of duty, obligation and virtue which either make woman a party to the unscrupulous increase of children, or which deny her deepest function, true motherhood.

Sixty years ago woman began to "Pick at a single knot, but as she proceeded she found, bit by bit, that the whole thing has raveled out because it was all hand-sewn." And how can machine-sewn standards apply to the language, the aspirations of the newly discovered personality, woman. Hence the unrest, the far reaching, growing unrest among all classes of women.

"The Science of a Sex" some wise people say. The strike which will break up the home, loosen family ties, and, horror of all horrors, undermine the race. What these good people fail to see is this, that if the home could not keep pace with woman, neither could she stand still with the home. Thus too, they do not realize that, though the race continues blind to the needs of woman, she is learning the needs of the race. Out of this knowledge has grown the conflict, the pain, and travail in the life of woman. Not that modern woman is less eager for love or the child for because she craves both with greater intensity than ever before, that she has turned her back on the past, a past which granted her love and motherhood only at the complete surrender of her mental, spiritual, and physical being. Just as the latent qualities in the child and the creative qualities in the artist have never been truly brought out by coercion and authority, so could woman's soul not respond to a mere formula, to stand rods or commands. It could only do so in freedom, in a fearless and honest expression of her personality. The same process is taking place in woman's relation to the race.

She Must Find Her True Mission.

For ages she has blindly ministered to the needs of the race without any thought of the needs of the child. Because of the blindness crimes and evils among men continue, because of individual expression and social harmony have never yet existed in the world, but it is also because of woman's unwillingness to perpetuate wrong and injustice, that she must trust and herself in order that society may find her. She must first discover her true mission, her real purpose in life, that she may be able to give to society, to the race as she has never given before. But, above all, woman must find her relation to the rest of the human family. Only then will her nature her deep, full-grown maturity, yield in abundance.

Out of the great conflict between the old and the new, between the

EDWARD NEWNAN PIONEER IS DEAD

Edward B. Newnan, one of Denve.'s earliest pio eers, died at his home, 1760 Pennsylvania street, Sat :day o paraly sis. Mr. Newnan came to Colorado from Maryland in 1860, making the trip in a prairie schooner across Kansas and Co'o. rado. He settled, first, near Central City, where he engaged in mining. A year or two later he moved to Longmon , where he conducted an implement s ore. While there he studied law, but his health

E. B. NEWMAN.
Pioneer mining man, dead at the age of 74.

gave way and he sought a vocation which would necessitate many l t ebor. He th upon blacksmithing as the best of them.

In 1885 Mr. Newnan came to D nver and has resided here, with his family, since that time. Mr Newnan was a very enthusiastic athlete, even at the age of 55, and he with his wife, son and daughter could b see often, riding their bicycles to the suburbs in the early morning hours.

Mr. Newnan was 8 years of age. He is survived by his widow and three children.

16 SPECIAL TRAIN OF SHRINERS DENVER THIS W

Masons on Way to Los A Convention to Stop f Day.

That the Shriners of the Easte do not want to go to their ann vention in Los Angeles, May 6 to out seeing and visiting Denver denced by their sixteen speci which will pass through Den week.

The Al Kofun temple of Cleveland consisting of over 200 Shriners families, will arrive in Denver o chal train via the Rock Island, morning, and will spend the e sightseeing. They will leave for Springs about midnight on ano chal train over the Denver & Rio and after spending Tuesday s sights around that city, will to Salt Lake and Los Angeles.

The Imperial Potentates speci Rock Island from Minneapolis W Wednesday morning at about This train will be preceded by t trains, one from Des Moines an port, Iowa, and the El Kahir Cedar Rapids. The Imperial P and their escorts will spend half Denver, leaving for the West on special trains over the Denve Rio Grande. On these trains be approximately 500 people.

Other trains carrying Shriners rive in Denver as late as Friday carry from 125 to 200 people eac their trains will carry dining car from the starting point to Los and in addition will carry lib which will be equipped with a. lefores.

Ladies, Does $1.98 Sound G Any Shoe or Oxford In Economy Basement—Opens

We look for a tremendous bu week. You know nothing beats true values. Set styles in our s dows. Fontius Shoe Co

MORE LIVES S CONSTANT ACHES AND

"TRY-NEW-LIFE"

Gets the Credit It Deserves.

It is a wonderful little invention, and deserves all the credit it gets from the papers and the people. It is only those who suffer that can properly appreciate the merits of "TRY NEW LIFE." Thousands have visited the Hamilton-Beach Store, 1524 California street, for free trial treatment, and the day is near when no household will be considered complete without "TRY NEW LIFE."

"Try-New-Life"

May be bought outright or rented or purchased on easy terms.

So as to place this wonderful little machine within the reach

863

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

880927005

The Emma Goldman Papers

Woman Center of Social Storm Which Is Sweeping Us Along / Emma Goldman. – p. 6 ; 43 cm. In The Denver Post. –(April 28, 1912).

Obtained from Butler Library, Columbia University.

—EMMA GOLDMAN

She Must Find Her True Relation to Rest of Human Family--'Bound by Hideous Chains of Duty, Obligation, Virtue.'

This is the second of the series of articles on "The Social Unrest" written for The Denver Post by Emma Goldman. The third and concluding article will be printed Tuesday.

(By EMMA GOLDMAN.)

"While I was at home with father he used to tell me all his opinions and I held the same opinions. If I had others, I concealed them because he would not have approved. He used to call me his doll child and play with me as I played with my dolls. Then I came to live in your house. You settled everything according to your taste and I got the same taste as you—or I pretended to. When I look back on it now I seem to have been living like a beggar, from hand to mouth. I lived by performing tricks for you, Torvald, but you would have it so. You and father have done me a great wrong."

In these lines of Ibsen lies the key to the growing unrest, indeed to the formidable insurrection of woman against the things which have held her in bondage. And, considering that it is but a little over sixty years ago since she first awoke from the heavy sleep of ages, the revolution woman has wrought in her life is truly phenomenal. But her spirit can find no rest. She lives in the midst of the social storm which is sweeping us all along, and which necessitates the revaluation of all values; therefore, her revaluation of her place as a social being.

Now that she may enter every profession, that she may take up every trade, that every avenue of learning is open to her, that she may even do the foolish things of man—vote—she has now come to know that the real struggle has only just begun. The real struggle is against the moral bulwarks of society, which crush all women with the same iron hand.

Still Continues to Fetter Woman.

The thing which permits man to develop along normal lines—to live in harmony with the calling of his nature—and continues to fetter woman spiritually and maim her physically. Duty, obligation and virtue condemn her to brutal and vulgar intimacies without love in marriage, to the silent martyrdom of a life without the sweet fragrant intimacies of love outside of marriage, or they drive her to the last stage of human indignity, to the block of shame. Logally so, it is the same hideous imposition of duty, obligation and virtue which either make woman a party to the unscrupulous increase of children, or which deny her deepest function, free motherhood.

Sixty years ago woman began to "pick at a single knot, but as she proceeded she found, bit by bit, that the whole thing has raveled out because it is machine-sewn." And how can machine-sewn standards apply to the longings, the aspirations of the newly discovered personality, woman. Hence the unrest, the far reaching, growing unrest among all classes of women.

The Strike of a Sex! some wise people say. The strike which will break up the home, loosen family ties, and, horror of all horrors, undermine the race! What these good people fail to see is this, that if the home could not keep pace with woman, neither could she stand still with the home. Thus too, they do not realize that, though the race sometimes blind to the needs of woman, she is learning the needs of the race. Out of this knowledge has grown the conflict, the pain, and travail in the life of woman. Not that modern woman is less eager for love or the child for because she craves both with greater intensity than ever before, that she has turned her back on the past, a past which granted her love and motherhood only at the complete surrender of her mental, spiritual, and physical being. Just as the latent qualities in the child and the creative qualities in the artist have never been truly brought out by coercion and authority, so could woman's soul not respond to a mere formula, to standards or commands. It could only do so in freedom, in a fearless and defined expression of her personality. The same process is taking place in woman's relation to the race.

She Must Find Her True Mission.

For ages she has blindly ministered to the needs of the race without any thought of the needs of the child. Because of this blindness crimes and evils among men continue; because of individual expression and social harmony have never yet existed in the world. But it is also because of woman's unwillingness to perpetuate wrongs and injustices, that she must first find herself in order that society may find her. She must first discover her true mission, her real purpose in life, that she may be able to give to society, to the race, as she has never given before. But, above all, woman must find her relation to the rest of the human family. Only then will her nature, her deep, full grown maturity, yield in abundance.

Out of the great conflict between the old and the new, between the past and the future, truer, more fundamental values will emerge, just as the universal strike for social and economic readjustment will evolve a new conception of individual worth and social well being. While breaking away from traditions in every other line of life and creating a tremendous change in all our relations, we will never truly find our proper bearing until we have given the unrest in the life of woman its proper meaning and importance. Social life is more complex than ever in the history of the world. It must, therefore, take into consideration every phase which goes to make up the whole.

Even as the unrest in education, literature, the drama and in art, so woman's struggle is paving the way for a greater and larger freedom of expression for all humanity.

Edward B. Newman, one of Denver's earliest pioneers, died at his home, 1350 Pennsylvania street, Saturday of paralysis. Mr. Newman came to Colorado from Maryland in 1860, making the trip in a prairie schooner across Kansas and Colorado. He settled, first, near Central City, where he engaged in mining. A year or two later he moved to Longmont, where he conducted an implement store. While there he studied law, but his health gave way and he sought a climate which would necessitate outdoor labor. He fell upon blacksmithing as the best of them.

E. B. NEWMAN.

Pioneer mining man, dead at the age of 74.

In 1885 Mr. Newman came to Denver and has resided here, with his family, since that time. Mr. Newman was a very enthusiastic athlete, even at the age of 75, and he with his wife, son and daughter could be seen often, riding their bicycles to the suburbs in the early morning hours.

Mr. Newman was 78 years of age. He is survived by his widow and three children.

DENVER THIS

Masons on Way to Le Convention to St Day.

That the Shriners of the R do not want to go to their vention in Los Angeles, May out seeing and visiting th danced by their sixteen s which will pass through week.

The Al Koran temple of Cl consisting of over 900 Shrin families, will arrive in Denv cial train via the Rock Isl morning, and will spend th sightseeing. They will leave Springs about midnight on cial train over the Denver & and after spending Tuesda sights around that city, to Salt Lake and Los Ange

The Imperial Potentates s Rock Island from Minneapo Wednesday morning at ab This train will be preceded trains, one from Des Moine port, Iowa, and the El Ka Cedar Rapids. The Imperi and their escorts will spend Denver, leaving for Los We special trains over the D Rio Grande. On these tra be approximately 500 people

Other trains carrying Shr rive in Denver as late as F carry from 125 to 200 people their trains will carry dining from the starting point to and in addition will carry which will be equipped wit lolices

Ladies, Hoes $1.98 Some Any Shoe or Oxford Economy Basement—Op

We look for a tremendou week. You know nothing t true values. See styles in dow. Fontius Shoe Co.

MORE LIVES

CONSTANT ACHES AN

"TRY-NEW-LIFE"

Gets the Credit It Deserves.

It is a wonderful little invention, and deserves all the credit it gets from the papers and the people. It is only those who suffer that can properly appreciate the merits of "TRY-NEW-LIFE." Thousands have visited the Hamilton-Beach Store, 1524 California street, for free trial treatment, and the day is near when no household will be considered complete without "TRY-NEW-LIFE."

"Try-New-Life"

May be bought outright or rented or purchased on easy terms

So as to place this wonderful little machine within the reach of all the Hamilton-Beach Sales Co. not only sells for cash, but on time payments or will rent the machine to all who have been prevailed upon to buy at the exorbitant prices which by its failure to do things the reputation of "TRY-NEW-LIFE" as well—the Hamilton Beach Sales Co. will make an allowance for the old machine to part payment for a genuine

"Try-New-Life"

BOARD OF WORKS

has made several evasive answers, but the legal w 864

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

880927006

The Emma Goldman Papers

Greed of Capital Basis of Social Unrest Today / Emma Goldman. – p. 9 ; 43 cm. In The Denver Post. – (April 30, 1912).

Obtained from Butler Library, Columbia University.

GREED OF CAPITAL BASIS OF SOCIAL UNREST TODAY

—EMMA GOLDMAN

Whole Machinery of Government, Including Courts, Under Thumb of Money and Political Leaders.

The following is the third and last of the series of articles on "The Social Unrest," written by Emma Goldman, for The Denver Post:

(By EMMA GOLDMAN.)

The tendency to grow away from authority, from coercion, from paternalism, and the intense longing for material and mental independence, is making itself felt with greater force in every class of society, but nowhere is it taking such definite form as in the economic life of the people. After all, the educational, literary, and the artistic gropings and aspirations spring from the very source of life, the material arrangement in society. In other words, the tremendous economic unrest is giving all else meaning and color.

The people, robbed of their birthright, driven from home and hearth, and alienated from the soil, are realizing more and more the crimes and outrages perpetrated upon them. They are realizing that the latter are not due to supernatural, mysterious powers, but to the brazenness of capitalism and its insatiable appetite for the accumulation of unheard-of fortunes. On the other hand, the workers cannot but see that the rights and liberties guaranteed them by their forbears have become a farce, a cruel jest.

Nothing to Hope From Powers That Be.

Slowly but surely it is beginning to dawn on them that they have nothing whatsoever to hope for from the powers that be. The events of the last twenty-five years, and more forcibly during the last decade, have proved that in every conflict between capital and labor, the courts, the judiciary, the city administration, in short, the entire machinery of government is so completely under the thumb of money and political interests that it is invariably compelled to ride over human lives and human interests involved in the labor conflict. In every instance the brutality and violence used against the masses in their struggle for life, the cruel beating and maiming of defenseless women and children, amply justify the conclusion of the intelligent workers that America is fast becoming Russianized, for surely nowhere else outside of Russia have the people been subjected to such indignities and degradations as they have been in various parts of the United States. While the recent crimes committed by soldiers and police in Lawrence, Mass., in Passaic and Paterson, N. J., where women and children were clubbed into unconsciousness, or the downright savagery displayed in the free speech fight in Spokane and Aberdeen, Wash., as well as in San Diego at the present time, would put to shame even the czar's domain.

It is difficult to conceive of anything more terrible and more outrageous than the action of the police and some of the so-called law abiding citizens who are playing the part of the American Cossacks in San Diego, Cal., not merely that people are stopped from their constitutional rights to speak freely, but they are assaulted during the light of the day; rushed out of town, beaten into insensibility, and then left in their bruised and maimed condition on the desert of California. Not enough of that, every available jail in the city proper and adjoining counties are overcrowded with men and women whose belief in the right of free speech will not permit them to submit to the tyranny imposed upon them. Already an old man, an innocent spectator, has been killed by the terrific force of water turned upon the people from the city hose, and a little innocent baby washed out of its carriage and rolled along the pavement for several blocks, made equally a victim of the ferociousness and inhumanity of the police.

Workers Realize Latent Powers.

The inevitable result is that the workers no longer look to constitutional authority, that they are beginning to realize their own latent powers, and that is precisely what they are doing more and more, not only in America, but all over the civilized world where labor has outgrown its infant state. It is not the house of commons, nor yet the members of parliament, who have revolutionized labor in England; who have demolished the strong walls of conservative trade unionism. It has been left to the general strike to accomplish that wonderful feat. Equally so it is not the power of the law which is compelling the mine owners of Great Britain to admit that their unfortunate slaves are entitled to some consideration. It is the coal strike involving a million workingmen that has sent the price of cotton flying, has disturbed the sleep of the king, and has sent terror into the hearts of the money kings, not only of England, but of the rest of the world. Indeed, the miners' strike, which, as one of the English newspapers justly stated, is the greatest calamity which has befallen England since the invasion of the Spanish armada; that has disclosed, as in a flash, the inherent power of the workers, the power which holds the rest of the world at bay, and that, if it will but assert itself, can demolish old dynasties and inaugurate a new social readjustment.

Equally so the general strike in Germany, France, Norway, Sweden and other countries has eliminated all national and boundary lines, and has created a fellowship and kinship which only common interests can give birth to. In the face of this gigantic force, of this new brotherhood, of what avail is the hatred, propagated by politicians among the workers against each other? How insignificant is the idea taught that the Germans must forever hate the French, or the English the Irish? Or that the people must continue in the cut throat competition which is the basis of our present relations in society.

[illegible] the events preceding the McNamara trial and then that self-sacrifice for the sake of others has annihilated the line of demarcation between the interests of the disinherited and the possessors of the earth. Never again will smooth geologic nature come to suggest that the economic unrest is but of a temporary character, and that if only the poor were not so unreasonable things might end in general good will. No power on earth can deny the latter, cruel, relentless class war now sweeping across the plains. A war more terrible than ever waged between nations, a war which has but yesterday shown its ghastliness in the strife in the industries of Lawrence, Mass., a war which consumes thousands of innocent lives and leaves behind a trail of destruction and terror. This was forcibly brought out in the congressional investigation in Washington, large though this has been, that the children of the Lawrence strikers who helped to weave the finest cloths were found to be barren of undergarments, and when it was equally disclosed that many of these children for weeks and months had gone to bed without a supper and into the factory without breakfast.

Some Force Is at Work in Mexico

YOUNG GIRL BATTLE BILLY GREEN TO B FRAUDS IN ELEC

MISS ZELDAH SHERMAN,
Prominent in Battle Against Illegal Registration in the [illegible] Down in the Fourth ward a group of [illegible] girls, suffragettes and others barely past voting age, feminine in all things except a desire to [illegible] Fourth ward of its debasement [illegible] "Billy" Greens of gang politics is [illegible] dreaded by judges of registration and prospective election officials. Their [illegible] bosses are respected.

For in the battle for clean politics [illegible] are advancing on the stoke-hold [illegible] from its keepers, who corrupt it for [illegible] division [illegible] Zeldah Sherman [illegible] forma street, committeewoman for the Citizens' party in the Fourth, [illegible] fighting heart of a man.

Registration days of last week [illegible] Miss Sherman who told down the law to judges who were not administering the [illegible] prescribed code to a [illegible]. It was Miss Sherman who took to the district attorney's office evidence that not [illegible] of the officials were [illegible] to the precincts to which they were appointed. It was Miss Sherman who told [illegible] Green that it was [illegible] to force their [illegible] to give a [illegible] vote.

When Green and [illegible] precinct [illegible] registration [illegible] night to witness the [illegible] automobile load of women [illegible] the other word it was Miss Sherman who went back [illegible] the colored [illegible] district to force the negro [illegible] to register [illegible] the negro bosses a chance [illegible] from a position to [illegible] Miss Sherman took no such [illegible] action. Most of the time until 9 o'clock at night without escort she went from precinct to precinct, her eyes and ears open to omissions and errors of the officials, intentional and negligent.

And her wits serve her well. One of the registration officials gave as residence a room in the Vendome hotel, said to be occupied by his brother as a poker

865

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

880927006

The Emma Goldman Papers

Greed of Capital Basis of Social Unrest Today / Emma Goldman. – p. 9 ; 43 cm. In The Denver Post. –(April 30, 1912).

Obtained from Butler Library, Columbia University.

Nothing to Hope From Powers That Be.

Slowly but surely it is beginning to dawn on them that they have nothing whatsoever to hope for from the powers that be. The events of the last twenty-five years, and more forcibly during the last decade, have proved that in every conflict between capital and labor, the courts, the judiciary, the city administration, in short, the entire machinery of government is so completely under the thumb of money and political interests that it is invariably compelled to ride over human lives and human intvrests involved in the labor conflict. In every instance the brutality and violence used against the masses in their struggle for life, the cruel beating and maiming of defenseless women and children, amply justify the conclusion of the intelligent workers that America is fast becoming Russianized, for surely nowhere else outside of Russia have the people been subjected to such indignities and degradations as they have been in various parts of the United States. While the recent crimes committed by soldiers and police in Lawrence, Mass., in Passaic and Paterson, N. J., where women and children were clubbed into unconsciousness, or the downright savagery displayed in the free speech fight in Spokane and Aberdeen, Wash., as well as in San Diego at the present time, would put to shame even the czar's domain.

It is difficult to conceive of anything more terrible and more outrageous than the action of the police and some of the so-called law-abiding citizens who are playing the part of the American Cossacks in San Diego, Cal., not merely that people are stopped from their constitutional rights to speak freely, but they are kidnaped during the light of the day, rushed out of town, beaten into insensibility, and then left in their bruised and maimed condition on the desert of California. Not enough of that, every available jail in the city proper and adjoining counties are overcrowded with men and women whose belief in the right of free speech will not permit them to submit to the tyranny imposed upon them. Already an old man, an innocent spectator, has been killed by the terrific force of water turned upon the people from the city hose, and a little innocent baby washed out of its carriage aand rolled along the pavement for several blocks, made equally a victim of the ferociousness and inhumanity of the police.

Workers Realize Latent Powers.

The inevitable result is that the workers no longer look to constitutional authority; that they are beginning to realize their own latent powers, and that is precisely what they are doing more and more, not only in America, but all over the civilized world where labor has outgrown its infant state. It is not the house of commons, nor yet the members of parliament, who have revolutionized labor in England; who have demolished the strong walls of conservative trade unionism. It has been left to the general strike to accomplish that wonderful feat. Equally so, it is not the power of the law which is compelling the mine owners of Great Britain to admit that their unfortunate slaves are entitled to some consideration. It is the coal strike involving a million workingmen that has sent the prime minister flying, has disturbed the sleep of the king, and has sent terror into the hearts of the money kings, not only of England, but of the rest of the world. Indeed, the miners' strike, which, as one of the English newspapers justly stated, is the greatest calamity which has befallen England since the invasion of the Spanish armada; that has disclosed, as in a flash, the inherent power of the workers—the power which holds the rest of the world at bay, and that, if it will but assert itself can demolish old dynasties and inaugurate a new social readjustment.

Equally so the general strike in Germany, France, Norway, Sweden and other countries has eliminated all national and boundary lines, and has created a fellowship and kinship which only common interests can give birth to. In the face of this gigantic force, of this new brotherhood, of what avail is the hatred, propagated by politicians among the workers against each other? How insignificant is the idea taught that the Germans must forever hate the French, or the English the Irish? Or that the people must continue in the cut-throat occupation waged as the basis of our present relations in society.

With us in America the events preceding the McNamara trial and their final sacrifice for the sake of others has annihilated the lie of the antagonism between the interests of the disinherited and the possessors of the earth. Never again will smooth gentlemen venture to suggest that the economic unrest is but of a temporary character, and that if only the poor were not so unreasonable things might end in general good will. No power on earth can deny the latter, cruel, relentless class war now sweeping across the plains. A war more terrible than ever waged between nations—a war which has but yesterday shown its ghastliness in the textile industries of Lawrence, Mass., a war which consumes thousands of innocent lives and leaves behind a trail of destruction and terror. This was forcibly brought out in the congressional investigation in Washington. Terse though this has been, that the children of the Lawrence strikers who helped to weave the finest cloths were found to be barren of undergarments; and when it was equally disclosed that many of these children for weeks and months had gone to bed without a supper and into the factory without breakfast.

Same Force Is at Work in Mexico.

The same force which is making all this inhumanity and all these horrors possible here is also at work in Mexico, where the Yaqui Indians and the peons are engaged in a wonderful heroic fight for land and liberty. To be sure, these poor, illiterate and uncivilized beings have no right to struggle for freedom. Alas for the stupidity of the average human who fails to understand that the right to freedom and economic well-being does not come from text-books or university degrees; that they are burned into the very soul of man. It is this which gives the peons and the Yaqui Indians their fortitude, their courage and their marvelous power of endurance in the face of all the odds and privations which have been their lot now for nearly two years. It is also this which will enable them to fight to the finish and the if need be in the attempt to free their land from the terrible clutches of Wall street and kindred interests.

Syndicalism, industrialism, the general strike, and direct action have an exotic sound to the untrained American ear, but to those who have long seen the approaching storm they mask a new epoch in the growing social unrest. Indeed, syndicalism is the new arena of the modern gladiator, labor, the new battlefield, the logical, consistent outcome of labor's new-born consciousness. The latter, finding its supreme expression in the direct action of the masses and their unity through the general strike.

Syndicalism then, even as education, literature, the drama, art and the growing discontent in woman's life, is the advance beyond the political machine through the class war waged by the direct action of the workers. And this not merely for immediate ameliorations, but for the reconstruction of society from the mad, criminal chase for wealth on one side and the degrading nerve-racking drudgery on the other. It is the culminating expression of the accumulated, seething unrest and discontent which is making for a larger, fuller and more humane social arrangement.

The Marie Antoinettes and Louis XVI, of modern times may continue in their willful ignorant query of "Why the people do not eat cake?" But unless they pay for their stupidity as did their class during the French revolution, they may rest assured that the people once aroused strikes quickly and deeply.

MISS ZELDAH SHERMAN,
Prominent in Battle Against Illegal Registration in the F

Down in the Fourth ward a couple of a girl, suffragette and militant, barely past voting age, feminine in all things except a desire to purge the soiled of all home ward of its debasement by the "Billy" Greens of gang politics is more dreaded by judges of registration and prospective election officials that the bosses are respected.

For in her battle for clean politics Miss ... advocating to unshackle the ward from its keepers, who corrupt it for individual profit, Zeldah Sherman, 265 Fairfield street, committeewoman for the Citizens' party in the Fourth, has the fighting heart of a man.

Registration day or last week it was Miss Sherman who laid down the law to judges who were not administering the prescribed oath to voters. It was Miss Sherman who took to the district attorney's office evidence that at least two of the officials were illegally sitting in the precincts to which they were appointed. It was Miss Sherman who told Billy Green that it may be Green county, but the rest of the state is "below the Mason and Dixon line."

When Green ordered Joe Brother, Democratic registration clerk, out of the room, Miss Sherman was there to see that no unchallenged bird or woman of the opposite party voted. It was Miss Sherman who went back into the redistricted district to give the detectives-boss a chance to order Joe from a position of espionage. Green took no such kingly action. Most of the time Zeldah was at night, without escort, she went from precinct to precinct, her eyes and ears open to omissions and errors of the officials, intentional and negligent.

And her wit came to serve her well. One of the registration officials gave as residence a room in the Vetobone hotel, said to be occupied by his brother as a poker room, under police and aldermanic protection. Miss Sherman unearthed proof that his legal home was in another precinct, far removed. That she might substantiate the charge this militant worker for clean politics in an unclean ward planted a witness on one end of an ex-

ELYRIA BOY SCOUTS BUILD DRILL ROOM WITH OWN HANDS

Lads Not Pleased With Their Old Quarters Over a Saloon.

A drill hall on which most of the construction work was done by the boys of the Elyria troop of Boy Scouts. The building is of brick, 16½x42 feet and represents three months of constant labor on the part of the boys.

The only place that the boys have had for their meetings and drills since they were organized some time ago has been a second-story room over a saloon. They objected strenuously to having such a place for their hall so last January, with the encouragement of their scoutmaster, F. Hukins, they determined to build a hall of their own.

Subscriptions from the men and women who were interested in their work paid for the lots and the funds for the building materials were earned by the boys

NEW PARCELS POST BILL PROVIDES FOR A ZONE SYSTEM

FATHER ORDERED TO HOLD HOME IN TRUST FOR FAMILY

866

840514122

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Power of the Ideal / Emma Goldman. – pp. 87-92 ; 19 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 7, no. 3 (May 1912).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

I understand the whole affair was a frame-up. They wanted to destroy the effects of any demonstration under Socialistic auspices. The Industrial Workers of the World—many of them—do not understand that Socialism is international—not anti-national. The red flag is the international emblem of Socialism, but it in no way excludes or antagonizes the Star-Spangled Banner, for which every American Socialist who has any brains will stand, even though it is now under control of the capitalistic class.

The Socialists are the best patriots we have. They are not like the Republicans and Democrats, who claim to have a mortgage on the flag.

Socialists got black eyes and bloody noses in defending the flag in Union Square, and, if necessary, they would risk infinitely more in defending it.

Should the interests of Wall Street dictate war with Mexico to defend the "honor of the flag," then it is to be hoped that the Socialist Congressman and the editors of the Call will not fail in their manifest duty, and at once issue a call for a volunteer regiment of Socialists.

The Call, however, even beats the Honorable Victor in the disgusting rôle of informer. It has editorially denounced the tearing down of the national rag and cowardly insinuates the existence of a frame-up to disturb the meeting. The Call wrote in this regard:

> We do not know for whom those who tried to disrupt the Socialist May Day parade were working. One thing only is certain—it was not for the working class. Whoever employed them, whoever urged them on, whoever paid them for the dirty business they started, does not much matter. One thing only is evident—the provocative agent takes protean forms.

Evident is only that it would be too great a tax upon the mentality and honesty of the Call to appreciate the spontaneous popular outburst of indignation and resentment at the sight of the symbol of robbery and murder spreading its folds over the First of May demonstration. And it is further evident to every intelligent man that the editors of the Call and the Socialist politicians have trampled into the dirt the best feelings of the men and women assembled on the First of May for the very purpose of protesting against the crimes and outrages daily and hourly perpetrated under cover of the flag which the Call and Co. are so eager to protect. In their petty political scheming the Socialists have driven their patriotic hypocrisy to the point of denouncing as police agents workingmen whose revolutionary spirit has survived the systematic undermining of the Socialist politicians.

The American proletariat will not so easily forget this Socialist treachery and the indignity put upon labor by these patriotic lickspittles.

⁂ ⁂ ⁂

THE POWER OF THE IDEAL

> And he leaned forward and laid his hand upon the sleeper, smiling; and this only she heard: "This shall be thy reward—that the Ideal shall be real to thee."—OLIVE SCHREINER, in "A Dream of Wild Bees."

IN THESE wonderful words is compressed the deep mystery of the Ideal, which from time immemorial has compelled the idealist onward, in the face of all obstacles, in spite of all difficulties and misunderstandings.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., did not look very encouraging. Owing to the wonderful efficiency of our Post Office department, Comrade Browne—who had kindly offered to arrange the meetings—was waiting for my letter, while I was waiting for his. Thus three valuable weeks were lost. Fortunately, our Comrade has the qualities so rare among radicals: thoroughness and system. In one week he had our announcements printed and distributed, so that the meetings were far beyond our expectations, both in point of attendance and spirit. But, above all, the gatherings demonstrated the growing insurgency in Socialist ranks. Kansas City more than other cities of the Middle West has a large, conscious revolutionary, industrial element that is fast growing away from the political diet prepared in the Socialist kitchen. True to the revolutionary proletarian spirit, they do not wait for the political chefs to dish out their rations; they prefer themselves to carry on a vigorous agitation along direct economic lines, which is more likely to satisfy the mental and physical palate of the workers. Nor are the Kansas City boys content with mere theoretic diet. A number of them are now tramping to San Diego, having left Kansas City shortly after us, and reaching Denver when we were holding forth in that town. The circumstance gave us an opportunity to collect enough funds to enable them to go further toward the seat of war.

867

840514122

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Power of the Ideal / Emma Goldman. – pp. 87-92 ; 19 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 7, no. 3 (May 1912).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

After the milk-and-water Socialists one generally meets in the East, these brave comrades, whose deep solidarity knows no drawbacks, were very refreshing. Added to this was the reunion with several comrades who had traveled far to meet us in K. C. Our old war-horse, Fred. P. Young, ever on hand; Ben Capes, full of the joy of life, and bubbling over with mischief and fun; then Lowell Masters, from Nebraska, as simple and true as if civilization had passed him by. In such company and comradery the stay in K. C. passed all too soon.

LAWRENCE, Kansas, was one of the conspiracies of circumstances. Everything went wrong. But so long as the Ideal is real, such experiences are of little moment.

DENVER turned out to be the city of "miracles." At first things seemed very disheartening. Dear, staunch May Courtney, although poor in health and much harrassed by the economic whip, worked hard to make our five lectures successful. But with the original meeting place refused at the very last moment, and a tremendous rental for halls which had to be taken, the situation did not look very promising. The meetings were poorly attended and, what was more paralyzing, the audiences were spiritless and uninspiring. But for the excitement at the lecture on "Socialism Caught in the Political Trap," which nearly ended in a riot, thanks to the very high conception of freedom on the part of a Socialist, the first week in Denver would have passed very uneventfully.

Then the "miracle" happened. I was asked by the Denver Post to write a series of articles on the "Growing Social Unrest." At the same time, some newspaper women, who had been rather fair to me on previous occasions, undertook to arrange a lecture in The Brown Palace Hotel, on Rostand's great play "Chanticleer."

Feeling like Patou, I scented a rat at first, but when I was given assurance that I could write as I pleased, and speak as I would before any other audience, I cheerfully accepted. Who could forego the pleasure of telling "society" to its face how empty and rotten it is? And where could one find a better vehicle of expression, a more biting satire on all our cherished institutions, a more unflinching attack on our tinseled culture, than "Chanticleer," Rostand's philosophic and poetic masterpiece?

Had the gods been in my favor, they could not have offered me a better opportunity to hold up the mirror to the parasitic Pheasants, the idle social Guinea Hen, the unprincipled Blackbird, the charlatan Peacock, the cringing, slimy Toads of Denver Society, and, not knowing when fate would so favor me again, I did my best to make use of the occasion.

George Bernard Shaw once said that as long as he wrote Socialist tracts no one would read him; but when he began to employ the drama to express his Socialist attacks upon the idle rich, the latter split their gloves in violent approval of his ideas. The same happened in Denver.

My five meetings of the first week barely brought enough people to pay the hall rents, and, but for the faithful few, the audiences remained inert. But when I spoke through the mouth of Rostand, when I made him expose the social cancer and bring home the dullness and monotony of the "elect" set, the cruelty and ignorance that meet the idealist, the pitfalls and temptations he must face, and the struggle he must make not to forswear the Ideal, the audience "split its costly gloves" in approval. That, however, would have hardly been worth the effort; the thing which was worth while was the presence of a few earnest men and women.

The intellectual proletarians are a new type in America, but an ever increasing and permanent type. School teachers, writers, artists, stenographers, bookkeepers, and professionals in general, are forced even like the workers to realize the terrible effect of the economic struggle. They are of course still groping in the dark, unable to find the point of contact with the rest of the social forces.

What if it is the modern drama rather than the direct industrial phase which opens up the true meaning of our social abyss to these people? After all, the modern drama is no mean factor in disseminating new ideas, in pulling men and women out of their self-satisfied complacency, their mental laziness, their soul indifference.

I was therefore glad to find a number of eager and earnest people, who, after a hard day's work in school, office, or university, flocked to the drama lectures every

868

840514122

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Power of the Ideal / Emma Goldman. – pp. 87-92 ; 19 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 7, no. 3 (May 1912).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

day from 5 to 6.30, and listened with an intensity and appreciation which only those who really want to know display.

Space will not permit me to do justice to all who joined the "class." But a few impressed themselves so strongly on my memory, I must say a word about them. There is Mrs. McFarland, a most wonderfully striking personality, instructor in the literary department of the Denver University and, as I have been told, a very brilliant teacher herself. Her face reminds me of Sonya Kovalevskaya, with eyes so big and deep and sad. She absorbed herself so much in the short course, that when I announced the possibility of my return in June, she immediately offered to keep up the work which I started during our Denver visit.

There is Miss Kennan, a most scholarly woman, with a broad and big outlook on life, so rare among American women teachers. There is also Miss Nef, an enthusiast and an eager seeker for social truths. And there were other women, mostly tired, weary, and worn from the terrible struggle for existence. Not least among them, there was a pale-faced earnest newspaper girl, deeply absorbed in the modern economic methods of warfare, syndicalism and direct action. All these intellectual wage slaves came to learn, to find an explanation for the growing unrest of their own class, and how they might become factors in the tide of the greater social awakening.

Nor seems their interest to be momentary, or a mere fad; else they would not so willingly have grouped themselves around Mrs. McFarland, who is now continuing the causeries we have started, "to keep the group together until your return," she said in her wonderfully melodious voice.

The most important part of the French propaganda consists in just such small causeries, groups of people who discuss all the important phases of the great social struggle. If the Denver venture would serve as an inspiration for other places, there might in time be born a vital intellectual and radical movement that would prepare the soil for bigger and more far-reaching things.

We came to the Rocky Mountain City for five lectures only, but remained till fourteen meetings were held and five articles written and published, all of which was accomplished in thirteen days. As behooves the American spirit, "hurry up, step lively." But where there is a will, there is a way; besides, with the ardent help of Comrades May Courtney, Dr. Wey, Citron, Hurowitch, Frank and Lena Monroe, the two Cohen sisters, and John Spies, Anarchists of old standing, the true Russian souls, Semionof and his wife, the feat did not seem quite so terrible. But the strenuous side was all forgotten in the pleasant social at the studio of our old friend Elder, who also furnished the music.

However, the Denver "miracle" is not at an end; we are to return later on for a month, at the request of the Denver Post, if only the wind does not blow in another direction, which in newspaper ethics and the Colorado climate is apt to happen.

After Denver, SALT LAKE CITY appeared tame, even though it is a Mormon town. But we were glad to come back there, because of our loyal circle, among them a very courageous and able little woman, Virginia Stephen, who is an instructor in the art department at the University of Utah, notwithstanding which she carries on active work in the Sunday class of the Modern School, started by Thurston Brown. It was this friend who had also arranged our meetings. If the intelligenzia of America, like their Russian confrères, are beginning to make common cause with the people, there is hope for this country.

Just at present the attention of all earnest rebels must be directed toward Mexico, where the heroic struggle of the peons is to be terminated by the mailed fist of Uncle Sam. And also to San Diego, where that terrible fist has already committed enough crimes to condemn it unto all eternity. It is only since our arrival in Los Angeles that we have learned of all the horrors in San Diego, but as we expect to go there ourselves, we will report matters in the next issue. Meanwhile, we have collected some money for the free speech fight, and we shall continue to raise funds till that great struggle is fought to a successful issue.

For this and the next month we have a hard siege before us: Los Angeles, ten days; San Francisco for a similar length of time; Portland for six lectures; Seattle for about two weeks. Mail will reach us until May 28th,

869

840514122

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Power of the Ideal / Emma Goldman. – pp. 87-92 ; 19 cm. In Mother Earth. – Vol. 7, no. 3 (May 1912).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

at San Francisco; June 3rd—10th, Portland; June 10th —17th, Seattle. All directed to General Delivery.

"This shall be thy reward—that the Ideal shall be real to thee." With that, nothing else matters.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

Collected for the Free Speech Fight, San Diego, Cal:—Kansas City, Mo., $18.00; Denver, Colo., $12.75; Denver, for the boys en route to San Diego, $13.00; Salt Lake City, Utah, $9.30. Also collected $5.00 from Rogers Baldwin, St. Louis, for Lawrence, Mass., fund.

❧ ❧ ❧

SAN DIEGO ACKNOWLEDGMENT

We hereby acknowledge the receipt of the following donations for the Free Speech Fight in San Diego:

Emma Goldman Meeting in Kansas City.....	$18.00
" " " " Denver, Colo.....	12.70
" " " " Salt Lake Sity.....	9.30
Total	$40.00

Thanking you for your aid in our fight for freedom, yours in the Revolution,

CALIFORNIA FREE SPEECH LEAGUE,
By STANLEY M. GUE, Secretary. KASPAR BAUER, Treasurer.

❧ ❧ ❧

APPEAL FROM LAWRENCE

Fellow-workers and Comrades! As was to be expected, the mill owners of Lawrence and other points, defeated by the workers in open conflict, have rushed to the blindfolded Goddess of Law to secure balm for their wounded hearts. We have been indicted by the Grand Jury as accessories to the murder of Annie La Pizza, a girl striker. She was shot in a police-created riot on January 29th, and in our belief by a policeman in uniform, one whom numerous witnesses recognized and accused in open court.

Besides this, we together with a number of other fellow-workers have been further indicted on numerous counts for "conspiracy."

Let the hireling agents of the masters swear to their "instructions." Our only crime is "Loyalty to the working class." If the reward for that be death, we will give up our lives with a song on our lips.

Because of the workers' struggle, in which we enjoyed their confidence and played a prominent part, $15,000,- 000 increase in wages annually will be reaped by the textile workers of New England, and there will be that much less profit to the capitalists. Therefore the masters are bent upon having our heads, and through the machinations of their legal and political puppets, they will leave no stone unturned to accomplish their desire.

Comrades! In this struggle, as in the past ones, we gave to our fellow-workers all of our experience, energies, knowledge, enthusiasm, devotion and love, that children may be taken from the mills and sent to the schoolroom, that fathers may receive sufficient pay to maintain their families, that nursing babes shall not be torn from their toiling mothers' breasts. We were violently taken away from the battle and held as hostages. Hitherto, men similarly charged have been entitled by law to bail in the State of Massachusetts, but this has been repeatedly denied us on judges' discretion!

Now that the struggle is over, it is proposed that we shall pay the price for our ideals and activities. It is the duty of the great tribunal of labor and of all who sympathize with labor's aspirations for a better day, to decide the question of our responsibilities and ultimate freedom. Fellow-workers! Gathered around this jail a few weeks ago, twenty-five thousand men, women, and children, members of our class, cheered and sang the songs of their love and feeling of solidarity for us. But this immense and magnificent popular demonstration was not enough to convince the masters of our innocence. Thus again the lesson has been repeated that the basis of law is not the people's will.

We remain, however, unshaken in our firm and profound belief in the final triumph of Truth and Justice. We appeal to you, each and all, to bear witness at our trial when the great cause of human emancipation, in the persons of two sincere soldiers, shall once again sit on the felon's bench to face and challenge all the combined powers of capitalist reaction.

We are innocent of any crime. We have fought like good soldiers a loyal, open, and fair battle, with the clean weapon of working class solidarity; against enormous wealth; surrounded by thugs with guns and clubs in a forest of bayonets; and we have won the greatest victory in the history of labor.

870

890331006

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Excerpt from Lecture] Threats Made by Woman "Red" / Emma Goldman. — p. 2 ; 43 cm. In The San Francisco Call. —(May 12, 1912).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

and made to kneel and of the American flag.
they were marched
e being compelled to pangled Banner."
f April 5 unknown citiobile went to the home ditor of a local weekly while his wife looked e was carried to the taken from the city.
morning he made his
, where he said he had vigilantes and warned
o the city. From there Angeles and a week to San Diego.
e until the present the ken an active part in r and keeping the city bies. On the night of of this committee, it ge of a crowd of about he I. W. W. who had m the north and esvond Oceanside, doing the superior court for protection.

VIGILANTES FACE LEGAL ACTION

As a result the name of J. M. Porter, a wealthy resident of San Diego, has been mentioned in connection with the so-called vigilantes of the city and an effort will probably be made to learn the names of fifteen others next Monday. At that time Porter and his fifteen alleged companions will be asked to show cause why they should not be punished for contempt of court in connection with alleged intimidation of attorneys employed to defend persons now awaiting trial in the courts of this county.

The citations would have been issued Saturday if it were not a non judicial day. Moore, Robbins and Rawlins went into hiding Saturday night, and up to Monday morning had not been seen or heard from. The vigilantes, so-called, were active Saturday night and Sunday, it is said, but the police say they have heard no reports of violence.

chief of police to say who shall and who shall not have the right to speak in public.

"The socialists pure and simple and the American Federation of Labor are bitterly opposed to the I. W. W. and their preachments, but in the San Diego case, because of the authorities robbing the I. W. W. of the right of free speech, they came to their immediate support and acted with them as a unit, and, in my opinion, rightly so, on the theory that if the I. W. W. could be robbed of free speech today by the chief of police of a city, tomorrow that same chief of police could rob the socialists and the trade unionists or any other body of citizens, of their right of free speech."

"Do you believe there is a serious danger of such a result, in view of the checks on a chief of police when he does not execute the public will?" was asked.

"I am not prepared to say how serious," Weinstock replied, "but there would be danger. It should not be invited."

"Do you believe the chief of police should keep the peace and see that the will of the community is carried out?" was asked.

"The chief of police should obey the law."

SITUATION WAS OUTSIDE LAW

"But you admit that this is a situation outside the law."

"They should make a law to fit the case. No wrong exists that can not be reached by the law, and it is within the province of the people to enact laws to kill this sort of thing."

"What is to be done when a band of men are avowedly lawless, as these men are?" was asked.

"No matter how lawless they are, there must be laws to reach them."

MAILED TO ER OF DEATH

eives Same Lethal lew His Former heart With d From Page 1

hy, the Catholic priest, ent.

nd walked on. He was in a black cheviot suit,
hite vest, white shirt,
ar and a black bow tie,
in his shirt front and shoes brightly shined,
aved down the middle.
n entered the chamber.
panied by the clergy-
on after, the unfrocked ng as calm as either of letters addressed to were opened by Warden

e which was found to of potassium. It was tion N, New York city,
m.
o clew to the sender,
g inclosed in a small arked "headache pow-

it showed that it was ame nature which was Avis Linnell.
rse advised Warden
e public the receipt of innocent of any knowl-

ling, the attorney said.

PRESIDENT
E VISITOR HERE

sident of the Equitable ciety, will arrive in San nesday morning from
M. Shields will give a nor at the Fairmont evening. Day, who was et, succeeded to the Equitable upon the will will be
Jr. at the

FEAR OF TONGMEN DISTURBS WITNESS

San Francisco Harbor Policeman in Chico Case Threatens to Shoot Himself

CHICO, May 20.—Fearing that members of the Suey Sing tong would harm him because he thoughtlessly divulged the identity of Wong Suey, a Suey Sing tongman accused of murder, J. T. Whalen, a San Francisco harbor policeman, threatened to shot himself in the corridor of the city hall here today during the preliminary hearing of Wong.

His attempt was thwarted by City Marshall Goe and Assistant District Attorney Le Rossignol. Goe took the gun away from Whalen as he drew it from his pocket.

Whalen came as a witness for Wong. He testified that the name of the accused was not Wong Suey. He was heard to call the Chinese Wong outside the courtroom.

GOLDEN WEST, POWER BOAT, HAS TROUBLES

Balky Schooner Makes Golden Gate Instead of Hoquiam

The power schooner Golden West, which entered the port yesterday, brought a story like a chapter from the adventures of "Alice in Wonderland." The Golden West left Raymond, in Washington, May 6 for Hoquiam, about 60 miles farther north.

Its engine, after the schooner crossed the bar at Raymond, came to a full stop. A northwest gale blew the ship down the coast as far as Trinidad, whence Captain Englke managed to work his way in here under sail.

The vessel had been provisioned only for a 60 mile run and food and water were exhausted.

The arrival of the schooner caused some excitement in federal circles, as the immigration authorities are looking for just such a boat with a cargo of contraband Chinese. Captain Englke has a crew of two men.

Every woman realizes that mirrors are not what they were when she was a girl.

THREATS MADE BY WOMAN "RED"

Asserting that if "free speech" were not granted to members of the Industrial Workers of the World in San Diego in the unrestricted permission to teach their tenets in the streets of the southern city, secret meetings and violence would inevitably result, Emma Goldman last night supplemented her dramatic lecture at Jefferson Square hall with a collection for the I. W. W.'s of San Diego and Los Angeles.

From a crowd which comfortably filled the lecture room a total contribution of $27.49 was collected. Half of this will go to the I. W. W.'s at San Diego, and half to those at Los Angeles for sending more recruits. While members of the audience freely bought pamphlets on anarchism, direct action, anarchy versus socialism and other anarchistic publications, there was no applause, but a dead silence, when, just before the collection, Doctor Reitman announced that the offering was taken as "because a policeman killed an I. W. W. in San Diego, 38 members of that organization were being held on a charge of murder."

"If there were such a thing as law in America," asserted Miss Goldman in a loud voice, "every vigilante and brutal policeman in San Diego would be sent to the penitentiary. But there is no law—the government is merely a machine to perpetuate present conditions.

"San Diego's fight is your fight. You may have free speech here, but if they succeed in stopping it at San Diego they will stop it elsewhere. If they win it at San Diego, it will provide the Industrial Workers with that much

BIG LAND DEAL CLOSED—Tulare, May 20.—One of the biggest land deals consummated in this section was closed today. E. O. Walker, a well known banker of Los Angeles, purchased the Burrell Tract, consisting of 1,000 acres, near this city. The deal involved over $300,000.

WOMAN SCREA
SCARES BU

Mrs. W. E. Co street, frightened a b her home yesterday a tried to enter her roo access to the hou
The burglar sounded
eral times before ent
ing no response, believ was absent. He made
Mrs. Commery scream tectives Dolan and G tailed to the case.

DOWNIEVILLE MAN DE
May 20.—Amos Dubuque
dent, was found dead in town. Dubuque went is supposed to have fall

Goo Me

It is purchase be bought at prices struments facturers.
enough t that will in appear well.

No m enviable r

Th

Made pointed o labor savi
the highe more real nent usefu
For more the leadin stock of L

The S

135-153 Ke

OTHER

871

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

830407025

The Emma Goldman Papers

[The Outrage of San Diego] / [Emma Goldman].– [1912 May 16, draft].– 4 p. ; 36 × 22 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the Southern Illinois University at Carbondale. Institutional Location: Theodore Schroeder Papers, Morris Library.

[Emma Goldman May 16, 19?]

Fifty years ago a young lawyer, looking out from his office window, saw an infuriated, mad, screaming and well dressed mob dragging a man by a rope along the streets of Boston. That man was Lloyd Garrison and the young lawyer, America's greatest orator, Wendell Phillips. So tremendous was the impression made upon Mr. Phillips by the terrible outrageous sight in America and the most cultured City of America, that he became the fiery exponent of the great American cause for which Lloyd Garrison had been assaulted by the mob on that day.

That was fifty years ago. Since then, we have, no doubt, advanced along the lines of ~~intelligent~~ actual and social endeavor. Certainly we have learned that Justice and Truth, for which both Wendell Phillips and Lloyd Garrison made such a brave and gallant fight, represent great ideals now being accepted by millions of people.

But if Lloyd Garrison and Wendeal Phillips had entered San Diego at a little after 1 o'clock on the day of the 14th of May, 1912, they would have realized that very little, if any, has changed since that time. There was the same well dressed, howling, hooting and blood-thirsty mob, the only difference being that the victims in question were two Anarchists instead of Abolitionists and that the mob did not have the rope. Equally so they would have realized that it is to-day as great a crime to work for the emancipation of the White Slave as it has been in that time to espouse the cause of the Black Slave.

However, I do not so much condemn the mob, as it neither reasons nor is it very eminable to reason, but I do condemn those who, for months past have filled the people of San Diego with prejudice and with blood-curdling stories and with the spirit of vengeance. Those who have done so do not represent ~~rabble~~ rabble, but boast of belonging to the so-called better class of citizens, lawyers, doctors, real estate men, the police and one of the leading papers and I say this not without any absolute truth, but because I have been there and have been able to get sufficient data that could send every one of them up to the penitentiary for years, if there were a Judge and Jury in San Diego

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

830407025

The Emma Goldman Papers

[The Outrage of San Diego] / [Emma Goldman].– [1912 May 16, draft].– 4 p. ; 36 × 22 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the Southern Illinois University at Carbondale. Institutional Location: Theodore Schroeder Papers, Morris Library.

brave enough to Dare the case.

My purpose in coming to San Diego was the same as my purpose coming to Denver or to any other City in America, namely, to lecture. Every time I visited the Coast I have addressed large audiences in the City of San Diego and never have I been disturbed, although my subjects have always been along economic and socialistic lines. The things which I was to treat on this visit were two dramas "The Enemy of the People" and "Maternity" by Henrick Ibsen & Brieux by two foremost dramatists of the World. Those lectures I have delivered all over the United States before the most intelligent and cultured audiences and in Denver both these lectures were highly commented upon by Mr. P.W.T.

I have, of course, been interfered with on prior occasions since free speech in our land depends entirely on the whims and arbitrary wills of ignorant police officials, but it was left to San Diego, a town which Nature herself has intended many to be happy and suppress the right of free speech and assemblage in a manner which would have put to shame the Spanish Inquisition. It was left to so-called citizens who swear by law and order to break their human and statutory law.

Austensibly the organization now known as the I.W.W. is responsible for the excitement and the blood-thirsty attitude of the people of San Diego, but after all, that is the indictment made against every organization and idea which the popular minds have not yet accepted, but whether the I.W.W. be right or wrong, they cannot be possibly as wrong as the people of San Diego, who are brutally suppressing the right of expression. Men and women who are not ready to listen to contrast opinion on any given subject, thereby condemn themselves to the grossest ignorance and the most outrageous tyranny. If what a so-called undesireable element has to say is wrong, it will die of itself a much quicker death than if those people are beaten, clubbed, tarred and feathered and driven out like wild beasts. Equally so it is with anything I might to say. ~~The intelligent public in any city, certainly has the right to hear~~ nor can anything I stand for be killed by mob-butchery or by police interference. The

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

873

830407025

The Emma Goldman Papers

[The Outrage of San Diego] / [Emma Goldman].– [1912 May 16, draft].– 4 p. ; 36 × 22 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the Southern Illinois University at Carbondale. Institutional Location: Theodore Schroeder Papers, Morris Library.

#3

issue of free speech is one of the most vital and fundamental in every country and City and the very moment any given section of a community takes it upon itself to suppress that issue, it at the same time undermines the principal of liberty and condemns itself to death.

It was not sufficient for the so-called respectable mob to make a violent and savage attack to threaten the life of the hotel manager who had manhood enough not to turn us out of the house and use a language unprintable, but it demanded our lives and with the direct and deliberate assistence of the police, nearly succeeded in getting Dr. Ben L. Reitman. Evidently, it did not dare go as far as that with me, nor yet to carry out its criminal conspiracy while I was with Dr. Reitman. It was therefore arranged that I be called in the office of the hotel manager to speak to the Chief, and while there, these men bound, gagged the Doctor, placed him in an automobile, took him out six miles from the City limits, tore his clothing off his body, beat him mercilessly, made him undergo indignities beyond description, tortured him and burned the initials I.W.W. on his back. Not content with that, he was compelled to walk thirty miles in a naked condition. Fortunate for the victim, he had money and his return ticket to Los Angeles, but what about the hundreds of victims, the obscure and poverty stricken members of the I.W.W. who have neither friends nor money? I understand that the Savior of the Christian people said "What soever ye do unto the least of these my children, ye do unto me" and yet, the people who call themselves Christians austensibly worship the memory of Christ, go on in a brutal criminal manner outraging life and liberty.

However, it has been said that if there is one innocent man in a City, that City will be saved. And there is such a man in San Diego, a Mr. George Edwards, who is at the head of the Music Institute, a musician of great ability and man of fine culture. At the critical moment, when even business people would have lost their courage, this man, who had never before seen or heard me, offered his hall for a lecture, which was certainly as brave an act as that of Wendell Phillips who rushed out to the assistance of

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

874

830407025

The Emma Goldman Papers

[The Outrage of San Diego] / [Emma Goldman].– [1912 May 16, draft].– 4 p. ; 36 × 22 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the Southern Illinois University at Carbondale. Institutional Location: Theodore Schroeder Papers, Morris Library.

loyd Garrison fifty years ago. I felt, however, to accept Mr. Edwards' kindness and hospitality would have meant to jeopardize his life, which I could not possibly do. It was only because of that and also because I was given absolute assurance by the manager of the U.S. Grant Hotel that no harm would come to Mr. Goldman, although he had been taken out of the City and sent on to Los Angeles in an automobile, it was only that which induced me to go out of that City.

Life, under our present circumstances, is not so great a thing but what anyone who has an ideal should be willing to part with it. But life in San Diego is worse than death. I cannot believe that a number of intelligent people in the United States is so small that it could not bring mal-pressure upon the City of San Diego to desist in its atrocities. It was the intelligent minority which forced the Southern planter to stop his murderous treatment of the Black Man. Surely the same can be done to-day. At any rate it shall hereafter be my subject to bring to the consideration of the intelligent public throughout the land, the atrocities now being enacted by by a so-called respectable mob in the fair City of San Diego.

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

875

871014229

The Emma Goldman Papers

Are We Really Advancing? / Emma Goldman.– [1912 June?, draft]. – 4 p. ; 36 × 22 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the University of Illinois at Chicago Library.

~~1925?~~ 1912

"Are we really advancing?"

Fifty years ago a young lawyer, looking out from his office window, saw an infuriated, mad, screaming and well dressed mob dragging a man by a rope along the streets of Boston. That man was Lloyd Garrison and the young lawyer, America's greatest orator, Wendell Phillips. So tremendous was the impression made upon Mr. Phillips by the terrible outrageous sight in America and the most cultured City of America, that he became the fiery exponent of the great American cause for which Lloyd Garrison had been assaulted by the mob on that day.

That was fifty years ago. Since then, we have, no doubt, advanced along the lines of intelligent and social endeavor. Certainly we have learned that Justice and Truth, for which both Wendell Phillips and Lloyd Garrison made such a brave and gallant fight, represent great ideals now being accepted by millions of people.

But if Lloyd Garrison and Wendell Phillips had entered San Diego at a little after 1 o'clock on the day of the 14th of May, 1912, they would have realized that very little, if any, has changed since that time. There was the same well dressed, howling, hooting and blood-thirsty mob, the only difference being that the victims in question were two Anarchists instead of Abolitionists and that the mob did not have the rope. Equally so they would have realized that it is to-day as great a crime to work for the emancipation of the White Slave as it has been in that time to espouse the cause of the Black Slave.

However, I do not so much condemn the mob, as it neither reasons nor is it very eminable to reason, but I do condemn those who, for months past have filled the people of San Diego with prejudice and with blood-curdling stories and with the spirit of vengeance. Those who have done so do not represent ~~rebels,~~ but boasts of belonging to the so-called better class of citizens, lawyers, doctors, real estate men, the police and one of the leading papers and I say this ~~not without any absolute truth, but~~ because I have been there and have been able to get sufficient data that would send every one of them up to the penitentiary for years, if there were a Judge in San Diego

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

876

871014229

The Emma Goldman Papers

Are We Really Advancing? / Emma Goldman.– [1912 June?, draft]. – 4 p. ; 36 × 22 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the University of Illinois at Chicago Library.

brave enough to accept the ~~case~~ evidence.

My purpose in coming to San Diego was the same as my purpose in coming to Denver or to any other City in America, namely, to lecture. Every time I visited the Coast I have addressed large audiences in the City of San Diego and never have I been disturbed, although my subjects have always been along economic and sociological lines. The ~~things~~ themes which I was to treat on this visit were the dramas "The Enemy of the People" & Maternity, Henrik Ibsen and Brieux by two foremost dramatists of the world. These lectures I have delivered all over the United States before the most intelligent and cultured audiences and in Denver both these lectures were highly commented upon by Mr. F.W.S.

I have, of course, been interfered with on prior occasions since free speech in our land depends entirely on the whims and arbitrary wills of ignorant police officials, but it was left to San Diego, a town which Nature herself has intended many to be happy and peaceful to suppress the right of free speech and assemblage in a manner which would have put to shame the Spanish Inquisition. It was left to so-called citizens who swear by law and order to break every human and statutory law.

Austensibly the organization now known as the I.W.W. is responsible for the excitement and the blood-thirsty attitude of the people of San Diego, but after all, that is the indictment against every organization and idea which the popular minds have not yet accepted, but whether the I.W.W. be right or wrong, they cannot be possibly as wrong as the people of San Diego, who are brutally suppressing the right of expression. Men and women who are not ready to listen to a contrary opinion on any given subject, thereby condemn themselves to the grossest ignorance and the most outrageous tyranny. If what a so-called undesirable element has to say is wrong, it will die of itself a much quicker death than if these people are beaten, clubbed, tarred and feathered and driven out like wild beasts. Equally so it is with anything I have to say. ~~The intelligent public in any city, certainly has the right to hear~~, nor can anything I stand for be killed by mob-butchery or by police interference. The

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

877

871014229

The Emma Goldman Papers

Are We Really Advancing? / Emma Goldman.– [1912 June?, draft]. – 4 p. ; 36 × 22 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the University of Illinois at Chicago Library.

In as much as ye have done it unto ~~me~~ one of the least of these ye have done it unto me!

of
issue of free speech is one/the most vital and fundamental in every country and City and the very moment any given section of a community takes it upon itself to suppress that issue, it at the same time undermines the principal of liberty and condemns itself to death.

It was not sufficient for the so-called respectable mob to make a violent and savage attack to threaten the life of the hotel manager who had manhood enough not to turn us out of the house and use a language unprintable, but it demanded our lives and with the direct and deliberate assistance of the police, ~~nearly~~ succeeded in getting Dr. Ben L. Reitman. Evidently, it did not dare go as far as that with me, nor yet to carry out its criminal conspiracy while I was with Dr. Reitman. It was therefore arranged that I be called in the office of the hotel manager to speak to the Chief, and while there, these men bound, gagged the doctor, placed him in an automobile, took him out six miles from the city limits, tore his clothing off his body, beat him mercilessly, made him undergo indignities beyond description, tortured him and burned the initials I.W.W. on his back. Not content with that, he was compelled to walk thirty miles in a naked condition. Fortunate for the victim, he had money and his return ticket to Los Angeles, but what about the hundreds of victims, the obscure and poverty stricken members of the I. W. W. who have neither friends nor money? I understand that the Savior of the Christian people said, ~~"Whatsoever ye do unto one of these my brethren, even to the least of these, ye do it unto me."~~ and yet, the people who call themselves Christians, ostensibly worship the memory of Christ, go on in a brutal criminal manner outraging life and liberty and ~~yet we retaliate by showing mercy unto every one, who differs with us.~~

However, it has been said that if there is one innocent man in a City, that City will be saved. And there is such a man in San Diego, a Mr. George Edwards, who is at the head of the Music Institute, a musician of great ability and man of fine culture. At the critical moment, when even ~~brave~~ people would have lost their courage, this man, who had never before seen or heard me, offered his hall for a lecture, which was certainly a brave act as that of Wendell Phillips who rushed out to the assistance of

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

878

871014229

The Emma Goldman Papers

Are We Really Advancing? / Emma Goldman.– [1912 June?, draft]. – 4 p.; 36 × 22 cm.

Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the University of Illinois at Chicago Library.

Lloyd Garrison fifty years ago. I felt, however, to accept Mr. Edwards' kindness and hospitality would have meant to jeopardise his life, which I could not possibly do. It was only because of that and also because I was given absolute assurance by the manager of the U.S. Grant Hotel that no harm would come to Mr. Leitman, although he had been taken out of the City and sent on to Los Angeles in an automobile, it was only that which induced me to go out of that City.

Life, under our present circumstances, is not so great a thing but what anyone who has an ideal should be willing to part with it. But life in San Diego is worse than that. I cannot believe that the number of intelligent people in the United States is so small that it could not bring moral-pressure upon the City of San Diego to desist in its atrocities. It was the intelligent minority which forced the Southern planter to stop his murderous treatment of the Black Man. Surely the same can be done to-day. At any rate it shall hereafter be my object to bring to the consideration of the intelligent public throughout the land, the atrocities now being enacted by a so-called respectable mob in the fair City of San Diego.

Emma Goldman

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

879

890209017

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Outrage of San Diego / Emma Goldman.– pp. 115-122 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. –Vol. 7, no. 4 (June, 1912).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

have had a great deal of fun. None of them has been as much as slapped on the wrist. They proved to us that we were a lot of cowards, unable to protect ourselves. All that has been done in the way of retaliation has been to appeal to the government and the public for sympathy. We didn't even get that. The revolutionary movement of America has not justified its existence, at least so far as San Diego is concerned. For myself, I weep. I am ashamed that that great, big, strong giant, Labor, can be so readily bullied and beaten, and will not strike back.

A friend, whom I saw last week in San Quentin prison, asked me: "Why don't somebody do something?" I answered: "We are all cowards, I guess."

⁂ ⁂ ⁂

TYRANNICIDE

BY WALTER SAVAGE LANDOR.

DANGER is not in action, but in sloth;
By sloth alone we lose
Our strength, our substance, and, far more than both,
The guerdon of the Muse.
Men kill without compunction hawk and kite;
To save the folded flock
They chase the wily plunderer of the night
O'er thicket, marsh, and rock.
Sacred no longer is Our Lord the wolf
Nor crown'd is crocodile;
And shall ye worship on the Baltick Gulph
The refuse of the Nile?
Among the myriad men of murder'd sires
Is there not one still left
Whom wrongs and vengeance urge when virtue fires?
One conscious how bereft
Of all is he . . . of country, kindred, home. . . .
He, doom'd to drag along
The dray of serfdom, or thro' lands to roam
That mock an unknown tongue?
A better faith was theirs than pulpits preach
Who struck the tyrant down,
Who taught the brave how patriot brands can reach
And crush the proudest crown.

No law for him who stands above the law,
Trampling on truth and trust;
But hangman's hook or courtier's privy paw
Shall drag him thro' the dust.
Most dear of all the Virtues to her Sire
Is Justice; and most dear
To Justice is Tyrannicide; the fire
That guides her flashes near.

⁂ ⁂ ⁂

THE OUTRAGE OF SAN DIEGO

FIFTY years ago a young lawyer looked out from his office window and saw a well-dressed, infuriated, mad, screaming mob, dragging a man by a rope along the streets of Boston. That man was Lloyd Garrison, and the young lawyer America's greatest orator, Wendell Phillips. So tremendous was the impression made upon Phillips by the terrible, savage sight in an American city, that he became the fiery exponent of the great human cause for which Lloyd Garrison had been assaulted by the mob on that day.

Since then we have no doubt advanced along the lines of intellectual and social endeavor. Certainly we have learned that justice and truth, for which both Wendell Phillips and Lloyd Garrison made such a brave and gallant fight, represent great ideals, now being accepted by millions of people.

But if Lloyd Garrison and Wendell Phillips had been in San Diego a little before 1 o'clock on the 14th of May, 1912, they would have realized that very little, if anything, has changed since their time. There was the same well-dressed, howling, hooting, and blood-thirsty mob, the only difference being that the victims were two Anarchists instead of Abolitionists. Equally so they would have realized that it is to-day as great a crime to work for the emancipation of the white slave as it was to work for the cause of the black slave fifty years ago.

On my previous trips to California I never failed to speak in San Diego, and I have never been disturbed. This time I had a double reason for visiting that city.

880

890209017

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Outrage of San Diego / Emma Goldman.— pp. 115-122 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 7, no. 4 (June, 1912).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

First, to lecture; and, secondly, to learn for myself of the outrages which had been committed against the I. W. W. men during the last three months. Dr. Reitman and I could have slipped in quietly, but we had nothing to hide. Besides, we wanted to give the authorities a chance to make good their claim that they were not in league with the savagery and cruelties committed by the so-called patriotic citizens of San Diego.

We wrote the Mayor, notifying him of the time and the place of the lectures, and asking him to keep his subordinates from suppressing the right of free speech. In reply we heard from Chief of Police Wilson, ordering us to stay away from San Diego. As we could not possibly recognize the high-handed authority of this uniformed cossack, we determined to carry out our schedule as originally planned.

On arriving in the city we saw a large crowd, but paid no further attention to it, quietly passing to the auto-bus of the U. S. Grant Hotel. Then the mob outbreak began, the moment our presence became known. I shall not attempt to describe the language, the madness, the atrocities that raged around us. It seemed as if the entire city had turned into an insane asylum.

But for the pluck of the chauffeur, we would have been mobbed there and then. He raced at wild speed, with several cars full of vigilantes in made pursuit, screaming, yelling, and cursing the chauffeur. Finally we reached the U. S. Grant Hotel, in our company being Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Kirk. Mr. Kirk, though under indictment himself, showed wonderful bravery in meeting us at the depot—an act which was certainly as heroic as that of Wendell Phillips, who rushed out to the rescue of Lloyd Garrison.

No objection was made at the hotel. We were assigned to our rooms and, after some rest, we went down to the grill-room for our luncheon. Everything seemed quiet, when about 4 P. M. the head clerk announced that he would have to transfer us to other rooms, as the vigilantes had gotten hold of the registry and were determined to get us out of the hotel. Later the manager himself, Mr. Holmes, arrived, assuring us that we were perfectly safe under his roof, but that he could not permit us to go down to the lobby or restaurant, or anywhere in the hotel, which meant nothing less than incarceration. Again we waited for some time to map out a plan of action, but at 7.30 P. M. the horror of our reception was repeated, only in a more hideous manner.

Five thousand people, preceded by a hundred autos, with fashionably-dressed women and men as their occupants, with American flags, their riot-whistles creating a deafening noise, surrounded the hotel. Five hundred of these maniacs, led by a good Christian and American patriot, Francis Bierman, reporter on the San Diego Union, entered the hotel lobby, unfurled the American flag, compelled everybody to sing the "Star Spangled Banner" as an inspiration for their heroic work, then walked up to Manager Holmes and demanded: "Turn over the two damned Anarchists to us, or we will take you." Mr. Holmes replied that he couldn't do that. That it was the custom of the hotel to protect its guests; but that if they would quiet down, he would see Miss Goldman and induce her to leave the city. Thereupon the committee said they would wait, but would return, reinforced, raid the hotel, drag every guest out of the rooms until they would locate us. If they should fail in that, Mr. Holmes would have to pay for it with his life.

About 10 o'clock Mr. Holmes came to us and told us that he could no longer guarantee our safety, but that if we would leave he would give us protection. That we refused to do. Equally so, to act upon his suggestion to ask the Chief of Police for protection. We said that when we decided to go, we would leave as we had arrived—openly and without the support of the authorities. While we were discussing the matter, we were interrupted by violent knocks on the door, and a man (whom we took for a detective, but who afterwards proved to be a vigilante) stepped in and informed Mr. Holmes that the Chief of Police, with other men from the department, were at Mr. Holmes' office and demanded to see us.

Strange to say, Reitman showed greater intuition than myself, immediately suspecting foul play. He

881

890209017

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Outrage of San Diego / Emma Goldman.— pp. 115-122 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 7, no. 4 (June, 1912).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

said that the Chief should come to us, but to avoid argument I suggested that we go down to the office of Mr. Holmes. There we found six men; one, a certain J. M. Porter, I recognized as the leading vigilante of the afternoon mob, and also the one who threatened E. E. Kirk's life in my presence in the hotel lobby. We were then informed that the Chief was in the next room and would see me first. Even then I did not suspect the conspiracy to which the police and even Mr. Holmes himself had lent a willing hand. How could I? We were not in Russia. We were in San Diego, in an American city, in the leading hotel of the town, at 10 o'clock in the evening. How could I for a moment suspect that human beings would be so bestial and degenerate as to commit a thing which would put to shame even Russia?

My conversation with the Chief of Police, his assistant, the head of detectives, and some other officers lasted but a few minutes. They offered their protection, which I refused, telling the Chief that all he had to do was to invoke the ordinance which has made it a felony to gather in the business districts of the city and for which three hundred I. W. W. men had been beaten, clubbed, arrested, and subjected to every cruelty and indignation imaginable. But the Chief replied that he couldn't do that, because the mob had outgrown his power. I then suggested that he resign, as he declared himself unfit to be a protector of so-called law and order. I asked him to let me speak to the mob from the window, as the office was on the first floor. I have faced mobs before in my life and have invariably succeeded in soothing them. But even that he wouldn't do, and so the conversation came to an end, the Chief giving me the cheerful assurance that he would turn me over to the mob the following morning. I replied that if I had to die, I was just as willing to die at the hands of the mob as at the hands of the police.

I immediately went to the room where I had left the Doctor. I found it locked, and then I suddenly realized the whole contemptible conspiracy. I demanded that the door be opened, and of course there was no Ben Reitman. I turned to the Chief of Police and told him that if any serious injury should come to Reitman, or if he should lose his life, I would hold the Chief responsible for it; and, furthermore, that I would come to San Diego and take his miserable life; nor would I run away, as I am always ready to stand the consequences for anything I say or do. The brave Chief grew pale and said, "Why, we had nothing to do with it. You know yourself, we were in the next room." Which only added to his cowardice, as the whole wretched business was carried out with the consent and connivance of the police department.

For four hours I paced the floor of my room in agony, not knowing what had become of Ben Reitman, and knowing still less what to do, because I could not communicate with our friends in San Diego, as that would have meant turning them over to the police. At 2 A. M., May 15th, the house detective and another man came to the room. Nature does create some freaks. The man with the house detective had a most wonderful face, kind, tender, and human, but he introduced himself as a detective. He reminded me of a beautiful woman with a rotten soul. He said that he would not lie in telling me that he came from Ben Reitman, but that he was given absolute assurance on the part of some authoritative people that no harm had come to him, although he had been taken out of town and was now on his way to Los Angeles. I then called up Mrs. Estelle Kirk, giving the name of the detective, whom she evidently knew, as she told me that he was the only decent man in the entire department; that therefore it might be possible that he was telling the truth. But I did not feel inclined to believe, as I never yet have found a detective who can tell the truth. But the manager of the hotel begged and pleaded with me to leave. He said that he had sheltered us as long as he could; that he didn't ask us to come in the first place; that we were taking undue advantage of him; and that we were ruining the hotel and jeopardizing his life—all of which was true. I felt I had no right to drive the man into a still more desperate position, and therefore I decided to leave on the 2.45 train for Los Angeles. I ordered a taxi. On the way to the depot I could see nothing

882

890209017

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Outrage of San Diego / Emma Goldman.– pp. 115-122 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. –Vol. 7, no. 4 (June, 1912).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

of a suspicious character. The streets were deserted, and San Diego had returned to its normal sleepy state.

I was just about to enter the car when six automobiles with the same maniacs—patriotic citizens—whisked up to the station, and then I felt myself bodily lifted up by the trainmen, pushed into the car, and the door locked. The train did not pull out for another eight minutes, the most terrible, the most hideous eight minutes of my life. There were the good Christian, law-abiding, respectable citizens, and the howl they raised, the language they used, the efforts they made to break into the train, are beyond description, beyond anything that the most depraved human beings could be capable of. After a seemingly endless trip, in the desperate hope that Reitman would join me at some of the stations, I finally landed in Los Angeles, only to find that he had not arrived. Later I learned of the horrible things that happened to him, the details of which our readers will find in his own article.

I have, of course, been interfered with on previous occasions in a number of American cities. Free speech in this country depends entirely on the whims and arbitrary will of ignorant police officials. But it was left to San Diego, a town which Nature herself has intended man to be happy and peaceful in, to suppress the right of free speech and assemblage and to outrage every vestige of personal liberty in a manner which would have put to shame the Spanish Inquisition. It was left to citizens who swear by law and order to break not only their own written laws, but every principle of decency and humanity.

Ostensibly the organization now known as the I. W. W. is responsible for the excitement and the bloodthirsty attitude of the people of San Diego. But after all, that is the indictment made against every organization and idea which the popular mind has not yet accepted. But whether the I. W. W. be right or wrong, they cannot possibly be so wrong as the people of San Diego who are brutally suppressing the right of free expression and who are committing acts of violence and outrage which would put every one of them, including the entire police department, into the penitentiary for life, if the judiciary of that city were not as cowardly and craven as its citizens.

Men and women who are not ready to listen to contrary opinion on any given subject, thereby condemn themselves to the grossest ignorance and the most outrageous tyranny. If what the I. W. W., or any other undesirable, have to say is wrong, it will die of itself a much quicker death than if these people are beaten, clubbed, tarred, and driven out like wild beasts. Nor can anything I stand for be killed by mob-butchery or by police violence. The issue of Free Speech is one of the most vital and fundamental in America, and the very moment any given section of the country undertakes to suppress freedom of expression, it at the same time undermines every principle of liberty and condemns itself to death.

Fortunately for Reitman, he had money and his return ticket to Los Angeles. He could at least help himself somewhat after the terrible experience. But what about the hundreds of men, without friends or money, who were subjected to the same terrible outrage, except that their bodies were not burned or tarred? I understand that the Savior of the Christian people said, "Whatsoever ye do unto the least of these my children, ye do unto me." And yet the people who call themselves Christians and worship the memory of Christ, continue in a brutal, savage manner to outrage life, to beat and club men, to drive them out of town, to leave them penniless and without food on the deserts of California.

Verily, man's power of endurance is a very elastic thing, or the vigilantes would have long ere this been given a dose of their own medicine.

However, it has been said that if there is one innocent man in a city, that city will be saved. And there is such a man in San Diego—Mr. George Edwards, who is at the head of the Music Institute. At the critical moment, when even the bravest people lost their courage, this man, who had never before seen or heard me, offered me his hall for a lecture. I felt, however, that to accept Mr. Edwards' kindness and hospitality would have meant to endanger his life, which I certainly could not do. But it was his spirit

883

890209017

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Outrage of San Diego / Emma Goldman.– pp. 115-122 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. –Vol. 7, no. 4 (June, 1912).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

of kindliness and the great friendship shown by the Kirks that gave the only spark of life and warmth in that benighted, maddened town, San Diego.

Life under our present system is not so great a thing that he who has an ideal and loves liberty should not be willing to part with it. But life in San Diego is worse than death. I cannot believe that the number of intelligent people in the United States is so small that they could not bring moral pressure upon that city to stop its atrocities. It was the intelligent minority which forced the Southern planter to stop his murderous treatment of the black man. Surely the same can be done to-day. It is with that in view that this article is written, and not in complaint of anything we have endured. It is also because I feel that the crimes, the savagery, and the unspeakable cruelties perpetrated by the San Diego thugs, with the connivance of the police, and the support of the San Diego Union and Tribune, must be brought to an end. Crime begets crime, and violence inevitably gives birth to violence. If San Diego is justified in violence, why not its victims? To avoid both, I appeal to all fair-minded and liberty-loving people throughout the country to join in a determined campaign against San Diego and its horrors.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

⁂ ⁂ ⁂

A PROTEST AND A WARNING

EDITORIAL silence of the New York press regarding the San Diego outrages, and the attitude of direct encouragement on the part of some newspapers, caused the undersigned to send the following letter to the press:

The Anarchists of America have for years been propagating in a peaceful manner their ideas for the regeneration of society. On numerous occasions the authorities of the various cities have subjected them to persecution and suppressed their rights of free speech. Nevertheless, in spite of all the violence toward them, the Anarchists did not reply in kind. On the contrary, they constantly emphasized the peaceful methods of their propaganda.

But violence begets violence. Terror from above breeds terror below.

The authorities in different parts of the country have recently inaugurated a régime of terroristic oppression against every opponent of existing conditions. Peaceful assemblies have been summarily suppressed, and the right of free speech abrogated by force of physical violence. The scene of the most brutal persecution is at present San Diego, Cal. Every vestige of free speech has been entirely suppressed there, and inoffensive men and women subjected to treatment recalling the pogroms in Russia. Irresponsible bands of Black Hundreds, known as vigilantes, are carrying on a reign of terror with the approval of the local authorities and apparently with the financial aid of the "respectable and law-abiding" element of the city. If the public sentiment of the country and the passive attitude of the press continue to encourage these outrages, we feel that the Anarchists and other social rebels will be forced, as a matter of self-defense, to answer violence with violence.

Not because they wish it, but because driven by utmost necessity.

ALEXANDER BERKMAN,
HIPPOLYTE HAVEL,
H. KELLY.

⁂ ⁂ ⁂

A TRIBUTE TO MIKOLASEK, MURDERED IN SAN DIEGO

MIKOLASEK, child of the people, you left your native soil, the wild primitive planes of Bohemia, in the fervent hope that the new land may quench the thirst of your liberty-longing soul! But what your yearning gaze beheld was naught but rocks and stones, as cold as the hearts of the people whom you met.

You did not despair, Mikolasek, you took your place among your people, and gave them of yourself, of the wealth your nature contained.

Golden California, with all her treacherous beauty,

890209018

The Emma Goldman Papers

A Tribute to Mikolasek, Murdered in San Diego / Emma Goldman.— pp. 123-125 ; 19 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 7, no. 4 (June, 1912).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

of kindliness and the great friendship shown by the Kirks that gave the only spark of life and warmth in that benighted, maddened town, San Diego.

Life under our present system is not so great a thing that he who has an ideal and loves liberty should not be willing to part with it. But life in San Diego is worse than death. I cannot believe that the number of intelligent people in the United States is so small that they could not bring moral pressure upon that city to stop its atrocities. It was the intelligent minority which forced the Southern planter to stop his murderous treatment of the black man. Surely the same can be done to-day. It is with that in view that this article is written, and not in complaint of anything we have endured. It is also because I feel that the crimes, the savagery, and the unspeakable cruelties perpetrated by the San Diego thugs, with the connivance of the police and the support of the San Diego Union and Tribune, must be brought to an end. Crime begets crime, and violence inevitably gives birth to violence. If San Diego is justified in violence, why not its victims? To avoid both, I appeal to all fair-minded and liberty-loving people throughout the country to join in a determined campaign against San Diego and its horrors.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

A PROTEST AND A WARNING

EDITORIAL silence of the New York press regarding the San Diego outrages, and the attitude of direct encouragement on the part of some newspapers, caused the undersigned to send the following letter to the press:

The Anarchists of America have for years been propagating in a peaceful manner their ideas for the regeneration of society. On numerous occasions the authorities of the various cities have subjected them to persecution and suppressed their rights of free speech. Neverthcless, in spite of all the violence toward them, the Anarchists did not reply in kind. On the contrary, they constantly emphasized the peaceful methods of their propaganda.

But violence begets violence. Terror from above breeds terror below.

The authorities in different parts of the country have recently inaugurated a régime of terroristic oppression against every opponent of existing conditions. Peaceful assemblics have been summarily suppressed, and the right of free speech abrogated by force of physical violence. The scene of the most brutal persecution is at present San Diego, Cal. Every vestige of free speech has been entirely suppressed there, and inoffensive men and women subjected to treatment recalling the pogroms in Russia. Irresponsible bands of Black Hundreds, known as vigilantes, are carrying on a reign of terror with the approval of the local authorities and apparently with the financial aid of the "respectable and law-abiding" element of the city. If the public scntiment of the country and the passive attitude of the press continue to encourage these outrages, we feel that the Anarchists and other social rebels will be forced, as a matter of self-defense, to answer violence with violence.

Not because they wish it, but because driven by utmost necessity.

ALEXANDER BERKMAN,
HIPPOLYTE HAVEL,
H. KELLY.

A TRIBUTE TO MIKOLASEK, MURDERED IN SAN DIEGO

MIKOLASEK, child of the people, you left your native soil, the wild primitive planes of Bohemia, in the fervent hope that the new land may quench the thirst of your liberty-longing soul! But what your yearning gaze beheld was naught but rocks and stones, as cold as the hearts of the people whom you met.

You did not despair, Mikolasek, you took your place among your people, and gave them of yourself, of the wealth your nature contained.

Golden California, with all her treacherous beauty,

885

890209018

The Emma Goldman Papers

A Tribute to Mikolasek, Murdered in San Diego / Emma Goldman.— pp. 123-125 ; 19 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 7, no. 4 (June, 1912).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

lured you, Mikolasek, and you followed her, like many another brave soul, in search of Freedom's land. Again you found yourself deceived, child of the people, again you found the same brutal hand of gold crushing life, killing, devastating precious life.

You rebelled. Yours was a sensitive, deeply loving, and turbulent soul. Though starving and homeless yourself, you could not see the people suffer; you could not endure and submit in silence. Then came the call of San Diego, the desperate call of your outraged brothers; and, as was your wont, you responded bravely, heroically. You took your place, you stood the brunt, all for the love of a great truth. Naught could stay your devotion and zeal.

Then they killed you, Mikolasek, in cold blood they murdered you, piercing your body with fourteen bullets. The craven cowards, they did so in the hope that they would also kill the thing you loved with all the passion of your great heart. The thing for which you had often staked your young life, the wondrous thing that you had chosen as your goal,—Anarchy, the most reviled and hated truth.

They killed you, Mikolasek, but out of your wounds rose your mighty spirit that is now dreaded by your murderers far more than you could have hoped for while you lived. They see it everywhere, your spirit, Mikolasek, and evil doers that they are, they feel frightened. Mikolasek, child of the people, your hangmen refused you even as much as man gives to his dog, a last resting place. And justly so: with the weight of your dead body upon their souls, they might never again know the joy of life. Therefore they drove you hence, in life as in death.

Thus you returned to the fold of your people. Lo, how they received you, Mikolasek! No king or ruler ever lived who might hope for the same devotion, the same reverence, the same honors that were given you, Mikolask, by your people.

Two thousand of your brothers gazed upon your silent, yet powerfully speaking, face. Equally as many accompanied you in deep reverence to your last resting place.

They showered flowers over your poor, defiled body;

they sang the songs that never failed to stir your heroic heart, and they vowed to continue the struggle for truth and justice, for which you and many others have paid the price.

Mikolasek, child of the people, you have been returned to the cosmic forces of the universe, but more so you have been returned to the fold of your birth, an inspiration, a beacon light for those who will follow in your path, who will keep your banner high, who will maintain, even unto death, the struggle for your ideal,—Anarchy, the harbinger of truth, the great leaven for human brotherhood.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

* * *

THE POWER OF THE IDEAL

By E. G.

> And this shall be the strangest: far off from the bursting sands where, to other men, there is only the desert's waste, he shall see a blue sea! On that sea the sun shines always, and the water is blue as burning amethyst, and the foam is white on the shore. A great land rises from it, and he shall see upon the mountain-tops burning gold.—OLIVE SCHREINER, in "A Dream of Wild Bees."

IT WAS in 1897 that I saw for the first time a great land rise before me, like burning gold upon the mountain-top,—California! And ever since I have thought that the great change in American life will come from there. The fascination of California has continued all these years, and always in moments of despair and disillusionment, I see the great land rise out of the blue sea, and upon its mountain-top the glow of burning gold.

Within the last two years California bids fair to make good her rich promise. The Mexican Revolution continues to surcharge the air along the border line, holding the California people in a spell of awe before the wonderful struggle of the peons and Yaqui Indians, who, without much support from the outside world, have been demonstrating what love of the soil and liberty can accomplish.

It is also California that gave the American labor

886

890209016

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Power of the Ideal / E[mma] G[oldman].— pp. 125-131 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 7, no. 4 (June, 1912).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

lured you, Mikolasek, and you followed her, like many another brave soul, in search of Freedom's land. Again you found yourself deceived, child of the people, again you found the same brutal hand of gold crushing life, killing, devastating precious life.

You rebelled. Yours was a sensitive, deeply loving, and turbulent soul. Though starving and homeless yourself, you could not see the people suffer; you could not endure and submit in silence. Then came the call of San Diego, the desperate call of your outraged brothers; and, as was your wont, you responded bravely, heroically. You took your place, you stood the brunt, all for the love of a great truth. Naught could stay your devotion and zeal.

Then they killed you, Mikolasek, in cold blood they murdered you, piereing your body with fourteen bullets. The craven cowards, they did so in the hope that they would also kill the thing you loved with all the passion of your great heart. The thing for which you had often staked your young life, the wondrous thing that you had chosen as your goal,—Anarchy, the most reviled and hated truth.

They killed you, Mikolasek, but out of your wounds rose your mighty spirit that is now dreaded by your murderers far more than you could have hoped for while you lived. They see it everywhere, your spirit, Mikolasek, and evil doers that they are, they feel frightened. Mikolasek, child of the people, your hangmen refused you even as much as man gives to his dog, a last resting place. And justly so: with the weight of your dead body upon their souls, they might never again know the joy of life. Therefore they drove you hence, in life as in death.

Thus you returned to the fold of your people. Lo, how they received you, Mikolasek! No king or ruler ever lived who might hope for the same devotion, the same reverence, the same honors that were given you, Mikolask, by your people.

Two thousand of your brothers gazed upon your silent, yet powerfully speaking, face. Equally as many accompanied you in deep reverence to your last resting place.

They showered flowers over your poor, defiled body;

they sang the songs that never failed to stir your heroic heart, and they vowed to continue the struggle for truth and justice, for which you and many others have paid the price.

Mikolasek, child of the people, you have been returned to the cosmic forces of the universe, but more so you have been returned to the fold of your birth, an inspiration, a beacon light for those who will follow in your path, who will keep your banner high, who will maintain, even unto death, the struggle for your ideal,—Anarchy, the harbinger of truth, the great leaven for human brotherhood.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

⁂ ⁂ ⁂

THE POWER OF THE IDEAL

By E. G.

> And this shall be the strangest: far off from the bursting sands where, to other men, there is only the desert's waste, he shall see a blue sea! On that sea the sun shines always, and the water is blue as burning amethyst, and the foam is white on the shore. A great land rises from it, and he shall see upon the mountain-tops burning gold.—OLIVE SCHREINER, in "A Dream of Wild Bees."

IT WAS in 1897 that I saw for the first time a great land rise before me, like burning gold upon the mountain-top,—California! And ever since I have thought that the great change in American life will come from there. The fascination of California has continued all these years, and always in moments of despair and disillusionment, I see the great land rise out of the blue sea, and upon its mountain-top the glow of burning gold.

Within the last two years California bids fair to make good her rich promise. The Mexican Revolution continues to surcharge the air along the border line, holding the California people in a spell of awe before the wonderful struggle of the peons and Yaqui Indians, who, without much support from the outside world, have been demonstrating what love of the soil and liberty can accomplish.

It is also California that gave the American labor

887

890209016

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Power of the Ideal / E[mma] G[oldman].— pp. 125-131 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 7, no. 4 (June, 1912).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

movement a new direction. And though it ended in a seeming defeat, with the usual toll of human flesh, yet the sacrifice was not in vain. The privileged class has learned, as never before in the history of America, that labor also knows how to strike a telling blow.

Now California is again a volcano, the San Diego free speech struggle once more proving the farce and mockery of American liberty and justice. Thus California is ever the land rising out of the sea, with the white foam on its shore, and the burning gold on its mountain-tops.

Our first stop was LOS ANGELES, with its usual warm, generous comradeship. Our meetings, though very good, were to some extent impaired by the noisy and silly masquerading of the Shriners. Naturally, San Diego furnished the most important topic, as well as serving as a means to enlist the moral and material aid of all liberty-loving people. It was also that which brought together most of the radical forces, that hitherto had kept away from Anarchist lectures and gatherings.

The most inspiring event in Los Angeles was the cremation of our murdered Comrade, Joseph Mikolasek. Evidently the authorities of San Diego feared the dead Mikolasek more than the living, because they would not let him be buried in that town. But these good Christians do not know the power of the Ideal, nor the difficulties it can overcome. .

Our martyred Comrade was brought to Los Angeles and tendered a last farewell, such as neither wealth nor power could have purchased. At least two thousand workers passed through the I. W. W. Hall, where our murdered Comrade lay in state, in a bower of flowers, to pay their tribute to him who had died for the ideal of human brotherhood. After a short, simple address, which I had been chosen to make, the body of Mikolasek was borne to the crematory, followed by a great multitude of men and women, who walked all the way. Ben Reitman, imperturbed and serene, carried the red banner, accompanied by numerous transparencies bearing the following inscriptions:

"The Defenders of Liberty are jailed and murdered. The vigilantes still go free."

"With the suppression of Free Speech our liberties are gone."

"Our fellow worker who was murdered in the fight for Free Speech in San Diego."

"He had nothing to give but his life. That he gave freely."

"Our silence in the grave will be more powerful than the voice you strangle to-day."

So tremendous was Labor's tribute to its martyred son, that even the enemy was impressed, the police actually clearing the way for the dead Mikolasek and his comrades. At the crematory Ben Reitman and others spoke, and the whole assembly sang the International and other stirring songs of the proletariat.

Nor were the living forgotten that day. On the return from the demonstration, two hundred of our brave boys, victims of the vigilantes, were given a feast of love. Never did a more solidaric and truly communistic gathering take place. Money, labor, and service were all freely contributed, and so was the appetite of the diners who had not seen much food since they were driven out of that hospitable southern town. Good fellowship and harmony marked the day, and all felt as if this infernal world of ours had been sunk into the sea. If only the Otises and the Spreckleses could have seen the gathering at the I. W. W. Hall, possibly their coarse brains and dead hearts might have gotten a glimpse of a new world, a new life, a new human relationship. Possibly!

One other event was enacted during our stay in Los Angeles,—the wonderful protest meeting after our return from the hell of San Diego. Two large halls were filled with indignant men and women, and thousands were sent away, although the two meetings were arranged in but twenty-four hours. The speakers, Anton Johansen, brave and bubbling with the spirit of life; Dr. Pandit, of Oriental culture and depth of feeling; C. T. Sprading, the passive direct actionist; McKilvey, Secretary of the I. W. W.; Ben Reitman, worn with torture, the letters I. W. W. burned on his back and Anarchism burned into his heart; and myself, —all spoke twice on that day, but with the enthusiasm and indignation flowing in our blood, we could have addressed many more audiences.

888

890209016

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Power of the Ideal / E[mma] G[oldman].— pp. 125-131 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 7, no. 4 (June, 1912).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

The social fellow-feeling during our stay in Los Angeles was a most wonderful manifestation, the comrades doing their utmost to make us forget our terrible experience in San Diego, and to show their appreciation of our efforts. That and the dance arranged to aid in the Free Speech fight, made us vividly realize the power, the great knitting force, of the Ideal.

Comrade C. T. Sprading and sweet Ada Sprading acted as the vanguard in preparing the meetings, as well as our hosts. Comrades Pandit, Freedman, Ellsworth, Kaufman, Cravello, Joe Edelsohn, and Jack Whyte, one of the ablest of the San Diego I. W. W., aided in the hard work and helped to make the meetings a success; our friends Stringer and Evans ministered to Ben's bruised body and to our tired spirits, and faithful Comrade Victor and Dr. Price showered flowers upon our path.

SAN FRANCISCO was equally eventful. It began with an official and public reception on the part of the Mayor, plain clothes men, reporters and cameras, all ready at the station to greet us. Thanks to the thoughtfulness of our friend Rebekah Raney, we were spared the honors and quickly driven to the hotel. There began a perfect orgy of work, meetings every night, drama classes every day, and no end of publicity work to make the vigilantes known in all their horrible savagery. And last, but not least, social affairs which our kind friends and comrades had arranged.

The soil had been thoroughly prepared by our own "Mickie," Kassel, Balinsky, Briesen, Morton, Rebekah Raney, and her chum Gladys. Added to that came the San Diego atrocities, which not only advertised our meetings extensively, but also added much color to our San Francisco stay.

The lecture on "Socialism Caught in the Political Trap" proved most interesting, inasmuch as it emphasized the tremendous insurgency in the Socialist party ranks. What a pity we lack a Tom Mann in America, to gather up the forces that are sick to their very souls with the opportunistic compromises of the party? The soil has never been more ripe, the material never more ready for a real revolutionary Syndicalist movement. But it will come; it must come. Indeed, it is in the very making. Meanwhile, Socialism is indeed caught in the political trap, and is doing its utmost to hasten the day.

The climax in San Francisco took place at the Trades Council Hall, Sunday, May 26th. Over a thousand workers gathered to protest against the twentieth century inquisition in San Diego. Anton Johansen spoke, urging a boycott against the San Diego fair, until its citizens will be cured from their rabies. Ben Reitman related in a simple manner the gruesome story of the night of May 14th, and I told my own experience, also delivering the "treasonable" lecture prohibited in San Diego, on "the Enemy of the People." The meeting was wonderfully stimulating and inspiring. The evening closed our very eventful and rich visit to San Francisco, bringing both mirth and pathos into the lecture on "Woman's Inhumanity to Man."

Needless to say, the agitation against the atrocities in the southern city will not end with our meetings in San Francisco. Already a regular campaign has been started, which is to be kept up until the backbone of the vigilante gang is broken. Sunday, June 9th, has been set for a monster meeting at Dreamland Rink, with Mrs. Fremont Older and other well-known speakers of San Francisco, who feel the shame of California too deeply to submit supinely to the horrors perpetrated in one of its cities.

Much credit for stimulating interest in the San Diego situation, as well as for a good deal of the success of our meetings, is due to a large extent to Mr. Fremont Older of the San Francisco Bulletin. He is perhaps the one man on a capitalist sheet brave enough to plead the cause of labor and human freedom. It was he who, at the risk of his position and against the will of the owner of the paper and of many of his conservative friends, made a valiant fight in behalf of the McNamaras. And it is Mr. Older again who is fearless and defiant in the San Diego free speech fight. It was also the Bulletin that published the report of H. Weinstock, the commissioner sent by the Governor of the State to investigate the San Diego situation,—a report so powerful in its condemnation of the things

889

890209016

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Power of the Ideal / E[mma] G[oldman].— pp. 125-131 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 7, no. 4 (June, 1912).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

done in that city that, if there were even a single shred of justice, the vigilantes and the police would now be in San Quentin.

He is most free who stands alone; but it is a very lonely and difficult position, which few can endure. Mr. Older stands almost alone in his brave defence of the workers. Fortunately for him, Mrs. Older is herself a courageous fighter, giving much of her time to the I. W. W. agitation and to the emancipation of her own sex, which needs it very much. Also, Mr. Older has some very able and fair-minded co-workers on the Bulletin in Mr. John D. Barry, Mr. Hopkins, Mr. West, and others. I should wish for Mr. Older independent means to own a paper like the Bulletin, if I did not know that property is theft and wealth corrupting.

A few there are in San Francisco who embody all that one hopes for the future man—strength, beauty, and tenderness. Some day I may speak of them; for the present I can only state that they illumined our horizon and filled our visit with much joy and good-fellowship. Yet more than that: they proved a real inspiration, because it is their zeal and devotion which is helping to prepare San Francisco for the great things to come from there.

Apropos of the drama class. As in Denver, it aroused much interest on the part of teachers and educators, all being impressed with the necessity of just such a medium for social awakening. The parting was hard, but somewhat relieved by the knowledge that Mr. John D. Barry will continue the class. Thus the time and effort will not have been wasted.

Of course, there was the usual Anarchist social and dance, which gave all a chance to make merry, and helped to raise funds for San Diego. After that, Palo Alto was invaded, an afternoon gathering for the "intellectuals" who "came to scoff and left to pray." In the evening a meeting arranged by the Socialist Industrial Union, and finally a pleasant reunion with our splendid Comrade Nielsen and family. Then back to the Golden Gate City on a most beautiful moonlight night, and the San Francisco "orgy" was over.

SACRAMENTO, the dull capital of California, was very dull indeed, but we were glad to be there, if only to see once more our veteran Comrade, Dr. George Pyburn, who, though feeble in body, is still remarkably alert in mind. His daughter Fanny and our faithful Comrade Marietta, made us forget the dullness and indifference of the town.

How wonderful the contrast between the patriotically drunken mob of San Diego and the fine comradeship in Los Angeles, the beautiful friendship, devotion, and intense interest in San Francisco. How very wonderful! And yet not so very, with the vision of the Ideal beckoning to the heights. It alone can perform the wonders, because it is the Power of the Ideal that gives one strength and faith and hope.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

P. S.—Till June 20th, we can be reached, General Delivery, Seattle, Wash. After that, until June 27th, General Delivery, Denver, Colorado.

❦ ❦ ❦

SAN DIEGO FREE SPEECH FUND

RECEIPTS—LOS ANGELES.

Collections at E. G. meetings	$165.00
Collection for cremation of Comrade Mikolasek	60.00
Proceeds, Anarchist Social	60.50
Collection at banquet	20.00
Total	$314.50

DISBURSEMENTS.

To San Diego Free Speech League	$55.00
To McKilvey, Sec'y Los Angeles I. W. W., for free speech fight	30.25
Expenses funeral and cremation	69.00
Expenses Walker Theatre, Lincoln Hall, and printing (protest mass meeting)	93.25
Expenses San Diego and publicity	47.00
Banquet	20.00
Total	$314.50

RECEIPTS—SAN FRANCISCO.

Collections at E. G. meetings	$154.00
Proceeds Anarchist Social	43.00
Total	$197.00

890

880714002

The Emma Goldman Papers

1840 to 1912 / Emma Goldman. – p. 2 ; 43 cm. In Solidarity [Newcastle]. –(June 1, 1912).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

Solidarity (IWW) June 1, 1912 p.2

ed a revulsion of feeling in many cap st circles as well as it has caused a eal front of all elements of the labor ement Already the end is near at d, and it will be a victory for the w spirit of labor in a new form"— ecuting Attorney Utley the other was reported by the San Diego Sun to ave expressed himself as "becoming iscouraged that he was entertaining question of dismissing all of the s against the I W W s from ting on that infamous Free Speech ance Moore was Mr Ettor has to be discouraged The wit es brought from Canada were brought at a cost of $
The
ots at least $ and e passes are being issued ad $ Its M Ave
ber of the I W W who was ested for "obstructing the pas
" as a protest against being denied d water has than $ and a petition that the powers of the county would take ve steps to settle the whole
The
ers of the city where they
in of the cost incurred in connec
Scott cases Attorney Moore is said
have hired ads in order to
Chief of Police Wilson that we ntually send the cost of the prosecu
s

How the San Diego fight stands as a borough test of the power of both asso
Above all it demonstrates that the olutionary spirit of the working as not be conquered except by the pass ers of the organized capitalist class
the wage I that res lutionary
it represents a force first and most gressive in times of crisis whereas, on ontrary, the spirit of San Diego re
s the "Cave and Liver dwellers" in no

NEWS AND VIEWS

But we hear the good news The theri sal of Ettor Workers, I ing with the w of the strong has
e the I W W to the I W W s w Sure as he gave expression gr was t's the growth without whether the system that is base is gone

ber ge He is an Englishman
and who says "It's a sin City" We also congratulate press on the same argument not condemn that the agitators
ust work on Cove some law
mpts to keep the I W W s out ion and the use of new es if possible But then, that is er impossible
pression

's getting extremely difficult pick a newspaper or magazine which ning our s against an editorial article headed ur." Such a sin, the New Ettor s Acquittal." The lesser west and Brownsville affair, for ple which created such a furor of dignation
ion of the I W W Syndicalism." And other titles to nerous to mention The subject seems be inexhaustible and one of deep cessing interest It is no mere lazy der, evidently but a deep rooted establishment of great social changes,
ges that are inflamed
and industrial upright They loathe growth and consciousness of power of e struggle on the part of the working
The workers are standing erect, ping to the gutation of all ptial ic industrial ns for them, who will, study ts, but never more determined to ruction Syndicalism will decide the st society and it is according to ing matter especially as to as the talist class is concerned He work regard the future, however with con
ence In them belongs the new era rapidly approaching

last week I was stated the
the Socialist Party national had made and
so reported in the Socialist Party
s in New York City The report
e not to be untrue The Socialist
y national convention did not con n "direct action" Accordingly the er gladly withdraws the statement
e, and hopes his readers will note the ell, the Ettor Giovannitti protest is ering in volume Meetings are increasing in numbers and frequency organizations are wheeling into line against cap italist reaction and the movement generali-y is making headway But there is still a great deal more to be done The work ing class is only partly aroused we must arouse all of it We must interest every man, woman and child in it Push pub licity Get out circulars leaflets, etc

Interest the newspapers by demanding news on the situation at Lawrence Send protests to Governor Foss at Boston,
Mass or to District Attorney Sherin, Mass
Emils should go to Wm Yates, 9 Mason
St Lawrence, Mass

Mr Ettor
capitalist reaction must not be victorious in Ettor and Giovannitti must not be

1840 TO 1912

Seven years ago a young lawyer looked from his office window and saw a excited crowd streaming with to hang, a negro to a lamp along the Street of Boston This city was host
Garrison and the young lawyer Americ's greatest orator Wendell Phillips Sorrow indignation was depicted on
Mr Phillips by the terrible savage sight
America was the most cultured city of America that he became the hero exponent of the great human cause for which Lloyd Garrison had been mobbed by the mob of that day

That was years ago Since then, we have no doubt, advanced along the lines of political and social evolution
Certainly we have learned that justice and liberty, for which Wendell Phil ips and Lloyd Garrison made such a noble and valiant fight represent great ideals now applied to Ettor

But if Lloyd Garrison and Wendell Phillips had rejected San Diego as the battle ground for the Mayor a old Lee rejected that year little, I am that
There was the same wel dressed, business thinking and liberal class in the
that the
and the spirit of
There was attempt to with the spirit of
There were to represent the
of engaging could with than $ and a petition that the powers of the county would take ve steps to settle the whole
The
ers of the city where they
in of the cost incurred in connec
Scott cases Attorney Moore is said
have hired ads in order to
Chief of Police Wilson that we ntually send the cost of the prosecu
s

How the San Diego fight stands as a borough test of the power of both asso
Above all it demonstrates that the olutionary spirit of the working as not be conquered except by the pass ers of the organized capitalist class
the wage I that res lutionary
it represents a force first and most gressive in times of crisis whereas, on ontrary, the spirit of San Diego re
s the "Cave and Liver dwellers" in no

NEWS AND VIEWS

But we hear the good news The theri sal of Ettor Workers, I
ing with the w of the strong has
e the I W W to the I W W s w Sure as he gave expression gr was t's the growth without whether the system that is base is gone

ber ge He is an Englishman
and who says "It's a sin
City" We also congratulate press on the same argument
not condemn that the agitators
ust work on Cove some law
mpts to keep the I W W s out ion and the use of new es if possible But then, that is er impossible
pression

's getting extremely difficult pick a newspaper or magazine which ning our s against an editorial article headed ur." Such a sin, the New Ettor s Acquittal." The lesser west and Brownsville affair, for ple which created such a furor of dignation
ion of the I W W
Syndicalism." And other titles to nerous to mention The subject seems be inexhaustible and one of deep cessing interest It is no mere lazy der, evidently but a deep rooted establishment of great social changes,
ges that are inflamed
and industrial upright They loathe growth and consciousness of power of e struggle on the part of the working
The workers are standing erect,
ping to the gutation of all ptial ic industrial ns for them, who will, study ts, but never more determined to ruction Syndicalism will decide the st society and it is according to ing matter especially as to as the talist class is concerned He work regard the future, however with con
ence In them belongs the new era
rapidly approaching

last week I was stated the
the Socialist Party national had made and
so reported in the Socialist Party
s in New York City The report
e not to be untrue The Socialist
y national convention did not con n "direct action" Accordingly the er gladly withdraws the statement
e, and hopes his readers will note the ell, the Ettor Giovannitti protest is ering in volume Meetings are increasing in numbers and frequency organizations are wheeling into line against cap italist reaction and the movement generali-y is making headway But there is still a great deal more to be done The work ing class is only partly aroused we must arouse all of it We must interest every man, woman and child in it Push pub licity Get out circulars leaflets, etc

Interest the newspapers by demanding news on the situation at Lawrence Send protests to Governor Foss at Boston,
Mass or to District Attorney Sherin, Mass
Emils should go to Wm Yates, 9 Mason
St Lawrence, Mass

Mr Ettor
capitalist reaction must not be victorious in Ettor and Giovannitti must not be

1840 TO 1912

Seven years ago a young lawyer looked from his office window and saw a excited crowd streaming with
to hang, a negro to a lamp along the Street of Boston This city was host
Garrison and the young lawyer Americ's greatest orator Wendell Phillips Sorrow indignation was depicted on
Mr Phillips by the terrible savage sight
America was the most cultured city of America that he became the hero exponent
of the great human cause for which Lloyd Garrison had been mobbed by the mob of that day

That was years ago Since then, we have no doubt, advanced along the lines of political and social evolution
Certainly we have learned that justice
and liberty, for which Wendell Phil
ips and Lloyd Garrison made such a noble and valiant fight represent great ideals now applied to

But if Lloyd Garrison and Wendell Phillips had rejected San Diego as the battle ground for the Mayor a old Lee rejected that year little, I am that
There was the same wel dressed, business thinking and liberal class in the
that the
and the spirit of
There was attempt to
with the spirit of
There were to represent the
of engaging could with organization and idea which the popular minds have not yet accepted, but whether the I W W be right or wrong, they cannot be possibly as wrong as the people of San Diego, who are brutally suppressing the right of expression Men and women who are not ready to listen to contrasted opinion on any given subject thereby condemn themselves to the grossest ignorance and the most outrageous treason If what a so called undesirable element has to say is wrong,

I will be of itself a much quicker death, than if their people are beaten, clubbed, tarred and feathered and driven out like wild beasts Equally suit is with anything
I might say, nor anything I stand for be killed by mob butchers or by police interference The issue of free speech is one of the most vital and fundamental in every country and city and the very moment any given section of a community takes it upon itself to suppress that issue, that the same time undermines the principle it emblematic and condemns itself to death

It was not sufficient for the so called respectable mob to make a violent and savage demand and threaten the life of the Free Speech fighters, who had manhood enough not to run out of the house, to use a language unprintable, but it demanded their lives and with the direct and deliberate assistance of the police, nearly succeeded in killing Dr Ben L Reitman Evidently it did not dare go as far as that with the intent to carry out its criminal conspiracy with I was with Dr Reit-man It was therefore arranged that I be called in the office of the hotel mana ger to speak to the chief as I while there was struck and, gagged the doctor, placed him in an automobile, took him out six miles from the city limits, tore his cloth ing off his body, beat him mercilessly, made him undergo indignities beyond description tortured him and burned the initials I W W on his back Not content with that he was compelled to walk miles in a naked condition Fortunately for the victim, he had money and his return ticket to Los Angeles, but what about the hundreds of victims, poverty stricken members of the I W W who have neither friends or money I understand that the Savior of the Christian people said "Inasmuch as ye do unto the least of these, my chil dren ye do unto me" and yet the professed followers of the meek and lowly who call themselves Christians intend worshipping the memory of Christ go and act outrageous manner outraging and insulting

However, it has been said that if there is one honest man in a city, that city will be saved And there is such a man
San Diego Mr George Edwards, who is the head of the Music Institute and musician of great ability and man of fine culture At the critical moment when even business people were afraid to have courage, the man, who had never before appeared in court, offered his bail for a stranger, who he was certainly as brave an as himself Wendell Phillips who rushed out to the assistance of Lloyd Gar years ago I felt however, that except Mr Edwards kindness and hospitality would have meant to jeopardize his life, which I did not possibly do It was only by the use of that I also because I was given absolute assurance by the managers of the U S Grant hotel that no harm would come to Dr Reitman, al though he had been taken out of the city and sent to Los Angeles in an automobile,
I was only that which induced me to go out of that city

Life under our present circumstances is not so great a thing but what anyone who has an ideal should be willing to part with But life in San Diego is worse than death I cannot believe that the number of intelligent people in the United States is so small that it would not bring mal-pressure upon the city of San Diego to desist in its atrocities It was the intelligent minority who forced the southern planter to stop his murderous treatment of the black man Surely the same can be done today At any rate it shall hereafter be my object to bring to the consideration of the intelligent public throughout the land the atrocities now being enacted by a so called respectable mob in the fair city of San Diego EMMA GOLDMAN

SUB HUSTLERS WANTED

Solidarity wants to get in touch with 10
I W W men who may be induced to take the head in different parts of the East, and rustle subs for this paper They may double up that is, go in pairs, and combine agitation with sub getting: Solicit subs in daytime and hold meetings at night Liberal terms on subscriptions and literature Write to Solidarity for particulars.

ARTURO GIOVANNITTI

Interlocked in the great Lawrence strike with the name of Joseph J Ettor is that Arturo Giovannitti Throughout the land we hear references to the "Ettor-Giovannitti trials" Ettor was the chief leader at the memorable and victorious textile struggle; Giovannitti, the orator.
To him fell the task of arousing enthusiasm, aiding and cementing the ranks and driving home the lessons and tactics of the hour among the Italians who were a prominent factor in the strike And well adapted was Giovannitti for the task Tall, robust, with a powerful voice, intense, earnest, incisive of speech, and a leonine manner, he made a forceful, rousing impression on his hearers Nor was the knowledge derived from working class experience lacking; for Giovannitti's career in America has been typical of the proletarian struggle for existence under advanced capitalism, such as prevails here.

Giovannitti was a miner, bookkeeper and teacher before he became the editor of Il Proletario, and the Italian orator of the Lawrence strike. In the bowels of the earth, he wielded a pick in the coal mines of Canada, and he has slept and starved as an unemployed worker in winter, on the benches of the parks of this city of New York Giovannitti has traveled far, physically and mentally, only to learn those facts about capitalism that bring conviction and eloquence to the men in the movement destined to bring about its overthrow the movement towards socialism, towards industrial democracy, and for the workers as against the skinkers

Arturo Giovannitti is an American by experience, but an Italian by birth Compobasso, a city of 30,000 inhabitants in the province of Abruzzi, Italy, is now better known for his having been born there. Giovannitti has put it on the map
He is now 28 years of age His family are liberals and socially well connected in the city of his birth His father and el der brother are physicians, his younger brother a lawyer

Together with his mother, they are very much interested in his case His father desired to come to this country to aid in his son's defense, but filial regard caused Giovannitti to dissuade him from doing so, as he wished to spare his aged parent the travel and pain attending such an event

Giovannitti was educated in the university of his native city and left there when 16 years of age to seek his fortune in this land of golden promises and brutal realities, like many of his fellow countrymen. The reason for the emigration Giovannitti has well set forth in a recent article in the International Socialist Review, on the cause of the Italian war in Tripoli

As an illustration of his ability as a thinker, and as a specimen of his style as a writer and orator, this article is typical
It may also be quoted because of the light it sheds on the immigration problem.
Says Giovannitti "The Italian proletariat, especially in the south, has remained through the last 40 years what it has always been, the same people of old, mostly addicted to agriculture, stock raising and other labors that are strictly confined to the surface of land Now during these 40 years the population has steadily grown with that impetus that has made Italian fecundity famous all over the world, whilst the land has remained the same

"The Italian bourgeoisie having, through their utter lack of courage and capacity, been unable to create industries adequate to the necessity and even to apply modern systems to farming that the land might have grown more productive, has been left to face a desperate problem that of maintaining 35,000,000 people on the resources of the country and at the same time keep their own profits at the same level. After years of discussion, scheming and heavy thinking, they have been able to find only one solution to de-populate the country.

"The only remedy, then, that was left was emigration For the last 40 years the Italians have been emigrating at the rate of three to four hundred thousand a year, flocking mostly to the United States and South America Here however the Italian peasant, which gives the highest percentage of emigration, has lost its characteristics, and having developed at home a sullen hatred for the land which has been such a cruel step mother to him, he has refrained from agriculture and invaded the industrial fields

"Had the Italian peasantry in the United States taken to farming, they could, perhaps, upon their return home do what the landlord bourgeoisie had not been able to do; develop, fertilize the soil after the scientific Americ and still manage to live but th become industrialised and as t
Italian industries are over-crowded, lows that all those who emigrat
United States are entirely lost mother country The few that home either become small proprie business there, or, and this is ou sell whatever they have however t can, gather all their family and sail again for America"

It was this profound sociologi deny that caused Giovannitti to America 12 years ago. After h about at various jobs, he obtai ployment in a coal mine in Cana years ago It was in the dismin he got his first taste of modern in ism on an advanced scale Giov two years afterwards, secured a position in Springfield, Mass There came a socialist He was also ver interested in the protestant relig preparing to enter the ministry, the degree of Bachelor of Arts in nary It is a striking testimonial man's personality that though drifted away from protestantis former teachers are at present by him and are very much inter the legal proceedings intended to him of his life.

Shortly after, Giovannitti came York. Here he joined the Italian ist Federation He was a member
La Lotta Club (The "Struggle")
During the discussion between Club and Circolo Socialista di Ba (Downtown Socialist Club), Giovan came a convert to syndicalism and tionary action While a membe Lotta, he was engaged by the branch of the Y M C A., We St, to deliver a religious talk.
to a misunderstanding. He was with distrust, though he was at t without a home, without employm was compelled to sleep in the winter. Giovannitti did not live h his ideas He is a man of convic willing to suffer for them This in his own life was the cause of a hour entitled "The Blind Man" has been very much admired

It was at this time that Giovan came a book keeper in this city was his interest in all matters of and science that his room on W
St. became the nightly meeting men of various nationalities inte literary, artistic, political, econo other questions These nightly di broadened the intellectual horizon annitti

Like many another I W W and organizer, Giovannitti is a
The I W W is a polyglot orga that is, an organization in whic guages are represented. G speaks English, Italian, French a fluently, and has taught them all ter especially.

Three years ago Giovannitti be editor of Il Proletario He made gan of industrial unionism, and direction, it became a power a Italian working class, and a bringing him into greater dem speaker and agitator Among th
Giovannitti is regarded as a p thinker, writer, poet and orator o ability The capitalists of L
Mass., are determined to co opinion most emphatically, if th class of this country will permi do so without a vigorous protest bring their heinous scheme to di

Giovannitti is not only highly among the Italians in this co also in Italy The May numb
Almanacco de L'Internationale Almanac of the International), at Parma, Italy, contains one of in Italian entitled "Il Boreal poem is prefaced by a note com on Giovannitti's poetical powe devotion to the working class, ex Lawrence.

The following Whitmanesque at once suggestive of Giovanni militant spirit of the present his reciprocated devotion to his ours in the class war on the textil
New England

THE PRISONERS' BENC

In the court room at Lawrence

TO JOSEPH J ETTO

by Arturo Giovannitti

Passed here, all wrecks of the te storms
Of life have washed away the 891

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

890109003

The Emma Goldman Papers

[The outrage of San Diego. In Italian] Contro la Vandea! / Emma Goldman. – 29 cm.
In Cronaca Sovversiva [Barre, Vt.]. –(June 1, 1912).
Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the International Institute of Social History.
Institutional Location: Emma Goldman Archive.

"se e pel benessere del popolo. Questo e "non altro ha fatto la popolazioue di "San Diego." Ha deportato i membri dell'I. W. of W. qualcuno ne ha ammazzato, ha deportato Emma Goldman, ha sequestrato, percosso, torturato il Dottor Reitman,e continua, sorretta dalla polizia ed incoraggiata all'assassinio dai suoi deputati, dai suoi giornalisti, dai suoi decenti cittadini.

La costituzione, la legge?

Sacre quando bastano a custodire i loro privilegi di classe ed a sancire l'impunità delle paradossali rapine, sono meno che un impaccio ed uno scrupolo ai nostri padroni e signori quando al compito di preservazione si rivelino pericolose od incerte.

A rispettarle, ad ostiuarci nel culto, nella fede, nei confini della legge, rimaniamo, ineffabile ironia! noi soli; ed alla legge. ai suoi fattori, depositarii, interpreti abbiamo, coll'esempio se non colla parola, indotto nei volghi tauta religioue che questi dalla legge soltanto aspettano la riparazione dei torti subìti, ed alle leggi soltanto la iuvocano.

Se invece di suadere tanta mansuetudine, avessimo fermentato, secondando le istintive diffidenze della massa, un inverso sentimento d'indipendenza, un salutare spirito di rivolta, non ci troveremmo ora a queste strette dolorose, al fallimento confessato e disperato.

Su San Diego, sentina di viltà, d'abbiezione e di vergogna, invece delle effimere fiamme degli sdegni sarebbe passata inesorabile pronta spietata la fiamma di un incendio espiatore; al sequestro di Ettor e Giovannitti gli scioperanti di Lawrence avrebbero risposto togliendo iu ostaggio il Wood e l'Atwill, il boja ed il tirapiedi del bieco dramma giudiziario che a Salem deve segnare la restaurazione del prestigio padronale e la confusione degli araldi di libertà; se.....

Ma a che serve?

Un conto è chiaro. Qualunque fosse stato l'esito della lotta noi vi avremmo guadagnato.

I vigilantes di San Diego avrebbero ammainato il loro furore, i banditi dell'America Wool Co. avrebbero dimesso la boria, ricordata per un pezzo la lezione; nella peggiore delle ipotesi non avremmo perduto nulla, se il rispetto alla legalità, tanto, si sconta in California colla tortura, ed in Lawrence si espia colla galera.

l'evoluzione che governano l'universo, assolverebbe le espropriazioni generose e rivolte ad un progresso condiviso; ma l'uomo bianco non oppone guari alla barbarie naturale dei suoi simili, neri, bronzati o gialli, che i vizii complicati dei quali soffre esso medesimo: l'ambizione senza merito, l'intrigo, l'ingiustizia e l'egoismo che tradiscono la bestia nascosta sotto la scorza umana superficiale.

Alberto I, principe di Monaco.

Contro la Vandea!

Cinquant'anni fa un giovane avvocato guardando oltre le vetrate dello studio si vide d'un tratto sotto gli occhi un orda pazza, urlante, imbestialita, di gente a modo che per la corda attraverso le vie di Boston trascinava un uomo.

Quell'uomo era Lloyd Garrison, il giovane avvocato che doveva ben presto rivelarsi pel più grande oratore d'America era Vendell Phillips.

E nell'animo del giovane rimase così profonda, così penosa l'impressione dello spettacolo infame, nella sua patria, nella città più colta della patria sua, che egli divenne l'araldo più fiero della grande causa americana per cui Lloyd Garrison era stato quel giorno málmenato dall'elegante bordaglia insana.

Cinquant'anni fa. Da quel giorno, bisogna riconoscerlo, lungo l'erta d'un più alto divenire iutellettuale e sociale noi abbiamo progredito, abbiamo quanto meno raccolto il conforto che Giustizia e Verità per le quali entrambi, Wendell Phillips e Lloyd Garrison avevano combattuto la loro eroica e generosa battaglia, sono l'ideale per cui fremono oggi milioni di cuori.

Ma se Lloyd Garrison e Wendell Phillips fossero entrati in San Diego il 14 Maggio del 1912, un po' dopo l'una, essi avrebbero amaramente constatato che ben poco dai loro tempi sono mutate, se pur sono mutate, le cose. Vi avrebbero trovato, elegante, furiosa, imbestialita, assetata di sangue la stessa ciurma, pazza, con questa sola differenza che le vittime della sua libidine bestiale erano due anarchici in luogo di due abolizionisti, e che la bordaglia con sè non traeva corde; e si sarebbero persuasi che lavorare oggi per la emancipazione degli schiavi bianchi è delitto così grave come lo sposare, al loro tempo, la causa degli schiavi negri.

Tuttavia io non saprei condannare se veramente la turba inconsciamente feroce, ma condanno coloro i quali durante mesi dopo tutto non è questa la solita stantìa accusa lanciata contro ogni organizzazioue ed ogni idea non accolta ancora, non ancora penetrata dal tardo spirito popolare? Ma avesse pur torto l'Industrial Worker of World, avrebbe essa torto quanto la popolazione di San Diego che butta il capestro e la mordacchia al diritto di parlare?

Ma così, uomini e donne che non si sentono di affrontare il meno acceso contrasto di opinioni condannano sè stessi all'ignoranza irredimibile ed a la tirannia più odiosa. Se gli elementi cosidetti indesiderabili non ispendono che sciocchezze, le sciocchezze moriranno assai più presto di per sè stesse che non bastonando, lacerando, torturando coloro che le divulgano, od abbandonandole come belve nel deserto.

Così per ogni cosa che io avessi potuto dire, ed alle quali non avrebbe aggiunto nè tolto il rischio di essere scuoiata da una turba di cannibali od ammutolita dal bavaglio della polizia. La libertà di parola è senza contrasto uno dei diritti vitali e fondamentali d'ogni nazione e di ogni civiltà, ed ogni giorno un grupno della comunità si arroga l'arbitrio di confiscarlo minando così i principii della libertà e condannandosi di per sè alla morte.

Ai sedicenti cittadini per bene di San dell'U. S. Grant Hotel che al Dottor Reitman non si sarebbe usata altra violenza che di ricondurlo in automobile a Los Angeles, per queste ragioni soltanto ho acconsentito a lasciare San Diego.

La vita, nelle presenti condizioni della società, non è grande cosa, e chiunque abbia fede in un ideale deve darla al trionfo della sua fede senza rimpianti. Ma a San Diego la vita è peggio che la morte.

Io non voglio ammettere che, per quanto esigua, manchi agli Stati Uniti una minoranza d'intelligeuti che possa costringere la città di San Diego a cessare dalle atrocità e dalla vergogna. È un'intelligente audace minoranza che costrinse i piantatori del Sud a cessare dalla tortura e dalla strage dei negri. Un'intelligente audace minoranza può fare nelle presenti condizioni altrettauto.

Mi farò dovere da parte mia offrire alla considerazione del pubblico intelligente dei quarantasei Stati dell'Unione le bestiali ferocie e le atrocità senza nome perpetrate in odio nostro ed a propria vergogna irremissibilmente dalla sedicente rispettabile canaglia della allegra città di San Diego.

Emma Goldman

San Francisco, Cal. 18 Maggio 1912.

LIBERIAMOLI!

PER ETTOR E GIOVANNITTI

Ettor e Giovannitti sono in prigione, condannati a passare il resto della vita fra le mura di un tetro carcere, se la forza della classe capitalista riuscisse nel suo intento.

È questo l'ordine dei padroni, il verdetto dei re della lana e del cotone d'America.

Perchè ciò?

Perchè essi sono stati fedeli ai loro compagni di lavoro! Devoti sempre, sempre con essi durante il periodo della lotta per la conquista del pane e per il diritto alla vita.

Essi furono sempre i primi nella battaglia per la conquista dei diritti operai. Le loro voci potenti servirono a scuotere centinaia di migliaia di sofferenti, affinspecie di sfruttamento da parte della classe parassitaria che detiene tutta la ricchezza sociale.

Un ex presidente degli Stati Uniti affermava senza reticenz. che le corti erano state corrotte per fare gl'interessi dei padroni capitalisti e ciò è vero per i distretti manufatturieri del New England.

Quando per il passato gli oltraggiati lavoratori si ribellavano, i capitalisti mettevano sempre contro di essi altri lavoratori che ne prendevano il posto e il pane o cercavano di averli nelle loro mani per mezzo della forza politica, o facendoli ingannare da falsi organizzatori; in questo modo tutti dormivano soffrendo passivi indifferenti, gli orrori della schiavitù industriale.

Quelli che ora sono in carcere emisero per i primi il grido della rivolta:

"Schiavi insorgete, state uniti, cercate di ottenere i vostri diritti nella lotta".

E il gigante lavoratore alzò il capo, insorse e si ribellò, combattè e vinse!

Milioni di dollari di più, sotto forma di salari, furono il guiderdone. Ma Ettor, Giovannitti e tutti gli altri che erano con essi, stanno conseguati al boia perchè sono stati fedeli alla causa degli operai.

La classe capitalista cercherà tutti i mezzi per sbarazzarsi di loro, credendo così di potersi disfare di tutti quelli che le potrebbero dare del filo da torcere nelle contese fra capitale e lavoro.

Solamente i lavoratori, sì solamente essi, possono sventare la congiura capitalista! Essi ad ogni costo devono impedire che i loro migliori amici, quelli che sono stati sempre loro fedeli, durante la lotta, vengano sepolti nelle prigioni!

Ettor, Giovannitti e tutti gli altri chiedono la solidarietà della classe lavoratrice. Un'ingiuria fatta a uno solo dev'essere considerata come fatta a tutti; questo essi hanno sempre praticato, questo essi affermeranno quando saranno condotti davanti ai giurati.

Essi non hanno da confessare degli attentati colla dinamite, nè degli altri tradimenti di Stato. Non mancheranno di tener la testa alta di fronte ai loro accusatori e, se i capitalisti potranno condurre a termine i loro criminali e nefandi disegni, ciò sarà semplicemente perchè gli schiavi industriali non saranno insorti non avendo essi compreso che con questo processo si cerca di distruggere l'organizzazione operaia.

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

892

890109003

The Emma Goldman Papers

[The outrage of San Diego. In Italian] Contro la Vandea! / Emma Goldman. — 29 cm.
In Cronaca Sovversiva [Barre, Vt.]. —(June 1, 1912).
Permission to reproduce or quote in any form must be obtained from the International Institute of Social History.
Institutional Location: Emma Goldman Archive.

nella peggiore delle ipotesi non avremmo perduto nulla, se il rispetto alla legalità, tanto, si sconta in California colla tortura, ed in Lawrence si espia colla galera.

L'utopia pacifista, legalitaria, dilegna anche nella fede di coloro che la praticarono con costanza irremovibile durante un ventennio. È un primo passo, verranno lenti gli altri e si rignadagnerà il tempo perduto: La violenza, legge di estrema difesa e di suprema salute, risponderà alla violenza.

Non è un augurio, è previsione che non si inganna e non inganna.

Alla violenza, la violenza!

L'Eretico.

Barbari e Civilizzati.

Un quarto di secolo è bastato per trasformare la politica del mondo su tutti i mari e su tutte le terre, senza che le razze attardate sembrino di aver trovato nelle dichiarazioni della filosofia moderna un beneficio apprezzabile.

La schiavitù è abolita; ma gli uomini nati sul suolo primitivo che i bianchi civilizzano sono spoliati del loro patrimonio con la forza quando la scaltrezza non basta all'uopo; e l'alcool insinuato nelle loro vene coi mezzi migliori dell'espansione coloniale, decompone il loro sangue.

Il cannibalismo fugge davanti ai soldati, ma questi massacrano la carne umana violando i pricipii d'umanità che stabiliscono in seguito a loro proprio vantaggio.

Si qualificano di barbare le orde che lanciano agli invasosi delle freccie avvelenate o che stacciano le carni, ma è colle palle dum-dum, coll'oppio, colle menzogne, coi funzionari brutali e venali che ci si installa nei loro territorii. L'influenza dell'idolatria ingenua e crudele è vinta, ma il dogmatismo intransigente snatura il pensiero, divide le coscienze e le perseguita con mezzi ipocriti. Infine, i civilizzati danno ai barbari l'esempio delle loro lotte fratricide per il possesso di un poco d'oro o di potere.

Breve, se la lotta della vita s'è coperta di una maschera, è tuttavia con la forza che la nostra razza rovescia, sopra tutti i continenti, l'eccedente dei suoi figli e dei suoi vizii. La morale delle coscienze modernizzate, sottomesse alle leggi del-lo sposare, al loro tempo, la causa degli schiavi negri.

Tuttavia io non saprei condannare se veramente la turba inconsciamente feroce, ma condanno coloro i quali durante mesi e mesi hanno saturato di pregiudizii, di menzogne, di storie macabre e di spirito di vendetta la popolazione di San Diego.

Oh, non sulla canaglia volgare ricade la vergogna dell'ultima gesta scellerata, ma sugli spavaldi rappresentanti delle sedicenti classe elevate, sulla gente per bene, sugli avvocati, i dottori, i grandi sensali, la polizia, qualche giornale ben pensante; ed io non affermo temerariamente, ma dopo di essere stata quì, dopo di aver raccolto elementi bastevoli a mandar ciascuno di cotesti prodi in galera per parecchi anni se a San Diego vi fosse un giudice, se vi fossero giurati sufficientemente coraggiosi da affrontar la prova.

Le ragioni della mia presenza in San Diego erano le stesse che mi avevano condotto a Denver ed un po' in tutte le città dell'America, tenervi qualche conferenza. Ogni qualvolta io ho fatto escursioni lungo la costa del Pacifico mi son trattenuta a San Diego parlando in assemblee numerose senza riscuotere mai il minimo affronto per quanto le mie conferenze abbiano avuto in ogni tempo un accusato carattere economico sociale. Dovevo questa volta intratteuermi su Il Nemico del Popolo e Maternita' capilavori dei due più grandi drammaturghi del mondo; due conferenze che io ho tenuto in tutti gli Stati Uniti dinnanzi al miglior pubblico, ed in Denver ultimamente provocaudo da critici autorevoli i commenti ed i giudizii più lusinghieri.

Certo più di un guaio io l'ho avuto dal giorno che la libertà di parola in questa terra nostra è stata affidata al capriccio ed all'arbitrio dell'ignorante e zotica polizia ufficiale; ma doveva rimanere a San Diego la somma ventura di sopprimere il diritto di parola e di riunione con una procedura che le potrebbe essere invidiata dalla Santissima Inquisizione spagnuola, doveva rimanere alla sedicente Alleanza dei Cittadini investita della legge e dell'ordine la vergogna di spezzare ogni legge ed ogni vincolo umano e ci vile.

Del fermento, della turbolenza della popolazione di San Diego si ributta la responsabilità sull'organizzazione oggi conosciuta sotto il nome di Industrial Workers of the World, e sta bene; ma, comunità si arroga l'arbitrio di confiscarlo minando così i principii della libertà e condannandosi di per sè alla morte.

Ai sedicenti cittadini per bene di San Diego non bastava la violenta e selvaggaggressione al direttore dell'albergo che si rifiutava di cacciarci in istrada alla mercè degli assalitori; non bastava il gergo sguaiato e sbracato che la penna si rifiuta di produrre; colla manifesta, deliberata complicità della polizia essi hanno reclamato a gran voce la vita nostra, e sono andati ad un passo di prendersi quella del dott. Ben L. Reitman.

Evidentemente con me non si sono arrischiati a tanto, e neanche essi osarono condurre a termine il loro criminoso proposito finchè il dott. Reitman rimase con me. Era stato prestabilito che io dovevo essere chiamata nell'ufficio del direttore dell'albergo per avere comunicazioni dal capo di polizia, e mentre io stavo in ufficio, gli eroi della Citizens Alliance legarono il dottor Reitman, l'imbavagliarono, lo caricarono sopra un automobile e trattolo a sei miglia dalla città, lo spogliarono, lo flagellarono, lo torturarono in modo che la parola non osa descrivere, gli bollarono a fuoco tra le spalle le iniziali dell'I. W. of W., l'avvolsero di bitume, di paglia, di penne e lo costrinsero a fare in quelle condizioni una trentina di miglia.

Per fortuna della vittima, le lasciarono i famuli della Citizens Alliance i i quattrini ed il biglietto di ritorno a Los Angeles; che cosa sarebbe altrimenti avvenuto, che cos'è avvenuto delle centinaia di vittime dell'I. W. of W. che hanno rari gli amici e più rari i quattrini?

Tuttavia si dice che se in una città sia anche un solo innocente, la città deve essere salvata. In San Diego l'innocente vi è; v'è il sig. Giorgio Edward, direttore di un Istituto Musicale, un maestro di grande perizia ed un uomo dalla mente colta e geniale che, pur non avendomi mai veduta, pur non avendo mai udito parlare di me, mi offrì, nel momento critico, quando tutti avevano perduto il coraggio, la sua sala per una conferenza. Una offerta che è altrettanto coraggiosa quanto l'assistenza data da Wendell Phillips a Lloyd Garrison cinquant'anni fa. Io non ho creduto approfittare della cortesia e dell'ospitalità del sig. Edward. Approfittarne equivaleva esporlo al più grande pericolo ed io non ho voluto farlo.

Per questa ragione, prima, per le assicurazioni datemi di poi dal direttore lotta per la conquista del pane e per il diritto alla vita.

Essi furono sempre i primi nella battaglia per la conquista dei diritti operai. Le loro voci potenti servirono a scuotere centinaia di migliaia di sofferenti, affinchè si rivoltassero contro inumane e oltraggiose condizioni.

Essi furono i primi a sentire le angoscie della fame del povero e conobbero le torture infernali e le lagrime di donne soffcrenti; il loro cuore fu lacerato dai lamenti di bimbi strappati prematuramente dal petto delle madri e quindi incominciarono a rendere più gigante la rivolta contro le inumani condizioni di vita sia nelle città che nei villaggi, affinchè i raggi della civiltà penetrassero in in essi, ad onta del randello del poliziotto, del fucile e della baionetta del soldato al servizio dell'autocrazia padrouale, che condanna tanti lavoratori a vivere in condizioni tanto terribili da non potersi descrivere.

Ettor, Giovannitti e i loro compagni Haywood, Trautman, Halliday ed altri, saranno condannati a marcire in prigione se la classe lavoratrice non si ribellerà contro il verdetto già emesso dalla classe capitalista.

Ettor e Giovannitti! Pionieri sempre di pace, pace ch'essi vogliono pei tuguri e per le capanne del povero pel quale hanno sempre reclamato un pane più abbondante, più agiatezza per le loro case, dichiarando guerra ai palazzi dei parassiti, dei debosciati, dei dissanguatori del popolo.

Ed è questo il loro delitto.

Ed è per questo ch'essi sono in prigione!

Ed è per questo che i re del cotone, della lana, dell'acciaio, ecc., escogitano tutti i mezzi per poterli gittare nelle galere!

Ob Massachusetts, un tempo culla di libertà, tu che un tempo desti ricetto ai fuggiaschi pellegrini d'Europa e che per primo gittasti il grido di ribellione contro il governo britannico, in quanta vergogna sei tu caduto!

In te non comanda più il popolo: una geldra di crudeli parassiti, quì venuti da tutto il New England per sfruttare le tue ricchezze, sono riusciti ad avere tutto nelle loro mani: Comune, Stato, Giustizia e tutti i poteri costituiti, i quali sono sempre pronti a far di cappello davanti al potente dio dell'oro. I tuoi vecchi agricoltori hanno dovuto andare in esilio verso l'Ovest; altri popoli nuovi li hanno sostituiti, assoggettandosi ad ogni disegni, ciò sarà semplicemente perchè gli schiavi industriali non saranno insorti non avendo essi compreso che con questo processo si cerca di distruggere. l'organizzazione operaia.

Lavoratori, siate uniti con noi! fate tuonare le vostre voci di protesta, gridate dapertutto che volete la liberazione dei prigionieri e fate in modo che non sia soltanto la protesta vostra ma di tutti i lavoratori degli Stati Uniti e di altri paesi!

La classe capitalista sta per all'agguato e solamente i lavoratori possono sventare i suoi piani.

Aiutateci moralmente e finanziariamente, reclamante immediatamente la libertà provvisoria per Ettor e Giovannitti, ...

.....e quando a questi uomini verrà fatto il processo per delitti commessi dagli stessi strumenti della classe capitalista, essi ad alta voce proclameranno i loro principii, che sono delle verità inconfutabili, e verranno assolti, se tutti i lavoratori avranno fatto il loro dovere!!

MA ESSI DOVRANNO ESSERE POSTI IN LIBERTA' ORA! NON PERDETE TEMPO.

.....

Mandate tutte le comunicazioni e le contribuzioni a Wm. Yates. Secretary, 9 Mason St. Lawrence, Mass. e scrivete per altri schiarimenti al

THE ETTOR-GIOVANNITTI DEFENCE COMMITTEE
9 Mason St. Lawreuce Mass.

Wm. D. Haywood, W. E. Trautman, Elizabeth Gurley Flyn. Wm. Yates, Francis Miller.

Augusto Masetti

Splendida fototipia su ritratto mandato direttamente dalla famiglia ai compagni della Cronaca.

Il Gruppo Autonomo di E. Boston ne ha fatto una magnifica cartolina che a beneficio della propaganda manda, su richiesta accompagnata dal relativo importo, a chiunque la desideri.

1 copia 0,05 — 6 copie 0,25 — 100 cartoline $ 3,00.

Presso il Gruppo Autonomo.
P. O. Box 53
East Boston, Mass.

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

893

890722004

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Interview] Emma Goldman and Ben Reitman Tell of San Diego Experience / Emma Goldman. — p. 4 ; 43 cm. In The Industrial Worker [Spokane]. —(June 6, 1912).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

AGITATE—EDUCATE—ORGANIZE—FIGHT FOR THE

EMMA GOLDMAN AND BEN REITMAN TELL OF SAN DIEGO EXPERIENCE.

(By Caroline Nelson).

The most fearless woman in America today undoubtedly is Emma Goldman. She told me that her "first crime" was committed in Russia when she was only eight years old. It happened in her own home. Her folks were farmers and had a servant girl, who got herself into trouble and was promptly kicked out into the cold world without any means. Emma forthwith robbed her mother's strong-box and handed the proceeds to the outcast. I am not an anarchist because I can't subscribe to their philosophy, but I can admire a little woman who fought for years all alone for what is to her most sacred, and who went calmly on to fight in the teeth of all opposition. A dozen women of the Emma Goldman type in the labor movement could give the movement a boost that would make it leap ahead with lightning speed. Unfortunately for our working men today the working women are not revolutionary and mostly have the absurd idea that by confining the workers' philosophy to mean nothing but a little reform they can do a whole lot of good. The socialist women in general are nothing short of a lot of geese, that confine themselves to cackling about uplifting the workers, and sprawl before upperclass or professional woman who will condescend to grace their meeting to hand them out a little respectibility. Not so Emma Goldman, she stands by her guns through thick and thin, and goes with the police to jail with the same defiance that she mounts the platform to speak to a hostile audience, if need be.

She says that she went to San Diego in the midst of the free speech fight to compel the capitalistic press of the country to take notice of it which she knew it would be compelled to do, not because she is respectable, but because she is the most disreputable woman in America. Her object was certainly accomplished. In her own way of telling it, the listener is brought face to face with the fact that our civilization has voted into power the most savage and brutal members in society, who drop their veneer of culture at the least provocation. Miss Goldman said in part on her experiences in San Diego:

"I have seen mobs many times, but I have never seen such a yellow mob of thousands of well-dressed people as the one which greeted us at the depot in San Diego. We had engaged rooms at the U. S. Grant Hotel and we managed to get on the automobile hotel buss. Six private automobiles followed. They were filled with upper class women who hooted and yelled 'Give up that anarchist,' we will strip her naked, we will tear out her guts.' Many other things were said by those "cultured" women which could not be repeated in public. The working men having charge of the hotel automobile raced for their life to save us from the vigilantes, when closed in on us at every turn. At last we got to the hotel to our rooms. The mob was held at bay by the hotel manager outside. But after a while they stormed the hotel and demanded that we be delivered over to them. The manager told them that it was his custom to protect his guests. They then told him that they would ruin him and tear down the building to get us.

Finally a hotel clerk came to us and said that the chief of police wanted to see us. We told him to send the police to our rooms, but he said that we must come down and see him in a private room. We went with the clerk, and I was taken by myself to a room where the chief of police, Wilson, and a man that looked like a detective were awaiting me. "We want you to sign a document demanding the protection of the police," said Wilson. 'I shall do no such a thing, I said. 'The mob is beyond our control,' said Wilson. 'If the mob is beyond your control,' said I 'you are not fitted for your office and had better resign. Let me speak to the mob. I have soothed more than one mob. But the chief of police refused to allow me to speak to the mob and the interview ended.

When I returned to our rooms I found that Ben Reitman had been kidnaped by the vigilantes. I then returned to the chief of police and declared that I should hold him personally responsible for Reitman's life; that if any harm came to him he would have to pay for it, that I would come back to San Diego to take his life myself. Whereupon the official began to shake in his knees and declared that he had nothing to do with the kidnaping of Reitman.

The manager again came to my room and said that he could not protect me from the rage. I was then allowed to put on my underclothes because the Christian gentlemen that I might meet some ladies and shock them. I was also allowed to put on my vest. Then I was made to run the gauntlet of fourteen of these ruffians, who told me that they were not working men, but doctors, lawyers, real estate and business men. They tortured me and humiliated me in the most unspeakable manner. One of them was to pull my cane in my rectum. Three hundred I. W. W.'s had gone through a similar torture before me by these Christian gentlemen."

Emma Goldman declared that she had seen many mobs, but that in no instance had the mobs been made up of working people, but always of the respectable citizens.

Anyhow the whole state of California is stirred up over this San Diego free speech fight. Spreckles Call in San Francisco and his papers in San Diego have done all they could to stir this mess into a patriotic stew, but the whole working class of every brand of organization is on to the game, and knows it is a class struggle. This fight is the greatest thing that ever happened in California to promote class consciousness. Everybody is asking what is the I. W. W. Let the good fight on. All we need is to capture the workers' mind, when we have that we have all. And one of the best ways to capture it, is to make the capitalist press advertise what we stand for. All activities lead to revolution. Peace and submission is our greatest enemy at this stage of the game.

THE ART OF LECTURING.

While the I. W. W. is not in agreement with many of the ideas of Arthur M. Lewis of Chicago, it must be admitted by all that he has power as a lecturer and there are few who approach his equal as a seller of literature. His book of the title "The Art of Lecturing" should be in the hands of every speaker. We give a few extracts that are of value to I. W. W. agitators.

Hall Lectures.

"At the beginning, the voice should be pitched barely high enough for everybody to hear. This will bring the "hush" which should mark the commencement of every speech. Whether it be loud and rattling, or low and tense, it is to be heard by everybody, for the other kind would not be worth while. If you really have a lecture, you will need every bit of it.

"No lecturer who aims high should go upon a platform and content himself with merely saying in cases of great urgency 'gentlemen having worked out his supreme sentence.'

Lewis advises that in the beginning the current misconceptions regarding the subject be found and the subject and then the speaker should speak deliberately upon the main topic. 'Do not talk so slowly as to encourage the idea that you are unfamiliar with the subject.' If closes the lecture the threads of the subject should be drawn together and the delivery should be given in deeper tones and with more rapidity.

Advice is given on the matter of preparation of subject material and the necessity of being well informed on all related subjects.

"It was well enough in the middle ages for great conclaves of clericals to discuss sagely what language will be spoken in heaven, and how many angels could dance a saraband on the point of a needle, but the twentieth century is face to face with tremendous problems and the public mind clamors for a solution. It will listen eagerly to the man who knows and has something to say. But it insists that the man who knows no more than it knows itself, shall hold his peace."

Lewis advises short lectures, the absence of mannerisms and the avoidance of hackneyed phrases and repitition of words.

Street Speaking.

Lewis advocates an entirely different method for street speaking and the crowds he is able to gather bear witness to the value of his methods.

"Here is the program for the speaker: "He must plunge at once into the heart of his talk and put as much energy into addressing the first dozen as when the crowd grows larger. As soon as he adapts his voice and manner to the size of his crowd the crowd will stop growing. The only way to add another hundred is to talk as though they were already there. A hall lecture should have but one subject, and stick to it—because the audience is the same in its composition throughout. At a street meeting about half the audience is constantly changing, and hopping from one question to another has many advantages."

Long stories, which carry their point to the orator before the end, and the humorous to see that the audience is supplied and upon efficient ushers depend largely the success of the sales. These should be skillful in making change so as to avoid delays, and should be painstaking enough not to slight any portion of the audience. Books, pamphlets and papers should always be sold with a view toward enlightening the audience and not as a mere scheme to enrich the treasury. The audience quickly detects the latter purpose and sales fall accordingly.

The example of how to sell books is too long for reproduction here; the method is briefly as follows, taking Untermann's "ONE BIG UNION."

First tell who Untermann is, not to boom him, but for the purpose of showing that he is an authority upon that particular subject. Show his long and arduous work in the labor movement, giving facts about his training in the craft unions, his work as editor of the Brewery Workers' Journal, explain how he was one of the foremost founders of the I. W. W. and thus show that he was competent to do the work in hand.

Next deal with the object the author had in view in writing the pamphlet and show the necessity for the appearance of the work.

Deal next with the main subject of the book and then read a short but stirring extract.

In this particular case call attention to the chart, holding it up so that all can see and briefly explain it.

Lastly impress upon the audience the necessity of a careful reading of the book in order to gain vital knowledge on a subject that is agitating the entire civilized world, and which affects them deeply as wage workers.

Announce then the price and the ushers can attend to the sales.

Pamphlets by Austin Lewis, Wm. Thurston Brown, Vincent St. John and others can be handled substantially in the same manner.

The success of the I. W. W. depends greatly upon the methods used by those who appear as the expounders of Industrial Unionism. The above matter should be given careful consideration by all speakers and prospective agitators.

SCABS EXPELLED FROM I. W. W.

The following list of names are former members of Local No. 253 I. W. W. Aberdeen, Wash.

These individuals have been expelled for scabbing on the I. W. W. at that point.

This is the treatment given to any persons who are found scabbing upon either craft union or unorganized workers while falsely holding membership in the Industrial Workers of the World.

Ed Bonner, card number 39525.
J. F. Hammond, card number 39531.
A. Burke, card number 35222.
F. Jennings, card number 39534.
L. Lake, card number 39584.
G. Bush, card number 39587.
C. Brown, card number 39510.
John A. Vonlonberg, card number 39501.
W. Speckemeier, card number 39586.
Bud Dixon, card number 39591.
N. Peterson, card number 38969.
Paul Lambrick, card number 39524.
Dan Hyatt, card number 39523.
John Rosenthol, card number 35201.

WHAT WAS DONE TO BEN REITMAN By Citizens of San Diego the Night of May 14th, 1912.

(From "A Sworn Statement").

He was taken from the U. S. Grant Hotel by vigilantes, operating, under police protection, placed into an automobile and taken to a point about twenty-three miles from the city. There all his clothing was taken from him. He was cursed in the vilest manner, beaten with clubs and with his own cane. His hair was pulled out of his head in handfulls. Lead pencils and fingers were stuck into his nostrils and ears. A cane was pushed into his rectum. His scrotum was twisted and he was beat upon the penis. He was tarred and grass and brush was rubbed into his skin. Cursed and reviled all the time. He was branded "I. W. W." and made to kiss the U. S. flag, and finally, bleeding, bruised and sore, set adrift on the prairie to perish.

Done by the vigilantes of San Diego, in the year 1912, to a man who had committed no offense and intended no offense.

These men are permitted to wear the American flag as a distinguishing emblem.

PETTIPIECE AND OTHERS ACQUITTED

Vancouver, B. C., May 29.—R. Parm Pettipiece and six other men charged with unlaw-

ALBERT WILSO

Houston,

Walker C. Smith,

Fellow Worker: Aft
munlead in San Diego same on the 20th inst.,
Am leaving the Port Ga
German Lloyd boat
Diego local of proceed
The weather for the enjoy the trip from Ga mensely. Hoping that in the usual spirits, I r
Yours for
ALBERT WILS

DEATH GRASPS K

Robert Roellig, memb
Local No. 46, I. W. W. on May 17 as a result tained in the course of Roellig was a baker.

his work forced him to the cellar bakeshops of
of his death, after clean customary, Roellig star ashes and refuse to th ing he strained some
An ambulance was su worker removed to the he died upon the opera

The funeral took pla tionary services being parlors at 10 a. m. S resolutions revolutionary who spoke briefly were and Thornazo. The ca large red banner bearin and was decorated with cal 46. The body was in the Fresh Pond crea ing of the "Internation

Roellig was of Germ but 23 years of age. H wood says, "to young and internationalist w
He made his fight a and added his mite to holes in which bakers

In the death of Rob loses a valiant fighter best members.

LATE HA

The following items to allow full particula

The Portland stree
May 1 returned to work
Are waiting another f balance of demands.

Two Socialist party elders for street spe speech fight will be d against the arrested m

Thomas Whitehead sentence on a fake ch
tary conditions in a complied with all hea contractor's camp bre
contractors are punish

Twenty-seven strike
Kamloops jail and are
This should shame th

The eight I. W. W.
Westminster, B. C., s
Holton, 2 months 28 d days; Minifchi, 2 mo months 22 days; Olson
si. 2 months 18 days
days.

Zielinski and Sebesty organizers, are in ch
American Radiator Co

A silent strike is pre at Lowell, Mass.

J. E., in Solidarity, has joined the I. W.
await an official repor

Three of the best
Worker" has have wri
One wants more strike more propaganda art
third wants more sp organization affairs.
all three is to have an third more effort on will turn the trick.

In selling the song meetings it is well to songs contained in the
if possible, read a por nounce that the audi

894

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

890722004

The Emma Goldman Papers

[Interview] Emma Goldman and Ben Reitman Tell of San Diego Experience / Emma Goldman. — p. 4 ; 43 cm. In The Industrial Worker [Spokane]. —(June 6, 1912).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

[illegible] can do a [illegible] about it, [illegible] the workers, and [illegible] exercises of [illegible] woman who will [illegible] their meeting to hand [illegible] public respectability. Not so Emma Goldman, she stands by her guns through [illegible] and then and goes with the police to jail with the same defiance that she mounts the platform to speak to a hostile audience, if need be.

She says that she went to San Diego in the midst of the free speech fight to compel the capitalistic press of the country to take notice of that which she knew it would be compelled to do not because she is respectable, but because she is the most disreputable woman in America. Her object was certainly accomplished. In her own way of telling it, the listener is brought face to face with the fact that our civilization has hoisted into power the most savage and brutal members in society, who drop their veneer of culture at the least provocation. Miss Goldman said in part on her experience in San Diego:

"I have seen mobs many times, but I have never seen such a yelling mob of thousands of well-dressed people as the one which greeted us at the depot in San Diego. We had engaged rooms at the U. S. Grant Hotel and we managed to get on the automobile hotel bus. Six private automobiles followed. They were filled with upper class women who hooted and yelled 'Give up that anarchist!' 'we will strip her naked, we will tear out her guts!' Many other things were said by those "cultured" women which could not be repeated in public. The working men having charge of the hotel automobile raced for their life to save us from the vigilantes, which closed in on us at every turn. At last we got to the hotel to our rooms. The mob was held at bay by the hotel manager outside. But after a while they stormed the hotel and demanded that we be delivered over to them. The manager told them that it was his custom to protect his guests. They then told him that they would ruin him and tear down the building to get us.

Finally a hotel clerk came to us and said that the chief of police wanted to see us. We told him to send the police to our rooms, but he said that we must come down and see him in a private room. We went with the clerk, and I was taken by myself to a room where the chief of police, Wilson, and a man that looked like a detective were awaiting me. 'We want you to sign a document demanding the protection of the police,' said Wilson. 'I shall do no such a thing, I said. 'The mob is beyond our control,' said Wilson.' 'If the mob is beyond your control,' said I 'you are not fitted for your office and had better resign. Let me speak to the mob. I have soothed more than one mob. But the chief of police refused to allow me to speak to the mob and the interview ended.

When I returned to our rooms I found that Ben Reitman had been kidnaped by the vigilantes. I then returned to the chief of police and declared that I should hold him personally responsible for Reitman's life; that if any harm came to him he would have to pay for it, that I would come back to San Diego to take his life myself. Whereupon the official began to shake in his knees and declared that he had nothing to do with the kidnaping of Reitman.

The manager again came to my room and said that he could not protect me from the mob, and asked me to leave the hotel, that I had no right to stay there and ruin him, as he had not asked me to come. I decided to leave on the next train for Los Angeles. The mob outside the hotel again followed me up in their automobiles. I reached the train and just as I stepped on the ground the vigilantes closed in on me and were on the point of grabbing me when the trainmen rescued me and lifted me on board the train and slammed the car door in the face of the howling mob."

Ben Reitman's story is almost unbelievable. He says: "The moment Miss Goldman was out of the way a half dozen men clutched hold of me. One put his hand over my mouth. They threw me in a waiting automobile in the bottom and began to torture me and hysterically calling me by the vilest names. One of the men urinated on me while others held me down. They took me twenty miles out in the desert where they stopped and threw me out. Immediately they tore off my clothes and threw me on the ground and with tar taken from a can traced I. W. W. on my back and a doctor burned the letters in with a lighted [illegible] happened to Carl [illegible] class conscious. Everybody [illegible] ing what a the I. W. W. Let the good [illegible] All we need is to capture the workers [illegible] when we have that we have all. And [illegible] the best ways to capture it is to make [illegible] that press advertise what we stand [illegible]. All activities lead to revolution. Peace and submission is our greatest enemy at this stage of the game.

THE ART OF LECTURING.

While the I. W. W. is not in agreement with many of the ideas of Arthur M. Lewis of Chicago, it must be admitted by all that he has power as a lecturer and there are few who approach his equal as a seller of literature. His book of the title "The Art of Lecturing" should be in the hands of every speaker. We give a few extracts that are of value to I. W. W. agitators.

Hall Lectures.

"At the beginning, the voice should be pitched barely high enough for everybody to hear. This will bring that "hush" which should mark the commencement of every speech. When all are quiet and settled, raise the voice so as to be heard by everybody, but no higher. Hold your energies in reserve, if you really have a lecture, you will need them later on."

"No lecturer who aims high should go upon a platform and confront an audience, except in cases of great emergency, without having worked out his opening sentence."

Lewis advises that in the beginning the current misconceptions regarding the subject on hand be exposed and then the speaker should speak deliberately upon the main topic. "Do not talk so slowly as to convey the idea that you are unfamiliar with the subject. To close the lecture the threads of the subject should be drawn together and the delivery should be given in deeper tones and with more rapidity."

Advice is given on the matter of preparation of subject material and the necessity of being well informed on all related subjects.

"It was well enough in the middle ages for great conclaves of clerics to discuss sagely what language will be spoken in heaven, and how many angels could dance a saraband on the point of a needle, but the twentieth century is face to face with tremendous problems and the public mind clamors for a solution. It will listen eagerly to the man who knows and has something to say. But it insists that the man who knows no more than it knows itself, shall hold his peace."

Lewis advises short lectures, the absence of mannerisms, and the avoidance of hackneyed phrases and repitition of words.

Street Speaking.

Lewis advocates an entirely different method for street speaking and the crowds he is able to gather bear witness to the value of his methods.

"Here is the program for the speaker. "He must plunge at once into the heart of his talk and put as much energy into addressing the first dozen as when the crowd grows larger. As soon as he adapts his voice and manner to the size of his crowd the crowd will stop growing. The only way to add another hundred is to talk as though they were already there. A hall lecture should have but one subject and stick to it because the audience is the same in its composition throughout. At a street meeting about half the audience is constantly changing, and hopping from one question to another has many advantages."

Long stories, which carry their point to the hearer before the speaker can send the shot home, are condemned and all stories except those of two or three sentences serve to distract the attention of the crowd. They pause to laugh and your spell upon them is broken.

"The street speaker should use short sentences of simple words. He should avoid oratory and talk as if he were telling something to another man and in dead earnest about it. I have watched a man talk to another man on the street forgetting the outside world completely and using forceful language and eloquent gestures. If such a man could only talk like that to an audience he would be surprised at his own success."

Courtesy should be shown to questioners and if the speaker keeps his temper on trying occasions he will gain favor among the audience, thereby.

Literature Selling.

In this connection it is urged that no more than two books be sold at any one meeting, one at the opening and one at the close. The first book should be the most important one and the middle of the lecture should be so given as to bring attention to the subject discussed in the work. Ushers should be at hand [illegible] Now dear wobbly the [illegible] how to sell the pamphlet and show the necessity for the appearance of the work.

Deal first with the main subject of the book and then read a short but stirring extract.

In this particular [illegible] call attention [illegible] briefly explain it.

Lastly impress upon the audience the necessity of a careful reading of the book in order to gain vital knowledge on a subject that is agitating the entire civilized world, and which affects them deeply as wage workers.

Announce then the price and the ushers can attend to the sales.

Pamphlets by Austin Lewis, Wm. Thurston Brown, Vincent St. John and others can be handled substantially in the same manner.

The success of the I. W. W. depends greatly upon the methods used by those who appear as the expounders of Industrial Unionism. The above matter should be given careful consideration by all speakers and prospective agitators.

SCABS EXPELLED FROM I. W. W.

The following list of names are former members of Local No. 253, I. W. W., Aberdeen, Wash.

These individuals have been expelled for scabbing on the I. W. W. at that point.

This is the treatment given to any persons who are found scabbing upon either craft union or unorganized workers while falsely bobbing membership in the Industrial Workers of the World.—

Ed Benner, card number 39525.
P. E. Hammond, card number 39531.
A. Burke, card number 35222.
F. Jennings, card number 39534.
C. F. Luke, card number 39584.
G. Bush, card number 39587.
G. Brown, card number 39510.
John A. Vonlomberg, card number 39593.
W. Spickelmeier, card number 39580.
Bud Dixon, card number 39591.
N. Peterson, card number 38969.
Paul Lambrick, card number 39524.
Dan Hyatt, card number 39523.
John Rosenthol, card number 35[illegible].

WHAT WAS DONE TO BEN REITMAN!

By Citizens of San Diego the Night of May 14th, 1912.

(From a Sworn Statement).

He was taken from the U. S. Grant Hotel by vigilantes, operating under police protection, placed into an automobile and taken to a point about twenty-three miles from the city. There all his clothing was taken from him. He was cursed in the vilest manner, beaten with clubs and with his own cane. His hair was pulled out of his head in handfulls. Lead pencils and fingers were stuck into his nostrils and ears. A cane was pushed into his rectum. His scrotum was twisted and he was beat upon the penis. He was tarred and grass and brush was rubbed into his skin. Cursed and reviled all the time. He was branded "I. W. W." and made to kiss the U. S. flag, and finally, bleeding, bruised and sore, set adrift on the prairie to perish.

Done by the vigilantes of San Diego, in the year 1912, to a man who had committed no offense and intended no offense.

These men are permitted to wear the American flag as a distinguishing emblem.

PETTIPIECE AND OTHERS ACQUITTED

Vancouver, B. C., May 29.—R. Parm Pettipiece and six other men charged with unlawful assemblage on the Powell street grounds during the free speech campaign in this city last January were acquitted tonight. The jury was out three hours.—News Item.

ORGANIZERS.

Any locals wishing organizers should communicate with the Joint Locals, Portland, Ore., 39 Davis street, stating wages, commission, whether fare will be advanced, etc. Speakers and organizers are: Brown, Isler, Lawton, McDonald, Miller, Panener and Reese in English, Krauss in English and German, and Ross in Italian.

We are in receipt of Vol. 1 and No. 1 of a [illegible] bearing the title "The Home Defender." It is to be a monthly, devoted to fighting the I. W. W. in particular, although not slighting the red section of the Socialist party. We like the title and hereby pledge ourselves never to cease fighting until every worker in the world has a home to defend.

What injures Joe Ettor injures you. Remember that.

[illegible] ecessary. Rowley starts [illegible] ashes and refuse to the [illegible] ing he sustained some o[illegible] An ambulance was sum[illegible] worker removed to the [illegible] d died upon the operati[illegible]

[illegible] he funeral took plac[illegible] y services being h[illegible] at 10 a. m. Se[illegible] remained revolutionary s[illegible] who spoke briefly were [illegible] and Thormazo. The ca[illegible] large red banner bearing [illegible] and was decorated with [illegible] cal 46. The body was c[illegible] in the Fresh Pond crema[illegible] ing of the "International Rowley was of Scott[illegible] but 23 years of age. H[illegible] wood says, "to young [illegible] and internationalist wo[illegible] He made his fight ag[illegible] and added his mite tow[illegible] bodies in which bakers [illegible] In the death of Robe[illegible] loses a valiant fighter [illegible] best members.

LATE HA[illegible]

The following items [illegible] to allow full publ[illegible] sue.

The Portland street [illegible] Men returned to work [illegible] Are waiting another fa[illegible] balance of demands.

Two Socialist party s[illegible] coleen for street spea[illegible] speech fight will be d[illegible] against the arrested m[illegible]

Thomas Whitehead [illegible] sentence on a fake cha[illegible] tary conditions in a [illegible] complied with all hea[illegible] contractor's camp bre[illegible] contractors are punish[illegible]

Twenty-seven striker[illegible] Kamloops jail and are [illegible] This should shame th[illegible]

The eight I. W. W. [illegible] Westminster, B. C., a[illegible] Holton, 2 months 28 da[illegible] days; Minitchi, 2 mo[illegible] months 22 days; Olson [illegible] si, 2 months 18 days [illegible] days.

Zielinski and Sebesty[illegible] organizers, are in cha[illegible] American Radiator Co[illegible]

A silent strike is pre[illegible] at Lowell, Mass.

J. E., in Solidarity, [illegible] has joined the I. W. W. awaits an official repor[illegible]

Three of the best [illegible] Worker" has have wri[illegible] One wants more strike [illegible] mote propaganda art[illegible] third wants more spa[illegible] organization affairs. [illegible] all three is to have an [illegible] third more effort on [illegible] will turn the trick. G[illegible]

In selling the song [illegible] meetings it is well to [illegible] songs contained in the [illegible] if possible, read a por[illegible] nounce that the audie[illegible] chorus. Then start t[illegible] should have a bunch o[illegible] and interest holding s[illegible] ad elsewhere.

In selling the "Work[illegible] best method is to an[illegible] briefly its distinct pol[illegible] without capitalist adve[illegible] not subsidized, read a [illegible] most interesting news [illegible] the headings, and then [illegible]

The Russian Labor [illegible] City, commenced publi[illegible] a monthly paper, Go[illegible] Labor) advocating th[illegible] tionary syndicalism. [illegible] is 35 cents a year, 20 c[illegible] eign and Canada, 50 [illegible] Box 41, Station D, Ne[illegible]

One of the delegate[illegible] convention suggested [illegible] opposed "sabotage" w[illegible] be pronounced with a [illegible]

895

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

880824004

The Emma Goldman Papers

The San Diego Outrages / Emma Goldman. – 36 cm. In Freedom [London]. – (July, 1912).

Obtained from the Center for Research Libraries, Chicago.

there is an uneasy and increasing consciousness that the other side hates and threatens.

"It may be well the case, and there is every reason to fear it is the case, that there is collected a population in our great towns which equals in amount the whole of those who lived in England and Wales six centuries ago; but whose condition is more destitute, whose homes are more squalid, whose menus are more uncertain, whose prospects are more hopeless than those of the poorest serfs of the middle ages and the meanest drudges of the mediæval cities. The arm of the law is strong enough to keep them under, and society has no reason to fear their despair; but I refuse to accept the superficial answer, that a man is an admirer of the good old times because he insists that the vaunts of civilisation should be examined along with, and not apart from, its failures. It is not possible to give the solution of one problem, the growth of opulence, and to refuse all attention to the other problem, the growth of penury.

"I do not assert that my researches into the economical history of England will throw a clear light on these complex and contradictory phenomena; but I am convinced that till we learn how it was that this society has grown and been collected, and how wealth has been distributed between labourer, capitalist employer, and those who enter on the rest of the inheritance which labour has earned, we shall only be dealing with the most superficial elements and the least important problems of social life; we shall be offered remedies which are more dangerous than the disease; we shall be invited to adopt as a complete solution of a profound difficulty, that which would make the confusion more inextricable, and the prospect of unravelling it more hopelessly remote, if we accepted it without reserve, examination, or anxiety."

THE SAN DIEGO OUTRAGES.

The following extract from a letter to us by Emma Goldman throws some more light on the treatment accorded to her and Ben Reitman:—

"I understand that the event of San Diego has been wired across, so you know what has happened there. It certainly was one of the most terrible things in America, a situation which did not prevail even before the Civil War. Of course the fight for free speech in San Diego is not the first, as you know I have been compelled to fight for every chance of free expression during the last twenty-three years; also the concerted fight on the part of the I. W. W., which has been going on for the last two years, has always been victorious in a number of cities. In San Diego it has reached the climax, because the city is isolated and consists largely of wealthy real estate people, retired bankers and army men. Never in the history of the United States have such brutality and savagery been perpetrated as during the last three months, nor yet has anything similar happened as that which happened to Reitman and myself. It was a deliberate conspiracy on the part of the so called patriots, with the connivance of the police. Evidently afraid to kidnap Reitman in my presence, they lured me out of the room, and then six men with loaded revolvers closed in on him, bound and gagged him, and drove him out of town in an automobile. Reitman has written a detailed account in Mother Earth, which will appear in our current issue, so you will be able to judge for yourself of the things which may happen in a free country; but as our grandmothers used to say, 'There is a silver lining to every cloud.' Certainly if the 'Vigilantes' had gone about it in a deliberate way to defeat their own ends, they could not have done better than by the reception they have given us. The Press of the entire country is full of condemnation for San Diego—even the authorities of California have begun to act; and altogether the situation has received publicity which was worth all the horror and shock that we received. Needless to say, we are not yet through with San Diego, and are pushing the matter to the best of our ability.

"Our tour, which started in a very dull and wretched manner, barely making it possible for us to cover expenses, took a sudden turn when we got to Denver, and has kept up marvellously ever since.

"I am sending you a lot of clippings, and also a copy of an article which was extensively published throughout the country. Will be glad if you can make use of it in FREEDOM, as it is certainly well for the English comrades to realise the conditions in America. I believe we have good reason to congratulate ourselves with the result of our work, although it has meant pain and sorrow and suffering; but there is a tremendous awakening, and while Anarchism is being brutally condemned and attacked by the reactionary press, there still are a large number of daily papers which are beginning to realise that Anarchism is not merely the result of a "cracked brain," but is a deep and vital issue. Besides that, our propaganda on behalf of Direct Action and the General Strike is gaining ground more and more. Already it has brought the Lawrence, Mass., strike to a success, and is being discussed and written about within the last few months more than it ever has been before. Of course, the same is happening in England and everywhere in the world, as the air is surcharged with revolutionary ideas."

One of the above-mentioned clippings is an article in the San Diego Union of May 20. It is too long to reproduce in full, but the comment on the action of the Governor of the State in sending the Attorney-General to San Diego is typical of the rest of the article:—

"What the Attorney-General can accomplish in San Diego cannot be definitely predicted. It is possible that as the Governor hopes 'a solution of the problem confronting San Diego may be found,' and if thereafter from this knowledge and experience the Attorney-General can advise in such manner that other cities may be protected, San Diego will feel that her example and methods of dealing with the 'problem' have not been offered and exerted in vain. And since the Governor is eager to 'do anything necessary to provide requisite statutes' whereby the 'problem' may be more easily solved hereafter, it is suggested that he get busy at once framing statutes for adequate punishment of I. W. W.'s and other Anarchists who insult the American flag, who assault cities en masse for the purpose of filling the jails on trivial misdemeanour charges, hoping to bankrupt the taxpayers by compelling them to pay for keeping them in jail; who conspire to violate city ordinances; who preach sedition and treason from soap boxes in the public streets, and who otherwise conduct themselves with the deliberate intention of annoying the citizens, disturbing the peace of the community, and provoking the people to riot with the intention of calling down the wrath of the Governor of the State upon the harassed and harried community. A few statutes covering these phases of the 'problem that confronts San Diego' will go towards solving that problem; but it is doubtful if even Governor Johnson, wise and willing as he is, can solve it any more effectually than San Diego has solved it for herself."

INTERNATIONAL NOTES.

United States.

Though the 25,000 textile workers in the woollen mills of Lawrence, Mass., triumphed in the recent strike over their employers, who were forced to increase the starvation wages of their hands, the owners have neither forgotten nor forgiven their defeat. Not only has a part of their profit to go into the pockets of the workers, but the strike revealed to the public the horrors of slavery and child exploitation in their mills. On whom to revenge themselves?

Joseph Ettor and Arthur Giovannitti, the two Syndicalist propagandists of the Industrial Workers of the World, who had led the workers through the long weeks of struggle to victory, were chosen as the scapegoats by the humiliated and infuriated masters. A woman among the strikers was shot by a policeman. Though this was witnessed by several persons, nevertheless Ettor and Giovannitti were arrested for complicity in this murder of a striker! It seems hardly possible that such a ridiculous charge can bring our comrades into danger, but the Labour history of the United States has too many examples of the brazen effrontery of the capitalists when they are determined to carry terror into the hearts of the awakening proletariat. Did not Spies, Parsons, and their comrades fall as victims of such a plot? And are the juries, judges, and police now less willing to give a helping hand to a capitalist conspiracy?

Thanks to the enormous interest taken by millions of workers in the defence of Haywood and his comrades, these men were saved from the fate which organised capital had prepared for them. Unless an equally strenuous effort is made by the friends of Labour and liberty, Ettor and Giovannitti will pay with their lives for having dared to rouse and lead Labour to victory against Capital. An Ettor-Giovannitti Defence Committee has been formed at 9, Mason Street, Lawrence, Mass., which has issued an appeal for assistance in raising a strong protest against the intended outrage.

Italy.

After the condemnation of Maria Rygier, the editor of Agitatore, the trial began before the Volterra tribunal of the militant comrades who had led the strikes in the mines and factories of the island of Elba and Piombino. The Public Prosecutor had demanded a total of ninety-one years' imprisonment for the forty-six accused; but twenty-five of them were acquitted, six were condemned for incitement to crime to seven and a half months' each, whilst the others, accused of violence and insulting officials, received sentences varying from nine to fifteen months.

Whether it is strikes, anti-Militarism, or Anarchism, it is all alike to the capitalists and Governments, who go hand in hand in suppressing any form of revolt against Capital and the State. In this case again the law proved itself the docile servant of the propertied classes. Though the total of eighteen years is far below that demanded by the Public Prosecutor, nevertheless the sentences are a cruel and vindictive act of the Government against the leaders of a strike in which the workers stood up heroically for their cause.

France.

The Socialist Minister Millerand has presented his country and "comrades" with a new Bill which leaves every existing Bill against Anarchists far behind it. According to this law, every young man who has ever been sentenced for anti-militarism or strike troubles will be sent to the regiments in Africa. This means that the most intelligent, the most daring and generous youth of France will have to choose between the hell of the African regiments or desertion to foreign countries. In their mad desire to suppress the revolutionary propaganda, the Government does not shrink from the most despotic measures, though it would deprive the country of the best of its youth, who would without hesitation prefer exile for life to death under slow torture in Africa. And yet the same ministers lament the depopulation of France, and means and measures are devised to increase the

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

896

890209019

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Power of the Ideal / Emma Goldman.– pp. 164-168 ; 19 cm. In Mother Earth. –Vol. 7, no. 5 (July 1912).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

capital is constantly becoming more intense and compelling, and the great mass of the workers will not be deceived by the crude clap trap of State Socialism.

❦ ❦ ❦

THE POWER OF THE IDEAL

> The man whom I touch, when he bends to pick up gold, he sees suddenly a light over his head in the sky; while he looks up to see it, the gold slips from between his fingers, or sometime another passing takes it from them.—Olive Schreiner, in "A Dream of Wild Bees."

PROBABLY no other trip in all my experience has better demonstrated this truism. So often it seemed as if we had but to bend down to pick up gold. But always there appeared a light over our heads in the sky; and while we looked up to see it, the gold slipped from between our fingers. Thus it must always be with him who is touched by the Ideal.

It is as hard to explain the peculiarities of cities as of human character. The most generous person often displays very petty traits. Equally so the city that often receives new ideas with open and ready response, will on some other occasion display absolute indifference. Thus Portland, for many years among our most hospitable cities, proved very cold and inert this time. Yet there was no lack of effort. True, our able organizers, Agnes Fair and the Holzwarth comrades, were missing; but Comrade A. Raymond was no less eager to make our meetings successful. At any rate, he left nothing undone, ably assisted as he was by Pauline Cantor and several other faithfuls, who helped to distribute cards and dispose of tickets. Then, too, there was an unusual amount of publicity by the generally chary Portland press. Some Grand Army men felt outraged because their hall was to be "contaminated" by a lecture of E. G. The worthy patriots threatened to raise a rumpus, which was grist in the mill of the newspapers.

The threat was not carried out, its only result being that we were refused several hotels, and that for many hours we were forced to join the great unknown, whose daily abode is the public park. But having tasted nature's hospitality on former occasions, this did not affect us as much as the subsequent disappointment that the unsought-for sensation failed to bring out even the former Portland attendance.

Our meetings, except the first Sunday, were small and the audience inert. It was indeed a cold douche on top of the hot wave in California. I understand that the extremes of hot and cold are beneficial for some bodily ills, but I would never advise such treatment for mental troubles: the shock is very disconcerting and leaves a painful impression. Fortunately, our friends always help to overcome the hardest shocks. Little Pauline Cantor, Kitty Beck, C. E. S. Wood, and other friends made our stay in Portland endurable, though all else failed.

However, fate has not ordained that we should be overlooked for any length of time. Long before we made for Seattle it appeared as if San Diego was not to remain alone in its patriotic delirium tremens. A yellow sheet, the Seattle Times, jealous of the national "glory" of the San Diego Union and Tribune, began a mad campaign of American flagomania. "The flag must be protected. The city will not stand for Anarchism. Will not some patriots save Seattle from the treasonable utterances of E. G.?" and so forth.

Of course, the senile patriots and Spanish war veterans suddenly discovered their lost youth, and called on the Mayor to prevent me from speaking. When the Mayor insisted upon every one's right to free speech, the "law-abiding, liberty-loving American patriots" declared they would stop the dangerous woman by force of arms.

It does not take long to arouse a patriotic heart to violence. Hence the hall keepers were terrorized, the Mayor was worried, and our own comrades, with San Diego still fresh in their memory, felt anxious for our safety. And we? Well, the power of suggestion had us in its grip, and we actually expected a repetition of San Diego,—five hundred "brave soldiers" meeting us at the train. But whether the yellow sheet had concocted the story, or the "heroic" veterans had lost

897

890209019

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Power of the Ideal / Emma Goldman.— pp. 164-168 ; 19 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 7, no. 5 (July 1912).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

heart, there were no soldiers at the depot nor at any of our meetings, so far as we could find out.

"God save us from our friends; from our enemies we can protect ourselves," certainly applied to the SEATTLE situation. Mayor Cotterill, as I understand, has Single Tax tendencies, and that may account for his brave stand against the Times and its barking. He was, however, very anxious about our safety, and in his zeal to protect us did our meetings no end of harm. He turned out the whole police department, with the result that we had police in front of us, back of us, on the side of us, police watching the hotel, crowding our meetings, spreading themselves everywhere, even on the roof of the hall and in the lavatories. They even searched some people for weapons, all for the sake of our "protection."

Not being accustomed to such a display of official affection, we had to beg the Mayor to relieve us, especially as the ungainly sight of so many brass buttons frightened the people away even more than the threatened presence of the war veterans.

The first half of our visit in Seattle was anything but restful for delicate nerves, but after our "protectors" had been withdrawn, the timid ones—and they are always in the majority—took courage and our meetings ended as usual, with flying colors.

Seattle has never been an easy burg to arrange Anarchist meetings, but this time it required extraordinary maneuvring and hard work to make the venture at all possible. Comrade Sam Hammersmarck acquitted himself handsomely by his skill and indefatigability. With him was dear Jennie Lavroff and several others of the old guard, ever ready to help when they are called upon. Through their efforts, reinforced by our faithful mascots, Ben Capes, Joe Edelsohn, and "Mickie," the situation in Seattle was saved.

SPOKANE, Wash., was gratifying, mainly because of the fine, solidaric spirit we met with among some members of the I. W. W. Walter Smith, the editor of the Industrial Worker, undertook the arrangements of the lectures, and when every other meeting place was refused us, the I. W. W. hall was willingly turned over to our use. Furthermore, Ed. Baily, the secretary of the local I. W. W., his wife and several other comrades helped faithfully in every respect. This was particularly inspiring because, prior to Spokane and when we were hard pressed for a lecture place, another group of I. W. W. acted very shabbily in refusing us their hall. But, then, no movement is quite responsible for all its adherents.

COLVILLE, Wash., is a mental graveyard. The greater is the courage and perseverance of our Comrade Otto Weik, who for several years has been trying to kindle the fires of life in that dead spot, but I fear me much he will not succeed. However, I was glad to have gone down, if only to assist our heroic comrade in his untiring struggle. Besides, it also gave me the opportunity to meet again our friend Mrs. Langdell, more delicate in health than ever, but as full of spirit and enthusiasm as of yore.

BUTTE, Montana, proved a great treat. It brought us back to the warm, tender friends of old days, Annie and Abe Edelstadt. When I look back upon the human panorama that passed my gaze during the last twenty-three years, the Edelstadts stand out as among the few, the very few, who have remained pure and true in their idealism, in spite of the economic grind, poor health and all sorts of adversities. Which merely proves that character is stronger than environment, stronger than external forces.

Like many other small trades people, the Edelstadts depend for their livelihood upon those living near them. Yet never have they denied their ideas, nor yet forsworn their colors. It is, no doubt, because of this great loyalty and devotion that our friends are so respected, revered, and loved. Would to goodness more of our comrades dared admit the things they stand for, since example more than theory is the potent force.

Our three indoor meetings made up in quality what they lacked in quantity, but the street meeting in behalf of San Diego surpassed anything we had ever before experienced in Butte. As a rule, I do not relish outdoor propaganda, because it is next to impossible to concentrate on a subject with the thousand noises of the street to combat, nor does it seem that a street

898

890209019

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Power of the Ideal / Emma Goldman.— pp. 164-168 ; 19 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 7, no. 5 (July 1912).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

audience can be interested for more than a brief moment. But our experiences in Butte proved an unusual and most fascinating event. Fifteen hundred people glued to the spot for nearly two hours, with an attentiveness and earnestness I have rarely found in a hall. It was a wonderfully inspiring occasion, not easily forgotten.

The few joyous days spent with our comrades Annie and Abe, Sadie and Albert Edelstadt, and Sam Stein, would have made our short stay in Butte a real holiday but for the very sad news that reached us there of the death of our brilliant and uncompromising Comrade Voltairine. The memory of her helped to knit us closer together in our determination to continue the work for which our dead comrade, more than any other native Anarchist, lived and worked so faithfully.

In the next issue of our magazine I shall give a resumé of our long, difficult, and interesting tour, and the lessons to be drawn from it. But one thing I know already, and it were well for every idealist to know, that "the gold slips from between his fingers, who looks up to see the light over his head, in the sky."

EMMA GOLDMAN.

P. S.—San Diego still looms up in interest wherever we come. Since our last acknowledgement the following amounts have been contributed:

Seattle, Wash.	$82.45
Spokane, Wash.	9.78
Butte, Mont.	21.00
Denver, Colo.	14.80
Total	$128.03

The money has been forwarded to Kaspar Bauer, Treasurer, Free Speech League, San Diego, Cal.

Also collected for the defence of Ettor and Giovannitti:

Spokane meetings	$17.00
Butte meetings	11.00
Total	$28.00

Spokane amount turned over to E. S. Baily, Sec'y, I. W. W.

BRITISH JUSTICE

(Correspondence from London.)

OUR old Comrade Malatesta is doing three months in prison owing to the "fair play" which is such a tradition of our Courts of Justice. He quarrelled with an Italian, an ex-Anarchist—with whom he was at one time very friendly—on account of the war in Tripoli, Malatesta taking an anti-war attitude, the other—Bellelli—taking the patriotic side. Malatesta and his comrades here issued a paper against the war, and Bellelli told several people that Malatesta had sold himself to the Turkish Government. This roused Malatesta, who issued a challenge to Bellelli, saying, "People say that you are an Italian spy. You say I am a Turkish spy. Let us call a court of honor. I will prove how I earn every cent I spend. You can do the same. This will clear both of us. As an honest man, you must do this." This was printed and distributed among the Italian colony. Bellelli thereupon sent MS. to a printer and got proofs of a leaflet he intended to issue, but at the last minute (probably at the instigation of the police) he told the printer to destroy everything and then charged Malatesta with publishing a criminal libel about him.

Comrade Malatesta was sent for trial, and at the Central Criminal Court on May 20th he was sentenced to three months' imprisonment, to pay the costs of the trial, and recommended for deportation as an undesirable citizen. The trial was prejudiced all the way through with charges of Anarchism, and when the jury had returned a verdict of "Guilty," a political detective (Powell) went into the box and launched a long tirade against Malatesta (not on oath), stating that he had been expelled from every country in Europe, had supplied materials to the Houndsditch burglars, and was the associate of coiners. The hypocritical judge, in passing sentence, said: "The Court does not take into account the fact that you are an Anarchist," and then gave him the before-mentioned punishment. Immemediately protests came thick and fast, some of the papers on the Government (Liberal) side coming out

899

890209020

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Power of the Ideal / Emma Goldman.— pp. 190-193 ; 19 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 7, no. 6 (Aug. 1912).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

THE POWER OF THE IDEAL

> In those eyes that had never seen the day, in that half-shaped brain was a sensation of light! Light—that it never had seen. Light that perhaps it never should see. Light—that existed somewhere!
>
> And already it had its reward: the Ideal was real to it.—Olive Schreiner in "A Dream of Wild Bees."

IN THE May issue of our magazine I stated that "We are to come back later for a month, at the request of the Denver Post, if only the wind does not blow in another direction, which, in newspaper ethics and the Colorado climate, is apt to happen."

We did come back, and, while little had changed in the climate, two months had proven too long a task for the newspaper ethics of the Post. We found it involved in a criminal libel suit; hence unwilling to have in its columns articles from E. G.'s pen.

Apropos of criminal libel suits. What a farce they are, in view of the fact that our entire system—governmental, commercial, and moral—rest on libel, fraud, and dishonesty. Of course, almost everybody knows this to be so, but everybody hates the other fellow to say as much about him. Therefore the dirty linen is dragged into court, and the majesty of the law plays the washerwoman. What a farce!

Our drama class in Denver, which had been ably conducted during my absence by Ida Kruse McFarlane, met me with great enthusiasm, amply making up for the disappointment in regard to the Post. A few of our ablest pupils had left for their vacation; most of them school teachers, who had tired of their task to stuff their victims like geese for slaughter, had gone for a rest. But the vacancy was made up by new members, and when the work began we had an equal attendance.

August Strindberg, the great Swedish dramatist, was to me always the most unique and sombre figure in the world of dramatic art. It is more than fifteen years that I first came across "The Father," Strindberg's most powerful play. Even since then it was my hope to bring him to the attention of my American audiences. Unfortunately, he was not accessible to the English reading public, until now when his works are finally being published in English. Thanks to this, I was able to acquaint my class with the life, the struggle and the masterly works of the Swedish dramatist, who, while not easily understood, is yet so fascinating that one is bound to go ahead, sometimes against oneself.

My class, too, became deeply engrossed, though but few were willing to accept the bitter, scathing attacks and criticism which saturate all of Strindberg's works. It was with regret that we turned to other dramatists.

The "Silver Box," "Strife," "Justice," and especially "The Pigeon," by John Galsworthy, called forth the most vivid discussions. Naturally, since all are social plays, flaying our social ills in a relentless manner. "The Pigeon" is more than merely a social sermon, it is a masterly critic of the hypocrisy and futility of all reforms, proving that poverty and vice are ingrained in our social fabric, and cannot be eradicated through punishment or charity.

Lastly, Andreiev's "King Hunger" came in for consideration, and with it the entire Russian literature. It is amazing how little even cultured Americans know about Russia. Turgenev and Tolstoy have long ere this been accepted by the intelligent American reader. But they have not helped to bring Russia closer to America, because Americans have failed to understand the soil whence spring the Russian works of art.

I was asked once, "Why is Russian literature so sad?" I replied, as I do now, because it is begotten in sorrow, nurtured in tears, and is born in the agony of the unsatisfied longing of the Russian people. It is that which makes the works of all Russian writers so deeply human, so wonderfully sympathetic, so much akin to the soil and the people whence the Russian writers draw their inspiration. In short, so unlike all other literature.

As during my first venture in Denver, so this time. I found the drama a splendid vehicle for social thought. Especially for people who, in this country, have so far kept aloof from the social and economic struggle which is daily becoming more acute. Perhaps not so much because of indifference but rather because the professional class until very recently had remained content

900

890209020

The Emma Goldman Papers

The Power of the Ideal / Emma Goldman.— pp. 190-193 ; 19 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 7, no. 6 (Aug. 1912).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

with mere material acquisition. And, as it could easily get that, "all was well in heaven and God was on his throne."

All this is rapidly undergoing a change. The professional man and women of to-day find it harder than even the skilled worker to exist. With the material uncertainty inevitably came the uncertainty, the voidness, of all our social life, which is brought out more forcibly than in any other manner through the modern drama. Hence its importance as an educator of the professional class.

My stay in Denver, more than on any previous occasions, has been intensely interesting and useful to me,—not to mention the pleasant phase of it, which is very important in the life of an agitator. It was, therefore, with great reluctance that I bid my many friends and earnest pupils adieu. But he who is touched by the Ideal may never halt long in any place.

On my way to New York I stopped in Chicago. I have done that now for many years, but always I take away from it naught but pain and bareness. It was more accentuated this time through the loss of our Comrade, Voltairine de Cleyre, whose voice had come to me over the phone only two months prior. Those who knew the martyrdom of her life will feel with me that death was a relief for her. It was, therefore, not that which gripped me so, but the knowledge that her death, like her life, had been terrible (she suffered excruciating pains for nine weeks), and that the thing she longed for most and never had—harmony—was denied her in death as in life.

I went to Waldheim and found her grave within the shadow of those who had inspired Voltairine's soul—the Chicago Anarchists. There she lies, whose body had never known respite from pain, whose soul had never tasted peace, and who yet never relaxed, until the end, in her zeal, her wonderful zeal for the ideal she loved so well—Anarchism, the redeemer of the human race.

While on the firing line, one neither cares nor can reflect upon the use or the worth-whileness of one's efforts. It is only after the battle is fought that one may ask, Why and wherefore? And ours was a battle, more difficult, more trying, more painful than any other in our experience. And now it is fought, we may ask ourselves, was it worth while, was it worth the price in suffering, in thrusts from friends, and persecutions from the enemy? Yes, a thousand times yes!

Not that we can boast of great victories, nor yet claim hosts behind us. But that more and more the perseveranee and the determination to go ahead, to break through every obstacle, has created an interest in the things we stand for, which cannot but bear fruit. Especially is this true of the Pacific Coast, where the workers, partly through their own experiences and partly through the struggle we were forced to make, are beginning to see the truths contained in Anarchism and, even more so, the logic and inevitableness of the methods which the Anarchists have propagated these many years. Namely, direct action, a revolutionary, uncompromising attitude, and the general strike. It was therefore worth while.

But even if results were not apparent, the effort would still be worth while, because of its reward, that "the Ideal shall be real to thee."

EMMA GOLDMAN.

* * *

MADAME MICHAELIS AND THE PSYCHOLOGY OF WOMAN

By OLIVE ALLERTON.

NOW that the sexual question is the most ardently discussed question of the day, because it is more intimately connected with society, and because, in different ways and with different tendencies, it goes to make up the modern struggle of life; now that women have found the courage to occupy themselves in public in spite of man, who, until now, thought himself to be the sole possessor of every knowledge, I have thought it necessary to speak, and to speak freely, on this subject. Especially after the last lecture at Carnegie Hall, by the well-known author, Madame Karin Michaelis.

Madame Michaelis has made a great noise in the world, especially in the feminine world, because, as a woman,

901

890209021

The Emma Goldman Papers

Ross Winn / Emma Goldman.– pp. 208-211 ; 19 cm. In Mother Earth. –Vol. 7, no. 7 (Sept. 1912).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

to a crisis where the government must face two alternatives, either they must prepare to send large numbers of women to penal servitude, or give women the vote without further delay.

In a few short weeks the holidays will be over, and the W. S. P. U. will be at work again. My enforced absence during the past critical weeks has been hard to bear, but when Parliament re-opens I shall be with you, ready to fight by your side and prepared to share the penalties which this contemptible government may think fit to impose in the vain hope of crushing our movement. The end is in sight, and very soon the victory will be ours.

When they have accomplished their object, it is to be hoped that these brave suffragists will perceive that the future of man requires the realization of greater ideals than those of suffrage.

❧ ❧ ❧

ROSS WINN

THE inexorable master, Death, has again visited the Anarchist ranks. This time its victim was Ross Winn, one of the most earnest, sincere, and able American Anarchists.

Never has the power of the Ideal been demonstrated with greater force than in the life and work of this man, Ross Winn. For nothing short of a great ideal, a burning, impelling, all-absorbing ideal, could make possible the task that our dead comrade so lovingly performed during a quarter of a century.

Born in Texas 41 years ago, of farmer parents, young Winn was expected to follow the path of his fathers. But the boy had other dreams, dreams extending far beyond the confines of his parents' farm; far beyond his immediate ties. His were dreams of the world, of humanity, of the struggle for liberty. He was possessed by a passionate longing to learn the printing trade, and by means of it to carry a message to mankind. His father, however, was opposed to such "foolish" notions, but Ross could not be daunted either at the age of 16, or during the rest of his life. He worked as a farm hand and picked cotton, and out of his meager earnings he bought for himself a small hand press. It was at a time when plutocracy, drunk with power, was about to put to death the men whose ideas were to serve as a beacon light in the life of Ross Winn—the Chicago Anarchists. Verily, Spies was prophetic, "The voices in the grave will speak louder than those you strangle today."

Voltairine de Cleyre and Ross Winn—two native children of America heard the strangled voice, and forthwith set themselves to keep alive the work for which our brave comrades had died.

Ross Winn immediately made himself conversant with the philosophy of Anarchism, which found in him a powerful, uncompromising, and daring exponent. Soon after the death of our Chicago comrades, he revived the Alarm, founded by Albert Parsons and later published by Dyer D. Lum.

Always harassed by poverty that later caused his illness and death, our comrade was often compelled to discontinue his publishing work. But never for very long. Thus we find him again at the helm in 1894, issuing a little paper called the Co-operative Commonwealth; then in 1898, the Coming Era; in 1899, Winn's Freelance. Pressed by adverse economic conditions, our comrade at this time was forced to suspend his publication, contributing, however, meanwhile for the Free Society, published by the Isaac family. But in 1909 Winn again resumed his own publication, Winn's Firebrand, which he subsequently called the Advance, and later the Red Phalanx.

Always his one supreme passion was a paper, to arouse, inspire, and educate the people to a higher conception of human worth. So intense was that passion, that we find our comrade preparing copy on the very last day before his death for the August issue of his paper, from which we reproduce some of Winn's trenchant editorials.

I met our comrade in Chicago, in 1901, and was deeply impressed with his fervor and complete abandonment to the cause,—so unlike most American revolutionists, who love their ease and comfort too well to risk them for their ideals.

Ross Winn was of the John Brown, Albert Parsons, and Voltairine de Cleyre type. He lived and worked only for his ideas and would have gone to the gallows with the same fortitude. But fate decreed that he should die a hundred deaths. Three years ago our com-

902

890209021

The Emma Goldman Papers

Ross Winn / Emma Goldman.— pp. 208-211 ; 19 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 7, no. 7 (Sept. 1912).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

rade fell a victim to the disease of the poor—tuberculosis. He had little faith in doctors, and he tried nature instead. Unfortunately one cannot live on nature alone, especially when one has a wife and child. And so Ross Winn had to return to civilization. In Mount Juliet, Tennessee, assisted by his devoted companion, Gussie Winn, and cheered by his child, Ross Jr., he eked out a miserable existence, and kept up his propaganda. Last year, however, his condition made work impossible, but he was too proud to ask assistance from his comrades even. It was through his wife that we learned of their terrible plight and immediately raised a small sum, which might have kept him in comfort for a while. But the only thing that meant comfort for Ross Winn was the spreading of his beloved ideas. And so he spent sixty dollars—a fortune to the little family—on a new printing outfit, and the Advance was again resumed.

It was this that helped more than medicine or nature to prolong the life of our tireless comrade. And then the end came. In the early morning hours of August 8th, the inexorable master, Death, stilled the fervent, burning heart of Ross Winn. Only faithful Gussie and their boy were with him. The good Christian neighbors had no use for the heretic. Poor fools! How could they fathom the beauty and love that permeated the man whom they had feared in life and shunned in death.

He is beyond them now, but not so his boy, whom next to his ideals he loved most, and whom he had hoped to save from Christian kindness and patriotic beneficiency. Ross Winn is beyond it all, but we are still here, not only to continue his work with the same ardor and devotion as he, but also to bring to his child, even in a small measure, the comradeship and care of his father.

At the death of Ross Winn, nine dollars was all that was left to his family.

Their need is great and immediate. I therefore earnestly urge that a fund be raised at once to assist the family of our dead comrade. Contributions can be sent direct to Gussie Winn, Route 3, Mount Juliet, Tennessee, or in care of MOTHER EARTH.

It is only through the manifestation of solidarity that we can prove the living force of the ideas and ideals for which Ross Winn lived, worked, and struggled.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

SHORT EDITORIALS

By ROSS WINN.

DEAN SWIFT, in his satirical romance, "Gulliver's Travels," tells of a philosopher who spent a lifetime trying to discover a process for extracting sunshine from cucumbers, his plan being to bottle up the manufactured sunshine for use in cloudy and cold weather. For several centuries humanity has been trying to extract social happiness and personal benefit from legislation and government; and it hasn't succeeded any better than the fellow with his cucumber sunshine experiment.

* * *

THE tide of crime which, under the present order—or let us say, rather, disorder—of government rises continually higher and higher, does not prevent the defenders of the state from naively asking us: What protection or security against criminals will be given to society under Autonomy? "What are you going to do with the criminals?" cry the governmentalists, as if crime was a thing unknown where authority exists. The Autonomists themselves are not worrying over this problem as it will present itself under the new order. What to do with criminals will be a much less serious problem when we stop producing them, and when crime is reduced to an insignificant factor in human affairs. Government itself and the anti-social conditions created by its activities is chiefly responsible for the social disease we call crime; and when the causes are removed the effects will speedily disappear. This is a scientific age, and more and more people are beginning to suspect that present methods of dealing with crime are survivals of barbarism and that they must give way to more rational modes in harmony with science.

* * *

IN all of the political-party platforms there is not one note for personal liberty; not a single plea for the sovereignty of the individual. The trend of political

903

881108010

The Emma Goldman Papers

[The drama: a powerful disseminator of radical thought. In Japanese] Kindaigekiron / Emma Goldman. – pp. 19-27 ; 22 cm. In Kindai Shisó [Tokyo]. – (Oct.-Nov. 1912)

Obtained from the University of Califomia, Berkeley. Institutional Location: East Asiatic Library.

大正元年十月一日第三種郵便物認可　大正元年十月一日發行（毎月一日發行）

近代思想

十月號

■愚かなるものよ……（詩）……嵐……（一）
■本能と創造……（評論）……大杉榮……（二）
■本當に瞞されてゐる男（對話）……伊庭幸……（六）
■新しい戯作者……（感想）……山本飼山……（一〇）
■大杉と荒畑……（人物）……堺利彦……（一三）
■ラファルグの認識論……（研究）……小原慎三……（一四）
■愈情者……（小説）……荒畑寒村……（一七）
■近代劇論……（評論）……荒畑寒村……（三一）
■雑文雑話……（隨筆）……荒畑寒村……（三一）
■發刊事情……榮……（一七）
■九月の評論……（批評）……榮……（一七）
■九月の小説……（批評）……寒……（二〇）
■消息……記者……（二五）

近代思想社

東京府下大久保百人町三五二

Copy for Personal Use Only The Library, University of California at Berkeley

881108010

The Emma Goldman Papers

[The drama: a powerful disseminator of radical thought. In Japanese] Kindaigekiron / Emma Goldman. — pp. 19-27 ; 22 cm. In Kindai Shisó [Tokyo]. —(Oct.-Nov. 1912)

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: East Asiatic Library.

大鉋のグリップから脱れて、桶を荷つて、晝飯の湯を汲みに行つた。

一組三四十人が呑む湯を、餘り近からぬ製罐部から荷つて來るのは、彼に對しては容易な事ではなかつた。然し一日中、此の時位彼の愉快な時はなかつた。彼はそこでのみ快活な少年に返つて、同じ湯汲仲間と談笑した。彼が殊に親しかつたのは、船渠部の橋場といふ職工だつた。橋場は彼よりも一つ上の十九で、常に蒼白い顏をして、力の無い咳をして居た。此の二人の外、他は皆大人のやうな遊びをして、それを得意氣に、亦面白そうに談り合つて笑つた。十一時半に終業の鐘が鳴ると、皆低い細長い食卓を圍んで飯を食つた。彼は逸早く、マズい麥飯と牛勞の煮付の辨當を食つて了つて、いつものやうに工場の中央に据ゑたカッタァの底に潜り込んで疲れ切つた體を横たへた。彼は、病氣の苦しさも、日々の味氣ない生活も、遠い土地に貧しく暮して居る父母も思はなかつた彼は亦、湯汲仲間の話を聞く毎に感ずる、深い心の空虚さへも想ひ出さなかつた。只だこうして休める時間が、もう卅分永ければいゝと思つた。

五

彼は烈しく横腹を突かれて、愕然として睡りからさめた。

海から吹いて來る初夏の風の涼しさに、彼は始業の鐘が鳴つたのも知らず、ウトウトと睡つて了つたのだ。で、ハット思つて頭を上げると、伍長が恐ろしい顏をして睨み付けて居た。

『此の怠け者ッ、ズウズウしい眞似をしやがると承知しねえゾ。早く彼の板を削つ了へッ。』

後の半日は、彼に取つては煩はしい、惱ましい不斷にイムポーズされる恐怖と苦痛であつた。此し劇しく働らくと、すぐ目眩ひがして、孕み女のエヅくやうに、ありもせぬ物を嘔げやうとして、絶へず生唾を吐き散した。『怠け者』『意氣地なし』絶へずこう罵られ乍ら、彼は只だ歸つて休む事のみ考へて居た。

『アヽ、今日もやつと終つた。明日こそどうかして休みたい、そして一日寢通して見たい。』彼は重い。ムクんだ脚を曳ずつて、群集にもまれ乍ら歸つて行つた。そう思ひ續け乍ら……

The Library, University of California at Berkeley
Copy for Personal Use Only

近代劇論（上）

荒畑寒村譯

一

近代の意識されたる社會的不安の驚くべき播布は、單に之を傳導的文書の功にのみ歸すべきではない。寧ろその大部分は是を美術、文學、殊には痛感さるゝ不滿足の最も強き解釋者たる近代劇に歸するの至當なるを想ふのである。ミレーが描ける農民の寥廓たる生活、ムーニエが寫せる鑛夫の悲慘なる勞苦にも增して、反抗の精神を呼び醒まさしむるものは、普遍的醱酵の精神と、社會變化に對する憧憬とに、生命の息を與へたツルゲネフ、ドストエフスキー、トルストイ、アンドレーエフ、ゴーリキー、ホイツトマン、エマーソン等の人々である。然しそれ等にも優つて、最も強き急進思想の播布者は、實に近代劇ではないか。

近代劇に對つて、かゝる重要なる位置を與ふる事は、やゝ誇張に失するとの譏があるかも知れぬ。然し、夫方の劇に於ける近代思想の發達を研究する時は、他の形式をとれる時は概ね顧みられない事實、大なる社會的事實を、劇のみよく宣傳する事に成功せるを見るのである。

但し、露西亞及び佛蘭西は是が例外である。露西亞國民の智識的生活と、それを壓碎せんと努むる專制政治との兩者間の大なる對照は、必然に國民をして思索せしめ、且つその社會的同情を喚起せしめた。然しトルストイ、サルトフ、ガーシキー、及びアンドレーエフ等の劇的傑作から、露西亞國民の生活と、努力と、希望と渴仰とな反映しつゝある時すらも、それは他の國に於て劇が成せる程には、急進思想に感化影響する事はなかつた。されど誰が『暗の力』或は『夜の宿』等に依て作られた著しき感化を非認する者があらうか。寔にトルストイは眞の基督教徒ではあつたが、猶且つ組織的基督教の强敵であつた。何人が、人心を殘害する暗の力たる基督教會の迷信を描くに、彼が如き靈腦神筆を有するものぞ何人が、その機性に依て犯さるゝ罪惡に對する教會の責任を問ひ面して又、これに依て人類が眞心の憤怒を喚起するに、彼が如きドラマチック、パワーを有するものぞ。その直接にしてまた强力なる效果は、殘酷なる非社會的なる境遇に依て凋萎壓抑せられ、貧窮と罪惡とに追逐せられつゝも、猶必死に希望と渴仰との絶端に

905

881108010

The Emma Goldman Papers

[The drama: a powerful disseminator of radical thought. In Japanese] Kindaigekiron / Emma Goldman. – pp. 19-27 ; 22 cm. In Kindai Shisô [Tokyo]. – (Oct.-Nov. 1912)

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: East Asiatic Library.

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2011 with funding from The Library, University of California at Berkeley
Copy for Personal Use Only

とり纏れる下級民を描いたのである。

斷へず自由に對つて努力せる佛蘭西は、實に急進思想の搖籃とも云ふべきで、覺醒の手段として必ずしも劇を選ぶの要なかつたのである。されど猶、裁判官の恐るべき腐敗を描けるアリユーの『赤き衣』の如き、人心を壞滅する富の勢力を寫せるミルボーの『實業は實業だ』の如きは、社會問題に關して佛蘭西で出た書物の何ものよりも、一層廣き範圍に達した事は疑ひないのである。

獨乙、スカンヂナビア、英吉利の如き國に於ては、(更に低度ではあるがまた亞米利加に於てさへも)劇は實に歷史を作りつゝあるの觀である。

二

曾へば獨乙を見よ、普佛戰爭の勝利に依て、殆んど沸騰點に達せる國民の自負心が生んだ感情的愛國的文學の繁榮は、いかに征服と流血との光榮に依て地方青年の心を殘害したらうか。美人と奢侈とに圍らるゝ貴族富豪が彼等と相並んで獸にも劣れる生活を營める同胞人類あるを信じ得なかつた事は、特に當時の現象であつた。故に獨乙の智識階級は、イブセン、ゾラ、ドーデー、モウパッサン、又は特にドストエフスキー、トルストイ、及びツルゲネフの傑作等の如き、外國文學に依て僅かに渴を醫すに過ぎなかつた。然し乍ら、自己の發土に生れた文學及び劇なき文化に、何れの國民かよく久しく耐え得やう。獨乙もまた、漸くにしてその國民の生活と、努力とを反映せる劇を發達せしむるに至つた。

同時代の最も若き劇作家アルノ、ホルツが作『ゼリツケ一家』は、屑箱から抓み出した物を食つて、僅かに生命を繋いで居る社會の落伍者を描いたものである。此の劇が驚くべき憤怒を湧起せしめたのは云ふを要さない。伯林の上流社會が此事實と當面した時、彼等は實にそれを憎んだのである。ホルツが此の作は、前人未發といふべきものではなかつたが、ホルツが劇的天才は、その劇の强き解釋と共に、必然に最も廣き範圍に侵入し、人民をしてその周圍の恐るべき不平等を思索せしめたのである。

更に重要な問題をとり扱つたものは、ズーデルマンの『名譽』、及び『故郷』である。既に述べた如く感情的愛國主義は獨乙人をして全然誤つた名譽の觀念を抱かしめた結果、決鬪は殆んど日常の出來事となるに至つた。此の狂想に反抗して屢々大なる叫びは揚げられたとは云へ、然も此の國家的疾病の曝露者、淨化者として、未だ何ものも『名譽』の如き力を齎らしたものはなかつた。此の劇は單に決鬪を論じた許りでなく、亦實に名譽の眞意義を分析して、その固定した天賦の感情ではなくして、凡ての人民、凡ての時代と共に變化し、且つ特に人の經濟的、及び社會的狀態に關係するもなる事を示したものである。吾人は此の劇に依て、大厦高樓に棲む貴族富豪が、必然にその犧牲とは異なれる名譽の定義を有する事を知る事が出來る

「名譽」のハイネッケ一家は、その子ロベルトの不在中、富豪ミューリンクの慈悲でその構内の破れ小舍に住んで居るロベルトはミューリンクの支配人として、印度で主人の爲に財産を作つて居たが、歸國するに及んでその妹が主人の息に弄ばれたのを知り且つミューリンクが四萬マルクの金を以て事を葬らんするを見て痛憤措す、遂に店僕の故を以て職を失ふや、

『吾々は汝の奴隸であつた、吾々は汝の爲に心血を犧牲とした。然し汝は吾々の娘と妹を凌辱し、そして吾々が汝の爲に儲けた金を以て、その不名譽を償はうとする、是れ汝が名譽と稱するものだ。』と面罵する。

『故郷』は、老人と青年との間の軋轢を描いたもので、劇曲的文學の上に永久の重要なる位置を有する。

父の選んだ嬰を拒んだ爲めその家を逐はれた、陸軍中佐シュワルツの娘マグダは、十二年の後著名なるシンガアとして故郷に歸るや、一切父母に過去の祕密を語らぬといふ條件で、家を訪ふ事を承諾する。然し父の執拗な質問は、遂にマグダが生涯の悲劇を曝露するに至り、警事官ホン、ケルレルがまた學生時代に、經濟的及び社會的獨立の爲に戰つて居たマグダの戀人だつた事が解るシュワルツエはケルレルをして、マグダが法律上の夫たる事を承諾させやうとしたが、既にマグダの成功を見たケルレルは、もしマグダにして舞臺を去り、且つ自分の生せた一子を孤兒院に入れる事を承諾すれば、喜こんでその要求に應ずると云ふ。新舊間の軋轢は、マグダが此の書に於て、殆んどその高潮に達する。

『私は貴君や、貴君方の尊敬すべき社會に就て、自分の思つて居る事を申します。慮外に依て貴君方の間に自分の生存を延さねばならぬ程、如何して私は貴君方より惡いのでせうか。私の躰に流て居る此の黃金、私の名を圍繞する光は、何故私の不名譽を增すのみなのでせうか。十年の永い間、私は朝は早くから夜は遲く迄働かなかつたか。私の多くの仲間のやうに私は一步一步私の位置を築き上げなかつたか。何の爲に私は他人の前に羞ぢ入らねばならないのか。私は私自身です、そして私自身で、私は現在の自分となつたのです。』

『故郷』の主旨は決して獨創のものではない。それは曾て時代の覺醒を描いた『父と子』とに於て、靈腕を以て描寫された處である。然し技巧に於てはツルゲネフの作に劣つて居るが『故郷』……性の

906

881108010

The Emma Goldman Papers

[The drama: a powerful disseminator of radical thought. In Japanese] Kindaigekiron / Emma Goldman. – pp. 19-27 ; 22 cm. In Kindai Shisó [Tokyo]. – (Oct.-Nov. 1912)

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: East Asiatic Library.

覺醒を描ける……は、猶主としてその劇的表現の爲に、強大な革命的要素たる事を示せるものである。

當に急進主義を播布したのみに止まらず、眞に獨乙思想界を革命した劇作家は、ゲルハルト、ハウプトマンである。彼が第一の作たる『日出前』は獨乙の有ゆる大劇場に依て拒まれ、最後に獨立レッシング劇場で上場されたが恰かも電光の如く社會の全地平線上を照した。此の劇の扱つた處は、無智無學で殘忍な大地主、及びその經濟的奴隸の生活に在て、飲酒の如き、痴愚の如き、また墮落の如き、富がそれを作つた犧牲と、その所有者とに及ぼす感化は、極めて鮮明な色彩で示されて居る。然し『日出前』の最も著しい特徴で、ハウプトマンが讃美の聲雨を蒙むつた點は養育不能なる親の無差別なる出產に關する問題であつた。その第二回興行の際、一人の著名なる外科醫は、もし出產が舞臺の上で公然論議さるゝならば、獨乙の禮儀と道德とは破れ去るであらうと聲を限りに絕叫した。されど見よ、此の外科醫は忘れ去られたけれ共、ハウプトマンは世界の前に巨人の如く立つて居るではないか。

『縫工』が初めて演ぜられた時、道學先生は叫んで云つた。

『何事ぞ、勞働者の如き汚穢なる奴隸が、舞臺に上ぜらるゝとは見てその恐怖と醜惡との極なる貧窮が、恰かも食後の娛樂の如く突出さらるゝとは。こは餘りに堪え難し。』と。然り、職工と富豪せん家は、肥滿せる富者に對つては餘りに堪え難い處であらう。自己飽足の社會の聖せる耳に、悲鳴の如く響ける眞理と事實との故に、こは餘りに堪え難き處であつた。けれども近代劇の目的は鄕壓せらるゝもの、自覺を促がすに在る。夙くともゲルハルト、ハウプトマンが、シレシアに於ける職工の境遇を、世界に對つて描出した所以は、實にこゝに在つて存する。一日十八時間の勞働に從つて、猶且つ充分なるパンと薪炭とを儲くる能はざる人類！半ば雪を以て覆はれた破れ傾ける小舍に住し、寒さな凌ぐものとては、襤褸以外何ものも無き人類！。飢餓と放棄との爲に、痴なる兒て覆はれた幼兒と、肺結核の末期にある姙婦。生命なく、希望なく、暖氣なく、惠深き基督敎時世の犧牲よ！。あゝ然り、こは餘りに堪へ難き處ではないか。

經濟狀態の惱ましい力を寫した外、彼はまた、習慣と傳說との束縛を脫せんとする、個人の內的及び精神努力をも扱つた。斯くして、劇的散文詩『沈鐘』に於ける鑄鐘師ハインリッヒは、ラウテンデラインの云つた如く、余りに長く谷底に住んだ爲めに、遂に自由の山巓に達する事が出來なかつた。是と等しく博士フォッケラートおよびマアルも彼等に神聖なる傳說を破るの勇氣が無かつた爲に寂しき人々として終つた。然し乍ら、彼等がその失敗こそ、實に永遠に個人的及び社會的解放を妨ぐる世界に對して、反抗的精神を呼び現すものではないか。

マックス、ハルベが『青年』、及びウェデキンドが『春の目ざめ』は、共に全く異なれる方面に向つて急進思想を播布せる劇で、兩者共に少年及び性慾の覺醒と當面する度し難き無智と、狹隘なる嚴格主義とを批評したものである。特に『春の目ざめ』は、眞に善良なる母が十四歲に達した娘をして、兩性間の問題に關して全然知らしめず、そして最後に若き娘が無智の犧牲となつた時、同じ母はその娘が庸醫の手術に依て殺さるゝを見る事を示せるので、早熟にして怜悧なるウェンドラは母に切願して生の神祕を說明せしめやうとする。

『姉さんがお嫁に行つて二年半になる間に、私はもう今度で三度叔母さんになるのね。如何してそうなるの。私には如何しても解らないワ。怒つちや厭よ母さん、だつて、それじや誰に聞けばいゝの。叱らないで聞かして頂戴よ。ネ如何してそうなるの。』

もう十四よ、嬰の話なんか信じやしないワ。』若し彼女の母にして、誤まつた道德觀の犧牲でなかつたならば、賢明なる說明はその娘を救つたのだつた。然るに因習的なる母は、羞ぢて說明を與へなかつた。

『子供をもつには、自分が結婚した夫を愛さなければならないのです。夫を愛するといふ事は、お前の年ではまだ解らないが今に解りますよ。』ウェンドラがどれ程知つて居たかゝ解つたのは、傍りに連かつた。姙んだ少女は水腫病に罹つたと想像して居たが『お前は水腫病に罹つたのじやない、子供を姙んだのに違ひない。』と、母が絕望的に叫ぶ時、苦惱せるウェンドラは驚き迷ひつゝ叫ぶ。

『だつて母さん、そんな事があるものですか。私はまだ結婚やしないじやありませんか。あゝ母さん、何故母さんは、何も彼も話して呉れなかつたんです。』

數年間獨乙に於ける男女思想家は、性慾啓蒙の急務を論じ、兩性問題研究の爲に發刊せる『ムッテル、シュージッ』は、久しい間之が宣傳に努めた。然し乍ら、獨乙國內の多くの學校內に、兩性心理學の課目を强ゆる迄に、急進思想を感化したものは實にウェデキンドが劇的天才の力だつたのである。

（英譯完結）

907

881108010

The Emma Goldman Papers

[The drama: a powerful disseminator of radical thought. In Japanese] Kindaigekiron / Emma Goldman. – pp. 19-27 ; 22 cm. In Kindai Shisó [Tokyo]. – (Oct.-Nov. 1912)

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: East Asiatic Library.

大正元年十月一日第二種郵便物認可　大正元年十一月二日發行　毎月一回一日發行

近代思想

十一月號

■ナイヒリストの死(小話)……榮（一）
■近代科學の傾向(評論)……大杉榮（二）
■オーソリテの話(寓話)……ムルタトウリ（七）
■日記から(隨筆)……上司小劍（八）
■鴨の路(詩)……風（一〇）
■小妹(短歌)……安成二郎（一一）
■シルレル武裝と人(梗概)……堺利彥（一三）
■オスカー、ワイルド二篇(寓話)……和氣律次郎（一三）
無知(寓話)……ムルタトウリ（一三）
■近代劇論(評論)……荒畑寒村（一三）
■讀んだだけ(批評)……安成貞雄（一八）
■大久保より(雜錄)……榮（一〇）
■新刊紹介……記者（一二）
■六合雜誌から……（一三）

近代思想社

東京府下大久保百人町三五二

Copy for Personal Use Only The Library, University of California at Berkeley

908 881108010

The Emma Goldman Papers

[The drama: a powerful disseminator of radical thought. In Japanese] Kindaigekiron / Emma Goldman. — pp: 19-27 ; 22 cm. In Kindai Shisó [Tokyo]. — (Oct.-Nov. 1912)

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: East Asiatic Library.

行くのぢや。』女は基督なのを見て、笑いながら、斯う答へた。『今歩いてる路は樂しい道です。貴君は私の罪を皆んな赦して下すつたではありませんか？』

基督の心は悲しみに滿ちた。彼は市を去らうとした。市を出やうとする時、彼は、市の濠の土手で二人の若者の泣いてゐるのを見付けた。彼は近づいて、若者の頭髪を撫でながら、斯う云つた。『友達、何故泣くのぢや。』若者は眼を上げて、基督なのを見て、斯う答へた。『私は死んでゐたのを、貴君が甦へらしたのです。この世で何うして泣かずに居られませう？』

審判の日

神の審判の庭は、寂として音もなかつた。罪人の靈魂は、赤裸々のまゝ、神の御前に立つた。

神は罪人の一生を記した文書を開いて、斯く宣はれた。『汝の一生は罪惡に滿ちてゐる。汝は……の罪を犯したれば地獄に送るべし。』

罪人は叫んだ。『私を地獄へやる事は出來ません。』

神は罪人に向つて問ふ。『それは又何故か。』

罪人は答へて云ふ。『今迄だつて何時も地獄の生活をして居たんです。』

神の審判の庭は寂として音もなかつた。

軈て神は罪人に宣うやう。『地獄へ送る事が出來ないなら、天國へ送るべし。』

『天國へやる事も出來ません。』

神は罪人に向つて問ふ。『それは又何故か。』

罪人は答へる。『今迄に天國なんてものは夢にも見た事がないからです。』

神の審判の庭は寂として音もなかつた。

無知

ルメトウリ作

「お父さん？何うしてお日樣は落こちて來ないの？」

親爺は困つた。實は何うして太陽が落こちて來ないんだか知らなかつたんだ。そして親爺は、自分の無知を見あらはされたのを怒つて、子供を叱りとばした。

其の後子供は、親爺に叱られるのが恐くつて、何うして太陽が落こちて來ないんだかも、又其の外の是非知りたいと思つた事も、何んにも尋ねやしなかつた。

此の子供は、もう六千年も——否やもつと〳〵永く——生きてゐるんだが、まだちつとも大人にならない。そして今日までまだ馬鹿で無知でゐる。

近代劇論（下）

荒畑寒村譯

三

スカンヂナビアもまた獨乙の如く、其の思想界は他の道を通じてよりは劇を通じて更に多く進歩した。イプセンの未だ現はれざるに先んじて、ブヨルンソンは北歐の天地に漲れる不平等、奸惡に反抗して、雷鳴の如く咆哮した。然しそれは荒野に於ける聲の如く、僅かに少數者に達したるに止まつて居たが、イプセンに在つては然らず、彼が『ブランド』、『人形の家』、『社會の柱』、『幽靈』、及び『人民の敵』は、古き概念を突き崩して、新しき、眞實なる人生の觀察を以て之に代へた。人もし人類同胞、一致協同、及び仁慈の原則として、地上に成就せらるべき理想としての宗教の近世的概念を知らんとせば、一篇の『ブランド』を讀まば足る社會的虛僞の至上の憎惡者たるイプセンは、彼れの面上より僞善のヴエイルを剝ぎ去つた。特に『社會の柱』、『人形の家』、『幽靈』及び『人民の敵』に於てそうである。

社會の柱—その信ぜる町の愚人たり、社會の最も强き柱石たりして社會上及び財政上の地位の絶頂に在る領事ベルニックは、虛僞と詐詐と、欺瞞との路を通じて山巓に達した。彼はその親友の名譽を奪ひ、また財產を得んが爲に無人なるロナ、ヘツセルを捨てゝその妹を娶つた。彼は更に社會の爲てふ名の下に、怪しげな事件に依つて巨額の富を得、遂に用に堪へざる老朽船「インデアン、ガール」を航海に用ひて、人命を危ふするに至る。然るにロナの復歸は彼をしてその狹隘なる生活の空虛と卑陋とを感ぜしめ、その子のより善き生活の爲に地を淨めたいといふ希望に依て、僞りに覺醒した眞心を容和しやうと努むるに至つたが、やがて眞理は虛僞の上に築く能はざるを知つた時、彼が此の最後の希望さへも粉碎し終つた。全市が此の社會の愚人の爲に組織の宴を開かんとせる瞬間、其心の成人に達せる彼は、集合せる市民に對つて懺悔する。予はかゝる禮を受くべき權利が無い、予が痴漢は予の核迄も知つて居るであらう。よしさらば、万人をして予を調らべしめよ。而して予をして此の事件より新しき生活に入るの預言を實現せしめよ。過去はその破產、その僞善、その不眞實、その虛飾、及びその憎れむべき卑怯と共に、教訓の爲に開かれた博物館の如く予等が背後に橫はるであらう。」

Copy for Personal Use Only - The Library, University of California at Berkeley

909

881108010

The Emma Goldman Papers

[The drama: a powerful disseminator of radical thought. In Japanese] Kindaigekiron / Emma Goldman. – pp. 19-27 ; 22 cm. In Kindai Shisó [Tokyo]. – (Oct.-Nov. 1912)

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: East Asiatic Library.

『人形の家』を以て、イブセンは婦人解放に對する道を整へた。ノラは人形の役から覺醒して、父及びその夫ヘルマア、トルバルトに依て爲された不正を知つた。

「父の膝下に居た時分は、妾は父に云はれた通りの考へを持つて居ました。妾の考へが遖つて居る時は、妾は父に咎められるのを怖れて、それを隱すやうにして居ました。父は妾を人形々々と呼んで、妾が自分の人形と遊ぶやうに妾と遊びました。妾が此の家に來てからも、矢張り何でも貴君の嗜好通りにして居ました。でなくとも、そう做つて居ました。今となつて見れば、妾はまるで乞食のやうな生活を爲つて居たのです。妾は今迄申戲ばかりして居ました、だけどトルバルト、貴君がそうさせたのじやありませんか。貴君と父は、妾に非常な邪な事をしたのです。」

妻の義務、社會的服從等の、ヘルマアが說明も效を爲さなかつた。ノラは今や人形の衣を脫して自ら思案し、自ら判斷する、意識ある婦人となつたからである。彼女は今や萬事に先だつて、彼女が自身に對して第一の義務を負へる人間なる事を知つた。彼女は今や、社會的放逐をさへも恐れぬのである。彼女は今や法律の正義を疑ひ、立法の智識を疑ひ、その反抗的精神は、現在せる萬物に對して驀進する。乞ふ、彼女自身が語に聞け!。

Copy for Personal Use Only The Library, University of California at Berkeley

『社會か、妾か、妾は眺れが正しいか定めねばなりません。』

根底より社會を震撼せしめたものは『幽靈』である。アルビング夫人は、二十六年の久しき、彼女が夫の家の有害なる空氣中より救はんとせる、その幼兒オスワルドが爲に十字架を負つた。彼女が義務と禮儀との迷信的なる畏怖に於て、彼の父の僞善をカバつた事も、亦その犯せる子の爲だつたのである。噫、彼女がその全生涯の犧牲の徒事、その子オスワルドが受けた父の罪の報いを知つたのは餘りに遲かつた。彼女はまた是を知つた。

「私達は皆幽靈だ、私達の裏に歩んで居るものは、父母から遺傳されたもの許りではない、それは死んだ理想と、生命なき古い信仰の凡ての種類なのだ。彼等は生命を有さない、然し私達は遂に彼等を逐ひ出し得ないで、悲慘な態で光明を恐れて居る。汝が義務と稱し、服從と稱する軛の下に私を強ひた時、私の全心が厭ふべきものとして反抗するものを、正當なるものとして汝の賞讚した時、私は實に汝の敎條の縫ひ目を見始めたのだ。私達は只だ一つの結び目を探まうとしたのみであるが、然しそれを解いた時、凡ては忽ちにして解つた。そして私は初めて、凡てが機械だつた事を知つたのだ。」

イブセンが社會の譏誚嘲笑に對して、屈せざる

の意氣を示したものは『人民の敵』である。此の大傑作は、既に死滅せる社會に與へた、イブセンの引導と見る事が出來る。而してその灰燼から現はれたもの、即ち復活せる個人、勇敢なる反抗者である。

鑛泉の醫師として故郷に招聘された醫師ストックマンは、既に浴場が患者に有害なる沼澤の上に建設されて居る事を發見し、是を社會に公表しやうとした。然し乍ら、ストックマンは、忽ちに配當金及び利益が、毫も健康若くは主義と相關しない事をも知つた。そして町の新聞紙『人民の使者』さへも、斯くては町の衰亡たり、自己の損失たる事を知つて、彼に對する援助を撤回するは、人民の敵てふ嘲笑と罵聲との間に葬り去られてすつた。彼の發見が町の衰亡を招くといふ一事は、爲に官吏、善良なる市民、及び改革者さへも事實を抑壓しやうとした。而して庶僞と詭瞞との上に、町の利益を築くに躊躇せぬ此の一團は、彼を謀ゆるに社會の公益の破壞者を以てする。然しストックマンは實際的政治家ではない、彼は思索する自由なる人民である。彼の心には「虛僞なる社會は破壞さるゝとも何かあらう。それは地上に强へさなければならぬ。虛僞の上に生存する全人民は、毒蟲の如く根絶しなければならぬ。」

『社會の柱』、『人形の家』、『幽靈』、及び『人民の敵』等の如き劇は、文明と稱する社會的墓地を步んで居る幽靈を逐ひ散らす動力を作つた。實にイブセンが破壞力は、また同時に無上なる建設力を有するのである。蓋し彼は現存の杜を毀すと共に同情的境遇に圍まれたる個人の優秀に基ける、健全にして理想的なる根底を形作るが故である。

四

英國にも此の數年間にショウ、ピネロ、ガルスワーシー、ローン・ケネデー等の作劇は、實には英國の大詩人の作にさへも曾だつた耳に急進思想を宣傳した。故にオーエンが貧困論を讀まず、シヨウが社會主義的論文に耳を傾けざる者と雖も、貧困を描いて痛切悲愴を極むる『バルバラ少佐』の爲には思索せざるを得ない。さればシヨウは、劇に依てのみ急進思想の傳播者と云ふを得べきである。シヨウは此の作に於て、貧困を以て基督敎文明の最大罪惡なりとして曰く、

「貧困は人民をして惰からしめ、卑屈ならしめ、優少ならしめ、貧困は疾病を作り、罪惡を作り、實淫を作る。實に地上の一切の惨事と惡業とに對して、貧困こそその責を負ふべきものである。」

ハウプトマンが『織工』に次で、最も重要なる勞働劇は、ガルスワーシーが『爭鬪』であらう。そは

910

881108010

The Emma Goldman Papers

[The drama: a powerful disseminator of radical thought. In Japanese] Kindaigekiron / Emma Goldman. – pp. 19-27 ; 22 cm. In Kindai Shisó [Tokyo]. – (Oct.-Nov. 1912)

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: East Asiatic Library.

優勢なる二要素間の爭鬪を描いたものであつて、一は會社の社長アンソニーと云ひ、勞働者が罷工を繼續する事既に半ケ月間、殆んど餓死の境遇に在るにも拘ず、些の讓歩をもなさゞる意志鐵の如き人物。他はダビット・ロバートと稱する革命家で、その勞働階級、及び自由に對する歸依、實に白熱の度に達して居る。而して彼等の中間に在つて、罷工者は激烈なる爭鬪の爲に疲勞困憊し、且つその家族の貧困と欠乏との恐ろしき光景に、狂せる如く苦悶して居る。『爭鬪』に於て最も驚くべく、また傑出せる點は、ガルスヲーシーが描ける群衆の輕燥と、その持久心の欠乏とに在る。

社長アンソニーとロバートとは、相反せる極、共に結び難き緣に依つて距てられたる極を代表して居る。アンソニーは保守主義、舊思想の權化である。

『俺は此の會社を三十二年間も管理して、四度勞働者と戰つたが一度も負けた事はなかつた。時世は變つたとはいふが俺は變らぬ主人と勞働者は平等だといふが、一軒の家に一人より主人が在るか？。資本と勞働は同じ利益を有つ筈だと云ふが、その利益は兩極の如く遠く別れて居る。勞働者を扱ふには鐵の鞭より外は無い主人は主人だ、勞働者は勞働者だ。』

其の古き、保守的思想に對する執着は別として猶その勇氣と堅實とは實に讃辭に値するものがある。斯の如き敵と戰ふ人は正々堂々の陣を以てせねばならぬ。ロバートの堅實も、またアンソニーに讓るものではない。

『吾々が戰つて居るのは目前の短い時間の爲ではない。又吾等自身の爲でもない。後に來る凡ての人類、凡ての時世の爲である。オー勞働者よ、彼等の爲に、彼等の爲に、彼等の頭上に他の石を卸すな。天を暗くするのを手傳ふな。』

牢獄と刑罰！、いかに多くの著者に依れる著述が此の社會的大問題を歷史的、心理的、及び社會的見地から評論し、いかに其の組織の不完全なる乎を示したであらう。然しその結果は、遂に殆んど何事も成就されなかつたと云ふも妨げぬ。然し遂に此の嚴肅なる社會的弊害は、ガルスヲーシーが『正義』に於て、その劇的解釋を發見するに至つた。

ジェームス、ハウ法律事務所の書記ウヰリアム、フアルダアルは人妻ルスと戀し、その殘忍なる夫から救はうとして、小切手を偽造した事が發覺する。是が法廷の場は、そのドラマツク、パワアと心理的確實とに於て、將にトルストイが『復活』の法廷の光景に匹敵する。法律の嚴重は容赦なく此の青年を襲き過ぎて、フアルダアは發後三年の宣告を受けて牢獄に投ぜられる。顏に罪人の印

を捺され、心に悲慘の鐵を置かれて、フアルダアが最後に獄を出づるや、ルスが懇請に依て養主はもしルスを捨てんには、再びフアルダアを雇ふ事を承諾した。而して此時また、フアルダアはルスが實の爲に途に身を賣つたといふ、恐ろしい報を初めて耳にしたのである。此の煩悶の刹那、フアルダアが自ら誤科者として報告しなかつたといふ故を以て、巡査は再び彼を牢獄に投じ去らうとする。憐れなる若きフアルダアよ。彼は牢獄に護送さるゝ途中に自殺して、人爲の正義よりも更に大なる平和を發見するのである。

現代社會生活を描いて痛切を極むるもの、他にケネデーが傑作『家の下僕』がある。劇中の主人公なる溝掃ひロバートは、社會から排斥された粗雜野卑なる醉漢である。然し彼はその仲間をして空氣と光とを得せしむべく、自ら進んで恐ろしい溝渠に降つて行く、眞實唯一の英雄である。勞働が社會的福利の贖ひ主たる事は、有ゆる語と有ゆる國とに於て叫ばれて居る處である。然もロバートの單純なる語はそれ等にも增せる大なる力を以て、勞働の意義とその使命とを表して居る。

五

アメリカは劇に於ては、猶未だ幼兒の時代に在る。彼女が有する唯一の眞の劇は、ユーゲン・ワルタアが『最も易き路』であらう。經濟的及び社會的狀態に於ける人力の罪惡的浪費は、多くの婦人を騙つて如何なる男子、如何なる家庭にも結婚せしむる如く、或は男子を騙つて、如何なる貧窮をも堪へしむる如く、またローラをも騙るのである

「お前さんは妾達が、こんな男達の生活を、馴れた獸ほどにも想つて居ない事を知らないの。實際勝負事見たいなものさえ、もし巧くやらなからうものなら、すぐ負けて了ふんだから。」生活場裡に立てる婦人が唯一の武器たり、唯一の商品たるものは、即ちセックスである。是れのみよく、「生存の勝負事に於てカードたるを得るのである。此の盲目なる宿命說は、婦人をして寄生蟲たらしめた。誰かいゝかでか、ローラが堅忍と精力とを期待し得やう。「最も易き路」は、古代から彼女に對つて示されて居た處ではないか。

此の他、チャールス・クレインが『第三等親』、デイル・バッターソンが『第四級民』、イグ・クロッチャーが『男の世界』皆な現社會の恐るべき不安を人民に示せる傑作であつて、漸くアメリカを照さんとする劇の曙光と云ふべきである。

之を要するに、無智と偏見と迷信との壞を超へて、澎湃たる不穩の潮流を天に沿せしむる、社會的不滿足の最も強き發達は、實に是を近代劇の力に歸せざるを得ぬのである。（エンマゴールドマン女史）

Copy for Personal Use Only The Library, University of California at Berkeley

911

890209022

The Emma Goldman Papers

Peter Kropotkin / Emma Goldman.— pp. 325-327 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 7, no. 10 (Dec. 1912).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

Anarchy and affirmed the necessity for a new morality opposed to the pharasaical morality of bourgeois society. In "The Conquest of Bread," followed by "Mutual Aid" and "The Great French Revolution," he sets forth with luminous clarity the goal of the struggle: liberty and well-being for all; the ideal which, more or less imperfectly visioned, has been the aspiration of revolutionists of all ages.

One might well believe that his broad sympathies help to deceive him as to the innate force of the people by ascribing to them the energy and clearsightedness which he himself possesses, but the lines which he has written regarding the rôle of the revolutionary minorities demonstrate that his intellectual vision is not subservient to his humanitarian sensibilities. And the lecture, printed in pamphlet form, which he delivered on "The Place of Anarchy in Socialistic Evolution" testifies perhaps more forcefully than a large volume his wide knowledge of the laws governing social phenomena.

In our time, when the capitalist world is sinking into decadence and the proletarian is not yet entirely released from the swaddling clothes of ignorance and superstition; when parasitical renegades, ambitious and unscrupulous, seek under the cover of Anarchy to satisfy their bourgeois desires, it is encouraging to meet—and to salute—such a man as Kropotkin.

CHARLES MALATO.

* * *

WITH my whole heart I join with you in paying honor to our Comrade Peter Kropotkin. The libertarians of Italy owe him a great debt, and we all love him as our intellectual father. His life of labor and sacrifice for humanity is a potent example and a great inspiration to all in whom burns the fire of liberty and emancipation.

Fraternally,

LUIGI MOLINARI.

PETER KROPOTKIN

BY EMMA GOLDMAN.

THOSE who constantly prate of conditions as the omnipotent factor in determining character and shaping ideas, will find it very difficult to explain the personality and spirit of our Comrade Peter Kropotkin.

Born of a serf-owning family and reared in the atmosphere of serfdom all about him, the life of Peter Kropotkin and his revolutionary activity for almost fifty years stand a living proof against the shallow contention of the superior potency of conditions over the latent force in man to map out his own course in life. And that force in our comrade is his revolutionary spirit, so elemental, so impelling that it permeated his whole being and gave new meaning and color to his entire life.

It was this all-absorbing revolutionary fire that burned away the barriers that separated Kropotkin, the aristocrat, from the common people, and flamed a clear vision all through his life. It filled him, the child of luxury, of refinement, the heir of a brilliant career, with but one ideal, one purpose in life—the liberation of the human race from serfdom, from all physical as well as spiritual serfdom.

How faithfully he has pursued that course, only those can appreciate who know the life and work of Peter Kropotkin.

Another very striking feature characteristic of this man is that he, of all revolutionists, should have the deepest faith in the people, in their innate possibilities to reconstruct society in harmony with their needs.

Indeed, the workers and the peasants are, to Kropotkin, the ones to hand down the spirit of resistance, of insurrection, to posterity. They, unsophisticated and untampered by artificiality, have always instinctively resented oppression and tyranny.

With Nietzsche, our comrade has continually emphasized that wherever the people have retained their integrity and simplicity, they have always hated organized authority as the most ruthless and barbaric institution among men.

912

890209022
The Emma Goldman Papers
Peter Kropotkin / Emma Goldman.– pp. 325-327 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. –Vol. 7, no. 10 (Dec. 1912).
Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

Possibly Kropotkin's faith in the people springs from his own simplicity of soul—a simplicity which is the dominant factor of his whole make-up. It is because of this, even more than because of his powerful mentality, that Revolution, to Peter Kropotkin, signifies the inevitable sociologic impetus to all life, all change, all growth. Even as Anarchism, to him, means not a mere theory, a school, or a tendency, but the eternal yearning, the reaching out of man for liberty, fellowship, and expansion.

Possibly this may also explain the truly human attitude of Peter Kropotkin toward the Attentäter. Never once in all his revolutionary career has our comrade passed judgment on those whom most so-called revolutionists had only too willingly shaken off—partly because of ignorance, and partly because of cowardice—those who had committed political acts of violence.

Peter Kropotkin knew that it is generally the most sensitive and sympathetic personality that smarts most under our social injustice and tyranny, personalities who find in the act the only liberating outlet for their harassed soul, who must cry out, even at the expense of their own lives, against the apathy and indifference in the face of our social crimes and wrongs. More than most revolutionists, Peter Kropotkin feels deeply with the spiritual hunger of the Attentäter, which culminates in the individual act and which is but the forerunner of collective insurrection—the spark that heralds a new Dawn.

But Peter Kropotkin does more. He also feels with the social pariah, with him who through hunger, drudgery, and lack of joy strikes down one of the class responsible for the horror and despair of the pariah's life. This was particularly demonstrated in the case of Luccheni, who was denounced and denied by nearly all other radicals. Yet no one can possibly have such an abhorence of violence and destruction of life, as our Comrade Peter Kropotkin; nor yet be so tender and sympathetic to all pain and suffering. Only that he is too universal, too big a nature to indulge in shallow moral censorship of violence at the bottom, knowing—as he does—that it is but a reflex of organized, systematic, legal violence on top.

Thus stands Peter Kropotkin before the world at the age of seventy: the most uncompromising enemy of all social injustice; the deepest and tenderest friend of oppressed and outraged mankind; old in years, yet aglow with the eternal spirit of youth and the undying faith in the final triumph of liberty and equality.

⁂ ⁂ ⁂

OUR DEBT TO KROPOTKIN

WE Anarchists, whatever our particular interpretation of radical doctrines, we are the heirs of Peter Kropotkin, and we are all inspired by a strong sense of gratitude, of affection and admiration. It is because of his labors that Anarchism has won the "right of citizenship" among modern sciences and philosophies—we owe it chiefly to him, and we say this without the least wish to disparage the great services to the cause of liberty given by our other comrades the world over.

Especially do we love and admire our Comrade Peter, because he has most unselfishly devoted his whole life to the cause of human emancipation. He has given his great talents and all his wonderful energy to the service of the proletariat: his poverty is his greatest crown. He could have been one of the powerful of the earth, one of the privileged of the bourgeoisie. He preferred to cast in his lot with the oppressed and disinherited, preferred to be persecuted and imprisoned, rather than to be "the darling of the great." His vast learning and all the power of his intellect he has consecrated to the common people, and he has proved the greatest thinker and propagandist of Anarchism.

Pardon these words if they seem like adulation. They are the spontaneous expression of our deep love for our great teacher and comrade, to whom the Anarchists of the world to-day send their heartfelt greetings, in the hope that he may be preserved to us for many long years, to continue the great struggle for progress and liberty.

When we speak with our political opponents, it requires but a few words to convince oneself that even the bitterest among them speak in admiration of our good Comrade. It is with a sense of justified pride that we say to them and to ourselves, "He is one of us!"

LUIGI FÄBBRI.

Crespellano, Italy, November, 1912.

913

890209023

The Emma Goldman Papers

Comrades and Friends / Emma Goldman.— p. 358 ; 20 cm. In Mother Earth. —Vol. 7, no. 10 (Dec. 1912).

Obtained from the University of California, Berkeley. Institutional Location: Doe Library.

COMRADES AND FRIENDS:

Next February MOTHER EARTH will close its seventh year of existence. I shall not burden you with a recital of what those years have meant to us—the struggle, anxiety and travail to keep the magazine above water. But I want you to know that if we did not fail or grow weary, it was largely due to your devotion and to our consciousness that MOTHER EARTH has endeared itself to you as much as to us. It is with this certainty that we turn to you again, as we often have on previous occasions.

To begin the eighth year of our magazine, we must increase our subscription by at least five hundred. To make this possible, we have decided to offer a premium with every new subscription or renewal. My book, "Anarchism and Other Essays," which, as you know, sells at $1.00, cloth, has been gotten out now in paper cover, and will be given as a premium with a year's subscription for the magazine.

Also, a copy of "Prison Memoirs of An Anarchist," by Alexander Berkman, will be sent to any one of you who will secure five NEW subscribers for the magazine.

This offer barely covers the cost of our publication; but we feel that an increase in subscribers means an increase in friends who represent in the struggle we are making, the only sustaining force.

Let us hear from you soon, dear friends. We need your cooperation.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

TO OUR CHICAGO FRIENDS

Wednesday, December 11th, 8 P. M., a Peter Kropotkin Seventieth Birthday Celebration will take place at the West Side Auditorium. Among the speakers will be Emma Goldman and Alexander Berkman.

Thursday, December 12th, 8 P. M., Emma Goldman will lecture at the West Side Auditorium Annex. Subject: Syndicalism in Theory and Practice.

Monday, December 16th, 8 P. M., Alexander Berkman will lecture at the West Side Auditorium Annex. Subject: Life in Prison.

All friends who wish to learn more about our visit to Chicago should communicate with Dr. R. M. Yampolsky, 801 South Ashland Boulevard.

EMMA GOLDMAN'S

last lectures at Lenox Casino, 116th Street and Lenox Ave

Sunday, December 8th, 8 P. M.
ECONOMIC EFFICIENCY—THE MODERN MENACE.

Sunday, December 15th, 8 P. M.
"DAMAGED GOODS," by Brieux.
(A powerful drama, dealing with the curse of venereal disease.)

Sunday, December 22d, 8 P. M.
THE BIRTH OF LABOR AND THE FAILURE OF CHRISTIANITY.

Beginning with the new year Emma Goldman will deliver a course of 8 lectures on the Modern Drama, comprising Ibsen, Strindberg, Hauptmann, Schnitzler, Wedekind, Rostand, Maeterlinck, Mirbeau, Tolstoy, Tchekhov, Gorky and Andreyev.

Price of course, $1.00. General admission, 25 cents.

The place will be announced later.

Subscriptions for the course may now be sent in to the Mother Earth office.

During January and February Miss Goldman will be open for lectures and debates outside of New York. Groups and organizations wishing dates will please communicate with us at once.

914

The Emma Goldman Papers

A Microfilm Edition

Reel 47

Goldman Writings

October 25, 1890 to December 31, 1912

Edited by

Candace Falk

Ronald J. Zboray

and

Daniel Cornford

CHADWYCK-HEALEY INC.

Alexandria, Virginia Cambridge, England

16X

1.0
1.1
1.25
1.4
1.6
1.8
2.0
2.2
2.5
2.8
3.2
3.6
4.0
4.5
5.0
5.6

END

